SWAMI VIVEKANANDA'S TRANSLATION: For the mind which follows in the wake of the wandering senses carries away his discrimination as a wind (carries away from its course) a boat on the waters.

16. The proud and covetous can never rest. The poor and humble in spirit live together in all peace.

The man that is not yet perfectly dead to himself, is quickly tempted and overcome in small and trifling things. (The Imitation of Christ V.1.)

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA'S FOOTNOTE: BHAGAVAD-GITA 2.62-63

PUBLISHER'S TRANSLATION: By thinking about sense objects, attachment to them is formed. From attachment comes longing, and longing breeds anger. From anger comes delusion, and from delusion, confused memory. From confused memory comes the ruin of discrimination; and from the ruin of discrimination, a man perishes.

17. There is then no peace in the heart of a carnal man, nor in him that is addicted to outward things, but in the spiritual and devout man. (The Imitation of Christ V.2.)

PUBLISHER'S TRANSLATION: The turbulent senses, O son of Kunti, violently carry away the mind of even a wise man striving after perfection.

THE PLAGUE MANIFESTO*

Om Salutations to Bhagavan Shri Ramakrishna

Brothers of Calcutta!

1. We feel happy when you are happy, and we suffer when you suffer. Therefore, during these days of extreme adversity, we are striving and ceaselessly praying for your welfare and an easy way to save you from disease and the fear of an epidemic.
2. If that grave disease — fearing which both the high and the low, the rich and the poor are all fleeing the city — ever really comes in our midst, then even if we perish while serving and nursing you, we will consider ourselves fortunate because you are all embodiments of God. He who thinks otherwise — out of vanity, superstition or ignorance — offends God and incurs great sin. There is not the slightest doubt about it.
3. We humbly pray to you — please do not panic due to unfounded fear. Depend upon God and calmly try to find the best means to solve the problem. Otherwise, join hands with those who are doing that very thing.
4. What is there to fear? The terror that has entered people's hearts due to the occurrence of the plague has no real ground. Through God's will, nothing of the terrible form that plague takes, as seen in other places, has occurred in Calcutta. The government authorities have also been particularly helpful to us. So what is there to fear?
5. Come, let us give up this false fear and, having faith in the infinite compassion of God, gird our loins and enter the field of action. Let us live pure and clean lives. Disease, fear of an epidemic, etc., will vanish into thin air by His grace.
 - (a) Always keep the house and its premises, the rooms, clothes, bed, drain, etc., clean.
 - (b) Do not eat stale, spoiled food; take fresh and nutritious food instead. A weak body is more susceptible to disease.
 - (c) Always keep the mind cheerful. Everyone will die once. Cowards suffer the pangs of death again and again, solely due to the fear in their own minds.
 - (d) Fear never leaves those who earn their livelihoods by unethical means or who cause harm to others. Therefore, at this time when we face the great fear of death, desist from all such behaviour.
 - (e) During the period of epidemic, abstain from anger and from lust — even if you are householders.
 - (f) Do not pay any heed to rumours.
 - (g) The British government will not vaccinate anyone by force. Only those who are willing will be vaccinated.
 - (h) There will be no lack of effort in treating the afflicted patients in our hospital under our special care and supervision, paying full respect to religion, caste and the modesty (Purdah) of women. Let the wealthy run away! But we are poor; we understand the heartache of the poor. The Mother of the Universe is Herself the support of the helpless. The Mother is assuring us: "Fear not! Fear not!"
7. Brother, if there is no one to help you, then send information immediately to the servants of Shri Bhagavan Ramakrishna at Belur Math. There will be no dearth of help that is physically possible. By the grace of the Mother, monetary help will also be possible.

— N. B. In order to remove the fear of the epidemic, you should sing Nâma Sankirtanam [the name of the Lord] every evening and in every locality.

ONE CIRCLE MORE*

[A fragmentary poem composed at Ridgely Manor, in 1899]

One circle more the spiral path of life ascends
And time's restless shuttle — running back and fro
Through maze of warp and woof of shining

threads of life — spins out a stronger piece. (Cf. a slightly different version of the first three lines of this poem which appeared in Swami Vivekananda's own handwriting on the left-hand side of the folded letter paper containing the original draft (Vide the facsimile):

One circle more the spiral path of life ascends
And Time's restless shuttle running back and fro through maze of warp and woof spins out a stronger piece.)

Hand in hand they stand — and try to fathom depths whence springs eternal love, each in other's eyes;

And find
No hold o'er that age but brings the youth anew —
And time — the good, the pure, the true.

He who was praised by the Brâhmanas, those knowers of the Vedas who made the sky reverberate with the sacred sounds of the sacrifice and caused the darkness of delusion to vanish through well-performed rituals and the knowledge known as Vedanta — he whose greatness was sung in the sweet chants of the Sâma-Veda etc., with voices thundering like clouds (In Indian mythology clouds can cause both thunder and lightning.) — to that Shri Ramakrishna, I offer my eternal worship.

AN UNFINISHED POEM

(New Discoveries, Vol. 3. p. 490. This undated poem is preserved in the archives of the Vedanta Centre, Cohasset, Massachusetts. Cf. "My Play is Done", Complete Works, VI.)

From life to life I am waiting here at the gates — they open not.
My tongue is parched with ceaseless prayers and dim my eyes have grown
With constant straining through the gloom to catch one ray long sought;
My heart is seized with dark despair, all hope well-
nigh has flown.

And standing on life's narrow ridge, beneath the chasm I see —
Strife and sorrow, darkness deep of whirling life and death,
Of mad commotion, struggles vain, of folly roaming free.

On one side this dark abyss — I shudder to see it even —
On the other this wall . . .

BHARTRIHARI'S VERSES ON RENUNCIATION*

This is Swami Vivekananda's free translation of verses from Bhartrihari's Sanskrit poem Vairâgya Shatakam.

The Swami's translation is from Sister Nivedita's Unpublished Notes of Some Wanderings with the Swami Vivekananda — selected verses recorded almost verbatim, but not necessarily in Bhartrihari's order, by Sister Nivedita as Swami Vivekananda translated them orally for some of his Western disciples during a Himalayan pilgrimage in 1898.

For the researcher's benefit, verses 14-15, 18, 24-26, 31, and 33 have been footnoted as corresponding verses taken from Swami Vivekananda's original handwritten translation, which was given to the Vedanta Society of Southern California by Miss Josephine MacLeod, shortly before her passing away in 1948. This footnoted handwritten version was first published in the collection of poetry entitled In Search of God and Other Poems (Mayavati: Advaita Ashrama, 1968).

Stylistic differences in Swami Vivekananda's overall translation of Bhartrihari's poem are due to those variations inherent in the two aforementioned sources. Obvious typographical and punctuation errors have been corrected.

The verse numbers, as available, correspond to Bhartrihari's numbering.

BHARTRIHARI'S VERSES ON RENUNCIATION

I have travelled in many countries, hard to travel in,
And got no result;
Giving up pride of birth and position,
I have served all.
Like a crow stealing into a kitchen,
With fear I have eaten the bread of others in their homes,
Yet thou, Desire, who leadest to evil deeds,
Leavest me not!

(Verse 2)

I have crossed oceans to find wealth.
I have blasted mountains to get jewels.
I have spent whole nights in graveyards repeating Mantras
And have obtained — not the broken cowrie of blessedness
Ah, Desire, give me up now.

(Verse 3)

I have borne the wicked words of the wicked;
To please fools, when my heart is weeping,
my lips ever laughed.
Stopping my judgment, I have with folded hands
Stood before unworthy persons.
Even now, my Desire, why do you make me dance like a fool?

(Verse 4)

For this life, which is like a drop of water on a lotus leaf,
We have not enjoyed, but enjoyments have enjoyed us.
We did not penance, but penances burnt us up.
Time did not fly, yet we are gone.
We become decrepit with age, but not so Desire.
Infirmity assails us, the skin wrinkles,
The hair whitens, the body becomes crooked,
Old age comes on.
Desire alone grows younger every day.

(Verses 5-8)

Hope is the name of this river, whose water is Desire,
And Thirst the waves thereof.
Passion is the crocodile living in that water,
Vain resolves are the birds that reside
In the tree of virtue on the shores and kill it.
But there are the whirlpools of Delusion
And Despondence, the high banks.
The great Yogis are blissful because they,
With their pure minds, never crossed this river.

(Verse 10)

Blessed are they that, living even in the caves of mountains,
Meditate on the supreme Light.
Even the birds will fearlessly drink of the tears of pleasure
That flow from their eyes.

Alas, (Here Swami Vivekananda's handwritten translation begins.) our minds grow familiar, even in imagination,
With palaces and pleasure — gardens,
And thus our lives fleet by.

(Verse 14)

Even when the only food is gained by begging, and that is tasteless;
One's bed, the dry earth;
One's whole family, his own body;
His only clothing, a ragged bit of cloth —
Alas, alas, the desire for enjoyment does not leave a man.

(Verse 15)

Not knowing the power of flame, the insect falls into it.
The fish swallows the bait, not knowing the hook inside.
That, well aware of the vanity and dangers of the world,
We cannot give it up —
Such is the power of Delusion.

(Verse 18)

Have such places in the Himalayas become extinct
That a man should go begging at others' doors?
Have the roots in the mountain forests all disappeared?
Are the springs all dry?
Are the trees all withered that bear sweet fruits
And bark for garments
That a man should look with fear on the face of a fool,
Whose head is turned by a little wealth?

Verses 24-25)

Arise! Let us go into the forest
Where pure roots and fruits will be our food,
Pure water our only drink,
Pure leaves our bed,
And where the little-minded, the thoughtless,
And those whose hearts are cramped with wealth
Do not exist.

(Verse 26)

In enjoyment is the fear of disease;
In high birth, the fear of losing caste;
In wealth, the fear of tyrants;
In honour, the fear of losing her;
In strength, the fear of enemies;
In beauty, the fear of the other sex;*
In knowledge, the fear of defeat;
In virtue, the fear of scandal;
In the body, the fear of death.

In this life, all is fraught with fear.
Renunciation alone is fearless.

(Verse 31)

The root of health has always round about it
A thousand worms in the form of dangers and disease.
Where fortune falls, open a hundred gates of danger.
Whosoever is born, him death will surely swallow.
Say, where is that Providence who ever created Anything that died not?

(Verse 33)*

Life is like a wave upon the waters,
Youth only remains a few days.
Wealth is like a fancy of the mind,
It immediately vanishes.
Enjoyment is like a flash of lightning amongst dark clouds.
Our most beloved one is only for a moment.
Knowing this, O man, give your heart unto Brahman
To cross this ocean of life.

(Verse 36)

. . . Living in whom gods like Indra, Brahmâ and others appear like a blade of grass,
Whose anger can destroy the worlds in a moment.
O sage, know Him, that One Supreme Who dies not,
And give not your mind to false enjoyment.

(Verse 40)

Ah, where is happiness in this life?

(At best it lasts but a hundred years, of which half is spent in sleep; of the other half, half in decrepitude; of what remains — one half goes in childhood and, of the rest, still half in serving others!)

O man, in this futile, wave-like life
Where is happiness?

(Verse 49)

Now you appear as child
And now as a youth, whose whole occupation is love.
This moment poor, another wealthy,
Now a babe, and again a decrepit old man.
O actor man, at last you vanish from the stage
When death beckons you behind the scenes!

(Verse 50)

You are a king, but we have served Gurus,
Who are great in knowledge.
You are known by your wealth as a king,
We for our knowledge.
There is infinite difference between us and you,
Therefore we are not the persons to wait upon you,
O Kings!

(Verse 51)

Oh, when will that day come,
When in a forest, saying "Shiva", "Shiva",
My days shall pass?
A serpent and a garland the same,
The strong foe and the friend the same,
The flower-bed and the stone-bed the same,
A beautiful woman and a blade of grass the same!

(Verses 85, 90)

O Shiva, when shall I be able to cut
To the very roots of my Karma,
By becoming solitary, desireless, quiet —
My hands my only plate, and the cardinal points my clothing?

(Verse 99)

The fruits are sufficient food,
The waters of the mountain sufficient dinner,
The earth a sufficient bed,
And bark a sufficient garment —
These are all welcome.
Only I cannot bear the proud words of fools,
Whose organs are all disordered by the drink
Of the wine of new wealth!

(Verse 54)

What if you have got the wealth that fulfils every desire?
If your foot is on the heads of your foes,
What of that?
If you have made all your love wealthy,
If your body remains a Kalpa (A periodic cycle of creation and dissolution.) — what of that?
The only thing to be desired is Renunciation
Which gives all love to Shiva.

(Verse 67)

Fear only life, that brings Birth and Death,
Have no love of friends, no lust, no attachment.
Alone, living alone in a forest,
What is more to be longed for than this Renunciation.

(Verse 68)

Going searching in the lower regions,
Going into the skies,
Travelling through all the worlds,
This is but the fickleness of the mind.
Ah, friend, you never remember the Lord
Who resides within you!
How can you get happiness?

(Verse 70)

What is there in the reading of Vedas,
The Shrutis, the Purânas and doing sacrifices?
Freedom alone takes off the weight of this dreadful world,
And manifests Self-blessedness.
Here is the truth: the rest is all shop-keeping.

(Verse 71)

When the body is still healthy and diseaseless,
When old age has not yet attacked it,
When the organs have not yet lost their power,
And life is still full and undiminished,
Now, now, struggle on, rendering great help to yourself!
My friend, it is useless to try to dig a well
In a house that is already on fire!

(Verse 75)

In Shiva, who is the Lord of this Universe,
Or Vishnu, its soul, I see no difference,
But still, my love is for Him
Who has the young moon on His forehead.

(Verse 84)

Oh when will that time come,
When in a beautiful full-moon night,
Sitting on the banks of some river,
And in a calm, yet high notes repeating
"Shiva! Shiva! Shiva!"
All my feelings will come out through the eyes
In the form of tears?

(Verse 85)

When, wearing only the Kaupina, (Loincloth.)
Lying on the sands of the holy Ganges in Benares,
When shall I weep aloud, "O Lord of ghouls",
Saying this, and whole days shall pass like moments?

(Verse 87)

When, bathing in the pure Ganges water,
Worshipping Thee, Omnipresent, with holy fruits and flowers,

Stretching myself on stones in a stony cave,
My whole soul shall go into meditation,
And according to the voice of my Guru,
I shall avoid all misery, and purify
The mind defiled with serving the rich.

(Verse 88)

This whole wide earth my bed,
My beautiful pillows my own two arms,
My wonderful canopy the blue sky,
And the cool evening air to fan me,
The moon and the stars my lamps,
And my beautiful wife, Renunciation, by my side,
What king is there who can sleep like me in pleasure?

(Verse 94)

This Universe is only a little circle.
What is there to desire in it?
Will the ocean go into waves
By the jumping of a little [fish?]?

(Verse 92)

There was a time when I could see nothing but Women in this world:
And now that my eyes are opened,
I can see nothing but Brahman.

Beautiful are the rays of the moon,
Beautiful are the lawns in the forest,
Beautiful is the meeting of the good,
Beautiful is poetry, and Beautiful is the face of the beloved.
But to me none of these are beautiful,
Knowing that they are evanescent.

(Verse 79)

Oh mother earth, father wind,
Friend light, sweetheart water,
Brother sky,
Here take my last salutation
With folded hands!
For today I am melting away into Brahman,
Because my heart became pure,
And all delusion vanished
Thro' the power of your good company.

(Verse 100)

Old age watches us, roaring like a tigress.
Disease, like enemies, is striking us often.
Life is flowing out like water from a broken jar.
Curious still how men do evil deeds in this world!

(Verse 38)

Those beautiful cities.
Those mighty monarchs.
Those powerful nobles.

Those learned assemblies.
Those moon-faced women.
Those proud princes.
And those that sang their praises —
They have all been swept away from the memory of man.
My salutation, therefore, is to Time who works all these!

(Verse 41)

The sun by his coming and going every hour is lessening the life of man.
Time flies without our knowledge,
Crushed as we are by the load of many works.
Seeing the evils of Birth, Old Age, Danger, and Death
We are not afraid.
Ah me, drinking the wine of delusion,
The world has become mad.

(Verse 43)

I have not learnt that knowledge which defeats all opponents!
Nor have been able, at the point of the sword,
Which can cut thro' an elephant's back,
To send our glory even unto the skies;
Nor, under the light of the full moon,
Drunk the nectar of the budding lips of the Beloved.
My youth is gone fruitless
Like a lamp in an empty house.

(Verse 46)

FOREWORD

PERSONS: The Swami Vivekananda, Gurubhais, (Spiritual brethren; disciples of one and the same master are so called.) and a party of European guests and disciples, amongst whom were Dhira Mata, the "Steady Mother" [Mrs. Ole Bull]; one whose name was Jaya [Miss Josephine MacLeod]; and Sister Nivedita. (Dhira Mata and Jaya were Americans; Nivedita was British. — Publisher.)

TIME: The year 1898.

Beautiful have been the days of this year. In them the Ideal has become the Real. First in our riverside cottage at Belur; then in the Himalayas, at Naini Tal and Almora; afterwards wandering here and there through Kashmir — everywhere have come hours never to be forgotten, words that will echo through our lives forever, and once, at least, a glimpse of the Beatific Vision.

It has been all play.

We have seen a love that would be one with the humblest and most ignorant, seeing the world for the moment through his eyes, as if criticism were not; we have laughed over the colossal caprice of genius; we have warmed ourselves at heroic fires; and we have been present, as it were, at the awakening of the Holy Child.

But there has been nothing grim or serious about any of these things. Pain has come close to all of us. Solemn anniversaries have been and gone. But sorrow was lifted into a golden light, where it was made radiant and did not destroy.

Fain, if I could, would I describe our journeys. Even as I write I see the irises in bloom at Baramulla; the young rice beneath the poplars at Islamabad; starlight scenes in Himalayan forests; and the royal beauties of Delhi and the Taj. One longs to attempt some memorial of these. It would be worse than useless. Not, then, in words, but in the light of memory they are enshrined forever, together with the kindly and gentle folk who dwell among them and whom we trust always to have left the gladder for our coming.

We have learnt something of the mood in which new faiths are born and of the persons who inspire such faiths. For we have been with one who drew all men to him — listening to all, feeling with all and refusing none. We have known a humility that wiped out all littleness, a renunciation that would die for scorn of oppression and pity of the oppressed, a love that would bless even the oncoming feet of torture and of death. We have joined hands with that woman who washed the feet of the Lord with her tears and wiped them with the hairs of her head. We have lacked not the occasion, but her passionate consciousness of self.

Seated under a tree in the garden of dead emperors there came to us a vision of all the rich and splendid things of Earth, offering themselves as a shrine for the great of soul. The storied windows of cathedrals and the jewelled thrones of kings, the banners of great captains and the vestments of the priests, the pageants of cities and the retreats of the proud — all came and all were rejected.

In the garments of the beggar, despised by the alien, worshipped by the people, we have seen him; and only the bread of toil, the shelter of cottage roofs, and the common road across the cornfields seem real enough for the background to this life. . . . Amongst his own the ignorant loved him as much as scholars and statesmen. The boatmen watched the river, in his absence, for his return, and servants disputed with guests to do him service. And through it all the veil of playfulness was never dropped. "They played with the Lord" and instinctively they knew it.

To those who have known such hours, life is richer and sweeter, and in the long nights even the wind in the palm trees seems to cry: "Mahadeva! Mahadeva! Mahadeva!"

CHAPTER I

THE HOUSE ON THE GANGES

PLACE: A cottage at Belur, beside the Ganges.

TIME: March to May, 1898.

Of the home by the Ganges the Master had said to one, "You will find that little house of Dhira Mata like heaven, for it is all love, from beginning to end.

It was so indeed. Within, an unbroken harmony, and without, everything alike beautiful — the green stretch of grass, the tall cocoanut palms, the little brown villages in the jungle, and the Nilkantha that built her nest in a tree — top beside us, on purpose to bring us the blessings of Shiva. In the morning the shadows lay behind the house, but in the afternoons we could sit in front worshipping the Ganges herself — great leonine mother! — and in sight of Dakshineswar.

There came one and another with traditions of the past, and we learnt of the Master's eight years' wanderings; of the name changed from village to village; of the Nirvikalpa Samâdhi; and of that sacred sorrow, too deep for words or for common sight, that one who loved had alone seen. And there too came the Master himself, with his stories of Umâ and Shiva, of Râdhâ and Krishna, and his fragments of song and poetry.

It seemed as if he knew that the first material of a new consciousness must be a succession of vivid but isolated experiences, poured out without proper sequence so as to provoke the mind of the learner to work for its own conception of order and relation. . . . For the most part it was the Indian religions that he portrayed for us—today dealing with one and tomorrow with another — his choice guided, seemingly, by the whim of the moment. But it was not religion only that he poured out upon us. Sometimes it would be history. Again, it would be folk-lore. On still another occasion it would be the manifold anomalies and inconsistencies of race, caste and custom. In fact India herself became, as heard in him, as the last and noblest of the Purânas, uttering itself through his lips.

Another point in which he had caught a great psychological secret was that of never trying to soften for us that which would at first sight be difficult or repellent. In matters Indian he would rather put forward, in its extreme form at the beginning of our experience, all that might seem impossible for European minds to enjoy. Thus he would quote, for instance, some verses about Gauri and Shankar in a single form:

On one side grows the hair in long black curls,
And on the other, corded like rope.
On one side are seen the beautiful garlands,
On the other, bone earrings and snake-like coils.
One side is white with ashes, like the snow mountains,
The other, golden as the light of dawn.
For He, the Lord, took a form,
And that was a divided form,
Half-woman and half-man

Whatever might be the subject of the conversation, it ended always on the note of the infinite. . . . He might appear to take up any subject — literary, ethnological or scientific — but he always made us feel it as an illustration of the Ultimate Vision. There was for him nothing secular. He had a loathing for bondage and a horror of those who "cover chains with flowers", but he never failed to make the true critic's distinction between this and the highest forms of art.

One day we were receiving European guests and he entered into a long talk about Persian poetry. Then suddenly, finding himself quoting the poem that says, "For one mole on the face of my Beloved, I would give all the wealth of Samarkand!" he turned and said energetically, "I would not give a straw, you know, for the man who was incapable of appreciating a love song!" His talk too teemed with epigrams.

It was that same afternoon, in the course of a long political argument, that he said, "In order to become a nation, it appears that we need a common hate as well as a common love".

Several months later he remarked that before one who had a mission he never talked of any of the gods save Uma and Shiva. For Shiva and the Mother made the great workers. Yet I have sometimes wondered if he knew at this time how the end of every theme was Bhakti. Much as he dreaded the luxury of spiritual emotion for those who might be enervated by it, he could not help giving glimpses of what it meant to be consumed with the intoxication of God. And so he would chant for us such poems as:

They have made Radha queen, in the beautiful groves of Vrindaban.
At her gate stands Krishna, on guard.
His flute is singing all the time:
Radha is about to distribute infinite wealth of love.
Though I am guard, all the world may enter.
Come all ye who thirst! Say only 'Glory unto Radha!'
Enter the region of love!

Or he would give us the great antiphonal Chorus of the Cowherds, written by his friend: (The Bengali dramatist Girish Chandra Ghosh.)

Men: Thou art the Soul of souls,
 Thou yellow-garbed,
 With thy blue eyes.
Women: Thou dark One! Thou
 Shepherd of Vrindaban!
 Kneeling at the feet of the Shepherdesses.
Men: My soul sings the praise of the glory of the Lord,
 Who took the human form.
Women: Thy beauty for us, the Gopis.
Men: Thou Lord of Sacrifice.
 Saviour of the weak.
Women: Who lovest Radha and thy body floats on its own tears.

MARCH 25.

... At this time the Swami kept the custom of coming to the cottage early and spending the morning hours there, and again returning in the late afternoon. On the second morning of this visit, however — Friday, the Christian feast of the Annunciation — he took us all three back to the Math, and there in the worship-room was held a little service of initiation where one was made a Brahmachârini. That was the happiest of mornings.

After the service we were taken upstairs. The Swami put on the ashes and bone-earrings and matted locks of a Shiva-Yogi and sang and played to us — Indian music on Indian instruments — for an hour.

And in the evening in our boat on the Ganges, he opened his heart to us and told us much of his questions and anxieties regarding the trust that he held from his own Master.

Another week and he was gone to Darjeeling; and till the day that the plague declaration brought him back, we saw him again no more.

MAY 3.

Then two of us met him in the house of our Holy Mother. The political sky was black. It seemed as if a storm were about to burst. . . . Plague, panic and riot were doing their fell work. And the Master turned to the two and said, "There are some who scoff at the existence of Kâli. Yet today She is out there amongst the people. They are frantic with fear, and the soldiery have been called to deal out death. Who can say that God does not manifest Himself as evil as well as good? But only the Hindu dares to worship Him in the evil".

He had come back and the old life was resumed once more, as far as could be, seeing that an epidemic was in prospect and that measures were on hand to give the people confidence. As long as this possibility darkened the horizon, he would not leave Calcutta. But it passed away, and those happy days with it, and the time came that we should go.

CHAPTER II

AT NAINI TAL AND ALMORA

PERSONS: The Swami Vivekananda, Gurubhâis, and a party of Europeans and disciples, amongst whom were Dhira Mata, the "Steady Mother"; one whose name was Jaya; and Nivedita.

TIME: May 11 to May 25, 1898.

We were a large party, or, indeed, two parties, that left Howrah station on Wednesday evening and on Friday morning came in sight of the Himalayas. . . .

Naini Tal was made beautiful by three things — the Master's pleasure in introducing to us his disciple the Raja of Khetri; the dancing girls who met us and asked us where to find him, and were received by him in spite of the remonstrances of others; and by the Mohammedan gentleman who said, "Swamiji, if in after-times any claim you as an Avatâra, an especial incarnation of the Deity — remember that I, a Mohammedan, am the first!"

It was here too that we heard a long talk on Ram Mohan Roy in which he pointed out three things as the dominant notes of this teacher's message — his acceptance of the Vedanta, his preaching of patriotism, and the love that embraced the Mussulman equally with the Hindu. In all these things he claimed himself to have taken up the task that the breadth and foresight of Ram Mohan Roy had mapped out.

The incident of the dancing girls occurred in consequence of our visit to the two temples at the head of the tarn. . . . Here, offering worship, we found two nautch-women. When they had finished, they came up to us, and we, in broken language, entered into conversation with them. We took them for respectable ladies of the town and were much astonished later at the storm which had evidently passed over the Swami's audience at his refusal to have them turned away. Am I mistaken in thinking that it was in connection with these dancing-women of Naini Tal that he first told us the story, many times repeated, of the nautch-girl of Khetri? He had been angry at the invitation to see her, but being prevailed upon to come, she sang:

O Lord, look not upon my evil qualities!
Thy name, O Lord, is Same-Sightedness.
Make us both the same Brahman!

One piece of iron is the knife in the hand of the butcher,
And another piece of iron is the image in the temple.
But when they touch the philosopher's stone,
Both alike turn to gold!

One drop of water is in the sacred Jamuna,
And one is foul in a ditch by the roadside.
But when they fall into the Ganges,
Both alike become holy!

So, Lord, look not upon my evil qualities!
Thy name, O Lord, is Same-Sightedness.
Make us both the same Brahman!

And then, said the Master of himself, the scales fell from his eyes, and seeing that all are indeed one, he condemned no more. . . .

It was late in the afternoon when we left Naini Tal for Almora, and night overtook us while still travelling through the forest. . . . till we reached a quaintly placed Dak bungalow, on the mountain side in the midst of trees. There after some time Swamiji arrived with his party, full of fun and keen in his appreciation of everything that concerned the comfort of his guests. . . .

From the day that we arrived at Almora the Swami renewed his habit of coming over to us at our early breakfast and spending some hours in talk. Then and always he was an exceedingly light sleeper, and I imagine that his visit to us, early as the hour might be, was often paid during the course of his return with his monks from a still earlier walk. Sometimes, but rarely, we saw him again in the evening, either meeting him when out for a walk or going ourselves to Captain Sevier's, where he and his party were staying, and seeing him there. And once he came at that time to call on us.

Into these morning talks at Almora a strange new element, painful but salutary to remember, had crept. There appeared to be on the one side a curious bitterness and distrust, and on the other, irritation and defiance. The youngest of the Swami's disciples at this time, it must be remembered, was an English woman, and of how much this fact meant intellectually — what a strong bias it implied, and always does imply, in the reading of India, what an idealism of the English race and all their deeds and history — the Swami himself had had no conception till the day after her initiation at the monastery. Then he had asked her some exultant question, as to which nation she now belonged, and had been startled to find with what a passion of loyalty and worship she regarded the English flag, giving to it much of the feeling that an Indian woman would give to her Thakur. His surprise and disappointment at the moment were scarcely perceptible. A startled look, no more. Nor did his discovery of the superficial way in which this disciple had joined herself with his people in any degree affect his confidence and courtesy during the remaining weeks spent in the plains.

But with Almora it seemed as if a going-to-school had commenced. . . . It was never more than this; never the dictating of opinion or creed; never more than emancipation from partiality. Even at the end of the terrible experience when this method, as regarded race and country, was renounced, never to be taken up systematically again, the Swami did not call for any confession of faith, any declaration of new opinion. He dropped the whole question. His listener went free. But he had revealed a different standpoint in thought and feeling, so completely and so strongly as to make it impossible for her to rest, until later, by her own labours, she had arrived at a view in which both these partial presentments stood rationalized and accounted for.

"Really, patriotism like yours is sin!" he exclaimed once, many weeks later, when the process of obtaining an uncoloured judgement on some incident had been more than commonly exasperating. "All that I want you to see is that most people's actions are the expression of self-interest, and you constantly oppose to this the idea that a certain race are all angels. Ignorance so determined is wickedness!" . . .

These morning talks at Almora, then, took the form of assaults upon deep-rooted preconceptions — social, literary and artistic — or of long comparisons of Indian and European history and sentiments, often containing extended observations of very great value. One characteristic of the Swami was the habit of attacking the abuses of a country or society openly and vigorously when he was in its midst, whereas after he had left it, it would often seem as if nothing but its virtues were remembered by him. He was always testing his disciples, and the manner of these particular discourses was probably adopted in order to put to the proof the courage and sincerity of one who was both woman and European.

CHAPTER III

MORNING TALKS AT ALMORA

PLACE: Almora.

TIME: May and June, 1898.

The first morning the talk was that of the central ideals of civilization — in the West, truth; in the East, chastity. He justified Hindu marriage customs as springing from the pursuit of this ideal and from the woman's need of protection, in combination. And he traced out the relation of the whole subject to the philosophy of the Absolute.

Another morning he began by observing that as there were four main castes — Brahmin, Kshatriya, Bâniyâ [Vaishya], Shudra — so there were four great national functions: the religious or priestly, fulfilled by the Hindus; the military, by the Roman Empire; the mercantile, by England today; and the democratic, by America in the future. And here he launched off into a glowing prophetic forecast of how America would yet solve the problems of the Shudra — the problems of freedom and co-operation — and turned to relate to a non-American listener the generosity of the arrangements which that people had attempted to make for their aborigines.

Again it would be an eager résumé of the history of India or of the Moguls, whose greatness never wearied him. Every now and then throughout the summer he would break out into descriptions of Delhi and Agra. Once he described the Taj as "a dimness, and again a dimness, and there — a grave!"

Another time he spoke of Shah Jehan, and then, with a burst of enthusiasm: "Ah! He was the glory of his line! A feeling for and discrimination of beauty that are unparalleled in history. And an artist himself! I have seen a manuscript illuminated by him which is one of the art treasures of India. What a genius!"

Oftener still, it was Akbar of whom he would tell, almost with tears in his voice and a passion easier to understand, beside that undomed tomb, open to sun and wind — the grave of Secundra at Agra.

But all the more universal forms of human feeling were open to the Master. In one mood he talked of China as if she were the treasure-house of the world, and told us of the thrill with which he saw inscriptions in old Bengali (Kutil?) characters over the doors of Chinese temples.

Few things could be more eloquent of the vagueness of Western ideas regarding Oriental peoples than the fact that one of his listeners alleged untruthfulness as a notorious quality of that race. . . . The Swami would have none of it. Untruthfulness! Social rigidity! What were these, except very, very relative terms? And as to untruthfulness in particular, could commercial life or social life or any other form of co-operation go on for a day if men did not trust men? Untruthfulness as a necessity of etiquette? And how was that different from the Western idea? Is the Englishman always glad and always sorry at the proper place? But there is still a difference of degree? Perhaps — but only of degree!

Or he might wander as far afield as Italy, that "greatest of the countries of Europe — land of religion and of art; alike of imperial organization and of Mazzini; mother of ideas, of culture and of freedom!"

One day it was Shivaji and the Mahrattas and the year's wandering as a Sannyâsin that won him home to Raigarh. "And to this day", said the Swami, "authority in India dreads the Sannyasin, lest he conceals beneath his yellow garb another Shivaji".

Often the enquiry "Who and what are the Aryans?" absorbed his attention; and holding that their origin was complex, he would tell us how in Switzerland he had felt himself to be in China, so like were the types. He believed too that the same was true of some parts of Norway. Then there were scraps of information about countries and physiognomies, an impassioned tale of the Hungarian scholar who traced the Huns to Tibet, and lies buried in Darjeeling and so on. . . .

Sometimes the Swami would deal with the rift between Brahmins and Kshatriyas, painting the whole history of India as a struggle between the two and showing that the latter had always embodied the rising, fetter-destroying impulses of the nation. He could give excellent reason too for the faith that was in him that the Kâyasthas of modern Bengal represented the pre-Mauryan Kshatriyas. He would portray the two opposing types of culture: the one, classical, intensive and saturated with an ever-deepening sense of tradition and custom; the other, defiant, impulsive and liberal in its outlook. It was part of a deep-lying law of the historic development that Râma, Krishna and Buddha had all arisen in the kingly, and not in the priestly caste. And in this paradoxical moment Buddhism was reduced to a caste-smashing formula — "a religion invented by the Kshatriyas" as a crushing rejoinder to Brahminism!

That was a great hour indeed when he spoke of Buddha; for, catching a word that seemed to identify him with its anti—Brahminical spirit, an uncomprehending listener said, "Why, Swami, I did not know that you were a Buddhist!

"Madam", he said, rounding on her, his whole face aglow with the inspiration of that name, "I am the servant of the servants of the servants of Buddha. Who was there ever like him? — the Lord — who never performed one action for himself — with a heart that embraced the whole world! So full of pity that he — prince and monk — would give his life to save a little goat! So loving that he sacrificed himself to the hunger of a tigress! — to the hospitality of a pariah and blessed him! And he came into my room when I was a boy and I fell at his feet! For I knew it was the Lord Himself!

Many times he spoke of Buddha in this fashion, sometimes at Belur and sometimes afterwards. And once he told us the story of Ambâpâli, the beautiful courtesan who feasted him. . . .

National feeling did not have it all its own way. For one morning when the chasm seemed to be widest, there was a long talk on Bhakti — that perfect identity with the Beloved that the devotion of Ray Ramananda, the Bengali nobleman, before Chaitanya so beautifully illustrates:

Four eyes met. There were changes in two souls.
And now I cannot remember whether he is a man
And I a woman, or he a woman and I a man!
All I know is, there were two, Love came, and there is one!

It was that same morning that he talked of the Babists of Persia, in their era of martyrdom — of the woman who inspired and the man who worshipped and worked. And doubtless then he expatiated on that theory of his — somewhat quaint and surprising to unaccustomed minds, not so much for the matter of the statement as for the explicitness of the expression — of the greatness and goodness of the young, who can love without seeking personal expression for their love, and their high potentiality.

Another day coming at sunrise when the snows could be seen, dawn-lighted, from the garden, it was Shiva and Umâ on whom he dwelt — and that was Shiva up there, the white snow-peaks, and the light that fell upon Him was the Mother of the World! For a thought on which at this time he was dwelling much was that God is the Universe — not within it or outside it and not the universe God or the image of God, but He it, and the All.

Sometimes all through the summer he would sit for hours telling us stories, those cradle-tales of Hinduism whose function is not at all that of our nursery fictions, but much more like the man-making myths of the old Hellenic world. Best of all these I thought was the story of Shuka, and we looked on the Shiva-mountains and the bleak scenery of Almora the evening we heard it for the first time. . . .

Shuka was indeed the Swami's saint. He was the type, to him, of that highest realization to which life and the world are merely play. Long after, we learned how Shri Ramakrishna had spoken of him in his boyhood as "my Shuka". And never can I forget the look, as of one gazing far into depths of joy, with which he once stood and quoted the words of Shiva in praise of the deep spiritual significance of the Bhagavad-Gitâ and of the greatness of Shuka: "I know the real meaning of the teachings of the Bhagavad-Gita, and Shuka knows, and perhaps Vyâsa knows — a little!"

Another day in Almora the Swami talked of the great humanizing lives that had arisen in Bengal, at the long inrolling wash of the first wave of modern consciousness on the ancient shores of Hindu culture. Of Ram Mohan Roy we had already heard from him at Naini Tal. And now of the Pundit Vidyâsâgar he exclaimed, "There is not a man of my age in northern India on whom his shadow has not fallen!" It was a great joy to him to remember that these men and Shri Ramakrishna had all been born within a few miles of each other.

The Swami introduced Vidyasagar to us now as "the hero of widow remarriage and of the abolition of polygamy". But his favourite story about him was of that day when he went home from the Legislative Council, pondering over the question of whether or not to adopt English dress on such occasions. Suddenly someone came up to a fat Mogul who was proceeding homewards in leisurely and pompous fashion in front of him, with the news "Sir, your house is on fire!" The Mogul went neither faster nor slower for this information, and presently the messenger contrived to express a discreet astonishment, whereupon his master turned on him angrily. "Wretch!" he said. "Am I to abandon the gait of my ancestors because a few sticks happen to be burning?" And Vidyasagar, walking behind, determined to stick to the Châdar, Dhoti and sandals, not even adopting coat and slippers.

The picture of Vidyasagar going into retreat for a month for the study of the Shâstras, when his mother had suggested to him the remarriage of child-widows, was very forcible. "He came out of his retirement of opinion that they were not against such remarriage, and he obtained the signatures of the pundits that they agreed in this opinion. Then the action of certain native princes led the pundits to abandon their own signatures so that, had the government not determined to assist the movement, it could not have been carried — and now", added the Swami, "the difficulty has an economic rather than a social basis".

We could believe that a man who was able to discredit polygamy by moral force alone, was "intensely spiritual". And it was wonderful indeed to realize the Indian indifference to a formal creed when we heard how this giant was driven by the famine of 1864 — when 140,000 people died of hunger and disease — to have nothing more to do with God and become entirely agnostic in thought.

With this man, as one of the educators of Bengal, the Swami coupled the name of David Hare, the old Scotsman and atheist to whom the clergy of Calcutta refused Christian burial. He had died of nursing an old pupil through cholera. So his own boys carried his dead body and buried it in a swamp and made the grave a place of pilgrimage. That place has now become College Square, the educational centre, and his school is now within the university. And to this day Calcutta students make pilgrimage to the tomb.

On this day we took advantage of the natural turn of the conversation to cross-question the Swami as to the possible influence that Christianity might have exerted over himself. He was much amused to hear that such a statement had been hazarded, and told us with much pride of his only contact with missionary influences, in the person of his old Scotch master, Mr. Hastie. This hot-headed old man lived on nothing and regarded his room as his boys' home as much as his own. It was he who had first sent the Swami to Shri Ramakrishna, and towards the end of his stay in India he used to say, "Yes, my boy, you were right, you were right! — It is true that all is God!" "I am proud of him!" cried the Swami. "But I don't think you could say that he had Christianized me much!" . . .

We heard charming stories too on less serious subjects. There was the lodging-house in an American city, for instance, where he had had to cook his own food, and where he would meet in the course of operations "an actress who ate roast turkey every day, and a husband and wife who lived by making ghosts". And when the Swami remonstrated with the husband and tried to persuade him to give up deceiving people, saying, "You ought not to do this!" the wife would come up behind and say eagerly, "Yes, sir! That's just what I tell him; for he makes all the ghosts, and Mrs. Williams takes all the money!"

He told us also of a young engineer, an educated man, who, at a spiritualistic gathering, "when the fat Mrs. Williams appeared from behind the screen as his thin mother, exclaimed, 'Mother dear, how you have grown in the spirit-world!'"

"At this", said the Swami, "my heart broke, for I thought there could be no hope for the man". But never at a loss, he told the story of a Russian painter who was ordered to paint the picture of a peasant's dead father, the only description given being, "Man! Don't I tell you he had a wart on his nose?" When at last, therefore, the painter had made a portrait of some stray peasant and affixed a large wart to the nose, the picture was declared to be ready, and the son was told to come and see it. He stood in front of it, greatly overcome, and said, "Father! Father! How changed you are since I saw you last!" After this, the young engineer would never speak to the Swami again, which showed at least that he could see the point of a story. But at this the Hindu monk was genuinely astonished.

In spite of such general interests, however, the inner strife grew high, and the thought pressed on the mind of one of the older members of our party that the Master himself needed service and peace. Many times he spoke with wonder of the torture of life, and who can say how many signs there were of bitter need? A word or two was spoken — little, but enough — and he, after many hours, came back and told us that he longed for quiet and would go alone to the forests and find soothing.

And then, looking up, he saw the young moon shining above us, and he said, "The Mohammedans think much of the new moon. Let us also, with the new moon, begin a new life!" And he blessed his daughter with a great blessing so that she, thinking that her old relationship was broken, nor dreaming that a new and deeper life was being given to it, knew only that the hour was strange and passing sweet. . . .

He went. It was Wednesday. And on Saturday he came back. He had been in the silence of the forests ten hours each day, but on returning to his tent in the evenings he had been surrounded with so much eager attendance as to break the mood, and he had fled. Yet he was radiant. He had discovered in himself the old-time Sannyasin, able to go barefoot and endure heat, cold and scanty fare, unspoilt by the West. . . .

And then, as we sat working on Friday morning the telegram came, a day late, that said: "Goodwin died last night at Ootacamund". Our poor friend had, it appeared, been one of the first victims of what was to prove an epidemic of typhoid fever. And it seemed that with his last breath he had spoken of the Swami and longed for his presence by his side.

JUNE 5.

On Sunday evening the Swami came home. Through our gate and over the terrace his way brought him, and there we sat and talked with him a moment. He did not know our news, but a great darkness hung over him already, and presently he broke the silence to remind us of that saint who had called the cobra's bite "messenger from the Beloved", one whom he had loved second only to Shri Ramakrishna himself. "I have just", he said, "received a letter that says: 'Pavhari Baba has completed all his sacrifices with the sacrifice of his own body. He has burnt himself in his sacrificial fire'". "Swami!" exclaimed someone from amongst his listeners. "Wasn't that very wrong?"

"How can I tell?" said the Swami, speaking in great agitation. "He was too great a man for me to judge. He knew himself what he was doing."

Very little was said after this, and the party of monks passed on. Not yet had the other news been broken.

JUNE 6.

Next morning he came early in a great mood. He had been up, he said afterwards, since four. And one went out to meet him and told him of Mr. Goodwin's death. The blow fell quietly. Some days later he refused to stay in the place where he had received it, and complained of the weakness that brought the image of his most faithful disciple constantly into his mind. It was no more manly, he protested, to be thus ridden by one's memory than to retain the characteristics of the fish or the dog. Man must conquer this illusion and know that the dead are here beside us and with us as much as ever. It is their absence and separation that are a myth. And then he would break out again with some bitter utterance against the folly of imagining Personal Will to guide the universe. "As if", he exclaimed, "it would not be one's right and duty to fight such a God and slay Him for killing Goodwin! And Goodwin, if he had lived, could have done so much!" And in India one was free to recognize this as the most religious, because the most unflinchingly truthful, mood of all!

And while I speak of this utterance, I may perhaps put beside it another that I heard a year later, spoken out of the same fierce wonder at the dreams with which we comfort ourselves. "Why!" he said then. "Every petty magistrate and officer is allowed his period of retirement and rest. Only God, the Eternal Magistrate, must sit judging forever and never go free!"

But in these first hours the Swami was calm about his loss, and sat down and chatted quietly with us. He was full that morning of Bhakti passing into asceticism, the divine passion that carries the soul on its high tides far out of reach of persons, yet leaves it again struggling to avoid those sweet snares of personality.

What he said that morning of renunciation proved a hard gospel to one of those who listened, and when he came again she put it to him as her conviction that to love without attachment involved no pain, and was in itself ideal.

He turned on her with a sudden solemnity. "What is this idea of Bhakti without renunciation?" he said. "It is most pernicious!" And standing there for an hour or more, he talked of the awful self-discipline that one must impose on oneself if one would indeed be unattached, of the requisite nakedness of selfish motives, and of the danger that at any moment the most flower-like soul might have its petals soiled with the grosser stains of life. He told the story of an Indian nun who was asked when a man could be certain of safety on this road, and who sent back for answer a little plate of ashes. For the fight against passion was long and fierce, and at any moment the conqueror might become the conquered. . . .

. . . Weeks afterwards in Kashmir, when he was again talking in some kindred fashion, one of us ventured to ask him if the feeling he thus roused were not that worship of pain that Europe abhors as morbid.

"Is the worship of pleasure, then, so noble?" was his immediate answer. "But indeed", he added after a pause, "we worship neither pain nor pleasure. We seek through either to come at that which transcends them both".

JUNE 9.

This Thursday morning there was a talk on Krishna. It was characteristic of the Swami's mind, and characteristic also of the Hindu culture from which he had sprung, that he could lend himself to the enjoyment and portrayal of an idea one day that the next would see submitted to a pitiless analysis and left slain upon the field. He was a sharer to the full in the belief of his people that, provided an idea was spiritually true and consistent, it mattered very little about its objective actuality. And this mode of thought had first been suggested to him in his boyhood by his own master. He had mentioned some doubt as to the authenticity of a certain religious history. "What!" said Shri Ramakrishna. "Do you not then think that those who could conceive such ideas must have been the thing itself?"

The existence of Krishna, then, like that of Christ, he often told us "in the general way" he doubted. Buddha and Mohammed alone amongst religious teachers had been fortunate enough to have "enemies as well as friends", so that their historical careers were beyond dispute. As for Krishna, he was the most shadowy of all. A poet, a cowherd, a great ruler, a warrior and a sage had all perhaps been merged in one beautiful figure holding the Gitâ in his hand.

But today Krishna was "the most perfect of the Avatâras". And a wonderful picture followed of the charioteer who reined in his horses while he surveyed the field of battle and in one brief glance noted the disposition of the forces, at the same moment that he commenced to utter to his royal pupil the deep spiritual truths of the Gita.

And indeed as we went through the countrysides of northern India this summer, we had many chances of noting how deep this Krishna myth had set its mark upon the people. The songs that dancers chanted as they danced in the roadside hamlets were all of Râdhâ and Krishna. And the Swami was fond of a statement, as to which we, of course, could have no opinion, that the Krishna-worshippers of India had exhausted the possibilities of the romantic motive in lyric poetry. . . .

But throughout these days the Swami was fretting to be away and alone. The place where he had heard of Mr. Goodwin's loss was intolerable to him, and letters to be written and received constantly renewed the wound. He said one day that Shri Ramakrishna, while seeming to be all Bhakti, was really within all Jnana; but he himself, apparently all Jnana, was full of Bhakti, and that thereby he was apt to be as weak as any woman.

One day he carried off a few faulty lines of someone's writing and brought back a little poem, which was sent to the widowed mother as his memorial of her son. . . . Vide "[Requiescat in Pace", Complete Works, IV]

And then, because there was nothing left of the original and he feared that she who was corrected (because her lines had been "in three metres") might be hurt, he expatiated, long and earnestly upon the theme, that it was so much greater to feel poetically than merely to string syllables together in rhyme and metre.*

He might be very severe on a sympathy or an opinion that seemed in his eyes sentimental or false. But an effort that failed found always in the Master its warmest advocate and tenderest defence.

And how happy was that acknowledgment of the bereaved mother to him when in the midst of her sorrow she wrote and thanked him for the character of his influence over the son who had died so far away!

JUNE 10.

It was our last afternoon at Almora that we heard the story of the fatal illness of Shri Ramakrishna. Dr. Mahendra Lal Sarkar had been called in and had pronounced the disease to be cancer of the throat, leaving the young disciples with many warnings as to its infectious nature. Half an hour later "Naren", as he then was, came in and found them huddled together discussing the dangers of the case. He listened to what they had been told and then, looking down, saw at his feet the cup of gruel that had been partly taken by Shri Ramakrishna and which must have contained in it the germs of the fatal discharges of mucus and pus, as it came out in his baffled attempts to swallow the thing on account of the stricture of the food-passage in the throat. He picked it up and drank from it before them all. Never was the infection of cancer mentioned amongst the disciples again.

CHAPTER IV

ON THE WAY TO KATHGODAM

JUNE 11.

On Saturday morning we left Almora. It took us two days and a half to reach Kathgodam. . . .

Somewhere en route near a curious old water-mill and deserted forge, the Swami told Dhira Mata of a legend that spoke of this hill-side as haunted by a race of centaur-like phantoms, and of an experience known to him by which one had first seen forms there and only afterwards heard the folk tale.

The roses were gone by this time, but a flower was in bloom that crumbled at a touch, and he pointed this out because of its wealth of associations in Indian poetry.

JUNE 12.

On Sunday afternoon we rested near the plains in what we took to be an out-of-the-way hotel above a lake and fall, and there he translated for us the Rudra prayer:

From the unreal lead us to the Real.
From darkness lead us unto light.
From death lead us to immortality.
Reach us through and through our self.
And evermore protect us — O Thou Terrible! —
From ignorance, by Thy sweet, compassionate face.

He hesitated a long time over the fourth line, thinking of rendering it, "Embrace us in the heart of our heart". But at last he put his perplexity to us, saying shyly, "The real meaning is, Reach us through and through our self". He had evidently feared that this sentence, with its extraordinary intensity, might not make good sense in English. . . . I have understood that a more literal rendering would be, "O Thou who art manifest only unto Thyself, manifest Thyself also unto us!" I now regard his translation as a rapid and direct transcript of the experience of Samâdhi itself. It tears the living heart out of the Sanskrit, as it were, and renders it again in an English form.

It was indeed an afternoon of translations, and he gave us fragments of the great benediction after mourning, which is one of the most beautiful of the Hindu sacraments:

The blissful winds are sweet to us.
The seas are showering bliss on us.
May the corn in our fields bring bliss to us.
May the plants and herbs bring bliss to us.
May the cattle give us bliss.
O Father in Heaven, be Thou blissful unto us!
Thy very dust of the earth is full of bliss.

And then, the voice dying down into meditation:

It is all bliss — all bliss — all bliss.

And again we had Suradâsa's song, which the Swami heard from the nautch-girl at Khetri:

O Lord, look not upon my evil qualities!
Thy name, O Lord, is Same-Sightedness.
Make of us both the same Brahman! . . .

Was it that same day or some other that he told us of the old Sannyâsin in Benares who saw him annoyed by troops of monkeys and, afraid that he might turn and run, shouted, "Always face the brute!"?

Those journeys were delightful. We were always sorry to reach a destination. At this time it took us a whole afternoon to cross the Terai by rail — that strip of malarial country on which, as he reminded us, Buddha had been born.

As we had come down the mountain roads, we had met parties of country-folk fleeing to the upper hills with their families and all their goods, to escape the fever which would be upon them with the rains. And now in the train there was the gradual change of vegetation to watch and the Master's pleasure, greater than that of any proprietor, in showing us the wild peacocks, or here and there an elephant or a train of camels. . . .

CHAPTER V

ON THE WAY TO BARAMULLA

PERSONS: The Swami Vivekananda, Gurubhais, and a party of Europeans and disciples, amongst whom were Dhira Mata, the "Steady Mother"; one whose name was Jaya; and Nivedita.

PLACE: From Bareilly to Baramulla, Kashmir.

JUNE 14.

We entered the Punjab next day, and great was the Swami's excitement at the fact. It almost seemed as if he had been born there, so close and special was his love for this province. He talked of the girls at their spinning wheels listening to the "So'ham! So'ham!" — I am He! I am He! Then, by a swift transition he turned to the far past and unrolled for us the great historic panorama of the advance of the Greeks on the Indus, the rise of Chandragupta and the development of the Buddhistic empire. He was determined this summer to find his way to Attock and see with his own eyes the spot at which Alexander was turned back. He described to us the Gandhara sculptures, which he must have seen in the Lahore Museum the year before, and lost himself in indignant repudiation of the absurd European claim that India had ever sat at the feet of Greece in things artistic.

Then there were flying glimpses of long-expected cities — Ludhiana, where certain trusty English disciples had lived as children; Lahore, where his Indian lectures had ended; and so on. We came too upon the dry gravel beds of many rivers and learnt that the space between one pair was called the Doab and the area containing them all, the Punjab.

It was at twilight, crossing one of these stony tracts, that he told us of that great vision which came to him years ago, while he was still new to the ways of the life of a monk, giving back to him, as he always afterwards believed, the ancient mode of Sanskrit chanting.

"It was evening", he said, "in that age when the Aryans had only reached the Indus. I saw an old man seated on the bank of the great river. Wave upon wave of darkness was rolling in upon him, and he was chanting from the Rig-Veda. Then I awoke and went on chanting. They were the tones that we used long ago".

. . . Those who were constantly preoccupied with imagination regarding their own past always aroused his contempt. But on this occasion of telling the story, he gave a glimpse of it from a very different point of view.

"Shankarâchârya", he was saying, "had caught the rhythm of the Vedas, the national cadence. Indeed I always imagine", he went on suddenly with dreamy voice and far-away look, "I always imagine that he had some vision such as mine when he was young, and recovered the ancient music that way. Anyway, his whole life's work is nothing but that, the throbbing of the beauty of the Vedas and Upanishads". . . .

From Rawalpindi to Murree we went by tonga, and there we spent some days before setting out for Kashmir. Here the Swami came to the conclusion that any effort which he might make to induce the orthodox to accept a European as a fellow-disciple, or in the direction of woman's education, had better be made in Bengal. The distrust of the foreigner was too strong in Punjab to admit of work succeeding there. He was much occupied by this question from time to time, and would sometimes remark on the paradox presented by the Bengali combination of political antagonism to the English, and readiness to love and trust. . . .

Most of the afternoon we were compelled by a storm to spend indoors, and a new chapter was opened at Dulai in our knowledge of Hinduism, for the Swami told us gravely and frankly of its modern abuses and spoke of his own uncompromising hostility to those evil practices which pass under the name of Vâmâchâra.

When we asked how Shri Ramakrishna — who never could bear to condemn the hope of any man — had looked at these things, he told us that "the old man" had said, "Well, well! But every house may have a scavengers' entrance!" And he pointed out that all sects of diabolism in any country belonged to this class. . . .

We took it in turns to drive with the Swami in his tonga, and this next day seemed full of reminiscence.

He talked of Brahmayidyâ, the vision of the One, the Alone — Real, and told how love was the only cure for evil. He had had a schoolfellow who grew up and became rich, but lost his health. It was an obscure disease, sapping his energy and vitality daily, yet altogether baffling the skill of the doctors. At last, because he knew that the Swami had always been religious, and men turn to religion when all else fails, he sent to beg him to come to him. When the Master reached him a curious thing happened. There came to his mind a text: "Him the Brahmin conquers who thinks that he is separate from the Brahmin. Him the Kshatriya conquers who thinks that he is separate from the Kshatriya. And him the universe conquers who thinks that he is separate from the universe". And the sick man grasped this and recovered. "And so", said the Swami, "though I often say strange things and angry things, yet remember that in my heart I never seriously mean to preach anything but love! All these things will come right only when we realize that we love each other".

Was it then, or the day before, that talking of the great God, he told us how when he was a child his mother would sigh over his naughtiness and say, "So many prayers and austerities, and instead of a good soul, Shiva has sent me you!" till he was hypnotized into a belief that he was really one of Shiva's demons. He thought that for a punishment he had been banished for a while from Shiva's heaven, and that his one effort in life must be to go back there.

His first act of sacrilege, he told us once, had been committed at the age of five when he embarked on a stormy argument with his mother, to the effect that when his right hand was soiled with eating, it would be cleaner to lift his tumbler of water with the left. For this or similar perversities her most drastic remedy was to put him under the water tap and, while cold water was pouring over his head, to say "Shiva! Shiva!" This, he said, never failed of its effect. The prayer would remind him of his exile, and he would say to himself, "No, no, not this time again!" and so return to quiet and obedience.

He had a surpassing love for Mahâdeva, and once he said of the Indian women of the future that if, amidst their new tasks, they would only remember now and then to say "Shiva! Shiva!" it would be worship enough. The very air of the Himalayas was charged for him with the image of that "eternal meditation" that no thought of pleasure could break. And he understood, he said, for the first time this summer, the meaning of the nature-story that made the Ganges fall on the head of the great God, and wander in and out amongst His matted locks before She found an outlet on the plains below. He had searched long, he said, for the words that the rivers and waterfalls uttered, amongst the mountains, before he had realized that it was the eternal cry "Bom! Bom! Hara! Hara!"

"Yes!" he said of Shiva one day, "He is the great God — calm, beautiful, and silent! And I am His great worshipper".

Again his subject was marriage, as the type of the soul's relation to God. "This is why", he exclaimed, "though the love of a mother is in some ways greater, yet the whole world takes the love of man and woman as the type. No other has such tremendous idealizing power. The beloved actually becomes what he is imagined to be. This love transforms its object".

Then the talk strayed to national types, and he spoke of the joy with which the returning traveller greets once more the sight of the men and women of his own country. The whole of life has been a subconscious education to enable one to understand in these every faintest ripple of expression in face and form.

And again we passed a group of Sannyâsins going on foot, and he broke out into fierce invective against asceticism as "savagery" But the sight of wayfarers doing slow miles on foot in the name of their ideals seemed to rouse in his mind a train of painful associations, and he grew impatient on behalf of humanity at "the torture of religion". Then again the mood passed as suddenly as it had arisen and gave place to the equally strong statement of the conviction that were it not for this "savagery", luxury would have robbed man of all his manliness.

We stopped that evening at Uri Dak bungalow, and in the twilight we all walked in the meadows and the bazaar. How beautiful the place was! A little mud fortress — exactly of the European feudal pattern — overhung the footway as it swept into a great open theatre of field and hill. Along the road above the river lay the bazaar, and we returned to the bungalow by a path across the fields, past cottages in whose gardens the roses were in bloom. As we came, too, it would happen that here and there some child more venturesome than others would play with us.

JUNE 20.

The next day, driving through the most beautiful part of the pass and seeing cathedral rocks and an old ruined temple of the sun, we reached Baramulla. The legend is that the Vale of Kashmir was once a lake and that at this point the Divine Boar pierced the mountains with his tusks and let the Jhelum go free. Another piece of geography in the form of myth. Or is it also prehistoric history?

CHAPTER VI

THE VALE OF KASHMIR

PERSONS: The Swami Vivekananda and a party of Europeans and disciples, amongst whom were Dhira Mata, the "Steady Mother"; one whose name was Jaya; and Nivedita.

PLACE: The River Jhelum — Baramulla to Srinagar.

TIME: June 20 to June 22.

"It is said that the Lord Himself is the weight on the side of the fortunate!" cried the Swami in high glee, returning to our room at the Dak bungalow and sitting down with his umbrella on his knees. As he had brought no companion, he had himself to perform all the ordinary little masculine offices, and he had gone out to hire Dungas [houseboats] and do what was necessary. But he had immediately fallen in with a man who, on hearing his name, had undertaken the whole business and sent him back free of responsibility.

So we enjoyed the day. We drank Kashmiri tea out of a Samovar and ate the jam of the country, and at about four o'clock we entered into possession of a flotilla of Dungas, three in number, on which presently we set forth for Srinagar. The first evening, however, we were moored by the garden of the Swami's friend. . . .

We found ourselves next day in the midst of a beautiful valley ringed round with snow mountains. This is known as the Vale of Kashmir, but it might be more accurately described, perhaps, as the Vale of Srinagar. . . .

That first morning, taking a long walk across the fields, we came upon an immense chennaar tree standing in the midst of a wide pasture. It really looked as if the passage through it might shelter the proverbial twenty cows! The Swami fell to architectural visions of how it might be fitted up as a dwelling-place for a hermit. A small cottage might in fact have been built in the hollow of this living tree. And then he talked of meditation, in a way to consecrate every chennaar we should ever see.

We turned with him into the neighbouring farmyard. There we found, seated under a tree, a singularly handsome elderly woman. She wore the crimson coronet and white veil of the Kashmiri wife and sat spinning wool, while round her, helping her, were her two daughters-in-law and their children. The Swami had called at this farm once before in the previous autumn and had often spoken since of the faith and pride of this very woman. He had begged for water, which she had at once given him. Then, before going, he had asked her quietly, "And what, Mother, is your religion?" "I thank God, sir!" had rung out the old voice in pride and triumph. "By the mercy of the Lord, I am a Mussulman!" The whole family received him now as an old friend and were ready to show every courtesy to the friends he had brought.

The journey to Srinagar took two to three days, and one evening, as we walked in the fields before supper, one who had seen the Kalighat complained to the Master of the abandonment of feeling there, which had jarred on her. "Why do they kiss the ground before the image?" she exclaimed. The Swami had been pointing to the crop of Til — which he thought to have been the original of the English dill — and calling it "the oldest oil-bearing seed of the Aryans". But at this question he dropped the little blue flower from his hands, and a great hush came over his voice as he stood still and said, "Is it not the same thing to kiss the ground before that image as to kiss the ground before these mountains?"

Our master had promised that before the end of the summer he would take us into retreat and teach us to meditate. . . . It was decided that we should first see the country and afterwards make the retreat.

The first evening in Srinagar we dined out with some Bengali officials, and in the course of conversation one of the Western guests maintained that the history of every nation illustrated and evolved certain ideals to which the people of that nation should hold themselves true. It was very curious to see how the Hindus present objected to this. To them it was clearly a bondage to which the mind of man could not permanently submit itself. Indeed, in their revolt against the fetters of the doctrine, they appeared to be unable to do justice to the idea itself. At last the Swami intervened. "I think you must admit", he said, "that the ultimate unit is psychological. This is much more permanent than the geographical". And then he spoke of cases known to us all, of one of whom he always thought as the most typical "Christian" he had ever seen, yet she was a Bengali woman, and of another, born in the West, who was "a better Hindu than himself". And was not this, after all, the ideal state of things, that each should be born in the other's country to spread the given ideal as far as it could be carried?

CHAPTER VII

LIFE AT SRINAGAR

PLACE: Srinagar.

TIME: June 22 to July 15, 1898.

In the mornings we still had long talks as before — some-times it would be the different religious periods through which Kashmir had passed, or the morality of Buddhism, or the history of Shiva-worship, or perhaps the position of Srinagar under Kanishka.

Once he was talking with one of us about Buddhism, and he suddenly said, "The fact is, Buddhism tried to do, in the time of Ashoka, what the world never was ready for till now!" He referred to the federalization of religions. It was a wonderful picture, this, of the religious imperialism of Ashoka, broken down time and again by successive waves of Christianity and Mohammedanism, each claiming exclusive rights over the conscience of mankind and finally to seem to have a possibility, within measurable distance of time, today!

Another time the talk was of Genghis, or Chenghis, Khan, the conqueror from Central Asia. "You hear people talk of him as a vulgar aggressor", he cried passionately, "but that is not true! They are never greedy or vulgar, these great souls! He was inspired with the thought of unity, and he wanted to unify his world. Yes, Napoleon was cast in the same mould. And another, Alexander. Only those three, or perhaps one soul manifesting itself in three different conquests!" And then he passed on to speak of that one soul whom he believed to have come again and again in religion, charged with the divine impulse to bring about the unity of man in God.

At this time the transfer of the Prabuddha Bharata from Madras to the newly established Ashrama at Mayavati was much in all our thoughts. The Swami had always had a special love for this paper, as the beautiful name he had given it indicated. He had always been eager too for the establishment of organs of his own. The value of the journal in the education of modern India was perfectly evident to him, and he felt that his master's message and mode of thought required to be spread by this means as well as by preaching and by work. Day after day, therefore, he would dream about the future of his papers, as about the work in its various centres. Day after day he would talk of the forthcoming first number under the new editorship of Swami Swarupananda. And one afternoon he brought to us, as we sat together, a paper on which he said he had "tried to write a letter, but it would come this way!" . . .

JUNE 26.

The Master was longing to leave us all and go away into some place of quiet, alone. But we, not knowing this, insisted on accompanying him to the Coloured Springs, called "Kshir Bhavâni", or "Milk of the Mother". It was said to be the first time that Christian or Mohammedan had ever landed there, and we can never be thankful enough for the glimpse we had of it since afterwards it was to become the most sacred of all names to us. . . .

JUNE 29.

Another day we went off quietly by ourselves and visited the Takt-i-Suleiman, a little temple very massively built on the summit of a small mountain two or three thousand feet high. It was peaceful and beautiful, and the famous Floating Gardens could be seen below us for miles around. The Takt-i-Suleiman was one of the great illustrations of the Swami's argument when he would take up the subject of the Hindu love of nature as shown in the choice of sites for temples and architectural monuments. As he had declared, in London, that the saints lived on the hill-tops in order to enjoy the scenery, so now he pointed out — citing one example after another — that our Indian people always consecrated places of peculiar beauty and importance by making there their altars of worship. And there was no denying that the little Takt, crowning the hill that dominated the whole valley, was a case in point.

Many lovely fragments of those days come into mind, as:

Therefore, Tulasi, take thou care to live with all, for who can tell where, or in what garb, the Lord Himself may next come to thee?
One God is hidden in all these, the Torturer of all, the Awakener of all, the Reservoir of all being, the One who is bereft of all qualities.
There the sun does not shine, nor the moon,
nor the stars.

There was the story of how Râvana was advised to take the form of Râma in order to cheat Sitâ. He answered, "Have I not thought of it? But in order to take a man's form you must meditate on him; and Rama is the Lord Himself; so when I meditate on him, even the position of Brahmâ becomes a mere straw. How, then, could I think of a woman?"

