FOREWORD

The Avadhūta Gitā is a text of Vedānta representing extreme Advaita or Nondualism. It is ascribed to Dattātreyā (Datta, son of Atri), who is looked upon as an Incarnation of God. Unfortunately, we possess no historical data concerning when or where he was born, how long he lived, or how he arrived at the knowledge disclosed in the text. Some of the Purānas mention him, and of these, the Mārkaṇḍeya contains the longest reference; but even this is legendary and by no means very informative.

The account in the Mārkaṇḍeya Purāna suggests the following facts of Dattātreyas's life: He was born of highly spiritual parents, Atri and Anasūyā; very early in life he became renowned as a great warrior, and soon, renouncing the world and devoting himself to the practice of yoga, he attained to the highest state of liberation, thus becoming an avadhūta.

Avadhūta means a liberated soul, one who has "passed away from" or "shaken off" all worldly attachments and cares and has attained a spiritual state equivalent to the existence of God. Though avadhūta naturally implies renunciation, it includes an additional and yet higher state which is neither attachment nor detachment but beyond both. An avadhūta feels no need of observing any rules, either secular or religious. He seeks nothing, avoids nothing. He has neither knowledge nor ignorance. Having realized that he is the infinite Self, he lives in that vivid realization. To the Hindu mind, Dattātreya is a symbol of this realization. Whoever the unknown composer of the Avadhūta Gitā may have been, he must himself have been a man of the highest spiritual perception.

The Avadhūta Gitā is a small book of only eight chapters and is written in spirited Sanskrit verse, which breathes the atmosphere of the highest experience of Brahman. It goes into no philosophical argument to prove the oneness of reality, but is content to make the most startling statements, leaving the seeker of truth to imbibe them and be lifted from illusion into the blazing light of Knowledge (jñāna).

Advaita Vedantins have prized this Gitā highly. Swami Vivekananda, one of the greatest Advaitins of all time, often quoted from it. He once said, "Men like the one who wrote this Song keep religion alive. They have actually realized; they care for nothing, feel nothing done to the body, care not for heat, cold, danger, or anything. They sit still, enjoying the bliss of Atman, and though red-hot coals burn the body, they feel them not."

The present English translation was first published in part in 1946 in The Voice of India, a magazine of the Vedanta Society of Northern California. The learned translator, Swami Ashokananda, a senior monk of the Ramakrishna Order, served as editor of Prabuddha Bharata from 1926 to 1931 and was in charge of the Vedanta Society of Northern California from 1932 until his passing away in December of 1969.

AVADHŪTA GĪTĀ

ईश्वरानुग्रहादेव पुंसामद्वैतवासना ।

महद्भयपरित्राणाद्विप्राणामुपजायते

॥ १ ॥

īśvarānugrahād-eva puṁsām advaita-vāsanā mahadbhaya-paritrāṇāt viprāṇām upajāyate.

1. Through the grace of God alone, the desire for nonduality arises in wise men to save them from great fear.

Nonduality—monistic Consciousness, in which the knower, knowledge, and knowable—soul and God—become one; the highest realization of Divinity.

Fear—The word “fear” includes also such states of mind as insecurity, despair, and grief, all of which arise from a consciousness of oneself as limited and separate from others and which therefore can be dispelled only by realizing oneself as the All.

येनेदं पूरितं सर्वमात्मनेवात्मनात्मनि ।

निराकारं कथं वन्दे ह्यभिन्नं शिवमव्ययम् ॥ २ ॥ *yenedaṁ pūritam sarvam ātmanaiivātmanātmani nirākāraṁ katham vande hy-abhinnaṁ śivam

avyayam*

2. How shall I salute the formless Being, indivisible, auspicious, and immutable, who fills all this with His Self and also fills the self with His Self?

Salute—No form of greeting or worship is possible where there is no consciousness of distinction.

Fills, etc.—The reality and substance of the so-called individual self is the Divine Self.

पञ्चभूतात्मकं विश्वं मरीचिजलसन्निभम् ।

कस्याप्यहो नमस्कुर्यामहमेको निरञ्जनः ॥ ३ ॥ pañcabhūtātmaḥkaṁ viśvaṁ marīci-jalasannibham

kasyāpy-āho namaḥ-kuryām aham eko nirañ-janaḥ.

3. The universe composed of the five elements is like water in a mirage. Oh, to whom shall I make obeisance—I who am one and taintless?

Five elements—earth, water, fire, air, and ether. According to most philosophical systems of India, these combine to constitute the phenomenal universe and are derived from God associated with māyā or ignorance. The terms are not to be taken literally.

Taintless—untouched by the slightest ignorance and hence absolutely pure. The word is often applied to the Self and God.

आत्मैव केवलं सर्वं भेदाभेदो न विद्यते ।
अस्ति नास्ति कथं ब्रूयां विस्मयः प्रतिभाति मे ॥ ४ ॥ ātmaiva kevalam sarvaṁ bhedābhedo na vidyate astināsti katham brūyām vismayaḥ pratibhāti me.

4. All is verily the absolute Self. Distinction and nondistinction do not exist. How can I say, "It exists; it does not exist"? I am filled with wonder!

It—the universe.

वेदान्तसारसर्वस्वं ज्ञानं विज्ञानमेव च । अहमात्मा निराकारः सर्वव्यापी स्वभावतः ॥ ५ ॥ vedānta-sāra-sarvasvam jñānaṁ vijñānam eva ca aham-ātmā nirākāraḥ sarvavyāpī svabhāvataḥ.

5. The essence and the whole of Vedānta is this Knowledge, this supreme Knowledge: that I am by nature the formless, all-pervasive Self.

यो वै सर्वात्मको देवो निष्कलो गगनोपमः । स्वभावनिर्मलः शुद्धः स एवाहं न संशयः ॥ ६ ॥ yo vai sarvātmako devo niṣkalo gaganopamaḥ svabhāva-nirmalaḥ śuddhaḥ sa evāham na saṁśayaḥ.

6. There is no doubt that I am that God who is the Self of all, pure, indivisible, like the sky, naturally stainless.

अहमेवान्वयोऽनन्तः शुद्धविज्ञानविग्रहः ।

सुखं दुःखं न जानामि कथं कस्यापि वर्तते ॥ ७ ॥

aham evāvyayo'nantaḥ śuddha-vijñāna-vigrahaḥ sukham duḥkham na jānāmi katham kasyāpi vartate.

7. I indeed am immutable and infinite and of the form of pure Intelligence. I do not know how or in relation to whom joy and sorrow exist.

न मानसं कर्म शुभाशुभं मे

न कायिकं कर्म शुभाशुभं मे ।

न वाचिकं कर्म शुभाशुभं मे

ज्ञानामृतं शुद्धमतीन्द्रियोऽहम् ॥ ८ ॥ na mānasam karma śubhāśubham me na kāyikam karma śubhāśubham me na vācikam karma śubhāśubham me jñānāmṛtam śuddham atīndriyo'ham.

8. I have no mental activity, good or bad; I have no bodily function, good or bad; I have no verbal action, good or bad. I am the nectar of Knowledge, beyond the senses, pure.

मनो वै गगनाकारं मनो वै सर्वतोमुखम् ।

मनोऽस्तीतं मनः सर्वं न मनः परमार्थतः ॥ ९ ॥

mano vai gaganākāraṁ mano vai sarvato mukham mano'tītaṁ manaḥ sarvaṁ na manaḥ paramārthataḥ.

9. The mind indeed is of the form of space. The mind indeed is omnifaced. The mind is the past. The mind is all. But in reality there is no mind.

All—the phenomenal universe, including all time and space.

In reality—In the highest realization of the Spirit there is no mind.

अहमेकमिदं सर्वं व्योमातीतं निरन्तरम् ।

पश्यामि कथमात्मानं प्रत्यक्षं वा तिरोहितम् ॥ १० ॥ aham ekam idaṁ sarvaṁ vyomātītaṁ nirantaram paśyāmi katham ātmānaṁ pratyakṣaṁ vā tirohitam.

10. I, the One only, am all this, beyond space and continuous. How can I see the Self as visible or hidden?

Continuous—without the intervention of another substance; therefore homogeneous and undifferentiated.

Hidden—The question of the Self as being hidden or visible does not arise when one oneself is that Self.

त्वमेवमेकं हि कथं न बुध्यसे
 समं हि सर्वेषु विमृष्टमव्ययम् ।
 सदोदितोऽसि त्वमखण्डितः प्रभो दिवा च नक्तं च कथं हि मन्यसे ॥ ११ ॥ tvam evam ekam hi katham na buddhyase samam hi sarveṣu vimṛṣṭam avyayam sadodito'si tvam akhanditaḥ prabho divā ca naktam ca katham hi manyase.

11. Thus you are One. Why then do you not understand that you are the unchangeable One, equally perceived in all? O mighty One, how can you, who are ever-shining, unrestricted, think of day and night?

You—Dattātreya now addresses the disciple to whom he is imparting the highest truth.

Night—There can be no perception of any time or condition in perfect Self-realization.

आत्मानं सततं विद्धि सर्वत्रैकं निरन्तरम् । अहं ध्याता परं ध्येयमखण्डं खण्डयते कथम् ॥ १२ ॥ ātmānam satatam viddhi sarvatraikam nirantaram aham dhyātā param dhyeyam akhaṇḍam khandyate katham.

12. Know the Self always to be everywhere, one and unintercepted. I am the meditator and the highest object of meditation. Why do you divide the Indivisible?

Unintercepted—See note on “Continuous,” verse 10.

Divide, etc.—Even the act of meditation is an expression of ignorance because it implies duality.

न जातो न मृतोऽसि त्वं न ते देहः कदाचन ।
सर्वं ब्रह्मेति विख्यातं ब्रवीति बहुधा श्रुतिः ॥ १३ ॥ na jāto na mṛto'si tvam na te dehaḥ kadācana sarvaṁ brahmeti vikhyātaṁ bravīti bahudhā śrutih.

13. You are not born nor do you die. At no time do you have a body. The scripture declares in many different ways the well-known dictum: “All is Brahman.”

स बाह्याभ्यन्तरोऽसि त्वं शिवः सर्वत्र सर्वदा । इतस्ततः कथं भ्रान्तः प्रधावसि पिशाचवत् ॥ १४ ॥ sa bāhyābhyantaro'si tvam śivaḥ sarvatra sarvadā itas tataḥ katham bhrāntaḥ pradhāvasi piśācavat.

14. You¹ are He who is exterior and interior. You are the auspicious One existing everywhere at all times. Why are you running hither and thither deluded, like an unclean spirit?

संयोगश्च वियोगश्च वर्तते न च ते न मे ।

न त्वं नाहं जगन्नेदं सर्वमात्मैव केवलम् ॥ १५ ॥ samyogaś ca viyogaś ca vartate na ca te na me na tvam nāhaṁ jagan-nedaṁ sarvam ātmaiva kevalam.

15. Union and separation exist in regard neither to you nor to me. There is no you, no me, nor is there this universe. All is verily the Self alone.

शब्दादिपञ्चकस्यास्य नैवासि त्वं न ते पुनः ।

त्वमेव परमं तत्त्वमतः किं परितप्यसे ॥ १६ ॥

śabdādi pañcakasyāsyā naivāsi tvam na te punaḥ tvam eva paramam tattvam ataḥ kiṁ paritapyase.

16. You do not belong to that which is composed of the five objects of sense, such as sound; nor does that belong to you. You indeed are the supreme Reality. Why then do you suffer?

Five, etc.—The world appearance is composed of the five objects of sense: sight, sound, touch, taste, and smell, and is not in reality connected with the Self.

जन्म मृत्युर्न ते चित्तं बन्धमोक्षौ शुभाशुभौ ।

कथं रोदिषि रे वत्स नामरूपं न ते न मे ॥ १७ ॥

janma mṛtyuḥ na te cittaṁ bandha-mokṣau śubhāśubhau

kathaṁ rodiṣi re vatsa nāma-rūpaṁ na te na me.