"And so", commented the Swami, "even in the commonest or most criminal life, there are these glimpses". It was ever thus. He was constantly interpreting human life as the expression of God, never insisting on the heinousness or wickedness of the act or a character.

"In that which is dark night to the rest of the world, there the man of self-control is awake. That which is life to the rest of the world is sleep to him."

Speaking of Thomas à Kempis one day, and of how he himself used to wander as a Sannyâsin with the Gitâ and the Imitation as his whole library, one word, he said, came back to him, inseparably associated with the name of the Western monk:

Silence! ye teachers of the world, and silence!
ye prophets! Speak Thou alone, O Lord, unto my soul!

Again:

The soft Shirisha flower can bear the weight of humming bees, but not of birds —
So Umâ, don't you go and make Tapasyâ!
Come, Uma, come! delight and idol of my soul!
Be seated, Mother, on the lotus of my heart,
And let me take a long, long look at you.
From my birth up, I am gazing,
Mother, at your face —
Know you suffering what trouble, and pain?
Be seated, therefore, Blessed One,
on the lotus of my heart,
And dwell there for evermore.

Every now and then there would be long talks about the Gita — "that wonderful poem, without one note in it of weakness or unmanliness." He said one day that it was absurd to complain that knowledge was not given to women or to Shudras. For the whole gist of the Upanishads was contained in the Gita. Without it, indeed, they could hardly be understood; and women and all castes could read the Mahâbhârata.

JULY 4.

With great fun and secrecy the Swami and his one non-American disciple prepared to celebrate the Fourth of July. A regret had been expressed in his hearing that we had no American flag with which to welcome the other members of the party to breakfast on their national festival; and late on the afternoon of the third, he brought a Pundit Durzey [Brahmin tailor] in great excitement, explaining that this man would be glad to imitate it if he were told how. The stars and stripes were very crudely represented, I fear, on the piece of cotton that was nailed with branches of evergreens to the head of the dining—room—boat when the Americans stepped on board for early tea on Independence Day! But the Swami had postponed a journey in order to be present at the little festival, and he himself contributed a poem to the addresses that were now read aloud by way of greeting. . . . Vide ["To the Fourth of July", Complete Works, V]

JULY 5.

That evening someone pained him by counting the cherry-stones left on her plate, to see when she would be married. He somehow took the play in earnest and came the following morning surcharged with passion for the ideal renunciation.

JULY 6.

"These shadows of home and marriage cross even my mind now and then!" he cried, with that tender desire to make himself one with the sinner that he so often showed. But it was across oceans of scorn for those who would glorify the householder that he sought on this occasion to preach the religious life. "Is it so easy", he exclaimed, "to be Janaka? To sit on a throne absolutely unattached? Caring nothing for wealth or fame, for wife or child? One after another in the West has told me that he had reached this. But I could only say, 'Such great men are not born in India!'"

And then he turned to the other side.

"Never forget", he said to one of his hearers, "to say to yourself, and to teach to your children: as is the difference between a firefly and the blazing sun, between the infinite ocean and a little pond, between a mustard-seed and the mountain of Meru, such is the difference between the householder and the Sannyasin!"

"Everything is fraught with fear: Renunciation alone is fearless."

"Blessed be even the fraudulent Sâdhus, and those who have failed to carry out their vows, inasmuch as they also have witnessed to the ideal and so are in some degree the cause of the success of others!"

"Let us never, never, forget our ideal!"

At such moments he would identify himself entirely with the thought he sought to demonstrate, and in the same sense in which a law of nature might be deemed cruel or arrogant, his exposition might have those qualities. Sitting and listening, we felt ourselves brought face to face with the invisible and absolute.

All this was on our return to Srinagar from the real Fourth of July celebration, which had been a visit to Dahl Lake. . . .

At nine o'clock on the evening of the following Sunday, July the 10th, the first two [Dhira Mata and Jaya] came back unexpectedly, and presently, from many different sources, we gathered the news that the Master had gone to Amarnath by the Sonamarg route and would return another way. He had started out penniless, but that could give no concern to his friends, in a Hindu native state. . . .

JULY 15.

What were we setting out for? We were just moving to go down the river on Friday, and it was close on five in the afternoon when the servants recognized some of their friends in the distance, and word was brought that the Swami's boat was coming towards us.

An hour later he was with us, saying how pleasant it was to be back. The summer had been unusually hot and certain glaciers had given way, rendering the Sonamarg route to Amarnath impracticable. This fact had caused his return.

But from this moment dated the first of three great increments of joy and realization that we saw in him during our months in Kashmir. It was almost as if we could verify for ourselves the truth of that saying of his Guru: "There is indeed a certain ignorance. It has been placed there by my Holy Mother that her work may be done. But it is only like a film of tissue paper. It might be rent at any moment".

CHAPTER VIII

THE TEMPLE OF PANDRENTHAN

PERSONS: The Swami Vivekananda and a party of Europeans and disciples, amongst whom were Dhira Mata, the "Steady Mother"; one whose name was Jaya; and Nivedita.

PLACE: Kashmir.

TIME: July 16 to 19, 1898.

JULY 16.

It fell to the lot of one of the Swami's disciples next day to go down the river with him in a small boat. As it went, he chanted one song after another of Râmprasâd, and now and again he would translate a verse:

I call upon thee, Mother.
For though his mother strikes him,
The child cries, "Mother! Oh, Mother!"
Though I cannot see Thee,
I am not a lost child!
I still cry, "Mother! Mother!"

And then with the haughty dignity of an offended child, some-thing that ended, "I am not the son to call any other woman 'Mother!'"

JULY 17.

It must have been next day that he came into Dhira Mata's Dunga and talked of Bhakti. First it was that curious Hindu thought of Shiva and Umâ in one. It is easy to give the words, but without the voice how comparatively dead they seem! And then there were the wonderful surroundings — picturesque Srinagar, tall Lombardy poplars and distant snows. There in that river-valley, some space from the foot of the great mountains, he chanted to us how "the Lord took a form and that was a divided form, half woman and half man. On one side, beautiful garlands; on the other, bone earrings and coils of snakes. On one side, the hair black, beautiful and in curls; on the other, twisted like rope". And then passing immediately into the other form of the same thought, he quoted:

God became Krishna and Râdhâ —
Love flows in thousands of coils.
Whoso wants, takes it.
Love flows in thousands of coils —
The tide of love and loving past,
And fills the soul with bliss and joy!

So absorbed was he that his breakfast stood unheeded long after it was ready, and when at last he went reluctantly — saying, "When one has all this Bhakti what does one want with food?" — it was only to come back again quickly and resume the subject.

But either now or at some other time he said that he did not talk of Radha and Krishna where he looked for deeds. It was Shiva who made stern and earnest workers, and to Him the labourer must be dedicated.

The next day he gave us a quaint saying of Shri Ramakrishna, comparing the critics of others to bees or flies, according as they chose honey or wounds.

And then we were off to Islamabad, and really, as it proved, to Amarnath.

JULY 19.

The first afternoon, in a wood by the side of the Jhelum, we discovered the long — sought temple of Pandrenthan (Pandresthan, place of the Pândavas?).

It was sunk in a pond, and this was thickly covered with scum out of which it rose, a tiny cathedral of the long ago, built of heavy grey limestone. The temple consisted of a small cell with four doorways opening to the cardinal points. Externally it was a tapering pyramid — with its top truncated, to give foot-hold to a bush — supported on a four-pierced pedestal. In its architecture, trefoil and triangular arches were combined in an unusual fashion with each other and with the straight-lined lintel. It was built with marvellous solidity, and the necessary lines were somewhat obscured by heavy ornament. . . .

For all but the Swami himself, this was our first peep at Indian archaeology. So when he had been through it, he taught us how to observe the interior.

In the centre of the ceiling was a large sun-medallion, set in a square whose points were the points of the compass. This left four equal triangles at the corners of the ceiling, which were filled with sculpture in low relief, male and female figures intertwined with serpents, beautifully done. On the wall were empty spaces, where seemed to have been a band of topes.

Outside, carvings were similarly distributed. In one of the trefoil arches — over, I think, the eastern door — was a fine image of the Teaching Buddha, standing, with his hand uplifted. Running round the buttresses was a much-defaced frieze of a seated woman with a tree — evidently Mâyâ Devi, the mother of Buddha. The three other door-niches were empty, but a slab by the pond-side seemed to have fallen from one, and this contained a bad figure of a king, said by the country-people to represent the sun.

The masonry of this little temple was superb and probably accounted for its long preservation. A single block of stone would be so cut as to correspond not to one brick in a wall, but to a section of the architect's plan. It would turn a corner and form part of two distinct walls, or sometimes even of three. This fact made one take the building as very, very old, possibly even earlier than Marttanda. The theory of the workmen seemed so much more that of carpentering than of building! The water about it was probably an overflow into the temple-court from the sacred spring that the chapel itself may have been placed, as the Swami thought, to enshrine.

To him, the place was delightfully suggestive. It was a direct memorial of Buddhism, representing one of the four religious periods into which he had already divided the history of Kashmir: (1) tree and snake worship, from which dated all the names of the springs ending in Nag, as Verinag, and so on; (2) Buddhism; (3) Hinduism, in the form of sun worship; and (4) Mohammedanism.

Sculpture, he told us, was the characteristic art of Buddhism, and the sun-medallion, or lotus, one of its commonest ornaments. The figures with the serpents referred to pre-Buddhism. But sculpture had greatly deteriorated under sun worship, hence the crudity of the Surya figure. . . .

It was the time of sunset — such a sunset! The mountains in the west were all a shimmering purple. Further north they were blue with snow and cloud. The sky was green and yellow and touched with red — bright flame and daffodil colours, against a blue and opal background. We stood and looked, and then the Master, catching sight of the throne of Solomon — that little Takt which we already loved — exclaimed, "What genius the Hindu shows in placing his temples! He always chooses a grand scenic effect! See! The Takt commands the whole of Kashmir. The rock of Hari Parbat rises red out of blue water, like a lion couchant, crowned. And the temple of Marttanda has the valley at its feet!"

Our boats were moored near the edge of the wood, and we could see that the presence of the silent chapel, of the Buddha, which we had just explored, moved the Swami deeply. That evening we all foregathered in Dhira Mata's houseboat, and a little of the conversation has been noted down.

Our master had been talking of Christian ritual as derived from Buddhist, but one of the party would have none of the theory.

"Where did Buddhist ritual itself come from?" she asked.

"From Vedic", answered the Swami briefly."

Or as it was present also in southern Europe, is it not better to suppose a common origin for it and the Christian and the Vedic rituals?"

"No! No!" he replied. "You forget that Buddhism was entirely within Hinduism! Even caste was not attacked — it was not yet crystallized, of course! — and Buddha merely tried to restore the ideal. He who attains to God in this life, says Manu, is the Brahmin. Buddha would have had it so, if he could."

"But how are Vedic and Christian rituals connected?" persisted his opponent. "How could they be the same? You have nothing even corresponding to the central rite of our worship!"

"Why, yes!" said the Swami. "Vedic ritual has its Mass, the offering of food to God; your Blessed Sacrament, our Prasâdam. Only it is offered sitting, not kneeling, as is common in hot countries. They kneel in Tibet. Then too Vedic ritual has its lights, incense, music."

"But", was the somewhat ungracious argument, "has it any common prayer?" Objections urged in this way always elicited some bold paradox which contained a new and unthought-of generalization.

He flashed down on the question. "No! And neither has Christianity! That is pure Protestantism and Protestantism took it from the Mohammedans, perhaps through Moorish influence!"

"Mohammedanism is the only religion that has completely broken down the idea of the priest. The leader of prayer stands with his back to the people, and only the reading of the Koran may take place from the pulpit. Protestantism is an approach to this.

"Even the tonsure existed in India, in the shaven head. I have seen a picture of Justinian receiving the Law from two monks, in which the monks' heads are entirely shaven. The monk and nun both existed in pre-Buddhistic Hinduism. Europe gets her orders from the Thebaid."

"At that rate, then, you accept Catholic ritual as Aryan!"

"Yes, almost all Christianity is Aryan, I believe. I am inclined to think Christ never existed. I have doubted that ever since I had my dream — that dream off Crete! * Indian and Egyptian ideas met at Alexandria and went forth to the world, tintured with Judaism and Hellenism, as Christianity.

"The Acts and Epistles, you know, are older than the Gospels, and S. John is spurious. The only figure we can be sure of is S. Paul, and he was not an eye-witness, and according to his own showing was capable of Jesuitry — 'by all means save souls' — isn't it?"

"No! Buddha and Mohammed, alone amongst religious teachers, stand out with historic distinctness — having been fortunate enough to have, while they were living, enemies as well as friends. Krishna — I doubt; a Yogi, a shepherd, and a great king have all been amalgamated in one beautiful figure, holding the Gitâ in his hand.

"Renan's life of Jesus is mere froth. It does not touch Strauss, the real antiquarian. Two things stand out as personal living touches in the life of Christ — the woman taken in adultery, the most beautiful story in literature, and the woman at the well. How strangely true is this last to Indian life! A woman coming to draw water finds, seated at the well-side, a yellow-clad monk. He asks her for water. Then he teaches her and does a little mind-reading and so on. Only in an Indian story, when she went to call the villagers to look and listen, the monk would have taken his chance and fled to the forest!"

"On the whole, I think old Rabbi Hillel is responsible for the teachings of Jesus, and an obscure Jewish sect of Nazarenes — a sect of great antiquity — suddenly galvanized by S. Paul, furnished the mythic personality as a centre of worship.

"The resurrection, of course, is simply spring-cremation. Only the rich Greeks and Romans had had cremation anyway, and the new sun-myth would only stop it amongst the few.

"But Buddha! Buddha! Surely he was the greatest man who ever lived. He never drew a breath for himself. Above all, he never claimed worship. He said, 'Buddha is not a man, but a state. I have found the door. Enter, all of you!'

"He went to the feast of Ambâpâli, 'the sinner'. He dined with the pariah, though he knew it would kill him, and sent a message to his host on his death-bed, thanking him for the great deliverance. Full of love and pity for a little goat, even before he had attained the truth! You remember how he offered his own head, that of prince and monk, if only the king would spare the kid that he was about to sacrifice, and how the king was so struck by his compassion that he saved its life? Such a mixture of rationalism and feeling was never seen! Surely, surely, there was none like him!"

CHAPTER IX

WALKS AND TALKS BESIDE THE JHELUM

PERSONS: The Swami Vivekananda and a party of Europeans and disciples, amongst whom were Dhira Mata, the "Steady Mother"; one whose name was Jaya; and Nivedita.

PLACE: Kashmir.

TIME: July 20 to July 29, 1898.

That morning the river was broad and shallow and clear, and two of us walked with the Swami across the fields and along the banks about three miles. He began by talking of the sense of sin, how it was Egyptian, Semitic and Aryan. It appears in the Vedas, but quickly passes out. The devil is recognized there as the Lord of Anger. Then, with the Buddhists he became Mara, the Lord of Lust, and one of the most loved of the Lord Buddha's titles was "Conqueror of Mara". (Vide the Sanskrit lexicon Amarkosha that Swami learnt to patter as a child of four!) But while Satan is the Hamlet of the Bible, in the Hindu scriptures the Lord of Anger never divides creation. He always represents defilement, never duality.

Zoroaster was a reformer of some old religion. Even Ormuzd and Ahriman with him were not supreme; they were only manifestations of the Supreme. That older religion must have been Vedantic. So the Egyptians and Semites cling to the theory of sin while the Aryans, as Indians and Greeks, quickly lose it. In India righteousness and sin become Vidyâ and Avidyâ — both to be transcended. Amongst the Aryans, Persians and Europeans become Semitized by religious ideas; hence the sense of sin.*

And then the talk drifted, as it was always so apt to do, to questions of the country and the future. What idea must be urged on a people to give them strength? The line of their own development runs in one way, A. Must the new accession of force be a compensating one, B? This would produce a development midway between the two, C — a geometrical alteration merely. But it was not so.

National life was a question of organic forces. We must reinforce the current of that life itself, and leave it to do the rest. Buddha preached renunciation, and India heard. Yet within a thousand years she had reached her highest point of national prosperity. The national life in India has renunciation as its source. Its highest ideals are service and Mukti. The Hindu mother eats last. Marriage is not for individual happiness, but for the welfare of the nation and the caste. Certain individuals of the modern reform, having embarked on an experiment which could not solve the problem, "are the sacrifices over which the race has to walk".

And then the trend of conversation changed again and became all fun and merriment, jokes and stories. And as we laughed and listened, the boats came up and talk was over for the day.

The whole of that afternoon and night the Swami lay in his boat, ill. But next day, when we landed at the temple of Bijbehara — already thronged with Amarnath pilgrims — he was able to join us for a little while. "Quickly up and quickly down", as he said of himself, was always his characteristic. After that he was with us most of the day, and in the afternoon we reached Islamabad. . . .

In the dusk that evening one came into the little group amongst the apple trees and found the Master engaged in the rarest of rare happenings, a personal talk with Dhira Mata and her whose name was Jaya. He had taken two pebbles into his hand and was saying how, when he was well, his mind might direct itself to this and that, or his will might seem less firm; but let the least touch of pain or illness come, let him look death in the face for a while, and "I am as hard as that (knocking the stones together), for I have touched the feet of God".

And one remembered, apropos of this coolness, the story of a walk across the fields in England, where he and an Englishman and woman had been pursued by an angry bull. The Englishman frankly ran and reached the other side of the hill in safety. The woman ran as far as she could and then sank to the ground, incapable of further effort. Seeing this, and unable to aid her, the Swami — thinking "So this is the end, after all" — took up his stand in front of her, with folded arms. He told afterwards how his mind was occupied with a mathematical calculation as to how far the bull would be able to throw. But the animal suddenly stopped a few paces off and then, raising his head, retreated sullenly.

A like courage — though he himself was far from thinking of these incidents — had shown itself in his early youth when he quietly stepped up to a runaway horse and caught it in the streets of Calcutta, thus saving the life of the woman who occupied the carriage behind.

The talk drifted on, as we sat on the grass beneath the trees, and became, for an hour or two, half grave, half gay. We heard much of the tricks the monkeys could play in Vrindaban. And we elicited stories of two separate occasions in his wandering life when he had had clear previsions of help which had been fulfilled. One of these I remember. It may possibly have occurred at the time when he was under the vow to ask for nothing, and he had been several days (perhaps five) without food. Suddenly, as he lay almost dying of exhaustion in a railway-station, it flashed into his mind that he must rise up and go out along a certain road and that there he would meet a man bringing him help. He obeyed and met one carrying a tray of food. "Are you he to whom I was sent?" said this man, coming up to him and looking at him closely.

Then a child was brought to us, with its hand badly cut, and the Swami applied an old wives' cure. He bathed the wound with water and then laid on it, to stop the bleeding, the ashes of a piece of calico. The villagers were soothed and consoled, and our gossip was over for the evening.

The next morning a motley gathering of coolies assembled beneath the apple-trees and waited some hours to take us to the ruins of Marttanda. It had been a wonderful old building — evidently more abbey than temple — in a wonderful position; and its great interest lay in the obvious agglomeration of styles and periods in which it had grown up. . . . Its presence is a perpetual reminder that the East was the original home of monasticism. The Swami was hard at work in an instant on observations and theories, pointing out the cornice that ran along the nave from the entrance to the sanctuary, to the west, surmounted by the high trefoils of the two arches and also by a frieze; or showing us the panels containing cherubs; and before we had done, had picked up a couple of coins. The ride back through the sunset light was charming. From all these hours, the day before and the day after, fragments of talk come back to me.

"No nation, not Greek or another, has ever carried patriotism so far as the Japanese. They don't talk, they act — give up all for country. There are noblemen now living in Japan as peasants, having given up their princedoms without a word to create the unity of the empire.* And not one traitor could be found in the Japanese war. Think of that!"

Again, talking of the inability of some to express feeling, "Shy and reserved people, I have noticed, are always the most brutal when roused".

Again, evidently talking of the ascetic life and giving the rules of Brahmacharya — "The Sannyâsin who thinks of gold, to desire it, commits suicide", and so on.

JULY 24.

The darkness of night and the forest, a great pine-fire under the trees, two or three tents standing out white in the blackness, the forms and voices of many servants at their fires in the distance, and the Master with three disciples, such is the next picture. . . . Suddenly the Master turned to one member of the party and said, "You never mention your school now. Do you sometimes forget it? You see", he went on, "I have much to think of. One day I turn to Madras and think of the work there. Another day I give all my attention to America or England or Ceylon or Calcutta. Now I am thinking about yours".

At that moment the Master was called away to dine, and not till he came back could the confidence he had invited be given.

He listened to it all, the deliberate wish for a tentative plan, for smallness of beginnings, and the final inclination to turn away from the idea of inclusiveness and breadth and to base the whole of an educational effort on the religious life and on the worship of Shri Ramakrishna.

"Because you must be sectarian to get that enthusiasm, must you not?" he said. "You will make a sect in order to rise above all sects. Yes I understand".

There would be obvious difficulties. The thing sounded on this scale almost impossible for many reasons. But for the moment the only care need be to will rightly; and if the plan was sound, ways and means would be found to hand, that was sure.

He waited a little when he had heard it all, and then he said, "You ask me to criticize, but that I cannot do. For I regard you as inspired, quite as much inspired as I am. You know that's the difference between other religions and us. Other people believe their founder was inspired, and so do we. But so am I also, just as much so as he, and you as I; and after you, your girls and their disciples will be. So I shall help you to do what you think best".

Then he turned to Dhira Mata and to Jaya and spoke of the greatness of the trust that he would leave in the hands of that disciple who should represent the interests of women when he should go West, of how it would exceed the responsibility of work for men. And he added, turning to the worker of the party, "Yes, you have faith, but you have not that burning enthusiasm that you need. You want to be consumed [with] energy. Shiva! Shiva!" And so, invoking the blessing of Mahâdeva, he said goodnight and left us, and we presently went to bed.

The next morning we breakfasted early in one of the tents and went on to Achhabal. One of us had had a dream of old jewels lost and restored, all bright and new. But the Swami, smiling, stopped the tale, saying, "Never talk of a dream as good as that!"

At Achhabal we found more gardens of Jehangir. Was it here or at Verinag that had been his favourite resting-place?

We roamed about the gardens and bathed in a still pool opposite the Pathan Khan's Zenana, and then we lunched in the first garden and rode down in the afternoon to Islamabad.

As we sat at lunch, the Swami invited his daughter to go to the cave of Amarnath with him and be dedicated to Shiva. Dhira Mata smiled permission, and the next half-hour was given to pleasure and congratulations. It had already been arranged that we were all to go to Pahalgam and wait there for the Swami's return from the pilgrimage. So we reached the boats that evening, packed and wrote letters, and next day in the afternoon started for Bawan.

THE SHRINE OF AMARNATH

PLACE: Kashmir.

TIME: July 29 to August 8, 1898.

JULY 29.

From this time we saw very little of the Swami. He was full of enthusiasm about the pilgrimage and lived mostly on one meal a day, seeking no company much, save that of Sâdhus. Sometimes he would come to a camping-ground, beads in hand. Tonight two of the party went roaming about Bawan, which was like a village fair, all modified by a religious tendency centering in the sacred springs. Afterwards with Dhira Mata it was possible to go and listen at the tent door to the crowd of Hindi-speaking Sadhus who were plying the Swami with questions.

On Thursday we reached Pahalgam and camped down at the lower end of the valley. We found that the Swami had to encounter high opposition over the question of our admission at all. He was supported by the Naked Swamis, one of whom said, "It is true you have this strength, Swamiji, but you ought not to manifest it!" He yielded at the word. That afternoon, however, he took his daughter round the camp to be blessed, which really meant to distribute alms — and whether because he was looked upon as rich or because he was recognized as strong, the next day our tents were moved up to a lovely knoll at the head of the camp. . . .

JULY 30.

How beautiful was the route to the next halt, Chandanwari! There we camped on the edge of a ravine. It rained all afternoon, and I was visited by the Swami only for a five-minutes' chat. But I received endless touching little kindnesses from the servants and other pilgrims. . . .

. . . Close to Chandanwari the Swami insisted on my doing my first glacier on foot and took care to point out every detail of interest. A tremendous climb of some thousands of feet was the next experience. Then a long walk along a narrow path that twisted round mountain after mountain, and finally another steep climb. At the top of the first mountain, the ground was simply carpeted with edelweiss. Then the road passed five hundred feet above Sheshnag with its sulky water, and at last we camped in a cold damp place amongst the snow-peaks, 18,000 feet high. The firs were far below, and all afternoon and evening the coolies had to forage for juniper in all directions. The Tahsildar's, Swami's and my own tents were all close together, and in the evening a large fire was lighted in front. But it did not burn well, and many feet below lay the glacier. I did not see the Swami after we camped.

Panchatarani — the place of the five streams — was not nearly such a long march. Moreover, it was lower than Sheshnag, and the cold was dry and exhilarating. In front of the camp was a dry riverbed, all gravel, and through this ran five streams, in all of which it was the duty of the pilgrim to bathe, walking from one to the other in wet garments. Contriving to elude observation completely, Swamiji nevertheless fulfilled the law to the last letter in this respect. . . .

At these heights we often found ourselves in great circles of snow-peaks, those mute giants that have suggested to the Hindu mind the idea of the ash-encovered God.

AUGUST 2.

On Tuesday, August the 2nd, the great day of Amarnath, the first batch of pilgrims must have left the camp at two! We left by the light of the full moon. The sun rose as we went down the narrow valley. It was not too safe at this part of the journey. But when we left our Dandies and began to climb, the real danger began. . . . Then, having at last reached the bottom of the farther slope, we had to toil along the glacier mile after mile to the cave. . . .

The Swami, exhausted, had by this time fallen behind. . . . He came at last and with a word sent me on; he was going to bathe. Half an hour later he entered the cave. With a smile he knelt first at one end of the semi-circle, then at the other. The place was vast, large enough to hold a cathedral; and the great ice-Shiva, in a niche of deepest shadow, seemed as if throned on its own base. A few minutes passed, and then he turned to leave the cave.

To him, the heavens had opened. He had touched the feet of Shiva. He had had to hold himself tight, he said afterwards, lest he "should swoon away". But so great was his physical exhaustion that a doctor said afterwards that his heart ought to have stopped beating, but had undergone a permanent enlargement instead. How strangely near fulfilment had been those words of his Master, "When he realizes who and what he is, he will give up this body!"

"I have enjoyed it so much!" he said half an hour afterwards, as he sat on a rock above the stream-side, eating lunch with the kind Naked Swami and me. "I thought the ice Linga was Shiva Himself. And there were no thievish Brahmins, no trade, nothing wrong. It was all worship. I never enjoyed any religious place so much!"

Afterwards he would often tell of the overwhelming vision that had seemed to draw him almost into its vertex. He would talk of the poetry of the white ice-pillar; and it was he who suggested that the first discovery of the place had been by a party of shepherds, who had wandered far in search of their flocks one summer day and had entered the cave to find themselves before the unmelting ice, in the presence of the Lord Himself. He always said too that the grace of Amarnath had been granted to him there, not to die till he himself should give consent. And to me he said, "You do not now understand. But you have made the pilgrimage, and it will go on working. Causes must bring their effects. You will understand better afterwards. The effects will come".

How beautiful was the road by which we returned next morning to Pahalgam! We struck tents that night immediately on our return to them and camped later for the night in a snowy pass a whole stage further on. We paid a coolie a few annas here to push on with a letter; but when we actually arrived next afternoon we found that this had been quite unnecessary, for all morning long relays of pilgrims had been passing the tents and dropping in, in the most friendly manner, to give the others news of us and our impending arrival. In the morning we were up and on the way long before dawn. As the sun rose before us, while the moon went down behind, we passed above the Lake of Death, into which about forty pilgrims had been buried one year by an avalanche which their hymns had started. After this we came to the tiny goat-path down the face of a steep cliff by which we were able to shorten the return journey so much. This was little better than a scramble, and everyone had perforce to do it on foot. At the bottom the villagers had something like breakfast ready. Fires were burning, Chapatties baking, and tea was ready to be served out. From this time on parties of pilgrims would leave the main body at each parting of the ways, and the feeling of solidarity that had grown up amongst us all throughout the journey became gradually less and less.

That evening on the knoll above Pahalgam, where a great fire of pine-logs was lighted and Dhurries spread, we all sat and talked. Our friend the Naked Swami joined us and we had plenty of fun and nonsense, but presently, when all had gone save our own little party, we sat on with the great moon overhead and the towering snows and rushing rivers and the mountain-pines. And the Swami talked of Shiva and the cave and the great verge of vision.

AUGUST 8.

We started for Islamabad next day, and on Monday morning as we sat at breakfast, we were towed safely into Srinagar.

CHAPTER XI

AT SRINAGAR ON THE RETURN JOURNEY

PERSONS: The Swami Vivekananda and a party of Europeans and disciples, amongst whom were Dhira Mata, the "Steady Mother"; one whose name was Jaya; and Nivedita.

PLACE: Kashmir — Srinagar.

AUGUST 9.

At this time the Master was always talking of leaving us. And when I find the entry "The river is pure that flows, the monk is pure that goes", I know exactly what it means — the passionate outcry "I am always so much better when I have to undergo hardships and beg my bread", the longing for freedom and the touch of the common people, the picture of himself making a long circuit of the country on foot and meeting us again at Baramulla for the journey home.

His family of boat-people, whom he had staunchly befriended through two seasons, left us today. Afterwards he would refer to the whole incident of their connection with him as proof that even charity and patience could go too far.

AUGUST 10.

It was evening, and we all went out to pay some visit. On the return he called his disciple Nivedita to walk with him across the fields. His talk was all about the work and his intentions in it. He spoke of the inclusiveness of his conception of the country and its religions; of his own distinction as being solely in his desire to make Hinduism active, aggressive, a missionary faith; of "don't-touch-ism" as the only thing he repudiated. Then he talked with depth of feeling of the gigantic spirituality of many of those who were most orthodox. India wanted practicality, but she must never let go her hold on the old meditative life for that. "To be as deep as the ocean and as broad as the sky", Shri Ramakrishna has said, was the ideal. But this profound inner life in the soul encased within orthodoxy is the result of an accidental, not an essential, association. "And if we set ourselves right here, the world will be right, for are we not all one? Ramakrishna Paramahansa was alive to the depths of his being, yet on the outer plane he was perfectly active and capable."

And then of that critical question of the worship of his own master, "My own life is guided by the enthusiasm of that great personality, but others will decide for themselves how far this is true for them. Inspiration is not filtered out to the world through one man".

AUGUST 11.

There was occasion this day for the Swami to rebuke a member of this party for practising palmistry. It was a thing he said that everyone desired, yet all India despised and hated. Yes, he said, in reply to a little special pleading, even of character-reading he disapproved. "To tell you the truth, I should have thought even your incarnation more honest if he and his disciples had not performed miracles. Buddha unfrocked a monk for doing it." Later, talking on the subject to which he had now transferred his attention, he spoke with horror of the display of the least of it as sure to bring a terrible reflex.

AUGUST 12 AND 13.

The Swami had now taken a Brahmin cook. Very touching had been the arguments of the Amarnath Sâdhus against his willingness to let even a Mussulman cook for him. "Not in the land of Sikhs at least, Swamiji", they had said, and he had at last consented. But for the present he was worshipping his little Mohammedan boat-child as Umâ.

Her whole idea of love was service, and the day he left Kashmir she, tiny one, was fain to carry a tray of apples for him all the way to the tonga herself. He never forgot her, though he seemed quite indifferent at the time. In Kashmir itself he was fond of recalling the time when she saw a blue flower on the towing path and sitting down before it, and striking it this way and that, "was alone with that flower for twenty minutes".

There was a piece of land by the riverside on which grew three chennaars, towards which our thoughts turned with peculiar love at this time. For the Mahârâjâ was anxious to give it to Swamiji, and we all pictured it as a centre of work in the future — work which should realize the great idea of "by the people, for the people, as a joy to worker and to served".

In view of Indian feeling about a homestead blessed by women, it had been suggested that we should go and annex the site by camping there for a while. One of our party, moreover, had a personal wish for special quiet at this time. So it was decided that we should establish "a women's Math", as it were, before the Maharaja should require the land to confer it on the Swami. And this was possible because the spot was one of the minor camping grounds used by Europeans.

CHAPTER XII

THE CAMP UNDER THE CHENNAARS

PERSONS: The Swami Vivekananda and a party of Europeans and disciples, amongst whom were Dhira Mata, the "Steady Mother"; one whose name was Jaya; and Nivedita.

PLACE: Kashmir — Srinagar.

AUGUST 14.

It was Sunday morning and next afternoon the Swami was prevailed on to come up to tea with us in order to meet a European guest who seemed to be interested in the subject of Vedanta. He had been little inclined to concern himself with the matter, and I think his real motive in accepting was probably to afford his too-eager disciples an opportunity of convincing themselves of the utter futility of all such attempts as this. Certainly he took infinite pains with the enquirer and, as certainly, his trouble was wasted.

I remember his saying, amongst other things, "How I wish a law could be broken. If we were really able to break a law we should be free. What you call breaking the law is really only another way of keeping it". Then he tried to explain a little of the superconscious life. But his words fell on ears that could not hear.

AUGUST 16.

On Tuesday he came once more to our little camp to the midday meal. Towards the end it began to rain heavily enough to prevent his return, and he took up Tod's History of Rajasthan, which was lying near, and drifted into talk of Mirâ Bâi. "Two-thirds of the national ideas now in Bengal", he said, "have been gathered from this book".

But the episode of Mira Bai, the queen who would not be queen, but would wander the world with the lovers of Krishna, was always his favourite, even in Tod. He talked of how she preached submission, prayerfulness, and service to all in contrast to Chaitanya, who preached love to the name of God, and mercy to all.

Mira Bai was always one of his great patronesses. He would put into her story many threads with which one is now familiar in other connections, such as the conversation of two great robbers, and the end by an image of Krishna opening and swallowing her up. I heard him on one occasion recite and translate one of her songs to a woman. I wish I could remember the whole, but it began in his rendering with the words "Cling to it, cling to it, cling to it, Brother", and ended with "If Ankâ and Bankâ, the robber brothers; Sujan, the fell butcher; and the courtesan who playfully taught her parrot to repeat the name of the Lord Krishna were saved, there is hope for all".

Again, I have heard him tell that marvellous tale of Mira Bai in which on reaching Vrindaban, she sent for a certain famous Sâdhu.* He refused to go on the ground that women might not see men in Vrindaban. When this had happened three times, Mira Bai went to him herself saying that she had not known that there were such beings as men there; she had supposed that Krishna alone existed. And when she saw the astonished Sadhu, she unveiled herself completely, with the words "Fool, do you call yourself a man?" And as he fell prostrate before her with a cry of awe, she blessed him as a mother blesses her child.

Today the Swami passed on to the talk of Akbar and sang us a song of Tânsen, the poet-laureate of the emperor:

Seated on the throne, a god amongst men,
Thou, the Emperor of Delhi.
Blessed was the hour, the minute, the second,
When thou ascendest the throne,
O God amongst men,

Thou, the Lord of Delhi.
Long live thy crown, thy sceptre, thy throne,
O God amongst men,
Thou, Emperor of Delhi.
Live long, and remain awakened always,
O son of Humayoon,
Joy of the sun, God amongst men,
Thou, the Emperor of Delhi!

Then the talk passed to "our national hero" Pratâp Singh, who never could be brought to submission. Once indeed he was tempted to give in, at that moment when having fled from Chitore and the queen herself having cooked the scanty evening meal, a hungry cat swooped down on that cake of bread which was the children's portion, and the King of Mewar heard his babies cry for food. Then, indeed, the strong heart of the man failed him. The prospect of ease and relief tempted him. And for a moment he thought of ceasing from the unequal conflict and sending his alliance to Akbar, only for an instant. The Eternal Will protects its own. Even as the picture passed before his mind, there appeared a messenger with those despatches from a famous Rajput chief that said, "There is but one left amongst us who has kept his blood free from admixture with the alien. Let it never be said that his head has touched the dust". And the soul of Pratap drew in the long breath of courage and renewed faith; and he arose and swept the country of its foes and made his own way back to Udaipur.

Then there was the wonderful tale of the virgin princess Krishna Kumâri, whose hand was sought by various royal suitors at once. And when three armies were at the gate, her father could think of nothing better than to give her poison. The task was entrusted to her uncle, and he entered her room, as she lay asleep, to do it. But at the sight of her beauty and youth, remembering her too as a baby, the soldier's heart failed him, and he could not perform his task. But she was awakened by some sound, and being told what was proposed, stretched out her hand for the cup and drank the poison with a smile. And so on, and so on. For the stories of Rajput heroes in this kind are endless.

AUGUST 20.

On Saturday the Swami and he whose name was Soong went to the Dahl Lake to be the guests of the American consul and his wife for a couple of days. They returned on Monday, and on Tuesday the Swami came up to the new Math, as we called it, and had his boat moved close by ours so that he could be with us for a few days before leaving for Ganderbal.

CONCLUDING WORDS OF THE EDITOR

From Ganderbal the Swami returned by the first week of October and announced his intention of leaving for the plains in a few days for urgent reasons. The European party had already made plans to visit the principal cities of northern India, e.g., Lahore, Delhi, Agra, etc., as soon as the winter set in. So both parties decided to return together and came to Lahore. From here the Swami and his party returned to Calcutta, leaving the rest to carry out their plans for sight-seeing in northern India.

PRACTICAL VEDANTA

PART I

(Delivered in London, 10th November 1896)

I have been asked to say something about the practical position of the Vedanta philosophy. As I have told you, theory is very good indeed, but how are we to carry it into practice? If it be absolutely impracticable, no theory is of any value whatever, except as intellectual gymnastics. The Vedanta, therefore, as a religion must be intensely practical. We must be able to carry it out in every part of our lives. And not only this, the fictitious differentiation between religion and the life of the world must vanish, for the Vedanta teaches oneness — one life throughout. The ideals of religion must cover the whole field of life, they must enter into all our thoughts, and more and more into practice. I will enter gradually on the practical side as we proceed. But this series of lectures is intended to be a basis, and so we must first apply ourselves to theories and understand how they are worked out, proceeding from forest caves to busy streets and cities; and one peculiar feature we find is that many of these thoughts have been the outcome, not of retirement into forests, but have emanated from persons whom we expect to lead the busiest lives — from ruling monarchs.

Shvetaketu was the son of Âruni, a sage, most probably a recluse. He was brought up in the forest, but he went to the city of the Panchâlas and appeared at the court of the king, Pravâhana Jaivali. The king asked him, "Do you know how beings depart hence at death?" "No, sir." "Do you know how they return hither?" "No, sir." "Do you know the way of the fathers and the way of the gods?" "No, sir." Then the king asked other questions. Shvetaketu could not answer them. So the king told him that he knew nothing. The boy went back to his father, and the father admitted that he himself could not answer these questions. It was not that he was unwilling to answer these questions. It was not that he was unwilling to teach the boy, but he did not know these things. So he went to the king and asked to be taught these secrets. The king said that these things had been hitherto known only among kings; the priests never knew them. He, however, proceeded to teach him what he desired to know. In various Upanishads we find that this Vedanta philosophy is not the outcome of meditation in the forests only, but that the very best parts of it were thought out and expressed by brains which were busiest in the everyday affairs of life. We cannot conceive any man busier than an absolute monarch, a man who is ruling over millions of people, and yet, some of these rulers were deep thinkers.

Everything goes to show that this philosophy must be very practical; and later on, when we come to the Bhagavad-Gita — most of you, perhaps, have read it, it is the best commentary we have on the Vedanta philosophy — curiously enough the scene is laid on the battlefield, where Krishna teaches this philosophy to Arjuna; and the doctrine which stands out luminously in every page of the Gita is intense activity, but in the midst of it, eternal calmness. This is the secret of work, to attain which is the goal of the Vedanta. Inactivity, as we understand it in the sense of passivity, certainly cannot be the goal. Were it so, then the walls around us would be the most intelligent; they are inactive. Clods of earth, stumps of trees, would be the greatest sages in the world; they are inactive. Nor does inactivity become activity when it is combined with passion. Real activity, which is the goal of Vedanta, is combined with eternal calmness, the calmness which cannot be ruffled, the balance of mind which is never disturbed, whatever happens. And we all know from our experience in life that that is the best attitude for work.

I have been asked many times how we can work if we do not have the passion which we generally feel for work. I also thought in that way years ago, but as I am growing older, getting more experience, I find it is not true. The less passion there is, the better we work. The calmer we are, the better for us, and the more the amount of work we can do. When we let loose our feelings, we waste so much energy, shatter our nerves, disturb our minds, and accomplish very little work. The energy which ought to have gone out as work is spent as mere feeling, which counts for nothing. It is only when the mind is very calm and collected that the whole of its energy is spent in doing good work. And if you read the lives of the great workers which the world has produced, you will find that they were wonderfully calm men. Nothing, as it were, could throw them off their balance. That is why the man who becomes angry never does a great amount of work, and the man whom nothing can make angry accomplishes so much. The man who gives way to anger, or hatred, or any other passion, cannot work; he only breaks himself to pieces, and does nothing practical. It is the calm, forgiving, equable, well-balanced mind that does the greatest amount of work.

The Vedanta preaches the ideal; and the ideal, as we know, is always far ahead of the real, of the practical, as we may call it. There are two tendencies in human nature: one to harmonise the ideal with the life, and the other to elevate the life to the ideal. It is a great thing to understand this, for the former tendency is the temptation of our lives. I think that I can only do a certain class of work. Most of it, perhaps, is bad; most of it, perhaps, has a motive power of passion behind it, anger, or greed, or selfishness. Now if any man comes to preach to me a certain ideal, the first step towards which is to give up selfishness, to give up self-enjoyment, I think that is impractical. But when a man brings an ideal which can be reconciled with my selfishness, I am glad at once and jump at it. That is the ideal for me. As the word "orthodox" has been manipulated into various forms, so has been the word "practical". "My doxy is orthodoxy; your doxy is heterodoxy." So with practicality. What I think is practical, is to me the only practicality in the world. If I am a shopkeeper, I think shopkeeping the only practical pursuit in the world. If I am a thief, I think stealing is the best means of being practical; others are not practical. You see how we all use this word practical for things we like and can do. Therefore I will ask you to understand that Vedanta, though it is intensely practical, is always so in the sense of the ideal. It does not preach an impossible ideal, however high it be, and it is high enough for an ideal. In one word, this ideal is that you are divine, "Thou art That". This is the essence of Vedanta; after all its ramifications and intellectual gymnastics, you know the human soul to be pure and omniscient, you see that such superstitions as birth and death would be entire nonsense when spoken of in connection with the soul. The soul was never born and will never die, and all these ideas that we are going to die and are afraid to die are mere superstitions. And all such ideas as that we can do this or cannot do that are superstitions. We can do everything. The Vedanta teaches men to have faith in themselves first. As certain religions of the world say that a man who does not believe in a Personal God outside of himself is an atheist, so the Vedanta says, a man who does not believe in himself is an atheist. Not believing in the glory of our own soul is what the Vedanta calls atheism. To many this is, no doubt, a terrible idea; and most of us think that this ideal can never be reached; but the Vedanta insists that it can be realised by every one. There is neither man nor woman or child, nor difference of race or sex, nor anything that stands as a bar to the realisation of the ideal, because Vedanta shows that it is realised already, it is already there.

All the powers in the universe are already ours. It is we who have put our hands before our eyes and cry that it is dark. Know that there is no darkness around us. Take the hands away and there is the light which was from the beginning. Darkness never existed, weakness never existed. We who are fools cry that we are weak; we who are fools cry that we are impure. Thus Vedanta not only insists that the ideal is practical, but that it has been so all the time; and this Ideal, this Reality, is our own nature. Everything else that you see is false, untrue. As soon as you say, "I am a little mortal being," you are saying something which is not true, you are giving the lie to yourselves, you are hypnotising yourselves into something vile and weak and wretched.

The Vedanta recognises no sin, it only recognises error. And the greatest error, says the Vedanta, is to say that you are weak, that you are a sinner, a miserable creature, and that you have no power and you cannot do this and that. Every time you think in that way, you, as it were, rivet one more link in the chain that binds you down, you add one more layer of hypnotism on to your own soul. Therefore, whosoever thinks he is weak is wrong, whosoever thinks he is impure is wrong, and is throwing a bad thought into the world. This we must always bear in mind that in the Vedanta there is no attempt at reconciling the present life — the hypnotised life, this false life which we have assumed — with the ideal; but this false life must go, and the real life which is always existing must manifest itself, must shine out. No man becomes purer and purer, it is a matter of greater manifestation. The veil drops away, and the native purity of the soul begins to manifest itself. Everything is ours already — infinite purity, freedom, love, and power.

The Vedanta also says that not only can this be realised in the depths of forests or caves, but by men in all possible conditions of life. We have seen that the people who discovered these truths were neither living in caves nor forests, nor following the ordinary vocations of life, but men who, we have every reason to believe, led the busiest of lives, men who had to command armies, to sit on thrones, and look to the welfare of millions — and all these, in the days of absolute monarchy, and not as in these days when a king is to a great extent a mere figurehead. Yet they could find time to think out all these thoughts, to realise them, and to teach them to humanity. How much more then should it be practical for us whose lives, compared with theirs, are lives of leisure? That we cannot realise them is a shame to us, seeing that we are comparatively free all the time, having very little to do. My requirements are as nothing compared with those of an ancient absolute monarch. My wants are as nothing compared with the demands of Arjuna on the battlefield of Kurukshetra, commanding a huge army; and yet he could find time in the midst of the din and turmoil of battle to talk the highest philosophy and to carry it into his life also. Surely we ought to be able to do as much in this life of ours — comparatively free, easy, and comfortable. Most of us here have more time than we think we have, if we really want to use it for good. With the amount of freedom we have we can attain to two hundred ideals in this life, if we will, but we must not degrade the ideal to the actual. One of the most insinuating things comes to us in the shape of persons who apologise for our mistakes and teach us how to make special excuses for all our foolish wants and foolish desires; and we think that their ideal is the only ideal we need have. But it is not so. The Vedanta teaches no such thing. The actual should be reconciled to the ideal, the present life should be made to coincide with life eternal.

For you must always remember that the one central ideal of Vedanta is this oneness. There are no two in anything, no two lives, nor even two different kinds of life for the two worlds. You will find the Vedas speaking of heavens and things like that at first; but later on, when they come to the highest ideals of their philosophy, they brush away all these things. There is but one life, one world, one existence. Everything is that One, the difference is in degree and not in kind. The difference between our lives is not in kind. The Vedanta entirely denies such ideas as that animals are separate from men, and that they were made and created by God to be used for our food.

Some people have been kind enough to start an antivivisection society. I asked a member, "Why do you think, my friend, that it is quite lawful to kill animals for food, and not to kill one or two for scientific experiments?" He replied, "Vivisection is most horrible, but animals have been given to us for food." Oneness includes all animals. If man's life is immortal, so also is the animal's. The difference is only in degree and not in kind. The amoeba and I are the same, the difference is only in degree; and from the standpoint of the highest life, all these differences vanish. A man may see a great deal of difference between grass and a little tree, but if you mount very high, the grass and the biggest tree will appear much the same. So, from the standpoint of the highest ideal, the lowest animal and the highest man are the same. If you believe there is a God, the animals and the highest creatures must be the same. A God who is partial to his children called men, and cruel to his children called brute beasts, is worse than a demon. I would rather die a hundred times than worship such a God. My whole life would be a fight with such a God. But there is no difference, and those who say there is, are irresponsible, heartless people who do not know. Here is a case of the word practical used in a wrong sense. I myself may not be a very strict vegetarian, but I understand the ideal. When I eat meat I know it is wrong. Even if I am bound to eat it under certain circumstances, I know it is cruel. I must not drag my ideal down to the actual and apologise for my weak conduct in this way. The ideal is not to eat flesh, not to injure any being, for all animals are my brothers. If you can think of them as your brothers, you have made a little headway towards the brotherhood of all souls, not to speak of the brotherhood of man! That is child's play. You generally find that this is not very acceptable to many, because it teaches them to give up the actual, and go higher up to the ideal. But if you bring out a theory which is reconciled with their present conduct, they regard it as entirely practical.

There is this strongly conservative tendency in human nature: we do not like to move one step forward. I think of mankind just as I read of persons who become frozen in snow; all such, they say, want to go to sleep, and if you try to drag them up, they say, "Let me sleep; it is so beautiful to sleep in the snow", and they die there in that sleep. So is our nature. That is what we are doing all our life, getting frozen from the feet upwards, and yet wanting to sleep. Therefore you must struggle towards the ideal, and if a man comes who wants to bring that ideal down to your level, and teach a religion that does not carry that highest ideal, do not listen to him. To me that is an impracticable religion. But if a man teaches a religion which presents the highest ideal, I am ready for him. Beware when anyone is trying to apologise for sense vanities and sense weaknesses. If anyone wants to preach that way to us, poor, sense-bound clods of earth as we have made ourselves by following that teaching, we shall never progress. I have seen many of these things, have had some experience of the world, and my country is the land where religious sects grow like mushrooms. Every year new sects arise. But one thing I have marked, that it is only those that never want to reconcile the man of flesh with the man of truth that make progress. Wherever there is this false idea of reconciling fleshly vanities with the highest ideals, of dragging down God to the level of man, there comes decay. Man should not be degraded to worldly slavery, but should be raised up to God.

At the same time, there is another side to the question. We must not look down with contempt on others. All of us are going towards the same goal. The difference between weakness and strength is one of degree; the difference between virtue and vice is one of degree, the difference between heaven and hell is one of degree, the difference between life and death is one of degree, all differences in this world are of degree, and not of kind, because oneness is the secret of everything. All is One, which manifests Itself, either as thought, or life, or soul, or body, and the difference is only in degree. As such, we have no right to look down with contempt upon those who are not developed exactly in the same degree as we are. Condemn none; if you can stretch out a helping hand, do so. If you cannot, fold your hands, bless your brothers, and let them go their own way. Dragging down and condemning is not the way to work. Never is work accomplished in that way. We spend our energies in condemning others. Criticism and condemnation is a vain way of spending our energies, for in the long run we come to learn that all are seeing the same thing, are more or less approaching the same ideal, and that most of our differences are merely differences of expression.

Take the idea of sin. I was telling you just now the Vedantic idea of it, and the other idea is that man is a sinner. They are practically the same, only the one takes the positive and the other the negative side. One shows to man his strength and the other his weakness. There may be weakness, says the Vedanta, but never mind, we want to grow. Disease was found out as soon as man was born. Everyone knows his disease; it requires no one to tell us what our diseases are. But thinking all the time that we are diseased will not cure us — medicine is necessary. We may forget anything outside, we may try to become hypocrites to the external world, but in our heart of hearts we all know our weaknesses. But, says the Vedanta, being reminded of weakness does not help much; give strength, and strength does not come by thinking of weakness all the time. The remedy for weakness is not brooding over weakness, but thinking of strength. Teach men of the strength that is already within them. Instead of telling them they are sinners, the Vedanta takes the opposite position, and says, "You are pure and perfect, and what you call sin does not belong to you." Sins are very low degrees of Self-manifestation; manifest your Self in a high degree. That is the one thing to remember; all of us can do that. Never say, "No", never say, "I cannot", for you are infinite. Even time and space are as nothing compared with your nature. You can do anything and everything, you are almighty.

These are the principles of ethics, but we shall now come down lower and work out the details. We shall see how this Vedanta can be carried into our everyday life, the city life, the country life, the national life, and the home life of every nation. For, if a religion cannot help man wherever he may be, wherever he stands, it is not of much use; it will remain only a theory for the chosen few. Religion, to help mankind, must be ready and able to help him in whatever condition he is, in servitude or in freedom, in the depths of degradation or on the heights of purity; everywhere, equally, it should be able to come to his aid. The principles of Vedanta, or the ideal of religion, or whatever you may call it, will be fulfilled by its capacity for performing this great function.

The ideal of faith in ourselves is of the greatest help to us. If faith in ourselves had been more extensively taught and practiced, I am sure a very large portion of the evils and miseries that we have would have vanished. Throughout the history of mankind, if any motive power has been more potent than another in the lives of all great men and women, it is that of faith in themselves. Born with the consciousness that they were to be great, they became great. Let a man go down as low as possible; there must come a time when out of sheer desperation he will take an upward curve and will learn to have faith in himself. But it is better for us that we should know it from the very first. Why should we have all these bitter experiences in order to gain faith in ourselves? We can see that all the difference between man and man is owing to the existence or non-existence of faith in himself. Faith in ourselves will do everything. I have experienced it in my own life, and am still doing so; and as I grow older that faith is becoming stronger and stronger. He is an atheist who does not believe in himself. The old religions said that he was an atheist who did not believe in God. The new religion says that he is the atheist who does not believe in himself. But it is not selfish faith because the Vedanta, again, is the doctrine of oneness. It means faith in all, because you are all. Love for yourselves means love for all, love for animals, love for everything, for you are all one. It is the great faith which will make the world better. I am sure of that. He is the highest man who can say with truth, "I know all about myself." Do you know how much energy, how many powers, how many forces are still lurking behind that frame of yours? What scientist has known all that is in man? Millions of years have passed since man first came here, and yet but one infinitesimal part of his powers has been manifested. Therefore, you must not say that you are weak. How do you know what possibilities lie behind that degradation on the surface? You know but little of that which is within you. For behind you is the ocean of infinite power and blessedness.

"This Âtman is first to be heard of." Hear day and night that you are that Soul. Repeat it to yourselves day and night till it enters into your very veins, till it tingles in every drop of blood, till it is in your flesh and bone. Let the whole body be full of that one ideal, "I am the birthless, the deathless, the blissful, the omniscient, the omnipotent, ever-glorious Soul." Think on it day and night; think on it till it becomes part and parcel of your life. Meditate upon it, and out of that will come work. "Out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh," and out of the fullness of the heart the hand worketh also. Action will come. Fill yourselves with the ideal; whatever you do, think well on it. All your actions will be magnified, transformed, deified, by the very power of the thought. If matter is powerful, thought is omnipotent. Bring this thought to bear upon your life, fill yourselves with the thought of your almightiness, your majesty, and your glory. Would to God no superstitions had been put into your head! Would to God we had not been surrounded from our birth by all these superstitious influences and paralysing ideas of our weakness and vileness! Would to God that mankind had had an easier path through which to attain to the noblest and highest truths! But man had to pass through all this; do not make the path more difficult for those who are coming after you.

These are sometimes terrible doctrines to teach. I know people who get frightened at these ideas, but for those who want to be practical, this is the first thing to learn. Never tell yourselves or others that you are weak. Do good if you can, but do not injure the world. You know in your inmost heart that many of your limited ideas, this humbling of yourself and praying and weeping to imaginary beings are superstitions. Tell me one case where these prayers have been answered. All the answers that came were from your own hearts. You know there are no ghosts, but no sooner are you in the dark than you feel a little creepy sensation. That is so because in our childhood we have had all these fearful ideas put into our heads. But do not teach these things to others through fear of society and public opinion, through fear of incurring the hatred of friends, or for fear of losing cherished superstitions. Be masters of all these. What is there to be taught more in religion than the oneness of the universe and faith in one's self? All the works of mankind for thousands of years past have been towards this one goal, and mankind is yet working it out. It is your turn now and you already know the truth. For it has been taught on all sides. Not only philosophy and psychology, but materialistic sciences have declared it. Where is the scientific man today who fears to acknowledge the truth of this oneness of the universe? Who is there who dares talk of many worlds? All these are superstitions. There is only one life and one world, and this one life and one world is appearing to us as manifold. This manifoldness is like a dream. When you dream, one dream passes away and another comes. You do not live in your dreams. The dreams come one after another, scene after scene unfolds before you. So it is in this world of ninety per cent misery and ten per cent happiness. Perhaps after a while it will appear as ninety per cent happiness, and we shall call it heaven, but a time comes to the sage when the whole thing vanishes, and this world appears as God Himself, and his own soul as God. It is not therefore that there are many worlds, it is not that there are many lives. All this manifoldness is the manifestation of that One. That One is manifesting Himself as many, as matter, spirit, mind, thought, and everything else. It is that One, manifesting Himself as many. Therefore the first step for us to take is to teach the truth to ourselves and to others.

Let the world resound with this ideal, and let superstitions vanish. Tell it to men who are weak and persist in telling it. You are the Pure One; awake and arise, O mighty one, this sleep does not become you. Awake and arise, it does not befit you. Think not that you are weak and miserable. Almighty, arise and awake, and manifest your own nature. It is not fitting that you think yourself a sinner. It is not fitting that you think yourself weak. Say that to the world, say it to yourselves, and see what a practical result comes, see how with an electric flash everything is manifested, how everything is changed. Tell that to mankind, and show them their power. Then we shall learn how to apply it in our daily lives.

To be able to use what we call Viveka (discrimination), to learn how in every moment of our lives, in every one of our actions, to discriminate between what is right and wrong, true and false, we shall have to know the test of truth, which is purity, oneness. Everything that makes for oneness is truth. Love is truth, and hatred is false, because hatred makes for multiplicity. It is hatred that separates man from man; therefore it is wrong and false. It is a disintegrating power; it separates and destroys.

Love binds, love makes for that oneness. You become one, the mother with the child, families with the city, the whole world becomes one with the animals. For love is Existence, God Himself; and all this is the manifestation of that One Love, more or less expressed. The difference is only in degree, but it is the manifestation of that One Love throughout. Therefore in all our actions we have to judge whether it is making for diversity or for oneness. If for diversity we have to give it up, but if it makes for oneness we are sure it is good. So with our thoughts; we have to decide whether they make for disintegration, multiplicity, or for oneness, binding soul to soul and bringing one influence to bear. If they do this, we will take them up, and if not, we will throw them off as criminal.

The whole idea of ethics is that it does not depend on anything unknowable, it does not teach anything unknown, but in the language of the Upanishad, "The God whom you worship as an unknown God, the same I preach unto thee." It is through the Self that you know anything. I see the chair; but to see the chair, I have first to perceive myself and then the chair. It is in and through the Self that the chair is perceived. It is in and through the Self that you are known to me, that the whole world is known to me; and therefore to say this Self is unknown is sheer nonsense. Take off the Self and the whole universe vanishes. In and through the Self all knowledge comes. Therefore it is the best known of all. It is yourself, that which you call I. You may wonder how this I of me can be the I of you. You may wonder how this limited I can be the unlimited Infinite, but it is so. The limited is a mere fiction. The Infinite has been covered up, as it were, and a little of It is manifesting as the I. Limitation can never come upon the unlimited; it is a fiction. The Self is known, therefore, to every one of us — man, woman, or child — and even to animals. Without knowing Him we can neither live nor move, nor have our being; without knowing this Lord of all, we cannot breathe or live a second. The God of the Vedanta is the most known of all and is not the outcome of imagination.

If this is not preaching a practical God, how else could you teach a practical God? Where is there a more practical God than He whom I see before me — a God omnipresent, in every being, more real than our senses? For you are He, the Omnipresent God Almighty, the Soul of your souls, and if I say you are not, I tell an untruth. I know it, whether at all times I realise it or not. He is the Oneness, the Unity of all, the Reality of all life and all existence.

These ideas of the ethics of Vedanta have to be worked out in detail, and, therefore, you must have patience. As I have told you, we want to take the subject in detail and work it up thoroughly, to see how the ideas grow from very low ideals, and how the one great Ideal of oneness has developed and become shaped into the universal love; and we ought to study these in order to avoid dangers. The world cannot find time to work it up from the lowest steps. But what is the use of our standing on higher steps if we cannot give the truth to others coming afterwards? Therefore, it is better to study it in all its workings; and first, it is absolutely necessary to clear the intellectual portion, although we know that intellectuality is almost nothing; for it is the heart that is of most importance. It is through the heart that the Lord is seen, and not through the intellect. The intellect is only the street-cleaner, cleansing the path for us, a secondary worker, the policeman; but the policeman is not a positive necessity for the workings of society. He is only to stop disturbances, to check wrong-doing, and that is all the work required of the intellect. When you read intellectual books, you think when you have mastered them, "Bless the Lord that I am out of them", because the intellect is blind and cannot move of itself, it has neither hands nor feet. It is feeling that works, that moves with speed infinitely superior to that of electricity or anything else. Do you feel? — that is the question. If you do, you will see the Lord: It is the feeling that you have today that will be intensified, deified, raised to the highest platform, until it feels everything, the oneness in everything, till it feels God in itself and in others. The intellect can never do that. "Different methods of speaking words, different methods of explaining the texts of books, these are for the enjoyment of the learned, not for the salvation of the soul" (Vivekachudâmani, 58).

Those of you who have read Thomas a Kempis know how in every page he insists on this, and almost every holy man in the world has insisted on it. Intellect is necessary, for without it we fall into crude errors and make all sorts of mistakes. Intellect checks these; but beyond that, do not try to build anything upon it. It is an inactive, secondary help; the real help is feeling, love. Do you feel for others? If you do, you are growing in oneness. If you do not feel for others, you may be the most intellectual giant ever born, but you will be nothing; you are but dry intellect, and you will remain so. And if you feel, even if you cannot read any book and do not know any language, you are in the right way. The Lord is yours.

Do you not know from the history of the world where the power of the prophets lay? Where was it? In the intellect? Did any of them write a fine book on philosophy, on the most intricate ratiocinations of logic? Not one of them. They only spoke a few words. Feel like Christ and you will be a Christ; feel like Buddha and you will be a Buddha. It is feeling that is the life, the strength, the vitality, without which no amount of intellectual activity can reach God. Intellect is like limbs without the power of locomotion. It is only when feeling enters and gives them motion that they move and work on others. That is so all over the world, and it is a thing which you must always remember. It is one of the most practical things in Vedantic morality, for it is the teaching of the Vedanta that you are all prophets, and all must be prophets. The book is not the proof of your conduct, but you are the proof of the book. How do you know that a book teaches truth? Because you are truth and feel it. That is what the Vedanta says. What is the proof of the Christs and Buddhas of the world? That you and I feel like them. That is how you and I understand that they were true. Our prophet-soul is the proof of their prophet-soul. Your godhead is the proof of God Himself. If you are not a prophet, there never has been anything true of God. If you are not God, there never was any God, and never will be. This, says the Vedanta, is the ideal to follow. Every one of us will have to become a prophet, and you are that already. Only know it. Never think there is anything impossible for the soul. It is the greatest heresy to think so. If there is sin, this is the only sin — to say that you are weak, or others are weak.

"He is the Soul of the Universe; He is Immortal; His is the Rulership; He is the All-knowing, the All-pervading, the Protector of the Universe, the Eternal Ruler. None else is there efficient to govern the world eternally. He who at the beginning of creation projected Brahmâ (i.e. the universal consciousness), and who delivered the Vedas unto him — seeking liberation I go for refuge unto that effulgent One, whose light turns the understanding towards the Âtman."

Shvetâshvatara-Upanishad, VI. 17-18.

DEFINITION OF BHAKTI

Bhakti-Yoga is a real, genuine search after the Lord, a search beginning, continuing, and ending in love. One single moment of the madness of extreme love to God brings us eternal freedom. "Bhakti", says Nârada in his explanation of the Bhakti-aphorisms, "is intense love to God"; "When a man gets it, he loves all, hates none; he becomes satisfied for ever"; "This love cannot be reduced to any earthly benefit", because so long as worldly desires last, that kind of love does not come; "Bhakti is greater than karma, greater than Yoga, because these are intended for an object in view, while Bhakti is its own fruition, its own means and its own end."

Bhakti has been the one constant theme of our sages. Apart from the special writers on Bhakti, such as Shândilya or Narada, the great commentators on the Vyâsa-Sutras, evidently advocates of knowledge (Jnâna), have also something very suggestive to say about love. Even when the commentator is anxious to explain many, if not all, of the texts so as to make them import a sort of dry knowledge, the Sutras, in the chapter on worship especially, do not lend themselves to be easily manipulated in that fashion.

There is not really so much difference between knowledge (Jnana) and love (Bhakti) as people sometimes imagine. We shall see, as we go on, that in the end they converge and meet at the same point. So also is it with Râja-Yoga, which when pursued as a means to attain liberation, and not (as unfortunately it frequently becomes in the hands of charlatans and mystery-mongers) as an instrument to hoodwink the unwary, leads us also to the same goal.

The one great advantage of Bhakti is that it is the easiest and the most natural way to reach the great divine end in view; its great disadvantage is that in its lower forms it oftentimes degenerates into hideous fanaticism. The fanatical crew in Hinduism, or Mohammedanism, or Christianity, have always been almost exclusively recruited from these worshippers on the lower planes of Bhakti. That singleness of attachment (Nishthâ) to a loved object, without which no genuine love can grow, is very often also the cause of the denunciation of everything else. All the weak and undeveloped minds in every religion or country have only one way of loving their own ideal, i.e. by hating every other ideal. Herein is the explanation of why the same man who is so lovingly attached to his own ideal of God, so devoted to his own ideal of religion, becomes a howling fanatic as soon as he sees or hears anything of any other ideal. This kind of love is somewhat like the canine instinct of guarding the master's property from intrusion; only, the instinct of the dog is better than the reason of man, for the dog never mistakes its master for an enemy in whatever dress he may come before it. Again, the fanatic loses all power of judgment. Personal considerations are in his case of such absorbing interest that to him it is no question at all what a man says — whether it is right or wrong; but the one thing he is always particularly careful to know is who says it. The same man who is kind, good, honest, and loving to people of his own opinion, will not hesitate to do the vilest deeds when they are directed against persons beyond the pale of his own religious brotherhood.

But this danger exists only in that stage of Bhakti which is called the preparatory (Gauni). When Bhakti has become ripe and has passed into that form which is called the supreme (Parâ), no more is there any fear of these hideous manifestations of fanaticism; that soul which is overpowered by this higher form of Bhakti is too near the God of Love to become an instrument for the diffusion of hatred.