17. For you there is no birth or death, for you there is no mind, for you there is no bondage or liberation, no good or evil. Why do you shed tears, my child? Neither you nor I have name and form.

अहो चित्त कथं भ्रान्तः प्रधावसि पिशाचवत् ।

अभिन्नं पश्य चात्मानं रागत्यागात्सुखी भव ॥ १८ ॥

aho citta kathaṁ bhrāntaḥ pradhāvasi piśācavat abhinnam paśya cātmānaṁ rāga-tyāgāt sukhī bhava.

18. O mind, why do you wander about deluded, like an unclean spirit? Behold the Self indivisible. Be happy through renunciation of attachment.

त्वमेव तत्त्वं हि विकारवर्जितं

निष्कम्पमेकं हि विमोक्षविग्रहम् ।

न ते च रागो ह्यथवा विरागः

कथं हि सन्तप्यसि कामकामतः ॥ १९ ॥ tvam eva tattvaṁ hi vikāra-varjitam niṣkampaṁ ekaṁ hi vimokṣa-vigrahaṁ

na te ca rāgo hyathavā virāgaḥ katham hi santapyasi kāma-kāmataḥ.

19. You verily are Truth, devoid of change, motionless, one, of the nature of freedom. You have neither attachment nor aversion. Why do you suffer, seeking the objects of desires?

वदन्ति श्रुतयः सर्वाः निर्गुणं शुद्धमव्ययम् । अक्षरीरं समं तत्त्वं तन्मां विद्धि न संशयः ॥ २० ॥

avadanti śrutayah sarvāḥ nirgunam suddham

*avyayam
aśarīraṁ samam tattvaṁ tan māṁ viddhi na
saṁśayaḥ*

20. All the scriptures say that the Truth is without attributes, pure, immutable, bodiless, and existing equally everywhere. Know me to be That. There is not the least doubt about it.

साकारमनृतं विद्धि निराकारं निरन्तरम् । एतत्तत्त्वोपदेशेन न पुनर्भवसम्भवः ॥ २१ ॥

sākāram anṛtaṁ viddhi nirākāraṁ nirantaram etat tattvopadeśena na punar-bhava-sambhavaḥ.

21. Know that which has form to be false, that which is formless to be eternal. Through the instruction of this truth there is no longer rebirth into this world.

No longer, etc.—Knowing oneself as eternal, one is not born into this world anymore, since incarnation is caused only by the soul's ignorance of its true nature.

एकमेव समं तत्त्वं वदन्ति हि विपश्चितः ।

रागत्यागात्पुनश्चित्तमेकानेकं न विद्यते ॥ २२ ॥ ekam eva samam tattvam vadanti hi vipascitah rāga-tyāgāt punaḥ cittam ekānekam na vidyate.

22. Sages say that Reality is one only and the same. And through renunciation of attachment, the mind, which is one and many, ceases to exist.

One and many—“one” in a high (but not the highest) state of illumination, and “many” in the state of ignorance.

अनात्मरूपं च कथं समाधि-

रात्मस्वरूपं च कथं समाधिः ।

अस्तीति नास्तीति कथं समाधि-

मोक्षस्वरूपं यदि सर्वमेकम् ॥ २३ ॥ anātma-rūpaṁ ca katham samādhiḥ ātma-svarūpaṁ ca katham samādhiḥ astīti nāstīti katham samādhiḥ mokṣa-svarūpaṁ yadi sarvam ekam.

23. If it is of the nature of the not-Self, how can there be samādhi (superconscious realization)? If it is of the nature of the Self, how can there be samādhi? If it is both "is" and "is not", how can there be samādhi? If all is one and of the nature of freedom, how can there be samādhi?

It—the universe of experience.

Samādhi—the quieting and extinction of the mind, as a result of which the eternal Truth is realized. Dattatreya maintains that the practice of samādhi has no justification. If the universe of our experience is the not-Self, then we are not in the state of samādhi, for Truth is not there. If our experience is of the Self, then samādhi is superfluous.

विशुद्धोऽसि समं तत्त्वं विदेहस्त्वमजोऽव्ययः ।

जानामीह न जानामीत्यात्मानं मन्यसे कथम् ॥ २४ ॥

viśuddho'si samam tattvaṁ videhestvam

ajo'vyayah

jānāmīha na jānāmīty ātmānaṁ manyase katham.

24. You are pure homogeneous Reality, disembodied, unborn, and immutable. Why do you think of yourself as "I know it here" or as "I do not know"?

“I know it here”, etc.—Our knowledge of ourself in this earthly state is incorrect. To maintain that we do not have any true knowledge of ourself here is also incorrect.

तत्त्वमस्यादिवाक्येन स्वात्मा हि प्रतिपादितः ।

नेति नेति श्रुतिर्ब्रूयादनृतं पाञ्चभौतिकम् ॥ २५ ॥

tattvamasyaḍi vākyaena svātmā hi pratipāditah neti neti śrutiḥ brūyāt anṛtaḥ pañca-bhautikam.

25. By such sentences as “That thou art,” your own Self is affirmed. Of that which is untrue and composed of the five elements the Sruti says, “Not this, not this.”

That, etc.—the phenomenal existence.

Five elements—earth, water, fire, air, and ether, of which, according to the Indian systems of philosophy, the whole relative existence is constituted. See verse 3.

Śruti—the Vedas, particularly the Upaniṣads, the original texts of the Vedānta philosophy.

आत्मन्येवात्मना सर्वं त्वया पूर्णं निरन्तरम् ।

ध्याता ध्यानं न ते चित्तं निर्लज्जं

ध्यायते कथम् ॥ २६ ॥

ātmany-evātmanā sarvaḥ tvayā pūrṇam

nirantaram

dhyātā dhyānaḥ na te cittam nirlajjam dhyāyate

katham.

26. As the self is filled by the Self, so is all filled continuously by you. There is no mediator or meditation. Why does your mind meditate shamelessly?

Shamelessly—One should be ashamed to meditate, because meditation presupposes a shameful forgetfulness of one's true, Divine nature.

शिवं न जानामि कथं वदामि

शिवं न जानामि कथं भजामि ।

अहं शिवश्चेत्परमार्थतत्त्वं

समस्वरूपं गगनोपमं च ॥ २७ ॥

śivaṁ na jānāmi katham vadāmi

śivaṁ na jānāmi katham bhajāmi

ahaṁ śivaś cet paramārtha-tattvaṁ sama-svarūpaṁ gaganopamaṁ ca.

27. I do not know the Supreme; how shall I speak of Him? I do not know the Supreme; how shall I worship Him? If I am the supreme One, who is the highest Truth, who is homogeneous Being and like unto space, how then shall I speak of Him and worship Him?

Know, etc.—Empirical knowledge belongs to a lower state in which the Supreme cannot be perceived; therefore one cannot speak of "knowing" the Supreme.

नाहं तत्त्वं समं तत्त्वं कल्पनाहेतुवर्जितम् ।

ग्राह्यग्राहकनिर्मुक्तं स्वसंवेद्यं कथं भवेत् ॥ २८ ॥

*nāham tattvaṁ samam tattvaṁ kalpanā-hetuvarjitam
grāhya-grāhaka-nirmuktam svasamvedyaṁ katham bhavet.*

28. The principle of ego is not the Truth, which is homogeneous, which is free from the cause of superimposition and distinctions of perceived and perceiver. How can the ego be That which is aware of Itself?

अनन्तरूपं न हि वस्तु किञ्चि-

तत्त्वस्वरूपं न हि वस्तु किञ्चित् ।

आत्मैकरूपं परमार्थतत्त्वं

न हिंसको वापि न चाप्यहिंसा ॥ २९ ॥

ananta-rūpaṁ na hi vastu kimcit tattva-svarūpaṁ na hi vastu kimcit ātmaikarūpaṁ paramārtha-tattvaṁ na himsako vāpi nacāpy-ahimsā.

29. There is no substance whatever which is by nature unlimited. There is no substance whatever which is of the nature of Reality. The very Self is the supreme Truth. There is neither injury nor noninjury in It.

Substance—relative reality.

विशुद्धोऽसि समं तत्त्वं विदेहमजमव्ययम् ।

विभ्रमं कथमात्मार्थे विभ्रान्तोऽहं कथं पुनः ॥ ३० ॥

*viśuddho'si samam tattvam videham-ajam-avyayam
vibhramam katham ātmārthe vibhrānto'ham katham punaḥ.*

30. You are the homogeneous Reality; you are pure, bodiless, birthless, and imperishable. Why then do you have any delusion about the Self? Again, why am I myself deluded?

घटे भिन्ने घटाकाशं सुलीनं भेदवर्जितम् ।

शिवेन मनसा शुद्धो न भेदः प्रतिभाति मे ॥ ३१ ॥

*ghaṭe bhinne ghatākāśam sulīnam bhedavarjitam
śivena manasā śuddho na bhedaḥ pratibhāti me.*

31. When the pot is broken, the space within it is absorbed in the infinite space and becomes undifferentiated. When the mind becomes pure, I do not perceive any difference between the mind and the supreme Being.

न घटो न घटाकाशो न जीवो जीवविग्रहः ।

केवलं ब्रह्म संविद्धि वेद्यवेदकवर्जितम् ॥ ३२ ॥

na ghaṭo na ghaṭākāśo na jīvo jīva-vigrahaḥ kevalam brahma samviddhi vedya-vedaka-varjitam.

32 There is no pot; there is no pot's interior space. Neither is there an individual soul nor the form of an individual soul. Know the absolute Brahman, devoid of knowable and knower.

सर्वत्र सर्वदा सर्वमात्मानं सततं ध्रुवम् । सर्वं शून्यमशून्यं च तन्मां विद्धि न संशयः ॥ ३३ ॥ *sarvatra sarvadā sarvam ātmānam satatam dhruvam
sarvam śūnyam aśūnyam ca tan mānam viddhi na saṁśayah.*

33. Know me to be that Self who is everything and everywhere at all times, who is eternal, steady, the All, the nonexistent, and the Existent. Have no doubt.

Nonexistent—the phenomenal aspect of being, which has now disappeared.

वेदा न लोका न सुरा न यज्ञा वणश्रिमो नैव कुलं न जातिः ।
न घूममार्गो न च दीप्तिमार्गो ब्रह्मैकरूपं परमार्थतत्त्वम् ॥ ३४ ॥

vedāḥ na lokāḥ na surāḥ na yajñāḥ varṇāśramo naiva kulām na jātiḥ na dhūma-mārgo na ca dīpti-mārgo brahmaīkarūpaṁ paramārtha-tattvam.

34. There are no Vedas, no worlds, no gods, no sacrifices. There is certainly no caste, no stage in life, no family, no birth. There is neither the path of smoke nor the path of light. There is only the highest Truth, the homogeneous Brahman.

Stage in life—any of the four stages into which life is divided by the Hindus, namely, those of the student, the householder, the contemplative, and the mendicant.

The path of smoke, etc.—the two paths along which, according to Hinduism, souls travel to the invisible worlds after death.

व्याप्यव्यापकनिर्मुक्तः त्वमेकः सफलं यदि ।

प्रत्यक्षं चापरोक्षं च ह्यात्मानं मन्यसे कथम् ॥ ३५ ॥

vyāpya-vyāpaka-nirmuktaḥ tvam ekaḥ

saphalaṁ yadi

*pratyakṣaṁ cāparokṣaṁ ca hyātmānaṁ manyase
katham.*

35. If you are free of the pervaded and pervader, if you are one and fulfilled, how can you think of yourself as directly perceptible by the senses or beyond the range of the senses?

Free, etc.—one who has transcended the sense of distinction between forms (“pervaded”) and the Divine Substance (“pervader”). Such a one, therefore, has constant, unobstructed consciousness of Divinity.

Directly—that is to say, in the manner in which the ignorant man perceives with his senses. In the highest state of realization, sense perception is no longer distinguishable from spiritual intuition.

अद्वैतं केचिदिच्छन्ति द्वैतमिच्छन्ति चापरे ।

समं तत्त्वं न विन्दन्ति द्वैताद्वैतविवर्जितम् ॥ ३६ ॥ advaitam kecid icchanti dvaitam icchanti cāpare samaṁ tattvaṁ na vindanti dvaitādvaitavivarjitam.

36. Some seek nonduality, others duality. They do not know the Truth, which is the same at all times and everywhere, which is devoid of both duality and nonduality.

श्वेतादिवर्णरहितं शब्दादिगुणवर्जितम् ।

कथयन्ति कथं तत्त्वं मनोवाचामगोचरम् ॥ ३७ ॥ śvetādi-varna-rahitaṁ śabdādi-guṇa-varjitam kathayanti katham tattvaṁ manovācām agocaram.

37. How can they describe the Truth, which is beyond mind and words, which is devoid of white and other colours, of sound and other qualities?

यदाऽनृतमिदं सर्वं देहादिगगनोपमम् ।

तदा हि ब्रह्म संवेत्ति न ते द्वैतपरम्परा ॥ ३८ ॥

yadā'nṛtam idaṁ sarvaṁ dehādi gaganopamam tadā hi brahma saṁvetti na te dvaita-param-parā.

38. When all these appear to you as false, when the body and so on appear to you like space, then you know Brahman truly, then for you there is no dual series.

Dual series—such as “I and Thou” (self and God), “I and it” (self and the world), and so on. Also it means “Self and not-Self” and the series of their evolutes.

परेण सहजात्मापि ह्यभिन्नः प्रतिभाति मे ।

व्योमाकारं तथैवैकं ध्याता ध्यानं कथं भवेत् ॥ ३९ ॥

*pareṇa sahajātmāpi hya-bhinnaḥ pratibhāti me vyomākāraṁ tathaiivaikaṁ dhyātā dhyānaṁ
katham bhavet.*

39. Even my natural self appears to me as non-distinct from the supreme Self; it appears to be one and like space. How can there be meditator and meditation?

यत्करोमि यदश्नामि यज्जुहोमि ददामि यत् ।

एतत्सर्वं न मे किञ्चिद्विशुद्धोऽहमजोऽव्ययः ॥ ४० ॥

yat karomi yad asnāmi yaj juhomi dadāmi yat etat sarvaṁ na me kiñcit viśuddho'ham

ajo'vyayaḥ

40. What I do, what I eat, what I sacrifice, what I give—all this is not mine in the least. I am pure, unborn, undecaying.

सर्वं जगद्विद्धि निराकृतीदं सर्वं जगद्विद्धि sarvaṁ jagad viddhi nirākṛtīdaṁ sarvaṁ jagad viddhi vikāra-hīnam sarvaṁ jagad viddhi viśuddha-dehaṁ sarvaṁ jagad viddhi śivaikarūpam.

41. Know all this universe to be formless. Know all this universe to be without change. Know all this universe to be of purified body. Know all this universe to be of the nature of the Absolute.

Of purified body—That is to say, the material substance of which the universe appears to be constituted is really nothing but pure Spirit.

तत्त्वं त्वं न हि संदेहः किं जानाम्यथवा पुनः ।

असंवेद्यं स्वसंवेद्यमात्मानं मन्यसे कथम् ॥ ४२ ॥

*tattvam tvam na hi sandehaḥ kiṁ jānāmi athavā

*asamvedyam svasamvedyam ātmānaṁ manyase
katham.*

42. You are verily the Truth. There is no doubt about it—otherwise, what do I know? Why do you consider the Self, which is perceptible to Itself, as imperceptible?

Otherwise—If one does not perceive every being as Divine, one is still ignorant.

मायाऽमाया कथं तात छायाऽछाया न विद्यते ।

तत्त्वमेकमिदं सर्वं व्योमाकारं निरञ्जनम् ॥ ४३ ॥

māyā amāyā katham tāta chāyā achāyā na vidyate

tattvam ekam idam sarvaṁ vyomākāraṁ nirañjanam.

43. My child, how can there be illusion and nonillusion, shadow and lack of shadow? All this is one Truth, all this is of the nature of space and without taint.

आदिमध्यान्तमुक्तोऽहं न बद्धोऽहं कदाचन ।

स्वभावनिरमलः शुद्ध इति मे निश्चिता मतिः ॥ ४४ ॥

*ādi-madhyānta-mukto'ham na baddho'ham kadācana
svabhāva-nirmalaḥ śuddhaḥ iti me niścītā matiḥ.*

44. I am free in the beginning, in the middle, and in the end. I am never bound. This is my sure knowledge—that I am naturally spotless and pure.

महदादि जगत्सर्वं न किञ्चित्प्रतिभाति मे ।

ब्रह्मैव केवलं सर्वं कथं वर्णाश्रमस्थितिः ॥ ४५ ॥ mahad-ādi jagat sarvaṁ na kiñcit pratibhāti me brahmaiva kevalaṁ sarvaṁ kathaṁ varṇā-śrama-sthitiḥ.

45. The whole universe, beginning with the principle of cosmic intelligence, is not in the least manifest to me. All is indeed Brahman alone. How can there be any existence in caste or stage of life for me?

जानामि सर्वथा सर्वमहमेको निरन्तरम् ।

निरालम्बमशून्यं च शून्यं व्योमादिपञ्चकम् ॥ ४६ ॥

jānāmi sarvathā sarvam aham eko nirantaram nirālambam aśūnyaṁ ca śūnyaṁ vyomādi-pañcakam.

46. I know that all, in every way, is the one indivisible "I" which is self-sustained and full, while the five elements, beginning with ether, are empty.

न षण्डो न पुमान् न स्त्री न बोधो नैव कल्पना ।

सानन्दो वा निरानन्दमात्मानं मन्यसे कथम् ॥ ४७ ॥

*na ṣaṇḍho na pumān na strī na bodho naiva kalpanā
sānando vā nirānandam ātmanam manyase
katham.*

47. The Self is neither eunuch, man, nor woman: it is neither idea nor imagination. How can you think the Self to be full of joy or joyless?

Full of joy—Here "joy" is used in the sense of relative joy as perceived by the senses and the mind.

Joyless—Here the reference is to transcendental Joy.

षडङ्गयोगात् न तु नैव शुद्धं मनोविनाशान्न
 तु नैव शुद्धम् ।
 गुरूपदेशात् न तु नैव शुद्धं स्वयं च तत्त्वं स्वयमेव बुद्धम् ॥ ४८ ॥

ṣaḍaṅga yogān na tu naiva śuddham mano-vināśān na tu naiva śuddham gurūpadeśān na tu naiva śuddham svayam ca tattvaṁ svayam eva buddham.

48. The Self certainly does not become pure through the practice of six-limbed yoga. It certainly is not purified by the destruction of the mind. It certainly is not made pure by the instructions of the teacher. It is Itself the Truth, It is Itself the illumined One.

Six-limbed—consisting of six parts or steps, namely, posture, control of the vital force, self-withdrawal, concentration, meditation, and samādhi.

न हि पञ्चात्मको देहो विदेहो वर्तते न हि । आत्मैव केवलं सर्वं तुरीयं च त्रयं कथम् ॥ ४९ ॥ *na hi pañcātmako deho videho vartate na hi ātmaiva kevalam sarvaṁ turīyaṁ ca trayam
 katham.*

49. There is no body made up of five elements; nor is there anyone who is disembodied. All is verily the Self alone. How can there be the three states and the fourth?

Five elements—See verses 3 and 25.

Anyone, etc.—When the pure Self is spoken of as disembodied, the idea of body is associated with It, though negatively. All such qualifications of the Self (or Soul) are denied in this as well as in other verses.

Three states, etc.—the waking state, the dream state, and the deep sleep state: the ordinary conditions of individuals when they are ignorant of their true nature, which is usually called the fourth or transcendental state. To name the transcendental state as the fourth is itself an error, as such a designation, which makes it a correlative of the other three states, is inapplicable to the absolute Self.

न बद्धो नैवमुक्तोऽहं न चाहं ब्रह्मणः पृथक् ।

न कर्ता न च भोक्ताहं व्याप्यव्यापकवर्जितः ॥ ५० ॥ na baddho naiva mukto'ham na cāham brahmaṇaḥ pṛthak

na kartā na ca bhoktāham vyāpya-vyāpaka-varjitaḥ.

50. I am not bound, I am not, indeed, liberated, and I am not different from Brahman. Neither doer nor enjoyer, I am devoid of the distinctions of the pervaded and the pervader.

Liberated—The Self cannot be “liberated”, since it was never bound.

Pervaded, etc.—The Sanskrit words for pervaded and pervader are vyāpya and vyāpaka, meaning the particular and the universal. The particular is pervaded by or constituted of the universal. The Self can be neither particular nor universal, as both these designations imply distinction, division, and limitation.

यथा जलं जले न्यस्तं सलिलं भेदवर्जितम् ।

प्रकृतिं पुरुषं तद्वदभिन्नं प्रतिभाति मे ॥ ५१ ॥

yathā jalam jale nyastam salilam bhedavarjitam
prakṛtiṁ puruṣam tadvad abhinnam pratibhāti me.

51. As water, when water has been poured into water, has no distinctions, so purusa and prakṛti appear nondifferent to me.

Purusa, etc.—puruṣa: Soul. prakṛti: nature. Ordinarily considered to be opposite principles, conscious and unconscious, they are here recognized as identical in the highest spiritual experience.

यदि नाम न मुक्तोऽसि न बद्धोऽसि कदाचन ।

साकारं च निराकारमात्मानं मन्यसे कथम् ॥ ५२ ॥

*yadi nāma na mukto'si na baddho'si kadācana sākāraṁ ca nirākāraṁ atmānaṁ manyase
katham?*

52. If indeed you are never bound or liberated, how then can you think yourself with form or as formless?

With form, etc.—The Self, of course, is without form, but saying so implies recognition of form; therefore even the idea of the formlessness of the Self is repudiated.

जानामि ते परं रूपं प्रत्यक्षं गगनोपमम् ।

यथा परं हि रूपं यन्मरीचिजलसन्निभम् ॥ ५३ ॥

jānāmi te param rūpaṁ pratyakṣaṁ gaganopamam yathā param hi rūpaṁ yan marīci-jala-sannibham.

53. I know your supreme Form to be directly perceivable, like the sky. I know your lower form to be as water in a mirage.

Like the sky—without division or distinction, without change.

Lower, etc.—apparent form.

न गुरुर्नोपदेशश्च न चोपाधिर्न मे क्रिया ।

विदेहं गगनं विद्धि विशुद्धोऽहं स्वभावतः ॥ ५४ ॥

na guruḥ nopadeśaś ca na copādhir na me kriyā videhaṁ gaganam viddhi viśuddho'ham svabhā-vataḥ.

54. I have neither teacher nor instruction, limiting adjunct nor activity. Know that I am by nature pure, bodiless, like the sky.

Limiting, etc.—any qualification.

विशुद्धोऽस्य शरीरोऽसि न ते चित्तं परात्परम् ।

अहं चात्मा परं तत्त्वमिति वक्तुं न लज्जसे ॥ ५५ ॥ *viśuddho'sya śarīro'si na te cittaṁ parāt param

ahaṁ cātmā param tattvam iti vaktuṁ na lajjase.*

55. You are pure, you are without a body, your mind is not higher than the highest. You need not be ashamed to say, "I am the Self, the supreme Truth."

Mind, etc.—The mind is not the Self.