It is not given to all of us to be harmonious in the building up of our characters in this life: yet we know that that character is of the noblest type in which all these three — knowledge and love and Yoga — are harmoniously fused. Three things are necessary for a bird to fly — the two wings and the tail as a rudder for steering. Jnana (Knowledge) is the one wing, Bhakti (Love) is the other, and Yoga is the tail that keeps up the balance. For those who cannot pursue all these three forms of worship together in harmony and take up, therefore, Bhakti alone as their way, it is necessary always to remember that forms and ceremonials, though absolutely necessary for the progressive soul, have no other value than taking us on to that state in which we feel the most intense love to God.

There is a little difference in opinion between the teachers of knowledge and those of love, though both admit the power of Bhakti. The Jnanis hold Bhakti to be an instrument of liberation, the Bhaktas look upon it both as the instrument and the thing to be attained. To my mind this is a distinction without much difference. In fact, Bhakti, when used as an instrument, really means a lower form of worship, and the higher form becomes inseparable from the lower form of realisation at a later stage. Each seems to lay a great stress upon his own peculiar method of worship, forgetting that with perfect love true knowledge is bound to come even unsought, and that from perfect knowledge true love is inseparable.

Bearing this in mind let us try to understand what the great Vedantic commentators have to say on the subject. In explaining the Sutra Âvrittirasakridupadeshât (Meditation is necessary, that having been often enjoined.), Bhagavân Shankara says, "Thus people say, 'He is devoted to the king, he is devoted to the Guru'; they say this of him who follows his Guru, and does so, having that following as the one end in view. Similarly they say, 'The loving wife meditates on her loving husband'; here also a kind of eager and continuous remembrance is meant." This is devotion according to Shankara.

"Meditation again is a constant remembrance (of the thing meditated upon) flowing like an unbroken stream of oil poured out from one vessel to another. When this kind of remembering has been attained (in relation to God) all bandages break. Thus it is spoken of in the scriptures regarding constant remembering as a means to liberation. This remembering again is of the same form as seeing, because it is of the same meaning as in the passage, 'When He who is far and near is seen, the bonds of the heart are broken, all doubts vanish, and all effects of work disappear' He who is near can be seen, but he who is far can only be remembered. Nevertheless the scripture says that he have to see Him who is near as well as Him who, is far, thereby indicating to us that the above kind of remembering is as good as seeing. This remembrance when exalted assumes the same form as seeing. . . . Worship is constant remembering as may be seen from the essential texts of scriptures. Knowing, which is the same as repeated worship, has been described as constant remembering. . . . Thus the memory, which has attained to the height of what is as good as direct perception, is spoken of in the Shruti as a means of liberation. 'This Atman is not to be reached through various sciences, nor by intellect, nor by much study of the Vedas. Whomsoever this Atman desires, by him is the Atman attained, unto him this Atman discovers Himself.' Here, after saying that mere hearing, thinking and meditating are not the means of attaining this Atman, it is said, 'Whom this Atman desires, by him the Atman is attained.' The extremely beloved is desired; by whomsoever this Atman is extremely beloved, he becomes the most beloved of the Atman. So that this beloved may attain the Atman, the Lord Himself helps. For it has been said by the Lord: 'Those who are constantly attached to Me and worship Me with love — I give that direction to their will by which they come to Me.' Therefore it is said that, to whomsoever this remembering, which is of the same form as direct perception, is very dear, because it is dear to the Object of such memory perception, he is desired by the Supreme Atman, by him the Supreme Atman is attained. This constant remembrance is denoted by the word Bhakti." So says Bhagavân Râmânuja in his commentary on the Sutra Athâto Brahma-jijnâsâ (Hence follows a dissertation on Brahman.).

In commenting on the Sutra of Patanjali, Ishvara pranidhânâdvâ, i.e. "Or by the worship of the Supreme Lord" — Bhoja says, "Pranidhâna is that sort of Bhakti in which, without seeking results, such as sense-enjoyments etc., all works are dedicated to that Teacher of teachers." Bhagavan Vyâsa also, when commenting on the same, defines Pranidhana as "the form of Bhakti by which the mercy of the Supreme Lord comes to the Yogi, and blesses him by granting him his desires". According to Shândilya, "Bhakti is intense love to God." The best definition is, however, that given by the king of Bhaktas, Prahlâda:

त्वामनुस्मरतः सा मे हृदयान्मासर्पतु ॥

"That deathless love which the ignorant have for the fleeting objects of the senses — as I keep meditating on Thee — may not that love slip away from my heart!" Love! For whom? For the Supreme Lord Ishvara. Love for any other being, however great cannot be Bhakti; for, as Ramanuja says in his Shri Bhâshya, quoting an ancient Âchârya, i.e. a great teacher:

आब्रह्मस्तम्बपर्यन्ताः जगदन्तर्व्यवस्थिताः ।
प्राणिनः कर्मजनितसंसारवशवर्तिनः ॥
यत्तस्ततो न ते ध्याने ध्यानिनामुपकारकाः ।
अविद्यान्तर्गतास्सर्वे ते हि संसारगोचराः ॥

"From Brahmâ to a clump of grass, all things that live in the world are slaves of birth and death caused by Karma; therefore they cannot be helpful as objects of meditation, because they are all in ignorance and subject to change." In commenting on the word Anurakti used by Shandilya, the commentator Svapneshvara says that it means Anu, after, and Rakti, attachment; i.e. the attachment which comes after the knowledge of the nature and glory of God; else a blind attachment to any one, e.g. to wife or children, would be Bhakti. We plainly see, therefore, that Bhakti is a series or succession of mental efforts at religious realisation beginning with ordinary worship and ending in a supreme intensity of love for Ishvara.

CHAPTER I

THE PREPARATORY RENUNCIATION

We have now finished the consideration of what may be called the preparatory Bhakti, and are entering on the study of the Parâ-Bhakti or supreme devotion. We have to speak of a preparation to the practice of this Para-Bhakti. All such preparations are intended only for the purification of the soul. The repetition of names, the rituals, the forms, and the symbols, all these various things are for the purification of the soul. The greatest purifier among all such things, a purifier without which no one can enter the regions of this higher devotion (Para-Bhakti), is renunciation. This frightens many; yet, without it, there cannot be any spiritual growth. In all our Yogas this renunciation is necessary. This is the stepping-stone and the real centre and the real heart of all spiritual culture — renunciation. This is religion — renunciation.

When the human soul draws back from the things of the world and tries to go into deeper things; when man, the spirit which has here somehow become concretised and materialised, understands that he is thereby going to be destroyed and to be reduced almost into mere matter, and turns his face away from matter — then begins renunciation, then begins real spiritual growth. The Karma-Yogi's renunciation is in the shape of giving up all the fruits of his action; he is not attached to the results of his labour; he does not care for any reward here or hereafter. The Râja-Yogi knows that the whole of nature is intended for the soul to acquire experience, and that the result of all the experiences of the soul is for it to become aware of its eternal separateness from nature. The human soul has to understand and realise that it has been spirit, and not matter, through eternity, and that this conjunction of it with matter is and can be only for a time. The Raja-Yogi learns the lesson of renunciation through his own experience of nature. The Jnâna-Yogi has the harshest of all renunciations to go through, as he has to realise from the very first that the whole of this solid-looking nature is all an illusion. He has to understand that all that is any kind of manifestation of power in nature belongs to the soul, and not to nature. He has to know from the very start that all knowledge and all experience are in the soul and not in nature; so he has at once and by the sheer force of rational conviction to tear himself away from all bondage to nature. He lets nature and all that belongs to her go, he lets them vanish and tries to stand alone!

Of all renunciations, the most natural, so to say, is that of the Bhakti-Yogi. Here there is no violence, nothing to give up, nothing to tear off, as it were, from ourselves, nothing from which we have violently to separate ourselves. The Bhakta's renunciation is easy, smooth flowing, and as natural as the things around us. We see the manifestation of this sort of renunciation, although more or less in the form of caricatures, every day around us. A man begins to love a woman; after a while he loves another, and the first woman he lets go. She drops out of his mind smoothly, gently, without his feeling the want of her at all. A woman loves a man; she then begins to love another man, and the first one drops off from her mind quite naturally. A man loves his own city, then he begins to love his country, and the intense love for his little city drops off smoothly, naturally. Again, a man learns to love the whole world; his love for his country, his intense, fanatical patriotism drops off without hurting him, without any manifestation of violence. An uncultured man loves the pleasures of the senses intensely; as he becomes cultured, he begins to love intellectual pleasures, and his sense-enjoyments become less and less. No man can enjoy a meal with the same gusto or pleasure as a dog or a wolf, but those pleasures which a man gets from intellectual experiences and achievements, the dog can never enjoy. At first, pleasure is in association with the lowest senses; but as soon as an animal reaches a higher plane of existence, the lower kind of pleasures becomes less intense. In human society, the nearer the man is to the animal, the stronger is his pleasure in the senses; and the higher and the more cultured the man is, the greater is his pleasure in intellectual and such other finer pursuits. So when a man gets even higher than the plane of the intellect, higher than that of mere thought, when he gets to the plane of spirituality and of divine inspiration, he finds there a state of bliss, compared with which all the pleasures of the senses, or even of the intellect, are as nothing. When the moon shines brightly, all the stars become dim; and when the sun shines, the moon herself becomes dim. The renunciation necessary for the attainment of Bhakti is not obtained by killing anything, but just comes in as naturally as in the presence of an increasingly stronger light, the less intense ones become dimmer and dimmer until they vanish away completely. So this love of the pleasures of the senses and of the intellect is all made dim and thrown aside and cast into the shade by the love of God Himself.

That love of God grows and assumes a form which is called Para-Bhakti or supreme devotion. Forms vanish, rituals fly away, books are superseded; images, temples, churches, religions and sects, countries and nationalities — all these little limitations and bondages fall off by their own nature from him who knows this love of God. Nothing remains to bind him or fetter his freedom. A ship, all of a sudden, comes near a magnetic rock, and its iron bolts and bars are all attracted and drawn out, and the planks get loosened and freely float on the water. Divine grace thus loosens the binding bolts and bars of the soul, and it becomes free. So in this renunciation auxiliary to devotion, there is no harshness, no dryness no struggle, nor repression nor suppression. The Bhakta has not to suppress any single one of his emotions, he only strives to intensify them and direct them to God.

FIRST PUBLIC LECTURE IN THE EAST

(Delivered in Colombo)

After his memorable work in the West, Swami Vivekananda landed at Colombo on the afternoon of January 15, 1897, and was given a right royal reception by the Hindu community there. The following address of welcome was then presented to him:

SRIMAT VIVEKANANDA SWAMI

REVERED SIR,

In pursuance of a resolution passed at a public meeting of the Hindus of the city of Colombo, we beg to offer you a hearty welcome to this Island. We deem it a privilege to be the first to welcome you on your return home from your great mission in the West.

We have watched with joy and thankfulness the success with which the mission has, under God's blessing, been crowned. You have proclaimed to the nations of Europe and America the Hindu ideal of a universal religion, harmonising all creeds, providing spiritual food for each soul according to its needs, and lovingly drawing it unto God. You have preached the Truth and the Way, taught from remote ages by a succession of Masters whose blessed feet have walked and sanctified the soil of India, and whose gracious presence and inspiration have made her, through all her vicissitudes, the Light of the World.

To the inspiration of such a Master, Shri Ramakrishna Paramahansa Deva, and to your self-sacrificing zeal, Western nations owe the priceless boon of being placed in living contact with the spiritual genius of India, while to many of our own countrymen, delivered from the glamour of Western civilisation, the value of Our glorious heritage has been brought home.

By your noble work and example you have laid humanity under an obligation difficult to repay, and you have shed fresh lustre upon our Motherland. We pray that the grace of God may continue to prosper you and your work, and

We remain, Revered Sir,
Yours faithfully,
for and on behalf of the Hindus of Colombo,
P. COOMARA SWAMY,
*Member of the Legislative Council of Ceylon,
Chairman of the Meeting.*
A. KULAVEERASINGHAM, Secretary.

Colombo, January, 1897.

The Swami gave a brief reply, expressing his appreciation of the kind welcome he had received. He took advantage of the opportunity to point out that the demonstration had not been made in honour of a great politician, or a great soldier, or a millionaire, but of a begging Sannyâsin, showing the tendency of the Hindu mind towards religion. He urged the necessity of keeping religion as the backbone of the national life if the nation were to live, and disclaimed any personal character for the welcome he had received, but insisted upon its being the recognition of a principle.

On the evening of the 16th the Swami gave the following public lecture in the Floral Hall:

me, but from the cheers, the goodwill, the blessings that have followed my path in the West from this our very beloved, most sacred, dear Motherland. Some good has been done, no doubt, in the West, but specially to myself; for what before was the result of an emotional nature, perhaps, has gained the certainty of conviction and attained the power and strength of demonstration. Formerly I thought as every Hindu thinks, and as the Hon. President has just pointed out to you, that this is the Punya Bhumi, the land of Karma. Today I stand here and say, with the conviction of truth, that it is so. If there is any land on this earth that can lay claim to be the blessed Punya Bhumi, to be the land to which all souls on this earth must come to account for Karma, the land to which every soul that is wending its way Godward must come to attain its last home, the land where humanity has attained its highest towards gentleness, towards generosity, towards purity, towards calmness, above all, the land of introspection and of spirituality — it is India. Hence have started the founders of religions from the most ancient times, deluging the earth again and again with the pure and perennial waters of spiritual truth. Hence have proceeded the tidal waves of philosophy that have covered the earth, East or West, North or South, and hence again must start the wave which is going to spiritualise the material civilisation of the world. Here is the life-giving water with which must be quenched the burning fire of materialism which is burning the core of the hearts of millions in other lands. Believe me, my friends, this is going to be.

So much I have seen, and so far those of you who are students of the history of races are already aware of this fact. The debt which the world owes to our Motherland is immense. Taking country with country, there is not one race on this earth to which the world owes so much as to the patient Hindu, the mild Hindu. "The mild Hindu" sometimes is used as an expression of reproach; but if ever a reproach concealed a wonderful truth, it is in the term, "the mild Hindu", who has always been the blessed child of God. Civilisations have arisen in other parts of the world. In ancient times and in modern times, great ideas have emanated from strong and great races. In ancient and in modern times, wonderful ideas have been carried forward from one race to another. In ancient and in modern times, seeds of great truth and power have been cast abroad by the advancing tides of national life; but mark you, my friends, it has been always with the blast of war trumpets and with the march of embattled cohorts. Each idea had to be soaked in a deluge of blood. Each idea had to wade through the blood of millions of our fellow-beings. Each word of power had to be followed by the groans of millions, by the wails of orphans, by the tears of widows. This, in the main, other nations have taught; but India has for thousands of years peacefully existed. Here activity prevailed when even Greece did not exist, when Rome was not thought of, when the very fathers of the modern Europeans lived in the forests and painted themselves blue. Even earlier, when history has no record, and tradition dares not peer into the gloom of that intense past, even from then until now, ideas after ideas have marched out from her, but every word has been spoken with a blessing behind it and peace before it. We, of all nations of the world, have never been a conquering race, and that blessing is on our head, and therefore we live.

There was a time when at the sound of the march of big Greek battalions the earth trembled. Vanished from off the face of the earth, with not every a tale left behind to tell, gone is that ancient land of the Greeks. There was a time when the Roman Eagle floated over everything worth having in this world; everywhere Rome's power was felt and pressed on the head of humanity; the earth trembled at the name of Rome. But the Capitoline Hill is a mass of ruins, the spider weaves its web where the Caesars ruled. There have been other nations equally glorious that have come and gone, living a few hours of exultant and exuberant dominance and of a wicked national life, and then vanishing like ripples on the face of the waters. Thus have these nations made their mark on the face of humanity. But we live, and if Manu came back today he would not be bewildered, and would not find himself in a foreign land. The same laws are here, laws adjusted and thought out through thousands and thousands of years; customs, the outcome of the acumen of ages and the experience of centuries, that seem to be eternal; and as the days go by, as blow after blow of misfortune has been delivered upon them, such blows seem to have served one purpose only, that of making them stronger and more constant.

And to find the centre of all this, the heart from which the blood flows, the mainspring of the national life, believe me when I say after my experience of the world, that it is here.

To the other nations of the world, religion is one among the many occupations of life. There is politics, there are the enjoyments of social life, there is all that wealth can buy or power can bring, there is all that the senses can enjoy; and among all these various occupations of life and all this searching after something which can give yet a little more whetting to the cloyed senses — among all these, there is perhaps a little bit of religion. But here, in India, religion is the one and the only occupation of life. How many of you know that there has been a Sino-Japanese War? Very few of you, if any. That there are tremendous political movements and socialistic movements trying to transform Western society, how many of you know? Very few indeed, if any. But that there was a Parliament of Religions in America, and that there was a Hindu Sannyâsin sent over there, I am astonished to find that even the cooly knows of it. That shows the way the wind blows, where the national life is. I used to read books written by globe-trotting travellers, especially foreigners, who deplored the ignorance of the Eastern masses, but I found out that it was partly true and at the same time partly untrue. If you ask a ploughman in England, or America, or France, or Germany to what party he belongs, he can tell you whether he belongs to the Radicals or the Conservatives, and for whom he is going to vote. In America he will say whether he is Republican or Democrat, and he even knows something about the silver question. But if you ask him about his religion, he will tell you that he goes to church and belongs to a certain denomination. That is all he knows, and he thinks it is sufficient.

Now, when we come to India, if you ask one of our ploughmen, "Do you know anything about politics?" He will reply, "What is that?" He does not understand the socialistic movements, the relation between capital and labour, and all that; he has never heard of such things in his life, he works hard and earns his bread. But you ask, "What is your religion?" he replies, "Look here, my friend, I have marked it on my forehead." He can give you a good hint or two on questions of religion. That has been my experience. That is our nation's life.

Individuals have each their own peculiarities, and each man has his own method of growth, his own life marked out for him by the infinite past life, by all his past Karma as we Hindus say. Into this world he comes with all the past on him, the infinite past ushers the present, and the way in which we use the present is going to make the future. Thus everyone born into this world has a bent, a direction towards which he must go, through which he must live, and what is true of the individual is equally true of the race. Each race, similarly, has a peculiar bent, each race has a peculiar raison d'être, each race has a peculiar mission to fulfil in the life of the world. Each race has to make its own result, to fulfil its own mission. Political greatness or military power is never the mission of our race; it never was, and, mark my words, it never will be. But there has been the other mission given to us, which is to conserve, to preserve, to accumulate, as it were, into a dynamo, all the spiritual energy of the race, and that concentrated energy is to pour forth in a deluge on the world whenever circumstances are propitious. Let the Persian or the Greek, the Roman, the Arab, or the Englishman march his battalions, conquer the world, and link the different nations together, and the philosophy and spirituality of India is ever ready to flow along the new-made channels into the veins of the nations of the world. The Hindu's calm brain must pour out its own quota to give to the sum total of human progress. India's gift to the world is the light spiritual.

Thus, in the past, we read in history that whenever there arose a great conquering nation uniting the different races of the world, binding India with the other races, taking her out, as it were, from her loneliness and from her aloofness from the rest of the world into which she again and again cast herself, that whenever such a state has been brought about, the result has been the flooding of the world with Indian spiritual ideas. At the beginning of this century, Schopenhauer, the great German philosopher, studying from a not very clear translation of the Vedas made from an old translation into Persian and thence by a young Frenchman into Latin, says, "In the whole world there is no study so beneficial and so elevating as that of the Upanishads. It has been the solace of my life, it will be the solace of my death." This great German sage foretold that "The world is about to see a revolution in thought more extensive and more powerful than that which was witnessed by the Renaissance of Greek Literature", and today his predictions are coming to pass. Those who keep their eyes open, those who understand the workings in the minds of different nations of the West, those who are thinkers and study the different nations, will find the immense change that has been produced in the tone, the procedure, in the methods, and in the literature of the world by this slow, never-ceasing permeation of Indian thought.

But there is another peculiarity, as I have already hinted to you. We never preached our thoughts with fire and sword. If there is one word in the English language to represent the gift of India to the world, if there is one word in the English language to express the effect which the literature of India produces upon mankind, it is this one word, "fascination". It is the opposite of anything that takes you suddenly; it throws on you, as it were, a charm imperceptibly. To many, Indian thought, Indian manners; Indian customs, Indian philosophy, Indian literature are repulsive at the first sight; but let them persevere, let them read, let them become familiar with the great principles underlying these ideas, and it is ninety-nine to one that the charm will come over them, and fascination will be the result. Slow and silent, as the gentle dew that falls in the morning, unseen and unheard yet producing a most tremendous result, has been the work of the calm, patient, all-suffering spiritual race upon the world of thought.

Once more history is going to repeat itself. For today, under the blasting light of modern science, when old and apparently strong and invulnerable beliefs have been shattered to their very foundations, when special claims laid to the allegiance of mankind by different sects have been all blown into atoms and have vanished into air, when the sledge-hammer blows of modern antiquarian researches are pulverising like masses of porcelain all sorts of antiquated orthodoxies, when religion in the West is only in the hands of the ignorant and the knowing ones look down with scorn upon anything belonging to religion, here comes to the fore the philosophy of India, which displays the highest religious aspirations of the Indian mind, where the grandest philosophical facts have been the practical spirituality of the people. This naturally is coming to the rescue, the idea of the oneness of all, the Infinite, the idea of the Impersonal, the wonderful idea of the eternal soul of man, of the unbroken continuity in the march of beings, and the infinity of the universe. The old sects looked upon the world as a little mud-puddle and thought that time began but the other day. It was there in our old books, and only there that the grand idea of the infinite range of time, space, and causation, and above all, the infinite glory of the spirit of man governed all the search for religion. When the modern tremendous theories of evolution and conservation of energy and so forth are dealing death blows to all sorts of crude theologies, what can hold any more the allegiance of cultured humanity but the most wonderful, convincing, broadening, and ennobling ideas that can be found only in that most marvellous product of the soul of man, the wonderful voice of God, the Vedanta?

At the same time, I must remark that what I mean by our religion working upon the nations outside of India comprises only the principles, the background, the foundation upon which that religion is built. The detailed workings, the minute points which have been worked out through centuries of social necessity, little ratiocinations about manners and customs and social well-being, do not rightly find a place in the category of religion. We know that in our books a clear distinction is made between two sets of truths. The one set is that which abides for ever, being built upon the nature of man, the nature of the soul, the soul's relation to God, the nature of God, perfection, and so on; there are also the principles of cosmology, of the infinitude of creation, or more correctly speaking — projection, the wonderful law of cyclical procession, and so on — these are the eternal principles founded upon the universal laws in nature. The other set comprises the minor laws which guided the working of our everyday life. They belong more properly to the Purânas, to the Smritis, and not to the Shrutis. These have nothing to do with the other principles. Even in our own nation these minor laws have been changing all the time. Customs of one age, of one Yuga, have not been the customs of another, and as Yuga comes after Yuga, they will still have to change. Great Rishis will appear and lead us to customs and manners that are suited to new environments.

The great principles underlying all this wonderful, infinite, ennobling, expansive view of man and God and the world have been produced in India. In India alone man has not stood up to fight for a little tribal God, saying "My God is true and yours is not true; let us have a good fight over it." It was only here that such ideas did not occur as fighting for little gods. These great underlying principles, being based upon the eternal nature of man, are as potent today for working for the good of the human race as they were thousands of years ago, and they will remain so, so long as this earth remains, so long as the law of Karma remains, so long as we are born as individuals and have to work out our own destiny by our individual power.

And above all, what India has to give to the world is this. If we watch the growth and development of religions in different races, we shall always find this that each tribe at the beginning has a god of its own. If the tribes are allied to each other, these gods will have a generic name, as for example, all the Babylonian gods had. When the Babylonians were divided into many races, they had the generic name of Baal, just as the Jewish races had different gods with the common name of Moloch; and at the same time you will find that one of these tribes becomes superior to the rest, and lays claim to its own king as the king over all. Therefrom it naturally follows that it also wants to preserve its own god as the god of all the races. Baal-Merodach, said the Babylonians, was the greatest god; all the others were inferior. Moloch-Yahveh was the superior over all other Molochs. And these questions had to be decided by the fortunes of battle. The same struggle was here also. In India the same competing gods had been struggling with each other for supremacy, but the great good fortune of this country and of the world was that there came out in the midst of the din and confusion a voice which declared एकं सद्दिप्रा बहुधा वदन्ति — "That which exists is One; sages call It by various names." It is not that Shiva is superior to Vishnu, not that Vishnu is everything and Shiva is nothing, but it is the same one whom you call either Shiva, or Vishnu, or by a hundred other names. The names are different, but it is the same one. The whole history of India you may read in these few words. The whole history has been a repetition in massive language, with tremendous power, of that one central doctrine. It was repeated in the land till it had entered into the blood of the nation, till it began to tingle with every drop of blood that flowed in its veins, till it became one with the life, part and parcel of the material of which it was composed; and thus the land was transmuted into the most wonderful land of toleration, giving the right to welcome the various religions as well as all sects into the old mother-country.

And herein is the explanation of the most remarkable phenomenon that is only witnessed here — all the various sects, apparently hopelessly contradictory, yet living in such harmony. You may be a dualist, and I may be a monist. You may believe that you are the eternal servant of God, and I may declare that I am one with God Himself; yet both of us are good Hindus. How is that possible? Read then एकं सद्दिप्रा बहुधा वदन्ति — "That which exists is One; sages call It by various names." Above all others, my countrymen, this is the one grand truth that we have to teach to the world. Even the most educated people of other countries turn up their noses at an angle of forty-five degrees and call our religion idolatry. I have seen that; and they never stopped to think what a mass of superstition there was in their own heads. It is still so everywhere, this tremendous sectarianism, the low narrowness of the mind. The thing which a man has is the only thing worth having; the only life worth living is his own little life of dollar-worship and mammon-worship; the only little possession worth having is his own property, and nothing else. If he can manufacture a little clay nonsense or invent a machine, that is to be admired beyond the greatest possessions. That is the case over the whole world in spite of education and learning. But education has yet to be in the world, and civilisation — civilisation has begun nowhere yet. Ninety-nine decimal nine per cent of the human race are more or less savages even now. We may read of these things in books, and we hear of toleration in religion and all that, but very little of it is there yet in the world; take my experience for that. Ninety-nine per cent do not even think of it. There is tremendous religious persecution yet in every country in which I have been, and the same old objections are raised against learning anything new. The little toleration that is in the world, the little sympathy that is yet in the world for religious thought, is practically here in the land of the Aryan, and nowhere else. It is here that Indians build temples for Mohammedans and Christians; nowhere else. If you go to other countries and ask Mohammedans or people of other religions to build a temple for you, see how they will help. They will instead try to break down your temple and you too if they can. The one great lesson, therefore, that the world wants most, that the world has yet to learn from India, is the idea not only of toleration, but of sympathy. Well has it been said in the Mahimnah-stotra: "As the different rivers, taking their start from different mountains, running straight or crooked, at last come unto the ocean, so, O Shiva, the different paths which men take through different tendencies, various though they appear, crooked or straight, all lead unto These." Though they may take various roads, all are on the ways. Some may run a little crooked, others may run straight, but at last they will all come unto the Lord, the One. Then and then alone, is your Bhakti of Shiva complete when you not only see Him in the Linga, but you see Him everywhere. He is the sage, he is the lover of Hari who sees Hari in everything and in everyone. If you are a real lover of Shiva, you must see Him in everything and in everyone. You must see that every worship is given unto Him whatever may be the name or the form; that all knees bending towards the Caaba, or kneeling in a Christian church, or in a Buddhist temple are kneeling to Him whether they know it or not, whether they are conscious of it or not; that in whatever name or form they are offered, all these flowers are laid at His feet; for He is the one Lord of all, the one Soul of all souls. He knows infinitely better what this world wants than you or I. It is impossible that all difference can cease; it must exist; without variation life must cease. It is this clash, the differentiation of thought that makes for light, for motion, for everything. Differentiation, infinitely contradictory, must remain, but it is not necessary that we should hate each other therefore; it is not necessary therefore that we should fight each other.

Therefore we have again to learn the one central truth that was preached only here in our Motherland, and that has to be preached once more from India. Why? Because not only is it in our books, but it runs through every phase of our national literature and is in the national life. Here and here alone is it practiced every day, and any man whose eyes are open can see that it is practiced here and here alone. Thus we have to teach religion. There are other and higher lessons that India can teach, but they are only for the learned. The lessons of mildness, gentleness, forbearance, toleration, sympathy, and brotherhood, everyone may learn, whether man, woman, or child, learned or unlearned, without respect of race, caste, or creed. "They call Thee by various names; Thou art One."

INDIA: HER RELIGION AND CUSTOMS

(Salem Evening News, August 29, 1893)

In spite of the warm weather of yesterday afternoon, a goodly number of members of the Thought and Work club, with guests, gathered in Wesley chapel to meet Swami Vive Kanonda,* a Hindoo monk, now travelling in this country, and to listen to an informal address from that gentleman, principally upon the religion of the Hindoos as taught by their Vedar (Vedas.) or sacred books. He also spoke of caste, as simply a social division and in no way dependent upon their religion.

The poverty of the majority of the masses was strongly dwelt upon. India with an area much smaller than the United States, contains twenty three hundred millions [sic] of people, and of these, three hundred millions [sic] earn wages, averaging less than fifty cents per month. In some instances the people in whole districts of the country subsist for months and even years, wholly upon flowers (Mohua.), produced by a certain tree which when boiled are edible.

In other districts the men eat rice only, the women and children must satisfy their hunger with the water in which the rice is cooked. A failure of the rice crop means famine. Half the people live upon one meal a day, the other half know not whence the next meal will come. According to Swami Vive Kyonda, the need of the people of India is not more religion, or a better one, but as he expresses it, "practicality", and it is with the hope of interesting the American people in this great need of the suffering, starving millions that he has come to this country.

He spoke at some length of the condition of his people and their religion. In course of his speech he was frequently and closely questioned by Dr. F. A. Gardner and Rev. S. F. Nobbs of the Central Baptist Church. He said the missionaries had fine theories there and started in with good ideas, but had done nothing for the industrial condition of the people. He said Americans, instead of sending out missionaries to train them in religion, would better send some one out to give them industrial education.

Asked whether it was not a fact that Christians assisted the people of India in times of distress, and whether they did not assist in a practical way by training schools, the speaker replied that they did it sometimes, but really it was not to their credit for the law did not allow them to attempt to influence people at such times.

He explained the bad condition of woman in India on the ground that Hindoo men had such respect for woman that it was thought best not to allow her out. The Hindoo women were held in such high esteem that they were kept in seclusion. He explained the old custom of women being burned on the death of their husbands, on the ground that they loved them so that they could not live without the husband. They were one in marriage and must be one in death.

He was asked about the worship of idols and the throwing themselves in front of the juggernaut car, and said one must not blame the Hindoo people for the car business, for it was the act of fanatics and mostly of lepers.

The speaker explained his mission in his country to be to organize monks for industrial purposes, that they might give the people the benefit of this industrial education and thus elevate them and improve their condition.

This afternoon Vive Kanonda will speak on the children of India to any children or young people who may be pleased to listen to him at 166 North street, Mrs. Woods kindly offering her garden for that purpose. In person he is a fine looking man, dark but comely, dressed in a long robe of a yellowish red colour confined at the waist with a cord, and wearing on his head a yellow turban. Being a monk he has no caste, and may eat and drink with anyone.

(Daily Gazette, August 29, 1893)

Rajah* Swami Vivi Rananda of India was the guest of the Thought and Work Club of Salem yesterday afternoon in the Wesley church.

A large number of ladies and gentlemen were present and shook hands, American fashion, with the distinguished monk. He wore an orange colored gown, with red sash, yellow turban, with the end hanging down on one side, which he used for a handkerchief, and congress shoes.

He spoke at some length of the condition of his people and their religion. In course of his speech he was frequently and closely questioned by Dr. F. A. Gardner and Rev. S. F. Nobbs of the Central Baptist church. He said the missionaries had fine theories there and started in with good ideas, but had done nothing for the industrial condition of the people. He said Americans, instead of sending out missionaries to train them in religion, would better send someone out to give them industrial education.

Speaking at some length of the relations of men and women, he said the husbands of India never lied and never persecuted, and named several other sins they never committed.

Asked whether it was not a fact that Christians assisted the people of India in times of distress, and whether they did not assist in a practical way by training schools, the speaker replied that they did it sometimes, but really it was not to their credit, for the law did not allow them to attempt to influence people at such times.

He explained the bad condition of women in India on the ground that Hindoo men had such respect for woman that it was thought best not to allow her out. The Hindoo women were held in such high esteem that they were kept in seclusion. He explained the old custom of women being burned on the death of their husbands, on the ground that they loved them so that they could not live without the husband. They were one in marriage and must be one in death.

He was asked about the worship of idols and the throwing themselves in front of the juggernaut car, and said one must not blame the Hindoo people for the car business, for it was the act of fanatics and mostly of lepers.

As for the worship of idols he said he had asked Christians what they thought of when they prayed, and some said they thought of the church, others of G-O-D. Now his people thought of the images. For the poor people idols were necessary. He said that in ancient times, when their religion first began, women were distinguished for spiritual genius and great strength of mind. In spite of this, as he seemed to acknowledge, the women of the present day had degenerated. They thought of nothing but eating and drinking, gossip and scandal.

The speaker explained his mission in his country to be to organize monks for industrial purposes, that they might give the people the benefit of this industrial education and thus to elevate them and improve their condition.

The learned Monk from India who is spending a few days in this city, will speak in the East Church Sunday evening at 7-30. Swami (Rev.) Viva Kananda preached in the Episcopal church at Annisquam last Sunday evening, by invitation of the pastor and Professor Wright of Harvard, who has shown him great kindness.

On Monday night he leaves for Saratoga, where he will address the Social Science association. Later on he will speak before the Congress in Chicago. Like all men who are educated in the higher Universities of India, Viva Kananda speaks English easily and correctly. His simple talk to the children on Tuesday last concerning the games, schools, customs and manners of children in India was valuable and most interesting. His kind heart was touched by the statement of a little miss that her teacher had "licked her so hard that she almost broke her finger". . . . As Viva Kananda, like all monks, must travel over his land preaching the religion of truth, chastity and the brotherhood of man, no great good could pass unnoticed, or terrible wrong escape his eyes. He is extremely generous to all persons of other faiths, and has only kind words for those who differ from him.

Rajah Swami Vivi Rananda of India spoke at the East church Sunday evening, on the religion of India and the poor of his native land. A good audience assembled but it was not so large as the importance of the subject or the interesting speaker deserved. The monk was dressed in his native costume and spoke about forty minutes. The great need of India today, which is not the India of fifty years ago, is, he said, missionaries to educate the people industrially and socially and not religiously. The Hindoos have all the religion they want, and the Hindoo religion is the most ancient in the world. The monk is a very pleasant speaker and held the close attention of his audience.

. . . The platform was next occupied by Vive Kananda, a Monk of Madras, Hindoostan, who preached throughout India. He is interested in social science and is an intelligent and interesting speaker. He spoke on Mohammedan rule in India.

The program for today embraces some very interesting topics, especially the paper on "Bimetallism", by Col. Jacob Greene of Hartford. Vive Kananda will again speak, this time on the Use of Silver in India.

THE RAMAYANA

(Delivered at the Shakespeare Club, Pasadena, California, January 31, 1900)

There are two great epics in the Sanskrit language, which are very ancient. Of course, there are hundreds of other epic poems. The Sanskrit language and literature have been continued down to the present day, although, for more than two thousand years, it has ceased to be a spoken language. I am now going to speak to you of the two most ancient epics, called the Râmâyana and the Mahâbhârata. They embody the manners and customs, the state of society, civilisation, etc., of the ancient Indians. The oldest of these epics is called Ramayana, "The Life of Râma". There was some poetical literature before this — most of the Vedas, the sacred books of the Hindus, are written in a sort of metre — but this book is held by common consent in India as the very beginning of poetry.

The name of the poet or sage was Vâlmiki. Later on, a great many poetical stories were fastened upon that ancient poet; and subsequently, it became a very general practice to attribute to his authorship very many verses that were not his. Notwithstanding all these interpolations, it comes down to us as a very beautiful arrangement, without equal in the literatures of the world.

There was a young man that could not in any way support his family. He was strong and vigorous and, finally, became a highway robber; he attacked persons in the street and robbed them, and with that money he supported his father, mother, wife, and children. This went on continually, until one day a great saint called Nârada was passing by, and the robber attacked him. The sage asked the robber, "Why are you going to rob me? It is a great sin to rob human beings and kill them. What do you incur all this sin for?" The robber said, "Why, I want to support my family with this money." "Now", said the sage, "do you think that they take a share of your sin also?" "Certainly they do," replied the robber. "Very good," said the sage, "make me safe by tying me up here, while you go home and ask your people whether they will share your sin in the same way as they share the money you make." The man accordingly went to his father, and asked, "Father, do you know how I support you?" He answered, "No, I do not." "I am a robber, and I kill persons and rob them." "What! you do that, my son? Get away! You outcast!" He then went to his mother and asked her, "Mother, do you know how I support you?" "No," she replied. "Through robbery and murder." "How horrible it is!" cried the mother. "But, do you partake in my sin?" said the son. "Why should I? I never committed a robbery," answered the mother. Then, he went to his wife and questioned her, "Do you know how I maintain you all?" "No," she responded. "Why, I am a highwayman," he rejoined, "and for years have been robbing people; that is how I support and maintain you all. And what I now want to know is, whether you are ready to share in my sin." "By no means. You are my husband, and it is your duty to support me."

The eyes of the robber were opened. "That is the way of the world — even my nearest relatives, for whom I have been robbing, will not share in my destiny." He came back to the place where he had bound the sage, unfastened his bonds, fell at his feet, recounted everything and said, "Save me! What can I do?" The sage said, "Give up your present course of life. You see that none of your family really loves you, so give up all these delusions. They will share your prosperity; but the moment you have nothing, they will desert you. There is none who will share in your evil, but they will all share in your good. Therefore worship Him who alone stands by us whether we are doing good or evil. He never leaves us, for love never drags down, knows no barter, no selfishness."

Then the sage taught him how to worship. And this man left everything and went into a forest. There he went on praying and meditating until he forgot himself so entirely that the ants came and built ant-hills around him and he was quite unconscious of it. After many years had passed, a voice came saying, "Arise, O sage! " Thus aroused he exclaimed, "Sage? I am a robber!" "No more 'robber'," answered the voice, "a purified sage art thou. Thine old name is gone. But now, since thy meditation was so deep and great that thou didst not remark even the ant-hills which surrounded thee, henceforth, thy name shall be Valmiki — 'he that was born in the ant-hill'." So, he became a sage.

And this is how he became a poet. One day as this sage, Valmiki, was going to bathe in the holy river Ganga, he saw a pair of doves wheeling round and round, and kissing each other. The sage looked up and was pleased at the sight, but in a second an arrow whisked past him and killed the male dove. As the dove fell down on the ground, the female dove went on whirling round and round the dead body of its companion in grief. In a moment the poet became miserable, and looking round, he saw the hunter. "Thou art a wretch," he cried, "without the smallest mercy! Thy slaying hand would not even stop for love!" "What is this? What am I saying?" the poet thought to himself, "I have never spoken in this sort of way before." And then a voice came: "Be not afraid. This is poetry that is coming out of your mouth. Write the life of Rama in poetic language for the benefit of the world." And that is how the poem first began. The first verse sprang out of pits from the mouth of Valmiki, the first poet. And it was after that, that he wrote the beautiful Ramayana, "The Life of Rama".

There was an ancient Indian town called Ayodhyâ — and it exists even in modern times. The province in which it is still located is called Oudh, and most of you may have noticed it in the map of India. That was the ancient Ayodhya. There, in ancient times, reigned a king called Dasharatha. He had three queens, but the king had not any children by them. And like good Hindus, the king and the queens, all went on pilgrimages fasting and praying, that they might have children and, in good time, four sons were born. The eldest of them was Rama.

Now, as it should be, these four brothers were thoroughly educated in all branches of learning. To avoid future quarrels there was in ancient India a custom for the king in his own lifetime to nominate his eldest son as his successor, the Yuvarâja, young king, as he is called.

Now, there was another king, called Janaka, and this king had a beautiful daughter named Sitâ. Sita was found in a field; she was a daughter of the Earth, and was born without parents. The word "Sita" in ancient Sanskrit means the furrow made by a plough. In the ancient mythology of India you will find persons born of one parent only, or persons born without parents, born of sacrificial fire, born in the field, and so on — dropped from the clouds as it were. All those sorts of miraculous birth were common in the mythological lore of India.

Sita, being the daughter of the Earth, was pure and immaculate. She was brought up by King Janaka. When she was of a marriageable age, the king wanted to find a suitable husband for her.

There was an ancient Indian custom called Svayamvara, by which the princesses used to choose husbands. A number of princes from different parts of the country were invited, and the princess in splendid array, with a garland in her hand, and accompanied by a crier who enumerated the distinctive claims of each of the royal suitors, would pass in the midst of those assembled before her, and select the prince she liked for her husband by throwing the garland of flowers round his neck. They would then be married with much pomp and grandeur.

There were numbers of princes who aspired for the hand of Sita; the test demanded on this occasion was the breaking of a huge bow, called Haradhanu. All the princes put forth all their strength to accomplish this feat, but failed. Finally, Rama took the mighty bow in his hands and with easy grace broke it in twain. Thus Sita selected Rama, the son of King Dasharatha for her husband, and they were wedded with great rejoicings. Then, Rama took his bride to his home, and his old father thought that the time was now come for him to retire and appoint Rama as Yuvaraja. Everything was accordingly made ready for the ceremony, and the whole country was jubilant over the affair, when the younger queen Kaikeyi was reminded by one of her maidservants of two promises made to her by the king long ago. At one time she had pleased the king very much, and he offered to grant her two boons: "Ask any two things in my power and I will grant them to you," said he, but she made no request then. She had forgotten all about it; but the evil-minded maidservant in her employ began to work upon her jealousy with regard to Rama being installed on the throne, and insinuated to her how nice it would be for her if her own son had succeeded the king, until the queen was almost mad with jealousy. Then the servant suggested to her to ask from the king the two promised boons: one would be that her own son Bharata should be placed on the throne, and the other, that Rama should be sent to the forest and be exiled for fourteen years.

Now, Rama was the life and soul of the old king and when this wicked request was made to him, he as a king felt he could not go back on his word. So he did not know what to do. But Rama came to the rescue and willingly offered to give up the throne and go into exile, so that his father might not be guilty of falsehood. So Rama went into exile for fourteen years, accompanied by his loving wife Sita and his devoted brother Lakshmana, who would on no account be parted from him.

The Aryans did not know who were the inhabitants of these wild forests. In those days the forest tribes they called "monkeys", and some of the so-called "monkeys", if unusually strong and powerful, were called "demons".

So, into the forest, inhabited by demons and monkeys, Rama, Lakshmana, and Sita went. When Sita had offered to accompany Rama, he exclaimed, "How can you, a princess, face hardships and accompany me into a forest full of unknown dangers!" But Sita replied, "Wherever Rama goes, there goes Sita. How can you talk of 'princess' and 'royal birth' to me? I go before you!" So, Sita went. And the younger brother, he also went with them. They penetrated far into the forest, until they reached the river Godâvari. On the banks of the river they built little cottages, and Rama and Lakshmana used to hunt deer and collect fruits. After they had lived thus for some time, one day there came a demon giantess. She was the sister of the giant king of Lanka (Ceylon). Roaming through the forest at will, she came across Rama, and seeing that he was a very handsome man, she fell in love with him at once. But Rama was the purest of men, and also he was a married man; so of course he could not return her love. In revenge, she went to her brother, the giant king, and told him all about the beautiful Sita, the wife of Rama.

Rama was the most powerful of mortals; there were no giants or demons or anybody else strong enough to conquer him. So, the giant king had to resort to subterfuge. He got hold of another giant who was a magician and changed him into a beautiful golden deer; and the deer went prancing round about the place where Rama lived, until Sita was fascinated by its beauty and asked Rama to go and capture the deer for her. Rama went into the forest to catch the deer, leaving his brother in charge of Sita. Then Lakshmana laid a circle of fire round the cottage, and he said to Sita, "Today I see something may befall you; and, therefore, I tell you not to go outside of this magic circle. Some danger may befall you if you do." In the meanwhile, Rama had pierced the magic deer with his arrow, and immediately the deer, changed into the form of a man, died.

Immediately, at the cottage was heard the voice of Rama, crying, "Oh, Lakshmana, come to my help!" and Sita said, "Lakshmana, go at once into the forest to help Rama! ""That is not Rama's voice," protested Lakshmana. But at the entreaties of Sita, Lakshmana had to go in search of Rama. As soon as he went away, the giant king, who had taken the form of a mendicant monk, stood at the gate and asked for alms. "Wait awhile," said Sita, "until my husband comes back and I will give you plentiful alms." "I cannot wait, good lady," said he, "I am very hungry, give me anything you have." At this, Sita, who had a few fruits in the cottage, brought them out. But the mendicant monk after many persuasions prevailed upon her to bring the alms to him, assuring her that she need have no fear as he was a holy person. So Sita came out of the magic circle, and immediately the seeming monk assumed his giant body, and grasping Sita in his arms he called his magic chariot, and putting her therein, he fled with the weeping Sita. Poor Sita! She was utterly helpless, nobody, was there to come to her aid. As the giant was carrying her away, she took off a few of the ornaments from her arms and at intervals dropped them to the grounds

She was taken by Râvana to his kingdom, Lanka, the island of Ceylon. He made peals to her to become his queen, and tempted her in many ways to accede to his request. But Sita who was chastity itself, would not even speak to the giant; and he to punish her, made her live under a tree, day and night, until she should consent to be his wife.

When Rama and Lakshmana returned to the cottage and found that Sita was not there, their grief knew no bounds. They could not imagine what had become of her. The two brothers went on, seeking, seeking everywhere for Sita, but could find no trace of her. After long searching, they came across a group of "monkeys", and in the midst of them was Hanumân, the "divine monkey". Hanuman, the best of the monkeys, became the most faithful servant of Rama and helped him in rescuing Sita, as we shall see later on. His devotion to Rama was so great that he is still worshipped by the Hindus as the ideal of a true servant of the Lord. You see, by the "monkeys" and "demons" are meant the aborigines of South India.

So, Rama, at last, fell in with these monkeys. They told him that they had seen flying through the sky a chariot, in which was seated a demon who was carrying away a most beautiful lady, and that she was weeping bitterly, and as the chariot passed over their heads she dropped one of her ornaments to attract their attention. Then they showed Rama the ornament. Lakshmana took up the ornament, and said, "I do not know whose ornament this is." Rama took it from him and recognised it at once, saying, "Yes, it is Sita's." Lakshmana could not recognise the ornament, because in India the wife of the elder brother was held in so much reverence that he had never looked upon the arms and the neck of Sita. So you see, as it was a necklace, he did not know whose it was. There is in this episode a touch of the old Indian custom. Then, the monkeys told Rama who this demon king was and where he lived, and then they all went to seek for him.

Now, the monkey-king Vâli and his younger brother Sugriva were then fighting amongst themselves for the kingdom. The younger brother was helped by Rama, and he regained the kingdom from Vali, who had driven him away; and he, in return, promised to help Rama. They searched the country all round, but could not find Sita. At last Hanuman leaped by one bound from the coast of India to the island of Ceylon, and there went looking all over Lanka for Sita, but nowhere could he find her.

You see, this giant king had conquered the gods, the men, in fact the whole world; and he had collected all the beautiful women and made them his concubines. So, Hanuman thought to himself, "Sita cannot be with them in the palace. She would rather die than be in such a place." So Hanuman went to seek for her elsewhere. At last, he found Sita under a tree, pale and thin, like the new moon that lies low in the horizon. Now Hanuman took the form of a little monkey and settled on the tree, and there he witnessed how giantesses sent by Ravana came and tried to frighten Sita into submission, but she would not even listen to the name of the giant king.

Then, Hanuman came nearer to Sita and told her how he became the messenger of Rama, who had sent him to find out where Sita was; and Hanuman showed to Sita the signet ring which Rama had given as a token for establishing his identity. He also informed her that as soon as Rama would know her whereabouts, he would come with an army and conquer the giant and recover her. However, he suggested to Sita that if she wished it, he would take her on his shoulders and could with one leap clear the ocean and get back to Rama. But Sita could not bear the idea, as she was chastity itself, and could not touch the body of any man except her husband. So, Sita remained where she was. But she gave him a jewel from her hair to carry to Rama; and with that Hanuman returned.

Learning everything about Sita from Hanuman, Rama collected an army, and with it marched towards the southernmost point of India. There Rama's monkeys built a huge bridge, called Setu-Bandha, connecting India with Ceylon. In very low water even now it is possible to cross from India to Ceylon over the sand-banks there.

Now Rama was God incarnate, otherwise, how could he have done all these things? He was an Incarnation of God, according to the Hindus. They in India believe him to be the seventh Incarnation of God.

The monkeys removed whole hills, placed them in the sea and covered them with stones and trees, thus making a huge embankment. A little squirrel, so it is said, was there rolling himself in the sand and running backwards and forwards on to the bridge and shaking himself. Thus in his small way he was working for the bridge of Rama by putting in sand. The monkeys laughed, for they were bringing whole mountains, whole forests, huge loads of sand for the bridge — so they laughed at the little squirrel rolling in the sand and then shaking himself. But Rama saw it and remarked: "Blessed be the little squirrel; he is doing his work to the best of his ability, and he is therefore quite as great as the greatest of you." Then he gently stroked the squirrel on the back, and the marks of Rama's fingers, running lengthways, are seen on the squirrel's back to this day.

Now, when the bridge was finished, the whole army of monkeys, led by Rama and his brother entered Ceylon. For several months afterwards tremendous war and bloodshed followed. At last, this demon king, Ravana, was conquered and killed; and his capital, with all the palaces and everything, which were entirely of solid gold, was taken. In far-away villages in the interior of India, when I tell them that I have been in Ceylon, the simple folk say, "There, as our books tell, the houses are built of gold." So, all these golden cities fell into the hands of Rama, who gave them over to Vibhishana, the younger brother of Ravana, and seated him on the throne in the place of his brother, as a return for the valuable services rendered by him to Rama during the war.

Then Rama with Sita and his followers left Lanka. But there ran a murmur among the followers. "The test! The test!" they cried, "Sita has not given the test that she was perfectly pure in Ravana's household." "Pure! she is chastity itself" exclaimed Rama. "Never mind! We want the test," persisted the people. Subsequently, a huge sacrificial fire was made ready, into which Sita had to plunge herself. Rama was in agony, thinking that Sita was lost; but in a moment, the God of fire himself appeared with a throne upon his head, and upon the throne was Sita. Then, there was universal rejoicing, and everybody was satisfied.

Early during the period of exile, Bharata, the younger brother had come and informed Rama, of the death of the old king and vehemently insisted on his occupying the throne. During Rama's exile Bharata would on no account ascend the throne and out of respect placed a pair of Rama's wooden shoes on it as a substitute for his brother. Then Rama returned to his capital, and by the common consent of his people he became the king of Ayodhya.

After Rama regained his kingdom, he took the necessary vows which in olden times the king had to take for the benefit of his people. The king was the slave of his people, and had to bow to public opinion, as we shall see later on. Rama passed a few years in happiness with Sita, when the people again began to murmur that Sita had been stolen by a demon and carried across the ocean. They were not satisfied with the former test and clamoured for another test, otherwise she must be banished.

In order to satisfy the demands of the people, Sita was banished, and left to live in the forest, where was the hermitage of the sage and poet Valmiki. The sage found poor Sita weeping and forlorn, and hearing her sad story, sheltered her in his Âshrama. Sita was expecting soon to become a mother, and she gave birth to twin boys. The poet never told the children who they were. He brought them up together in the Brahmachârin life. He then composed the poem known as Ramayana, set it to music, and dramatised it.

The drama, in India, was a very holy thing. Drama and music are themselves held to be religion. Any song — whether it be a love-song or otherwise — if one's whole soul is in that song, one attains salvation, one has nothing else to do. They say it leads to the same goal as meditation.

So, Valmiki dramatised "The Life of Rama", and taught Rama's two children how to recite and sing it.

There came a time when Rama was going to perform a huge sacrifice, or Yajna, such as the old kings used to celebrate. But no ceremony in India can be performed by a married man without his wife: he must have the wife with him, the Sahadharmini, the "co-religionist" — that is the expression for a wife. The Hindu householder has to perform hundreds of ceremonies, but not one can be duly performed according to the Shâstras, if he has not a wife to complement it with her part in it.

Now Rama's wife was not with him then, as she had been banished. So, the people asked him to marry again. But at this request Rama for the first time in his life stood against the people. He said, "This cannot be. My life is Sita's." So, as a substitute, a golden statue of Sita was made, in order that the ceremony could be accomplished. They arranged even a dramatic entertainment, to enhance the religious feeling in this great festival. Valmiki, the great sage-poet, came with his pupils, Lava and Kusha, the unknown sons of Rama. A stage had been erected and everything was ready for the performance. Rama and his brothers attended with all his nobles and his people — a vast audience. Under the direction of Valmiki, the life of Rama was sung by Lava and Kusha, who fascinated the whole assembly by their charming voice and appearance. Poor Rama was nearly maddened, and when in the drama, the scene of Sita's exile came about, he did not know what to do. Then the sage said to him, "Do not be grieved, for I will show you Sita." Then Sita was brought upon the stage and Rama delighted to see his wife. All of a sudden, the old murmur arose: "The test! The test!" Poor Sita was so terribly overcome by the repeated cruel slight on her reputation that it was more than she could bear. She appealed to the gods to testify to her innocence, when the Earth opened and Sita exclaimed, "Here is the test", and vanished into the bosom of the Earth. The people were taken aback at this tragic end. And Rama was overwhelmed with grief.

A few days after Sita's disappearance, a messenger came to Rama from the gods, who intimated to him that his mission on earth was finished and he was to return to heaven. These tidings brought to him the recognition of his own real Self. He plunged into the waters of Sarayu, the mighty river that laved his capital, and joined Sita in the other world.

This is the great, ancient epic of India. Rama and Sita are the ideals of the Indian nation. All children, especially girls, worship Sita. The height of a woman's ambition is to be like Sita, the pure, the devoted, the all-suffering! When you study these characters, you can at once find out how different is the ideal in India from that of the West. For the race, Sita stands as the ideal of suffering. The West says, "Do! Show your power by doing." India says, "Show your power by suffering." The West has solved the problem of how much a man can have: India has solved the problem of how little a man can have. The two extremes, you see. Sita is typical of India — the idealised India. The question is not whether she ever lived, whether the story is history or not, we know that the ideal is there. There is no other Paurânika story that has so permeated the whole nation, so entered into its very life, and has so tingled in every drop of blood of the race, as this ideal of Sita. Sita is the name in India for everything that is good, pure and holy — everything that in woman we call womanly. If a priest has to bless a woman he says, "Be Sita!" If he blesses a child, he says "Be Sita!" They are all children of Sita, and are struggling to be Sita, the patient, the all-suffering, the ever-faithful, the ever-pure wife. Through all this suffering she experiences, there is not one harsh word against Rama. She takes it as her own duty, and performs her own part in it. Think of the terrible injustice of her being exiled to the forest! But Sita knows no bitterness. That is, again, the Indian ideal. Says the ancient Buddha, "When a man hurts you, and you turn back to hurt him, that would not cure the first injury; it would only create in the world one more wickedness." Sita was a true Indian by nature; she never returned injury.

Who knows which is the truer ideal? The apparent power and strength, as held in the West, or the fortitude in suffering, of the East?

The West says, "We minimise evil by conquering it." India says, "We destroy evil by suffering, until evil is nothing to us, it becomes positive enjoyment." Well, both are great ideals. Who knows which will survive in the long run? Who knows which attitude will really most benefit humanity? Who knows which will disarm and conquer animality? Will it be suffering, or doing?

In the meantime, let us not try to destroy each other's ideals. We are both intent upon the same work, which is the annihilation of evil. You take up your method; let us take up our method. Let us not destroy the ideal. I do not say to the West, "Take up our method." Certainly not. The goal is the same, but the methods can never be the same. And so, after hearing about the ideals of India, I hope that you will say in the same breath to India, "We know, the goal, the ideal, is all right for us both. You follow your own ideal. You follow your method in your own way, and Godspeed to you!" My message in life is to ask the East and West not to quarrel over different ideals, but to show them that the goal is the same in both cases, however opposite it may appear. As we wend our way through this mazy vale of life, let us bid each other Godspeed.

IS THE SOUL IMMORTAL?

(The Swamiji's contribution to the discussion of this question, carried on in the pages of The New York Morning Advertiser.)

"None has power to destroy the unchangeable." — Bhagavad-Gitâ.

In the great Sanskrit epic, the Mahâbhârata, the story is told how the hero, Yudhishtira, when asked by Dharma to tell what was the most wonderful thing in the world, replied, that it was the persistent belief of man kind in their own deathlessness in spite of their witnessing death everywhere around them almost every moment of their lives. And, in fact, this is the most stupendous wonder in human life. In spite of all arguments to the contrary urged in different times by different schools, in spite of the inability of reason to penetrate the veil of mystery which will ever hang between the sensuous and the supersensuous worlds, man is thoroughly persuaded that he cannot die.

We may study all our lives, and in the end fail to bring the problem of life and death to the plane of rational demonstration, affirmative or negative. We may talk or write, preach or teach, for or against the permanency or impermanency of human existence as much as we like; we may become violent partisans of this side or that; we may invent names by the hundred, each more intricate than its predecessor, and lull ourselves into a momentary rest under the delusion of our having solved the problem once for all; we may cling with all our powers to any one of the curious religious superstitions or the far more objectionable scientific superstitions — but in the end, we find ourselves playing an external game in the bowling alley of reason and raising intellectual pin after pin, only to be knocked over again and again.

But behind all this mental strain and torture, not infrequently productive of more dangerous results than mere games, stands a fact unchallenged and unchallengeable — the fact, the wonder, which the Mahabharata points out as the inability of our mind to conceive our own annihilation. Even to imagine my own annihilation I shall have to stand by and look on as a witness.

Now, before trying to understand what this curious phenomenon means, we want to note that upon this one fact the whole world stands. The permanence of the external world is inevitably joined to the permanence of the internal; and, however plausible any theory of the universe may seem which asserts the permanence of the one and denies that of the other, the theorist himself will find that in his own mechanism not one conscious action is possible, without the permanence of both the internal and the external worlds being one of the factors in the motive cause. Although it is perfectly true that when the human mind transcends its own limitations, it finds the duality reduced to an indivisible unity, on this side of the unconditioned, the whole objective world — that is to say, the world we know — is and can be alone known to us as existing for the subject, and therefore, before we would be able to conceive the annihilation of the subject we are bound to conceive the annihilation of the object.

So far it is plain enough. But now comes the difficulty. I cannot think of myself ordinarily as anything else but a body. My idea of my own permanence includes my idea of myself as a body. But the body is obviously impermanent, as is the whole of nature — a constantly vanishing quantity.

Where, then, is this permanence?

There is one more wonderful phenomenon connected with our lives, without which "who will be able to live, who will be able to enjoy life a moment?" — the idea of freedom.

This is the idea that guides each footstep of ours, makes our movements possible, determines our relations to each other — nay, is the very warp and woof in the fabric of human life. Intellectual knowledge tries to drive it inch by inch from its territory, post after post is snatched away from its domains, and each step is made fast and ironbound with the railroadings of cause and effect. But it laughs at all our attempts, and, lo, it keeps itself above all this massive pile of law and causation with which we tried to smother it to death! How can it be otherwise? The limited always requires a higher generalization of the unlimited to explain itself. The bound can only be explained by the free, the caused by the uncaused. But again, the same difficulty is also here. What is free? The body or even the mind? It is apparent to all that they are as much bound by law as anything else in the universe.

Now the problem resolves itself into this dilemma: either the whole universe is a mass of never-ceasing change and nothing more, irrevocably bound by the law of causation, not one particle having a unity of itself, yet is curiously producing an ineradicable delusion of permanence and freedom, or there is in us and in the universe something which is permanent and free, showing that the basal constitutional belief of the human mind is not a delusion. It is the duty of science to explain facts by bringing them to a higher generalization. Any explanation, therefore that first wants to destroy a part of the fact given to be explained, in order to fit itself to the remainder, is not scientific, whatever else it may be.

So any explanation that wants to overlook the fact of this persistent and all-necessary idea of freedom commits the above-mentioned mistake of denying a portion of the fact in order to explain the rest, and is, therefore, wrong. The only other alternative possible, then, is to acknowledge, in harmony with our nature, that there is something in us which is free and permanent.

But it is not the body; neither is it the mind. The body is dying every minute. The mind is constantly changing. The body is a combination, and so is the mind, and as such can never reach to a state beyond all change. But beyond this momentary sheathing of gross matter, beyond even the finer covering of the mind is the Âtman, the true Self of man, the permanent, the ever free. It is his freedom that is percolating through layers of thought and matter, and, in spite of the colourings of name and form, is ever asserting its unshackled existence. It is his deathlessness, his bliss, his peace, his divinity that shines out and makes itself felt in spite of the thickest layers of ignorance. He is the real man, the fearless one, the deathless one, the free.

Now freedom is only possible when no external power can exert any influence, produce any change. Freedom is only possible to the being who is beyond all conditions, all laws, all bondages of cause and effect. In other words, the unchangeable alone can be free and, therefore, immortal. This Being, this Atman, this real Self of man, the free, the unchangeable is beyond all conditions, and as such, it has neither birth nor death.

"Without birth or death, eternal, ever-existing is this soul of man."

KALI THE MOTHER

The stars are blotted out,
The clouds are covering clouds,
It is darkness vibrant, sonant.
In the roaring, whirling wind
Are the souls of a million lunatics
Just loose from the prison-house,
Wrenching trees by the roots,
Sweeping all from the path.
The sea has joined the fray,
And swirls up mountain-waves,
To reach the pitchy sky.
The flash of lurid light
Reveals on every side
A thousand, thousand shades
Of Death begrimed and black —
Scattering plagues and sorrows,
Dancing mad with joy,
Come, Mother, come!
For Terror is Thy name,
Death is in Thy breath,
And every shaking step
Destroys a world for e'er.
Thou "Time", the All-Destroyer!
Come, O Mother, come!
Who dares misery love,
And hug the form of Death,
Dance in Destruction's dance,
To him the Mother comes.

THE PROBLEM OF MODERN INDIA AND ITS SOLUTION

(The above is a translation of the first Bengali article written by Swami Vivekananda as an introduction to the Udbodhana, when it was started on the 14th of January, 1899, as the Bengali fortnightly (afterwards monthly) journal of the Ramakrishna Order.)

The ancient history of India is full of descriptions of the gigantic energies and their multifarious workings, the boundless spirit, the combination of indomitable action and reaction of the various forces, and, above all, the profound thoughtfulness of a godly race. If the word history is understood to mean merely narratives of kings and emperors, and pictures of society — tyrannised over from time to time by the evil passions, haughtiness, avarice, etc., of the rulers of the time, portraying the acts resulting from their good or evil propensities, and how these reacted upon the society of that time — such a history India perhaps does not possess. But every line of that mass of the religious literature of India, her ocean of poetry, her philosophies and various scientific works reveal to us — a thousand times more clearly than the narratives of the life-incidents and genealogies of particular kings and emperors can ever do — the exact position and every step made in advance by that vast body of men who, even before the dawn of civilisation, impelled by hunger and thirst, lust and greed, etc., attracted by the charm of beauty, endowed with a great and indomitable mental power, and moved by various sentiments, arrived through various ways and means at that stage of eminence. Although the heaps of those triumphal flags which they gathered in their innumerable victories over nature with which they had been waging war for ages, have, of late, been torn and tattered by the violent winds of adverse circumstances and become worn out through age, yet they still proclaim the glory of Ancient India.

Whether this race slowly proceeded from Central Asia, Northern Europe, or the Arctic regions, and gradually came down and sanctified India by settling there at last, or whether the holy land of India was their original native place, we have no proper means of knowing now. Or whether a vast race living in or outside India, being displaced from its original abode, in conformity with natural laws, came in the course of time to colonise and settle over Europe and other places — and whether these people were white or black, blue-eyed or dark-eyed, golden-haired or black-haired — all these matters — there is no sufficient ground to prove now, with the one exception of the fact of the kinship of Sanskrit with a few European languages. Similarly, it is not easy to arrive at a final conclusion as to the modern Indians, whether they all are the pure descendants of that race, or how much of the blood of that race is flowing in their veins, or again, what races amongst them have any of that even in them.

However, we do not, in fact, lose much by this uncertainty.

But there is one fact to remember. Of that ancient Indian race, upon which the rays of civilisation first dawned, where deep thoughtfulness first revealed itself in full glory, there are still found hundreds of thousands of its children, born of its mind — the inheritors of its thoughts and sentiments — ready to claim them.

Crossing over mountains, rivers, arid oceans, setting at naught, as it were, the obstacles of the distance of space and time, the blood of Indian thought has flowed, and is still flowing into the veins of other nations of the globe, whether in a distinct or in some subtle unknown way. Perhaps to us belongs the major portion of the universal ancient inheritance.

In a small country lying in the eastern corner of the Mediterranean Sea, beautiful and adorned by nature, and garlanded by well-formed and beautiful-looking islands, lived a race of men who were few in number, but of a very charming aspect, perfectly formed, and strong in muscles and sinews, light of body, yet possessing steadiness and perseverance, and who were unrivalled for the creation of all earthly beauties, as well as endowed with extraordinary practicality and intellect. The other ancient nations used to call them Yavanas, but they called themselves Greeks. This handful of a vigorous and wonderful race is a unique example in the annals of man. Wherever and in whatever nation there has been, or is, any advance made in earthly science up to the present day — such as social, martial, political, sculptural, etc. — there the shadow of ancient Greece has fallen. Let us leave apart the consideration of ancient times, for even in this modern age, we, the Bengalis, think ourselves proud and enlightened simply by following the footmarks of these Yavana Gurus for these last fifty years, illumining our homes with what light of theirs is reaching us through the European literature.

The whole of Europe nowadays is, in every respect, the disciple of ancient Greece, and her proper inheritor; so much so that a wise man of England had said, "Whatever nature has not created, that is the creation of the Greek mind."