कथं रोदिषि रे चित्तं ह्यात्मैवात्मात्मना भव ।

पिब वत्स कलातीतमद्वैतं परमामृतम् ॥ ५६ ॥

*katham rodiṣi re citta hy ātmaivātmātmanā
piba vatsa kalātītam advaitam paramāmṛitam.*

56. Why are you weeping, O mind? Do you, the Self, be the Self by means of the Self. Drink, my child, the supreme nectar of Nonduality, transcending all divisions.

Means, etc.—One cannot attain to Self-knowledge except through the Self itself. How can the mind, which is not-Self, reveal the Self?

नैव बोधो न चाबोधो न बोध्नाबोध एव च ।

यस्येदृशः सदा बोधः स बोधो नान्यथा भवेत् ॥ ५७ ॥

naiva bodho na cābodho na bodhābodha eva ca

yasyedr̥śaḥ sadā bodhaḥ sa bodho nānyathā

bhavet.

57. There is neither knowledge nor ignorance nor knowledge combined with ignorance. He who has always such knowledge is himself Knowledge. It is never otherwise.

Knowledge—The Absolute is spoken of as Existence, Knowledge, and Bliss.

ज्ञानं न तर्को न समाधियोगो न देशकालौ

न गुरूपदेशः ।

स्वभावसंवित्तिरहं च तत्त्वमाकाशकल्पं सहजं

ध्रुवं च ॥ ५८ ॥

jñānam na tarko na samādhi yogo na deśa-kālau na gurūpadeśaḥ svabhāva-samvittir aham ca tattvaṁ ākāśa-kalpaṁ sahaṁ dhruvaṁ ca.

58. There is no need of knowledge, reasoning, time, space, instruction from a teacher, or attainment of samādhi. I am naturally the perfect Consciousness, the Real, like the sky, spontaneous and steady.

Samādhi—See verse 23. Dattātreyā maintains that the practice of samādhi is not necessary because, according to him, the Self has never been bound and hence does not require to practise anything to gain knowledge of Itself. The Self, which is Consciousness Itself, can never lose consciousness of Its true nature and therefore samādhi is superfluous.

न जातोऽहं मृतो वापि न मे कर्म शुभाशुभम् ।

विशुद्धं निर्गुणं ब्रह्म बन्धो मुक्तिः कथं मम ॥ ५९ ॥

na jāto'ham mṛto vāpi na me karma śubhāśubham viśuddham nirguṇam brahma bandho muktiḥ katham mama.

59. I was not born nor have I death. I have no action, good or evil. I am Brahman, stainless, without qualities. How can there be bondage or liberation for me?

यदि सर्वगतो देवः स्थिरः पूर्णो निरन्तरः ।

अन्तरं हि न पश्यामि स बाह्याभ्यन्तरः

कथम् ॥ ६० ॥

yadi sarva-gato devaḥ sthiraḥ pūrṇaḥ nirantaraḥ antaram hi na paśyāmi sa bāhyābhyantaraḥ

katham.

60. If God pervades all, if God is immovable, full, undivided, then I see no division. How can He have exterior or interior?

How, etc.—Exterior or interior cannot be spoken of Him who is indivisible and infinite.

स्फुरत्येव जगत्कृत्स्नमखण्डितनिरन्तरम् ।

अहो मायामहामोहो द्वैताद्वैतविकल्पना ॥ ६१ ॥ sphuratyeva jagat kṛtsnam akhaṇḍita-nirantaram aho māyā mahā-moho dvaitādvaita-vikalpanā.

61. The whole universe shines undivided and unbroken. Oh, the māyā, the great delusion—the imagination of duality and nonduality!

Māyā—ignorance.

साकारं च निराकारं नेति नेतीति सर्वदा ।

भेदाभेदविनिर्मुक्तो वर्तते केवलः शिवः ॥ ६२ ॥

sākāram ca nirākāram neti netīti sarvadā bhedābheda-vinirmukto vartate kevalaḥ śivaḥ.

62. Always “not this, not this” to both the formless and the formed. Only the Absolute exists, transcending difference and nondifference.

“Not this”, etc.—No formed or formless object can be considered to be the ultimate Reality.

न ते च माता च पिता च बन्धुः
न ते च पत्नी न सुतश्च मित्रम् ।
न पक्षपातो न विपक्षपातः कथं हि संतप्तिरियं हि चित्ते ॥ ६३ ॥ na te ca mātā ca pitā ca bandhuḥ na te ca patnī na sutaś ca mitram na pakṣapāto na vipakṣapātaḥ katham hi santaptir iyaṁ hi citte.

63. You have no mother, no father, no wife, no son, no relative, no friend. You have no likes or dislikes. Why is this anguish in your mind?

दिवा नक्तं न ते चित्तं उदयास्तमयौ न हि । विदेहस्य शरीरत्वं कल्पयन्ति कथं बुधाः ॥ ६४ ॥

divā naktam na te cittam udayāstamayau na hi videhasya śarīratvaṁ kalpayanti katham

budhāḥ.

64. O mind, for you there is no day or night, rising or setting. How can the wise imagine an embodied state for the bodiless?

नाविभक्तं विभक्तं च न हि दुःखसुखादि च ।

न हि सर्वमसर्वं च विद्धि चात्मानमव्ययम् ॥ ६५ ॥

nāvibhaktam vibhaktam ca nahi duḥkhasukhādi ca

na hi sarvam asarvaṁ ca viddhi cātmanam

avyayam.

65. The Self is neither divided nor undivided, nor has It sadness, happiness, and the like, nor is It all or less than all. Know the Self to be immutable.

द्वाहं कर्ता न भोक्ता च न मे कर्म पुराधुना ।

न मे देहो विदेहो वा निर्ममेति ममेति किम् ॥ ६६ ॥

nāham kartā na bhoktā ca na me karma purā'dhunā

na me deho videho vā nirmameti mameti kim.

66. I am not the doer or enjoyer. Work have I none, now or formerly. I have no body, nor am I bodiless. How can I have or not have a sense of "my-ness"?

न मे रागादिको दोषो दुःखं देहादिकं न मे ।

आत्मानं विद्धि मामेकं विशालं गगनोपमम् ॥ ६७ ॥ na me rāgādiko doṣo duḥkham̄ dehādikaṁ na me ātmanam̄ viddhi mām ekaṁ viśālam̄ gaganopamam.

67. I have no fault such as passion and the like, nor have I any sorrow arising from the body. Know me to be the one Self, vast and like the sky.

सखे मनः किं बहुजल्पितेन

सखे मनः सर्वमिदं वितर्क्यम् ।

sakhe manaḥ kiṁ bahu jalpitena sakhe manaḥ sarvam idaṁ vitarkyam yat sāra-bhūtaṁ kathitaṁ mayā te tvam eva tattvaṁ gaganopamo'si.

68. Friend mind, of what use is much vain talk? Friend mind, all this is mere conjecture. I have told you that which is the essence: you indeed are the Truth, like the sky.

All, etc.—Words and ideas, being finite and related to finite objects, can never reveal Truth completely.

येन केनापि भावेन यत्र कुत्र मृता अपि ।

योगिनस्तत्र लीयन्ते घटाकाशमिवांबरे ॥ ६९ ॥

yena kenāpi bhāvena yatra kutra mṛtā api yoginaḥ tatra liyante ghaṭākāśam ivāmbare.

69. In whatever place yogis die, in whatever state, there they dissolve, as the space of a jar dissolves into the sky.

Dissolve, etc.—become identified with the Self.

तीर्थे चान्त्यजगेहे वा नष्टस्मृतिरपि त्यजन् ।

समकाले तनुं मुक्तः कैवल्यव्यापको भवेत् ॥ ७० ॥

*tirthē cāntyaja-gehe vā naṣṭa-smṛtir api tyajan sama-kāle tanuṁ muktaḥ kaivalya-vyāpako
bhavet.*

70. Giving up the body in a holy place or in the house of a caṇḍāla, the yogī, even if he has lost consciousness, becomes identified with the Absolute as soon as he is free of the body.

Caṇḍāla—one belonging to the lowest stratum—considered unclean and impure—of Hindu society.

Lost, etc.—that is to say, apparently so. The inward awareness of the yogī can never be clouded.

धर्मार्थकाममोक्षांश्च द्विपदादिचराचरम् । मन्यन्ते योगिनः सर्वं मरीचिजलसन्निभम् ॥ ७१ ॥ dharmārtha-kāma-mokṣāṁśca dvīpadādicarācaram
manyante yoginaḥ sarvaṁ marīci-jala-sanni-bham.

71. The yogis consider duty in life, pursuit of wealth, enjoyment of love, liberation, and everything movable or immovable such as man and so on to be a mirage.

अतीतानागतं कर्म वर्तमानं तथैव च । न करोमि न भुञ्जामि इति मे निश्चला मतिः ॥ ७२ ॥ atītānāgataṁ karma vartamānaṁ tathaiiva ca na karomi na bhunjāmi iti me niścalā matiḥ.

72. This is my certain perception: I neither perform nor enjoy past action, future action, or present action.

शून्यागारे समरसपूतśūnyāgāre samarasa-pūtaḥ tiṣṭhannekah sukham avadhūtaḥ carati hi nagnaḥ tyaktvā garvaṁ vindati kevalam ātmani sarvaṁ.

73. The avadhūta, alone, pure in evenness of feeling, abides happy in an empty dwelling place. Having renounced all, he moves about naked. He perceives the Absolute, the All, within himself.

Avadhūta—a liberated soul, one who has “passed away from” or “shaken off” all worldly attachments and cares, and has realized his identity with God.

त्रितयतुरीयं नहि नहि यत्र

विन्दति केवलमात्मनि तत्र ।

धर्माधर्मौ नहि नहि यत्र

tritaya turyam nahi nahi yatra vindati kevalam ātmani tatra

dharmādharmau nahi nahi yatra baddho muktaḥ katham iha tatra.

74. Where there are neither the three states of consciousness nor the fourth, there one attains the Absolute in the Self. How is it possible to be bound or free where there is neither virtue nor vice?

विन्दति विन्दति नहि नहि मन्त्रं

छन्दोलक्षणं नहि नहि तन्त्रम् ।

समरसमग्नो भावितपूतः

प्रलपितमेतत्परमवधूतः ॥ ७५ ॥

vindati vindati nahi nahi mantram chando-lakṣaṇam nahi nahi tantram samarasa-magno bhāvita-pūtaḥ pralapitam etat param avadhūtaḥ.

75. The avadhūta never knows any mantra in Vedic metre nor any tantra. This is the supreme utterance of the avadhūta, purified by meditation and merged in the sameness of infinite Being.

Mantra—a hymn or a sacred prayer.

Tantra—system of rites and ceremonies.

This—the truth as enunciated in the whole discourse.

सर्वशून्यमशून्यं च सत्यासत्यं न विद्यते । स्वभावभावतः प्रोक्तं शास्त्रसंवित्तिपूर्वकम् ॥ ७६ ॥ sarva-śūnyam aśūnyam ca satyāsatyam na svabhāva-bhāvataḥ proktam śāstra-saṁvittipūrvakam.

76. There exists neither complete void nor voidlessness, neither truth nor untruth. The avadhūta, having realized the truths of the scriptures, has uttered this spontaneously from his own nature.

Truth—Complete Truth does not exist in the plane of relative existence.

CHAPTER II

बालस्य वा विषयभोगरतस्य वापि
मूर्खस्य सेवकजनस्य गृहस्थितस्य ।
एतद्गुरोः किमपि नैव न चिन्तनीयं

1. Of the teacher—even if he be young, illiterate, or addicted to the enjoyment of sense objects, even if he be a servant or a householder—none of these should be considered. Does anyone shun a gem fallen in an impure place?

Illiterate—not versed in the scriptures.

Addicted, etc.—apparently so.