These two gigantic rivers (Aryans and Yavanas), issuing from far-away and different mountains (India and Greece), occasionally come in contact with each other, and whenever such confluence takes place, a tremendous intellectual or spiritual tide, rising in human societies, greatly expands the range of civilisation and confirms the bond of universal brotherhood among men.

Once in far remote antiquity, the Indian philosophy, coming in contact with Greek energy, led to the rise of the Persian, the Roman, and other great nations. After the invasion of Alexander the Great, these two great waterfalls colliding with each other, deluged nearly half of the globe with spiritual tides, such as Christianity. Again, a similar commingling, resulting in the improvement and prosperity of Arabia, laid the foundation of modern European civilisation. And perhaps, in our own day, such a time for the conjunction of these two gigantic forces has presented itself again. This time their centre is India.

The air of India pre-eminently conduces to quietness, the nature of the Yavana is the constant expression of power; profound meditation characterises the one, the indomitable spirit of dexterous activity, the other; one's motto is "renunciation", the other's "enjoyment". One's whole energy is directed inwards, the other's, outwards; one's whole learning consists in the knowledge of the Self or the Subject, the other's, in the knowledge of the not-Self or the object (perishable creation); one loves Moksha (spiritual freedom), the other loves political independence; one is unmindful of gaining prosperity in this world, the other sets his whole heart on making a heaven of this world; one, aspiring after eternal bliss, is indifferent to all the ephemeral pleasures of this life, and the other, doubting the existence of eternal bliss, or knowing it to be far away, directs his whole energy to the attainment of earthly pleasures as much as possible.

In this age, both these types of mankind are extinct, only their physical and mental children, their works and thoughts are existing.

Europe and America are the advanced children of the Yavanas, a glory to their forefathers; but the modern inhabitants of the land of Bharata are not the glory of the ancient Aryas. But, as fire remains intact under cover of ashes, so the ancestral fire still remains latent in these modern Indians. Through the grace of the Almighty Power, it is sure to manifest itself in time.

What will accrue when that ancestral fire manifests itself?

Would the sky of India again appear clouded over by waving masses of smoke springing from the Vedic sacrificial fire? Or is the glory of Rantideva again going to be revived in the blood of the sacrificed animals? Are the old customs of Gomedha, Ashvamedha, or perpetuating the lineage from a husband's brother, and other usages of a like nature to come back again? Or is the deluge of a Buddhistic propaganda again going to turn the whole of India into a big monastery? Are the laws of Manu going to be rehabilitated as of yore? Or is the discrimination of food, prescribed and forbidden, varying in accordance with geographical dimensions, as it is at the present day, alone going to have its all-powerful domination over the length and breadth of the country? Is the caste system to remain, and is it going to depend eternally upon the birthright of a man, or is it going to be determined by his qualification? And again in that caste system, is the discrimination of food, its touchableness or untouchableness, dependent upon the purity or the impurity of the man who touches it, to be observed as it is in Bengal, or will it assume a form more strict as it does in Madras? Or, as in the Punjab, will all such restrictions be obliterated? Are the marriages of the different Varnas to take place from the upper to the lower Varna in the successive order, as in Manu's days, and as it is still in vogue in Nepal? Or, as in Bengal and other places, are they to be kept restricted to a very limited number of individuals constituting one of the several communities of a certain class of the Varna? To give a conclusive answer to all these questions is extremely difficult. They become the more difficult of solution, considering the difference in the customs prevailing in different parts of the country — nay, as we find even in the same part of the country such a wide divergence of customs among different castes and families.

Then what is to be?

What we should have is what we have not, perhaps what our forefathers even had not — that which the Yavanas had; that, impelled by the life-vibration of which, is issuing forth in rapid succession from the great dynamo of Europe, the electric flow of that tremendous power vivifying the whole world. We want that. We want that energy, that love of independence, that spirit of self-reliance, that immovable fortitude, that dexterity in action, that bond of unity of purpose, that thirst for improvement. Checking a little the constant looking back to the past, we want that expansive vision infinitely projected forward; and we want — that intense spirit of activity (Rajas) which will flow through our every vein, from head to foot.

What can be a greater giver of peace than renunciation? A little ephemeral worldly good is nothing in comparison with eternal good; no doubt of that. What can bring greater strength than Sattva Guna (absolute purity of mind)? It is indeed true that all other kinds of knowledge are but non-knowledge in comparison with Self-knowledge. But I ask: How many are there in the world fortunate enough to gain that Sattva Guna? How many in this land of Bharata? How many have that noble heroism which can renounce all, shaking off the idea of "I and mine"? How many are blessed enough to possess that far-sight of wisdom which makes the earthly pleasures appear to be but vanity of vanities? Where is that broad-hearted man who is apt to forget even his own body in meditating over the beauty and glory of the Divine? Those who are such are but a handful in comparison to the population of the whole of India; and in order that these men may attain to their salvation, will the millions and millions of men and women of India have to be crushed under the wheel of the present-day society and religion?

And what good can come out of such a crushing?

Do you not see — talking up this plea of Sattva, the country has been slowly and slowly drowned in the ocean of Tamas or dark ignorance? Where the most dull want to hide their stupidity by covering it with a false desire for the highest knowledge which is beyond all activities, either physical or mental; where one, born and bred in lifelong laziness, wants to throw the veil of renunciation over his own unfitness for work; where the most diabolical try to make their cruelty appear, under the cloak of austerity, as a part of religion; where no one has an eye upon his own incapacity, but everyone is ready to lay the whole blame on others; where knowledge consists only in getting some books by heart, genius consists in chewing the cud of others' thoughts, and the highest glory consists in taking the name of ancestors: do we require any other proof to show that that country is being day by day drowned in utter Tamas?

Therefore Sattva or absolute purity is now far away from us. Those amongst us who are not yet fit, but who hope to be fit, to reach to that absolutely pure Paramahansa state — for them the acquirement of Rajas or intense activity is what is most beneficial now. Unless a man passes through Rajas, can he ever attain to that perfect Sâttvika state? How can one expect Yoga or union with God, unless one has previously finished with his thirst for Bhoga or enjoyment? How can renunciation come where there is no Vairâgya or dispassion for all the charms of enjoyment?

On the other hand, the quality of Rajas is apt to die down as soon as it comes up, like a fire of palm leaves. The presence of Sattva and the Nitya or Eternal Reality is almost in a state of juxtaposition — Sattva is nearly Nitya. Whereas the nation in which the quality of Rajas predominates is not so long-lived, but a nation with a preponderance of Sattva is, as it were, immortal. History is a witness to this fact.

In India, the quality of Rajas is almost absent: the same is the case with Sattva in the West. It is certain, therefore, that the real life of the Western world depends upon the influx, from India, of the current of Sattva or transcendentalism; and it is also certain that unless we overpower and submerge our Tamas by the opposite tide of Rajas, we shall never gain any worldly good or welfare in this life; and it is also equally certain that we shall meet many formidable obstacles in the path of realisation of those noble aspirations and ideals connected with our after-life.

The one end and aim of the Udbodhana is to help the union and intermingling of these two forces, as far as it lies in its power.

True, in so doing there is a great danger — lest by this huge wave of Western spirit are washed away all our most precious jewels, earned through ages of hard labour; true, there is fear lest falling into its strong whirlpool, even the land of Bharata forgets itself so far as to be turned into a battlefield in the struggle after earthly enjoyments; ay, there is fear, too, lest going to imitate the impossible and impracticable foreign ways, rooting out as they do our national customs and ideals, we lose all that we hold dear in this life and be undone in the next!

To avoid these calamities we must always keep the wealth of our own home before our eyes, so that every one down to the masses may always know and see what his own ancestral property is. We must exert ourselves to do that; and side by side, we should be brave to open our doors to receive all available light from outside. Let rays of light come in, in sharp-driving showers from the four quarters of the earth; let the intense flood of light flow in from the West — what of that? Whatever is weak and corrupt is liable to die — what are we to do with it? If it goes, let it go, what harm does it do to us? What is strong and invigorating is immortal. Who can destroy that?

How many gushing springs and roaring cataracts, how many icy rivulets and ever-flowing streamlets, issuing from the eternal snow-capped peaks of the Himalayas, combine and flow together to form the gigantic river of the gods, the Gangâ, and rush impetuously towards the ocean! So what a variety of thoughts and ideas, how many currents of forces, issuing from innumerable saintly hearts, and from brains of geniuses of various lands have already enveloped India, the land of Karma, the arena for the display of higher human activities! Look! how under the dominion of the English, in these days of electricity, railroad, and steamboat, various sentiments, manners, customs, and morals are spreading all over the land with lightning speed. Nectar is coming, and along with it, also poison; good is coming, as well as evil. There has been enough of angry opposition and bloodshed; the power of stemming this tide is not in Hindu society. Everything, from water filtered by machinery and drawn from hydrants, down to sugar purified with bone-ash, is being quietly and freely taken by almost every one, in spite of much show of verbal protest. Slowly and slowly, by the strong dint of law, many of our most cherished customs are falling off day by day — we have no power to withstand that. And why is there no power? Is truth really powerless? "Truth alone conquers and not falsehood." — Is this Divine Vedic saying false? Or who knows but that those very customs which are being swept away by the deluge of the power of Western sovereignty or of Western education were not real Âchâras, but were Anâchâras after all. This also is a matter for serious consideration.

बहुजनहिताय बहुजनसुखाय — "For the good of the many, as well as for the happiness of the many" — in an unselfish manner, with a heart filled with love and reverence, the Udbodhana invites all wise and large-hearted men who love their motherland to discuss these points and solve these problems; and, being devoid of the feeling of hatred or antagonism, as well as turning itself away from the infliction of abusive language directed towards any individual, or society, or any sect, it offers its whole self for the service of all classes.

To work we have the right, the result is in the hands of the Lord. We only pray: "O Thou Eternal Spirit, make us spiritual; O Thou Eternal Strength, make us strong; O Thou Mighty One, make us mighty."

স্বামী বিবেকানন্দের সর্বতোমুখী প্রতিভাশ্লসূত 'বর্তমান ভারত' বঙ্গসাহিত্যে এক অমূল্য রত্ন। তমসাচ্ছন্ন ভারতেতিহাসে একটা পূর্বাপর সম্বন্ধ দেখা অতি কম লোকের ভাগ্যেই ঘটে। স্কুলদৃষ্টি সাধারণ পাঠক ইহাতে দুই-চারিটি ধর্মবীর বা কর্মবীরের মূর্তি এবং দুই-একটি ধর্মবিপ্লব বা রাজ্যবিপ্লব অতি অসম্বন্ধভাবে গ্রথিত ভিন্ন আর কিছুই দেখেন না। গবেষণাশীল যশোলিপ্সু পাশ্চাত্য পণ্ডিতকুলের সূক্ষ্ম দৃষ্টিও প্রাচ্য জাতিসমূহের মানসিক গঠন, আচার-ব্যবহার, কার্যপ্রণালী প্রভৃতির দ্বারা প্রতিহত হইয়া এখানে অনেক সময়ে সরল পথ ত্যাগ করে এবং কুঞ্জটিকাবৃত কিস্কৃত-কিমাকার মূর্তিসকলই দেখিয়া থাকে। বিশেষতঃ যে শক্তি ভারতের অস্থিমজ্জায় প্রবিষ্ট, যাহার খেলা বৈদিক অধিকার হইতে বৌদ্ধাকার পর্যন্ত সর্বপ্রকার উচ্চভাবসমুদয়ের সমাবেশ করিয়া ভারতকে জগতের শিরোভূষণ করিয়াছিল, যাহার হীনতায় পুনরায় মুসলমান প্রভৃতি বিজাতীয় রাজগণের প্রবেশ, সেই ধর্মশক্তি পাশ্চাত্য পণ্ডিত-কুলের দৃষ্টিতে ছায়াময় অবাস্তব মূর্তিবিশেষরূপে প্রকাশিত, সুতরাং উহা দ্বারা যে জাতিয় উন্নতি এবং অবনতির সমাধান হইতে পারে, ইহা তাঁহাদের বুদ্ধির সম্পূর্ণ অগোচর। ব্যক্তিগত ভাবসমূহই সমষ্টিরূপে সমাজগত হইয়া জাতিবিশেষের জাতীয়ত্ব সম্পাদন করে। এই জাতীয়ত্বভাব ভিন্ন ভিন্ন জাতির পরস্পর বিভিন্ন বলিয়াই এক জাতির পক্ষে অপর জাতির ভাব বুঝা দুষ্কর হইয়া উঠে এবং সেইজন্য ভারতেতিহাস সম্বন্ধভাবে বুঝিতে যাইয়া পাশ্চাত্য পণ্ডিতকুল অনেক সময়ে বিফলমনোরথ হন। আমাদের ধারণা, ভারতে ইতিহাসের যে অভাব তা নহে, কিন্তু উহার সম্বন্ধ সংযোজনে ভারতসত্তানই একমাত্র সমর্থ এবং উহার যথার্থ পাঠক্রম তাঁহাদের দ্বারা একদিন না একদিন আবিস্কৃত হইবে। বহুল পরিভ্রমণ, গর্বিত রাজকুল হইতে দরিদ্র প্রজা পর্যন্ত সকলের সহিত সমভাবে মিলন, ভারত ও ভারতেতর দেশের আচার-ব্যবহার এবং জাতীয়ত্বভাবসমূহের নিরপেক্ষ দর্শন, অশেষ অধ্যয়ন এবং স্বদেশবাসীর প্রতি অপার প্রেম ও তাহাদের দুঃখে গভীর সহানুভূতির ফলে স্বামীজীর মনে ভারতের যে চিত্র অঙ্কিত হইয়াছিল, 'বর্তমান ভারত' তাহারই নিদর্শনস্বরূপ।

ভারতেতিহাসের জটিল প্রশ্নসমূহের সমাধানে তিনি কতদূর কৃতকার্য হইয়াছেন, সে বিষয়ে আমাদের বলিবার কিছুই নাই; পাঠকের ক্ষমতা থাকে তো বিচার করিয়া দেখুন। তবে স্বামীজীর ন্যায় অসামান্য জীবন এবং প্রতিভোৎপন্ন মীমাংসা যে চিন্তা ও পাঠের যোগ্য, সে বিষয়ে কে সন্দিহান হইতে পারে?

'বর্তমান ভারত' প্রথমে প্রবন্ধাকারে পাক্ষিক পত্র 'উদ্বোধন'-এ প্রকাশিত হয়। অনেকের মুখে ঐ সময় শুনিয়াছিলাম যে, উহার ভাষা অতি জটিল ও দুর্বোধ্য। এখনও হয়তো অনেকে ঐ কথা বলিবেন, কিন্তু অদ্য আমরা সেই মতের পক্ষাবলম্বন করিয়া ভাষার দোষ স্বীকারপূর্বক 'বর্তমান ভারত' উপহারহস্তে সলজ্জভাবে পাঠক-সমীপে সমাগত নহি। আমরা উহাতে ভাব ও ভাষার অদ্ভুত সামঞ্জস্য দেখিয়া মোহিত হইয়াছি। বঙ্গভাষা যে অত অল্পায়তনের মত অধিক ভাবরাশি প্রকাশে সমর্থ, ইহা আমরা পূর্বে আর কোথাও দেখি নাই। পদলালিত্যও অনেক স্থানে বিশেষ বিকশিত। অনাবশ্যকীয় শব্দনিচয়ের এতই অভাব যে, বোধ হয় যেন লেখক প্রত্যেক শব্দের ভাব পরিমাণ করিয়া আবশ্যিকমত প্রয়োগ করিয়াছেন।

পরিশেষে ব্রাহ্মণাদি উচ্চবর্ণের উপর স্বামীজীর কিছু বিশেষ কটাক্ষ আছে বলিয়া যে প্রতিবাদ-ধ্বনি 'বর্তমান ভারত'-এর প্রথমাবির্ভাবে উঠিয়াছিল, সে বিষয়েও স্বপক্ষে বা বিপক্ষে কোন কথা না বলিয়া পাঠকের সত্যনিরাগ এবং স্পষ্টবাদিতার উপরেই আমরা নির্ভর করিলাম। সহস্র প্রতিবাদেও সত্যের অপলাপ বা অসত্যের প্রতিষ্ঠা হয় না এবং 'মন মুখ এক করাই' সত্যলাভের প্রধান সাধন, ইহা যেন আমরা নিত্য মনে রাখিতে পারি। নিন্দার কটু কশাঘাতে অভিজাত ব্যক্তির হৃদয়ে আত্মানুসন্ধান এবং সংশোধনেচ্ছাই বলবতী হয়, কিন্তু ইতর ব্যক্তির হৃদয় ঐ আঘাতে জঘন্য অসত্য, হিংসা, সত্যগোপন প্রভৃতি কুপ্রবৃত্তির আশ্রয় গ্রহণ করিয়া অবনতির পথর দ্রুতপদসঞ্চারে অগ্রসর হয়।

‘অলোকসামান্যমচিন্ত্যহেতুকং
নিন্দন্তি মন্দাশ্চরিতং মহাত্মনাম্।’

বর্তমান ভারত

বৈদিক পুরোহিতের শক্তি

বৈদিক পুরোহিত মন্ত্রবলে বলীয়ান, দেবগণ তাঁহার মন্ত্রবলে আহূত হইয়া পান-ভোজন গ্রহণ করেন ও যজমানকে অভিস্পিত ফল প্রদান করেন। ইহোলৌকিক মঙ্গলের কামনায় প্রজাবর্গ, রাজন্যবর্গও তাঁহার দ্বারস্থ। রাজা সোম^১ পুরোহিতের উপাস্য, বরদ ও মন্ত্রপুষ্টি; আহুতিগ্রহণেপ্সু দেবগণ কাজেই পুরোহিতের উপর সদয়; দৈব-বলের উপর মানব-বল কি করিতে পারে? মানব-বলের কেন্দ্রীভূত রাজাও পুরোহিতবর্গের অনুগ্রহপ্রার্থী। তাঁহাদের কৃপাদৃষ্টিই যথেষ্ট সাহায্য; তাঁহাদের আশীর্বাদ সর্বশ্রেষ্ঠ কর; কখন বিভীষিকাসঙ্কুল আদেশ, কখন সহৃদয় মন্ত্রণা, কখন কৌশলময় নীতিজাল-বিস্তার রাজশক্তিকে অনেক সময়েই পুরোহিতকুলের নির্দেশবর্তী করিয়াছে। সকলের উপর ভয় -- পিতৃপুরুষদিগের নাম, নিজের যশোলিপি পুরোহিতের লেখনীর অধীন। মহাতেজস্বী, জীবদ্দশায় অতি কীর্তিমান, প্রজাবর্গের পিতৃমাতৃস্থানীয় হউন না কেন, মহাসমুদ্রে শিশিরবিন্দুপাতের ন্যায় কালসমুদ্রে তাঁহার যশঃসূর্য চিরদিন অন্তমিত; কেবল মহাসত্রানুষ্ঠায়ী, অশ্বমেধযাজী, বর্ষার বারিদের ন্যায় পুরোহিতগণের উপর অজস্র-ধন-বর্ষণকারী রাজগণের নামই পুরোহিতপ্রসাদে জাজ্বল্যমান। দেবগণের প্রিয়, প্রিয়দর্শী ধর্মাশোক ব্রাহ্মণ্য-জগতে নাম-মাত্র-শেষ; পরীক্ষিত জনমেজয় আবাল-বৃদ্ধ-বনিতার চিরপরিচিত।

কর গ্রহণে, রাজ্য-রক্ষায় প্রজাবর্গের মতামতের বিশেষ অপেক্ষা নাই -- হিন্দুজগতেও নাই, বৌদ্ধজগতেও তদুপ। যদিও যুদ্ধিষ্ঠির বারণাবতে বৈশ্য-শূদ্রেরও গৃহে পদার্পণ করিতেছেন, প্রজারা রামচন্দ্রের যৌবরাজ্যে অভিষেক প্রার্থনা করিতেছেন, সীতার বনবাসের জন্য গোপনে মন্ত্রণা করিতেছে, কিন্তু সাক্ষাৎ প্রত্যক্ষ সম্বন্ধে রাজ্যের প্রথা স্বরূপ, প্রজাদের কোন বিষয়ে উচ্চবাচ্য নাই। প্রজাশক্তি আপনার ক্ষমতা অপ্রত্যক্ষভাবে বিশৃঙ্খলরূপে প্রকাশ করিতেছে। সে শক্তির অস্তিত্বে প্রজাবর্গের এখনও জ্ঞান হয় নাই। তাহাতে সমবায়ের উদ্যোগ বা ইচ্ছাও নাই; সে কৌশলেরও সম্পূর্ণ অভাব, যাহা দ্বারা ক্ষুদ্র ক্ষুদ্র শক্তিপুঞ্জ একীভূত হইয়া প্রচণ্ড বল সংগ্রহ করে।

নিয়মের [যে] অভাব -- তাহাও নহে; নিয়ম আছে, প্রণালী আছে, নির্ধারিত অংশ আছে, কর-সংগ্রহ ও সৈন্যচালনা বা বিচার-সম্পাদন বা দণ্ড-পুরস্কার সকল বিষয়েরই পুঞ্জানুপুঞ্জ নিয়ম আছে, কিন্তু তাহার মূলে ঋষির আদেশ, দৈবশক্তি, ঈশ্বরাবেশ। তাহার স্থিতিস্থাপকত্ব একেবারেই নাই বলিলেই হয় এবং তাহাতে প্রজাবর্গের সাধারণ মঙ্গলকর কার্য-সাধনোদ্দেশ্যে সহমতি হইবার বা সমবেত বুদ্ধিযোগে রাজগৃহীত প্রজার ধনে সাধারণ স্বত্ববুদ্ধি ও তাহার আয়-ব্যয়-নিয়মনের শক্তিলাভেচ্ছার কোন শিক্ষার সম্ভাবনা নাই।

^১ সোমলতা -- বেদে উহা 'রাজা সোম' নামে উক্ত।

^২ অগ্নিবর্গ -- সূর্যবংশীয় রাজা-বিশেষ। ইনি প্রজাগণের সহিত সাক্ষাৎ না করিয়া দিবারাত্র অন্তঃপুরে কাটাইতেন। অতিরিক্ত ইন্দ্রিয়পরত দোষে ইঁহার মৃত্যু হয়।

ধর্মাশোকত্ব^৩ -- অতি অল্পসংখ্যক। আকবরের ন্যায় প্রজারক্ষকের সংখ্যা আরঙ্গজীবের ন্যায় প্রজাভক্ষকের অপেক্ষা অনেক অল্প।

মহাপুরুষদিগের অলৌকিক প্রাতিভ-জ্ঞানোৎপন্ন শাস্ত্রশাসিত সমাজের শাসন রাজা, প্রজা, ধনী, নির্ধন, মূর্খ, বিদ্বান্ -- সকলের উপর অব্যাহত হওয়া অন্ততঃ বিচারসিদ্ধ, কিন্তু কার্যে কতদূর হইয়াছে, পূর্বেই বলা হইয়াছে। শাসিতগণের শাসনকার্যে অনুমতি -- যাহা আধুনিক পাশ্চাত্য জগতের মূলমন্ত্র এবং যাহার শেষ বাণী আমেরিকার শাসনপদ্ধতি-পত্রে অতি উচ্চরবে ঘোষিত হইয়াছে, ‘এ দেশে প্রজাদিগের শাসন প্রজাদিগের দ্বারা এবং প্রজাদিগের কল্যাণের নিমিত্ত হইবে’, [তাহা] যে একেবারেই ভারতবর্ষে ছিল না তাহাও নহে। যবন^৪ পরিব্রাজকেরা অনেকগুলি ক্ষুদ্র ক্ষুদ্র স্বাধীনতন্ত্র এদেশে দেখিয়াছিলেন, বৌদ্ধদিগের গ্রন্থেও স্থলে স্থলে নিদর্শন পাওয়া যায়, এবং প্রকৃতি^৫ দ্বারা অনুমোদিত শাসনপদ্ধতির বীজ যে নিশ্চিত গ্রাম্য পঞ্চগয়েতে বর্তমান ছিল এবং এখনও স্থানে স্থানে আছে, সে বিষয়ে আর সন্দেহ নাই। কিন্তু সে বীজ যে স্থানে উগ্ঠ হইয়াছিল, অক্ষুর সেথায় উদগত হইল না; এ ভাব ঐ গ্রাম্য পঞ্চগয়েতে ভিন্ন সমাজমধ্যে কখনও সম্প্রসারিত হয় নাই।

ধর্মসমাজে ত্যাগীদের মধ্যে, বৌদ্ধ যতিগণের মঠে ঐ স্বায়ত্তশাসনপ্রণালী বিশেষরূপে পরিবর্ধিত হইয়াছিল, তাহার নিদর্শন যথেষ্ট আছে এবং অদ্যাপি নাগা সন্ন্যাসীদের মধ্যে ‘পঞ্চের’ ক্ষমতা ও সম্মান, প্রত্যেক নাগার সম্প্রদায়মধ্যে অধিকার ও উক্ত সম্প্রদায়ের মধ্যে সমবায়-শক্তির কার্য দেখিলে চমৎকৃত হইতে হয়।

বৌদ্ধবিপ্লব ও তাহার ফল

বৌদ্ধোপপ্লাবনের সঙ্গে সঙ্গে পুরোহিতের শক্তির ক্ষয় ও রাজন্যবর্গের শক্তির বিকাশ।

বৌদ্ধযুগের পুরোহিত সর্বত্যাগী, মঠাশ্রয়, উদাসীন। ‘শাপেন চাপেন বা’^৬ রাজকুলকে পদানত করিয়া রাখিতে তাঁহাদের উৎসাহ বা ইচ্ছা নাই। থাকিলেও আছতিভোজী দেবকুলের অবনতির সহিত তাঁহাদের প্রতিষ্ঠাও নিম্নাভিমুখী; কত শত ব্রহ্মা-ইন্দ্রাদি বুদ্ধত্বপ্রাপ্ত নরদেবের চরণে প্রণত এবং এই বুদ্ধত্বে মনুষ্যমাত্রেরই অধিকার।

^৩ ধর্মাশোক -- ভারতবর্ষের একচ্ছত্র সম্রাট অশোক। ভ্রাতৃহত্যা প্রভৃতি নৃশংস কার্যের দ্বারা সিংহাসন লাভ করাতে ইনি পূর্বে ‘চন্ডাশোক’ নামে খ্যাত ছিলেন। কথিত আছে, সিংহাসন-লাভের প্রায় নয় বৎসর পরে, বৌদ্ধধর্মে দীক্ষিত হইয়া তাঁহার স্বভাবের অদ্ভুত পরিবর্তন হয় -- ভারতে ও ভারতের দেশে বৌদ্ধধর্মের বহুল প্রচার তাঁহার দ্বারাই সাধিত হয়। ভারত, কাবুল, পারস্য ও পালেস্তাইন প্রভৃতি দেশে অদ্যাবধি আবিষ্কৃত স্তূপ, স্তম্ভ এবং পর্বতগায়ে খোদিত শাসনাদি ঐ বিষয়ে ভূরি ভূরি সাক্ষ্য প্রদান করিতেছে। এই প্রকার ধর্মানুরাগ এবং প্রজারঞ্জনের জন্য ইনি পরে ‘দেবানাং পিয়ো পিয়দশি’ (দেবতাদের প্রিয় প্রিয়র্শন) ‘ধর্মাশোক’ বলিয়া প্রসিদ্ধ হন।

কাজেই রাজশক্তিরূপ মহাবল যজ্ঞাশু আর পুরোহিত-হস্তধৃত-দৃঢ়সংযত-রক্ষি নহে; সে এবার আপন বলে স্বচ্ছন্দচারী। এ যুগের শক্তিকেন্দ্র সামগায়ী যজুর্যাজী পুরোহিতে নাই, রাজশক্তিও ভারতের বিকীর্ণ ক্ষত্রিয়বংশ-সম্ভূত ক্ষুদ্র ক্ষুদ্র মন্ডলীপতিতে সমাহিত নহে; এ যুগের দিগদিগন্তব্যাপী অপ্রতিহতশাসন আসমুদ্রক্ষিতীশগণই মানবশক্তিকেন্দ্র। এ যুগের নেতা আর বিশ্বামিত্র বশিষ্ঠ নহেন, কিন্তু সম্রাট চন্দ্রগুপ্ত, ধর্মাশোক প্রভৃতি। বৌদ্ধযুগের একছত্র পৃথিবীপতি সম্রাটগণের ন্যায় ভারতের গৌরববৃদ্ধিকারী রাজগণ আর কখন ভারতসিংহাসনে আরুঢ় হন নাই, এ যুগের শেষে আধুনিক হিন্দুধর্ম ও রাজপুতাদি জাতির অভ্যুত্থান। ইহাদের হস্তে ভারতের রাজদণ্ড পুনর্বীর অখণ্ড প্রতাপ হইতে বিচ্যুত হইয়া শতখণ্ড হইয়া যায়। এই সময়ে ব্রাহ্মণ্যশক্তির পুনরভ্যুত্থান রাজশক্তির সহিত সহকারিভাবে উদযুক্ত হইয়াছিল।

যে পুরোহিতশক্তির সহিত রাজশক্তির সংগ্রাম বৈদিক কাল হইতেই চলিতেছিল, ভগবান্ শ্রীকৃষ্ণের অমানব প্রতিভা স্বীয় জীবদ্দশায় যাহার ক্ষত্রপ্রতিবাদিতা প্রায় ভঞ্জন করিয়া দিতে সক্ষম হইয়াছিল, যে ব্রাহ্মণ্যশক্তি জৈন ও বৌদ্ধ উপপ্লাবনে ভারতের কর্মক্ষেত্র হইতে প্রায় অপসৃত হইয়াছিল, অথবা প্রবল প্রতিদ্বন্দ্বী ধর্মের আঞ্জানুবর্তী হইয়া কথঞ্চিৎ জীবনধারণ করিতেছিল, যাহা মিহিরকুলাদি^২ ভারতাদিকার হইতে কিছুকাল প্রাণপণে পূর্বপ্রাধান্য স্থাপন করিতে চেষ্টা করিয়াছিল, এবং ঐ প্রাধান্যস্থাপনের জন্য মধ্য-এশিয়া হইতে সমাগত তুরকমা বর্বরবাহিনীর পদানত হইয়া, তাহাদের বীভৎস রীতিনীতি স্বদেশে স্থাপন করিয়া, বিদ্যাবিহীন বর্বর ভুলাইবার সোজা পথ মন্ত্রতন্ত্রে-মাত্র-আশ্রয় হইয়া, এবং তজ্জন্য নিজে সর্বতোভাবে হতবিদ্য, হতবীর্য, হতাচার হইয়া আর্ষ্যবর্তকে একটি প্রকান্ড বাম-বীভৎস ও বর্বরচারের আবর্তে পরিণত করিয়াছিল, এবং যাহা কুসংস্কার ও অনাচারের আবর্তে পরিণত করিয়াছিল, এবং যাহা কুসংস্কার ও অনাচারের অবশ্যস্বার্থী ফলস্বরূপ সারহীন ও অতি দুর্বল হইয়া পড়িয়াছিল, পশ্চিম হইতে সমুখিত মুসলমানাক্রমণরূপ প্রবল বায়ুর স্পর্শমাত্রেই তাহা শতধা ভগ্ন হইয়া মৃত্তিকায় পতিত হইল। পুনর্বীর কখনও উঠিবে কি, কে জানে?

মূর্তিপূজাকারী হিন্দু এ জীবনে বলিদান ও অস্ত্র অনন্ত নরকের ভাগী। সেই কাফেরের ধর্মগুরুদিগকে -- পুরোহিতবর্গকে -- দয়া করিয়া কোনও প্রকারে জীবনধারণ করিতে আজ্ঞামাত্র রাজা দিতে পারেন, তাহাও কখন কখন, নতুবা রাজার ধর্মানুরাগ একটু বৃদ্ধি হইলেই কাফের-হত্যারূপ মহাযজ্ঞের আয়োজন।

পদদলিত-পৌরোহিত্যশক্তি মুসলমান রাজা বহু পরিমাণে মৌর্য, গুপ্ত, আন্ধ্র, ক্ষত্রপাদি^{১০} সম্রাটবর্গের গৌরবশ্রী পুনরুদ্ভাসিত করিতে সক্ষম হইয়াছিল।

এই প্রকারে বহু ঘাত-প্রতিঘাতের পর, রাজশক্তির শেষ জয় -- ভিন্ন-ধর্মান্বলম্বী রাজন্যবর্গের নামে কয়েক শতাব্দী ধরিয়া ভারত-আকাশে প্রতিধ্বনিত হইল। কিন্তু এই যুগের শেষভাগে ধীরে ধীরে একটি অভিনব শক্তি ভারত-সংসারে আপনার প্রভাব বিস্তার করিতে লাগিল।

এ শক্তি এত নূতন, ইহার জন্ম-কর্ম ভারতবাসীর পক্ষে এমন অভাবনীয়, ইহার প্রভাব এমনই দুর্ধর্য যে, এখনও অপ্রতিহতদন্ডধারী হইলেও মুষ্টিমেয় মাত্র ভারতবাসী বুঝিতেছে, এ শক্তিটি কি। আমরা ইংলন্ডের ভারতাদিকারের কথা বলিতেছি।

অতি প্রাচীনকাল হইতেই ধনধান্যপূর্ণ ভারতের বিশাল ক্ষেত্র প্রবল বিদেশীর অধিকারস্পৃহা উদ্দীপিত করিয়াছে। বারংবার ভারতবাসী বিজাতীর পদদলিত হইয়াছে। তবে ইংলন্ডের ভারতাদিকার-রূপ বিজয়-ব্যাপারকে

অধ্যাত্মবলে মন্ত্রবলে শাস্ত্রবলে বলীয়ান, শাপাস্ত্র, সংসারস্পৃহাশূন্য তপস্বীর ভ্রুকুটি-সম্মুখে দুর্ধর্ষ রাজশক্তিকে কল্পান্বিত হইতে ভারতবাসী চিরকালই দেখিয়া আসিতেছে। সৈন্যসহায়, মহাবীর, শস্ত্রবল রাজগণের অপ্রতিহত বীর্য ও আকাধিপত্যের সম্মুখে প্রজাকুল -- সিংহের সম্মুখে অজায়ুথের ন্যায়, নিঃশব্দে আঞ্জাবহন করে, তাহাও দেখিয়াছে; কিন্তু যে বৈশ্যকুল -- রাজগণের কথা দূরে থাকুক, রাজকুটুম্বগণের কাহারও সম্মুখে মহাধনশালী হইয়াও সর্বদা বদ্ধহস্ত ও ভয়ত্রস্ত -- মুষ্টিমেয়ে সেই বৈশ্য একত্রিত হইয়া ব্যাপার অনুরোধে^{১২} নদী সমুদ্র উল্লঙ্ঘন করিয়া কেবল বুদ্ধি ও অর্থবলে ধীরে ধীরে চিরপ্রতিষ্ঠিত হিন্দু-মুসলমান রাজগণকে আপনাদের ক্রীড়া-পুত্তলিকা করিয়া ফেলিবে, শুধু তাহাই নহে, স্বদেশীয় রাজন্যগণকেও অর্থবলে আপনাদের ভৃত্যত্ব স্বীকার করাইয়া তাঁহাদের শৌর্যবীর্য ও বিদ্যাবলকে নিজেদের ধনাগমের প্রবল যন্ত্র করিয়া লইবে ও যে দেশের মহাকবির অলৌকিক তুলিকায় উন্মেষিত, গর্বিত লর্ড একজন সাধারণ ব্যক্তিকে বলিতেছেন, ‘পামর, রাজসামন্তের পবিত্র দেহ স্পর্শ করিতে সাহস করিস’ -- অচিরকাল মধ্যে ঐ দেশের প্রবল সামন্তবর্গের উত্তরাধিকারীরা যে ইস্ট ইন্ডিয়া কোম্পানি-নামক বণিকসম্প্রদায়ের আঞ্জাবহ ভৃত্য হইয়া ভারতবর্ষে প্রেরিত হওয়া মানবজীবনের উচ্চাকাঙ্ক্ষার শেষ সোপান ভাবিবে, [ইহা] ভারতবাসী কখনও দেখে নাই!!

বৈশ্যশক্তির অভ্যুদয়

সত্ত্বাদি গুণত্রয়ের বৈষম্য-তারতম্যে প্রসূত ব্রাহ্মণাদি চতুর্বর্ণ সনাতন কাল হইতেই সকল সভ্য সমাজে বিদ্যমান আছে। কালপ্রভাবে আবার দেশভেদে ঐ চতুর্বর্ণের কোন কোনটির সংখ্যাধিক্য বা প্রতাপাধিক্য ঘটিতে থাকে, কিন্তু পৃথিবীর ইতিহাস-আলোচনায় বোধ হয় যে, প্রাকৃতিক নিয়মের বশে ব্রাহ্মণাদি চারি চারি যথাক্রমে বসুন্ধরা ভোগ করিবে।

চীন, সুমের,^{১৩} বাবিল,^{১৪} খলদে,^{১৫} আর্য, ইরানি,^{১৬} ইহুদি আরব -- এই সমস্ত জাতির মধ্যেই সমাজ-নেতৃত্ব প্রথম যুগে ব্রাহ্মণ বা পুরোহিত-হস্তে। দ্বিতীয় যুগে ক্ষত্রিয়কুল অর্থাৎ রাজসমাজ বা একাধিকারী রাজার অভ্যুদয়।

প্রাচীন রাজকুলের বংশধরেরাই সাধারণ ব্যক্তি ও আপনাদিগের দাসবর্গের সহায়তায় ঐ বাণিজ্য করাইতেন এবং তাহার উদ্বৃত্ত ভোগ করিতেন। দেশ-শাসনাদি কার্যে সেই কতিপয় পুরুষ সওয়ায়^{১৭} অন্য কাহারও কোন

বাঙনিম্পত্তির অধিকার ছিল না। মিসরাদি প্রাচীন দেশসমূহে ব্রাহ্মণ্যশক্তি অল্প দিন প্রাধান্য উপভোগ করিয়া রাজন্য-শক্তির অধীন ও সহায় হইয়া বাস করিয়াছিল। চীনদেশে কংফুছের^{১৮} প্রতিভায় কেন্দ্রীভূত রাজশক্তি, সার্বদিসহস্র বৎসরেরও অধিকাল পৌরোহিত্যশক্তিকে আপন ইচ্ছানুসারে পালন করিতেছে এবং গত দুই শতাব্দী ধরিয়া সর্বগ্রাসী তিব্বতীয় লামারা রাজগুরু হইয়াও সর্বপ্রকারে সম্রাটের অধীন হইয়া কালযাপন করিতেছেন।

ভারতবর্ষে রাজশক্তির জয় ও বিকাশ অন্যান্য প্রাচীন সভ্য জাতিদের অপেক্ষা অনেক পরে হইয়াছিল এবং তজ্জন্যই চীন মিসর বাবিলাদি জাতিদিগের অনেক পরে ভারতে সাম্রাজ্যের অভ্যুত্থান। এক ইহুদী জাতির মধ্যে রাজশক্তি বহু চেষ্টা করিয়াও পৌরোহিত্যশক্তির উপর স্বীয় আধিপত্যবিস্তারে সম্পূর্ণ অক্ষম হইয়াছিল। বৈশ্যবর্গও সে দেশে কখনও ক্ষমতা লাভ করে নাই। সাধারণ প্রজা -- পৌরোহিত্যবন্ধনমুক্ত হইবার চেষ্টা করিয়া অভ্যন্তরে ঈশাহী ইত্যাদি ধর্মসম্প্রদায়-সংঘর্ষে ও বাহিরে মহাবল রোমক রাজ্যের পেষণে উৎসন্ন হইয়া গেল।

এইজন্যই পূর্বে বলিয়াছি, এটি অতি অভিনব ব্যাপার -- ইংলন্ডের ভারতবিজয়। এ নূতন মহাশক্তির সংঘর্ষে ভারতে কি নূতন বিপ্লব উপস্থিত হইবে ও তাহার পরিণামে ভারতের কি পরিবর্তন প্রসাধিত হইবে, তাহা ভারতেচিহ্নসের গত কাল হইতে অনুমিত হইবার নহে।

রাজ্যে গতিবিধি রাখেন, সংবাদ আনেন এবং অন্যকে পথ প্রদর্শন করেন। ইঁহারাই পুরোহিত, মানবসমাজের প্রথম গুরু, নেতা ও পরিচালক।

দোষও আছে; প্রাণ-স্বফূর্তির সঙ্গে সঙ্গেই মৃত্যুবীজ উগ্ঠ। অন্ধকার আলোর সঙ্গে সঙ্গে চলে। প্রবল দোষও আছে, যাহা কালে সংঘত না হইলে সমাজের বিনাশ-সাধন করে। স্কুলের মধ্য দিয়া শক্তির বিকাশ সর্বজনীন প্রত্যক্ষ, অস্ত্রশস্ত্রের ছেদ-ভেদ, অগ্ন্যাতির দাহিকাদি শক্তি স্কুল প্রকৃতির প্রবল সংঘর্ষ সকলেই দেখে, সকলেই বুঝে। ইহাতে কাহারও সন্দেহ হয় না, মনেও দ্বিধা থাকে না। কিন্তু যেখানে শক্তির আধার ও বিকাশকেন্দ্র কেবল মানসিক, যেখানে বল কেবল শব্দবিশেষ, উচ্চারণবিশেষ, জপবিশেষ বা অন্যান্য মানসিক প্রয়োগবিশেষ, সেথায় আলোয় আঁধার মিশিয়া আছে, বিশ্বাসে সেথায় জোয়ার-ভাটা স্বাভাবিক, প্রত্যক্ষও সেথায় কখন কখন সন্দেহ হয়। যেথায় রোগ, শোক, ভয়, তাপ, ঈর্ষা, বৈরনির্ঘাতন -- সমস্তই উপস্থিত বাহুবল ছাড়িয়া, স্কুল উপায় ছাড়িয়া ইষ্টসিদ্ধির জন্য কেবল স্তম্ভন, উচ্চাটন, বশীকরণ, মারণাদির আশ্রয় গ্রহণ করে, স্কুল-সূক্ষ্মের মধ্যবর্তী এই কুঞ্জটিকাময় প্রহেলিকাময় জগতে যাঁহারা নিয়ত বাস করেন, তাঁহাদের মধ্যেও যেন একটা ঐ প্রকার ধূম্রময়ভাব আপনা-আপনি প্রবিষ্ট হয়! সে মনের সম্মুখে সরল রেখা প্রায়ই পড়ে না, পড়িলেও মন তাহাকে বক্র করিয়া লয়। ইহার পরিণাম অসরলতা -- হৃদয়ের অতি সঙ্কীর্ণ, অতি অনুদার ভাব; আর সর্বাপেক্ষা মারাত্মক, নিদারুণ ঈর্ষাপ্রসূত অপরাসহিষ্ণুতা। যে বলে, আমার দেবতা বশ, রোগাদির উপর আধিপত্য, ভূতপ্রেতাদির উপর বিজয়, যাহার বিনিময়ে আমার পার্থিব সুখ স্বাচ্ছন্দ্য ঐশ্বর্য, তাহা অন্যকে কেন দিব? আবার তাহা সম্পূর্ণ মানসিক। গোপন করিবার সুবিধা কত! এ ঘটনাচক্রমধ্যে মানবপ্রকৃতির যাহা হইবার তাহাই হয়; সর্বদা আত্মগোপন অভ্যাস করিতে করিতে স্বার্থপরতা ও কপটতার আগমন ও তাহার বিষময় ফল। কালে গোপনচ্ছার প্রতিক্রিয়াও আপনার উপর আসিয়া পড়ে। বিনাভ্যাসে বিনা বিতরণে প্রায় সর্ববিদ্যার নাশ; যাহা বাকি থাকে, তাহাও অলৌকিক দৈব উপায়ে প্রাপ্ত বলিয়া আর তাহাকে মার্জিত করিবারও (নূতন বিদ্যার কথা তো দূরে থাকুক) চেষ্টা বৃথা বলিয়া ধারণা হয়। তাহার পর বিদ্যাহীন, পুরুষকারহীন, পূর্বপুরুষদের নামমাত্রধারী পুরোহিতকুল পৈতৃক অধিকার, পৈতৃক সম্মান, পৈতৃক আধিপত্য অক্ষুণ্ণ রাখিবার জন্য 'যেন তেন প্রকারেণ' চেষ্টা করেন; অন্যান্য জাতির সহিত কাজেই বিষম সংঘর্ষ।

উন্নতির সময় পুরোহিতের যে তপস্যা, যে সংযম, যে ত্যাগ সত্যের অনুসন্ধান সম্যক প্রযুক্ত ছিল, অবনতির পূর্বকালে তাহাই আবার কেবলমাত্র ভোগ্যসংগ্রহ বা আধিপত্য-বিস্তারে সম্পূর্ণ ব্যয়িত। যে শক্তির আধারে তাহার মান, তাহার পূজা, সেই শক্তিই এখন স্বর্গধাম হইতে নরকে সমানীত। উদ্দেশ্য-হারা খেই-হারা পৌরোহিত্যশক্তি উর্গাকীটবৎ আপনার কোষে আপনিই বদ্ধ; যে শৃঙ্খল অপরের পদের জন্য পুরুষানুক্রমে অতি যত্নের সহিত বিনির্মিত, তাহা নিজের গতিশক্তিকে শত বেষ্টনে প্রতিহত করিয়াছে; যে সকল পুঞ্জানুপুঞ্জ বহিঃশুদ্ধির আচার-জাল সমাজকে বজ্রবন্ধনে রাখিবার জন্য চারিদিকে বিস্তৃত হইয়াছিল, তাহারই তন্তুরাশিদ্বারা আপাদমস্তক-বিজড়িত পৌরোহিত্যশক্তি হতাশ হইয়া নিদ্রিত। আর উপায় নাই, এ জাল ছিঁড়িলে আর পুরোহিতের পৌরোহিত্য থাকে না। যাঁহারা এ কঠোর বন্ধনের মধ্যে স্বাভাবিক উন্নতির বাসনা অত্যন্ত প্রতিহত দেখিয়া এ জাল ছিঁড়িয়া অন্যান্য জাতির বৃত্তি-অবলম্বনে ধন-সঞ্চয়ে নিযুক্ত, সমাজ তৎক্ষণাৎ তাঁহাদের পৌরোহিত্য-অধিকার কাড়িয়া লইতেছেন। শিখাহীন টেড়িকাটা, অর্ধ-ইওরোপীয় বেশভূষা-আচারাদি-সুমন্ডিত ব্রাহ্মণের ব্রহ্মণ্যে সমাজ বিশ্বাসী নহেন। আবার -- ভারতবর্ষে যেথায় এই নবাগত ইওরোপীয় রাজ্য, শিক্ষা এবং ধনাগমের উপায় বিস্তৃত হইতেছে, সেথায়ই পুরুষানুক্রমাগত পৌরোহিত্য-ব্যবসা পরিত্যাগ করিয়া দলে দলে ব্রাহ্মণযুবকবৃন্দ অন্যান্য জাতির বৃত্তি অবলম্বন করিয়া ধনবান্ হইতেছে এবং সঙ্গে সঙ্গেই পুরোহিত-পূর্বপুরুষদের আচার-ব্যবহার একেবারে রসাতলে যাইতেছে।

গুর্জরদেশের ব্রাহ্মণজাতির মধ্যে প্রত্যেক অবান্তর সম্প্রদায়েই দুইটি করিয়া ভাগ আছে -- একটি পুরোহিত-ব্যবসায়ী, অপরটি অপর কোন বৃত্তি দ্বারা জীবিকা করে। এই পুরোহিত-ব্যবসায়ী সম্প্রদায়ই উক্ত প্রদেশে ব্রাহ্মণ নামে অভিহিত এবং অপর সম্প্রদায় একই ব্রাহ্মণকুমপ্রসূত হইলেও পুরোহিত ব্রাহ্মণেরা তাঁহাদের সহিত যৌন-সম্বন্ধে আবদ্ধ হন না। যথা 'নাগর ব্রাহ্মণ' বলিলে উক্ত ব্রাহ্মণজাতির মধ্যে যাঁহারা ভিক্ষাবৃত্ত পুরোহিত, তাঁহাদিগকেই বুঝাইবে। 'নাগর' বলিলে উক্ত জাতির যাঁহারা রাজকর্মচারী বা বৈশ্যবৃত্ত তাঁহাদিগকে বুঝায়। কিন্তু এক্ষণে দেখা যাইতেছে যে, উক্ত প্রদেশসমূহেও এ বিভাগ আর বড় চলে না। নাগর ব্রাহ্মণের পুত্রেরাও ইংরেজী পড়িয়া রাজকর্মচারী হইতেছে, অথবা বাণিজ্যাদি ব্যাপার অবলম্বন করিতেছে। টোলের অধ্যাপকেরা সকল কষ্ট সহ্য করিয়া আপনাপন পুত্রদিগকে ইংরেজী বিশ্ববিদ্যালয়ে প্রবেষ্ট করাইতেছেন এবং বৈদ্য-কায়স্থাদির বৃত্তি অবলম্বন করাইতেছেন। যদি এই প্রকার স্রোত চলে, তাহা হইলে বর্তমান পুরোহিত জাতি আর কতদিন এদেশে থাকিবেন, বিবেচ্য বিষয় সন্দেহ নাই। যাঁহারা সম্প্রদায়বিশেষ বা ব্যক্তিবিশেষের উপর ব্রাহ্মণজাতির অধিকার-বিচ্যুতি-চেষ্টারূপ দোষারোপ করেন, তাঁহাদের জানা উচিত যে, ব্রাহ্মণজাতি প্রাকৃতিক অবশ্যম্ভাবী নিয়মের অধীন হইয়া আপনার সমাধিমন্দির আপনিই নির্মাণ করিতেছেন। ইহাই কল্যাণপ্রদ, প্রত্যেক অভিজাত জাতির স্বহস্তে নিজের চিতা নির্মাণ করাই প্রধান কর্তব্য।

অপরদিকে রাজ-সিংহে মুগেন্দ্রের গুণদোষরাশি সমস্তই বিদ্যমান। একদিকে আত্মভোগেচ্ছায় কেশরীর করাল নখরাজি তৃণশূলভোজী পশুকুলের হৃৎপিণ্ড-বিদারণে মুহূর্তও কুণ্ঠিত নহে; আবার কবি বলিতেছেন, ক্ষুৎক্ষাম জরাজীর্ণ হইলেও ক্রোড়াগত জমুক সিংহের ভক্ষ্যরূপে কখনই গৃহীত হয় না। প্রজাকুল রাজ-শাদুনের ভোগেচ্ছার বিষয় উপস্থিত করিলেই তাহাদের সর্বনাশ, বিনীত হইয়া রাজাজ্ঞা শিরোধার্য করিলেই তাহারা নিরাপদ। শুধু তাহাই

মহিমাম্বিত লোকেশ্বর কি পর্ণকুটিরে উন্নত মস্তক লুঙ্কায়িত রাখিতে পারেন, বা জনসাধারণলভ্য ভোজ্যাদি তাঁহার তৃপ্তিসাধনে সক্ষম?

রাজা প্রজাদিগের পিতামাতা, প্রজারা তাঁহার শিশুসন্তান। প্রজাদের সর্বতোভাবে রাজমুখাপেক্ষী হইয়া থাকা উচিত এবং রাজা সর্বদা নিরপেক্ষ হইয়া আপন ঔরসজাত সন্তানের ন্যায় তাহাদিগকে পালন করিবেন। কিন্তু যে নীতি গৃহে প্রয়োজিত তাহা সমগ্র দেশেও প্রচার^{২২}। সমাজ -- গৃহের সমষ্টিমাত্র। ‘প্রাণ্ডে তু ষোড়শে বর্ষে’ যদি প্রতি পিতার পুত্রকে মিত্রের ন্যায় গ্রহণ করা উচিত, সমাজশিশু কি সে ষোড়শবর্ষ কখনই প্রাপ্ত হয় না? ইতিহাসের সাক্ষ্য এই যে, সকল সমাজই এক সময়ে উক্ত যৌবনদশায় উপনীত হয় এবং সকল সমাজেই সাধারণ ব্যক্তিনিচয়ের সহিত

^{২১} ক্ষত্র ও মন্ত্রশক্তি সহায় যাহার

^{২২} প্রয়োজ্য

শক্তিমান শাসনকারীদের সংঘর্ষ উপস্থিত হয়। এ যুদ্ধের জয়পরাজয়ের উপর সমাজের প্রাণ-বিকাশ ও সভ্যতা নির্ভর করে।

ভারতবর্ষ ধর্মপ্রাণ, ধর্মই এ দেশের ভাষা এবং সকল উদ্যোগের লিঙ্গ^{২৩}। বারংবার এ বিপ্লব ভারতেও ঘটিতেছে, কেবল এ দেশে তাহা ধর্মের নামে সংসাধিত। চার্বাক, জৈন, বৌদ্ধ, শঙ্কর, রামানুজ, কবীর, নানক, চৈতন্য, ব্রাহ্মসমাজ, আর্যসমাজ ইত্যাদি সমস্ত সম্প্রদায়ের মধ্যে সম্মুখে ফেনিল বজ্রঘোষী ধর্মতরঙ্গ, পশ্চাতে সমাজনৈতিক অভাবের পূরণ। অর্থহীন শব্দনিচয়ের উচ্চারণে যদি সর্বকামনা সিদ্ধ হয়, তাহা হইলে কে আর রসনাতৃপ্তির জন্য কষ্টসাধ্য পুরুষকারকে অমলম্বন করিবে? সমগ্র সমাজ-শরীরে যদি এই রোগ প্রবেশ করে, সমাজ একেবারে উদ্যমবিহীন হইয়া বিনাশপ্রাপ্ত হইবে। কাজেই প্রত্যক্ষবাদী চার্বাকদিগের তুণ্ডমাংসভেদী শ্লেষের আবির্ভাব। পশুমেধ, নরমেধ, অশ্বমেধ ইত্যাদি বহুল কর্মকাণ্ডের প্রাণ-নিষ্পীড়ক ভার হইতে সমাজকে সদাচার ও জ্ঞানমাত্রাশ্রয় জৈন এবং অধিকৃত^{২৪} জাতিদিগের নিদারণ অত্যাচার হইতে নিম্নস্তরস্থ মনুষ্যকুলকে বৌদ্ধ-বিপ্লব ভিন্ন কে উদ্ধার করিত? কালে যখন বৌদ্ধধর্মের প্রবল সদাচার মহা অনাচারে পরিণত হইল ও সাম্যবাদের আতিশয্যে স্বগৃহে প্রবিষ্ট নানা বর্বরজাতির পৈশাচিক নৃত্যে সমাজ টলটলায়মান হইল, তখন যথাসম্ভব পূর্বভাব-পুনঃস্থাপনের জন্য শঙ্কর ও রামানোজের চেষ্টা। আবার কবীর, নানক, চৈতন্য, ব্রাহ্মসমাজ ও আর্যসমাজ না জন্মগ্রহণ করিলে হিন্দু অপেক্ষা মুসলমান ও খ্রিস্টীয়ানের সংখ্যা যে ভারতে অনেক অধিক হইত, তাহাতে সন্দেহমাত্রও নাই।

ব্যষ্টি ও সমষ্টি জীবন

সমষ্টির জীবনে ব্যষ্টির জীবন, সমষ্টির সুখে ব্যষ্টির সুখ, সমষ্টি ছাড়িয়া ব্যষ্টির অস্তিত্বই অসম্ভব, এ অনন্ত সত্য -- জগতের মূল ভিত্তি। অনন্ত সমষ্টির দিকে সহানুভূতিযোগে তাহার সুখে সুখ, দুঃখে দুঃখ ভোগ করিয়া শনৈঃ অগ্রসর হওয়াই ব্যষ্টির একমাত্র কর্তব্য। শুধু কর্তব্য নহে, ইহার ব্যতিক্রমে মৃত্যু -- পালনে অমরত্ব। প্রকৃতির চক্ষে ধূলি দিবার শক্তি কাহার? সমাজের চক্ষে অনেক দিন ঠুলি দেওয়া চলে না। উপরে আবর্জনারাশি যতই কেন সঞ্চিত হউক না, সেই স্তূপের তলদেশে প্রেমস্বরূপ নিঃস্বার্থ সামাজিক জীবনের প্রাণস্পন্দন হইতেছে। সর্বসহা ধরিত্রীর ন্যায় সমাজ অনেক সহেন, কিন্তু একদিন না একদিন জাগিয়া উঠেন এবং সে উদ্বোধনের বীর্যে যুগযুগান্তের সঞ্চিত মলিনতা ও স্বার্থপরতারশি দূরে নিক্ষিপ্ত হয়।

তমসাচ্ছন্ন পাশবপ্রকৃতি মানুষ আমরা সহস্রবার ঠেকিয়াও এ মহান সত্যে বিশ্বাস করি না, সহস্রবার ঠেকিয়াও আবার ঠেকাইতে যাই -- উন্মত্তবৎ কল্পনা করি যে, আমরা প্রকৃতিকে বঞ্চনা করিতে সক্ষম। অত্যালাপদর্শী -- মনে করি, যে কোন প্রকারে হউক, নিজের স্বার্থসাধনই জীবনের চরম উদ্দেশ্য।

^{২৪} বিশেষ অধিকারভোগী

যে মহাশক্তির ভূভঙ্গে ‘খরখরি রক্ষনাথ কাঁপে লঙ্কাপুরে’, যাহার হস্তধৃত সুবর্ণভান্ডরূপ বকান্ড-প্রত্যাশায় মহারাজ হইতে ভিক্ষুক পর্যন্ত বকপঙ্ক্তির ন্যায় বিনীতমস্তকে পশ্চাদ্গমন করিতেছে, সেই বৈশ্যশক্তির বিকাশই পূর্বোক্ত প্রতিক্রিয়ার ফল।

ব্রাহ্মণ বলিলেন, বিদ্যা সকল বলের বল, ‘আমি সেই বিদ্যা-উপজীবী, সমাজ আমার শাসনে চলিবে’ -- দিনকতক তাহাই হইল। ক্ষত্রিয় বলিলেন, ‘আমার অঙ্গবল না থাকিলে বিদ্যাবল-সহিত কোথায় লোপ পাইয়া যাও, আমিই শ্রেষ্ঠ।’ কোষমধ্যে অসি-বানৎকার হইল, সমাজ অবনতমস্তকে [উহা] গ্রহণ করিল। বিদ্যার উপাসকও সর্বাগ্রে রাজোপাসকে পরিণত হইলেন! বৈশ্য বলিতেছেন, “উন্মাদ! ‘অখন্ডমন্ডলাকারং ব্যাণ্ডং যেন চরাচরং’ তোমরা যাঁহাকে বল, তিনিই এই মুদ্রারূপী অনন্তশক্তিমান আমার হস্তে দেখ, ইঁহার কৃপায় আমিও সর্বশক্তিমান। হে ব্রাহ্মণ, তোমার তপ, জপ, বিদ্যাবুদ্ধি -- ইঁহারই প্রসাদে আমি এখনই ক্রয় করিব। হে মহারাজ, তোমার অঙ্গশস্ত্র, তেজবীর্জ -- ইঁহার কৃপায় আমার অভিমতসিদ্ধির জন্য প্রযুক্ত হইবে। এই যে অতিবিস্তৃত, অত্যন্ত কারখানাসকল দেখিতেছে, এহার আমার মধুক্রম। ঐ দেখ, অসংখ্য মক্ষিকারূপী শূদ্রবর্গ তাহাতে অনবরত মধুসংঘে করিতেছে, কিন্তু সে মধু পান করিবে কে? -- আমি। যথাকালে আমি পশ্চাদ্দেশ হইতে সমস্ত মধু নিষ্পীড়ন করিয়া লইতেছি।”

ব্রাহ্মণ-ক্ষত্রিয়াধিপত্যে যে প্রকার বিদ্যা ও সভ্যতার সংঘে, বৈশ্যাধিকারে সেই প্রকার ধনের। যে টঙ্কবাক্সার চাতুর্বর্ণ্যের মনোহরণ করিতে সক্ষম, বৈশ্যের বল সেই ধন। সে ধন পাছে ব্রাহ্মণ ঠকায়, পাছে ক্ষত্রিয় বলাৎকার দ্বারা গ্রহণ করে, বৈশ্যের সদাই এই ভয়। আত্মরক্ষার্থ সেজন্য শ্রেষ্ঠিকুল একমতি। কুসীদ-কশাহস্ত বণিক -- সকলের হৃৎকম্প-উৎপাদক। অর্থবলে রাজশক্তিকে সংকীর্ণ করিতে বণিক সদাই ব্যস্ত। যাহাতে রাজশক্তি বৈশ্যবর্গের ধনধান্য-সংঘের কোন বাধা না জন্মাইতে পারে, সে জন্য বণিক সদাই সচেষ্ট। কিন্তু শূদ্রকুলে সে শক্তি সংঘার হয় - - বণিকের এ ইচ্ছা আদৌ নাই।

এদেশের কথা কি বলিব? শূদ্রদের কথা দূরে থাকুক; ভারতের ব্রহ্মণ্য এক্ষণে অধ্যাপক গৌরাঙ্গে, ক্ষত্রিয়ত্ব রাজচক্রবর্তী ইংরেজে, বৈশত্বও ইংরেজের অস্থিমজ্জায়; ভারতবাসীর কেবল ভারবাহী পশুত্ব, কেবল শূদ্রত্ব দুর্ভেদ্য তমসাবরণ এখন সকলকে সমানভাবে আছন্ন করিয়াছে। এখন চেষ্টায় তেজ নাই, উদ্যোগে সাহস নাই, মনে বল নাই, অপমানে ঘৃণা নাই, দাসত্বে অরুচি নাই, হৃদয়ে প্রীতি নাই, প্রাণে আশা নাই; আছে প্রবল ঈর্ষা, স্বজাতিদেষ, আছে দুর্বলের 'যেন তেন প্রকারে' সর্বনাশসাধনে একান্ত ইচ্ছা, আর বলবানের কুকুরবৎ পদলেহনে। এখন তৃপ্তি ঐশ্বর্য-প্রদর্শনে, ভক্তি স্বার্থসাধনে, জ্ঞান অনিত্যবস্তুরসংগ্রহে, যোগ পৈশাচিক আচারে, কর্ম পরের দাসত্বে, সভ্যতা বিজাতীয় অনুকরণে, বাগ্মিত্ব কটুভাষণে, ভাষার উৎকর্ষ ধনীদেব অত্যন্ত চাটুবাদে বা জঘন্য অশ্লীলতা-বিকরণে; এ শূদ্রপূর্ণ দেশের শূদ্রদের কা কথা! ভারতের দেশের শূদ্রকুল যেন কিঞ্চিৎ বিন্দ্র হইয়াছে। কিন্তু তাহাদের বিদ্যা নাই, আর আছে শূদ্রসাধারণ স্বজাতিদেষ। সংখ্যায় বহু হইলে কি হয়? যে একতাবলে দশ জনে লক্ষ জনের শক্তি সংগ্রহ করে, সে একতা শূদ্রে একনও বহুদুর; শূদ্রজাতিমাত্রই এজন্য নৈসর্গিক নিয়মে পরাধীন।

বেশ্যাপুত্র বশিষ্ঠ^{২৭} ও নারদ, দাসীপুত্র জাবাল, ধীবর^{২৮} ব্যাস, অজ্ঞাতপিতা কৃপ-দ্রোণ-কর্ণাদি সকলেই বিদ্যা বা বীরত্বের আধার বলিয়া ব্রাহ্মণত্বে বা ক্ষত্রিয়ত্বে উত্তোলিত হইল; তাহাতে বারাঙ্গনা, দাসী, ধীবর বা সারথিকুলের কি লাভ হইল বিবেচ্য। আবার ব্রাহ্মণ, ক্ষত্রিয়, বৈশ্যকুল হইতে পতিতেরা সততই শূদ্রকুলে সমানীত হইত।

একান্ত স্বজাতি-বাৎসল্য ও একান্ত ইরান-বিদেষ গ্রীকজাতির, কার্থেজ-বিদেষ রোমের, কাফের-বিদেষ আরবজাতির, মূর-বিদেষ স্পেনের, স্পেন-বিদেষ ফ্রান্সের, ফ্রান্স-বিদেষ ইংলন্ড ও জার্মানির এবং ইংলন্ড-বিদেষ আমেরিকার উন্নতির (প্রতিদ্বন্দ্বিতা সমাধান করিয়া) এক প্রদান কারণ নিশ্চিত।

স্বার্থই স্বার্থত্যাগের প্রধান শিক্ষক। ব্যষ্টির স্বার্থরক্ষার জন্য সমষ্টির কল্যাণের দিকে প্রথম দৃষ্টিপাত। স্বজাতির স্বার্থে নিজের স্বার্থ; স্বজাতির কল্যাণে নিজের কল্যাণ। বহুজনের সহায়তা ভিন্ন অধিকাংশ কার্য কোনওমতে চলে না, আত্মরক্ষা পর্যন্ত অসম্ভব। এই স্বার্থরক্ষার্থ সহকারিত্ব সর্বদেশে সর্বজাতিতে বিদ্যমান। তবে স্বার্থের পরিধির তারতম্য আছে। প্রজোৎপাদন ও 'যেন তেন প্রকারেণ' উদরপূর্তির অবসর পাইলেই ভারতবাসীর সম্পূর্ণ স্বার্থসিদ্ধি; আর উচ্চবর্ণের -- ইহার উপর ধর্মের বাধা না হয়। এতদপেক্ষা বর্তমান ভারতে দূরাশা আর নাই; ইহাই ভারত-জীবনের উচ্চতম সোপান।

ভারতবর্ষের বর্তমান শাসনপ্রণালীতে কতকগুলি দোষ বিদ্যমান, কতকগুলি প্রবল গুণও আছে। সর্বাপেক্ষা কল্যাণ এই যে, পাটলিপুত্র-সাম্রাজ্যের অধঃপতন হইতে বর্তমান কাল পর্যন্ত, এ প্রকার শক্তিমান ও সর্বব্যাপী শাসনযন্ত্র অস্মদেশে পরিচালিত হয় নাই। বৈশ্যাধিকারের যে চেষ্টায় এক প্রান্তের পণ্যদ্রব্য অন্য প্রান্তে উপনীত হইতেছে, সেই চেষ্টারই ফলে দেশ-দেশান্তরের ভাবরাশি বলপূর্বক ভারতের অস্মিজ্জায় প্রবেশ করিতেছে। এই সকল ভাবের মধ্যে কতকগুলি অতি কল্যাণকর, কতকগুলি অমঙ্গলস্বরূপ, আর কতকগুলি পরদেশবাসীর -- এ দেশের যথার্থ কল্যাণনির্ধারণে অজ্ঞতার পরিচায়ক।

সম্পূর্ণ স্বাধীন স্বৈচ্ছাচারী রাজার অধীনে বিজিত জাতি বিশেষ ঘৃণার পাত্র হয় না। অপ্রতিহতশক্তি সম্রাটের সকল প্রজারই সমান অধিকার, অর্থাৎ কোন প্রজারই রাজশক্তির নিয়মনে কিছুমাত্র অধিকার নাই। সে হুলে জাত্যভিমানজনিত বিশেষাধিকার অল্পই থাকে। কিন্তু যেখানে প্রজানিয়মিত রাজা বা প্রজাতন্ত্র বিজিত জাতির শাসন করে, সে স্থানে বিজয়ী ও বিজিতের মধ্যে অতি বিস্তীর্ণ ব্যবধান নির্মিত হয়, এবং যে শক্তি বিজিতদিগের কল্যাণে সম্পূর্ণ নিযুক্ত হইলে অত্যল্পকালে বিজিত জাতির বহুকল্যাণসাধনে সমর্থ, সে শক্তির অধিকাংশ ভাগই বিজিত জাতিকে স্ববশে রাখিবার চেষ্টায় ও আয়োজনে প্রযুক্ত হইয়া বৃথা ব্যয়িত হয়। প্রজাতন্ত্র রোমাপেক্ষা সম্রাটধিষ্ঠিত রোমক-শাসনে বিজাতীয় প্রজাদের সুখ অধিক এজন্যই হইয়াছিল। এজন্যই বিজিত ইহুদীবংশসম্বৃত হইয়াও খ্রীষ্টধর্মপ্রচারক পৌল (St. Paul) কেশরী (Cæsar) সম্রাটের^{৩১} সমক্ষে আপনার অপরাধ-বিচারের ক্ষমতা প্রাপ্ত হইয়াছিলেন। ব্যক্তিবিশেষ ইংরেজ কৃষ্ণবর্ণ বা 'নেটিভ' অর্থাৎ অসভ্য বলিয়া আমাদের অধিকাংশকে অবজ্ঞা করিল। ইহাতে ক্ষতি-বৃদ্ধি নাই। আমাদের আপনার মধ্যে তদপেক্ষা অনেক অধিক জাতিগত ঘৃণাবুদ্ধি আছে; এবং মূর্খ ক্ষত্রিয় রাজা সহায় হইলে ব্রাহ্মণেরা যে শূদ্রদের 'জিহ্বাচ্ছেদ, শরীরভেদাদি' পুনরায় করিবার চেষ্টা করিবেন না, কে বলিতে পারে? প্রাচ্য আর্যাবর্তে সকল জাতির মধ্যে যে সামাজিক উন্নতিকল্পে কিঞ্চিৎ সন্ধান দৃষ্ট হইতেছে, মহারাষ্ট্রদেশে ব্রাহ্মণেরা 'মারাঠা' জাতির যে সকল স্তবস্তুতি আরম্ভ করিয়াছেন, নিম্ন জাতিদের -- এখনও তাহা নিঃস্বার্থভাব হইতে সমুখিত বলিয়া ধারণা হইতেছে না। কিন্তু ইংরেজ-সাধারণের মনে ক্রমশঃ এক ধারণা উপস্থিত হইতেছে যে, ভারতসাম্রাজ্য তাঁহাদের অধিকারচ্যুত হইলে ইংরেজজাতির সর্বনাশ উপস্থিত হইবে। অতএব 'যেন তেন প্রকারে' ভারতে ইংলন্ডাধিকার প্রবল রাখিতে হইবে। এই অধিকার-রক্ষার প্রধান উপায় ভারতবাসীর বক্ষে ইংরেজজাতির 'গৌরব' সদা জাগরুক রাখা। এই বুদ্ধির প্রাবল্য ও তাহার সহযোগী চেষ্টার উত্তরোত্তর বৃদ্ধি দেখিয়া যুগপৎ হাস্য ও করুণরসের উদয় হয়। ভারতনিবাসী ইংরেজ বুঝি ভুলিয়া যাইতেছেন যে, যে বীর্য অধ্যবসায় ও

পূর্বেই বলা হইয়াছে যে, বাহ্য জাতির সংঘর্ষে ভারত ক্রমে বিনীত হইতেছে। এই অল্প জাগরুকতার ফলস্বরূপ স্বাধীন চিন্তার কিঞ্চিৎ উন্মেষ। একদিকে প্রত্যক্ষশক্তি-সংগ্রহরূপ-প্রমাণ-বাহন, শতসূর্য-জ্যোতি, আধুনিক পাশ্চাত্য বিজ্ঞানের দৃষ্টিপ্রতিঘাতি-প্রভা; অপরদিকে স্বদেশী বিদেশী বহুমনীষি-উদ্ঘাটিত, যুগযুগান্তরের সহানুভূতিযোগে সর্বশরীরে ক্ষিপ্রসঞ্চরী, বলদ, আশাপ্রদ, পূর্বপুরুষদিগের অপূর্ব বীর্য, অমানব প্রতিভা ও দেবদুর্লভ অধ্যাত্মতত্ত্বকাহিনী। একদিকে জড়বিজ্ঞান, প্রচুর ধনধান্য, প্রভূত বলসঞ্চয়, তীব্র ইন্দ্রিয়সুখ, বিজাতীয় ভাষায় মহাকোলাহল উত্থাপিত করিগাছে; অপরদিকে এই মহাকোলাহল ভেদ করিয়া ক্ষীণ অথচ মর্মভেদী স্বরে পূর্বদেবদিগের^{৩২} আর্তনাদ কর্ণে প্রবেশ করিতেছে। সম্মুখে বিচিত্র যান, বিচিত্র পান, সুসজ্জিত ভোজন, বিচিত্র পরিচ্ছদে লজ্জাহীনা বিদুষী নারীকুল, নূতন ভাব, নূতন ভঙ্গী অপূর্ব বাসনায় উদয় করিতেছে; আবার মধ্যে মধ্যে সে দৃশ্য অন্তহিত হইয়া ব্রত-উপবাস, সীতা-সাবিত্রী, তপোবন-জটাবঙ্কল, কাষায়-কৌপীন, সমাধি-আত্মানুসন্ধান উপস্থিত হইতেছে। একদিকে পাশ্চাত্য সমাজের স্বার্থপর স্বাধীনতা, অপরদিকে আর্যসমাজের কঠোর আত্ম-বলিদান। এ বিষম সংঘর্ষে সমাজ যে আন্দোলিত হইবে -- তাহাতে বিচিত্রতা কি? পাশ্চাত্যে উদ্দেশ্য -- ব্যক্তিগত স্বাধীনতা, ভাষা -- অর্থকরী বিদ্যা, উপায় -- রাষ্ট্রনীতি। ভারতে উদ্দেশ্য -- মুক্তি, ভাষা -- বেদ, উপায় -- ত্যাগ। বর্তমান ভারত একবার যেন বুঝিতেছে, বৃথা ভবিষ্যৎ অধ্যাত্মকল্যাণের মোহে পড়িয়া ইহলোকের সর্বনাশ করিতেছি; আবার মন্ত্রমুগ্ধবৎ শুনিতেছি : 'ইতি সংসারে স্ফুটতরদোষণঃ। কথমিহ মানব তব সন্তোষণঃ।'^{৩৩}

একদিকে নব্যভারত-ভারতী বলিতেছেন -- পতিপত্নী-নির্বাচনে আমাদের সম্পূর্ণ স্বাধীনতা হওয়া উচিত, কারণ যে বিবাহে আমাদের সমস্ত ভবিষ্যৎ জীবনের সুখদুঃখ, তাহা আমরা স্বেচ্ছাপ্রণোদিত হইয়া নির্বাচন করিব; অপরদিকে প্রাচীন ভারত আদেশ করিতেছেন -- বিবাহ ইন্দ্রিয়সুখের জন্য নহে, প্রজোৎপাদনের জন্য। ইহাই এ দেশের ধারণা। প্রজোৎপাদন দ্বারা সমাজের ভাবী মঙ্গলামঙ্গলের তুমি ভাগী, অতএব যে প্রণালীতে বিবাহ করিলে সমাজের সর্বাপেক্ষা কল্যাণ সম্ভব, তাহাই সমাজে প্রচলিত; তুমি বহুজনের হিতের জন্য নিজের সুখভোগেচ্ছা ত্যাগ কর।

একদিকে নব্যভারত বলিতেছেন -- পাশ্চাত্য ভাব, ভাষা, আহার, পরিচ্ছদ ও আচার অবমম্বন করিলেই আমরা পাশ্চাত্য জাতিদের নতায় বলবীর্যসম্পন্ন হইব; অপরদিকে প্রাচীন ভারত বলিতেছেন -- মূর্খ! অনুকরণ দ্বারা পরের ভাব আপনার হয় না, অর্জন না করিলে কোন বস্তুই নিজের হয় না; সিংহ-চর্মে আচ্ছাদিত হইলেই কি গদর্ভ সিংহ হয়?

^{৩৩} 'মোহমুদগর', শঙ্করাচার্য

একদিকে নব্যভারত বলিতেছেন -- পাশ্চাত্য জাতির যাহা করে তাহাই ভাল; ভাল না হইলে উহারা এত প্রবল কি প্রকারে হইল? অপরদিকে প্রাচীন ভারত বলিতেছেন -- বিদ্যুতের আলোক অতি পরবল, কিন্তু ক্ষণস্থায়ী; বালক, তোমার চক্ষু প্রতিহত হইতেছে, সাবধান!

তবে কি আমাদের পাশ্চাত্য জগৎ হইতে শিখিবার কিছুই নাই? আমাদের কি চেষ্টা-যত্ন করিবার কোন প্রয়োজন নাই? আমরা কি সম্পূর্ণ? আমাদের সমাজ কি সর্বতোভাবে নিশ্চিহ্ন? শিখিবার অনেক আছে, যত্ন আমরণ করিতে হইবে, যত্নই মানবজীবনের উদ্দেশ্য। শ্রীরামকৃষ্ণ বলিতেন, ‘যতদিন বাঁচি, ততদিন শিখি।’ যে ব্যক্তি বা যে সমাজের শিখিবার কিছুই নাই, তাহা মৃত্যুমুখে পতিত হইয়াছে। [শিখিবার] আছে, -- কিন্তু ভয়ও আছে।

কোনও অল্পবুদ্ধি বালক শ্রীরামকৃষ্ণের সমক্ষে সর্বদাই শাস্ত্রের নিন্দা করিত। একদা সে গীতার অত্যন্ত প্রশংসা করে। তাহাতে শ্রীরামকৃষ্ণ বলেন, ‘বুঝি, কোনও ইংরেজ পণ্ডিত গীতার প্রশংসা করিয়াছে, তাহাতে এও প্রশংসা করিল।

হে ভারত, ইহাই প্রবল বিভীষিকা। পাশ্চাত্য-অনুকরণ-মোহ এমনই প্রবল হইতেছে যে, ভালমন্দের জ্ঞান আর বুদ্ধি বিচার শাস্ত্র [বা] বিবেকের দ্বারা নিষ্পন্ন হয় না। শ্বেতাঙ্গ যে ভাবে, যে আচারের প্রশংসা করে, তাহাই ভাল; তাহারা যাহার নিন্দা করে, তাহাই মন্দ। হা ভাগ্য, ইহা অপেক্ষা নির্বুদ্ধিতার পরিচয় কি?

পাশ্চাত্য নারী স্বাধীনভাবে বিচরণ করে, অতএব তাহাই ভাল; পাশ্চাত্য নারী স্বয়ংবরা, অতএব তাহাই উন্নতির উচ্চতম সোপান; পাশ্চাত্য পুরুষ আমাদের বেশ-ভূষা অশন-বসন ঘৃণা করে, অতএব তাহা অতি মন্দ; পাশ্চাত্যেরা মূর্তিপূজা দোষাবহ বলে, মূর্তিপূজা দূষিত, সন্দেহ কি?

পাশ্চাত্যেরা একটি দেবতার পূজা মঙ্গলপ্রদ বলে, অতএব আমাদের দেবদেবী গঙ্গাজলে বিসর্জন দাও। পাশ্চাত্যেরা জাতিভেদ ঘৃণিত বলিয়া জানে, অতএব সর্ব বর্ণ একাকার হও। পাশ্চাত্যেরা বাল্যবিবাহ সর্ব দোষের আকর বলে, অতএব তাহাও অতি মন্দ -- নিশ্চিত।

আমরা এই সকল প্রথা রক্ষণোপযোগী বা ত্যাগযোগ্য -- এহার বিচার করিতেছি না; তবে যদি পাশ্চাত্যদিগের অবজ্ঞাদৃষ্টিমাত্রই আমাদের রীতি-নীতির জঘন্যতার কারণ হয়, তাহার প্রতিবাদ অবশ্য কর্তব্য।

বর্তমান লেখকের পাশ্চাত্য সমাজের কিঞ্চিৎ প্রত্যক্ষ জ্ঞান আছে; তাহাতে ইহাই ধারণা হইয়াছে যে, পাশ্চাত্য সমাজ ও ভারত সমাজের মূল গতি ও উদ্দেশ্যের এতই পার্থক্য যে, পাশ্চাত্য অনুকরণে গঠিত সম্প্রদায়মাত্রই এদেশে নিষ্ফল হইবে। যাঁহারা পাশ্চাত্য সমাজে বসবাস না করিয়া, পাশ্চাত্য সমাজের স্ত্রীজাতির পবিত্রতারক্ষার জন্য স্ত্রী-পুরুষ-সংমিশ্রণের যে সকল নিয়ম ও বাধা প্রচলিত অআছে, তাহা না জানিয়া স্ত্রী-পুরুষের অবাধ সংমিশ্রণ প্রশয় দেন, তাঁহাদের সহিত আমাদের অণুমাত্রও সহানুভূতি নাই। পাশ্চাত্য দেশেও দেখিয়াছি, দুর্বল জাতির সন্তানেরা ইংলন্ডে যদি জন্মিয়া থাকে, আপনাদিগকে স্প্যানিয়ার্ড, পোর্তুগীজ, গ্রীক ইত্যাদি না বলিয়া, ইংরেজ বলিয়া পরিচয় দেয়।

কুলীন ব্রাহ্মণের বংশমর্যাদা বিলীন হইয়া যায়। আর পাশ্চাত্যেরা এক্ষণে শিক্ষা দিয়াছে যে, ঐ যে কটিতটমাত্র-
আচ্ছাদনকারী অজ্ঞ, মূর্খ, নীচজাতি, উহারা অনার্যজাতি!! উহারা আর আমাদের নহে!!

স্বদেশমন্ত্র

হে ভারত, এই পরানুবাদ, পরানুকরণ, পরমুখাপেক্ষা, এই দাসসুলভ দুর্বলতা, এই ঘৃণিত জঘন্য নিষ্ঠুরতা --
এইমাত্র সম্বলে তুমি উচ্চাধিকার লাভ করিবে? হে ভারত, ভুলিও না -- তোমার নারীজাতির আদর্শ সীতা, সাবিত্রী,
দময়ন্তী; ভুলিও না -- তোমার উপাস্য উমানাথ সর্বত্যাগী শঙ্কর; ভুলিও না -- তোমার বিবাহ, তোমার ধন, তোমার
জীবন ইন্দ্রিয়সুখের -- নিজের ব্যক্তিগত সুখের জন্য নহে, ভুলিও না -- তুমি জন্ম হইতেই 'মায়ের' জন্য বলিপ্রদত্ত;
ভুলিও না -- তোমার সমাজ সে বিরাট মহামায়ার ছায়ামাত্র; ভুলিও না -- নীচজাতি, মূর্খ, দরিদ্র অজ্ঞ, মুচি, মেথর
তোমার রক্ত, তোমার ভাই! হে বীর, সাহস অবলম্বন কর; সদর্পে বল -- আমি ভারতবাসী, ভারতবাসী আমার ভাই।
বল -- মূর্খ ভারতবাসী, দরিদ্র ভারতবাসী, ব্রাহ্মণ ভারতবাসী, চন্ডাল ভারতবাসী আমার ভাই; তুমিও কটিমাত্র
বস্ত্রাবৃত হইয়া, সদর্পে ডাকিয়া বল -- ভারতবাসী আমার ভাই, ভারতবাসী আমার প্রাণ, ভারতের দেবদেবী আমার
ঈশ্বর, ভারতের সমাজ আমার শিশুশয্যা, আমার যৌবনের উপবন, আমার বার্ষিক্যের বারাণসী; বল ভাই -- ভারতের
মৃত্তিকা আমার স্বর্গ, ভারতের কল্যাণ আমার কল্যাণ; আর বল দিন-রাত, 'হে গৌরীনাথ, হে জগদম্বে, আমায়
মনুষ্যত্ব দাও; মা, আমার দুর্বলতা কাপুরুষতা দূর কর, আমায় মানুষ কর।'

মহাশয়াসু

এক্ষণে রাজা সামাজিক কোন বিষয়ে হাত দেন না, অথচ ভারতীয় জনমানবের আত্মনির্ভরতা দূরে থাকুক, আত্মপ্রত্যয় পর্যন্ত এখনও অণুমাত্র হয় নাই। যে আত্মপ্রত্যয় বেদান্তের ভিত্তি তাহা এখনও ব্যবহারিক অবস্থায় কিছুমাত্রও পরিণত হয় নাই। এইজন্যই পাশ্চাত্য প্রণালী অর্থাৎ প্রথমতঃ উদ্দিষ্ট বিষয়ের আন্দোলন পরে সকলে মিলিয়া কর্তব্যসাধন, এ দেশে এখনও ফলদায়ক হয় না; এইজন্যই আমরা বিজাতীয় রাজার অধীনে এত অধিক স্থিতিশীল বলিয়া প্রতীত হই। এ কথা যদি সত্য হয়, তাহা হইলে সাধারণে আন্দোলনের দ্বারা কোন মহৎকার্য করার চেষ্টা বৃথা, ‘মাথা নেই তার মাথা ব্যথা’ -- সাধারণ কোথা? তাহার উপর আমরা এতই বীর্যহীন যে, কোন বিষয়ের আন্দোলন করিতে গেলে তাহাতেই আমাদের বল নিঃশেষিত হয়, কার্যের জন্য কিছুমাত্রও বাকি থাকে না; এইজন্যই বোধ হয় আমরা প্রায়ই বঙ্গভূমে ‘বহ্নারস্তে লঘুক্ৰিয়া’ সতত প্রত্যক্ষ করি। দ্বিতীয়তঃ যে প্রকার পূর্বেই লিখিয়াছি -- ভারতবর্ষের ধনীদিগের নিকট কোন আশা করি না। যাহাদের উপর আশা, অর্থাৎ যুবক সম্প্রদায় -- ধীর, স্থির অথচ নিঃশব্দে তাহাদিগের মধ্যে কার্য করাই ভাল। এক্ষণে কার্য: ‘আধুনিক সভ্যতা’ পাশ্চাত্যদেশের ও ‘প্রাচীন সভ্যতা’ ভারত, মিসর, রোমকাদি দেশের মধ্যে সেইদিন হইতেই প্রভেদ আরম্ভ হইল, যেদিন হইতে শিক্ষা, সভ্যতা প্রভৃতি উচ্চজাতি হইতে ক্রমশঃ নিম্নজাতিদিগের মধ্যে প্রসারিত হইতে লাগিল। প্রত্যক্ষ দেখিতেছি, যে জাতির মধ্যে জনসাধারণের ভিতর বিদ্যাবুদ্ধি যত পরিমাণে প্রচারিত, সে জাতি তত পরিমাণে উন্নত। ভারতবর্ষের যে সর্বনাশ হইয়াছে, তাহার মূল কারণ এটি -- রাজশাসন ও দস্তবলে দেশের সমগ্র বিদ্যাবুদ্ধি এক মুষ্টিমেয় লোকের মধ্যে

নিরামিষ ভোজন সম্বন্ধে আমার বক্তব্য এই -- প্রথমতঃ আমার গুরু নিরামিষাশী ছিলেন; তবে দেবীর প্রসাদ মাংস কেহ দিলে অঙ্গুলি দ্বারা মস্তকে স্পর্শ করিতেন। জীবহত্যা পাপ, তাহাতে আর সন্দেহ নাই, তবে যতদিন রাসায়নিক উন্নতির দ্বারা উদ্ভিজ্জাদি মনুষ্যশরীরের উপযোগী খাদ্য না হয়, ততদিন মাংসভোজন ভিন্ন উপায় নাই। যতদিন মনুষ্যকে আধুনিক অবস্থার মধ্যে থাকিয়া রজোগুণের ক্রিয়া করিতে হইবে, ততদিন মাংসাদন বিনা উপায় নাই। মহারাজ অশোক তরবারির দ্বারা দশ-বিশ লক্ষ জানোয়ারের প্রাণ বাঁচাইলেন বটে, কিন্তু হাজার বৎসরের দাসত্ব কি তদপেক্ষা আরও ভয়ানক নহে? দু-দশটা ছাগলের প্রাণনাশ বা আমার [অথাৎ নিজের] স্ত্রী-কন্যার মর্যাদা রাখিতে

^২ বিস্তারিত জীবনের চিহ্ন, আমাদের আধ্যাত্মিক আর্দশ লিয়া আমাদের পৃথিবীর সর্বত্র ছড়াইয়া পড়িতে হইবে।

^৩ আমার সমানধর্মা অন্য কোন ব্যক্তি আছেন বা উৎপন্ন হইবেন; কারণ কালের অন্ত নাই এবং পৃথিবীও বিপুলা। -- ‘মালতী-মাধব’, ভবভূতি।

তোমার পত্র পাইয়া বড়ই আনন্দিত হইলাম; তুমি যা বুঝিয়াছ, তাহা ঠিক। ‘স ঈশ অনির্বচনীয়ঃ প্রেমস্বরূপঃ’ -- সেই ঈশ্বর অনির্বচনীয় প্রেমস্বরূপ, এই নারদোক্ত লক্ষণটি যে প্রত্যক্ষ এবং সর্ববাদিসম্মত, আমার জীবনের ইহা স্থিরসিদ্ধান্ত। অনেকগুলি ব্যক্তির একত্র নাম ‘সমষ্টি’, এক-একটির নাম ‘ব্যষ্টি’। তুমি আমি ‘ব্যষ্টি’, সমাজ ‘সমষ্টি’। তুমি আমি পশু পক্ষী কীট পতঙ্গ বৃক্ষ লতা পৃথিবী গ্রহ নক্ষত্রাদি এক একটি ‘ব্যষ্টি’, আর এই জগৎটি ‘সমষ্টি’-- বেদান্তে ইহাকেই বিরাট বা হিরণ্যগর্ভ বা ঈশ্বর বলে। পৌরাণিক ব্রহ্মা, বিষ্ণু, দেবী ইত্যাদি নাম।

সমাজের নিকট ব্যক্তির -- নিয়ম ও শিক্ষার দ্বারা চিরদাসত্বের ও বলপূর্বক আত্মবিসর্জনের কি ফল ও পরিণাম, আমাদের মাতৃভূমিই তাহার জ্বলন্ত দৃষ্টান্ত। এদেশে লোকে শাস্ত্রোক্ত আইন অনুসারে জন্মায়; ভোজন-পানাদি আজীবন নিয়মানুসারে করে, বিবাহাদিও সেই প্রকার; এমন কি, মরিবার সময়ও সেই-সকল শাস্ত্রোক্ত আইন অনুসারে প্রাণত্যাগ করে। এই কঠোর শিক্ষার একটি মহৎ গুণ আছে, আর সকলি দোষ। গুণটি এই যে, দুটি-একটি কার্য পুরুষানুক্রমে প্রত্যহ অভ্যাস করিয়া অতি অল্পায়াসে সুন্দর রকমে লোকে করিতে পারে। তিনখানা মাটির টিপি ও খানকতক কাষ্ঠ লইয়া এদেশের রাঁধুনী যে সুস্বাদু অন্ন-ব্যঞ্জন প্রস্তুত করে, তাহা আর কোথাও নাই। একটা মাক্কাতা আমলের এক টাকা দামের তাঁত ও একটা গর্তের ভিতর পা, এই সরঞ্জামে ২০ টাকা গজের কিংখাব কেবল এদেশেই সম্ভব। একখানা ছেঁড়া মাদুর, একটা মাটির প্রদীপ, তায় রেড়ির তেল, এই উপাদান-সহায়ে দিগ্গজ পণ্ডিত এদেশেই হয়। খেঁদাবোঁচা স্ত্রীর উপর সর্বসহিষ্ণু মহত্ত্ব ও নির্গুণ মহাদুষ্ট পতির উপর আজন্ম ভক্তি এই দেশেই হয়! এই তো গেল গুণ।

তবে কি আত্মত্যাগ ধর্ম নহে? বহুর জন্য একের সুখ -- একের কল্যাণ উৎসর্গ করা কি একমাত্র পুণ্য নহে? ঠিক কথা, কিন্তু আমাদের ভাষায় বলে, ‘ঘষে-মেজে রূপ কি হয়? ধরে-বেঁধে প্রীতি কি হয়?’ চিরভিখরীর ত্যাগে কি মহাত্ম্য? ইন্দ্রিয়হীনের ইন্দ্রিয়সংযমে কি পুণ্য? ভাবহীন, হৃদয়হীন, উচ্চ-আশাহীনের, সমাজের অস্তিত্ব-নাস্তিত্ব-জ্ঞানহীনের আবার আত্মোৎসর্গ কি? বলপূর্বক সতীদাহে কি সতীত্বের বিকাশ? কুসংস্কার শিখাইয়া পুণ্য করানই বা কেন? আমি বলি -- বন্ধন খোল, জীবের বন্ধন খোল, যতদূর পার বন্ধন খোল। কাদা দিয়ে কাদা ধোয়া যায়? বন্ধনের দ্বারা কি বন্ধন কাটে? কার কেটেছে? সমাজের জন্য যখন সমস্ত নিজের সুখেচ্ছা বলি দিতে পারবে, তখন তো তুমিই বুদ্ধ হবে, তুমিই মুক্ত হবে, সে ঢের দূর! আবার তার রাস্তা কি জুলুমের উপর দিয়ে? আহা!! আমাদের বিধবাগুলি কি নিঃস্বার্থ ত্যাগের দৃষ্টান্ত, এমন দৃষ্টান্ত কি আর হয়!!! আহা বাল্য বিবাহ কি মধুর!! সে স্ত্রী-পুরুষের ভালবাসা না হয়ে কি যায়!!! এই বলে নাকেকাঁটার এক ধূয়ো উঠেছে। আর পুরুষের বেলা অর্থাৎ যাঁদের হাতে চাবুক, তাঁদের বেলা ত্যাগের কিছুই দরকার নেই। সেবাধর্মের চেয়ে কি আর ধর্ম আছে? কিন্তু সেটা বামুন-ঠাকুরের বেলায় নহে, তোমরাই কর। আসল কথা, মা-বাপ আত্মীয়-স্বজন প্রভৃতি এদেশের -- নিজের স্বার্থের জন্য, নিজে সামাজিক অবমাননা হইতে বাঁচিবার জন্য পুত্র-কন্যাদি সব নির্মম হইয়া বলিদান করিতে পারেন, এবং পুরুষানুক্রমে শিক্ষা মানসিক জড়ত্ব বিধান করিয়া উহার দ্বার উন্মুক্ত করিয়াছে। যে বীর, সে-ই ত্যাগ করতে পারে; যে কাপুরুষ, সে চাবুকের ভয়ে এক হাতে চোখ মুচছে আর আর এক হাতে দান করছে, তার দানের কি ফল? জগৎপ্রেম অনেক দূর। চারাগাছটিকে ঘিরে রাখতে হয়, যত্ন করতে হয়। একটিকে নিঃস্বার্থভাবে ভালবাসতে শিখতে পারলে ক্রমে বিশ্ব-ব্যাপী প্রেমের আশা করা যায়। ইষ্ট-দেবতাবিশেষে ভক্তি হলে ক্রমে বিরাট ব্রহ্মে প্রীতি হতে পারে।

অতএব একজনের জন্য আত্মত্যাগ করতে পারলে তবে সমাজের জন্য ত্যাগের কথা কহা উচিত, তার আগে নয়। সকাম থেকেই নিষ্কাম হয়। কামনা না আগে থাকলে কি কখনও তাহার ত্যাগ হয়? আর তার মানেই বা কি? অন্ধকার না থাকলে কি কখনও আলোকের মানে হয়?

সকাম সপ্রেম পূজাই প্রথম। ছোটর পূজাই প্রথম, তারপর আপনা-আপনি বড় আসবে।

ন হিনস্ত্যাত্নাত্নানং ততো যাতি পরাং গতিম্।।’

-- সর্বত্র সমানভাবে বিদ্যমান ঈশ্বরকে জানিয়া নিজে আর নিজেকে হিংসা করেন না (অর্থাৎ সবই তিনি), তখনই পরমা গতি প্রাপ্ত হন।

সদা শুভাকাঙ্ক্ষী

The Song of the Free: Swami Vivekananda

TO A FRIEND

(Rendered from a Bengali poem composed by Swami Vivekananda)

Where darkness is interpreted as light,
Where misery passes for happiness,
Where disease is pretended to be health,
Where the new-born's cry but shows 'tis alive;
Dost thou, O wise, expect happiness here?

Where war and competition ceaseless run,
Even the father turns against the son,
Where "self", "self" — this always the only note,
Dost thou, O wise, seek for peace supreme here?

A glaring mixture of heaven and hell,
Who can fly from this Samsâr (Samsâra, the world) of Mâyâ?
Fastened in the neck with Karma's fetters,
Say, where can the slave escape for safety?

The paths of Yoga and of sense-enjoyment,
The life of the householder and Sannyâs,
Devotion, worship, and earning riches,
Vows, Tyâga, and austerities severe,
I have seen through them all. What have I known?

— Have known there's not a jot of happiness,
Life is only a cup of Tantalus;
The nobler is your heart, know for certain,
The more must be your share of misery.

Thou large-hearted Lover unselfish, know,
There's no room in this sordid world for thee;
Can a marble figure e'er brook the blow
That an iron mass can afford to bear?

Couldst thou be as one inert and abject,
Honey-mouthed, but with poison in thy heart,
Destitute of truth and worshipping self,
Then thou wouldst have a place in this Samsar.

Pledging even life for gaining knowledge,
I have devoted half my days on earth;
For the sake of love, even as one insane,
I have often clutched at shadows lifeless;

For religion, many creeds have I sought,
Lived in mountain-caves, on cremation-grounds,
By the Ganga and other sacred streams,
And how many days have I passed on alms!

Friendless, clad in rags, with no possession,
Feeding from door to door on what chance would bring.
The frame broken under Tapasyâ's (Of austerities) weight,
What riches, ask thou, have I earned in life?

Listen, friend, I will speak my heart to thee;
I have found in my life this truth supreme —
Buffeted by waves, in this whirl of life,
There's one ferry that takes across the sea (The sea of Samsara)

Formulas of worship, control of breath,
Science, philosophy, systems varied,
Relinquishment, possession, and the like,
All these are but delusions of the mind —
Love, Love — that's the one thing, the sole treasure.

In Jiva and Brahman, in man and God,
In ghosts, and wraiths, and spirits, and so forth,
In Devas, beasts, birds, insects, and in worms,
This Prema (love) dwells in the heart of them all.

Say, who else is the highest God of gods?
Say, who else moves all the universe?
The mother dies for her young, robber robs —
Both are but the impulse of the same Love!

Beyond the ken of human speech and mind,
It dwells in weal and woe; 'tis that which comes
As the all-powerful, all-destroyer
Kâli, and as the kindest mother.

Disease, bereavement, pinch of poverty,
Dharma, (Virtue) and its opposite Adharma, (Vice)
Are but ITS worship in manifold modes;
Say, what does by himself a Jiva do?

Deluded is he who happiness seeks,
Lunatic he who misery wishes,
Insane he too who fondly longs for death,
Immortality — vain aspiration!

For, far, however far you may travel,
Mounted on the brilliant mental car,
'Tis the same ocean of the Samsar,
Happiness and misery whirling on.

Listen O Vihangam, (Bird, here addressed to the bound soul) bereft of wings,
'Tis not the way to make good your escape;
Time and again you get blows, and collapse,
Why then attempt what is impossible?

Let go your vain reliance on knowledge,
Let go your prayers, offerings, and strength,
For Love selfless is the only resource;—
Lo, the insects teach, embracing the flame'

The base insect's blind, by beauty charmed,
Thy soul is drunken with the wine of Love;
O thou Lover true, cast into the fire
All thy dross of self, thy mean selfishness.

Say — comes happiness e'er to a beggar?
What good being object of charity?
Give away, ne'er turn to ask in return,

Should there be the wealth treasured in thy heart.

Ay, born heir to the Infinite thou art,
Within the heart is the ocean of Love, "Give", "Give away" — whoever asks return,
His ocean dwindles down to a mere drop.

From highest Brahman to the yonder worm,
And to the very minutest atom,
Everywhere is the same God, the All-Love;
Friend, offer mind, soul, body, at their feet.

These are His manifold forms before thee,
Rejecting them, where seekest thou for God?
Who loves all beings without distinction,
He indeed is worshipping best his God.

প্রিয় ফকির,

একটি কথা তোমাকে বলি, উহা সর্বদা স্মরণ রাখিবে, আমার সহিত তোমাদের আর দেখা না হইতে পারে -- নীতিপরায়ণ ও সাহসী হও, হৃদয় যেন সম্পূর্ণ শুদ্ধ থাকে। সম্পূর্ণ নীতিপরায়ণ ও সাহসী হও -- প্রাণের ভয় পর্যন্ত রাখিও না। ধর্মের মতামত লইয়া মাথা বকাইও না। কাপুরুষেরাই পাপ করিয়া থাকে, বীর কখনও পাপ করেনা -- মনে পর্যন্ত পাপচিন্তা আসিতে দেয় না। সকলকেই ভালবাসিবার চেষ্টা করিবে। নিজে মানুষ হও, আর রাম প্রভৃতি যাহারা সাক্ষাৎ তোমার তত্ত্বাবধানে আছে, তাহাদিগকেও সাহসী, নীতিপরায়ণ ও সহানুভূতিসম্পন্ন করিবার চেষ্টা করিবে। হে বৎসগণ, তোমাদের জন্য নীতিপরায়ণতা ও সাহস ব্যতীত আর কোন ধর্ম নাই, ইহা ব্যতীত ধর্মের আর কোন মতামত তোমাদের জন্য নহে। যেন কাপুরুষতা, পাপ, অসদাচরণ বা দুর্বলতা একদম না থাকে, বাকি আপনা-আপনি আসিবে। রামকে কখনও থিয়েটার বা কোনরূপ চিত্তদৌর্বল্যকারক আমোদ-প্রমোদে লইয়া যাইও না বা যাইতে দিও না।

বাবাজী, তোমার পত্র কাল পাইয়াছি। তোমরা যে আমাকে মনে রাখিয়াছ, ইহাতে আমার পরমানন্দ। ভারতবর্ষের খবরের কাগজে চিকাগোবৃত্তান্ত হাজির -- বড় আশ্চর্যের বিষয়, কারণ আমি যাহা করি, গোপন করিবার যথোচিত চেষ্টা করি। এ দেশে আশ্চর্যের বিষয় অনেক। বিশেষ এ দেশে দরিদ্র ও স্ত্রী-দরিদ্র নাই বলিলেই হয় ও এ দেশের স্ত্রীদের মতো স্ত্রী কোথাও দেখি নাই! সৎপুরুষ আমাদের দেশেও অনেক, কিন্তু এ দেশের মেয়েদের মতো মেয়ে বড়ই কম। ‘যা শ্রীঃ স্বয়ং সুকৃতিনাং ভবনেষু’^১ -- যে দেবী সুকৃতি পুরুষের গৃহে স্বয়ং শ্রীরূপে বিরাজমানা। এ কথা বড়ই সত্য। এ দেশের তুষার যেমন ধবল, তেমনি হাজার হাজার মেয়ে দেখেছি। আর এরা কেমন স্বাধীন! সকল কাজ এরাই করে। স্কুল-কলেজ মেয়েতে ভরা। আমাদের পোড়া দেশে মেয়েছেলেদের পথ চলিবার জো নাই। আর এদের কত দয়া! যতদিন এখানে এসেছি, এদের মেয়েরা বাড়িতে স্থান দিতেছে, খেতে দিচ্ছে -- লেকচার দেবার সব বন্দোবস্ত করে, সঙ্গে করে বাজারে নিয়ে যায়, কি না করে বলিতে পারি না। শত শত জন্ম এদের সেবা করলেও এদের ঋণমুক্ত হবো না।

বাবাজী, শাক্ত শব্দের অর্থ জানো? শাক্ত মানে মদ-ভাঙ্ নয়, শাক্ত মানে যিনি ঈশ্বরকে সমস্ত জগতে বিরাজিত মহাশক্তি বলে জানেন এবং সমগ্র স্ত্রী-জাতিতে সেই মহাশক্তির বিকাশ দেখেন। এরা তাই দেখে; এবং মনু মহারাজ বলিয়াছেন যে, ‘যত্র নার্যন্তু পূজ্যন্তে রমন্তে তত্র দেবতাঃ’^২ -- যেখানে স্ত্রীলোকেরা সুখী, সেই পরিবারের উপর ঈশ্বরের মহাকৃপা। এরা তাই করে। আর এরা তাই সুখী, বিদ্বান, স্বাধীন, উদ্যোগী। আর আমরা স্ত্রীলোককে নীচ, অধম, মহা হেয়, অপবিত্র বলি। তার ফল -- আমরা পশু, দাস, উদ্যমহীন, দরিদ্র।

^২ মনুসংহিতা ৩।৫৬

দ্বিতীয় দরিদ্র লোক। যদি কারুর আমাদের দেশে নীচকূলে জন্ম হয়, তার আর আশাভরসা নাই, সে গেল। কেন হে বাপু? কি অত্যাচার! এ দেশের সকলের আশা আছে, opportunities (সুবিধা) আছে। আজ গরিব, কাল সে ধনী হবে, বিদ্বান হবে, জগৎমান্য হবে। আর সকলে দরিদ্রের সহায়তা করিতে ব্যস্ত। গড়ে ভারতবাসীর মাসিক আয় ২ টাকা। সকলে চেঁচাচ্ছেন, আমরা বড় গরিব, কিন্তু ভারতের দরিদ্রের সহায়তা করিবার কয়টা সভা আছে? ক-জন লোকের লক্ষ লক্ষ অনাথের জন্য প্রাণ কাঁদে? হে ভগবান, আমরা কি মানুষ! ঐ যে পশুবৎ হাড়ি-ডোম তোমার বাড়ির চারিদিকে, তাদের উন্নতির জন্য তোমরা কি করেছ, তাদের মুখে এক-গ্রাস অন্ন দেবার জন্য কি করেছ, বলতে পারো? তোমরা তাদের ছোঁও না, 'দূর দূর' কর। আমরা কি মানুষ? ঐ যে তোমাদের হাজার হাজার সাধু-ব্রাহ্মণ ফিরছেন, তাঁরা এই অধঃপতিত দরিদ্র পদদলিত গরিবদের জন্য কি করছেন? খালি বলছেন, 'ছুঁয়ো না, আমায় ছুঁয়ো না'। এমন সনাতন ধর্মকে কি করে ফেলেছে! এখন ধর্ম কোথায়? খালি ছুঁমার্গ -- আমায় ছুঁয়ো না, ছুঁয়ো না।

আমি এ দেশে এসেছি, দেশ দেখতে নয়, তামাসা দেখতে নয়, নাম করতে নয়, এই দরিদ্রের জন্য উপায় দেখতে। সে উপায় কি, পরে জানতে পারবে, যদি ভগবান সহায় হন।

এদের অনেক দোষও আছে। ফল এই, ধর্মবিষয়ে এরা আমাদের চেয়ে অনেক নিচে, আর সামাজিক সম্বন্ধে এরা অনেক উচ্ছে। এদের সামাজিক ভাব আমরা গ্রহণ করিব, আর এদের আমাদের অদ্ভুত ধর্ম শিক্ষা দিব।

কবে দেশে যাবো জানি না, প্রভুর ইচ্ছা বলবান। তোমরা সকলে আমার আশীর্বাদ জানিবে। ইতি

মান্যবরাসু,

মহাশয়ার প্রেরিত ‘ভারতী’ পাইয়া বিশেষ অনুগৃহীত বোধ করিতেছি এবং যে উদ্দেশ্যে আমার ক্ষুদ্র জীবন ন্যাস্ত হইয়াছে, তাহা যে ভবদীয়ার ন্যায় মহানুভবাদের সাধুবাদ সংগ্রহ করিতে সক্ষম হইয়াছে, তাহাতে আপনাকে ধন্য মনে করিতেছি।

এ জীবনসংগ্রামে নবীন ভাবের সমুদগাতার সমর্থক অতি বিরল, উৎসাহয়িত্রীর কথা তো দূরে থাকুক, বিশেষতঃ আমাদের হতভাগ্য দেশে। এজন্য বঙ্গ-বিদুষী নারীর সাধুবাদ সমগ্র ভারতীয় পুরুষের উচ্চকণ্ঠ ধন্যবাদাপেক্ষাও অধিক শ্লাঘ্য।

প্রভু করুন, যেন আপনার মতো অনেক রমণী এদেশে জন্মগ্রহণ করেন ও স্বদেশের উন্নতি-কল্পে জীবন উৎসর্গ করেন।

আপনার লিখিত ‘ভারতী’ পত্রিকায় মৎসম্বন্ধী প্রবন্ধ বিষয়ে আমার কিঞ্চিৎ মন্তব্য আছে; তাহা এই :

পাশ্চাত্যদেশে ধর্মপ্রচার ভারতের মঙ্গলের জন্যই করা হইয়াছে এবং হইবে। পাশ্চাত্যরা সহায়তা না করিলে যে আমরা উঠিতে পারিব না, ইহা চির ধারণা। এদেশে এখনও গুণের আদর নাই, অর্থবল নাই, এবং সর্বাপেক্ষা শোচনীয় এই যে, কৃতকর্মতা (practicality) আদৌ নাই।

উদ্দেশ্য অনেক আছে, উপায় এদেশে নাই। আমাদের মস্তক আছে, হস্ত নাই। আমাদের বেদান্ত মত আছে, কার্যে পরিণত করিবার ক্ষমতা নাই। আমাদের পুস্তকে মহাসাম্যবাদ আছে, আমাদের কার্যে মহাভেদবুদ্ধি। মহা নিঃস্বার্থ নিষ্কাম কর্ম ভারতেই প্রচারিত হইয়াছে, কিন্তু কার্যে আমরা অতি নির্দয়, অতি হৃদয়হীন, নিজের মাংসপিণ্ড-শরীর ছাড়া অন্য কিছুই ভাবিতে পারি না।

কেউ এই হতশ্রী বিগতভাগ্য লুপ্তবুদ্ধি পরপদবিদলিত চিরবুভুক্ষিত কলহশীল ও পরশ্রীকাতর ভারতবাসীকে প্রাণের সহিত ভালবাসে, তবে ভারত আবার জাগিবে। যবে শত শত মহাপ্রাণ নরনারী সকল বিলাসভোগসুখেচ্ছা বিসর্জন করিয়া কায়মনোবাক্য দারিদ্র্য ও মূর্খতার ঘূনাবর্তে ক্রমশঃ উত্তরোত্তর নিমজ্জনকারী কোটি কোটি স্বদেশীয় নরনারীর কল্যাণ কামনা করিবে, তখন ভারত জাগিবে। আমার ন্যায় ক্ষুদ্রজীবনেও ইহা প্রত্যক্ষ করিয়াছি যে, সদুদ্দেশ্য অকপটতা ও অনন্ত প্রেম বিশ্ব বিজয় করিতে সক্ষম। উক্ত গুণশালী একজন কোটি কোটি কপট ও নিষ্ঠুরের দুর্বুদ্ধি নাশ করিতে সক্ষম।

আমার পুনর্বীর পাশ্চাত্যদেশে গমন অনিশ্চিত; যদি যাই, তাহাও জানিবেন ভারতের জন্য। এদেশে লোকবল কোথায়, অর্থবল কোথায়? অনেক পাশ্চাত্য নরনারী ভারতের কল্যাণের জন্য ভারতীয় ভাবে ভারতীয় ধর্মের মধ্য দিয়া অতি নীচ চন্ডালাদীরও সেবা করিতে প্রস্তুত আছেন। দেশে কয়জন? আর অর্থবল!! আমাকে অভ্যর্থনা করিবার ব্যয়নির্বাহের জন্য কলিকাতাবাসীরা টিকিট বিক্রয় করিয়া লোকচার দেওয়াইলেন এবং তাহাতেও সঙ্কুলান না হওয়ায় ৩০০ টাকার এক বিল আমার নিকট প্রেরণ করেন!!! ইহাতে কাহারও দোষ দিতেছি না বা কুসমালোচনাও করিতেছি না, কিন্তু পাশ্চাত্য অর্থবল ও লোকবল না হইলে যে আমাদের কল্যাণ অসম্ভব, ইহারই পোষণ করিতেছি। ইতি

দেওঘর, বৈদ্যনাথ
৩ জানুয়ারী, ১৮৯৯

মা,

তোমার পত্রে কয়েকটি অতি গুরুতর প্রশ্নের সমুখান হইয়াছি। একখানি ক্ষুদ্র লিপিতে ঐ সকল প্রশ্নের সদুত্তর সম্ভব নহে, তবে যথাসম্ভব সংক্ষেপে উত্তর লিখিতেছি।

যথা, আমাদের দেশে বিধবা-বিবাহ-প্রতিষেধ। মনে করিও না যে, ঋষি বা দুষ্ট পুরুষেরা ঐ সকল নিয়ম প্রবর্তিত করিয়াছে। পুরুষজাতির স্ত্রীকে সম্পূর্ণ আয়ত্তাধীন রাখিবার ইচ্ছা থাকিলেও সমাজের সাময়িক আবশ্যিকতার সহায়-অবলম্বন ব্যতিরেকে কখনও সফলকাম হয় না। এই আচারের মধ্যে দুটি অঙ্গ বিশেষ দ্রষ্টব্য।

(ক) ছোট জাতিদের মধ্যে বিধবার বিবাহ হয়।

(খ) ভদ্র জাতিদের মধ্যে পুরুষ অপেক্ষা স্ত্রীর সংখ্যা অধিক।

এক্ষণে যদি প্রত্যেক কন্যাকেই বিবাহ দেওয়া নিয়ম হয়, তাহা হইলে এক-একটির এক-একটি পাত্র মিলাই করি, এক-এক জনের দুই-তিনটি কোথা হইতে হয়? কাজেই সমাজ এক পক্ষের হানি করিয়াছে, অর্থাৎ যে একবার পতি পাইয়াছে, তাহাকে আর পতি দেয় না; দিলে একটি কুমারী পতি পাইবে না। যে-সকল জাতিতে আবার স্ত্রীর সংখ্যা কম, তাহাদের পূর্বোক্ত বাধা না থাকায় বিধবার বিবাহ হয়।

ঐ প্রকার জাতিভেদ-বিষয়ে এবং অন্যান্য সামাজিক আচার সম্বন্ধেও।

পাশ্চাত্যদেশে ঐ প্রকার কুমারীদের পতি পাওয়া বড়ই সঙ্কট হইতেছে।

ঐ প্রকার যদি সামাজিক কোনও আচারের পরিবর্তন ঘটাইতে হয়, তাহা হইলে ঐ আচারের মূলে কি আবশ্যিকতা আছে, সেইটি প্রথমে অনুসন্ধান করিয়া বাহির করিতে হইবে এবং সেইটি পরিবর্তন করিয়া দিলেই উক্ত আচারটি আপনা হইতে নষ্ট হইয়া যাইবে। তন্মিল্ল নিন্দা বা স্তুতির দ্বারা কাজ হইবে না।

আমার তোমার ধনাদি অপহরণের কোনও বাধা না থাকার নাম কিছু স্বাধীনতা নহে, কিন্তু আমার নিজের শরীর বা বুদ্ধি বা ধন অপরের অনিষ্ট না করিয়া যে প্রকার ইচ্ছা সে প্রকার ব্যবহার করিতে পারিব, ইহা আমার স্বাভাবিক অধিকার; এবং উক্ত ধন বা বিদ্যা বা জ্ঞানার্জনের -- সকল সামাজিক ব্যক্তির সমান সুবিধা যাহাতে থাকে, তাহাও হওয়া উচিত। দ্বিতীয় কথা এই যে, যাহারা বলেন, অজ্ঞ বা গরিবদিগকে স্বাধীনতা দিলে অর্থাৎ তাহাদের শরীর, ধন ইত্যাদিতে তাহাদের পূর্ণ অধিকার দিলে এবং তাহাদের সন্তানদের ধনী উচ্চপদস্থ ব্যক্তিদের সন্তানদের ন্যায় জ্ঞানার্জনের এবং আপনার অবস্থার উন্নতি করিবার সমান সুবিধা হইলে তাহারা উচ্ছৃঙ্খল হইয়া যাইবে, তাহারা কি এ কথা সমাজের কল্যাণের জন্য বলেন অথবা স্বার্থে অন্ধ হইয়া বলেন? ইংলণ্ডেও এ কথা শুনিয়াছি -- ‘ছোটলোকেরা লেখাপড়া শিখিলে আমাদের চাকুরি কে করিবে?’

আর যদি তাহাই সত্য হয়, তাহা হইলেও তোমার আমার কি অহঙ্কার যে, আমরা অন্য সকলকে পথ দেখাই? আমরা কি সবজাত্তা?

‘উদ্ধারদাত্নাত্নানম্’ -- আপনিই আপনার উদ্ধার কর। যে যার আপনার উদ্ধার করুক। সর্ববিষয়ে স্বাধীনতা অর্থাৎ মুক্তির দিকে অগ্রসর হওয়াই পুরুষার্থ। যাহাতে অপরে -- শারীরিক, মানসিক ও আধ্যাত্মিক স্বাধীনতার দিকে অগ্রসর হইতে পারে, সে বিষয়ে সহায়তা করা ও নিজে সেই দিকে অগ্রসর হওয়াই পরম পুরুষার্থ। যে-সকল সামাজিক নিয়ম এই স্বাধীনতার স্ফূর্তির ব্যাঘাত করে, তাহা অকল্যাণকর এবং যাহাতে তাহার শীঘ্র নাশ হয়, তাহাই করা উচিত। যে-সকল নিয়মের দ্বারা জীবকুল স্বাধীনতার পথে অগ্রসর হয়, তাহার সহায়তা করা উচিত।

৪। ইচ্ছাশক্তি সম্বন্ধে তোমার প্রশ্নটি বড়ই সুন্দর এবং ঐটিই বুঝিবার বিষয়। সকল ধর্মের ইহাই সার -- বাসনার বিনাশ, সুতরাং সঙ্গে সঙ্গে নিশ্চয় ইচ্ছারো বিনাশ হইল; কারণ বাসনা ইচ্ছাবিশেষের নামমাত্র। তবে আবার এ জগৎ কেন? এ সকল ইচ্ছার বিকাশই বা কেন? কয়েকটি ধর্ম বলেন যে অসদিচ্ছারই নাশ হওয়া উচিত, সত্যের নহে। বাসনাত্যাগ ইহলোকে পরলোকে ভোগের দ্বারা পরিপূরিত হইবে। এ উত্তরে অবশ্যই পণ্ডিতেরা সন্তুষ্ট নহেন। বৌদ্ধাদি অপর দিকে বলিতেছেন যে, বাসনা দুঃখের মূল; তাহার নাশই শ্রেয়ঃ, কিন্তু মশা মারিতে মানুষ মারার মতো বৌদ্ধাদি মতে দুঃখ নাশ করিতে নিজেকেও নাশ করিয়া ফেলিলাম।

সিদ্ধান্ত এই যে, যাহাকে আমরা ইচ্ছা বলি তাহা তদপেক্ষা আরও উচ্চতর অবস্থার নিম্ন পরিণাম।

নিষ্কাম মানে ইচ্ছাশক্তিরূপ নিম্ন পরিণামের ত্যাগ এবং উচ্চ পরিণামের আবির্ভাব। ঐরূপ [অবস্থা] মনোবুদ্ধির অগোচর, কিন্তু যেমন মোহর দেখিতে টাকা এবং পয়সা হইতে অত্যন্ত পৃথক হইলেও নিশ্চিত জানি যে, মোহর দুয়ের অপেক্ষা বড়, সেই প্রকার ঐ উচ্চতম অবস্থা বা মুক্তি বা নির্বাণ যাহাই বল, মনোবুদ্ধির অগোচর হইলেও ইচ্ছাদি সমস্ত শক্তি অপেক্ষা বড়, যদিও তাহা শক্তি নহে, কিন্তু শক্তি তাহার পরিণাম, এ জন্য সে বড়, যদিও সে ইচ্ছা নহে, কিন্তু ইচ্ছা তাহার নিম্ন পরিণাম, এজন্য তাহা বড়। এখন বোঝ, সকাম ও পরে নিষ্কামভাবে যথাযথ ইচ্ছাশক্তির পরিচালনার ফল এই যে, ইচ্ছাশক্তিটিই তদপেক্ষা অনেক উন্নত অবস্থা লাভ করিবে।

৫। গুরুমূর্তি প্রথমে ধ্যান করিতে হয়, পরে তাহা লয় করিয়া ইষ্টমূর্তি বসাইতে হয়। এ-স্থলে প্রীতিপাত্রই ইষ্টরূপে গ্রাহ্য।

মনুষ্যে ঈশ্বর-আরোপ বড়ই মুশকিল; কিন্তু চেষ্টা করিতে করিতে নিশ্চয়ই সফল হওয়া যায়। প্রতি মনুষ্যে তিনি আছেন, সে জানুক বা না জানুক; তোমার ভক্তিতে সেই ঈশ্বরত্ব-উদয় তাহার মধ্যে হইবেই হইবে।

সতত কল্যাণাকাজক্ষী

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার পত্রে সমস্ত অবগত হলাম। শরীর যদি খারাপ হয়, অবশ্য এখানে তোমার আসা উচিত নয় -- এবং আমি কল্যাণবর্তী যাচ্ছি। সেখানে আমার একবার যাওয়া অত্যন্ত আবশ্যিক।

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার পত্র পেয়ে হাসিও পেল, কিষ্কিৎ দুঃখও হল। হাসির কারণ এই যে, পেটগরমের কি স্বপ্ন দেখে তুমি একটা সত্য ঠাউরে নিজেকে দুঃখিত করেছ। দুঃখের কারণ এই যে, এতে বোঝা যায় তোমার শরীর ভাল নয় -- তোমার স্নায়ুমন্ডলীর পক্ষে বিশ্রামের একান্ত আবশ্যিক।

আমি তোমাকে কস্মিন্‌কালেও শাপ দিই নাই, আজ কেন দেব? আজন্ম আমার ভালবাসার পরিচয় পেয়ে কি আজ তোমার অবিশ্বাস হল? অবশ্য আমার মেজাজ চিরকালই খারাপ, তায় আজকাল রোগে পড়ে মধ্যে মধ্যে বড্ডই ভয়ঙ্কর হয় -- কিন্তু নিশ্চিত জেনো যে, সে ভালবাসা যাবার নয়।

আমার শরীর আজকাল আবার একটু ভাল যাচ্ছে। মাদ্রাজে বৃষ্টি আরম্ভ হয়েছে কি? দক্ষিণে একটু বর্ষা আরম্ভ হলেই আমি বোধ হয় বস্বে, পুনা হয়ে মাদ্রাজ যাব। বর্ষা আরম্ভ হলেই বোধ হয় দক্ষিণের প্রচন্ড গরম থেমে যাবে।

সকলকে আমার বিশেষ ভালবাসা দিও, তুমিও জানিও।

কাল শরৎ দার্জিলিং হতে মঠে এসেছে -- শরীর অনেক সুস্থ পূর্বাপেক্ষা। আমি বঙ্গদেশ আর আসাম ভ্রমণ করে এখানে পৌঁছেছি। সকল কাজেই নরম গরম আছে -- কখনও চড়াই, কখনও উৎরাই। আবার উঠবে। ভয় কি?

যা হোক, আমি বলি যে। তুমি কাজকর্ম কিছুদিনের জন্য বন্ধ করে একদম মঠে চলে এস -- এখানে মাসখানেক বিশ্রামের পর তুমি আমি এক সঙ্গে will make a grand tour (বিরিট ভ্রমণে বেরুব) in Gujrat, Bombay, Poona, Hyderabad, Mysore to Madras (গুজরাট, বস্বে, পুনা, হায়দরাবাদ ও মহীশূর হয়ে মাদ্রাজ পর্যন্ত)। Would not that be grand (ওটা কি খুব চমৎকার হবে না)? তা না যদি পার একান্ত, মাদ্রাজের লোকচার এখন একমাস স্থগিত থাক -- তুমি দুটি দুটি খাও, আর খুব ঘুমাও। আমি দুই-তিন মাসের মধ্যে সেথা আসছি। যা হোক, পত্রপাঠ একটা বিচার করে লিখবে। ইতি

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার পত্র সবিশেষ জানিয়া আনন্দিত হলাম। নিবেদিতার স্কুল সম্বন্ধে যা আমার বলবার ছিল, তাকে লিখেছি। বলবার এই যে, তার যা ভাল বিচার হয়, করবে।

আর কোনও বিষয়ে মতামত আমায় জিজ্ঞাসা করো না। তাতে আমার মাথা খারাপ হয়। তুমি কেবল ঐ কাজটা করে দিও -- এই পর্যন্ত। টাকা পাঠিয়ে দিও; কারণ উপস্থিত দু-চার টাকা মাত্র আছে।

কানাই মাধুকরী খায়, ঘাটে জপ করে; রাত্রে এসে শোয়। খুড়ো (Okakura) আর নিরঞ্জন আগ্রায় গেছে; আজ তাদের পত্র আসতে পারে।

যেমন প্রভু করাবেন করে যেও। এদের-ওদের মতামত কি? সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা জানিও এবং ছেলেদের। ইতি

অভিন্নহৃদয়েষু,

রোগের চেয়ে ভাবনা বড়! দু-দশ টাকা যা দরকার হয় দেবে। যদি একজনের মনে -- এ সংসার-নরককুন্ডের মধ্যে একদিনও একটু আনন্দ ও শান্তি দেওয়া যায়, সেইটুকুই সত্য, এই তো আজন্ম ভুগে দেখছি -- বাকি সব ঘোড়ার ডিম।

MIRACLES

(The Memphis Commercial, 15th January, 1894)

Asked by the reporter for his impressions of America, he said:

"I have a good impression of this country especially of the American women. I have especially remarked on the absence of poverty in America."

The conversation afterward turned to the subject of religions. Swami Vive Kananda expressed the opinion that the World's Parliament of Religions had been beneficial in that it had done much toward broadening ideas.

"What", asked the reporter, "is the generally accepted view held by those of your faith as to the fate after death of one holding the Christian religion?"

"We believe that if he is a good man he will be saved. Even an atheist, if he is a good man, we believe must be saved. That is our religion. We believe all religions are good, only those who hold them must not quarrel."

Swami Vive Kananda was questioned concerning the truthfulness of the marvelous stories of the performance of wonderful feats of conjuring, levitation, suspended animation, and the like in India. Vive Kananda said:

"We do not believe in miracles at all but that apparently strange things may be accomplished under the operation of natural laws. There is a vast amount of literature in India on these subjects, and the people there have made a study of these things.

"Thought-reading and the foretelling of events are successfully practiced by the Hathayogis.

"As to levitation, I have never seen anyone overcome gravitation and rise by will into the air, but I have seen many who were trying to do so. They read books published on the subject and spend years trying to accomplish the feat. Some of them in their efforts nearly starve themselves and become so thin that if one presses his finger upon their stomachs he can actually feel the spine.

"Some of these Hathayogis live to a great age."

The subject of suspended animation was broached and the Hindu monk told the Commercial reporter that he himself had known a man who went into a sealed cave, which was then closed up with a trap door, and remained there for many years without food. There was a decided stir of interest among those who heard this assertion. Vive Kananda entertained not the slightest doubt of the genuineness of this case. He says that in the case of suspended animation, growth is for the time arrested. He says the case of the man in India who was buried with a crop of barley raised over his grave and who was finally taken out still alive is perfectly well authenticated. He thinks the studies which enabled persons to accomplish that feat were suggested by the hibernating animals.

Vive Kananda said that he had never seen the feat which some writers have claimed has been accomplished in India, of throwing a rope into the air and the thrower climbing up the rope and disappearing out of sight in the distant heights.

A lady present when the reporter was interviewing the monk said some one had asked her if he, Vive Kananda, could perform wonderful tricks, and if he had been buried alive as a part of his installation in the Brotherhood. The answer to both questions was a positive negative. "What have those things to do with religion?" he asked. "Do they make a man purer? The Satan of your Bible is powerful, but differs from God in not being pure."

Speaking of the sect of Hathayoga, Vive Kananda said there was one thing, whether a coincidence or note connected with the initiation of their disciples, which was suggestive of the one passage in the life of Christ. They make their disciples live alone for just forty days.

ON KARMA-YOGA

Isolation of the soul from all objects, mental and physical, is the goal; when that is attained, the soul will find that it was alone all the time, and it required no one to make it happy. As long as we require someone else to make us happy, we are slaves. When the Purusha finds that It is free, and does not require anything to complete Itself, that this nature is quite unnecessary, then freedom (Kaivalya) is attained.

Men run after a few dollars and do not think anything of cheating a fellow-being to get those dollars; but if they would restrain themselves, in a few years they would develop such characters as would bring them millions of dollars — if they wanted them. Then their will would govern the universe. But we are all such fools!

What is the use of talking of one's mistakes to the world? They cannot thereby be undone. For what one has done one must suffer; one must try and do better. The world sympathises only with the strong and the powerful.

It is only work that is done as a free-will offering to humanity and to nature that does not bring with it any binding attachment.

Duty of any kind is not to be slighted. A man who does the lower work is not, for that reason only, a lower man than he who does the higher work; a man should not be judged by the nature of his duties, but by the manner in which he does them. His manner of doing them and his power to do them are indeed the test of a man. A shoemaker who can turn out a strong, nice pair of shoes in the shortest possible time is a better man, according to his profession and his work, than a professor who talks nonsense every day of his life.

Every duty is holy, and devotion to duty is the highest form of the worship of God; it is certainly a source of great help in enlightening and emancipating the deluded and ignorance-encumbered souls of the Baddhas — the bound ones.

By doing well the duty which is nearest to us, the duty which is in our hands now, we make ourselves stronger and improving our strength in this manner step by step, we may even reach a state in which it shall be our privilege to do the most coveted and honoured duties in life and in society.

Nature's justice is uniformly stern and unrelenting.

The most practical man would call life neither good nor evil.

Every successful man must have behind him somewhere tremendous integrity, tremendous sincerity, and that is the cause of his signal success in life. He may not have been perfectly unselfish; yet he was tending towards it. If he had been perfectly unselfish, his would have been as great a success as that of the Buddha or of the Christ. The degree of unselfishness marks the degree of success everywhere.

The great leaders of mankind belong to higher fields than the field of platform work.

However we may try, there cannot be any action which is perfectly pure or any which is perfectly impure, taking purity or impurity in the sense of injury or non-injury. We cannot breathe or live without injuring others, and every morsel of food we eat is taken from another's mouth; our very lives are crowding out some other lives. It may be those of men, or animals, or small fungi, but someone somewhere we have to crowd out. That being the case, it naturally follows that perfection can never be attained by work. We may work through all eternity, but there will be no way out of this intricate maze: we may work on and on and on, but there will be no end.

Yoga

The man who works through freedom and love cares nothing for results. But the slave wants his whipping; the servant wants his pay. So with all life; take for instance the public life. The public speaker wants a little applause or a little hissing and hooting. If you keep him in a corner without it, you kill him, for he requires it. This is working through slavery. To expect something in return, under such conditions, becomes second nature. Next comes the work of the servant, who requires some pay; I give this, and you give me that. Nothing is easier to say, "I work for work's sake", but nothing is so difficult to attain. I would go twenty miles on my hands and knees to look on the face of the man who can work for work's sake. There is a motive somewhere. If it is not money, it is power. If it is not power, it is gain. Somehow, somewhere, there is a motive power. You are my friend, and I want to work for you and with you. This is all very well, and every moment I may make protestation of my sincerity. But take care, you must be sure to agree with me! If you do not, I shall no longer take care of you or live for you! This kind of work for a motive brings misery. That work alone brings unattachment and bliss, wherein we work as masters of our own minds.

The great lesson to learn is that I am not the standard by which the whole universe is to be judged; each man is to be judged by his own idea, each race by its own standard and ideal, each custom of each country by its own reasoning and conditions. American customs are the result of the environment in which the Americans live and Indian customs are the result of the environment in which the Indians are; and so of China, Japan, England, and every other country.

We all find ourselves in the position for which we are fit, each ball finds its own hole; and if one has some capacity above another, the world will find that out too, in this universal adjusting that goes on. So it is no use to grumble. There may be a rich man who is wicked, yet there must be in that man certain qualities that made him rich; and if any other man has the same qualities, he will also become rich. What is the use of fighting and complaining? That will not help us to better things. He who grumbles at the little thing that has fallen to his lot to do will grumble at everything. Always grumbling, he will lead a miserable life, and everything will be a failure. But that man who does his duty as he goes, putting his shoulder to the wheel, will see the light, and higher and higher duties will fall to his share.