नेवात्र काव्यगुण एव तु चिन्तनीयो

pāram na kiṁ nayati naur iha gantu-kāmān.*

2. In such a case one should not consider even the quality of scholarship. A worthy person should recognize only the essence. Does not a boat, though devoid of beauty and vermilion paint, nevertheless ferry passengers?

Even, etc.—The essential qualification of the teacher is not intellectual eminence, but capacity to impart spiritual illumination.

प्रयत्नेन विना येन निश्चलेन चलाचलम् । ग्रस्तं स्वभावतः शान्तं चैतन्यं गगनोपमम् ॥ ३ ॥ prayatnena vinā yena niścalena calācalam grastam svabhāvataḥ śāntam caitanyam gaganopamam.

3. The unmoving One, who without effort possesses all that is movable and immovable, is Consciousness, naturally calm, like the sky.

अयत्नाच्चालयेद्यस्तु एकमेव चराचरम् । सर्वगं तत्कथं भिन्नमद्वैतं वर्तते मम ॥ ४ ॥

*ayatnāc-cālayeḍ yas-tu ekam eva carācaram

4. How can He, the One and All-pervading, who moves effortlessly all that is movable and immovable, be differentiated! To me He is nondual.

अहमेव परं यस्मात्सारात्सारतरं शिवम् ।

गमागमविनिर्मुक्तं निर्विकल्पं निराकुलम् ॥ ५ ॥ aham eva param̐ yasmāt sārātsārataram̐ śivam gamāgama-vinirmuktam̐ nirvikalpaṁ nirākulam.

5. I am verily supreme since I am the Absolute, more essential than all essences, since I am free from birth and death, calm and undifferentiated.

सर्वावयवनिर्मुक्तं तथाहं त्रिदशार्चितम् ।

सम्पूर्णत्वान्न गृह्णामि विभागं त्रिदशादिकम् ॥ ६ ॥ sarvāvayava-nirmuktam̐ tathāham̐ tridaśārcitam sāmpūrṇatvān-na gṛhṇāmi vibhāgam̐ tridaśā-dikam.

6. Thus I, free from all components, am worshipped by the gods, but being full and perfect, I do not recognize any distinctions such as gods and the like.

Free, etc.—not made up of parts; indivisible.

Worshipped, etc.—because the true Self is the highest Divinity.

Recognize, etc.—In the highest spiritual realization no distinctions and differences are perceived.

प्रमादेन न सन्देहः किं करिष्यामि वृत्तिमान् ।

उत्पद्यन्ते विलीयन्ते बुद्बुदाश्च यथा जले ॥ ७ ॥ pramādena na sandehaḥ kiṃ karisyāmi vṛttimān utpadyante vilīyante budbudāś ca yathā jale.

7. Ignorance does not create any doubt. What shall I do, being endowed with modifications of the mind? They arise and dissolve like bubbles in water.

Ignorance, etc.—The man of the highest spiritual perception, after realizing his Divine identity, may live on the relative plane and thus appear enveloped by ignorance, but even then he is never unaware of his Divinity.

What, etc.—Though the man of highest spiritual perception appears to think, will, etc., yet, as the pure witness, he remains completely separate from mental activities.

महदादीनि भूतानि समाप्यैवं सदैव हि ।

*mahādāḍiṇi bhūtāni samāpyaivam sadaiva hi

8. Thus am I ever pervading all existence beginning with cosmic intelligence—pervading soft, hard, sweet, and pungent substances.

कटुत्वं चैव शैत्यत्वं मृदुत्वं च यथा जले ।

प्रकृतिः पुरुषस्तद्वदभिन्नं प्रतिभाति मे ॥ ९ ॥ kaṭutvam caiva śaityatvam mṛdutvam ca yathā jale prakṛtiḥ puruṣaḥ tadvat abhinnaṁ pratibhāti me.

9. As pungency, coldness, or softness is non-different from water, so prakṛti is nondifferent from puruṣa—thus it appears to me.

Prakṛti—nature; relative existence.

Puruṣa—spirit, the Absolute.

सर्वाख्यारहितं यद्यत्सूक्ष्मात्सूक्ष्मतरं परम् ।

मनोबुद्धीन्द्रियातीतमकलङ्कं जगत्पतिम् ॥ १० ॥

*sarvākhyā-rahitam yad yat sūkṣmāt sūkṣmataram

10. The Lord of the universe is devoid of all names. He is subtler than the subtlest, supreme. He is spotless, beyond the senses, mind, and intellect.

Lord, etc.—the Self.

ईदृशं सहजं यत्र अहं तत्र कथं भवेत् । त्वमेव हि कथं तत्र कथं तत्र चराचरम् ॥ ११ ॥

īdr̥śam sahaJam yatra aham tatra katham bhavet tvameva hi katham tatra katham tatra carācaram.

11. Where there is such a natural Being, how can there be "I", how can there be even "you", how can there be the world?

Natural—existing in its natural (i.e., pure) state.

गगनोपमं तु यत्प्रोक्तं तदेव गगनोपमम् । चैतन्यं दोषहीनं च सर्वज्ञं पूर्णमेव च ॥ १२ ॥

*gaganopamam tu yat proktam tad eva

12. That which has been described as being like ether is indeed like ether. That is Consciousness—blameless, omniscient, and perfect.

पृथिव्यां चरितं नैव मारुतेन च बाहितम् । वारिणा पिहितं नैव तेजोमध्ये व्यवस्थितम् ॥ १३ ॥

*prthivyām caritaṁ naiva mārutena ca vāhitaṁ

13. It does not move about on the earth or dwell in fire. It is not blown by the wind or covered by water.

आकाशं तेन संव्याप्तं न तद्व्याप्तं च केनचित् । स बाह्याभ्यन्तरं तिष्ठत्यवच्छिन्नं निरन्तरम् ॥ १४ ॥
*ākāśaṁ tena saṁvyāptaṁ na tad vyāptaṁ ca

14. Space is pervaded by It, but It is not pervaded by anything. It is existing within and without. It is undivided and continuous.

सूक्ष्मत्वात्तददृश्यत्वान्निर्गुणत्वाच्च योगिभिः । आलम्बनादि यत्प्रोक्तं क्रमादालम्बनं भवेत् ॥ १५ ॥ *sūkṣmatvāt tad adṛśyatvāt nirguṇatvāc ca yogibhiḥ ālambanādi yat proktaṁ kramād ālambanaṁ

bhavet.*

15. One should successively take recourse to the objects of concentration, as mentioned by the yogis, in accordance with their subtlety, invisibility, and attributelessness.

Take, etc.—In order to attain to the Absolute (or dissolution in the Absolute, as is said in the next verse), one has to reach the state of infinite and undifferentiated Consciousness by eliminating all mental differentiations or movements. The method of this elimination is to make consciousness dwell on one object continuously by obstructing its restless tendency to dwell on multifarious objects. But the object of concentration has to be chosen carefully. The beginner chooses a gross object. When he has dwelt on it continuously for some time, his consciousness becomes subtle and steady. He then chooses a subtle object to concentrate on. Gradually he reaches a high state of concentration, but some differentiations in his consciousness still remain—there is the consciousness of himself as the concentrator, of the object on which he is concentrating, and of the process of concentration. Next even these differentiations vanish, for the object of concentration dissolves, and there remains only the pure, undifferentiated Consciousness, the Absolute.

सतताऽभ्यासयुक्तस्तु निरालम्बो यदा भवेत् ।

satatā'bhyaśa-yuktas tu nirālambo yadā bhavet tal-layāt līyate nāntarguṇadoṣa-vivarjitah.

16. When through constant practice one's concentration becomes objectless, then, being divested of merits and demerits, one attains the state of complete dissolution in the Absolute through the dissolution of the object of concentration, but not before then.

*viṣa-viśvasya raudrasya moha-mūrcchā-pradasya ca

17. For the destruction of the terrible, poisonous universe, which produces the unconsciousness of delusion, there is but one infallible remedy—the nectar of naturalness.

Unconsciousness, etc.—delusion which makes one unconscious of the Divine Reality.

Naturalness—the state of pure Existence; Divine Identity.

*bhāva-gamyaṁ nirākāraṁ sākāraṁ dṛṣṭi-bhāvābhāva-vinirmuktam antarālaṁ tad ucyate.

18. That which has form is visible to the eye, while the formless is perceived mentally. That (the Self), being beyond existence and non-existence, is called intermediate.

Intermediate—neither material nor mental, i.e., beyond both.

बाह्यभावं भवेद्विश्वमन्तः प्रकृतिरुच्यते ।

*bāhya-bhāvaṁ bhaved viśvam antaḥ prakṛtir

19. The external existence is the universe, the inner existence is called prakṛti. One should try to know That which is more interior than the inner existence, That which is like water within the kernel of the coconut.

Prakṛti—in its subtle aspects: cosmic intelligence, cosmic mind, etc.

भ्रान्तिज्ञानं स्थितं बाह्यं सम्यग्ज्ञानं च मध्यगम् । मध्यान्मध्यतरं ज्ञेयं नारिकेलफलाम्बुवत् ॥ २० ॥

*bhrānti-jñānaṁ sthitam bāhyam samyagjñānaṁ

20. Illusory knowledge relates to what is outside, correct knowledge to what is inside. Try to know That which is more interior than the inside, That which is like water within the kernel of the coconut.

*paurṇamāsyām yathā candra eka evātinirmalaḥ

21. There is only one very clear moon on the full moon night. One should perceive That (the Self) like the moon; seeing duality is perversion.

अनेनैव प्रकारेण बुद्धिभेदो न सर्वगः ।

दाता च धीरतामेति गीयते नामकोटिभिः ॥ २२ ॥

anenaiva prakāreṇa buddhi-bhedo na sarvagaḥ dātā ca dhīratām eti gīyate nāma-koṭibhiḥ.

22. It is indeed in this way that intelligence becomes divided and ceases to be all-comprehending. A giver attains to wisdom and is sung with millions of names.

This, etc.—by seeing duality (also, of course, plurality).

Divided—perceiving many objects separated from one another, as in ordinary experience. Intelligence should, if it is not clouded with ignorance, perceive only unity—the whole of Reality—at once. Such perception, according to Vedānta, is the only true perception of Reality.

Giver—maker of charity. The second part of this verse, and, as a matter of fact, the whole verse, is a little obscure. Our translation of the second part is literal. The probable meaning is: When a person gives away all he possesses in charity and thereby attains to perfect renunciation, being free of all worldliness he attains to the knowledge of the Self and is praised in various ways for both his charity and his spiritual knowledge. The Sanskrit dātā for the word “giver” also means a teacher.

गुरुप्रज्ञाप्रसादेन मूर्खो वा यदि पण्डितः ।

guru-prajñāprasādena murkho vā yadi

yastu sambudhyate tattvaṁ virakto bhavasāgarāt.

23. Whoever, whether he be ignorant or learned, attains to the full awareness of Truth through the grace of a teacher's wisdom, becomes detached from the ocean of worldliness.

Ignorant—devoid of scholarship.

रागद्वेषविनिर्मुक्तः सर्वभूतहिते रतः ।

*rāgadveṣa-vinirmuktaḥ sarvabhūta-hite rataḥ

24. He who is free from attachment and hatred, devoted to the good of all beings, fixed in knowledge and steady shall attain to the supreme state.

घटे भिन्ने घटाकाश आकाशे लीयते यथा ।

देहाभावे तथा योगी स्वरूपे परमात्मनि ॥ २५ ॥

ghaṭe bhinne ghaṭākāśa ākāśe līyate yathā dehābhāve tathā yogī svarūpe paramātmani.

25. As the space within a pot dissolves in the universal space when the pot is broken, so a yogī, in the absence of the body, dissolves into the supreme Self, which is his true being.

उक्तेयं कर्मयुक्तानां मतिर्यान्तेऽपि सा गतिः ।

सा गतिः ॥ २६ ॥

*ukteyaṁ karma-yuktānāṁ matir yānte'pi sā na cuktā yoga-yuktānāṁ matir yānte'pi sā gatiḥ.