A DISCUSSION

(This discussion followed the lecture on the Vedanta Philosophy delivered by the Swami at the Graduate Philosophical Society of Harvard University, U. S. A., on March 25, 1896. (Vol. I.))

Q. — I should like to know something about the present activity of philosophic thought in India. To what extent are these questions discussed?

A. — As I have said, the majority of the Indian people are practically dualists, and the minority are monists. The main subject of discussion is Mâyâ and Jiva. When I came to this country, I found that the labourers were informed of the present condition of politics; but when I asked them, "What is religion, and what are the doctrines of this and that particular sect?" they said, "We do not know; we go to church." In India if I go to a peasant and ask him, "Who governs you?" he says, "I do not know; I pay my taxes." But if I ask him what is his religion, he says, "I am a dualist", and is ready to give you the details about Maya and Jiva. He cannot read or write, but he has learned all this from the monks and is very fond of discussing it. After the day's work, the peasants sit under a tree and discuss these questions.

Q. — What does orthodoxy mean with the Hindus?

A. — In modern times it simply means obeying certain caste laws as to eating, drinking, and marriage. After that the Hindu can believe in any system he likes. There was never an organised church in India; so there was never a body of men to formulate doctrines of orthodoxy. In a general way, we say that those who believe in the Vedas are orthodox; but in reality we find that many of the dualistic sects believe more in the Purânas than in the Vedas alone.

Q. — What influence had your Hindu philosophy on the Stoic philosophy of the Greeks?

A. — It is very probable that it had some influence on it through the Alexandrians. There is some suspicion of Pythagoras' being influenced by the Sâmkhya thought. Anyway, we think the Sankhya philosophy is the first attempt to harmonise the philosophy of the Vedas through reason. We find Kapila mentioned even in the Vedas: "ऋषिं प्रसूतं कपिलं यस्त्वग्रे — He who (supports through knowledge) the first-born sage Kapila."

Q. — What is the antagonism of this thought with Western science?

A. — No antagonism at all. We are in harmony with it. Our theory of evolution and of Âkâsha and Prâna is exactly what your modern philosophies have. Your belief in evolution is among our Yogis and in the Sankhya philosophy. For instance, Patanjali speaks of one species being changed into another by the infilling of nature — "जात्यन्तरपरिणामः प्रकृत्यापूरात्"; only he differs from you in the explanation. His explanation of this evolution is spiritual. He says that just as when a farmer wants to water his field from the canals that pass near, he has only to lift up gate — "निमित्तमप्रयोजकं प्रकृतीनां वरणमैतस्सु ततः क्षेत्रिकवत्" — so each man is the Infinite already, only these bars and bolts and different circumstances shut him in; but as soon as they are removed, he rushes out and expresses himself. In the animal, the man was held in abeyance; but as soon as good circumstances came, he was manifested as man. And again, as soon as fitting circumstances came, the God in man manifested itself. So we have very little to quarrel with in the new theories. For instance, the theory of the Sankhya as to perception is very little different from modern physiology.

Q. — But your method is different?

A. — Yes. We claim that concentrating the powers of the mind is the only way to knowledge. In external science, concentration of mind is — putting it on something external; and in internal science, it is — drawing towards one's Self. We call this concentration of mind Yoga.

Q. — In the state of concentration does the truth of these principles become evident?

A. — The Yogis claim a good deal. They claim that by concentration of the mind every truth in the universe becomes evident to the mind, both external and internal truth.

Q. — What does the Advaitist think of cosmology?

A. — The Advaitist would say that all this cosmology and everything else are only in Maya, in the phenomenal world. In truth they do not exist. But as long as we are bound, we have to see these visions. Within these visions things come in a certain regular order. Beyond them there is no law and order, but freedom.

Q. — Is the Advaita antagonistic to dualism?

A. — The Upanishads not being in a systematised form, it was easy for philosophers to take up texts when they liked to form a system. The Upanishads had always to be taken, else there would be no basis. Yet we find all the different schools of thought in the Upanishads. Our solution is that the Advaita is not antagonistic to the Dvaita (dualism). We say the latter is only one of three steps. Religion always takes three steps. The first is dualism. Then man gets to a higher state, partial non-dualism. And at last he finds he is one with the universe. Therefore the three do not contradict but fulfil.

Q. — Why does Maya or ignorance exist?

A. — "Why" cannot be asked beyond the limit of causation. It can only be asked within Maya. We say we will answer the question when it is logically formulated. Before that we have no right to answer.

Q. — Does the Personal God belong to Maya?

A. — Yes; but the Personal God is the same Absolute seen through Maya. That Absolute under the control of nature is what is called the human soul; and that which is controlling nature is Ishvara, or the Personal God. If a man starts from here to see the sun, he will see at first a little sun; but as he proceeds he will see it bigger and bigger, until he reaches the real one. At each stage of his progress he was seeing apparently a different sun; yet we are sure it was the same sun he was seeing. So all these things are but visions of the Absolute, and as such they are true. Not one is a false vision, but we can only say they were lower stages.

Q. — What is the special process by which one will come to know the Absolute?

A. — We say there are two processes. One is the positive, and the other, the negative. The positive is that through which the whole universe is going — that of love. If this circle of love is increased indefinitely, we reach the one universal love. The other is the "Neti", "Neti" — "not this", "not this" — stopping every wave in the mind which tries to draw it out; and at last the mind dies, as it were, and the Real discloses Itself. We call that Samâdhi, or superconsciousness.

Q. — That would be, then, merging the subject in the object!

A. — Merging the object in the subject, not merging the subject in the object. Really this world dies, and I remain. I am the only one that remains.

Q. — Some of our philosophers in Germany have thought that the whole doctrine of Bhakti (Love for the Divine) in India was very likely the result of occidental influence.

A. — I do not take any stock in that — the assumption was ephemeral. The Bhakti of India is not like the Western Bhakti. The central idea of ours is that there is no thought of fear. It is always, love God. There is no worship through fear, but always through love, from beginning to end. In the second place, the assumption is quite unnecessary. Bhakti is spoken of in the oldest of the Upanishads, which is much older than the Christian Bible. The germs of Bhakti are even in the Samhitâ (the Vedic hymns). The word Bhakti is not a Western word. It was suggested by the word Shraddhâ.

Q. — What is the Indian idea of the Christian faith?

A. — That it is very good. The Vedanta will take in every one. We have a peculiar idea in India. Suppose I had a child. I should not teach him any religion; I should teach him breathings — the practice of concentrating the mind, and just one line of prayer — not prayer in your sense, but simply something like this, "I meditate on Him who is the Creator of this universe: may He enlighten my mind I " That way he would be educated, and then go about hearing different philosophers and teachers. He would select one who, he thought, would suit him best; and this man would become his Guru or teacher, and he would become a Shishya or disciple. He would say to that man, "This form of philosophy which you preach is the best; so teach me." Our fundamental idea is that your doctrine cannot be mine, or mine yours. Each one must have his own way. My daughter may have one method, and my son another, and I again another. So each one has an Ishta or chosen way, and we keep it to ourselves. It is between me and my teacher, because we do not want to create a fight. It will not help any one to tell it to others, because each one will have to find his own way. So only general philosophy and general methods can be taught universally. For instance, giving a ludicrous example, it may help me to stand on one leg. It would be ludicrous to you if I said every one must do that, but it may suit me. It is quite possible for me to be a dualist and for my wife to be a monist, and so on. One of my sons may worship Christ or Buddha or Mohammed, so long as he obeys the caste laws. That is his own Ishta.

Q. — Do all Hindus believe in caste?

A. — They are forced to. They may not believe, but they have to obey.

Q. — Are these exercises in breathing and concentration universally practiced?

A. — Yes; only some practice only a little, just to satisfy the requirements of their religion. The temples in India are not like the churches here. They may all vanish tomorrow, and will not be missed. A temple is built by a man who wants to go to heaven, or to get a son, or something of that sort. So he builds a large temple and employs a few priests to hold services there. I need not go there at all, because all my worship is in the home. In every house is a special room set apart, which is called the chapel. The first duty of the child, after his initiation, is to take a bath, and then to worship; and his worship consists of this breathing and meditating and repeating of a certain name. And another thing is to hold the body straight. We believe that the mind has every power over the body to keep it healthy. After one has done this, then another comes and takes his seat, and each one does it in silence. Sometimes there are three or four in the same room, but each one may have a different method. This worship is repeated at least twice a day.

Q. — This state of oneness that you speak of, is it an ideal or something actually attained?

A. — We say it is within actuality; we say we realise that state. If it were only in talk, it would be nothing. The Vedas teach three things: this Self is first to be heard, then to be reasoned, and then to be meditated upon. When a man first hears it, he must reason on it, so that he does not believe it ignorantly, but knowingly; and after reasoning what it is, he must meditate upon it, and then realise it. And that is religion. Belief is no part of religion. We say religion is a superconscious state.

Q. — If you ever reach that state of superconsciousness, can you ever tell about it?

A. — No; but we know it by its fruits. An idiot, when he goes to sleep, comes out of sleep an idiot or even worse. But another man goes into the state of meditation, and when he comes out he is a philosopher, a sage, a great man. That shows the difference between these two states.

Q. — I should like to ask, in continuation of Professor —'s question, whether you know of any people who have made any study of the principles of self-hypnotism, which they undoubtedly practiced to a great extent in ancient India, and what has been recently stated and practiced in that thing. Of course you do not have it so much in modern India.

A. — What you call hypnotism in the West is only a part of the real thing. The Hindus call it self-hypnotisation. They say you are hypnotised already, and that you should get out of it and de-hypnotise yourself. "There the sun cannot illumine, nor the moon, nor the stars; the flash of lightning cannot illumine that; what to speak of this mortal fire! That shining, everything else shines" (Katha Upanishad, II ii. 15). That is not hypnotisation, but de-hypnotisation. We say that every other religion that preaches these things as real is practicing a form of hypnotism. It is the Advaitist alone that does not care to be hypnotised. His is the only system that more or less understands that hypnotism comes with every form of dualism. But the Advaitist says, throw away even the Vedas, throw away even the Personal God, throw away even the universe, throw away even your own body and mind, and let nothing remain, in order to get rid of hypnotism perfectly. "From where the mind comes back with speech, being unable to reach, knowing the Bliss of Brahman, no more is fear." That is de-hypnotisation. "I have neither vice nor virtue, nor misery nor happiness; I care neither for the Vedas nor sacrifices nor ceremonies; I am neither food nor eating nor eater, for I am Existence Absolute, Knowledge Absolute, Bliss Absolute; I am He, I am He." We know all about hypnotism. We have a psychology which the West is just beginning to know, but not yet adequately, I am sorry to say.

Q. — What do you call the astral body?

A. — The astral body is what we call the Linga Sharira. When this body dies, how can it come to take another body? Force cannot remain without matter. So a little part of the fine matter remains, through which the internal organs make another body — for each one is making his own body; it is the mind that makes the body. If I become a sage, my brain gets changed into a sage's brain; and the Yogis say that even in this life a Yogi can change his body into a god-body.

The Yogis show many wonderful things. One ounce of practice is worth a thousand pounds of theory. So I have no right to say that because I have not seen this or that thing done, it is false. Their books say that with practice you can get all sorts of results that are most wonderful. Small results can be obtained in a short time by regular practice, so that one may know that there is no humbug about it, no charlatanism. And these Yogis explain the very wonderful things mentioned in all scriptures in a scientific way. The question is, how these records of miracles entered into every nation. The man, who says that they are all false and need no explanation, is not rational. You have no right to deny them until you can prove them false. You must prove that they are without any foundation, and only then have you the right to stand up and deny them. But you have not done that. On the other hand, the Yogis say they are not miracles, and they claim that they can do them even today. Many wonderful things are done in India today. But none of them are done by miracles. There are many books on the subject. Again, if nothing else has been done in that line except a scientific approach towards psychology, that credit must be given to the Yogis.

Q. — Can you say in the concrete what the manifestations are which the Yogi can show?

A. — The Yogi wants no faith or belief in his science but that which is given to any other science, just enough gentlemanly faith to come and make the experiment. The ideal of the Yogi is tremendous. I have seen the lower things that can be done by the power of the mind, and therefore, I have no right to disbelieve that the highest things can be done. The ideal of the Yogi is eternal peace and love through omniscience and omnipotence. I know a Yogi who was bitten by a cobra, and who fell down on the ground. In the evening he revived again, and when asked what happened, he said: "A messenger came from my Beloved." All hatred and anger and jealousy have been burnt out of this man. Nothing can make him react; he is infinite love all the time, and he is omnipotent in his power of love. That is the real Yogi. And this manifesting different things is accidental on the way. That is not what he wants to attain. The Yogi says, every man is a slave except the Yogi. He is a slave of food, to air, to his wife, to his children, to a dollar, slave to a nation, slave to name and fame, and to a thousand things in this world. The man who is not controlled by any one of these bandages is alone a real man, a real Yogi. "They have conquered relative existence in this life who are firm-fixed in sameness. God is pure and the same to all. Therefore such are said to be living in God" (Gita, V. 19).

Q. — Do the Yogis attach any importance to caste?

A. — No; caste is only the training school for undeveloped minds.

Q. — Is there no connection between this idea of super-consciousness and the heat of India?

A. — I do not think so; because all this philosophy was thought out fifteen thousand feet above the level of the sea, among the Himalayas, in an almost Arctic temperature.

Q. — Is it practicable to attain success in a cold climate?

A. — It is practicable, and the only thing that is practicable in this world. We say you are a born Vedantist, each one of you. You are declaring your oneness with everything each moment you live. Every time that your heart goes out towards the world, you are a true Vedantist, only you do not know it. You are moral without knowing why; and the Vedanta is the philosophy which analysed and taught man to be moral consciously. It is the essence of all religions.

Q. — Should you say that there is an unsocial principle in our Western people, which makes us so pluralistic, and that Eastern people are more sympathetic than we are?

A. — I think the Western people are more cruel, and the Eastern people have more mercy towards all beings. But that is simply because your civilisation is very much more recent. It takes time to make a thing come under the influence of mercy. You have a great deal of power, and the power of control of the mind has especially been very little practiced. It will take time to make you gentle and good. This feeling tingles in every drop of blood in India. If I go to the villages to teach the people politics, they will not understand; but if I go to teach them Vedanta, they will say, "Now, Swami, you are all right". That Vairâgya, non-attachment, is everywhere in India, even today. We are very much degenerated now; but kings will give up their thrones and go about the country without anything.

In some places the common village-girl with her spinning-wheel says, "Do not talk to me of dualism; my spinning-wheel says 'Soham, Soham' — 'I am He, I am He.'" Go and talk to these people, and ask them why it is that they speak so and yet kneel before that stone. They will say that with you religion means dogma, but with them realisation. "I will be a Vedantist", one of them will say, "only when all this has vanished, and I have seen the reality. Until then there is no difference between me and the ignorant. So I am using these stones and am going to temples, and so on, to come to realisation. I have heard, but I want to see and realise." "Different methods of speech, different manners of explaining the meaning of the scriptures — these are only for the enjoyment of the learned, not for freedom" (Shankara). It is realisation which leads us to that freedom.

Q. — Is this spiritual freedom among the people consistent with attention to caste?

A. — Certainly not. They say there should be no caste. Even those who are in caste say it is not a very perfect institution. But they say, when you find us another and a better one, we will give it up. They say, what will you give us instead? Where is there no caste? In your nation you are struggling all the time to make a caste. As soon as a man gets a bag of dollars, he says, "I am one of the Four Hundred." We alone have succeeded in making a permanent caste. Other nations are struggling and do not succeed. We have superstitions and evils enough. Would taking the superstitions and evils from your country mend matters? It is owing to caste that three hundred millions of people can find a piece of bread to eat yet. It is an imperfect institution, no doubt. But if it had not been for caste, you would have had no Sanskrit books to study. This caste made walls, around which all sorts of invasions rolled and surged, but found it impossible to break through. That necessity has not gone yet; so caste remains. The caste we have now is not that of seven hundred years ago. Every blow has riveted it. Do you realise that India is the only country that never went outside of itself to conquer? The great emperor Asoka insisted that none of his descendants should go to conquer. If people want to send us teachers, let them help, but not injure. Why should all these people come to conquer the Hindus? Did they do any injury to any nation? What little good they could do, they did for the world. They taught it science, philosophy, religion, and civilised the savage hordes of the earth. And this is the return — only murder and tyranny, and calling them heathen rascals. Look at the books written on India by Western people and at the stories of many travellers who go there; in retaliation for what injuries are these hurled at them?

Q. — What is the Vedantic idea of civilisation?

A. — You are philosophers, and you do not think that a bag of gold makes the difference between man and man. What is the value of all these machines and sciences? They have only one result: they spread knowledge. You have not solved the problem of want, but only made it keener. Machines do not solve the poverty question; they simply make men struggle the more. Competition gets keener. What value has nature in itself? Why do you go and build a monument to a man who sends electricity through a wire? Does not nature do that millions of times over? Is not everything already existing in nature? What is the value of your getting it? It is already there. The only value is that it makes this development. This universe is simply a gymnasium in which the soul is taking exercise; and after these exercises we become gods. So the value of everything is to be decided by how far it is a manifestation of God. Civilisation is the manifestation of that divinity in man.

Q. — Have the Buddhists any caste laws?

A. — The Buddhists never had much caste, and there are very few Buddhists in India. Buddha was a social reformer. Yet in Buddhistic countries I find that there have been strong attempts to manufacture caste, only they have failed. The Buddhists' caste is practically nothing, but they take pride in it in their own minds.

Buddha was one of the Sannyâsins of the Vedanta. He started a new sect, just as others are started even today. The ideas which now are called Buddhism were not his. They were much more ancient. He was a great man who gave the ideas power. The unique element in Buddhism was its social element. Brahmins and Kshatriyas have always been our teachers, and most of the Upanishads were written by Kshatriyas, while the ritualistic portions of the Vedas came from the Brahmins. Most of our great teachers throughout India have been Kshatriyas, and were always universal in their teachings; whilst the Brahmana prophets with two exceptions were very exclusive. Râma, Krishna, and Buddha — worshipped as Incarnations of God — were Kshatriyas.

Q. — Are sects, ceremonies, and scriptures helps to realisation?

A. — When a man realises, he gives up everything. The various sects and ceremonies and books, so far as they are the means of arriving at that point, are all right. But when they fail in that, we must change them. "The knowing one must not despise the condition of those who are ignorant, nor should the knowing one destroy the faith; of the ignorant in their own particular method, but by proper action lead them and show them the path to comes to where he stands" (Gita, III. 26).

Q. — How does the Vedanta explain individuality and ethics?

A. — The real individual is the Absolute; this personalisation is through Maya. It is only apparent; in reality it is always the Absolute. In reality there is one, but in Maya it is appearing as many. In Maya there is this variation. Yet even in this Maya there is always the tendency to, get back to the One, as expressed in all ethics and all morality of every nation, because it is the constitutional necessity of the soul. It is finding its oneness; and this struggle to find this oneness is what we call ethics and morality. Therefore we must always practice them.

Q. — Is not the greater part of ethics taken up with the relation between individuals?

A. — That is all it is. The Absolute does not come within Maya.

Q. — You say the individual is the Absolute, and I was going to ask you whether the individual has knowledge.

A. — The state of manifestation is individuality, and the light in that state is what we call knowledge. To use, therefore, this term knowledge for the light of the Absolute is not precise, as the absolute state transcends relative knowledge.

Q. — Does it include it?

A. — Yes, in this sense. Just as a piece of gold can be changed into all sorts of coins, so with this. The state can be broken up into all sorts of knowledge. It is the state of superconsciousness, and includes both consciousness and unconsciousness. The man who attains that state has all that we call knowledge. When he wants to realise that consciousness of knowledge, he has to go a step lower. Knowledge is a lower state; it is only in Maya that we can have knowledge.

THINK OF DEATH ALWAYS AND NEW LIFE WILL COME WITHIN — WORK FOR OTHERS — GOD THE LAST REFUGE

[Shri Surendra Nath Das Gupta]

One day, with some of my young friends belonging to different colleges, I went to the Belur Math to see Swamiji. We sat round him; talks on various subjects were going on. No sooner was any question put to him than he gave the most conclusive answer to it. Suddenly he exclaimed, pointing to us, "You are all studying different schools of European philosophy and metaphysics and learning new facts about nationalities and countries; can you tell me what is the grandest of all the truths in life?"

We began to think, but could not make out what he wanted us to say. As none put forth any reply, he exclaimed in his inspiring language:

"Look here — we shall all die! Bear this in mind always, and then the spirit within will wake up. Then only, meanness will vanish from you, practicality in work will come, you will get new vigour in mind and body, and those who come in contact with you will also feel that they have really got something uplifting from you."

Then the following conversation took place between him and myself:

Myself: But, Swamiji, will not the spirit break down at the thought of death and the heart be overpowered by despondency?

Swamiji: Quite so. At first, the heart will break down, and despondency and gloomy thoughts will occupy your mind. But persist; let days pass like that — and then? Then you will see that new strength has come into the heart, that the constant thought of death is giving you a new life and is making you more and more thoughtful by bringing every moment before your mind's eye the truth of the saying, "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity!" Wait! Let days, months, and years pass, and you will feel that the spirit within is waking up with the strength of a lion, that the little power within has transformed itself into a mighty power! Think of death always, and you will realise the truth of every word I say. What more shall I say in words!

One of my friends praised Swamiji in a low voice.

Swamiji: Do not praise me. Praise and censure have no value in this world of ours. They only rock a man as if in a swing. Praise I have had enough of; showers of censure I have also had to bear; but what avails thinking of them! Let everyone go on doing his own duty unconcerned. When the last moment arrives, praise and blame will be the same to you, to me, and to others. We are here to work, and will have to leave all when the call comes Myself: How little we are, Swamiji!

Swamiji: True! You have well said! Think of this infinite universe with its millions and millions of solar systems, and think with what an infinite, incomprehensible power they are impelled, running as if to touch the Feet of the One Unknown — and how little we are! Where then is room here to allow ourselves to indulge in vileness and mean-mindedness? What should we gain here by fostering mutual enmity and party-spirit? Take my advice: Set yourselves wholly to the service of others, when you come from your colleges. Believe me, far greater happiness would then be yours than if you had had a whole treasury full of money and other valuables at your command. As you go on your way, serving others, you will advance accordingly in the path of knowledge.

Myself: But we are so very poor, Swamiji!

Swamiji: Leave aside your thoughts of poverty! In what respect are you poor? Do you feel regret because you have not a coach and pair or a retinue of servants at your beck and call? What of that? You little know how nothing would be impossible for you in life if you labour day and night for others with your heart's blood! And lo and behold! the other side of the hallowed river of life stands revealed before your eyes — the screen of Death has vanished, and you are the inheritors of the wondrous realm of immortality!

Myself: Oh, how we enjoy sitting before you, Swamiji, and hearing your life-giving words!

Swamiji: You see, in my travels throughout India all these years, I have come across many a great soul, many a heart overflowing with loving kindness, sitting at whose feet I used to feel a mighty current of strength coursing into my heart, and the few words I speak to you are only through the force of that current gained by coming in contact with them! Do not think I am myself something great!

Myself: But we look upon you, Swamiji, as one who has realised God!

No sooner did I say these words than those fascinating eyes of his were filled with tears (Oh, how vividly I, see that scene before my eyes even now), and he with a heart overflowing with love, softly and gently spoke: "At those Blessed Feet is the perfection of Knowledge, sought by the Jnanis! At those Blessed Feet also is the fulfilment of Love sought by the Lovers! Oh, say, where else will men and women go for refuge but to those Blessed Feet!"

After a while he again said, "Alas! what folly for men in this world to spend their days fighting and quarrelling with one another as they do! But how long can they go in that way? In the evening of life (At the end of one's whole course of transmigratory existence.) they must all come home, to the arms of the Mother."

SAYINGS AND UTTERANCES

1. Man is born to conquer nature and not to follow it.
2. When you think you are a body, are apart from the universe; when you think; you are a soul, you are a spark from the great Eternal Fire; when you think you are the Âtman (Self), you are All.
3. The will is not free — it is a phenomenon bound by cause and effect — but there is something behind the will which is free.
4. Strength is in goodness, in purity.
5. The universe is — objectified God.
6. You cannot believe in God until you believe in yourself.
7. The root of evil is in the illusion that we are bodies. This, if any, is the original sin.
8. One party says thought is caused by matter, and the other says matter is caused by thought. Both statements are wrong; matter and thought are coexistent. There is a third something of which both matter and thought are products.
9. As particles of matter combine in space, so mind-waves combine in time.
10. To define God is — grinding the already ground; for He is the only being we know.
11. Religion is the idea which is raising the brute unto man, and man unto God.
12. External nature is only internal nature writ large.
13. The motive is the measure of your work. What motive can be higher than that you are God, and that the lowest man is also God?
14. The observer in the psychic world needs to be very strong and scientifically trained.
15. To believe that mind is all, that thought is all is only a higher materialism.
16. This world is the great gymnasium where we come to make ourselves strong.
17. You cannot teach a child any more than you can grow a plant. All you can do is on the negative side — you can only help. It is a manifestation from within; it develops its own nature — you can only take away obstructions.
18. As soon as you make a sect, you protest against universal brotherhood. Those who really feel universal brotherhood do not talk much, but their very actions speak aloud.
19. Truth can be stated in a thousand different ways, yet each one can be true.
20. You have to grow from inside out. None can teach you, none can make you spiritual. There is no other teacher but your own soul.
21. If in an infinite chain a few links can be explained, by the same method all can be explained.
22. That man has reached immortality who is disturbed by nothing material.

23. Everything can be sacrificed for truth, but truth cannot be sacrificed for anything.
 24. The search for truth is the expression of strength — not the groping of a weak, blind man.
 25. God has become man; man will become God again.
 26. It is child's talk that a man dies and goes to heaven. We never come nor go. We are where we are. All the souls that have been, are, and will be, are on one geometrical point.
 27. He whose book of the heart has been opened needs no other books. Their only value is to create desire in us. They are merely the experiences of others.
 28. Have charity towards all beings. Pity those who are in distress. Love all creatures. Do not be jealous of anyone. Look not to the faults of others.
 29. Man never dies, nor is he ever born; bodies die, but he never dies.
 30. No one is born into a religion, but each one is born for a religion.
 31. There is really but one Self in the universe, all else is but Its manifestations.
 32. All the worshippers are divided into the common masses and the brave few.
 33. If it is impossible to attain perfection here and now, there is no proof that we can attain perfection in any other life.
 34. If I know one lump of clay perfectly, I know all the clay there is. This is the knowledge of principles, but their adaptations are various. When you know yourself you know all.
 35. Personally I take as much of the Vedas as agrees with reason. Parts of the Vedas are apparently contradictory. They are not considered as inspired in the Western sense of the word, but as the sum total of the knowledge of God, omniscience. This knowledge comes out at the beginning of a cycle and manifests itself; and when the cycle ends, it goes down into minute form. When the cycle is projected again, that knowledge is projected again with it. So far the theory is all right. But that only these books which are called the Vedas are His knowledge is mere sophistry. Manu says in one place that that part of the Vedas which agrees with reason is the Vedas and nothing else. Many of our philosophers have taken this view.
 36. Of all the scriptures of the world it is the Vedas alone that declare that even the study of the Vedas is secondary. The real study is "that by which we realise the Unchangeable". And that is neither reading, for believing, nor reasoning, but superconscious perception, or Samâdhi.
 37. We have been low animals once. We think they are something different from us. I hear, Western people say, "The world was created for us." If tigers could write books, they would say, man was created for them and that man is a most sinful animal, because he does not allow him (the tiger) to catch him easily. The worm that crawls under your feet today is a God to be.
 38. "I should very much like our women to have your intellectuality, but not if it must be at the cost of purity", said Swami Vivekananda in New York. "I admire you for all that you know, but I dislike the way that you cover what is bad with roses and call it good. Intellectuality is not the highest good. Morality and spirituality are the things for which we strive. Our women are not so learned, but they are more pure.
- "To all women every man save her husband should be as her son. To all men every woman save his own wife should be as his mother. When I look about me and see what you call gallantry, my soul is filled with disgust. Not until you learn to ignore the question of sex and to meet on a ground of common humanity will your women really develop. Until then they are playthings, nothing more. All this is the cause of divorce. Your men bow low and offer a chair, but in another breath they offer compliments. They say, 'Oh, madam, how beautiful are your eyes!' What right have they to do this? How dare a man venture so far, and how can you women permit it? Such things develop the less noble side of humanity. They do not tend to nobler ideals.

"We should not think that we are men and women. but only that we are human beings, born to cherish and to help one another. No sooner are a young man and a young woman left alone than he pays compliments to her, and perhaps before he takes a wife, he has courted two hundred women. Bah! If I belonged to the marrying set, I could find a woman to love without all that!

"When I was in India and saw these things from the outside, I was told it was all right, it was mere pleasantries and I believed it. But I have travelled since then, and I know it is not right. It is wrong, only you of the West shut your eyes and call it good. The trouble with the nations of the West is that they are young, foolish, fickle, and wealthy. What mischief can come of one of these qualities; but when all three, all four, are combined beware!"

But severe as the Swami was upon all, Boston received the hardest blow:

"Of all, Boston is the worst. There the women are all faddists, all fickle, merely bent on following something new and strange."

39. "Where is the spirituality one would expect in a country", he said in America, "that is so boastful of its civilisation?"

40. "Here" and "hereafter" are words to frighten children. It is all "here". To live and move in God even here, even in this body, all self should go out, all superstition should be banished. Such persons live in India. Where are such in this country (America)? Your preachers speak against dreamers. The people of this country would be better off if there were more dreamers. There is a good deal of difference between dreaming and the brag of the nineteenth century. The whole world is full of God and not of sin. Let us help one another, let us love one another.

41. Let me die a true Sannyâsin as my Master did, heedless of money, of women, and of fame! And of these the most insidious is the love of fame!

42. I have never spoken of revenge, I have always spoken of strength. Do we dream of revenging ourselves on this drop of sea-spray? But it is a great thing to a mosquito!

43. "This is a great land," said Swamiji on one occasion in America, "but I would not like to live here. Americans think too much of money. They give it preference over anything else. Your people have much to learn. When your nation is as old as ours, you will be wiser."

44. It may be that I shall find it good to get outside of my body — to cast it off like a disused garment. But I shall not cease to work! I shall inspire men everywhere, until the world shall know that it is one with God.

45. All that I am, all that the world itself will some day be, is owing to my Master, Shri Ramakrishna, who incarnated and experienced and taught this wonderful unity which underlies everything, having discovered it alike in Hinduism, in Islam, and in Christianity.

46. Give the organ of taste a free rein, and the other organs will also run on unbridled.

47. Jnâna, Bhakti, Yoga and Karma — these are the four paths which lead to salvation. One must follow the path for which one is best suited; but in this age special stress should be laid on Karma-Yoga.

48. Religion is not a thing of imagination but of direct perception. He who has seen even a single spirit is greater than many a book-learned Pandit.

49. Once Swamiji was praising someone very much; at this, one sitting near by said to him, "But he does not believe in you." Hearing this, Swamiji at once replied: "Is there any legal affidavit that he should have to do so? He is doing good work, and so he is worthy of praise."

50. In the domain of true religion, book-learning has no right to enter.

51. The downfall of a religious sect begins from the day that the worship of the rich enters into it.

52. If you want to do anything evil, do it before the eyes of your superiors.

53. By the grace of the Guru, a disciple becomes a Pandit (scholar) even without reading books.

54. There is no sin nor virtue: there is only ignorance. By realisation of non-duality this ignorance is dispelled.

55. Religious movements come in groups. Each one of them tries to rear itself above the rest. But as a rule only one of them really grows in strength, and this, in the long run, swallows up all the contemporary movements.

56. When Swamiji was at Ramnad, he said in the course of a conversation that Shri Râma was the Paramâtman and that Sitâ was the Jivâtman, and each man's or woman's body was the Lanka (Ceylon). The Jivatman which was enclosed in the body, or captured in the island of Lankâ, always desired to be in affinity with the Paramatman, or Shri Rama. But the Râkshasas would not allow it, and Rakshasas represented certain traits of character. For instance, Vibhishana represented Sattva Guna; Râvana, Rajas; and Kumbhakarna, Tamas. Sattva Guna means goodness; Rajas means lust and passions, and Tamas darkness, stupor, avarice, malice, and its concomitants. These Gunas keep back Sita, or Jivatman, which is in the body, or Lanka, from joining Paramatman, or Rama. Sita, thus imprisoned and trying to unite with her Lord, receives a visit from Hanumân, the Guru or divine teacher, who shows her the Lord's ring, which is Brahma-Jnâna, the supreme wisdom that destroys all illusions; and thus Sita finds the way to be at one with Shri Rama, or, in other words, the Jivatman finds itself one with the Paramatman.

57. A true Christian is a true Hindu, and a true Hindu is a true Christian.

58. All healthy social changes are the manifestations of the spiritual forces working within, and if these are strong and well adjusted, society will arrange itself accordingly. Each individual has to work out his own salvation; there is no other way, and so also with nations. Again, the great institutions of every nation are the conditions of its very existence and cannot be transformed by the mould of any other race. Until higher institutions have been evolved, any attempt to break the old ones will be disastrous. Growth is always gradual.

It is very easy to point out the defects of institutions, all being more or less imperfect, but he is the real benefactor of humanity who helps the individual to overcome his imperfections under whatever institutions he may live. The individuals being raised, the nation and its institutions are bound to rise. Bad customs and laws are ignored by the virtuous, and unwritten but mightier laws of love, sympathy, and integrity take their place. Happy is the nation which can rise to the necessity of but few law books, and needs no longer to bother its head about this or that institution. Good men rise beyond all laws, and will help their fellows to rise under whatever conditions they live.

The salvation of India, therefore, depends on the strength of the individual, and the realisation by each man of the divinity within.

59. Spirituality can never be attained until materiality is gone.

60. The first discourse in the Gita can be taken allegorically.

61. "Swami, you have no idea of time", remarked an impatient American devotee, afraid of missing a steamer. "No," retorted Swamiji calmly, "you live in time; we live in eternity!"

62. We are always letting sentiment usurp the place of duty and flatter ourselves that we are acting in response to true love.

63. We must get beyond emotionalism if we want the power to renounce. Emotion belongs to the animals. They are creatures of emotion entirely.

64. It is not sacrifice of a high order to die for one's young. The animals do that, and just as readily as any human mother ever did. It is no sign of real love to do that; it is merely blind emotion.

65. We are for ever trying to make our weakness look like strength, our sentiment like love, our cowardice like courage, and so on.

66. Say to your soul in regard to vanities, weakness, etc., "This does not befit thee. This does not befit thee."

67. Never loved a husband the wife for the wife's sake or the wife the husband for the husband's sake. It is God in the wife the husband loves, and God in the husband the wife loves. It is God in every one that draws us to the one we love, God in everything and in everybody that makes us love. God is the only love.

68. Oh, if only you knew yourselves! You are souls; you are Gods. If ever I feel like blaspheming, it is when I call you man.

69. In everyone is God, the Atman; all else is but dream, an illusion.

70. If I do not find bliss in the life of the Spirit, shall I seek satisfaction in the life of the senses? If I cannot get nectar; shall I fall back upon ditch water? The bird called Châataka drinks from the clouds only, ever calling as it soars, "Pure water! Pure water!" And no storms or tempests make it falter on wing or descend to drink from the earth.

71. Any sect that may help you to realise God is welcome. Religion is the realising of God.

72. An atheist can be charitable but not religious. But the religious man must be charitable.

73. Everyone makes shipwreck on the rock of would-be Guruism, except those souls that were born to be Gurus.

74. Man is a compound of animality, humanity, and divinity.

75. The term "social progress" has as much meaning as "hot ice" or "dark light". There is no such thing, ultimately, as "social progress"!

76. Things are not bettered, but we are bettered, by making changes in them.

77. Let me help my fellow men; that is all I seek.

78. "No", said the Swami, very softly, in answer to a question in New York, "I do not believe in the occult. If a thing be unreal, it is not. What is unreal does not exist. Strange things are natural phenomena. I know them to be matters of science. Then they are not occult to me. I do not believe in occult societies. They do no good, and can never do good."

79. There are four general types of men — the rational, the emotional, the mystical, and the worker. For each of these we must provide suitable forms of worship. There comes the rational man, who says, "I care not for this form of worship. Give me the philosophical, the rational — that I can appreciate." So for the rational man is the rational philosophic worship.

There comes the worker. He says, "I care not for the worship of the philosopher. Give me work to do for my fellow men." So for him is provided work as the path of worship. As for the mystical and the emotional, we have their respective modes of devotion. All these men have, in religion, the elements of their faith.

80. I stand for truth. Truth will never ally itself with falsehood. Even if all the world should be against me, Truth must prevail in the end.

81. Wherever you see the most humanitarian ideas fall into the hands of the multitude, the first result you notice is degradation. It is learning and intellect that help to keep things safe. It is the cultured among a community that are the real custodians of religion and philosophy in their purest form. It is that form which serves as the index for the intellectual and social condition of a community.

82. "I do not come", said Swamiji on one occasion in America, "to convert you to a new belief. I want you to keep your own belief; I want to make the Methodist a better Methodist; the Presbyterian a better Presbyterian; the Unitarian a better Unitarian. I want to teach you to live the truth, to reveal the light within your own soul."

83. Happiness presents itself before man, wearing the crown of sorrow on its head. He who welcomes it must also welcome sorrow.

84. He is free, he is great, who turns his back upon the world, who has renounced everything, who has controlled his passion, and who thirsts for peace. One may gain political and social independence, but if one is a slave to his passions and desires, one cannot feel the pure joy of real freedom.

85. Doing good to others is virtue (Dharma); injuring others is sin. Strength and manliness are virtue; weakness and cowardice are sin. Independence is virtue; dependence is sin. Loving others is virtue; hating others is sin. Faith in God and in one's own Self is virtue; doubt is sin. Knowledge of oneness is virtue; seeing diversity is sin. The different scriptures only show the means of attaining virtue.

86. When, by reasoning, Truth is comprehended by the intellect, then it is realised in the heart, the fountainhead of feeling. Thus the head and the heart become illumined at the same moment; and then only, as says the Upanishad, "The knot of the heart is rent asunder, and all doubts cease" (Mundaka Upanishad, II.ii.8).

When in ancient times this knowledge (Jnâna) and this feeling (Bhâva) thus blossomed forth simultaneously in the heart of the Rishi, then the Highest Truth became poetic, and then the Vedas and other scriptures were composed. It is for this reason that one finds, in studying them, that the two parallel lines of Bhava and Jnana have at last met, as it were, in the plane of the Vedas and become combined and inseparable.

87. The scriptures of different religions point out different means to attain the ideals of universal love, freedom, manliness, and selfless benevolence. Every religious sect is generally at variance as to its idea of what is virtue and what is vice, and fights with others over the means of attaining virtue and eschewing vice, instead of aiming at realising the end. Every means is helpful more or less, and the Gita (XVIII.48) says, "Every undertaking is attended with defects as fire with smoke"; so the means will no doubt appear more or less defective. But as we are to attain the highest virtue through the means laid down in our respective scriptures, we should try our best to follow them. Moreover, they should be tempered with reason and discrimination. Thus, as we progress, the riddle of virtue and vice will be solved by itself.

88. How many in our country truly understand the Shastras nowadays? They have only learnt such words as Brahman, Maya, Prakriti, and so on, and confuse their heads with them. Setting aside the real meaning and purpose of the Shastras, they fight over the words only. If the Shastras cannot help all men in all conditions at all times, of what use, then, are such Shastras? If the Shastras show the way to the Sannyasins only and not to the householders, then what need has a householder for such one-sided Shastras? If the Shastras can only help men when they give up all work and retire into the forests, and cannot show the way of lighting the lamp of hope in the hearts of men of the workaday world — in the midst of their daily toil, disease, misery, and poverty, in the despondency of the penitent, in the self-reproach of the downtrodden, in the terror of the battlefield, in lust, anger and pleasure, in the joy of victory, in the darkness of defeat, and finally, in the dreaded night of death — then weak humanity has no need of such Shastras, and such Shastras will be no Shastras at all!

89. Through Bhoga (enjoyment) Yoga will come in time. But alas, such is the lot of my countrymen that, not to speak of possessing yoga, they cannot even have a little Bhoga! Suffering all sorts of indignities they can with the utmost difficulty only meet the barest needs of the body — and even that everyone cannot do! It is strange that such a state of affairs does not disturb our sleep and rouse us to our immediate duties.

90. Agitate ever so much for your rights and privileges, but remember that so long as we do not truly elevate ourselves by rousing intensely the feeling of self-respect in the nation, so long our hope of gaining rights and privileges is like the day-dream of Alnascar.

91. When a genius of a man with some special great power is born, all the best and the most creative faculties of his whole heredity are drawn towards the making up of his personality and squeezed dry, as it were. It is for this reason that we find that all those who are subsequently born in such a family are either idiots or men of very ordinary calibre, and that in time such a family in many cases becomes extinct.

92. If you cannot attain salvation in this life, what proof is there that you can attain it in the life or lives to come?

93. While visiting the Taj at Agra he remarked: "If you squeeze a bit of this marble, it will drip drops of royal love and its sorrow." Further he observed, "It takes really six months to study a square inch of its interior works of beauty."

94. When the real history of India will be unearthed, it will be proved that, as in matters of religion, so in fine arts, India is the primal Guru of the whole world.

95. Speaking of architecture he said: "People say Calcutta is a city of palaces, but the houses look much like so many boxes placed one upon the other! They convey no idea whatever. In Rajputana you can still find much pure Hindu architecture. If you look at a Dharmashala, you will feel as if it calls you with open arms to take shelter within and partake of its unqualified hospitableness. If you look at a temple, you are sure to find a Divine Presence in and about it. If you look about a rural cottage, you will at once be able to comprehend the special meanings of its different portions, and that the whole structure bears evidence to the predominant nature and ideal of the owner thereof. This sort of expressive architecture I have seen nowhere else except in Italy."

RELIGION AND SCIENCE

Experience is the only source of knowledge. In the world, religion is the only science where there is no surety, because it is not taught as a science of experience. This should not be. There is always, however, a small group of men who teach religion from experience. They are called mystics, and these mystics in every religion speak the same tongue and teach the same truth. This is the real science of religion. As mathematics in every part of the world does not differ, so the mystics do not differ. They are all similarly constituted and similarly situated. Their experience is the same; and this becomes law.

In the church, religionists first learn a religion, then begin to practice it; they do not take experience as the basis of their belief. But the mystic starts out in search of truth, experiences it first, and then formulates his creed. The church takes the experience of others; the mystic has his own experience. The church goes from the outside in; the mystic goes from the inside out.

Religion deals with the truths of the metaphysical world just as chemistry and the other natural sciences deal with the truths of the physical world. The book one must read to learn chemistry is the book of nature. The book from which to learn religion is your own mind and heart. The sage is often ignorant of physical science, because he reads the wrong book — the book within; and the scientist is too often ignorant of religion, because he too reads the wrong book — the book without.

All science has its particular methods; so has the science of religion. It has more methods also, because it has more material to work upon. The human mind is not homogeneous like the external world. According to the different nature, there must be different methods. As some special sense predominates in a person — one person will see most, another will hear most — so there is a predominant mental sense; and through this gate must each reach his own mind. Yet through all minds runs a unity, and there is a science which may be applied to all. This science of religion is based on the analysis of the human soul. It has no creed.

No one form of religion will do for all. Each is a pearl on a string. We must be particular above all else to find individuality in each. No man is born to any religion; he has a religion in his own soul. Any system which seeks to destroy individuality is in the long run disastrous. Each life has a current running through it, and this current will eventually take it to God. The end and aim of all religions is to realise God. The greatest of all training is to worship God alone. If each man chose his own ideal and stuck to it, all religious controversy would vanish.

HISTORICAL EVOLUTION OF INDIA

OM TAT SAT

Om Namō Bhagavate Rāmakrishnāya

नासत्तः सत् जायते — Existence cannot be produced by non-existence.

Non-existence can never be the cause of what exists. Something cannot come out of nothing. That the law of causation is omnipotent and knows no time or place when it did not exist is a doctrine as old as the Aryan race, sung by its ancient poet-seers, formulated by its philosophers, and made the corner-stone upon which the Hindu man even of today builds his whole scheme of life.

There was an inquisitiveness in the race to start with, which very soon developed into bold analysis, and though, in the first attempt, the work turned out might be like the attempts with shaky hands of the future master-sculptor, it very soon gave way to strict science, bold attempts, and startling results.

Its boldness made these men search every brick of their sacrificial altars; scan, cement, and pulverise every word of their scriptures; arrange, re-arrange, doubt, deny, or explain the ceremonies. It turned their gods inside out, and assigned only a secondary place to their omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent Creator of the universe, their ancestral Father-in-heaven; or threw Him altogether overboard as useless, and started a world-religion without Him with even now the largest following of any religion. It evolved the science of geometry from the arrangements of bricks to build various altars, and startled the world with astronomical knowledge that arose from the attempts accurately to time their worship and oblations. It made their contribution to the science of mathematics the largest of any race, ancient or modern, and to their knowledge of chemistry, of metallic compounds in medicine, their scale of musical notes, their invention of the bow-instruments — (all) of great service in the building of modern European civilisation. It led them to invent the science of building up the child-mind through shining fables, of which every child in every civilised country learns in a nursery or a school and carries an impress through life.

Behind and before this analytical keenness, covering it as in a velvet sheath, was the other great mental peculiarity of the race — poetic insight. Its religion, its philosophy, its history, its ethics, its politics were all inlaid in a flower-bed of poetic imagery — the miracle of language which was called Sanskrit or "perfected", lending itself to expressing and manipulating them better than any other tongue. The aid of melodious numbers was invoked even to express the hard facts of mathematics.

This analytical power and the boldness of poetical visions which urged it onward are the two great internal causes in the make-up of the Hindu race. They together formed, as it were, the keynote to the national character. This combination is what is always making the race press onwards beyond the senses — the secret of those speculations which are like the steel blades the artisans used to manufacture — cutting through bars of iron, yet pliable enough to be easily bent into a circle.

They wrought poetry in silver and gold; the symphony of jewels, the maze of marble wonders, the music of colours, the fine fabrics which belong more to the fairyland of dreams than to the real — have back of them thousands of years of working of this national trait.

Arts and sciences, even the realities of domestic life, are covered with a mass of poetical conceptions, which are pressed forward till the sensuous touches the supersensuous and the real gets the rose-hue of the unreal.

The earliest glimpses we have of this race show it already in the possession of this characteristic, as an instrument of some use in its hands. Many forms of religion and society must have been left behind in the onward march, before we find the race as depicted in the scriptures, the Vedas.

An organised pantheon, elaborate ceremonials, divisions of society into hereditary classes necessitated by a variety of occupations, a great many necessities and a good many luxuries of life are already there.

Most modern scholars are agreed that surroundings as to climate and conditions, purely Indian, were not yet working on the race.

Onwards through several centuries, we come to a multitude surrounded by the snows of Himalayas on the north and the heat of the south — vast plains, interminable forests, through which mighty rivers roll their tides. We catch a glimpse of different races — Dravidians, Tartars, and Aborigines pouring in their quota of blood, of speech, of manners and religions. And at last a great nation emerges to our view — still keeping the type of the Aryan — stronger, broader, and more organised by the assimilation. We find the central assimilative core giving its type and character to the whole mass, clinging on with great pride to its name of "Aryan", and, though willing to give other races the benefits of its civilisation, it was by no means willing to admit them within the "Aryan" pale.

The Indian climate again gave a higher direction to the genius of the race. In a land where nature was propitious and yielded easy victories, the national mind started to grapple with and conquer the higher problems of life in the field of thought. Naturally the thinker, the priest, became the highest class in the Indian society, and not the man of the sword. The priests again, even at that dawn of history, put most of their energy in elaborating rituals; and when the nation began to find the load of ceremonies and lifeless rituals too heavy — came the first philosophical speculations, and the royal race was the first to break through the maze of killing rituals.

On the one hand, the majority of the priests impelled by economical considerations were bound to defend that form of religion which made their existence a necessity of society and assigned them the highest place in the scale of caste; on the other hand, the king-caste, whose strong right hand guarded and guided the nation and who now found itself as leading in the higher thoughts also, were loath to give up the first place to men who only knew how to conduct a ceremonial. There were then others, recruited from both the priests and king-castes, who ridiculed equally the ritualists and philosophers, declared spiritualism as fraud and priestcraft, and upheld the attainment of material comforts as the highest goal of life. The people, tired of ceremonials and wondering at the philosophers, joined in masses the materialists. This was the beginning of that caste question and that triangular fight in India between ceremonials, philosophy, and materialism which has come down unsolved to our own days.

The first solution of the difficulty attempted was by applying the eclecticism which from the earliest days had taught the people to see in differences the same truth in various garbs. The great leader of this school, Krishna — himself of royal race — and his sermon, the Gîtâ, have after various vicissitudes, brought about by the upheavals of the Jains, the Buddhists, and other sects, fairly established themselves as the "Prophet" of India and the truest philosophy of life. Though the tension was toned down for the time, it did not satisfy the social wants which were among the causes — the claim of the king-race to stand first in the scale of caste and the popular intolerance of priestly privilege. Krishna had opened the gates of spiritual knowledge and attainment to all irrespective of sex or caste, but he left undisturbed the same problem on the social side. This again has come down to our own days, in spite of the gigantic struggle of the Buddhists, Vaishnavas, etc. to attain social equality for all.

Modern India admits spiritual equality of all souls — but strictly keeps the social difference.

Thus we find the struggle renewed all along the line in the seventh century before the Christian era and finally in the sixth, overwhelming the ancient order of things under Shâkya Muni, the Buddha. In their reaction against the privileged priesthood, Buddhists swept off almost every bit of the old ritual of the Vedas, subordinated the gods of the Vedas to the position of servants to their own human saints, and declared the "Creator and Supreme Ruler" as an invention of priestcraft and superstition.

But the aim of Buddhism was reform of the Vedic religion by standing against ceremonials requiring offerings of animals, against hereditary caste and exclusive priesthood, and against belief in permanent souls. It never attempted to destroy that religion, or overturn the social order. It introduced a vigorous method by organising a class of Sannyâsins into a strong monastic brotherhood, and the Brahmavâdinis into a body of nuns — by introducing images of saints in the place of altar-fires.

It is probable that the reformers had for centuries the majority of the Indian people with them. The older forces were never entirely pacified, but they underwent a good deal of modification during the centuries of Buddhistic supremacy.

In ancient India the centres of national life were always the intellectual and spiritual and not political. Of old, as now, political and social power has been always subordinated to spiritual and intellectual. The outburst of national life was round colleges of sages and spiritual teachers. We thus find the Samitis of the Panchâlas, of the Kâshyas (of Varanasi), the Maithilas standing out as great centres of spiritual culture and philosophy, even in the Upanishads. Again these centres in turn became the focus of political ambition of the various divisions of the Aryans.

The great epic Mahâbhârata tells us of the war of the Kurus and Panchalas for supremacy over the nation, in which they destroyed each other. The spiritual supremacy veered round and centred in the East among the Magadhas and Maithilas, and after the Kuru-Panchala war a sort of supremacy was obtained by the kings of Magadha.

The Buddhist reformation and its chief field of activity were also in the same eastern region; and when the Maurya kings, forced possibly by the bar sinister on their escutcheon, patronised and led the new movement, the new priest power joined hands with the political power of the empire of Pataliputra. The popularity of Buddhism and its fresh vigour made the Maurya kings the greatest emperors that India ever had. The power of the Maurya sovereigns made Buddhism that world-wide religion that we see even today.

The exclusiveness of the old form of Vedic religions debarred it from taking ready help from outside. At the same time it kept it pure and free from many debasing elements which Buddhism in its propagandist zeal was forced to assimilate.

This extreme adaptability in the long run made Indian Buddhism lose almost all its individuality, and extreme desire to be of the people made it unfit to cope with the intellectual forces of the mother religion in a few centuries. The Vedic party in the meanwhile got rid of a good deal of its most objectionable features, as animal sacrifice, and took lessons from the rival daughter in the judicious use of images, temple processions, and other impressive performances, and stood ready to take within her fold the whole empire of Indian Buddhism, already tottering to its fall.

And the crash came with the Scythian invasions and the total destruction of the empire of Pataliputra.

The invaders, already incensed at the invasion of their central Asiatic home by the preachers of Buddhism, found in the sun-worship of the Brahmins a great sympathy with their own solar religion — and when the Brahminist party were ready to adapt and spiritualise many of the customs of the new-comers, the invaders threw themselves heart and soul into the Brahminic cause.

Then there is a veil of darkness and shifting shadows; there are tumults of war, rumours of massacres; and the next scene rises upon a new phase of things.

The empire of Magadha was gone. Most of northern India was under the rule of petty chiefs always at war with one another. Buddhism was almost extinct except in some eastern and Himalayan provinces and in the extreme south and the nation after centuries of struggle against the power of a hereditary priesthood awoke to find itself in the clutches of a double priesthood of hereditary Brahmins and exclusive monks of the new regime, with all the powers of the Buddhistic organisation and without their sympathy for the people.

A nascent India, bought by the valour and blood of the heroic Rajputs, defined by the merciless intellect of a Brahmin from the same historical thought-centre of Mithila, led by a new philosophical impulse organised by Shankara and his bands of Sannyasins, and beautified by the arts and literature of the courts of Mâlavâ — arose on the ruins of the old.

The task before it was profound, problems vaster than any their ancestors had ever faced. A comparatively small and compact race of the same blood and speech and the same social and religious aspiration, trying to save its unity by unscalable walls around itself, grew huge by multiplication and addition during the Buddhistic supremacy; and (it) was divided by race, colour, speech, spiritual instinct, and social ambitions into hopelessly jarring factions. And this had to be unified and welded into one gigantic nation. This task Buddhism had also come to solve, and had taken it up when the proportions were not so vast.

So long it was a question of Aryanising the other types that were pressing for admission and thus, out of different elements, making a huge Aryan body. In spite of concessions and compromises, Buddhism was eminently successful and remained the national religion of India. But the time came when the allurements of sensual forms of worship, indiscriminately taken in along with various low races, were too dangerous for the central Aryan core, and a longer contact would certainly have destroyed the civilisation of the Aryans. Then came a natural reaction for self-preservation, and Buddhism and separate sect ceased to live in most parts of its land of birth.

The reaction-movement, led in close succession by Kumârila in the north, and Shankara and Râmânûja in the south, has become the last embodiment of that vast accumulation of sects and doctrines and rituals called Hinduism. For the last thousand years or more, its great task has been assimilation, with now and then an outburst of reformation. This reaction first wanted to revive the rituals of the Vedas — failing which, it made the Upanishads or the philosophic portions of the Vedas its basis. It brought Vyasa's system of Mimâmsâ philosophy and Krishna's sermon, the Gita, to the forefront; and all succeeding movements have followed the same. The movement of Shankara forced its way through its high intellectuality; but it could be of little service to the masses, because of its adherence to strict caste-laws, very small scope for ordinary emotion, and making Sanskrit the only vehicle of communication. Ramanuja on the other hand, with a most practical philosophy, a great appeal to the emotions, an entire denial of birthrights before spiritual attainments, and appeals through the popular tongue completely succeeded in bringing the masses back to the Vedic religion.

The northern reaction of ritualism was followed by the fitful glory of the Malava empire. With the destruction of that in a short time, northern India went to sleep as it were, for a long period, to be rudely awakened by the thundering onrush of Mohammedan cavalry across the passes of Afghanistan. In the south, however, the spiritual upheaval of Shankara and Ramanuja was followed by the usual Indian sequence of united races and powerful empires. It was the home of refuge of Indian religion and civilisation, when northern India from sea to sea lay bound at the feet of Central Asiatic conquerors. The Mohammedan tried for centuries to subjugate the south, but can scarcely be said to have got even a strong foothold; and when the strong and united empire of the Moguls was very near completing its conquest, the hills and plateaus of the south poured in their bands of fighting peasant horsemen, determined to die for the religion which Râmândâs preached and Tukâ sang; and in a short time the gigantic empire of the Moguls was only a name.

The movements in northern India during the Mohammedan period are characterised by their uniform attempt to hold the masses back from joining the religion of the conquerors — which brought in its train social and spiritual equality for all.

The friars of the orders founded by Râmânanda, Kabir, Dâdu, Chaitanya, or Nânak were all agreed in preaching the equality of man, however differing from each other in philosophy. Their energy was for the most part spent in checking the rapid conquest of Islam among the masses, and they had very little left to give birth to new thoughts and aspirations. Though evidently successful in their purpose of keeping the masses within the fold of the old religion, and tempering the fanaticism of the Mohammedans, they were mere apologists, struggling to obtain permission to live.

One great prophet, however, arose in the north, Govind Singh, the last Guru of the Sikhs, with creative genius; and the result of his spiritual work was followed by the well-known political organisation of the Sikhs. We have seen throughout the history of India, a spiritual upheaval is almost always succeeded by a political unity extending over more or less area of the continent, which in its turn helps to strengthen the spiritual aspiration that brings it to being. But the spiritual aspiration that preceded the rise of the Mahratta or the Sikh empire was entirely reactionary. We seek in vain to find in the court of Poona or Lahore even a ray of reflection of that intellectual glory which surrounded the courts of the Moguls, much less the brilliance of Malava or Vidyânagara. It was intellectually the darkest period of Indian history; and both these meteoric empires, representing the upheaval of mass-fanaticism and hating culture with all their hearts, lost all their motive power as soon as they had succeeded in destroying the rule of the hated Mohammedans.

Then there came again a period of confusion. Friends and foes, the Mogul empire and its destroyers, and the till then peaceful foreign traders, French and English, all joined in a mêlée of fight. For more than half a century there was nothing but war and pillage and destruction. And when the smoke and dust cleared, England was stalking victorious over the rest. There has been half a century of peace and law and order under the sway of Britain. Time alone will prove if it is the order of progress or not.

There have been a few religious movements amongst the Indian people during the British rule, following the same line that was taken up by northern Indian sects during the sway of the empire of Delhi. They are the voices of the dead or the dying — the feeble tones of a terrorised people, pleading for permission to live. They are ever eager to adjust their spiritual or social surroundings according to the tastes of the conquerors — if they are only left the right to live, especially the sects under the English domination, in which social differences with the conquering race are more glaring than the spiritual. The Hindu sects of the century seem to have set one ideal of truth before them — the approval of their English masters. No wonder that these sects have mushroom lives to live. The vast body of the Indian people religiously hold aloof from them, and the only popular recognition they get is the jubilation of the people when they die.

But possibly, for some time yet, it cannot be otherwise.

VRINDABAN,
12th Aug., 1888.

DEAR SIR,

Leaving Ayodhya I have reached the holy Vrindaban, and am putting up at Kâlâ Bâbu's Kunja. In the town the mind feels contracted. Places like Râdhâ-kunda, I have heard, are delightful; but they are at some distance from the town. I have a mind to proceed very shortly to Hardwar. In case you have any acquaintance there, you would be doing me a great favour if you would kindly write him an introduction for me. What about your visiting this place? Please reply early and oblige.

Yours etc.,

VIVEKANANDA.

মান্যবরেষু,

শ্রীঅযোধ্যা হইয়া শ্রীবৃন্দাবনধামে পৌঁছিয়াছি। কালাবাবুর কুঞ্জ আছে -- শহরে মন কুঞ্চিত হইয়া আছে। শুনিয়াছি রাখাকুন্ডাদি স্থান মনোরম। তাহা শহর হইতে কিঞ্চিৎ দূরে। শীঘ্রই হরিদ্বার যাইব, বাসনা আছে। হরিদ্বারে আপনার আলাপী কেহ যদি থাকেন, কৃপা করিয়া তাঁহার উপর এক পত্র দেন, তাহা হইলে বিশেষ অনুগ্রহ করা হয়। আপনার এস্থানে আসিবার কি হইল? শীঘ্র উত্তর দিয়া কৃতার্থ করিবেন।

ঈশ্বরজ্যোতি মহাশয়েষু,

আমার এক বৃদ্ধ গুরুভ্রাতা সম্প্রতি কেদার ও বদরিকাশ্রম দেখিয়া ফিরিয়া বৃন্দাবনে আসিয়াছেন, তাঁহার সহিত গঙ্গাধরের সাক্ষাৎ হয়। গঙ্গাধর দুইবার তিব্বত ও ভূটান পর্যন্ত গিয়াছিল। অতি আনন্দে আছে। তাঁহাকে দেখিয়া কাঁদিয়া আকুল হয়। শীতকালে কনখলে ছিল। আপনার প্রদত্ত করোয়া তাহার হস্তে আজিও আছে। সে ফিরিয়া আসিতেছে -- এই মাসেই বৃন্দাবন আসিবে। আমি তাহাকে দেখিবার প্রত্যাশায় হরিদ্বার গমন কিছুদিন স্থগিত রাখিলাম। আপনার সমীপচারী সেই শিবভক্ত ব্রাহ্মণটিকে আমার কোটি সাষ্টাঙ্গ প্রণাম দিবেন ও আপনি জানিবেন। অলমিতি

পূজ্যপাদ মহাশয়,

আপনার প্রেরিত পুস্তকদ্বয় প্রাপ্ত হইয়াছি এবং আপনার অতু্যদার হৃদয়ের উপযুক্ত পরিচায়ক অদ্ভুত স্মেহরসাম্প্লুত লিপি পাঠ করিয়া আনন্দে পূর্ণ হইয়াছি। মহাশয় আমার ন্যায় একজন ভিক্ষাজীবী উদাসীনের উপর এত অধিক স্মেহ প্রকাশ করেন, ইহা আমার প্রাক্তনের সুকৃতিবশতঃ সন্দেহ নাই। ‘বেদান্ত’ প্রেরণ দ্বারা মহাশয় কেবল আমাকে নয়, পরন্তু ভগবান রামকৃষ্ণের সমুদায় সন্ন্যাসিসিষ্যমন্ডলিকে চিরকৃতজ্ঞতাপাশে আবদ্ধ করিয়াছেন। তাঁহারা অবনতমস্তকে আপনাকে প্রণিপাত জানাইয়াছেন। পাণিনির ব্যাকরণ কেবল আমার নিমিত্ত প্রার্থনা করি নাই, প্রত্যুত এ মঠে সংস্কৃত শাস্ত্রের বহুল চর্চা হইয়া থাকে। বঙ্গদেশে বেদশাস্ত্রের একেবারে অপ্রচার বলিলেই হয়। এই মঠের অনেকেই সংস্কৃতজ্ঞ এবং তাঁহাদের বেদের সংহিতাদি ভাগ সম্পূর্ণভাবে আয়ত্ত করিবার একান্ত অভিলাষ। তাঁহাদিগের মত, যাহা করিতে হইবে তাহা সম্পূর্ণ করিব। অতএব, পাণিনিকৃত সর্বোৎকৃষ্ট ব্যাকরণ আয়ত্ত না হইলে বৈদিক ভাষায় সম্পূর্ণ জ্ঞান হওয়া অসম্ভব, এই বিবেচনায় উক্ত ব্যাকরণের আবশ্যিক। ‘লঘু’ অপেক্ষা আমাদের বাল্যাগীত ‘মুপ্তবোধ’ অনেকাংশে উৎকৃষ্ট। যাহা হউক, মহাশয় অতি পন্ডিত ব্যক্তি এবং এ বিষয়ে আমাদের সদুপদেশ্য, আপনি বিবেচনা করিয়া যদি এ বিষয়ে ‘অষ্টাধ্যায়ী’ সর্বোৎকৃষ্ট হয়, তাহাই (যদি আপনার সুবিধা এবং ইচ্ছা হয়) দান করিয়া আমাদিগকে চিরকৃতজ্ঞতাপাশে আবদ্ধ করিবেন। এ মঠে অতি তীক্ষ্ণবুদ্ধি, মেধাবি এবং অধ্যবসায়শীল ব্যক্তির অভাব নাই। গুরুর কৃপায় তাঁহারা অল্পদিনেই ‘অষ্টাধ্যায়ী’ অভ্যাস করিয়া বেদশাস্ত্র বঙ্গদেশে পুনরুজ্জীবিত করিতে পারিবেন -- ভরসা করি। মহাশয়কে আমার গুরুরমহারাজের দুইখানি ফটোগ্রাফ এবং তাঁহার গ্রাম্য ভাষায় উপদেশের কিয়দংশ -- কোনও ব্যক্তি সঙ্কলিত করিয়া [যাহা] মুদ্রিত করিয়াছেন, তাহা প্রেরণ করিলাম। আশা করি গ্রহণ করিয়া আমাদিগকে আনন্দিত করিবেন। আমার শরীর অনেক সুস্থ হইয়াছে -- ভরসা দুই-তিন মাসের মধ্যে মহাশয়ের চরণ দর্শন করিয়া সার্থক হইব। কিমধিকমিতি।

পূজ্যপাদ মহাশয়,

বহুদিন আপনাকে নানা কারণে কোন পত্রাদি লিখিতে পারি নাই, তজ্জন্য ক্ষমা করিবেন। অধুনা গঙ্গাধরজীর সংবাদ পাইয়াছি এবং আমার কোন গুরুভ্রাতার সহিত সাক্ষাৎ হওয়ায় তাঁহারা দুইজনে উত্তরাখণ্ডে রহিয়াছেন। আমাদের এ স্থান হইতে চারি জন উত্তরাখণ্ডে রহিয়াছেন, গঙ্গাধরকে লইয়া পাঁচ জন। শিবানন্দ নামক আমার একজন গুরুভ্রাতার সহিত কেদারনাথের পথে শ্রীনগর নামক স্থানে গঙ্গাধরের সাক্ষাৎ হয়। গঙ্গাধর এই স্থানে দুইখানি পত্র লিখিয়াছেন। তিনি প্রথম বৎসরে তিব্বত প্রবেশের অনুমতি পান নাই, পরের বৎসর পাইয়াছিলেন। লামারা তাঁহাকে অত্যন্ত ভালবাসে। তিনি তিব্বতী ভাষা শিক্ষা করিয়াছেন। তিনি বলেন, তিব্বতের শতকরা ৯০ জন লামা, কিন্তু তাহারা এক্ষণে তান্ত্রিক মতের উপাসনাই অধিক করে। অত্যন্ত শীতল দেশ; আহারীয় অন্য কিছু নাই -- কেবল শুষ্ক মাংস। গঙ্গাধর তাহাই খাইতে খাইতে গিয়াছিল! আমার শরীর মন্দ নাই কিন্তু মনের অবস্থা অতি ভয়ঙ্কর!