26. It has been said that the destiny of those devoted to action is the same as their thought at the end, but it has not been said that the destiny of those established in yoga is the same as their thought at the end.

End—the dying moment. The belief in India, clearly expressed in the Bhagavad Gitā, is that the last thought in the mind of the dying person indicates the nature of his future existence. This is not true, however, of one who has attained to the knowledge of the Self.

या गतिः कर्मयुक्तानां सा च वाग्निन्द्रियाद्वदेत् ।

भवतोर्जिता ॥ २७ ॥

yā gatiḥ karma-yuktānām sā ca

vāgindriyād vadet

yoginām yā gatiḥ kvāpi hy akathyā bhavatorjitā.

27. One may express the destiny of those devoted to action with the organ of speech, but the destiny of the yogīs can never be expressed, because it is transcendental.

एवं ज्ञात्वा त्वमुं मार्गं योगिनां नैव कल्पितम् ।

विकल्पवर्जनं तेषां स्वयं सिद्धिः प्रवर्तते ॥ २८ ॥

evam jñātvā tvamuṁ mārgaṁ yoginām naiva

vikalpa-varjanam teṣām svayaṁ siddhiḥ pravartate.

28. Knowing this, one never says that the yogīs have any particular path. For them it is the giving up of all duality. The supreme attainment comes of itself.

Particular, etc.—Departing souls reach their destined worlds following either pitṛ-yāna, the path of the fathers, or deva-yāna, the path of the gods. The yogī, after death, does not travel along any path; having already attained the Highest, which has nothing to do with any particular place or time, he has no world to reach.

Supreme, etc.—The supreme Truth which the yogī attains after transcending all duality is ever present, eternal, and absolute, so cannot be spoken of in terms of relative existence or relative truth. When the sense of duality is destroyed, this Truth at once reveals itself, even as the sun is seen shining when clouds disperse.

na yogī paśyate garbham pare brahmaṇi līyate.*

29. The yogī, having died anywhere, in a holy place or in the house of an untouchable, does not see the mother's womb again—he is dissolved in the supreme Brahman.

Does not, etc.—is not reborn.

सहजमजमचिन्त्यं यस्तु पश्येत्स्वरूपं

30. He who has seen his true Self, which is innate, unborn, and incomprehensible, does not, if anything desired happens to him, become tainted. Being free from taint, he never performs any action. The man of self-restraint or the ascetic, therefore, is never bound.

Desired, etc.—only apparently desired by him who possesses Self-knowledge. When one has attained to the knowledge of the Self one may still continue to live in the body and appear to be actively seeking desired objects. This, however, is only in semblance. Being free from the taint of ignorance, which makes the average man seek desirable objects and avoid undesirable ones, he is really inactive.

31. He attains to the supreme Self, who is eternal, pure, fearless, formless, and supportless, who is without body, without desire, beyond the pairs of opposites, free from illusion, and of undiminished power.

Pairs, etc.—such as heat and cold, pain and pleasure, ignorance and knowledge, life and death, which are all relative.

32. He attains to the supreme, eternal Self, in whom exists no Veda, no initiation, no tonsure, no teacher, no disciple, no perfection of symbolic figures, no hand-posture or anything else.

Symbolic, etc.—In ritualistic worship geometrical figures drawn on metal, stone, etc., are sometimes used as symbols of Divinity.

Hand-posture—called mudra, used as part of ritualistic worship.

33. He attains to the supreme, eternal Self, in whom is neither śāmbhavī, nor śākti, nor ānavī initiation; neither a sphere, nor an image, nor a foot, nor anything else; neither beginning, nor ending, nor a jar, etc.

Śāmbhavi, etc.—Tāntrika texts speak of three kinds of initiation. Śāmbhavī initiation, which is very rare, is that in which the teacher by a mere word, look, touch, or by will imparts the highest knowledge of God to the disciple instantly. Śākti initiation is that in which the teacher instills into the disciple a great spiritual power which will of itself, within a reasonable time, bring about the disciple's spiritual emancipation. The disciple does not have to exert himself for this realization. Such initiation also is exceptional. Ānavī or mantrī initiation is that in which the teacher, on an auspicious day, instructs the disciple concerning the method of spiritual practice he should follow, gives him a word or a phrase (called mantra) to repeat, and offers other necessary instructions. The disciple must practise according to these instructions to gain spiritual knowledge.

Sphere—a round symbol made of stone etc.

Foot—Sometimes either an image of a foot or a footprint is used as a symbol of worship.

Beginning, etc.—ceremonial beginning and ending of worship.

Jar—Sometimes a jar filled with water is used as a symbol of the all-pervading Divinity.

34. He attains to the supreme, eternal Self, from whose essence the universe of movable and immovable objects is born, in whom it rests, and into whom it dissolves, even as foam and bubbles are born of the transformation of water.

35. He attains to the supreme, eternal Self, in whom is no closing of nostril nor gazing nor posture, and in whom is neither knowledge nor ignorance nor any nerve-current.

Closing, etc.—In the practice of prāṇāyāma or breath control, each nostril in turn is closed with a finger in order to breathe only with the other nostril.

Gazing—fixing the eyes on a certain point to induce concentration.

Posture—a particular way of sitting which allows the body to be most comfortable and yet conduces to the practice of mental concentration.

Nerve-current—The reference is to the three nerves mentioned in Yoga texts—iḍā, piṅgalā, and suṣumnā—along which thought-currents are made to flow in order to realize higher states of consciousness.

36. He attains to the supreme, eternal Self, who is devoid of manifoldness, oneness, many-and-oneness, and otherness; who is devoid of minuteness, length, largeness, and nothingness; who is devoid of knowledge, knowableness, and sameness.

37. He attains the supreme, eternal Self whether he has perfect self-control or not, whether he has withdrawn his senses well or not, whether he has gone beyond activity or is active.

Has, etc.—whether he appears to have self-control or not.

38. He attains the supreme, eternal Self who is not mind, intelligence, body, senses, or egoism; who is neither the subtle elements nor the five gross elements nor of the nature of space.

विधौ निरोधे परमात्मतां गते

39. When injunctions cease and the yogī attains to the supreme Self, his mind being void of differentiations, he has neither purity nor impurity; his contemplation is without distinguishing attributes; and even what is usually prohibited is permissible to him.

Injunctions—prescriptions given by the scriptures to a spiritual aspirant in regard to what he should practise. The yogī who has attained to the Highest is beyond the need of such prescriptions.

Contemplation, etc.—The consciousness of the yogī dwells on the attributeless Absolute.

Prohibited, etc.—The spiritual aspirant is prohibited from doing certain things, just as he is enjoined to do other things; but upon attaining the Highest he goes beyond all injunctions and prohibitions. Realizing himself as the Absolute, he may act in even an apparently evil way, just as God does some apparently evil things in His creation.

40. Where mind and speech can utter nothing, how can there be instruction by a teacher? To the teacher—ever united with Brahman—who has said these words, the homogeneous Truth shines out.

CHAPTER III

गुणविगुणविभागो वर्तते नैव किञ्चित्
रतिविरतिविहीनं निर्मलं निष्प्रपञ्चम् ।

1. The distinction of quality and absence of quality does not exist in the least. How shall I worship Śiva (the Absolute) who is devoid of quality and absence of quality, who is devoid of attachment and detachment, who is of the form of ether, omniform, beyond illusion, and all-pervading?

Distinction, etc.—In this discourse the Avadhūta describes the Self as neither distinct from phenomenal existence nor identical with it. Such a perception of the Self is the highest realization conceivable, inasmuch as the consciousness of Oneness is so full that any recognition of even the least distinction is impossible. This Self is the same as Brahman. It is I. When the knowledge of this Self comes, even the so-called relative existence is no longer the same as it appears to the ignorant. "Quality" refers to the different attributes belonging to relative objects, which are due to the three basic qualities, sattva, rajas, and tamas. While relative existences have quality, the Absolute is beyond all quality. This distinction, however, is the language of relative consciousness. In the state of Self-realization to which we referred above, such distinction does not exist.

Worship—Worship implies duality, at least, distinction.

श्वेतादिवर्णरहितो नियतं शिवश्च

2. Siva (the Absolute) is ever without white and other colours. This effect and cause are also the supreme Śiva. I am thus the pure Siva, devoid of all doubt. O beloved friend, how shall I bow to my own Self in my Self?

White, etc.—Although the term “Śiva” in the present text means the Absolute, it is also a name of the personal God with form. He is then supposed to have a white complexion.

Effect—the universe.

Doubt—that is to say, about the knowledge of Self and Truth.

3. I am devoid of root and rootlessness and am ever manifest. I am devoid of smoke and smokelessness and am ever manifest. I am devoid of light and absence of light and am ever manifest. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Devoid, etc.—“Root” means cause. The Avadhūta is describing the Self in Its absolute aspect as well as in Its aspect of manifestation.

Smoke—the envelope of māyā.

Light—relative knowledge.

4. How shall I speak of desirelessness and desire? How shall I speak of nonattachment and attachment? How shall I speak of Him as devoid of substance and insubstantiality? I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

How, etc.—No description or conception is possible of that Self-realization in which there is no distinction of quality or absence of quality.

Substance, etc.—transcendental Reality; “insubstantiality”—relative reality.

5. How shall I speak of the Whole, which is nondual? How shall I speak of the Whole, which is of the nature of duality? How shall I speak of the Whole, which is eternal and non-eternal? I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

How, etc.—It is not possible to describe the Self even in Its phenomenal aspect, because thought or language can comprehend even phenomena only in their superficial aspects. In their deeper aspects phenomena are indistinguishable from the transcendental Self and therefore indescribable.

6. It is neither gross nor subtle. It has neither come nor gone. It is without beginning, middle, and end. It is neither high nor low. I am truly declaring the highest Truth and Reality—I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Come, etc.—The Self, even when It appears to manifest relative existence, does not really do so.

7. Know all instruments of perception to be like ethereal space. Know all objects of perception to be like ethereal space. Know this pure One as neither bound nor free. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Like, etc.—The instruments of perception—senses, mind, etc.—are not what they seem to us in ignorance. They also are formless Consciousness Itself.

I, etc.—In verses 9 and 10, the Self is being described as the negation of any adjuncts that seem to limit It.

11. My child, I am not devoid of nonexistence and existence. My child, I am not devoid of unity and absence of unity. My child, I am not devoid of mind and absence of mind. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Nonexistence—“Existence” here is relative existence.

Unity—transcendental Oneness.

Unity—organic unity, as in the phenomenal universe.

Devoid, etc.—in the relative and the transcendental states of the Self, respectively.

12. It is not my ignorance that the One beyond illusion seems to be posited in illusion. It is not my ignorance that the griefless One appears to be posited in grief. It is not my ignorance that the greedless One appears to be posited in greed. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Not, etc.—The truth is that the Self alone is transcendental and immutable; yet to the ignorant It appears to be involved in the relative existence. The Self, however, cannot be considered responsible for this appearance, because by Its very nature It is beyond illusion.

13. The creeperlike growth of worldly existence is never mine. The joy of extended contentment is never mine. This bondage of ignorance is never mine. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Contentment—in worldly existence.

14. The activity involved in the extension of relative existence is not a modification of myself. The gloom which is the expansion of grief is not a modification of myself. The tranquillity which produces one's religious merit is not a modification of mine. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Activity—the quality of rajas through which worldly existence continues.

Gloom—the quality of tamas which is considered to be the cause of sorrow.

Tranquillity—the quality of sattva.

16. I am the death of the movement of the unmoving One. I am neither decision nor indecision. I am the death of sleep and wakefulness. I am neither good nor evil, neither the moving nor the unmoving. I am the death of the substance of the insubstantial. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Death—negation.

Movement—projection of the manifold universe.