৪ঠা জুলাই, ১৮৮৯

পূজ্যপাদ মহাশয়,

কল্য আপনার পত্রে সবিশেষ অবগত হইয়া পরম আনন্দিত হইলাম। আপনাকে পত্র লিখিতে -- গঙ্গাধরকে অনুরোধ করিতে যে আপনি লিখিয়াছেন, তাহার কোন সম্ভাবনা দেখি না, কারণ তাঁহারা ২।৩ দিবস কোথাও রহিতেছেন না, অতএব আমাদের কোনও পত্রাদি পাইতেছেন না। আমার পূর্ব অবস্থার কোন আত্মীয় সিমুলতলায় (বৈদ্যনাথের নিকট) একটি বাংলো (bungalow) ক্রয় করিয়াছেন। ঐ স্থানের জলবায়ু স্বাস্থ্যকর বিধায় আমি সেস্থানে কিছুদিন ছিলাম। কিন্তু গ্রীষ্মের অতিশয্যে অত্যন্ত উদরাময় হওয়ায় পলাইয়া আসিলাম।

কাশীধামে গমন করিয়া মহাশয়ের চরণ দর্শন করিয়া এবং সদালাপে অবস্থানপূর্বক আত্মাকে চরিতার্থ করিব -- এই ইচ্ছা যে অন্তরে কত বলবতী, তাহা বাক্য বর্ণনা করিতে পারে না, কিন্তু সকলই তাঁহার হাত। কে জানে মহাশয়ের সহিত জন্মান্তরীণ কি হৃদয়ের যোগ, নহিলে কলিকাতায় বহু ধনী মানী লোক আমাকে যথেষ্ট স্নেহ করেন, তাঁহাদের সঙ্গ আমার সাতিশয় বিরক্তিকর বোধ হয়, আর মহাশয়ের সহিত এক দিবসের আলাপেই প্রাণ এবম্প্রকার মুগ্ধ হইয়াছে যে, আপনাকে হৃদয় পরমাত্মীয় এবং ধর্মবন্ধুভাবে গ্রহণ করিয়াছে। মহাশয় ভগবানের প্রিয় সেবক, এই একটি কারণ। আর একটি বোধ হয় -- ‘তচ্চেতসা স্মরতি নূনমবোধপূর্বং ভাবঞ্জিরাণি জননান্তরসৌহদানি’।^১

ভূয়োদর্শন এবং সাধনের ফলস্বরূপ যে উপদেশ, তজ্জন্য আমি আপনার নিকট ঋণী রহিলাম। নানা প্রকার অভিনব মত মস্তিস্কে ধারণ জন্য যে সময়ে সময়ে ভুগিতে হয়, ইহা অতি যথার্থ এবং অনেক সময়ে দেখিয়াছি।

কিন্তু এবার অন্যপ্রকার রোগ। ঈশ্বরের মঙ্গলহস্তে বিশ্বাস আমার যায় নাই এবং যাইবারও নহে -- শাস্ত্রে বিশ্বাসও টলে নাই। কিন্তু ভগবানের ইচ্ছায় গত ৫।৭ বৎসর আমার জীবন ক্রমাগত নানাপ্রকার বিঘ্নবাহার সহিত সংগ্রামে পরিপূর্ণ। আমি আদর্শ শাস্ত্র পাইয়াছি, আদর্শ মনুষ্য চক্ষু দেখিয়াছি, অথচ পূর্ণভাবে নিজে কিছু করিয়া উঠিতে পারিতেছি না, ইহাই অত্যন্ত কষ্ট। বিশেষ, কলিকাতার নিকট থাকিলে হইবারও কোন উপায় দেখি না। আমার মাতা এবং দুইটি ভ্রাতা কলিকাতায় থাকে। আমি জ্যেষ্ঠ, মধ্যমটি এইবার ফাস্ট আর্টস পরিতেছে, আর একটি ছোট।

ইহাদের অবস্থা পূর্বে অনেক ভাল ছিল, কিন্তু আমার পিতার মৃত্যু পর্যন্ত বড়ই দুঃস্থ, এমন কি কখন কখন উপবাসে দিন যায়। তাহার উপর জ্ঞাতিরা -- দুর্বল দেখিয়া পৈতৃক বাসভূমি হইতে তাড়াইয়া

^১ পূর্বজন্মের প্রীতির স্মৃতিই পরজন্মে সহজ আকর্ষণরূপে দেখা দেয়। -- অভিজ্ঞানশকুন্তলম্, ৫ কালিদাস।

দিয়াছিল; হাইকোর্টে মকদ্দমা করিয়া যদিও সেই পৈতৃক বাটীর অংশ পাইয়াছেন, কিন্তু সর্বস্বান্ত হইয়াছেন -
- যে প্রকার মকদ্দমার দস্তুর।

কখন কখন কলিকাতার নিকট থাকিলে তাঁহাদের দুরবস্থা দেখিয়া রজোগুণের প্রাবল্য অহঙ্কারের বিকার-স্বরূপ কার্যকরী বাসনার উদয় হয়, সেই সময়ে মনের মধ্যে ঘোর যুদ্ধ বাধে, তাহাতেই লিখিয়াছিলাম, মনের অবস্থা বড়ই ভয়ঙ্কর। এবার তাঁহাদের মকদ্দমা শেষ হইয়াছে। কিছুদিন কলিকাতায় থাকিয়া, তাঁহাদের সমস্ত মিটাইয়া এদেশ হইতে চিরদিনের মতো বিদায় হইতে পারি, আপনি আর্শীবাদ করুন। -- ‘আপূর্যমাণমচলপ্রতিষ্ঠং সমুদ্রমাপঃ &c.’^১

আর্শীবাদ করুন যেন আমার হৃদয় মহা ঐশবলে বলীয়ান হয় এবং সকলপ্রকার মায়া আমা হইতে দূরপর্যাহত হইয়া যায় -- For 'we have taken up the cross, Thou hast laid it upon us, and grant us strength that we bear it unto death, Amen.'^২ – Imitation of Christ.

আমি এক্ষণে কলিকাতায় আছি। আমার ঠিকানা -- বলরাম বসুর বাটী, ৫৭নং রামকান্ত বসুর স্ট্রীট, বাগবাজার, কলিকাতা।

পূজ্যপাদেষু,

প্রায় এক সপ্তাহের অধিক হইল আপনার পত্র পাইয়াছি, সেই সময়ে পুনরায় জ্বর হওয়ায় উত্তরদানে অসমর্থ ছিলাম, ক্ষমা করিবেন। মধ্যে মাস দেড়েক ভাল ছিলাম, কিন্তু পুনরায় ১০।১২ দিন হইল জ্বর হইয়াছিল, এক্ষণে ভাল আছি। গুটিকতক প্রশ্ন আছে, মহাশয়ের বিস্তৃত সংস্কৃতশাস্ত্রজ্ঞান -- উত্তর দিয়া বাধিত করিবেন। --

১। সত্যকাম জাবালি এবং জনশ্রুতির কোন উপখ্যান ছান্দোগ্য উপনিষদ্ সওয়ায়^১ বেদের অন্য কোন অংশে আছে কি না?

২। শঙ্করাচার্য বেদান্তভাষ্যে অধিকাংশ স্থলেই স্মৃতি উদ্ধৃতি করিতে মহাভারতের প্রমাণ প্রয়োগ করেন। কিন্তু বনপর্বে অজগরোপাখ্যানে এবং উমামহেশ্বর সংবাদে, তথা ভীষ্মপর্বে, যে গুণগত জাতিত্ব অতি স্পষ্টই প্রমানিত, তৎসম্বন্ধে তাঁহার কোন পুস্তকে কোন কথা বলিয়াছেন কি না?

৩। পুরুষসূক্তের জাতি পুরুষানুগত নহে -- বেদের কোন্ কোন্ অংশে ইহাকে ধারাবাহিক পুরুষানুগত করা হইয়াছে?

৪। আচার্য, 'শূদ্র যে বেদ পড়িবেনা' -- এ প্রকার কোন প্রমাণ বেদ হইতে দিতে পারেন নাই। কেবল 'যজ্ঞেনবকসপ্তঃ' ইহাই উদ্ধৃত করিয়া বলিতেছেন যে, যখন যজ্ঞে অধিকার নাই, তখন উপনিষদাদি পাঠেও অধিকার নাই। কিন্তু 'অথাতোব্রহ্মজিজ্ঞাসা' -- এ স্থলে ঐ আচার্যই বলিতেছেন যে, অথ শব্দ 'বেদাধ্যয়নাদনন্তরম্' -- এ প্রকার অর্থ নহে, কারণ মন্ত্র ও ব্রাহ্মণ না পড়িলে যে উপনিষদ্ পড়া যায় না, ইহা অপ্রমাণ্য; এবং কর্মকাণ্ডের শ্রুতি এবং জ্ঞানকাণ্ডের শ্রুতিতে কোন পূর্বাপর ভাব নাই। অতএব যজ্ঞাত্মক বেদ না পড়িয়াই উপনিষদ্পাঠে ব্রহ্মজ্ঞান হইতে পারে। যদি যজ্ঞে ও জ্ঞানে পৌর্বার্ণ্য না থাকিল, তবে শূদ্রের বেলা কেন 'ন্যায়পূর্বকম্' ইত্যাদি বাক্যের দ্বারা আচার্য আপনার বাক্যকে ব্যাহত করিতেছেন? কেন শূদ্র উপনিষদ্ পড়িবে না?

মহাশয়কে একখানি -- কোন খ্রীষ্টিয়ান সন্ন্যাসীর লিখিত -- 'Imitation of Christ' নামক পুস্তক পাঠাইলাম। পুস্তকখানি অতি আশ্চর্য। খ্রীষ্টিয়ানদিগের মধ্যেও এ প্রকার ত্যাগ বৈরাগ্য ও দাস্যভক্তি ছিল দেখিয়া বিস্মিত হইতে হয়। বোধ হয় আপনি এ পুস্তক পূর্বে পড়িয়া থাকিবেন, না পড়িয়া থাকেন তো পড়িয়া আমাকে চিরকুতার্থ করিবেন। ইতি

মহাশয়ের শেষ পত্রে -- আপনাকে উক্ত অভিধান দেওয়ায় কিছু কুষ্ঠিত হইয়াছেন। কিন্তু তাহা আমার দোষ নহে, মহাশয়ের গুণের। পূর্বে এক পত্রে আপনাকে লিখিয়াছিলাম যে, মহাশয়ের গুণে আমি এত আকৃষ্ট যে, বোধ হয় আপনার সহিত জন্মান্তরীণ কোন সম্বন্ধ ছিল। আমি গৃহস্থও বুঝি না, সন্ন্যাসীও বুঝি না; যথার্থ সাধুতা এবং উদারতা এবং মহত্ত্ব যথায়, সেই স্থানেই আমার মস্তক চিরকালই অবনত হউক -- শান্তিঃ শান্তিঃ শান্তিঃ। প্রার্থনা করি, আজিকালিকার মানভিখারী, পেটবৈরাগী এবং উভয়ভ্রষ্ট সন্ন্যাসাশ্রমীদের মধ্যে লক্ষের মধ্যেও যেন আপনার ন্যায় মহাত্মা একজন হউন। আপনার গুণের কথা শুনিয়া আমার সকল ব্রাহ্মণজাতীয় গুরুভ্রাতাও আপনাকে সাষ্টাঙ্গ প্রণিপাত জানাইতেছেন।

মহাশয় আমার প্রশ্ন-কয়েকটির যে উত্তর দিয়েছেন, তাহার মধ্যে একটি সম্বন্ধে আমার ভ্রম সংশোধিত হইল। মহাশয়ের নিকট তজ্জন্যে আমি চিরঋণবদ্ধ রহিলাম। আর একটি প্রশ্ন ছিল যে, ভারতাদি পুরাণোক্ত গুণগত জাতি সম্বন্ধে আচার্য কোন মীমাংসাদি করিয়াছেন কি না? যদি করিয়া থাকেন, কোন পুস্তকে? এতদেশীয় প্রাচীন মত যে বংশগত, তাহাতে আমার কোন সন্দেহ নাই, এবং স্পার্টানরা যে প্রকার হেলট্ [দের উপর ব্যবহার করিত] অথবা মার্কিনদেশে কাফ্রীদের উপর যে প্রকার ব্যবহার হইত, সময়ে সময়ে শূদ্দেরা যে তদপেক্ষাও নিগৃহীত হইত, তাহাতে কোন সন্দেহ নাই। আর জাত্যাতি সম্বন্ধে আমার কোনও পক্ষ পক্ষপাতিত্ব নাই। কারণ আমি জানি, উহা সামাজিক নিয়ম -- গুণ এবং কর্ম-প্রসূত। যিনি নৈস্কর্ম্য ও নির্গুণত্বকে প্রাপ্ত হইতে ইচ্ছা করেন, তাঁহার জাত্যাতি ভাব মনে আনিলেও সমূহ ক্ষতি। এই সকল বিষয়ে গুরুকৃপায় আমার এক প্রকার বুদ্ধি আছে, কিন্তু মহাশয়ের মতামত জানিলে কোন স্থানে সেই সকলকে দৃঢ় এবং কোন স্থানে সংশোধিত করিয়া লইব। চাকে খোঁচা না মারিলে মধু পড়ে না -- অতএব আপনাকে আরও কয়েকটি প্রশ্ন জিজ্ঞাসা করিব; আমাকে বালক এবং অজ্ঞ জানিয়া যথায়থ উত্তর দিবেন, রুষ্ট হইবেন না।

১। বেদান্তসূত্রে যে মুক্তির কথা কহে, তাহা এবং অবধূত-গীতাদিতে যে নির্বাণ আছে, তাহা এক কি না?

২। 'সৃষ্টিবর্জ' -- সূত্রে এই ভাবের পুরো ভগবান কেহই হয় না, তবে নির্বাণ কি?

৩। চৈতন্যদেব পুরীতে সার্বভৌমকে বলিয়াছিলেন যে ব্যাসসূত্র আমি বুঝি, তাহা দ্বৈতবাদ; কিন্তু ভাষ্যকার অদ্বৈত করিতেছেন, তাহা বুঝি না -- ইহা সত্য নাকি? প্রবাদ আছে যে, চৈতন্যদেবের সহিত প্রকাশানন্দ সরস্বতীর এ বিষয়ে অনেক বিচার হয়, তাহাতে চৈতন্যদেব জয়ী হন। চৈতন্যের কৃত এক ভাষ্য নাকি উক্ত প্রকাশানন্দের মঠে ছিল।

৪। আচার্যকে তন্ত্রে প্রচ্ছন্ন বৌদ্ধ বলিয়াছে। 'প্রজ্ঞাপারমিতা' নামক বৌদ্ধদের (মহাযান) গ্রন্থের মতের সহিত আচার্য-প্রচারিত বেদান্তমতের সম্পূর্ণ সৌসাদৃশ্য আছে। 'পঞ্চদশী'কারও বলিতেছেন যে, বৌদ্ধাদের শূন্য ও আমাদিগের ব্রহ্ম একই ব্যাপার -- ইহার অর্থ কি?

৫। বেদান্তসূত্রে বেদের কোন প্রমাণ কেন দেওয়া হয় নাই? প্রথমেই বলা হইয়াছে, ঈশ্বরের প্রমাণ বেদ এবং বেদ প্রামাণ্য 'পুরুষ-নিঃশ্বসিতম্' বলিয়া; ইহা কি পাশ্চাত্য ন্যায়ে যাহাকে argument in a circle বলে, সেই দোষদুষ্ট নহে?

৭। ন্যায়-মতে 'আণ্ডোপদেশবাক্যঃ শব্দঃ'; ঋষিরা আণ্ড এবং সর্বজ্ঞ। তাঁহারা তবে সূর্যসিদ্ধান্তের দ্বারা সামান্য সামান্য জ্যোতিষিক তত্ত্বে অজ্ঞ বলিয়া আক্ষিপ্ত কেন হইতেছেন? যাঁহারা বলেন -- পৃথিবী ত্রিকোন, বাসুকি পৃথিবীর ধারয়ীতা ইত্যাদি, তাঁহাদের ভবসাগরপারের একমাত্র আশ্রয় কি প্রকারে বলি?

৮। ঈশ্বর সৃষ্টিকার্যে যদি শুভাশুভ কর্মকে অপেক্ষা করেন, তবে তাঁহার উপাসনায় আমার লাভ কি? নরেশচন্দ্রের একটি সুন্দর গীত আছে --

'কপালে যা আছে কালী, তাই যদি হবে, (মা)
জয় দুর্গা শ্রীদুর্গা বলে কেন ডাকা তবে।'

৯। সত্য বটে, বহু বাক্য এক-আধটির দ্বারা নিহত হওয়া অন্যায়া। তাহা হইলে চিরপ্রচলিত মধুপর্কাদি প্রথা 'অশ্বমেধং গবালস্তং সন্ন্যাসং পলতৈকম্' ইত্যাদি দুই-একটি বাক্যের দ্বারা কেন নিহত হইল? বেদ যদি নিত্য হয়, তবে ইহা দ্বাপরের, ইহা কলির ধর্ম ইত্যাদি বচনের অর্থ এবং সাফল্য কি?

১০। যে ঈশ্বর বেদ-বক্তা, তিনিই বুদ্ধ হইয়া বেদ নিষেধ করিতেছেন। কোন্ কথা শুনা উচিত? পরের বিধি প্রবল, না আগের বিধি প্রবল?

১১। তন্ত্র বলেন -- কলিতে বেদমন্ত্র নিষ্ফল; মহেশ্বরেরই বা কোন্ কথা মানিব?

১২। বেদান্তসূত্রে ব্যাস বলেন যে, বাসুদেব সঙ্কর্ষণাদি চতুবুর্হ উপাসনা ঠিক নহে -- আবার সেই ব্যাসই ভাগবতাদিতে উক্ত উপাসনার মাহাত্ম্য বিস্তার করিতেছেন; ব্যাস কি পাগল?

আরও এই প্রকার অনেক সন্দেহ আছে, মহাশয়ের প্রসাদে ছিন্নদ্বৈধ হইব আশা করিয়া পরে সেগুলি লিখিব। এ সকল কথা সাক্ষাৎ না হইলে সমস্ত বলা যায় না এবং আশানুরূপ তৃপ্তিও হয় না। গুরু কৃপায় শীঘ্রই ভবৎ-চরণসমীপে উপস্থিত হইয়া সমস্ত নিবেদন করিবার বাসনা রহিল। ইতি

শুনিয়াছি, বিনা সাধনায় শুদ্ধ যুক্ত্যাদি-বলে এ সকল বিষয়ে কোন সিদ্ধান্তে উপনীত হওয়া যায় না, কিন্তু কতক পরিমাণে আশ্বস্ত হওয়া প্রথমেই বোধ হয় আবশ্যিক। কিমধিকমিতি --

মহাশয়ের পত্রে আপনার পীড়ার সমাচার জ্ঞাত হইয়া বিশেষ দুঃখিত হইলাম। বৈদ্যনাথ change (বায়ুপরিবর্তন) সম্বন্ধে আপনাকে যে পত্র লিখি তাহার সার কথা এই যে, আপনার ন্যায় দুর্বল অথচ অত্যন্ত নরম-শরীর লোকের অধিক অর্থব্যয় না করিলে উক্ত স্থানে চলা অসম্ভব। যদি পরিবর্তনই আপনার পক্ষে বিধি হয় এবং যদি কেবল সস্তা খুঁজিতে এবং গয়ংগচ্ছ করিতে করিতে এতদিন বিলম্ব করিয়া থাকেন, তাহা হইলে দুঃখের বিষয় সন্দেহ নাই।...

বৈদ্যনাথ -- হাওয়া সম্বন্ধে অত্যন্ত উৎকৃষ্ট, কিন্তু জল ভাল নহে, পেট বড় খারাপ করে, আমার প্রত্যহ অস্থল হইত। ইতিপূর্বে আপনাকে এক পত্র লিখি -- তাহা কি আপনি পাইয়াছেন, না bearing (বিনা মাশুলে প্রেরিত) দেখিয়া the devil take it করিয়াছেন? আমি বলি change (বায়ুপরিবর্তন) করিতে হয় তো শুভস্য শীঘ্রং। রাগ করিবেন না -- আপনার একটি স্বভাব এই যে ক্রমাগত 'বামুনের গরু' খুঁজিতে থাকেন। কিন্তু দুঃখের বিষয়, এ জগতে সকল সময় তাহা পাওয়া যায় না -- আত্মানং সততং রক্ষেৎ। Lord have mercy (ঈশ্বর করুণা করুন) ঠিক বটে, কিন্তু He helps him who helps himself (যে উদ্যমী, ভগবান তাহারই সহায় হন)। আপনি যদি টাকা বাঁচাতে চান, Lord (ভগবান) কি বাবার ঘর হইতে টাকা আনিয়া আপনাকে change (বায়ুপরিবর্তন) করাইবেন? যদি এতই Lord-এর উপর নির্ভর করেন, ডাক্তার ডাকিবেন না। ... যদি আপনার suit না করে (সহ্য না হয়) কাশী যাইবেন -- আমিও এতদিন যাইতাম, এখানকার বাবুরা ছাড়িতে চাহে না, দেখি কি হয়। ...

কিন্তু পুনর্বার বলি, change-এ (বায়ুপরিবর্তনে) যদি যাওয়া হয়, কৃপণতার জন্য ইতস্ততঃ করিবেন না। তাহা হইলে তাহার নাম আত্মঘাত। আত্মঘাতীর গতি ভগবানও করিতে পারেন না। তুলসী বাবু প্রভৃতি সকলকে আমার নমস্কারাদি দিবেন।

এইমাত্র আপনার পত্র পাইয়া সাতিশয় প্রীতি প্রাপ্ত হইলাম। বাবাজী আচারী বৈষ্ণব; যোগ, ভক্তি এবং বিনয়ের মূর্তি বলিলেই হয়। তাঁহার কুটার চতুর্দিকে প্রাচীর দেওয়া, তাহার মধ্যে কয়েকটি দরজা আছে। এই প্রাচীরের মধ্যে এক অতি দীর্ঘ সুরঙ্গ আছে, তন্মধ্যে তিনি সমাধিস্থ হইয়া পড়িয়া থাকেন; যখন উপরে আসেন, তখনই লোকজনের সঙ্গে কথাবার্তা করেন। কি খান, কেহই জানে না, এইজন্যই ‘পওহারী বাবা’ বলে। মধ্যে একবার ৫ বৎসর -- একবারও গর্ত হইতে উঠেন নাই, লোকে জানিয়াছিল যে শরীর ছাড়িয়াছেন; কিন্তু আবার উঠিয়াছেন। এবার কিন্তু দেখা দেন না, তবে দ্বারের আড়াল হইতে কথা কহেন। এমন মিষ্ট কথা আমি কখন শুনি নাই। কোন direct (সোজাসুজি) প্রশ্নের উত্তর দেন না, বলেন ‘দাস ক্যা জানে?’ তবে কথা কহিতে কহিতে আঙন বাহির হয়। আমি খুব জিদাজিদি করাতে বলিলেন যে, ‘আপনি কিছুদিন এ স্থানে থাকিয়া আমাকে কুতার্থ করুন।’ এ প্রকার কখন কহেন না; ইহাতেই বৃঝিলাম, আমাকে আশ্বাস দিলেন এবং যখনই পীড়াপীড়ি করি, তখনই বলেন, ‘কিছুদিন থাকুন।’ এই আশায় আছি। ইনি অতি পণ্ডিত ব্যক্তি, কিন্তু কিছুই প্রকাশ পায় না, আবার কর্মকাণ্ডও করেন -- পূর্ণিমা হইতে সংক্রান্তি পর্যন্ত হোম হয়। অতএব ইহার মধ্যে গর্তে যাইবেন না নিশ্চিত। অনুমতি কি লইব, direct (স্পষ্ট) উত্তর দিবেন না। ‘দাসকে ভাগ্য’ ইত্যাদি ঢের বলিবেন। আপনার ইচ্ছা থাকে, পত্রপাঠ চলিয়া আসুন। ইহার শরীর যাইলে বড় আপসোস থাকিবে -- দুদিনে দেখা অর্থাৎ আড়াল হইতে কথা কহিয়া যাইতে পারিবেন। আমার বন্ধু সতীশবাবু অতি সমাদরে আপনাকে গ্রহণ করিবেন। আপনি পত্রপাঠ চলিয়া আসুন, ইতিমধ্যে আমি বাবাজীকে বলিব।

পূজ্যপাদেষু,

গঙ্গাধর ভায়াকে আমি ঘুরিয়া ঘুরিয়া বেড়াইতে নিষেধ করিয়া ও কোন স্থানে বসিয়া যাইতে পরামর্শ দিয়া এবং তিব্বতে কি কি সাধু দেখিয়াছেন এবং তাঁহাদের আচার-ব্যবহার কি প্রকার, সবিশেষ লিখিতে এক পত্র লিখিয়াছিলাম। তদুত্তরে তিনি যে পত্র লিখিয়াছেন, তাহা অত্র পত্রের সহিত আপনার নিকট পাঠাইতেছি। কালী (অভেদানন্দ) ভায়ার হৃষীকেশে পুনঃপুনঃ জ্বর হইতেছে, তাঁহাকে এ স্থান হইতে এক টেলিগ্রাম পাঠাইয়াছি; উত্তরে যদি আমার যাওয়ার আব্যশক তিনি বিবেচনা করেন, এ স্থান হইতে একেবারেই হৃষীকেশে যাইতে বাধ্য হইব, নতুবা দুই-এক দিনের মধ্যেই ভবৎসকাশে উপস্থিত হইতেছি। মহাশয় হয়তো এই মায়ার প্রপঞ্চ দেখিয়া হাসিবেন -- কথাও তাই বটে। তবে কি না লোহার শিকল ও সোনার শিকল -- সোনার শিকলের অনেক উপকার আছে, তাহা [সেই উপকার] হইয়া গেলে আপনা-আপনি খসিয়া যাইবে। আমার গুরুদেবের পুত্রগণ আমার অতি সেবার পাত্র -- এই স্থানেই একটু duty (কর্তব্য) - বোধ আছে। সম্ভবতঃ কালীভায়াকে এলাহাবাদে অথবা যে স্থানে সুবিধা হয়, পাঠাইয়া দিব। আপনার চরণে আমার শত শত অপরাধ রহিল, পুত্রশ্বেহহং শাধি মাং ত্বাং প্রপন্নম্ (আমি আপনার পুত্র, শরণাগত, আমায় শাসন করুন, শিক্ষা দিন)। কিমধিকমিতি

প্রাণাধিকেষু

তিব্বতীদের যে তন্ত্রাচারের কথা কহিয়াছ, তাহা বৌদ্ধধর্মের শেষ দশায় ভারতবর্ষেই হইয়াছিল। আমার বিশ্বাস যে, আমাদিগের যে সকল তন্ত্র প্রচলিত আছে, বৌদ্ধেরাই তাহার আদিম স্রষ্টা। ঐ সকল তন্ত্র আমাদিগের বামাচারবাদ হইতে আরও ভয়ঙ্কর (উহাতে ব্যভিচার অতি মাত্রায় প্রশ্রয় পাইয়াছিল), এবং ঐ প্রকার immorality (চরিত্রহীনতা) দ্বারা যখন (বৌদ্ধগণ) নির্বীৰ্য হইল, তখনই [তাহারা] কুমারিল ভট্ট দ্বারা দূরীকৃত হইয়াছিল। যে প্রকার সন্ন্যাসীরা শঙ্করকে ও বাউলরা মহাপ্রভুকে secret (গোপনে) স্ত্রীসম্ভোগী, সুরাপায়ী ও নানাপ্রকার জঘন্য আচরণকারী বলে, সেই প্রকার modern (আধুনিক) তান্ত্রিক বৌদ্ধেরা বুদ্ধদেবকে ঘোর বামাচারী বলে এবং 'প্রজ্ঞাপারমিতো'ক্ত তত্ত্বগাথা প্রভৃতি সুন্দর সুন্দর বাক্যকে কুৎসিত ব্যাখ্যা করে; ফল এই হইয়াছে যে, এক্ষণে বৌদ্ধদের দুই সম্প্রদায়; বর্মা ও সিংহলের লোক প্রায় তন্ত্র মানে না ও সেই সঙ্গে সঙ্গে হিন্দুর দেবদেবীও দূর করিয়াছে, এবং উত্তরাঞ্চলের বৌদ্ধেরা যে 'অমিতাভ বুদ্ধম্' মানে, তাঁহাকেও ঢাকীসুদ্ধ বিসর্জন দিয়াছে। ফল কথা এই, উত্তরের লোকেরা যে 'অমিতাভ বুদ্ধম্' ইত্যাদি মানে, তাহা 'প্রজ্ঞাপারমিতা'দিতে নাই, কিন্তু দেবদেবী অনেক মানা আছে। আর দক্ষিণীরা জোর করিয়া শাস্ত্র লঙ্ঘন করিয়া দেবদেবী বিসর্জন করিয়াছে। যে everything for others ('যাহা কিছু সব পরের জন্য' -- এই মত) তিব্বতে বিস্তৃত দেখিতেছ, ঐ phase of Buddhism (বৌদ্ধধর্মের ঐ ভাব) আজকাল ইওরোপকে বড় strike করিয়াছে (ইওরোপের বড় মনে লাগিয়াছে)। যাহা হউক, ঐ phase (ভাব) সম্বন্ধে আমার বলিবার অনেক আছে, এ পত্রে তাহা হইবার নহে। যে ধর্ম উপনিষদে জাতিবিশেষে বদ্ধ হইয়াছিল, বুদ্ধদেব তাহারই দ্বার ভাঙিয়া সরল কথায় চলিত ভাষায় খুব ছড়াইয়াছিলেন। নির্বাণে তাঁহার মহত্ত্ব বিশেষ কি? তাঁহার মহত্ত্ব in his unrivalled sympathy (তাঁহার অতুলনীয় সহানুভূতিতে)। তাঁহার ধর্মে যে সকল উচ্চ অঙ্গের সমাধি প্রভৃতির গুরুত্ব, তাহা প্রায় সমস্তই বেদে আছে; নাই তাঁহার intellect (বুদ্ধি) এবং heart (হৃদয়), যাহা জগতে আর হইল না।

বেদের যে কর্মবাদ, তাহা Jew (ইহুদী) প্রভৃতি সকল ধর্মের কর্মবাদ, অর্থাৎ যজ্ঞ ইত্যাদি

বাহ্যোপকরণ দ্বারা অন্তর শুদ্ধি করা -- এ পৃথিবীতে বুদ্ধদেব the first man (প্রথম ব্যক্তি), যিনি ইহার বিপক্ষে দণ্ডায়মান হয়েনা কিন্তু ভাব ঢং সব পুরাতনের মতো রহিল, সেই তাঁহার অন্তঃকর্মবাদ -- সেই তাঁহার বেদের পরিবর্তে সূত্রে বিশ্বাস করিতে হুকুম। সেই জাতিও ছিল, তবে গুণগত হইল (বুদ্ধের সময় জাতিভেদ যায় নাই), সেই যাহারা তাঁহার ধর্ম মানেনা, তাহাদিগকে ‘পাষন্ড’ বলা। ‘পাষন্ড’টা বৌদ্ধদের বড় পুরানো বোল, তবে কখনও বেচরীরা তলোয়ার চালায় নাই, এবং বড় toleration (উদারভাব) ছিল। তর্কের দ্বারা বেদ উড়িল, কিন্তু তোমার ধর্মের প্রমান? -- বিশ্বাস কর!! -- যেমন সকল ধর্মের আছে, তাহাই। তবে সেই কালের জন্য বড় আবশ্যিক ছিল এবং সেই জন্যই তিনি অবতার হন। তাঁহার মায়াবাদ কপিলের মতো। কিন্তু শঙ্করের how far more grand and rational (কত মহত্তর এবং অধিকতর যুক্তিপূর্ণ)! বুদ্ধ ও কপিল কেবল বলেন -- জগতে দুঃখ, দুঃখ, পালাও পালাও। সুখ কি একেবারে নাই? যেমন ব্রাহ্মরা বলেন, সব সুখ -- এও সেই প্রকার কথা। দুঃখ, তা কি করিব? কেহ যদি বলে যে সহিতে সহিতে অভ্যাস হইলে দুঃখকেই সুখ বোধ হইবে? শঙ্কর এ দিক দিয়ে যান না -- তিনি বলেন, ‘সন্নাপি অসন্নাপি, ভিন্নাপি অভিন্নাপি’ -- আছে অথচ নেই, ভিন্ন অথচ অভিন্ন এই যে জগৎ, এর তথ্য আমি জানিব, -- দুঃখ আছে কি কী আছে; জুজুর ভয়ে আমি পালাই না। আমি জানিব, জানিতে গেলে যে অনন্ত দুঃখ তা তো প্রাণভরে গ্রহণ করিতেছি; আমি কি পশু যে ইন্দ্রিয়জনিত সুখদুঃখ-জরামরণ-ভয় দেখাও? আমি জানিব -- জানিবার জন্য জান দিব। এ জগতে জানিবার কিছুই নাই, অতএব যদি এই relative-এর (মায়িক জগতের) পার কিছু থাকে -- যাকে শ্রীবুদ্ধ ‘প্রজ্ঞাপারম্’ বলিয়া নির্দেশ করিয়াছেন -- যদি থাকে, তাহাই চাই। তাহাতে দুঃখ আসে বা সুখ আসে I do not care (আমি গ্রাহ্য করি না)। কি উচ্চভাব! কি মহান ভাব! উপনিষদের উপর বুদ্ধের ধর্ম উঠেছে, তার উপর শঙ্করবাদ। কেবল শঙ্কর বুদ্ধের আশ্চর্য heart (হৃদয়) অণুমাত্র পান নাই; কেবল dry intellect (শুষ্ক জ্ঞানবিচার) -- তন্ত্রের ভয়ে mob-এর (ইতরলোকের) ভয়ে ফোড়া সারাতে গিয়ে হাতসুদ্ধ কেটে ফেললেন। এ সকল সম্বন্ধে লিখতে গেলে পুঁথি লিখতে হয়, আমার তত বিদ্যা ও আবশ্যিক -- দুইয়েরই অভাব।

বুদ্ধদেব আমার ইষ্ট, আমার ঈশ্বর। তাঁহার ঈশ্বরবাদ নাই -- তিনি নিজে ঈশ্বর, আমি খুব বিশ্বাস করি। কিন্তু ‘ইতি’ করিবার শক্তি কাহারও নাই। ঈশ্বরেরও আপনাকে limited (সীমাবদ্ধ) করিবার শক্তি নাই। তুমি যে ‘সূত্রনিপাত’ হইতে গন্ডারসূত্র তর্জমা লিখিয়াছ, তাহা অতি উত্তম। ঐ গ্রন্থে ঐ প্রকার আর একটি ধনীর সূত্র আছে, তাহাতেও প্রায় ঐ ভাব। ‘ধম্মপদ’-মতেও ঐ প্রকার অনেক কথা আছে। কিন্তু সেও শেষে যখন ‘জ্ঞানবিজ্ঞানতৃপ্তাত্মা কূটস্থো বিজিতেন্দ্রিয়ঃ’ -- যাহার শরীরের উপর অণুমাত্র শারীর বোধ নাই, তিনি মদমত্ত হস্তীর ন্যায় ইতস্ততঃ বিচরণ করিবেন। আমার ন্যায় ক্ষুদ্র প্রাণী এক জায়গায় বসিয়া সাধন করিয়া সিদ্ধ হইলে তখন ঐ প্রকার আচরণ করিবে -- সে দূর -- বড় দূর।

আপনার পত্র এই মাত্র পাইলাম। আপনি জানেন না -- কঠোর বৈদান্তিক মত সত্ত্বেও আমি অত্যন্ত নরম প্রকৃতির লোক। উহাই আমার সর্বনাশ করিতেছে। একটুকুতেই এলাইয়া যাই, কত চেষ্টা করি যে, খালি আপনার ভাবনা ভাবি। কিন্তু বারংবার পরের ভাবনা ভাবিয়া ফেলি। কিন্তু বারংবার পরের ভাবনা ভাবিয়া ফেলি। এবার বড় কঠোর হইয়া নিজের চেষ্টার জন্য বাহির হইয়াছিলাম -- এলাহাবাদে এক ভ্রাতার পীড়ার সংবাদ পাইয়া অমনি ছুটিতে হইল। আবার এই হৃষীকেশের খবর -- মন ছুটিয়াছে। শরৎকে এক টেলিগ্রাম পাঠাইয়াছি, আজিও উত্তর আইসে নাই -- এমন স্থান, টেলিগ্রাম আসিতেও এত দেরী! কোমরের বেদনা কিছুতেই ছাড়িতে চায় না, বড় যন্ত্রণা হইতেছে। পওহারীজীর সঙ্গে আর দেখা করিতে কয়েক দিন যাইতে পারি নাই, কিন্তু তাঁহার বড় দয়া, প্রত্যহ লোক পাঠাইয়া খবর নেন। কিন্তু এখন দেখিতেছি 'উল্টা সমঝলি রাম!' -- কোথায় আমি তাঁহার দ্বারে ভিখারী, তিনি আমার কাছে শিখিতে চাহেন! বোধহয় -- ইনি এখনও পূর্ণ হইয়েন নাই, কর্ম এবং ব্রত এবং আচার অত্যন্ত, এবং বড় গুণ্ডভাব। সমুদ্র পূর্ণ হইলে কখনও বেলাবন্ধ থাকিতে পারে না, নিশ্চিত। অতএব অনর্থক ইঁহাকে উদ্বেজিত করা ঠিক নহে স্থির করিয়াছি; এবং বিদায় লইয়া শীঘ্রই প্রস্থান করিব। কি করি, বিধাতা নরম করিয়া যে কাল করিয়াছেন! বাবাজী ছাড়েন না, আবার গগনবাবু (ইঁহাকে আপনি বোধ হয় জানেন, অতি ধার্মিক, সাধু এবং সহৃদয় ব্যক্তি) ছাড়েন না। টেলিগ্রামে যদ্যপি আমার যাইবার আবশ্যিক হয়, যাইব; যদ্যপি না হয়, দুই-চারি দিনে কাশীধামে ভবৎসকাশে উপস্থিত হইতেছি। আপনাকে ছাড়িতেছি না -- হৃষীকেশে লইয়া যাইবই, কোন ওজর আপত্তি চলিবে না। শৌচের কথা কি বলিতেছেন? পাহাড়ে জলের অভাব -- স্থানের অভাব? তীর্থ এবং সন্নাসী -- কলিকালের? টাকা খরচ করিলে সত্রওয়ালারা ঠাকুর ফেলিয়া দিয়া ঘর ছাড়িয়া দেয়, স্থানের কা কথা!! কোনও গোল নাই, এতদিনে গরম আরম্ভ হইয়াছে, তবে কাশীর গরম হইবে না -- সে তো ভালই। রাতে বেশ ঠান্ডা চিরকাল, তাহাতে নিদ্রা উত্তমরূপ হইবারই কথা।

আপনি অত ভয় পান কেন? আমি guarantee (দায়ী), আপনি নিরাপদে ঘরে ফিরিবেন এবং কোনও কষ্ট হইবে না। ব্রিটিশ রাজ্যে কষ্ট ফকিরের, গৃহস্থের কোনও কষ্ট নাই, ইহা আমার experience (অভিজ্ঞতা)।

সাধকরে বলি -- আপনার সঙ্গে পূর্বের সম্বন্ধ? এক চিঠিতে আমার সকল resolution (সঙ্কল্প) ভেসে গেল, আবার সব ফেলে গুটি গুটি কাশী চলিলাম। ইতি

গঙ্গাধর ভায়াকে ফের চিঠি লিখিয়াছি, এবার তাঁহাকে মঠে যাইতে বলিয়াছি। যদি যান, অবশ্যই কাশী হইয়া যাইবেন ও আপনার সহিত দেখা হইবে। আজকাল কাশীর স্বাস্থ্য কেমন? এ স্থানে থাকিয়া

আমার ম্যালেরিয়া সম্বন্ধে সকল (উপসর্গ) সারিয়াছে, কেবল কোমরের বেদনায় অস্থির, দিন রাত কনকন করে এবং জ্বালাতন করিতেছে -- কেমন করিয়া পাহাড়ে উঠিব ভাবিতেছি। বাবাজীর তিতিক্ষা অদ্ভুত, তাই কিছু ভিক্ষা করিতেছি, কিন্তু উপুড় হস্তের নামটি নাই, খালি গ্রহণ! খালি গ্রহণ! অতএব আমিও প্রশ্নান!

পুঃ -- আর কোন মিঞার কাছে যাইব না --

‘আপনাতে আপনি থেকে মন, যেও নাকো কারু ঘরে,
যা চাবি তাই বসে পাবি, খোঁজ নিজ অন্তঃপুরে।
পরম ধন ঐ পরশমনি, যা চাবি তাই দিতে পারে,
এমন কত মণি পড়ে আছে চিন্তামণির নাচদুয়ারে।’

এখন সিদ্ধান্ত এই যে -- রামকৃষ্ণের জুড়ি আর নাই, সে অপূর্ব সিদ্ধি, আর সে অপূর্ব অহেতুকী দয়া, সে intense sympathy (প্রগাঢ় সহানুভূতি) বদ্ধ-জীবনের জন্য -- এ জগতে আর নাই। হয়, তিনি অবতার -- যেমন তিনি নিজে বলিতেন, অথবা বেদান্তদর্শনে যাঁহাকে নিত্যসিদ্ধ মহাপুরুষ ‘লোকহিতায় মুক্তোহপি শরীরগ্রহণকারী’ বলা হইয়াছে, নিশ্চিত নিশ্চিত ইতি মে মতিঃ, এবং তাঁহার উপাসনাই পাতঞ্জলোক্ত ‘মহাপুরুষ-প্রণিধানাঘা’^১।

তাঁহার জীবদ্দশায় তিনি কখনও আমার প্রার্থনা গরমঞ্জুর করেন নাই -- আমার লক্ষ অপরাধ ক্ষমা করিয়াছেন -- এত ভালবাসা আমার পিতামাতায় কখনও বাসেন নাই। ইহা কবিত্ব নহে, অতিরঞ্জিত নহে, ইহা কঠোর সত্য এবং তাঁহার শিষ্যমাত্রেরই জানে। বিপদে, প্রলোভনে ‘ভগবান্ রক্ষা কর’ বলিয়া কাঁদিয়া সারা হইয়াছি -- কেহই উত্তর দেয় নাই -- কিন্তু এই অদ্ভুত মহাপুরুষ বা অবতার বা যাই হউন, নিজ অন্তর্যামিত্বগুণে আমার সকল বেদনা জানিয়া নিজে ডাকিয়া জোর করিয়া সকল অপহৃত করিয়াছেন। যদি আত্মা অবিনাশী হয় -- যদি এখনও তিনি থাকেন, আমি বারংবার প্রার্থনা করি -- হে অপারদয়ানিধে, হে মমৈকশরণদাতা রামকৃষ্ণ ভগবান্ কৃপা করিয়া আমার এই নরশেষ বন্ধুবরের সকল মনোবাঞ্ছা পূর্ণ কর। আপনার সকল মঙ্গল -- এ জগতে কেবল যাঁহাকে অহেতুকদয়াসিন্ধু দেখিয়াছি -- তিনিই করুন। শান্তিঃ শান্তিঃ।

প্রাণাধিকেশু,

কল্যা তোমার পত্র পাইয়া অত্যন্ত আনন্দিত হইয়াছি। এখানে পওহারীজী নামক যে অদ্ভুত যোগী ও ভক্ত আছেন, এক্ষণে তাঁহারই কাছে রহিয়াছি। ইনি ঘরের বাহির হন না -- দ্বারের আড়াল হইতে কথাবার্তা কহেন। ঘরের মধ্যে এক গর্ত আছে, তন্মধ্যে বাস করেন। শুনিতে পাই, ইনি মাস মাস সমাধিষ্ট হইয়া থাকেন। ইঁহার তিতিক্ষা বড়ই অদ্ভুত। আমাদের বাঙলা ভক্তির দেশ ও জ্ঞানের দেশ, যোগের বার্তা একেবারে নাই বলিলেই হয়। যাহা কিছু আছে, তাহা কেবল বদখত দমটানা ইত্যাদি হঠযোগ -- তা তো gymnastics (কসরত)। এইজন্য এই অদ্ভুত রাজযোগীর নিকট রহিয়াছি -- ইনি কতক আশাও দিয়াছেন। এখানে একটি বাবুর একটি ছোট্ট বাগানে একটি সুন্দর বাংলা-ঘর আছে; ঐ ঘরে থাকিব এবং উক্ত বাগান বাবাজীর কুটিরের অতি নিকট। বাবাজীর একজন দাদা ঐখানে সাধুদের সৎকারের জন্য থাকে, সেই স্থানেই শিক্ষা করিব। অতএব এ রঙ্গ কতদূর গড়ায়, দেখিবার জন্য এক্ষণে পর্বতারোহণ-সঙ্কল্প ত্যাগ করিলাম। এবং কোমরে দুমাস ধরিয়া একটা বেদনা -- বাত (lumbago) -- হইয়াছে, তাহাতেও পাহাড়ে উঠা এক্ষণে অসম্ভব। অতএব বাবাজী কি দেন, পড়িয়া পড়িয়া দেখা যাউক।

আমার motto (মূলমন্ত্র) এই যে, যেখানে যাহা কিছু উত্তম পাই, তাহাই শিক্ষা করিব। ইহাতে বরাহনগরের অনেকে মনে করে যে গুরুভক্তি লাঘব হইবে। আমি ঐ কথা পাগল ও গোঁড়ার কথা বলিয়া মনে করি। কারণ সকল গুরুই এক এবং জগদ্গুরুর অংশ ও আভাসস্বরূপ।

তুমি যদি গাজীপুরে আইস, গোরাবাজারের সতীশবাবু অথবা গগনবাবুর নিকট আসিলেই আমার সন্ধান পাইবে। অথবা পওহারী বাবা এত প্রসিদ্ধ ব্যক্তি যে, ইঁহার নামমাত্রেই সকলে বলিবে, এবং তাঁহার আশ্রমে যাইয়া পরমহংসজীর খোঁজ করিলেই সকলে বলিয়া দিবে। মোগলসরাই ছাড়াইয়া দিলদারনগর স্টেশনে নামিয়া Branch Railway (শাখা রেল) একটু আছে; তাহাতে তারিঘাট -- গাজীপুরের আড়পারে নামিয়া গঙ্গা পার হইয়া আসিতে হয়।

এক্ষণে আমি গাজীপুরে কিছুদিন রহিলাম; দেখি বাবাজী কি করেন। তুমি যদি আইস, দুইজনে উক্ত কুটিরে কিছুদিন থাকিয়া পরে পাহাড়ে বা যেথায় হয়, যাওয়া যাইবে। আমি গাজীপুরে আছি, এ কথা বরাহনগরে কাহাকেও লিখিও না। আমার আশীর্বাদ জানিবে।

প্রাণাধিকেষু,

এইমাত্র তোমার আর একখানি পত্র পাইলাম -- হিজিবিজি বহু কষ্টে বুঝিলাম। পূর্বের পত্রে সমস্ত লিখিয়াছি। তুমি পত্রপাঠ চলিয়া আসিবে। তুমি যে নেপাল হইয়া তিব্বতের পথ বলিয়াছ, তাহা আমি জানি। যে প্রকার তিব্বতে সহজে কাহাকেও যাইতে দেয় না, ঐ প্রকার নেপালেও কাটামুন্ড রাজধানী ও দুই-এক তীর্থ ছাড়া কাহাকেও কোথাও যাইতে দেয় না। কিন্তু আমার একজন বন্ধু এক্ষণে নেপালের রাজার ও রাজার স্কুলের শিক্ষক -- তাঁহার কাছে শুনিয়াছি যে, বৎসর বৎসর যখন নেপাল হইতে চীন দেশে রাজকর যায়, সে সময় লাসা হইয়া যায়। একজন সাধু -- যোগাড় করিয়া ঐ রকমে লাসা, চীন এবং মাঞ্চুরিয়ায় (উত্তর চীন) -- তারাদেবীর পীঠ পর্যন্ত গিয়াছিল। উক্ত বন্ধু চেষ্টা করিলে আমরাও মান্য ও খাতিরের সহিত তিব্বত, লাসা, চীন সব দেখিতে পারিব। অতএব তুমি অবিলম্বে গাজীপুর চলিয়া আইস। এথায় আমি বাবাজীর কাছে কিছুদিন থাকিয়া, উক্ত বন্ধুকে চিঠি পত্র লিখিয়া নেপাল হইয়া নিশ্চিত তিব্বতাদি যাইব। কিমধিকমিতি। দিলদারনগর মোগলসরাই স্টেশনের তিন-চার স্টেশনের পর। এথায় ভাড়া যোগাড় করিতে পারিলে পাঠাইতাম; অতএব তুমি যোগাড়করিয়া আইস। গগনবাবু -- যাঁহার আশ্রয়ে আমি আছি -- এত ভদ্র, উদার এবং হৃদয়বান্ ব্যক্তি যে কি লিখিব! তিনি কালীর জ্বর শুনিয়া হৃষীকেশে তৎক্ষণাৎ ভাড়া পাঠাইলেন এবং আমার জন্য আরও অনেক ব্যয় করিয়াছেন। এ অবস্থায় আবার তাঁহাকে কাশীরের ভাড়ার জন্য ভারগ্রস্ত করা সন্ন্যাসীর ধর্ম নহে জানিয়া নিরস্ত হইলাম। তুমি যোগাড় করিয়া পত্রপাঠ চলিয়া আইস। অমরনাথ দেখিবার বাতিক এখন থাক। ইতি

পূজ্যপাদেশু,

আমি কয়েক দিবস এ স্থানে ছিলাম না এবং অদ্যই পুনর্বার চলিয়া যাইব। গঙ্গাধর-ভায়াকে এ স্থানে আসিতে লিখিয়াছি। যদি আইসেন, তাহা হইলে তৎসহ আপনার সন্নিধানে যাইতেছি। কতকগুলি বিশেষ কারণবশতঃ এ স্থানের কিয়দূরে এক গ্রামে গুপ্তভাবে কিছুদিন থাকিব, সে স্থান হইতে পত্র লিখিবার কোনও সুবিধা নাই। এইজন্যই আপনার পত্রের উত্তর দিতে পারি নাই। গঙ্গাধর-ভায়া বোধ করি আসিতেছেন, না হইলে আমার পত্রের উত্তর আসিত। অভেদানন্দ-ভায়া কাশীতে প্রিয়-ডাক্তারের নিকট আছেন। আর একটি গুরুভাই আমার নিকটে ছিলেন, তিনি অভেদানন্দের নিকট গিয়াছেন। তাঁহার পৈঁছানো সংবাদ পাই নাই। তাঁহারও শরীর ভাল নহে, তজ্জন্য অত্যন্ত চিন্তিত আছি। তাঁহার সহিত আমি অত্যন্ত নিষ্ঠুর ব্যবহার করিয়াছি, অর্থাৎ আমার সঙ্গ ত্যাগ করিবার জন্য তাঁহাকে অত্যন্ত বিরক্ত করিয়াছি। কি করি, আমি বড়ই দুর্বল, বড়ই মায়াসমাচ্ছন্ন -- আশীর্বাদ করুন, যেন কঠিন হইতে পারি! আমার মানসিক অবস্থা আপনাকে কি বলিব, মনের মধ্যে নরক দিবারাত্রি জ্বলিতেছে -- কিছই হইল না, এ জন্ম বুঝি বিফলে গোলমাল করিয়া গেল; কি করি, কিছই বুঝিতে পারিতেছি না। বাবাজী মিষ্ট মিষ্ট বুলি বলেন, আর আটকাইয়া রাখেন। আপনাকে কি বলিব, আমি আপনার চরণে শত শত অপরাধ করিতেছি -- অন্তর্যাতনায় ক্ষিপ্ত ব্যক্তির কৃত বলিয়া সে সকল মার্জনা করিবেন। অভেদানন্দের রক্তমাশয় হইয়াছে। কৃপা করিয়া যদি তাঁহার তত্ত্ব লন এবং যিনি এ স্থান হইতে গিয়াছেন, তাঁহার সঙ্গে যদি মঠে ফিরিয়া যাইতে চান, পাঠাইয়া দিলে বিশেষ অনুগ্রহীত হইব। আমার গুরুভ্রাতারা আমাকে অতি নির্দয় ও স্বার্থপর বোধ করিতেছেন। কি করি, মনের মধ্যে কে দেখিবে? আমি দিবারাত্রি কি যাতনা ভুগিতেছি, কে জানিবে? আশীর্বাদ করুন, যেন অটল ধৈর্য ও অধ্যবসায় আমার হয়। আমার শতকোটি প্রণাম জানিবেন।

ভাই কালী,

তোমার, প্রমদাবাবুর ও বাবুরামের হস্তাক্ষর পাইয়াছি। আমি এ স্থানে একরকম মন্দ নাই। তোমার আমাকে দেখিবার ইচ্ছা হইয়াছে, আমারও বড় ঐরূপ হয়, সেই ভয়েই যাইতে পারিতেছি না -- তার উপর বাবাজী বারণ করেন। দুই-চারি দিনের বিদায় লইয়া যাইতে চেষ্টা করিব। কিন্তু ভয় এই তাহা হইলে একেবারে, হৃষীকেশী টানে পাহাড়ে টেনে তুলবে -- আবার ছাড়ানো বড় কঠিন হইবে, বিশেষ আমার মতো দুর্বলের পক্ষে। কোমরের বেদনাটাও কিছুতেই সারে না -- cadaverous (জঘন্য)। তবে অভ্যাস পড়ে আসছে। প্রমদাবাবুকে আমার কোটি কোটি প্রণাম দিবে, তিনি আমার শরীর ও মনের বড় উপকারী বন্ধু ও তাঁহার নিকট আমি বিশেষ ঋণী। যাহা হয় হইবে। ইতি

পূজ্যপাদেষু,

বহুদিন গোলমালে এবং পুনরায় জ্বর হওয়ায় আপনাকে পত্র লিখিতে পারি নাই। অভেদানন্দর পত্রে আপনার কুশল অবগত হইয়া বিশেষ আনন্দিত হইলাম। গঙ্গাধর-ভায়া বোধ হয় এতদিনে কাশীধামে আসিয়া পৌঁছিয়াছেন। এ স্থানে এ সময়ে যমরাজ বহু বন্ধু এবং আত্মীয়কে গ্রাস করিতেছেন, তজ্জন্য বিশেষ ব্যস্ত আছি। নেপাল হইতে আমার কোন পত্রাদি বোধ হয় আইসে নাই। বিশ্বনাথ কখন এবং কিরূপে আমাকে rest (বিশ্রাম) দিবেন, জানি না। একটু গরম কমিলেই এ স্থান হইতে পলাইতেছি, কোথা যাই বুঝিতে পারিতেছি না। আপনি আমার জন্য বিশ্বনাথ-সকাশে প্রার্থনা করিবেন, শূলী যেন আমাকে বল দেন। আপনি ভক্ত, এবং ‘মদ্ভক্তানাঞ্চ যে ভক্তান্তে মে ভক্ততমা মতাঃ’ ইতি ভগবদ্বাক্য স্মরণ করিয়া আপনাকে বিনয় করিতেছি। কিমধিকমিতি --

পূজ্যপাদেশু,

বহু বিপদঘটনার আবর্ত এবং মনের আন্দোলনের মধ্যে পড়িয়া আপনাকে এই পত্র লিখিতেছি; বিশ্বনাথের নিকট প্রার্থনা করিয়া ইহার যুক্তিযুক্ততা এবং সম্ভবাসম্ভবতা বিবেচনা করিয়া উত্তর দিয়া কৃতার্থ করিবেন।

১। প্রথমেই আপনাকে বলিয়াছি যে, আমি রামকৃষ্ণের গোলাম -- তাঁহাকে 'দেই তুলসী তিল দেহ সমর্পিনু' করিয়াছি। তাঁহার নির্দেশ লঙ্ঘন করতে পারি না। সেই মহাপুরুষ যদ্যপি ৪০ বৎসর যাবৎ এই কঠোর ত্যাগ, বৈরাগ্য এবং পবিত্রতা এবং কঠোরতম সাধন করিয়া ও আলৌকিক জ্ঞান, ভক্তি, প্রেম ও বিভূতিমান হইয়াও অকৃতকার্য হইয়া শরীর ত্যাগ করিয়া থাকেন, তবে আমাদের আর কি ভরসা? অতএব তাঁহার বাক্য আশুবাণ্যের ন্যায় আমি বিশ্বাস করিতে বাধ্য।

২। আমার উপর তাঁহার নির্দেশ এই যে, তাঁহার দ্বারা স্থাপিত এই ত্যাগিমন্ডলীর দাসত্ব আমি করিব, ইহাতে যাহা হইবার হইবে, এবং স্বর্গ বা নরক বা মুক্তি যাহাই আসুক, লইতে রাজি আছি।

৪। অতএব উক্ত নির্দেশক্রমে তাঁহার সন্ন্যাসিমন্ডলী বরাহনগরে একটি পুরাতন জীর্ণ বাটীতে একত্রিত আছেন, এবং সুরেশচন্দ্র মিত্র এবং বলরাম বসু নামক তাঁহার দুইটি গৃহস্থ শিষ্য তাঁহাদের আহারাদি নির্বাহ এবং বাটী ভাড়া দিতেন।

৫। ভগবান্ রামকৃষ্ণের শরীর নানা কারণে (অর্থাৎ খ্রীষ্টিয়ান রাজার অদ্ভুত আইনের জ্বালায়) অগ্নিসমর্পণ করা হইয়াছিল। এই কার্য যে অতি গর্হিত তাহার আর সন্দেহ নাই। এক্ষণে তাঁহার ভস্মাবশেষ অস্তি সঞ্চিত আছে, উহা গঙ্গাতীরে কোনও স্থানে সমাহিত করিয়া দিতে পারিলে উক্ত মহাপাপ হইতে কথঞ্চিৎ বোধ হয় মুক্ত হইবে। উক্ত অবশেষ এবং তাঁহার গদির এবং প্রতিকৃতি যথানিয়মে আমাদের মঠে প্রত্যহ পূজা হইয়া থাকে এবং আমরা এক ব্রাহ্মণকুলোদ্ভব গুরুভ্রাতা উক্ত কার্যে দিবসব্যাপি লাগিয়া আছেন, ইহা আপনার অজ্ঞাত নহে। উক্ত পূজাদির ব্যয়ও উক্ত দুই মহাত্মা করিতেন।

৯। ১০০০ টাকায় কলিকাতার সন্নিহিতে গঙ্গাতীরে জমি এবং মন্দির হওয়া অসম্ভব, অন্যান্য ৫।৭ হাজার টাকার কমে জমি হয় না।

কল্যাণবরেষু,

এ দেশে আসিয়া অবধি তোমাদের পত্র লিখি নাই। কিন্তু হরিদাস ভাই-এর^১ পত্রে সকল সমাচার জ্ঞাত হইলাম। G. C. Ghose^২ এবং তোমরা যে হরিদাস ভাই-এর যথোচিত খাতির করিয়াছ, তাহা বড়ই ভাল।

এ দেশে আমার কোন অভাব নাই; তবে ভিক্ষা চলে না, পরিশ্রম অর্থাৎ উপদেশ করিতে হয় স্থানে স্থানে। এ দেশে যেমন গরম তেমনি শীত। গরমি কলিকাতা অপেক্ষা কোন অংশে কম নহে। শীতের কথা কি বলিব, সমস্ত দেশ দু হাত তিন হাত কোথাও ৪।৫ হাত বরফে ঢাকা। দক্ষিণভাগে বরফ নাই! বরফ তো ছোট জিনিস। যখন পারা জিরোর উপর ৩২ দাগ থাকে, তখন বরফ পড়ে। কলিকাতায় কদাচ ৬০ হয় -- জিরোর উপর, ইংলন্ডে কদাচ জিরোর কাছে যায়। এখানে পারার পো জিরোর নিচে ৪০।৫০ তক নেবে জান। উত্তরভাগে কানাডায় পারা জমে যায়। তখন আলকোহল থারমোমিটার ব্যবহার করিতে হয়। যখন বড্ড ঠান্ডা, অর্থাৎ যখন পারা জিরোর উপর ২০ ডিগ্রিরও নিচে থাকে, তখন বরফ পড়ে না। আমার বোধ ছিল -- বরফ পড়া একটা বড় ঠান্ডা। তা নয়, বরফ অপেক্ষাকৃত গরম দিনে পড়ে। বেজায় ঠান্ডায় এক রকম নেশা হয়। গাড়ি চলে না, শ্লেজ চক্রহীন -- ঘসড়ে যায়। সব জমে কাঠ -- নদী নালা লেকের (হ্রদের) উপর হাতি চলে যেতে পারে! নায়াগারার প্রচন্ড প্রবাহশালী বিশাল নির্বর জমে পাথর!!! আমি কিন্তু বেশ আছি। প্রথমে একটু ভয়ে হয়েছিল, তারপর গরজের দায়ে একদিন রেলের করে কানাডার কাছে, দ্বিতীয় দিন দক্ষিণ আমেরিকা যুক্তরাষ্ট্র লেকচার করে বেড়াচ্ছি। গাড়ী ঘরের মতো, steam pipe (নলবাহিত বাষ্প) - যোগে খুব গরম, আর চারিদিকে বরফের রাশি ধপধপে সাদা, সে অপূর্ব শোভা!

বড় ভয় ছিল যে, আমার নাক কান খসে যাবে, কিন্তু আজিও কিছু হয় নাই। তবে রাশিকৃত গরম কাপড়, তার উপর সলোম চামড়ার কোট, জুতো, জুতোর উপর পশমের জুতো ইত্যাদি আবৃত হয়ে বাইরে যেতে হয়। নিঃশ্বাস বেরতে না বেরতেই দাড়িতে জমে যাচ্ছেন। তাতে তামাসা কি জান? বাড়ির ভেতর জলে এক ডেলা বরফ না দিয়ে এরা পান করে না। বাড়ির ভেতর গরম কিনা তাই। প্রত্যক ঘরে, সিঁড়িতে steam pipe গরম রাখছে। কলা-কৌশলে এরা অদ্বিতীয়, ভোগে বিলাসে এরা অদ্বিতীয়, পয়সা রোজগারে অদ্বিতীয়, খরচে অদ্বিতীয়। কুলির রোজ ৬ টাকা, চাকরের তাই, ৩ টাকার কম ঠিকা গাড়ী পাওয়া যায় না। চারি আনার কম চুরট নাই। ২৪ টাকায় মধ্যবিৎ জুতো একজোড়া। ৫০০ টাকায় একটা পোশাক। যেমন রোজগার, তেমনই খরচ। একটা লেকচার ২০০। ৩০০। ৫০০। ২০০০। ৩০০০ পর্যন্ত। আমি ৫০০ টাকা^৩ পর্যন্ত পাইয়াছি। অবশ্য -- আমার এখানে এখন

পোয়াবারো। এরা আমায় ভালোবাসে, হাজার হাজার লোক আমার কথা শুনিতে আসে।

প্রভুর ইচ্ছায় মজুমদার মশায়ের সঙ্গে এখানে দেখা। প্রথমে বড়ই প্রীতি, পরে যখন চিকাগো সুদ্ধ নরনারী আমার উপর ভেঙে পড়তে লাগলো তখন মজুমদার ভায়ার মনে আগুন জ্বলল! ...দাদা, আমি দেখেগুনে অবাক! বল বাবা, আমি কি তোর অল্পে ব্যাঘাত করেছি? তোর খাতির তো যথেষ্ট এ দেশে। তবে আমার মতো তোমাদের হল না, তা আমার কি দোষ? ...আর মজুমদার পার্লামেন্ট অব্ রিলিজিয়নের পাদ্রীদের কাছে আমার যথেষ্ট নিন্দা করে, ‘ও কেউ নয়, ঠক জোচ্চর; ও তোমাদের দেশে এসে বলে -- আমি ফকির’ ইত্যাদি বলে তাদের মন আমার উপর যথেষ্ট বিগড়ে দিল। ব্যারোজ প্রেসিডেন্টকে এমনি বিগড়ালে যে, সে আমার সঙ্গে ভাল করে কথাও কয়ে না। তাদের পুস্তকে প্যাম্ফলেটে যথাসাধ্য আমায় দাবাবার চেষ্টা; কিন্তু গুরু সহায় বাবা! মজুমদার কি বলে? সমস্ত আমেরিকান নেশন যে আমাকে ভালবাসে, ভক্তি করে, টাকা দেয়, গুরুর মতো মানে -- মজুমদার করবে কি? পাদ্রী-ফাদ্রীর কি কর্ম? আর এরা বিদ্বানের জাত। এখানে ‘আমরা বিধবার বে দিই, আর পুতুলপূজা করি না’ -- এ সব আর চলে না -- পাদ্রীদের কাছে কেবল চলে। ভায়া, এরা চায় ফিলসফি, learning (বিদ্যা), ফাঁকা গল্পি আর চলে না।

ধর্মপাল ছোকরা বেশ, ...ভাল মানুষ। তার এ দেশে যথেষ্ট আদর হয়েছিল। দাদা, মজুমদারকে দেখে আমার আক্কেল এসে গেল। বুঝতে পারলুম, ‘যে নিঘন্তি পরহিতং নিরর্থকং তে কে ন জানীমহে’^৪ -- ভতূহরি।

এ দেশের মেয়ের মতো মেয়ে জগতে নাই। কি পবিত্র, স্বাধীন, স্বাপেক্ষ, আর দয়াবতী -- মেয়েরাই এ দেশের সব। বিদ্যে বুদ্ধি সব তাদের ভেতর। ‘যা শ্রীঃ স্বয়ং সুকৃতিনাং ভবনেষু’ (যিনি পুণ্যবানদের গৃহে স্বয়ং লক্ষ্মীস্বরূপিণী) এ দেশে, আর ‘পাপাত্নানাং হৃদয়েষ্বলক্ষ্মীঃ’ (পাপাত্নাণের হৃদয়ে অলক্ষ্মীস্বরূপিণী) আমাদের দেশে, এই বোঝা হরে, হরে, এদের মেয়েদের দেখে আমার আক্কেল গুডুম। ‘ত্বং শ্রীশ্চমীশুরী ত্বং হ্রীঃ’ ইত্যাদি -- (তুমিই লক্ষ্মী, তুমিই ঈশ্বরী, তুমি লজ্জাস্বরূপিণী)। ‘যা দেবী সর্বভূতেষু শক্তিরূপেণ সংস্থিতা’ (যে দেবী সর্বভূতে শক্তিরূপে অবস্থিতা) ইত্যাদি। এ দেশের বরফ যেমনি সাদা, তেমনি হাজার হাজার মেয়ে আছে, যাদের মন পবিত্র। আর আমাদের দশ বৎসরের বেটা-বিউনিরা!!! প্রভো, এখন বুঝতে পারছি। আরে দাদা, ‘যত্র নার্যন্তু পূজ্যন্তে রমন্তে তত্র দেবতাঃ’ (যেখানে স্ত্রী লোকেরা পূজিতা হন, সেখানে দেবতারাও আনন্দ করেন) -- বুড়ো মনু বলেছে। আমরা মহাপাপী; স্ত্রীলোককে ঘৃণ্যকীট, নরকমার্গ ইত্যাদি বলে বলে অধোগতি হয়েছে। বাপ, আকাশ পাতাল ভেদ!! ‘যাথা তথ্যতোহর্থাৎ ব্যদধাৎ’ (যথোপযুক্তভাবে কর্মফল বিধান করেন)।^৫ প্রভু কি গল্পিবাজিতে ভোলেন? প্রভু বলেছেন, ত্বং স্ত্রী ত্বং পূমানসি ত্বং কুমার উত বা কুমারী’ ইত্যাদি -- (তুমিই স্ত্রী, তুমিই পুরুষ, তুমিই বালক ও তুমিই বালিকা)।^৬ আর আমরা বলছি -- ‘দূরমপসর রে চন্ডাল’ (ওরে চন্ডাল, দূরে সরিয়া যা), ‘কেনৈষা নির্মিতা নারী মোহিনী’ ইত্যাদি (কে এই মোহিনী নারীকে নির্মাণ করিয়াছে?)। ওরে ভাই, দক্ষিণ দেশে যা দেখেছি,

^৪ যাহারা নিরর্থক পরের অনিষ্টসাধন করে, তাহারা যে কিরূপ লোক, তাহা বলিতে পারি না।

^৬ শ্বেতাশ্বতর উপ.