Decision, etc.—Decision and indecision are both states of mind and, therefore, not the transcendental Self.

Insubstantial—māyā, which is unreal.

18. The supreme Reality is devoid of the undivided and the divided. The supreme Truth is in no way within or without. It is beyond causation. It is not attached, nor is It any substance. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Undivided, etc.—unity and variety. Even unity is within the realm of relativity since it implies, by contrast, variety.

Attached—related to, or associated with, name and form.

19. I am verily the Reality, free of such blemishes as attachment. I am verily the Reality, free of such blemishes as destiny. I am verily the Reality, free of the grief caused by transmigratory existence. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Destiny—It implies time, process, and compulsion; therefore it cannot be true of the Self.

20. If there are no three planes (of existence), how can there be the fourth? If there are no three times, how can there be quarters? The supreme Reality is the state of the highest serenity. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Fourth—The transcendental state is called “turiya,” or the fourth, in relation to the three other states—the waking, dream, and deep-sleep; but such a designation implies relativity and is therefore not true of the Self.

Three, etc.—past, present, and future.

Quarters—space.

23. I am pure, very pure—beyond reason and of infinite form. I am nonattachment and attachment—beyond reason and of infinite form. I am undivided and divided—beyond reason and of infinite form. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

24. If the supreme Reality is only one and stainless, how can there be here the hosts of gods beginning with Brahmā, and how can there be here the worlds of habitation, such as heaven? I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

25. How shall I, the pure One, the "not this" and yet the not "not this" speak? How shall I, the pure One, the endless and the end, speak? How shall I, the pure One, attributeless and attribute, speak? I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

“Not this”, etc.—The Self is spoken of in the Śruti as “neti, neti”, “not this”, “not this”, for nothing can be predicated of the Self. Although such a negative determination of the Self is the best possible for thought, it still is tinged with relativity. In order to eliminate it, the Self is being spoken of as “the not ‘not this’.” Such a dual description also may mean that the Self is both “not this” as well as “this,” i.e. the world of manifestation.

End—the negation of relativity.

Attribute—The Self not only appears as endowed with attribute, but it is also attribute itself.

26. I ever perform the supreme action which is nonaction. I am the supreme Joy, devoid of attachment and detachment. I am the everlasting Joy, devoid of body and absence of body. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Devoid, etc.—“Devoid of body” implies consciousness of body. In order to negate even this consciousness, the Self is being spoken of as being devoid of absence of body.

28. I am devoid of time, such as twilight—I have no disjunction. I am devoid of interior-ness and awakening. I am neither deaf nor mute. I am thus devoid of illusion. I am not made pure by moods of mind. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Am, etc.—The purity spoken of the Self is not a state of mind attained through effort; it is the very essence of the Self.

29. I am without a master and the absence of a master—I am unperturbed. I have transcended mind and absence of mind—I am unperturbed.

Know me as unperturbed and transcendent of all. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Without, etc.—The Self is absolutely independent, there being nothing other than the Self. The “absence of a master” is spoken of for the reason stated in the notes to verses 25 and 26.

Unperturbed—unaffected.

31. (The Self), devoid of life and lifelessness, shines forever. Devoid of seed and seedlessness, of liberation and bondage, It shines forever. I am the nectar of Knowledge, homogeneous Existence, like the sky.

Life, etc.—Life and lifelessness are in the realm of the relative and therefore do not exist in the Self.

Seed, etc.—By “seed” is meant cause or origin of relative existence. “Seedlessness” is also relative by implication, being the opposite of seed.

Great, etc.—Not even he who has apprehension of supersensuous reality finds anything everlasting except the Self.

Natural—It is what It is.

How, etc.—When God is spoken of as existing in the world, He is described as an object, perceived by a subject who is different or at least distinct from God. Such a description of the divine Self, however, is erroneous.

46. Renounce the world in every way. Renounce renunciation in every way. Renounce the poison of renunciation and nonrenunciation. The Self is pure, immortal, natural, and immutable.

Renounce, etc.—The act of renunciation also belongs to relative life and therefore to ignorance.

1. There is neither invitation nor casting off; how can there be flowers, leaves, meditations, and recitation of sacred texts, and how can there be worship of Śiva, which is identity and difference?

Invitation, etc.—In the beginning of ceremonial worship, one invites the Deity with recitation of certain mantras or sacred texts. At the end of the worship, certain other texts are recited, which indicate the return of the Deity to his divine realm; if any image has been used in the worship, it is then cast into water.

Flowers, etc.—These are parts of offering and worship.

Identity, etc.—In the first part of worship the worshipper thinks of himself as identical with the Deity;

later on, however, he considers himself different from Him and goes through the details of external worship.

2. The Absolute is not liberated from bondage and obstruction. The Absolute is not purified, cleansed, and released. The Absolute is not liberated by union or separation. I am, indeed, the free One, like the sky.

Liberated—implying that the Self was actually in bondage, which is not true.

Union, etc.—The highest state of spiritual experience, in which one realizes oneself as the Absolute, is sometimes loosely described as the union of the individual and the universal Self or as the separation of the soul from prakṛti or nature. Such statements are illogical.

3. I have developed no false notion that all this reality comes into existence or that all this unreality comes into existence. I am free from disease—my form has been extinguished.

All, etc.—that which we perceive.

My, etc.—In the absolute realization, no form, physical or mental, remains.

9. There is nothing here which pervades or is pervaded. There is no abode nor is there the abodeless. How shall I speak of void and non-void? I am free from disease—my form has been extinguished.

Void—The Transcendental has been spoken of as the Void by the Buddhists.

13. (The Self) is not separate or high and It has not disappeared even to the extent of allusion. Friend, how can I speak of It as identical or different? I am free from disease—my form has been extinguished.

Separate—from prakṛti or nature, according to Sāṁkhya philosophy.

High—beyond the relative world.

Disappeared—that is to say, when enveloped by māyā.

Identical—with the individual self or nature.

16. Never, my child, did I have death or deathlessness, poison or poisonlessness. How shall I speak of the pure and the impure? I am free from disease—my form has been extinguished.

Poison—the poison of māyā or ignorance.

17. Never have I sleep or awakening. Never do I practise concentration or hand-posture. For me there is neither day nor night. How shall I speak of the transcendental and relative states? I am free from disease—my form has been extinguished.

Hand-posture—practised as part of ceremonial worship.

Day, etc.—implying consciousness of time.

25. There is verily no versification where one knows nothing. The supreme and free One, absorbed in the consciousness of the homogeneous Being and pure of thought, prattles about the Truth.

Versification—Dattātreya has been speaking in verse. But in the Transcendental, where there is neither knower or knowable, no speech—certainly no versification—is possible.

Prattles—The transcendental Reality cannot be adequately spoken of. Whatever Dattātreya has been saying about It can only be prattle.

CHAPTER V

*Om iti gaditaṁ gagana-samaṁ tat

avilāsa-vilāsa-nirākaraṇaṁ katham akṣara-bindu-samuccaranam*

1. The word Om is like the sky, it is not the discernment of the essence of high and low. How can there be enunciation of the point of the word (Om) which annuls the manifestation of the Unmanifest?

Like, etc.—The word Om is the same as God. Dattatreya describes Om to be “like the sky,” inasmuch as the sky, like God, only seems to have colour and form, but is really formless.

Discernment, etc.—In the Absolute there is no distinction of high and low, good and evil, transcendental or relative.

Point, etc.—The word Om is so enunciated that the last letter, m, ends, as it were, in an inaudible sound.

This represents the transcendental aspect of reality and is called the "point" or bindu.

Annuls—Since the "point" of Om represents the Transcendental, its realization negates all relative realities.

2. The śrutis—such as "That thou art"—prove to thee thou art indeed That, devoid of adjuncts and the same in all. Why dost thou, who art the identity in all, grieve in thy heart?

Śrutis—the texts of the Vedas.

3. If thou art the identity in all, if thou art devoid of above and below, within and without, and of even the sense of unity, then why dost thou, who art the identity in all, grieve in thy heart?

Above, etc.—transcendental and relative.

Sense, etc.—Not even unity may be spoken of the Self, since unity implies plurality.

4. There is no discrimination of rules and precepts, there is no cause or effect. That which is the identity in all is without words and the collocation of words. Why dost thou, who art the identity in all, grieve in thy heart?

Without, etc.—The reference is to the doctrine that words are different aspects of God. But the word that is the absolute God has no components.

5. There is no knowledge or ignorance and no practice of concentration. There is no space or absence of space and no practice of concentration. There is no time or absence of time and no practice of concentration. Why dost thou, who art the identity in all, grieve in thy heart?

No, etc.—Practice of concentration is undertaken to overcome ignorance and attain the knowledge of the Divine Self. But if the Self alone is, then there cannot be either ignorance or knowledge, or the need to practise concentration.

6. There is no pot-space or pot, no individual body or individual. There is no distinction of cause and effect. Why dost thou, who art the identity in all, grieve in thy heart?

Pot-space—the space within a pot, which is contrasted with the limitless space outside. Pot-space is possible only when there is a pot; similarly, individuality is possible only when there is a body. In the Self no such divisions exist.

12. There is no bondage due to fetters of good and evil qualities. How shall I perform the actions related to death and life? There is only the pure, stainless Being—the same in all. Why dost thou, who art the identity in all, grieve in thy heart?

Good, etc.—The good and evil qualities which make up our relative individuality result from experiences of past births. The soul has no quality or karma, as it is timeless.

Perform, etc.—In Self-knowledge there is no consciousness of life or death.

Undifferentiated, etc.—not containing lesser, relative truths.

Junction, etc.—of puruṣa and prakṛti, soul and matter.

Devoid—The Self is not the aggregate of any or all realities.

1. The srutis declare in various ways that all this, the ether and its like, and we ourselves, are like a mirage. If there is only one indivisible, all-comprehensive Absolute, how can there be the comparable and the comparison?

2. The Supreme is without divisibility and indivisibility. The Supreme is without activity and changeability. If there is only one indivisible, all-comprehensive Absolute, how can there be worship, how can there be austerity?

6. If the Self is devoid of essence and lack of essence, if it is without void and nonvoid, if there is only one indivisible, all-comprehensive Absolute, how can there be a first, how can there be a last?

Essence, etc.—substance from which the universe originates. “Lack of essence” means lack of such creative substance. Both these terms are inapplicable to the Absolute Brahman.

First—origination of the universe or the waking state.

Last—dissolution of the universe or deep sleep state.

Third—deep sleep state.

Fourth—the transcendental state. But the term “fourth” implies relativity.

the Truth. If there is only one indivisible, all-comprehensive Absolute, how can there be objects, senses, mind, and intellect?

Spoken—that which is expressed.

Unspoken—that which has not been expressed. The unspoken also is relative, being the opposite of the spoken, and is therefore not the Truth.

13. There is no coming of the third kind of misery or of the second kind of misery, due to the guṇas. If there is only one indivisible, all-comprehensive Absolute, how can there be an old man, a young man, or an infant?

Third, etc.—Indian philosophies usually speak of three kinds of misery; first, that arising from one's own self; second, that originating from other beings and things; and third, that arising from superhuman sources. Although the first kind of misery is not mentioned in the text, all three are meant and all arise from nature or prakṛti which is composed of three guṇas.

14. The Supreme is without caste and stage of life, without cause and agent. If there is only one indivisible, all-comprehensive Absolute, how can there be consciousness of the destroyed and the undestroyed?

Caste, etc.—The Hindus recognize four castes (representing the priestly, military, trading, and labouring classes) and four stages of life (those of the student, householder, contemplative, and monk). These have nothing to do with the Self, which is identical with the Supreme.

Cause, etc.—The Self has neither any material cause nor any efficient cause (agent). Also it may mean that the Self is not the cause or the doer of anything.

Destroyed, etc.—By “the destroyed” is meant the world of phenomena which disappears at the attainment of Knowledge, and by “the undestroyed” is meant the eternal Self. But the dual consciousness of the eternal Self and phenomena is impossible in the Absolute.

abhivādanam atra karomi katham.

26. No distinction such as body and bodilessness exists, nor is it true that there is false action. I am indeed the Absolute and the supreme Truth. In that case how can I make any salutation?

True, etc.—To think that false action (such as false perception, illusion, or any action pertaining to relative life) exists, is possible only in relative existence and ignorance. Such a conclusion, therefore, is false.

27. Where one knows nothing, there is verily no versification. The supreme and free One, pure of thought, absorbed in the consciousness of the homogeneous Being, prattles about the Truth.

CHAPTER VII

दृथ्याकर्षटविरचितकन्थः

पुण्यापुण्यविवर्जितपन्थः ।

सून्यागारे तिष्ठति नग्नो

शुद्धनिरञ्जनसमरसमग्नः ॥ १ ॥

rathyā-karṣaṭa-viracita-kanthaḥ

puṇyāpuṇya-vivarjita-panthaḥ

sūnyāgāre iṣṭhati nagno

śuddha-nirañjana-samarasa-magnaḥ.

1. The enlightened one, nude or clad in a patched garment made of rags gathered from roads, follows the path which is devoid of virtue and vice and stays in an empty abode, absorbed in the pure, stainless, homogeneous Being.

Devoid, etc.—because he now realizes he is the transcendental, absolute Being, beyond all rules and actions of relative life.

Stainless—free from all adjuncts that make the Self appear as limited, ignorant, and impure.

लक्ष्यालक्ष्यविवर्जितलक्ष्यो vādavivādaḥ katham avadhūtaḥ.

2. The enlightened one aims at that which is without any mark or marklessness. He is skilful, being devoid of right and wrong. He is the absolute Truth, stainless and pure. How can the liberated one engage in discussion and disputation?

Mark, etc.—“Mark” means defining attribute. “Marklessness” is absence of attributes. But even absence of attributes cannot be imputed to the transcendental Self, since the absence of attributes implies the existence of attributes.

Engage, etc.—Discussion and disputation are possible only when one is himself ignorant or involved with the ignorant, and the enlightened one is neither.

3. Free from entrapment in the snares of hope and devoid of purificatory ceremonies, the enlightened one is ever absorbed in the Absolute. Thus, having renounced all, he is the Truth, pure and stainless.

Purificatory, etc.—rules of purification of the body and mind, observed by the orthodox as part of religious discipline. The liberated do not need them and are above them.

katham iha rāga-virāga-vicārah svayam iha tattvaṁ sahajākāram.

4. How can there be any discussion here of body and disembodiment, of attachment and detachment? Here is the Truth Itself in Its spontaneous natural form—pure, immovable like the sky!

कथमिह तत्त्वं विन्दति यत्र

5. Where the Truth is known, how can there be form or formlessness? Where there is the Supreme, whose form is like the sky, how is perception of any object possible?

How, etc.—The knower, knowledge, and known all become one in transcendental realization.

गगनाकारनिरन्तरहंस-

6. The supreme Self is indivisible, of the form of the sky. It is the Truth, pure and stainless. Thus, how can there be here difference and nondifference, bondage and freedom from bondage, transformation and division?

केवलतत्त्वनिरन्तरसर्वं

योगवियोगी कथमिह गर्वम् ।

kevala-tattva-nirantara-sarvaṁ evaṁ parama-nirantara-sarvam evaṁ katham iha sāra-visāram.

7. Here is only the absolute Truth, indivisible and the All. How can there be here union, disunion, or pride? If thus there is here only the Supreme, indivisible and the All, how can there be here any substance or absence of substance?

Pride—The ego dies on the realization of the Truth.

Substance—substance in a limited sense as the repository of qualities and therefore belonging to the relative plane.

केवलतत्त्वनिरञ्जनसर्वं

गगनाकारनिरन्तरशुद्धम् ।

एवं कथमिह सङ्गविसङ्गं

evaṁ katham iha saṅga-visaṅgaṁ satyaṁ katham iha raṅga-viraṅgam.*

8. Here is the absolute Truth, indivisible and pure, stainless and the All, of the form of the sky. Thus, how can there be here association and dissociation? How, truly, can there be here any play or cessation of play?

Play—enjoyment of relative life.

योगवियोगे रहितो योगी
भोगविभोगे रहितो भोगी ।

एवं चरति हि मग्दं मग्दं

yoga-viyogaiḥ rahito yogī

bhoga-vibhogaiḥ rahito bhogī evaṁ carati hi mandam mandam manasā kalpita-sahajānandam.

9. The enlightened one is a yogī devoid of yoga and absence of yoga. He is an enjoyer, devoid of enjoyment and absence of enjoyment. Thus he wanders leisurely, filled with the spontaneous joy of his own mind.

Yōga—practice of concentration. The yogī who is enlightened has gone beyond the need for it.

Absence, etc.—because he is in the state of eternal yoga, or Self-realization.

Enjoyment, etc.—enjoyment of relative life. Absence of such enjoyment would imply self-restraint and self-abnegation. The enlightened one is beyond both.

10. If the yogī is always related to knowledge and perception, to duality and unity, how can he be free here? How can a yogī be natural and free from attachment here? He is the enjoyer of the pure, stainless, and homogeneous Being.

भग्नाभग्नविवर्जितभग्नो

11. The Self is Destruction, devoid of the destroyed and undestroyed. The Self is the Auspicious Moment, devoid of the auspicious and inauspicious time. Thus, how can there be here substance and absence of substance? The Truth which is homogeneous is of the form of the sky.

Destruction—negation of all relative phenomena.

Destroyed, etc.—remnants of negated phenomena; “undestroyed”—phenomena still existing. “Destroyed” and “undestroyed” may also mean phenomena reduced to the undifferentiated form and phenomena in the differentiated state, which together constitute the universe.

Auspicious, etc.—Although the expression refers to time, eternity is really meant. It is called auspicious because the eternal Self is holy.

सततं सर्वविवर्जितयुक्तः sarvaṁ tattva-vivarjita-muktaḥ

evaṁ katham iha jīvita-maraṇam

12. Forever divested of all and united to the Self, the enlightened one is the All, free and devoid of truth. Thus, how can there be here life and death, and how can there be any accomplishment through meditation or lack of meditation?

Devoid, etc.—devoid of relative truth.

Accomplishment, etc.—In the transcendental state, meditation is not possible.

इन्द्रजालमिदं सर्वं यथा मरुमरीचिका ।

अखण्डितमनाकारो वर्तते केवलः शिवः ॥ १३ ॥

*indrajālam idaṁ sarvaṁ yathā marumarīcikā

13. All this is magic, like a mirage in the desert. Only the absolute Self, of indivisible and impenetrable form, exists.

*dharmādau mokṣa-paryantaṁ

14. To all things, from the practice of religious laws and duties to liberation, we are completely indifferent. How can we have anything to do with attachment or detachment? Only the learned imagine these things.

Practice, etc.—The reference is to the fourfold idea of life as prescribed in Hinduism: dharma (observance of religious laws and duties for well-being here and hereafter); artha (acquisition of wealth); kâma (satisfaction of legitimate desires); and mokṣa (liberation).

We—the enlightened.

Learned—scholars without spiritual experience.

1. By my making pilgrimage to Thee Thy all-pervasiveness has been destroyed by me. With my meditation Thy transcendence of the mind has been destroyed by me. Thy transcendence of speech has been destroyed by me by my singing Thy praise. Ever forgive me these three sins.

Thee—to Thy shrines, temples, and holy places.

All-pervasiveness, etc.—To assume, as pilgrimage does, that the Divine Presence is particularly existent in certain shrines and temples is to deny that God is present everywhere equally.

Transcendence, etc.—In meditation God is contemplated in the mind, making God thereby mental, whereas God is beyond mind.

Transcendence, etc.—Singing the praise of God implies that God is within the range of speech, whereas He is beyond it.

2. A sage is one whose intelligence is unsmitten by lusts, who is self-controlled, gentle, and pure, who possesses nothing, who is indifferent, who eats moderately, is quiet and steady, and has taken refuge in Me.

Indifferent—to all relative things and states.

Me—the Self.

अप्रमत्तो गभीरात्मा धृतिमान् जितषड्गुणः ।

*apramatto gabhīrātmā dhṛtimān jita-ṣaḍ-guṇaḥ

3. The sage is vigilant and resolute, has a profound mind, and has conquered the six bondages; he is not proud, but gives honour to others; he is strong, friendly to all, compassionate, and wise.

Six, etc.—six passions, lust, anger, greed, infatuation: pride, and envy.

कृपालुरकृतद्रोहस्तितिक्षुः सर्वदेहिनाम् ।

सत्यसारोऽनवद्यात्मा समः सर्वोपकारकः ॥ ४ ॥

*kṛpālurakṛta-drohaḥ titikṣuh sarva-dehinām

4. The sage is merciful, nonviolent, and enduring of all. He is pure-hearted and is the essence of truth; he is the same to all and beneficent to all.

5. The sign of an avadhūta should be known by the blessed ones, by those who know the truth of the significance of the letters of the Vedas and who teach Veda and Vedānta.

आशापाशविनिर्मुक्त आदिमध्यान्तनिर्मलः । āsā-ṣāsa-vinirmuktaḥ ādi-madhyānta-nirānande vartate nityam akāraṁ tasya lakṣaṇam.

6. The significance of the letter "a" is that the avadhūta is free from the bondage of hopes, is pure in the beginning, middle, and end, and dwells ever in joy.

Hopes—desires.

वासना वर्जिता येन वक्तव्यं च निरामयम् । वर्तमानेषु वर्तते वकारं तस्य लक्षणम् ॥ ७ ॥ vāsanā varjitā yena vaktavyaṁ ca nirāmayam vartamāneṣu varteta vakāraṁ tasya lakṣaṇam.

7. The syllable "va" is indicative of him by whom all desires have been renounced, whose speech is wholesome, and who dwells in the present.

Dwells, etc.—because he is free from effects of past experience and does not indulge in hopes and expectations and, therefore, is free of the future.

धूलिधूसरगात्राणि धूतचित्तो निरामयः । धारणाध्याननिर्मुक्तो धूकारस्तस्य लक्षणम् ॥ ८ ॥ dhūli-dhūsara-gātrāṇi dhūta-citto nirāmayah dhāraṇā-dhyāna-nirmukto dhūkāras tasya lakṣaṇam.

8. The syllable “dhū” is a sign of him whose limbs are grey with dust, whose mind is purified, who is free of all diseases, and who is released from the practices of concentration and meditation.

Limbs—he does not mind where he sits or sleeps.

Released, etc.—All such spiritual practices imply ignorance and bondage, but he is free and illumined.

तत्त्वचिन्ता धृता येन चिन्ताचेष्टाविवर्जितः । तमोऽहंकारनिर्मुक्तस्तकारस्तस्य लक्षणम् ॥ ९ ॥ *tattva-cintā dhṛtā yena cinta-ceṣṭā-vivarjitaḥ tamo'hankāra-nirmuktaḥ takāras tasya

lakṣaṇam.*

9. The syllable “ta” is significant of him by whom the thought of Truth has been made steady, who is devoid of all thoughts and efforts, and who is free from ignorance and egoism.

Thought, etc.—that is to say, Truth has been fully realized.

दत्तात्रेयावधूतेन निर्मितानन्दरूपिणा । punarbhavaḥ.

10. This Gītā or Song is composed by Dattātreya Avadhūta who is the embodiment of bliss. Whoever reads or hears it has never any rebirth.

Has, etc.—One who has realized the Self is never reborn.

The essence and the whole of Vedanta is this knowledge,
this supreme knowledge:
that I am by nature
the formless,
all-pervasive Self.