উচ্চজাতির নীচের উপর যে অত্যাচার! মন্দিরে যে দেবদাসীদের নাচার ধুম! যে ধর্ম গরিবের দুঃখ দূর করে না, মানুষকে দেবতা করে না, তা কি আবার ধর্ম? আমাদের কি আর ধর্ম? আমাদের ‘ছুঁমার্গ’, খালি ‘আমায় ছুঁয়ো না, আমায় ছুঁয়ো না’। হে হরি! যে দেশের বড় বড় মাথাগুলো আজ দু-হাজার বৎসর খালি বিচার করছে -- ডান হাতে খাব, কি বাম হাতে; ডান দিক থেকে জল নেব, কি বাঁ দিক থেকে এবং ফট্ ফট্ স্বাহা, ক্রাং ক্রুং হুঁ হুঁ করে, তাদের অধোগতি হবে না তো কার হবে? ‘কালঃ সুপ্তে জাগতি কালো হি দুরতিক্রমঃ’ (সকলে নিদ্রিত হয়ে থাকলেও কাল জাগরিত থাকেন, কালকে অতিক্রম করা বড় কঠিন)। তিনি জানছেন, তাঁর চক্ষে কে ধুলো দেয়বাবা!

যে দেশে কোটি কোটি মানুষ মছয়ার ফুল খেয়ে থাকে, আর দশবিংশ লাখ সাধু আর ক্রোর দশেক ব্রাহ্মণ ঐ গরিবদের রক্ত চুষে খায়, আর তাদের উন্নতির কোনও চেষ্টা করে না, সে কি দেশ না নরক! সে ধর্ম, না পৈশাচ নৃত্য! দাদা, এটি তলিয়ে বোঝ -- ভারতবর্ষ ঘুরে ঘুরে দেখেছি। এ দেশ দেখেছি। কারণ বিনা কার্য হয় কি? পাপ বিনা সাজা মিলে কি? ‘সর্বশাস্ত্রপুরাণেষু ব্যাসস্যবচনদ্বয়ম্। পরোপকারঃ পুণ্যায় পাপায় পরপীড়নম্।।’ (সমুদয় শাস্ত্র ও পুরাণে ব্যাসের দুটি বাক্য -- পরোপকার করিলে পুণ্য ও পরপীড়ন করিলে পাপ উৎপন্ন হয়।) সত্য নয় কি?

মনে কর, কতকগুলি সন্ন্যাসী যেমন গাঁয়ে গাঁয়ে ঘুরে বেড়াচ্ছে -- কোন্ কাজ করে? -- তেমনি কতকগুলি নিঃস্বার্থ পরহিতচিকীর্ষু সন্ন্যাসী -- গ্রামে গ্রামে বিদ্যা বিতরণ করে বেড়ায়, নানা উপায়ে নানা কথা, map, camera, globe (মানচিত্র, ক্যামেরা, গোলক) ইত্যাদির সহায়ে আচন্ডালের উন্নতিকল্পে বেড়ায়, তাহলে কালে মঙ্গল হতে পারে কি না। এ সমস্ত প্ল্যান আমি এইটুকু চিঠিতে লিখতে পারি না। ফলকথা -- If the mountain does not come to Mahomet, Mahomet must come to the mountain.^১ গরিবেরা এত গরিব, তারা স্কুল-পাঠশালা আসতে পারে না, আর কবিতা-ফবিতা পড়ে তাদের কোনও উপকার নাই। We as a nation have lost our individuality and that is the cause of all mischief in India. We have to give back to the nation its lost individuality and raise the masses. The Hindu, the Mahomedanan, the Christian, all have trampled them under foot. Again the force to raise them must come from inside, i.e., from the orthodox Hindus. In every country the evils exist not with but against religion. Religion, therefore, is not to blame, but men.^২

^১ পাহাড় যদি মহম্মদের নিকট না যায়, মহম্মদ পাহাড়ের নিকট যাবেন। অর্থাৎ গরিবের ছেলেরা যদি স্কুলে এসে লেখাপড়া শিখতে না পারে, বাড়ি বাড়ি গিয়ে তাদের শেখাতে হবে।

^২ আমাদের জাতটা নিজেদের বিশেষত্ব হারিয়ে ফেলেছে, সেইজন্যই ভারতে এত দুঃখকষ্ট। সেই জাতীয় বিশেষত্বের বিকাশ যাতে হয়, তাই করতে হবে -- নীচ জাতকে তুলতে হবে। হিন্দু, মুসলমান, খ্রীষ্টান সকলেই তাদের পায়ে দলেছে। আবার তাদের উঠাবার যে শক্তি, তাও আমাদের নিজেদের ভেতর থেকে আনতে হবে -- গৌড়া হিন্দুদেরই এ কাজ করতে হবে। সব দেশেই যা কিছু দোষ দেখা যায়, তা তাদের ধর্মের দোষ নয়, ধর্ম ঠিক ঠিক পালন না করার দরুনই এই সব দোষ দেখা যায়। সুতরাং ধর্মের কোন দোষ নাই, লোকেরই দোষ।

এই করতে গেলে প্রথম চাই লোক, দ্বিতীয় চাই পয়সা। গুরুর কৃপায় প্রতি শহরে আমি ১০।১৫ জন লোক পাব। পয়সার চেষ্টিয় তার পর ঘুরলাম। ভারতবর্ষের লোক পয়সা দেবে!!! Fools and dotards and Selfishness personified^৯ -- তারা দেবে! তাই আমেরিকায় এসেছি, নিজে রোজগার করব, করে দেশে যাব and devote the rest of my life to the realization of this one aim of my life.^{১০}

যেমন আমাদের দেশে social virtue-র (সমাজ-হিতকর গুণের) অভাব, তেমনি এ দেশে spirituality (আধ্যাত্মিকতা) নাই, এদের spirituality দিচ্ছি, এরা আমায় পয়সা দিচ্ছে। কত দিনে সিদ্ধকাম হবো জানি না, আমাদের মতো এরা hypocrite (কপটি) নয়, আর jealousy (ঈর্ষা) একেবারে নাই। হিন্দুস্থানের কারও উপর depend (নির্ভর) করি না। নিজে প্রাণপণ করে রোজগার করে নিজের plans carry out (উদ্দেশ্য কার্যে পরিণত) করব or die in the attempt (কিংবা ঐ চেষ্টিয় মরব)। ‘সন্নিমিত্তে বরং ত্যাগো বিনাশে নিয়তে সতি’ -- (যখন মৃত্যু নিশ্চিত, তখন সং উদ্দেশ্যে দেহত্যাগ করাই ভাল)।

তোমরা হয়তো মনে করিতে পার, কি Utopian nonsense (অসম্ভব বাজে কথা)। You little know what is in me (আমার ভিতর কি আছে, তোমরা মোটেই জানো না)। আমাদের ভেতর যদি কেউ আমায় সহায়তা করে in my plan (আমার পরিকল্পনা সফল করতে) -- all right (খুব উত্তম); নইলে কিন্তু গুরুদেব will show me the way out (আমাকে পথ দেখাইবেন)। ইতি।

মাকে আমার কোটি কোটি সাষ্টাঙ্গ দিবে। তাঁর আশীর্বাদে আমার সর্বত্র মঙ্গল। এই পত্র বাহিরের লোকের নিকট পড়বার আবশ্যিক নাই। এটি সকলকে বলিও, সকলকে ডেকে জিজ্ঞাসা করিও -- সকলে jealousy ত্যাগ করে এককাটা হয়ে থাকতে পারবে কি না। যদি না পারে, যারা হিংসুটেপানা না করে থাকতে পারে না, তাদের ঘরে যাওয়াই ভাল, আর সকলের কল্যাণের জন্য। ঐটে আমাদের জাতের দোষ, national sin (জাতিগত পাপ)!!! এ দেশে ঐটে নাই, তাই এরা এত বড়।

আমাদের মত কূপমন্ডুক তো দুনিয়ায় নাই। কোন একটা নূতন জিনিস কোন দেশ থেকে আসুক দিকি, আমেরিকা সকলের আগে নেবে। আর আমরা? ‘আমাদের মতো দুনিয়ায় কেউ নেই, ‘আর্যবংশ’!!! কোথায় বংশ তা জানি না ... এক লাখ লোকের দাবানিতে ৩০০ মিলিয়ন (ত্রিশ কোটি) কুকুরের মত ঘোরে, আর তারা ‘আর্যবংশ’!!!

কিমধিকমিতি --

বিবেকানন্দ

^{১০} আর আমার বাকি জীবন এই এক উদ্দেশ্য সিদ্ধির জন্য নিয়োজিত করব।

হে ভ্রাতৃবৃন্দ, ইতঃপূর্বে তোমাদের এক পত্র লিখি, সময়ভাবে তাহা অসম্পূর্ণ। রাখাল ও হরি লক্ষ্মী হইতে এক পত্র লেখেন। তাঁহারা -- হিন্দু খবরের কাগজরা আমার সুখ্যাতি করিতেছে, এই কথা লেখেন ও তাঁহারা বড় আনন্দিত যে, ২০ হাজার লোক খিচুড়ি খেয়েছে। যদি কলিকাতা অথবা মাদ্রাজের হিন্দুরা সভা করে রিজলিউশন পাস করিত যে, ইনি আমাদের প্রতিনিধি এবং আমেরিকার লোকদের অভিনন্দন করিত -- আমাকে যত্ন করিয়াছে বলিয়া, তাহলে অনেক কাজ এগিয়ে যেত। কিন্তু এক বৎসর হয়ে গেল, কই কিছুই হল না! অবশ্য বাঙালীদের উপর আমার কিছুই ভরসা ছিল না; তবে মাদ্রাজবাসীরাও কিছু করতে পারলে না। ...

আমাদের জাতের কোনও ভরসা নাই। কোনও একটা স্বাধীন চিন্তা কাহারও মাথায় আসে না -- সেই ছেঁড়া কাঁথা, সকলে পড়ে টানাটানি -- রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস এমন ছিলেন, তেমন ছিলেন; আষাঢ়ে গঙ্গি -- গঙ্গির আর সীমা-সীমান্ত নাই। হরে হরে, বলি একটা কিছু করে দেখাও যে তোমরা কিছু অসাধারণ -- খালি পাগলামি! আজ ঘন্টা হল, কাল তার উপর ভেঁপু হল, পরশু তার উপর চামর হল, আজ খাট হল, কাল খাটের ঠ্যাঙে রূপো বাঁধান হল -- আর লোকে খিচুড়ি খেলে আর লোকের কাছে আষাঢ়ে গল্প ২০০০ মারা হল -- চক্রগদাপদাশঙ্খ -- আর শঙ্খগদাপদাচক্র ইত্যাদি, একেই ইংরেজীতে imbecility (শারীরিক ও মানসিক বলহীনতা) বলে -- যাদের মাথায় ঐ রকম বেলকোমো ছাড়া আর কিছু আসে না, তাদের নাম imbecile (ক্লীব) -- ঘন্টা ডাইনে বাজবে বা বায়েঁ, চন্দনের টিপ মাথায় কি কোথায় পরা যায় -- পিদ্দিম দুবার ঘুরবে বা চার বার -- ঐ নিয়ে যাদের মাথা দিন রাত ঘামতে চায়, তাহাদেরই নাম হতভাগা; আর ঐ বুদ্ধিতেই আমরা লক্ষ্মীছাড়া জুতোখেকো আর এরা ত্রিভুবন বিজয়ী। কুঁড়েমিতে আর বৈরাগ্যে আকাশ-পাতাল তফাত।

যদি ভাল চাও তো ঘন্টাফন্টাগুলোকে গঙ্গার জলে সঁপে দিয়ে সাক্ষাৎ ভগবান নর-নারায়ণের -- মানবদেহধারী হরেরক মানুষের পূজো করগে -- বিরাট আর স্বরাট। বিরাট রূপ এই জগৎ, তার পূজো মানে তার সেবা -- এর নাম কর্ম; ঘন্টার উপর চামর চড়ানো নয়, আর ভাতের থালা সামনে ধরে দশ মিনিট বসব কি আধ ঘন্টা বসব -- এ বিচারের নাম 'কর্ম' নয়, ওর নাম পাগলা-গারদ। ক্রোর টাকা খরচ করে কাশী বৃন্দাবনের ঠাকুরঘরের দরজা খুলছে আর পড়ছে। এই ঠাকুর কাপড় ছাড়ছেন, তো এই ঠাকুর ভাত খাচ্ছেন, তো এই ঠাকুর আঁটকুড়ির বেটাদের গুপ্তির পিন্ডি করছেন; এদিকে জ্যান্ত ঠাকুর অন্ন বিনা, বিদ্যা বিনা মরে যাচ্ছে। বোম্বায়ের বেনেগুলো ছাড়পোকের হাসপাতাল বানাচ্ছে -- মানুষগুলো মরে যাক। তোদের বুদ্ধি নাই যে, এ-কথা বুঝিস -- আমাদের দেশে মহা ব্যারাম -- পাগলা-গারদ দেশময়।

সেই যে বোম্বাই থেকে এক ছোকড়া মাথা মুড়িয়ে তারকদার সঙ্গে রামেশ্বর যায়, সে বলে, আমি রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংসের শিষ্য। রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংসের শিষ্য! না দেখা, না শোনা -- একি চ্যাংড়ামো নাকি? গুরুপরম্পরা ভিন্ন কোনও কাজ হয় না -- ছেলেখেলা নাকি? সে ছোঁড়াটা যদি দস্তুরমত পথে না চলে, দূর করে দেবে। গুরুপরম্পরা অর্থাৎ সেই শক্তি যা গুরু হতে শিষ্যে আসে, আবার তাঁর শিষ্য যায়, তা ভিন্ন কিছুই হবার নয়। উরধা -- আমি রামকৃষ্ণের শিষ্য, একি ছেলেখেলা নাকি? আমাকে জগমোহন বলেছিল যে, একজন বলে তোমার গুরুভাই, আমি এখন ঠাউরে ধরেছি, সেই ছোকরা। গুরুভাই কি রে? হাঁ চেলা বলতে লজ্জা করে! একদম গুরু বনবে! দূর করে দিও যদি দস্তুরমত পথে না চলে।

ঐ যে তুলসী ও খোকাকার মনের অশান্তি, তার মানে কোন কাজ নাই। ঐ যে নিরঞ্জনেরও -- তার মানে কোন কাজ নাই। গাঁয়ে গাঁয়ে যা, ঘরে ঘরে যা; লোকহিত, জগতের কল্যাণ কর -- নিজে নরকে যাও, পরের মুক্তি হোক -- আমার মুক্তির বাপ নির্বংশ। নিজের ভাবনা যখনই ভাববে তুলসী, তখনি মনে অশান্তি। তোমার শান্তির দরকার কি বাবাজী? সব ত্যাগ করেছ, এখন শান্তির ইচ্ছা, মুক্তির ইচ্ছাটাকেও ত্যাগ করে দাও তো বাবা। কোনও চিন্তা রেখো না; নরক স্বর্গ ভক্তি বা মুক্তি সব don't care (গ্রাহ্য করো না), আর ঘরে ঘরে নাম বিলোও দিকি বাবাজী। আপনার ভাল কেবল পরের ভালয় হয়, আপনার মুক্তি এবং ভক্তিও পরের মুক্তি ও ভক্তিতে হয় -- তাইতে লেগে যাও, মেতে যাও, উন্মাদ হয়ে যাও। ঠাকুর যেমন তোমাদের ভালবাসতেন, আমি যেমন তোমাদের ভালবাসি, তোমরা তেমনি জগৎকে ভালবাস দেখি।

১। আমরা সন্ন্যাসী, ভক্তি ভুক্তি মুক্তি -- সব ত্যাগ।

২। জগতের কল্যাণ করা, আচড়ালের কল্যাণ করা -- এই আমাদের ব্রত, তাতে মুক্তি আসে বা নরক আসে।

৩। রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস জগতের কল্যাণের জন্য এসেছিলেন। তাঁকে মানুষ বল বা ঈশ্বর বল বা অবতার বল, আপনার আপনার ভাবে নাও।

৪। যে তাঁকে নমস্কার করবে, সে সেই মুহূর্তে সোনা হয়ে যাবে। এই বার্তা নিয়ে ঘরে ঘরে যাও দিকি বাবাজী -- অশান্তি দূর হয়ে যাবে। ভয় করো না -- ভয়ের জায়গা কোথা? তোমরা তো কিছু চাও না -- এতদিন তাঁর নাম, তোমাদের চরিত্র চারিদিকে ছড়িয়েছে, বেশ করেছ; এখন organised (সজ্জবদ্ধ)

হয়ে ছড়াও -- প্রভু তোমাদের সঙ্গে, ভয় নাই।

আমি মরি আর বাঁচি, দেশে যাই বা না যাই, তোমরা ছড়াও, প্রেম ছড়াও। গুণ্ডকেও এই কাজে লাগাও। কিন্তু মনে রেখো, পরকে মারতে ঢাল খাঁড়ার দরকার। ‘সন্নিমিত্তে বরং ত্যাগো বিনাশে নিয়তে সতি’ -- যখন মৃত্যু অবশ্যস্বাবী, তখন সৎ বিষয়ের জন্য দেহত্যাগই শ্রেয়ঃ। ইতি

পুঃ -- পূর্বের চিঠি মনে রেখো -- মেয়ে-মদ্দ দু-ই চাই, আত্মাতে মেয়েপুরুষের ভেদ নেই। তাঁকে অবতার বললেই হয় না -- শক্তির বিকাশ চাই। হাজার হাজার পুরুষ চাই, স্ত্রী চাই -- যারা আগুনের মতো হিমাচল থেকে কন্যাকুমারী -- উত্তর মেরু থেকে দক্ষিণ মেরু, দুনিয়াময় ছড়িয়ে পড়বে। ছেলেখেলায় কাজ নেই -- ছেলেখেলার সময় নেই -- যারা ছেলেখেলা করতে চায়, তফাত হও এই বেলা; নইলে মহা আপদ তাদের। Organisation (সঙ্ঘ) চাই -- কুড়োমি দূর করে দাও, ছড়াও, ছড়াও; আগুনের মতো যাও সব জায়গায়। আমার উপর ভরসা রেখো না, আমি মরি বাঁচি, তোমরা ছড়াও, ছড়াও। ইতি

তোমাদের কয়েকখানা পত্র পাইলাম। শশী প্রভৃতি যে ধূমক্ষেত্র মাচাচ্ছে, এতে আমি বড়ই খুশি। ধূমক্ষেত্র মাচাতে হবে, এর কম চলবে না। কুছ পরোয়া নেই। দুনিয়াময় ধূমক্ষেত্র মোচে যাবে, ‘বাহ গুরুকা ফতে!’ আরে দাদা ‘শ্রেয়াংসি বহুবিঘ্নানি’ (ভাল কাজে অনেক বিঘ্ন হয়), ঐ বিঘ্নের গুঁতোয় বড়লোক তৈরী হয়ে যায়। চারু কে, এখন বুঝতে পেরেছি; তাকে আমি ছেলেমানুষ দেখে এসেছি কিনা, তাই ঠাওরে উঠতে পারিনি। তাকে আমার অনেক আশীর্বাদ। বলি মোহন, মিশনারী-ফিশনারীর কর্ম কি এ ধাক্কা সামলায়? এখন মিশনারীর ঘরে বাঘ সঁধিয়েছে। এখানকার দিগ্গজ দিগ্গজ পাদ্রীতে ঢের চেষ্টা-বেস্টা করলে -- এ গিরিগোবর্ধন টলাবার জো কি। মোগল পাঠান হুদ হুদ, এখন কি তাঁতীর কর্ম ফার্সি পড়া? ও সব চলবে না ভায়া, কিছু চিন্তা করো না। সকল কাজেই একদল বাহবা দেবে, আর একদল দুঃমনাই করবে। আপনার কার্য করে চলে যাও -- কারুর কথার জবাব দেবার আবশ্যিক কি? ‘সত্যমেব জয়তে নানুতং, সত্যনৈব পত্না বিততো দেবযানঃ।’^১ গুরুপ্রসন্নবাবুকে এক পত্র লিখিতেছি। টাকার ভাবনা নাই, মোহন। সব হবে ধীরে ধীরে।

এ দেশে গরমির দিনে সকলে দরিয়ার কিনারায় যায় -- আমিও গিয়েছিলাম, অবশ্য পরের স্কন্ধে। এদের নৌকা আর জাহাজ চালাবার বড়ই বাতিক। ইয়াট বলে ছোট ছোট জাহাজ ছেলে-বুড়ো যার পয়সা আছে, তারই একটা আছে। তাইতে পাল তুলে দরিয়ায় যায় আর ঘরে আসে, খায় দায় -- নাচে কোঁদে -- গান বাজনা তো দিবারাত্র। পিয়ানোর জ্বালায় ঘরে তিষ্ঠাবার জো নাই।

ঐ যে G. W. Hale (হেল)-এর ঠিকানায় চিঠি দাও, তাদের কথা কিছু বলি। হেল আর তার স্ত্রী, বুড়ো-বুড়ি। আর দুই মেয়ে, দুই ভাইবি, এক ছেলে। ছেলে রোজগার করতে দোসরা জায়গায় থাকে। মেয়েরা ঘরে থাকে। এদের দেশে মেয়ের সম্বন্ধেই সম্বন্ধ। ছেলে বে করে পর হয়ে যায় -- মেয়ের স্বামী ঘন ঘন স্ত্রীর বাপের বাড়ি যায়। এরা বলে --

'Son is son till he gets a wife,
The daughter is daughter all her life.'^২

চারজনই যুবতী -- বে থা করেনি। বে হওয়া এদেশে বড়ই হাঙ্গাম। প্রথম মনের মতো বর চাই। দ্বিতীয় পয়সা চাই। ছোঁড়া বেটারা ইয়ারকি দিতে বড়ই মজবুত -- ধরা দেবার বেলা পগার পার। ছুঁড়িরা নেচে কুঁদে একটা স্বামী যোগাড় করে, ছোঁড়া বেটারা ফাঁদে পা দিতে বড় নারাজ। এই রকম করতে করতে একটা ‘লভ’ হয়ে পড়ে -- তখন সাদি হয়। এই হল সাধারণ -- তবে হেলের মেয়েরা রুপসী, বড়মানুষের বি, ইউনিভার্সিটি ‘গার্ল’ (বিশ্ববিদ্যালয়ের ছাত্রী) -- নাচতে গাইতে পিয়ানো বাজাতে অদ্বিতীয়া -- অনেক ছোঁড়া ফেঁ ফেঁ করে -- তাদের বড় পসন্দয় আসে না। তারা

^১ সত্যেরই জয় হয়, মিথ্যার কখনও জয় হয় না; সত্যবলেই দেবযানমার্গে গতি হয়।

^২ পুত্রের যতদিন না বিবাহ হয় ততদিনই সে পুত্র, কিন্তু কন্যা চিরদিনই কন্যা থাকে।

বোধ হয় বে থা করবে না -- তার উপর আমার সংস্রবে ঘোর বৈরিগ্য উপস্থিত। তারা এখন ব্রহ্মচিন্তায় ব্যস্ত।

মেয়ী আর হ্যারিয়েট হল মেয়ে, আর এক হ্যারিয়েট আর ইসাবেল হল ভাইবি। মেয়ে দুইটির চুল সোনালী অর্থাৎ [তারা] ব্লন্ড, আর ভাইবি দুটি brunette [ব্রানেট] অর্থাৎ কালো চুল। জুতো সেলাই থেকে চড়ীপাঠ - - এরা সব জানে। ভাইবীদের তত পয়সা নেই -- তারা একটা Kindergarten School (কিন্ডারগার্টেন স্কুল) করে, মেয়েরা কিছু রোজগার করে না। এদের দেশের অনেক মেয়ে রোজগার করে। কেউ কারুর উপর নির্ভর করে না। ক্রোরপতির ছেলেও রোজগার করে, তবে বে করে, আর আপনার বাড়ি ভাড়া করে থাকে। মেয়েরা আমাকে দাদা বলে, আমি তাদের মাকে মা বলি। আমার মালপত্র সব তাদের বাড়িতে -- আমি যেখানেই কেন যাই না। তারা সব ঠিকানা করে। এদেশের ছেলেরা ছোটবেলা থেকেই রোজগার করতে যায়, আর মেয়েরা ইউনিভার্সিটিতে লেখাপড়া শেখে -- তাইতে করে একটা সভায় দেখবে যে 90 per cent. (শতকরা ৯০ জন) মেয়ে। ছোঁড়ারা তাদের কাছে কলকেও পায় না।

এদেশে ভূতুড়ে অনেক। মিডিয়ম (Medium) হল যে ভূত আনে। মিডিয়ম একটা পরদার আড়ালে যায়, আর পরদার ভেতর থেকে ভূত বেরুতে আরম্ভ করে -- বড় ছোট, হর-রঙের। আমি গোটাকতক দেখলাম বটে, কিন্তু ঠকবাজি বলেই বোধ হল। আর গোটাকতক দেখে তবে ঠিক সিদ্ধান্ত করব। ভূতুড়েরা অনেকে আমাকে শ্রদ্ধাভক্তি করে।

দোসরা হচ্ছেন কৃষ্চিয়ান সায়াস -- এরাই আজকালকার বড় দল -- সর্ব ঘটে। বড়ই ছড়াচ্ছে -- গোঁড়া বেটাদের বুক শেল বিঁধছে। এরা হচ্ছে বেদান্তী অর্থাৎ গোটাকতক অদ্বৈতবাদের মত যোগাড় করে তাকে বাইবেলের মধ্যে ঢুকিয়েছে আর 'সোহহং সোহহং' বলে রোগ ভাল করে দেয় -- মনের জোরে। এরা সকলেই আমাকে বড় খাতির করে।

আজকাল গোঁড়া বেটাদের ত্রাহি ত্রাহি এদেশে। Devil worship^৩ আর বড় একখানা চলছে না। আমাকে বেটারা যমের মতো দেখে। বলে, কোথা থেকে এ বেটা এল, রাজ্যের মেয়ে-মন্দ ওর পিছু পিছু ফেরে -- গোঁড়ামির জড় মারবার যোগাড়ে আছে। আশুন ধরে গেছে বাবা! গুরুর কৃপায় যে আশুন ধরে গেছে, তা নিববার নয়। কালে গোঁড়াদের দম নিকলে যাবে। কি বাঘ ঘরে ঢুকিয়েছেন, তা বাছাধনেরা টের পাচ্ছেন। থিওসফিস্টদের জোর বড় একটা নাই। তবে তারাও গোঁড়াদের খুব পিছু লেগে আছে।

এই কৃষ্চিয়ান সায়াস ঠিক আমাদের কর্তাভজা। বল 'রোগ নেই' -- বস, ভাল হয়ে গেল, আর বল 'সোহহং', বস -- ছুটি, চরে খাওগে। দেশ ঘোর materialist (জড়-বাদী)। এই কৃষ্চিয়ান দেশের লোক -- ব্যামো ভাল কর, আজগুবি কর, পয়সার রাস্তা হয়, তবে ধর্ম মানে -- অন্য কিছু বড় বোঝে না। তবে কেউ কেউ বেশ আছে। যত বেটা দুষ্ট্র বজ্জাত, ঠক-জোছোর মিশনারীরা তাদের ঘাড় ভাঙে আর তাদের পাপ মোচন করে। ... এরা আমাতে এক নূতন ডৌলের মানুষ দেখেছে। গোঁড়া বেটাদের পর্যন্ত আক্কেল গুডুম হয়ে গেছে, আর এখন সকলে বড়ই ভক্তি করছে -- বাবা বক্ষচর্যের চেয়ে কি আর বল আছে?

আমি এখন মাদ্রাজীদের Address (অভিনন্দন), যা এখানকার সব খাগজে ছেপে ধূমক্ষেত্র মোটে গিয়েছিল, তারই জবাব লিখতে ব্যস্ত। যদি সস্তা হয় তো ছাপিয়ে পাঠাব, যদি মাগগি হয় তো type-writing (টাইপ) করে পাঠিয়ে দেব। তোমাদেরও এক কাপি পাঠাব -- 'ইন্ডিয়ান মিররে' ছাপিয়ে দিও।

^৩ ভূতোপাসনা -- গোঁড়া খ্রীষ্টানরা হিন্দু প্রভৃতি অন্যান্য ধর্মাবলম্বীকে 'ভূতোপাসক' বলিয়া ঘৃণা করিয়া থাকে।

এদেশের অবিবাহিতা মেয়েরা বড়ই ভাল, তারা ভয় ডর করে। ... এরা হল বিরোচনের জাত। শরীর হল এদের ধর্ম, তাই মাজা, তাই ঘষা -- তাই নিয়ে আছে। নখ কাটবার হাজার যন্ত্র, চুল কাটবার দশ হাজার, আর কাপড়-পোশাক গন্ধ-মসলার ঠিক ঠিকানা কি! ... এরা ভাল মানুষ, দয়াবান, সত্যবাদী। সব ভাল, কিন্তু ঐ যে 'ভোগ', ঐ ওদের ভগবান -- টাকার নদী, রূপের তরঙ্গ, বিদ্যার ঢেউ, বিলাসের ছড়াছড়ি।

কাজক্ষুণ্ণঃ কর্মণাং সিদ্ধিং যজন্ত ইহ দেবতাঃ।

ক্ষিপ্রং হি মানুষে লোকে সিদ্ধিভবতি কর্মজা।। -- গীতা, ৪।১২

আমি এদের এই আশ্চর্যি মেয়ে দেখি। একি মা জগদম্বার কৃপা! একি মেয়ে রে বাবা! মদগুলোকে কোণে ঠেলে দেবার যোগাড় করেছে। মদগুলো হাবুডুবু খেয়ে যাচ্ছে। মা তোরই কৃপা। গোলাপ-মা যা করেছে, তাতে আমি বড়ই খুশি। গোলাপ-মা বা গৌর-মা তাদের মন্ত্র দিয়ে দিক না কেন? মেয়ে পুরুষের ভেদটার জড় মেয়ে তবে ছাড়ব। আত্মাতে কি লিঙ্গভেদ আছে নাকি? দূর কর মেয়ে আর মদ, সব আত্মা। শরীরাত্মা ছেড়ে দাঁড়া। বলো 'অস্তি অস্তি', 'নাস্তি নাস্তি' করে দেশটা গেল! সোহহং সোহহং শিবোহহং। কি উৎপাত! প্রত্যেক আত্মাতে অনন্ত শক্তি আছে, ওরে হতভাগাগুলো, নেই নেই বলে কি কুকুর বেড়াল হয়ে যাবি নাকি? কিসের নেই? কার নেই? শিবোহহং শিবোহহং। নেই নেই শুনলে আমার মাথায় যেন বজ্র মারে। রাম রাম, গরু তাড়াতে তাড়াতে জন্ম গেল। ঐ যে ছুঁচোগিরি, 'দীনাহীনা' ভাব -- ও হল ব্যারাম। ও কি দীনতা? ও গুপ্ত অহঙ্কার! ন লিঙ্গং ধর্মকারণং, সমতা সর্বভূতেষু এতস্মুক্তস্য লক্ষণম। অস্তি অস্তি অস্তি, সোহহং সোহহং, চিদানন্দরূপঃ শিবোহহং শিবোহহং। 'নির্গচ্ছতি জগজ্জালাৎ পিঞ্জরাদিব কেশরী'।^৪ ছুঁচোগিরি করবি তো চিরকাল পড়ে থাকতে হবে। 'নায়মাত্মা বলহীনেন লভ্যঃ'।^৫ শশী, তুই কিছু মনে করিস না -- আমি সময়ে সময়ে nervous (দুর্বল) হয়ে পড়ি, দুকথা বলে দিই। আমায় জানিস তো? তুই যে গোঁড়ামিতে নাই, তাতে আমি বড়ই খুশি। Avalanche^৬ এর মতো দুনিয়ার উপর পড় -- দুনিয়া ফেটে যাক চড় চড় করে, হর হর মহাদেব। 'উদ্ধরেদাত্মনাত্মানম' (আপনিই আপনাকে উদ্ধার করবে।)

রামদয়ালবাবু আমাকে এক পত্র লেখেন, আর তুলসীরামের এক পত্র পাইয়াছি। পলিটিক্যাল বিষয় তোমরা কেউ ছুঁয়ো না, এবং তুলসীরামবাবু যেন পলিটিক্যাল পত্র না লেখে। এখন পাবলিক ম্যান, অনর্থক শত্রু

^৪ বাহ্যচিহ্ন ধর্মের কারণ নহে, সর্বভূতে সমভাব -- ইহাই মুক্ত পুরুষের লক্ষণ। [বলো] -- অস্তি অস্তি (তিনি আছেন, তিনি আছেন); আমিই সেই, আমি চিদানন্দস্বরূপ শিব। সিংহ যেমন পিঞ্জর হইতে বহির্গত হয়, সেইরূপ তিনি জগজ্জাল হইতে বহির্গত হন।

^৬ পর্বতগাত্রস্থলিত বিপুল তুষারস্তূপ।

বাড়াবার দরকার নাই। তবে যদি পুলিশ-ফুলিশ পেছনে লাগে তোদের -- ‘দাঁড়িয়ে জান দে’। ওরে বাপ, এমন দিন কি হবে যে পরোপকারায় জান যাবে? ওরে হতভাগারা, এ দুনিয়া ছেলেখেলা নয় -- বড় লোক তাঁরা, যাঁরা আপনার বুকের রক্ত দিয়ে রাস্তা তৈরী করেন। এই হয়ে আসছে চিরকাল। একজন আপনার শরীর দিয়ে সেতু বানায়, আর হাজার লোক তার উপর দিয়ে নদী পার হয়। এবমস্তু, এবমস্তু, শিবোহহং, শিবোহহং (এরুপই হউক, আমিই শীব)। রামদয়ালবাবুর কথামত ১০০ ফটোগ্রাফ পাঠিয়ে দেব। তিনি বেচতে চান। টাকা আমাকে পাঠাতে হবে না, মঠে দিতে বলো। আমার এখানে ঢের টাকা আছে, কোন অভাব নাই -- ইওরোপ বেড়াবার আর পুঁথিপত্র ছাপাবার জন্য। এ চিঠি ফাঁস করিস না।

নরেন্দ্র

এইবার কাজ ঠিক চলবে, আমি দেখতে পাচ্ছি। Nothing succeeds as success (কৃতকার্যতা যে সাফল্য এনে দেয়, আর কিছু তা পারে না)। বলি শশী, তুমি ঘর জাগাও -- এই তোমার কাজ। ... কালী হোক business manager (বিষয়কার্যের পরিচালক)। মা-ঠাকুরানীর জন্য একটা জায়গা খাড়া করতে পারলে তখন আমি অনেকটা নিশ্চিন্ত। বুঝতে পারিস? দুই তিন হাজার টাকার মতো একটা জায়গা দেখ। জায়গাটা বড় চাই। আপাততঃ মেটে ঘর, কালে তার উপর অটালিকা খাড়া হয়ে যাবে। যত শীঘ্র পারো জায়গা দেখ। আমাকে চিঠি লিখবে। কালীকৃষ্ণবাবুকে জিজ্ঞাসা করবে, কি রকম করে টাকা পাঠাতে হয় -- Cook-এর দ্বারা কি প্রকারে। যত শীঘ্র পারো ঐ কাজটা হওয়া চাই। ঐটি হলে বস, আদেক হাঁপ ছাড়ি। জায়গাটা বড় চাই, তারপর দেখা যাবে। আমাদের জন্য চিন্তা নাই, ধীরে ধীরে সব হবে। কলকাতার যত কাছে হয় ততই ভাল। একবার জায়গা হলে মা-ঠাকুরানীকে centre (কেন্দ্র) করে গৌর-মা একটা বেডোল হুজুক মাচিয়ে দিক। মাদ্রাজে হুজুক খুব মেচেছে, ভাল কথা বটে।

তোমাদের একটা কি না কাগজ ছাপাবার কথা ছিল, তার কি খবর? সকলের সঙ্গে মিশতে হবে, কাউকে চটাতে হবে না। All the powers of good against all the powers of evil^১ -- এই হচ্ছে কথা। বিজয়বাবুকে খাতির-যত্ন যথোচিত করবে। Do not insist upon every-body's believing in our Guru.^২

আমি গোলাপ-মাকে একটা আলাদা পত্র লিখছি, পৌঁছে দিও। এখন তলিয়ে বুঝ -- শশী ঘর ছেড়ে যেতে পারবে না; কালী বিষয়কার্য দেখবে আর চিঠিপত্র লিখবে। হয় সারদা, নয় শরৎ, নয় কালী -- এদের সকলে একেবারে বাইরে না যায় -- একজন যেন মঠে থাকে। তারপর যারা বাইরে যাবে, তারা যে-সকল লোক আমাদের সঙ্গে sympathy (সহানুভূতি) করবে, তাদের সঙ্গে correspondence (পত্রব্যবহার) রাখবে। একটা খবরের কাগজ তোমাদের edit (সম্পাদন) করতে হবে, আদেক বাংলা, আদেক হিন্দি -- পারো তো আর একটা ইংরেজীতে। পৃথিবী ঘুরে বেড়াচ্ছ -- খবরের কাগজের subscriber (গ্রাহক) সংগ্রহ করতে ক-দিন লাগে? যারা বাহিরে আছে, subscriber (গ্রাহক) যোগাড় করুক। গুণ্ড^৩ -- হিন্দি দিকটা লিখুক, বা অনেক হিন্দি লিখবার লোক পাওয়া যাবে। মিছে ঘুরে বেড়ালে চলবে না। যে যেখানে যাবে, সেইখানেই একটা permanent (স্থায়ী) টোল

^১ সমুদয় অশুভ শক্তির বিরুদ্ধে সমুদয় শুভ শক্তি প্রয়োগ করতে হবে।

^২ সকলকে জোর করে আমাদের গুরুর ওপর বিশ্বাস করতে বলো না।

^৩ স্বামী সদানন্দ

পাততে হবে। তবে লোক change (পরিবর্তিত) হতে থাকবে। আমি একটা পুঁথি লিখছি -- এটা শেষ হলেই এক দৌড়ে ঘর আর কি! আর আমি বড় nervous (দুর্বল) হয়ে পড়েছি -- কিছুদিন চুপ করে থাকার বড় দরকার। মাদ্রাজীদের সঙ্গে সর্বদা correspondence (পত্রব্যবহার) রাখবে ও জায়গায় জায়গায় টোল খোলবার চেষ্টা করবে। বাকি বুদ্ধি তিনি দিবেন। সর্বদা মনে রেখো যে, পরমহংসদেব জগতের কল্যাণের জন্য এসেছিলেন -- নামের বা মানের জন্য নয়। তিনি যা শেখাতে এসেছিলেন, তাই ছড়াও। তাঁর নামের দরকার নেই -- তাঁর নাম আপনা হতে হবে। ‘আমার গুরুজীকে মানতেই হবে’ বললেই দল বাঁধবে, আর সব ফাঁস হয়ে যাবে -- সাবধান! সকলকেই মিষ্টি বচন -- চটলে সব কাজ পন্ড হয়। যে যা বলুক, আপনার গোঁয়ে চলে যাও -- দুনিয়া তোমার পায়ের তলায় আসবে, ভাবনা নেই। বলে -- একে বিশ্বাস কর, ওকে বিশ্বাস কর; বলি, প্রথমে আপনাকে বিশ্বাস কর দিকি। Have faith in yourself, all power is in you. Be conscious and bring it out^{১০} -- বল, আমি সব করতে পারি। ‘নেই নেই বললে সাপের বিষ নেই হয়ে যায়।’ খবরদার, No ‘নেই নেই’ (নেই নেই নয়); বল -- ‘হাঁ হাঁ’, ‘সোহহং সোহহং’।

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমাদের পত্র পাইয়া অতিশয় আনন্দিত হইলাম। মজুমদারের লীলা শুনিয়া বড়ই দুঃখিত। গুরুমারা বিদ্যে করতে গেলে ঐ-রকম হয়। আমার অপরাধ বড় নাই। মজুমদার দশ বৎসর আগে এখানে এসেছিল -- বড় খাতির ও সম্মান; এবার আমার পোয়াবারো। গুরুদেবের ইচ্ছা, আমি কি করিব? এতে চটে যাওয়া মজুমদারের ছেলেমানষি। যাক, উপেক্ষিতব্যং তদ্বচনং ভবৎসদৃশানাং মহাত্মনাম্। অপি কীটদংশনভীরুকাঃ বয়ং রামকৃষ্ণতনয়াঃ তদ্বদয়রুধিরপোষিতাঃ? ‘অলোকসামান্যমচিন্ত্যহেতুকং নিন্দন্তি মন্দাশরিতং মহাত্মনাং’ ইত্যাদয়ঃ সংস্মৃত্য ক্ষন্তব্যোহয়ং জালুঃ মজুমদারাখ্যঃ।^১ প্রভুর ইচ্ছা -- এ দেশের লোকের মধ্যে অন্তদৃষ্টি প্রবোধিত হয়। মজুমদার-ফজুমদারের কর্ম তাঁর গতি রোধ করে? আমার নামের আবশ্যিক নাই -- I want to be a voice without a form।^২ হরমোহন প্রভৃতি কাহারও আমাকে সমর্থন করিবার আবশ্যিক নাই -- কোহহং তৎপাদপ্রসরং প্রতিরোদ্ধ্বং সমর্থয়িতুং বা, কে বান্যে হরমোহনাদয়ঃ? তথাপি মম হৃদয়কৃতজ্ঞতা তান্ প্রতি। ‘যস্মিন্ স্থিতো ন দুঃখেন গুরুণাপি বিচাল্যতে’ -- নৈষ প্রাপ্তবান্ তৎপদবীমিতি মত্ত্বা করুণাদৃষ্ট্যা দ্রষ্টব্যোহয়মিতি।^৩ প্রভুর ইচ্ছায় এখনও নামযশের ইচ্ছা হৃদয়ে আসে নাই, বোধ হয় আসিবেও না। আমি যন্ত্র, তিনি যন্ত্রী। তিনি এই যন্ত্রদ্বারা সহস্র সহস্র হৃদয়ে এই দূরদেশে ধর্মভাব উদ্দীপিত করিতেছেন। সহস্র সহস্র নরনারী এদেশে আমাকে অতিশয় স্নেহ প্রীতি ও ভক্তি করে, আর শত শত পাত্রী ও গোঁড়া ক্রিশ্চান শয়তানের সহোদর মনে করে। মূকং করোতি বাচালং পঙ্গুং লজ্জয়তে গিরিম,^৪ আমি তাঁহার কৃপায় আশ্চর্য। যে শহরে যাই, তোলপাড় হয়। এরা আমার নাম দিয়াছে -- Cyclonic Hindu,^৫ তাঁর ইচ্ছা মনে রাখিও -- I am a voice without a form (আমি অমূর্ত বাণী)।

ইংলন্ডে যাব কি যমল্যাণ্ডে, প্রভু জানেন। তিনি সব যোগাড় করে দেবেন। এদেশে একটা চুরুটের দাম এক টাকা, একবার ঠিকাগাড়ি চড়লে ৩ টাকা, একটা জামার দাম ১০০ টাকা। ৯ টাকা রোজ হোটেল -- প্রভু সব যুগিয়ে দেন। এদেশের সব বড় বড় লোকের বাড়িতে যত্ন করে নিয়ে যাচ্ছে। উত্তম খাওয়া-পরা

তোমায় বলি ভায়া, যেমন চলছে চলতে দেও, তবে দেখো কোন form (বাহ্য অনুষ্ঠানপদ্ধতি) যেন necessary (একান্ত আবশ্যিক) না হয়, unity in variety (বহুত্বে একত্ব) -- সর্বজনীন ভাবের যেন কোনমতে ব্যাঘাত না হয়। Everything must be sacrificed, if necessary, for that one sentiment universality.^৩ আমি মরি আর বাঁচি, আর দেশে যাই বা না যাই, তোমরা বিশেষ মনে রাখবে যে, সর্বজনীনতা -- perfect acceptance, not tolerance only, we preach and perform. Take care how you trample on the least rights of others.^৪ ঐ দিয়ে বড় বড় জাহাজ ডুবি হয়ে যায়। পূর্ণ ভক্তি গোঁড়ামি ছাড়া -- এইটি দেখাতে হবে, মনে রেখো। তাঁর কৃপায় সব ঠিক চলবে। মঠ কেমন চলছে, উৎসব কেমন হল, গোপাল -- বুড়ো ও ছটকো কোথায় কেমন, গুপ্ত কোথায় কেমন -- সব লিখবে। মাস্টার কি বলে? ঘোষজা কি বলে? রামদাদা ঠাণ্ডা ভাব পেয়েছে কি না? দাদা, সকলের ইচ্ছে যে leader (নেতা) হয়, কিন্তু সে যে জন্মায় -- ঐটি বুঝতে না পারাতেই এত অনিষ্ট হয়। প্রভুর কৃপায় রামদাদা শীঘ্রই ঠাণ্ডা হবে ও বুঝতে পারবে। তাঁর কৃপা কাউকে ছাড়বে না। জি. সি. ঘোষ কি করছে?

^৬ সত্যেরই জয় হয়, মিথ্যার কখনও জয় হয় না; সত্যবলেই দেবজানমার্গ লাভ হয় -- (মুন্ডকোপনিষদ)। বেদান্তমতে মৃত্যুর পর যে বিভিন্ন গতি হয়, তন্মধ্যে দেবযানের দ্বারা গতি শ্রেষ্ঠ গতি। অরণ্য উপাসনা ও ভিক্ষাপরায়ণ নিষ্কাম সন্ন্যাসিগণেরই এই গতি হয়।

^১ আমরা কেবল তাঁহার অনুসরণ করিব -- প্রীতিই পরম সাধন।

^২ আখেরে প্রেম জয়ী হইয়া থাকে।

^৩ প্রয়োজন হয়, তবে সেই একটি ভাব -- ‘সর্বজনীনতা’ রক্ষার জন্য সমস্তই ছাড়িতে হইবে।

^৪ সকল ধর্মকে সত্য বলিয়া গ্রহণ, কেবল পরধর্মসহিষ্ণুতা নহে -- ইহাই আমরা প্রচার করি এবং কার্যেও পরিণত করি। বিশেষ সাবধান, যেন অপরের ক্ষুদ্রতম অধিকারও পদদলিত করিও না।

আমাদের মাতৃকাগণ বেঁচে বর্তে আছে তো? গৌর-মা কোথা? এক হাজার গৌর-মার দরকার -- ঐ noble stirring spirit (মহান ও উদ্দীপনাময় ভাব)। যোগেন মা প্রভৃতি সকলে ভাল আছে বোধ হয়। ভায়া, আমার পেটটা এমন ফুলছে যে, কালে বোধ হয় দরজা টরজা কাটতে হবে। মহিম চক্রবর্তী কি করছে? তার ওখানে যাওয়া-আসা করিবে। লোকটা ভাল। আমরা সকলকে চাই -- It is not at all necessary that all should have the same faith in our Lord as we have, but we want to unite all the powers of goodness against all the powers of evil,^{১১} মহেন্দ্র মাস্টারকে request from me (আমার তরফ থেকে অনুরোধ কর)। He can do it (তিনি এটা করতে পারবেন)। আমাদের একটা বড় দোষ -- সন্ন্যাসের গরিমা। ওটা প্রথম প্রথম দরকার ছিল, এখন আমরা পেকে গেছি, ওটার আবশ্যিক একেবারেই নাই। বুঝতে পেরেছ? সন্ন্যাসী আর গৃহস্থে কোন ভেদ থাকবে না, তবে যথার্থ সন্ন্যাসী। সকলকে ডেকে বুঝিয়ে দেবে -- মাস্টার, জি. সি. ঘোষ, রামদা, অতুল আর আর সকলকে নিমন্ত্রণ করে যে, ৫।৭টা ছোঁড়াতে মিলে, যাদের এক পয়সাও নাই, একটা কার্য আরম্ভ করলে -- যা এখন এমন accelerated (ক্রমবর্ধমান) গতিতে বাড়তে চলল -- এ হুজুক, কি প্রভুর ইচ্ছা? যদি প্রভুর ইচ্ছা, তবে তোমরা দলাদলি jealousy (ঈর্ষ্যা) পরিত্যাগ করে united action (সমবেতভাবে কার্য) কর। Shameful (লজ্জার কথা), আমরা universal religion (সর্বজনীন ধর্ম) করছি দলাদলি করে। যদি গিরিশ ঘোষ, মাস্টার আর রামবাবু ঐটি করতে পারে, তবে বলি বাহাদুর আর বিশ্বাসী, নইলে মিছে nonsense (বাজে)।

সকলে যদি একদিন এক মিনিট বোঝে যে, আমি বড় হব বললেই বড় হওয়া যায় না, যাকে তিনি তোলেন সে ওঠে, যাকে তিনি নিচে ফেলেন সে পড়ে যায়, তাহলে সকল ন্যাটা চুকে যায়। কিন্তু ঐ যে ‘অহং’ -- ফাঁকা ‘অহং’ -- তার আবার আঙ্গুল নাড়বার শক্তি নাই, কিন্তু কাউকে উঠতে দেবে না -- বললে কি চলে? ঐ jealousy (ঈর্ষ্যা), ঐ absence of conjoined action (সঙ্ঘবদ্ধভাবে কার্য করিবার শক্তির অভাব) গোলামের জাতের nature (স্বভাব); কিন্তু আমাদের বোড়ে ফেলতে চেষ্টা করা উচিত। ঐ terrible jealousy characteristic (ভয়ানক চারিত্রিক বিশেষত্ব ঈর্ষ্যা), আমাদের, বিশেষ বাঙালীর কারণ, we are the most worthless and superstitious and the most cowardly and lustful of all hindus.^{১২} পাঁচটা দেশ দেখলে ঐটি বেশ করে বুঝতে পারবে। আমাদের সমাজ এই গুণে এদের স্বাধীনতাপ্রাপ্ত কান্দীরা -- যদি তাদের মধ্যে একজনও বড় হয়, অমনি সবগুলোয় পড়ে তার পিছু লাগে -- white (শ্বেতাঙ্গ)দের সঙ্গে যোগ দিয়ে তাকে পেড়ে ফেলবার চেষ্টা করে। আমরাও ঠিক ঐ রকম। গোলাম কীটগুলো, এক পা নড়বার ক্ষমতা নাই -- স্ত্রীর আঁচল ধরে তাস খেলে গুড়ুক ফুঁকে জীবনযাপন করে, আর যদি কেউ ঐগুলোর মধ্যে এক পা এগোয়, সবগুলো কেঁউ কেঁউ করে তার পিছু লাগে -- হরে হরে।

At any cost, any price, any sacrifice (ওর জন্য যতই ত্যাগ ও কষ্ট স্বীকার করতে হোক) ঐটি আমাদের ভিতরে না ঢোকে -- আমরা দশজন হই, দুজন হই do not care (কুছ পরোয়া নেই), কিন্তু ঐ কয়টা perfect characters (সর্বাঙ্গসম্পূর্ণ চরিত্র) হওয়া চাই। আমাদের ভিতর যিনি

^{১১} আমাদের মতো সকলেরই যে ঠাকুরের উপর সমান বিশ্বাস থাকিবে, এমন কিছুমাত্র প্রয়োজন নাই, কিন্তু আমরা জগতের সমুদয় অশুভ শক্তির বিরুদ্ধে সমগ্র শুভ শক্তি সমবেত করিতে চাই।

^{১২} হিন্দুগণের ভিতর আমরাই সবচেয়ে অপদার্থ কুসংস্কারাচ্ছন্ন, কাপুরুষ ও কামুক।

পরস্পরের গুজুগুজু নিন্দা করবেন বা শুনবেন, তাকে সরিয়ে দেওয়া উচিত। ঐ গুজুগুজু সকল নষ্টের গোড়া -- বুঝতে পারছ কি? হাত ব্যাথা হয়ে এল ... আর লিখতে পারি না। ‘মাজনা ভালা না বাপসে যব রঘুবীর রাখে টেক্’। রঘুবীর টেক্ রাখবেন দাদা -- সে বিষয় তোমরা নিশ্চিত থেকে। বাঙলা দেশে তাঁর নাম প্রচার হল বা না হল, তাতে আমার অণুমাত্র চেষ্টা নাই -- ওগুলো কি মানুষ! রাজপুতানা, পাঞ্জাব, N.W. পাখি উড়তে উড়তে এক জায়গায় পৌঁছায়, যেখান থেকে অত্যন্ত শান্তভাবে নিচের দিকে দেখে। সে জায়গায় পৌঁছেছে কি? যিনি সেখানে পৌঁছান নাই, তাঁর অপরকে শিক্ষা দিবার অধিকার নাই। হাত পা ছেড়ে দিয়ে ভেসে যাও -- ঠিক পৌঁছে যাবে।

তোমাদের কি করে চলছে, কে চালাচ্ছে? রামকৃষ্ণ,^{১৪} তার মা, তুলসীরাম প্রভৃতি বোধ হয় উরিষ্যায়?

দমদম মাস্টার কেমন আছে? দাশুর তোমাদের উপর সেই প্রীতি আছে কিনা? সে ঘন ঘন আসে কিনা? ভবনাথ কেমন আছে, কি করছে? তোমরা তার কাছে যাও কি না -- তোমরা তাকে শ্রদ্ধা ভক্তি কর কি না? হাঁ হে বাপু, সন্ন্যাসী-ফন্ন্যাসী মিছে কথা -- মুকং করোতি, ইত্যাদি। বাবা, কার ভেতর কি আছে, বুঝা যায় না। তিনি ওকে বড় করেছেন -- ও আমাদের পূজ্য। এত দেখে শুনেও যদি তোমাদের বিশ্বাস না হয়, ধিক তোমাদের! ভবনাথ তোমাদের ভালবাসে কিনা? তাকে আমার আন্তরিক শ্রদ্ধা প্রীতি ও ভালবাসা দিও। কালীকৃষ্ণবাবুকে আমার ভালবাসা দিও -- তিনি অতি উন্নতচিত্ত ব্যক্তি। রামলাল কেমন আছে? তার একটু বিশ্বাস ভক্তি হয়েছে কিনা? তাকে আমার প্রীতিসম্ভাষণ দিও। সাভেল ঘানিতে ঠিক ঘুরছে বোধ হয়, ঠৈর্ষ ধরিতে কহিবে -- ঘানি ঠিক যাবে। সকলকে আমার হৃদয়ের প্রীতি।

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার পত্র পাইয়া সাতিশয় আল্লাদিত হইলাম। তুমি খেতড়িতে থাকিয়া অনেক পরিমাণে স্বাস্থ্যলাভ করিয়াছ, ইহা বড়ই আনন্দের বিষয়।

তারক দাদা মাদ্রাজে অনেক কার্য করিয়াছেন -- বড়ই আনন্দের কথা! তাঁহার সুখ্যাতি অনেক গুণিলাম মাদ্রাজবাসীদের নিকট। রাখাল আর হরি লক্ষ্মী হইতে এক পত্র লিখিয়াছে, তাহাদের শারিরিক কুশল। মঠের সকল সংবাদ অবগত হইলাম শশীর পত্রে।

রাজপুতানার স্থানে স্থানে ঠাকুরদের ভিতর ধর্মভাব ও পরহিতৈষণা বৃদ্ধি করিবার চেষ্টা করিবে। কার্য করিতে হইবে। বসিয়া বসিয়া কার্য হয় না! মালসিসর আলসিসর আর যত 'সর' ওখানে আছে, মধ্যে মধ্যে পরিভ্রমণ করিতে থাক; আর সংস্কৃত, ইংরেজী সযত্নে অভ্যাস করিবে। গুণনিধি পাঞ্জাবে আছে বোধ হয়, তাহাকে আমার বিশেষ ভালবাসা জানাইয়া খেতড়িতে আনিবে ও তাহার সাহায্যে সংস্কৃত শিখিবে ও তাহাকে ইংরেজী শিখাইবে। যে প্রকারে পার, তাহার ঠিকানা আমায় দিবে। গুণনিধি অচ্যুতানন্দ সরস্বতী।

খেতড়ি শহরের গরীব নীচ জাতিদের ঘরে ঘরে গিয়া ধর্ম উপদেশ করিবে আর তাদের অন্যান্য বিষয়, ভূগোল ইত্যাদি মৌখিক উপদেশ করিবে। বসে বসে রাজ-ভোগ খাওয়ায়, আর 'হে প্রভু রামকৃষ্ণ' বলায় কোনও ফল নাই, যদি কিছু গরীবদের উপকার করতে না পার। মধ্যে মধ্যে অন্য অন্য গ্রামে যাও, উপদেশ কর, বিদ্যা শিক্ষা দাও। কর্ম, উপাসনা, জ্ঞান -- এই ধর্ম কর, তবে চিত্তশুদ্ধি হইবে, নতুবা সব ভস্মে ঘৃত ঢালার ন্যায় নিষ্ফল হইবে। গুণনিধি আসিলে দুইজনে মিলিয়া রাজপুতানার গ্রামে গ্রামে গরীব দরিদ্রের ঘরে ঘরে ফের। যদি মাংস খাইলে লোকে বিরক্ত হয়, তদুত্তরেই ত্যাগ করিবে, পরোপকারার্থে ঘাস খাইয়া জীবন ধারণ করা ভাল। গেরুয়া কাপড় ভোগের জন্য নহে, মহাকাব্যের নিশান -- কায়মনোবাক্যে 'জগদ্ধতায়' দিতে হইবে। পড়েছ, মাতৃদেবো ভব, পিতৃদেবো ভব'; আমি বলি, 'দরিদ্রদেবো ভব, মূর্খদেবো ভব'। দরিদ্র, মূর্খ, অজ্ঞানী, কাতর -- ইহরাই তোমার দেবতা হউক, ইহাদের সেবাই পরমধর্ম জানিবে। কিমধিকমতি --

অভিন্নহৃদয়েষু,

তোমাদের পত্র পাইয়া সকল সমাচার জ্ঞাত হইলাম। বলরামবাবুর স্ত্রীর শোকসংবাদে দুঃখিত হইলাম। প্রভুর ইচ্ছা। এ কার্যক্ষেত্র -- ভোগক্ষেত্র নহে, সকলেই কাজ ফুরলে ঘরে ফিরবে -- কেউ আগে, কেউ পাছে। ফকির গেছে, প্রভুর ইচ্ছা।

মহোৎসব বড়ই ধুমধামে হয়েছে, বেশ কথা, তাঁর নাম যতই ছড়ায় ততই ভাল। তবে একটি কথা -- মহাপুরুষেরা বিশেষ শিক্ষা দিতে আসেন, নামের জন্য নহে, কিন্তু চেলারা তাঁদের উপদেশ বানের জলে ভাসাইয়া নামের জন্য মারামারি করে -- এই তো পৃথিবীর ইতিহাস। তাঁর নাম লোকে নেয় বা না নেয়, আমি কোনও খাতিরে আনি না, তবে তাঁর উপদেশ জীবন শিক্ষা যাতে জগতে ছড়ায়, তার জন্য প্রাণপণ চেষ্টা করিতে প্রস্তুত। আমার মহাভয় শশীর ঐ ঠাকুরঘর। ঠাকুরঘর মন্দ নয়, তবে ঐটি all in all (সর্বস্ব) করে সেই পুরানো ফ্যাশনের nonsense (বাজে ব্যাপার) করে ফেলবার একটা tendency (ঝোঁক) শশীর ভিতর আছে, আমার তাই ভয়। আমি জানি শশী ও নিরঞ্জন কেন ঐ পুরানো ছেঁড়া ceremonial (অনুষ্ঠানপদ্ধতি) নিয়ে ব্যস্ত। ওদের spirit (অন্তরাত্মা) চায় work (কাজ), কোনও outlet (বাহির হবার পথ) নেই, তাই ঘন্টা নেড়ে energy (শক্তি) খরচ করে।

শশী, তোকে একটা নূতন মতলব দিচ্ছি। যদি কার্যে পরিণত করিতে পারিস তবে জানব তোরা মরদ, আর কাজে আসবি। হরমোহন, ভবনাথ, কালীকৃষ্ণবাবু, তারক-দা প্রভৃতি সকলে মিলে একটা যুক্তি কর। গোটাকতক ক্যামেরা, কতকগুলো ম্যাপ, গ্লোব, কিছু chemicals (রাসায়নিক দ্রব্য) ইত্যাদি চাই। তারপর একটা মস্ত কুঁড়ে চাই। তারপর কতকগুলো গরিব-গুরবো জুটিয়ে আনা চাই। তারপর তাদের Astronomy, Geography (জ্যোতিষ, ভূগোল) প্রভৃতির ছবি দেখাও আর 'রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস' উপদেশ কর -- কোন্ দেশে কি হয়, কি হচ্ছে, এ দুনিয়াটা কি, তাদের যাতে চোখ খুলে, তাই চেষ্টা কর -- সন্ধ্যার পর, দিন-দুপুরে -- কত গরিব মূর্খ বরানগরে আছে, তাদের ঘরে ঘরে যাও -- চোখ খুলে দাও। পুঁথি-পাতড়ার কর্ম নয় -- মুখে মুখে শিক্ষা দাও। তারপর ধীরে ধীরে centre extend (কেন্দ্রের প্রসার) কর -- পারো কি? না, শুধু ঘন্টা নাড়া?

এ বড় মজার দেশ। গরমি পড়েছে -- আজ সকালবেলা আমাদের বৈশাখের গরমি, আর এখন এলাহাবাদের মাঘ মাসের শীত! চার ঘন্টার ভেতর এত পরিবর্তন! এখানের হোটেলের কথা কি বলিব! নিউ ইয়র্কে এক হোটেল আছেন, যেখানে ৫০০০ টাকা পর্যন্ত রোজ ঘরভাড়া, খাওয়া-দাওয়া ছাড়া। ভোগবিলাসের দেশ ইওরোপেও এমন নাই -- এরা হল পৃথিবীর মধ্যে ধনী দেশ -- টাকা খোলামকুচির মতো খরচ হয়ে যায়। আমি কদাচ হোটলে থাকি, আমি প্রায়ই এদের বড় বড় লোকের অতিথি -- আমি একজন নামজাদা মানুষ এখন। মূলুকসুদ্ধ লোকে আমায় জানে, সুতরাং যেখানে যাই, আগ বাড়িয়ে আমায় ঘরে তুলে নেয়। মিঃ হেল, যাঁর বাড়িতে চিকাগোয় আমার centre (কেন্দ্র), তাঁর স্ত্রীকে আমি ‘মা’ বলি, আর তাঁর মেয়েরা আমাকে ‘দাদা’ বলে; এমন মহা পবিত্র দয়ালু পরিবার আমি তো আর দেখি না। আরে ভাই, তা নইলে কি এদের উপর ভগবানের এত কৃপা? কি দয়া এদের! যদি খবর পেলে যে, একজন গরিব ফলানা জায়গায় কষ্টে রয়েছে, মেয়েমন্দে চলল -- তাকে খাবাড়, কাপড় দিতে, কাজ জুটিয়ে দিতে! আর আমরা কি করি!

ভাল কথা, এখানে ইলিশ মাছ অপরিাপ্ত আজকাল। ভরপেট খাও, সব হজম। ফল অনেক -- কলা, নেবু, পেয়ারা, আপেল, বাদাম, কিসমিস, আঙ্গুর যথেষ্ট, আরও অনেক ফল ক্যালিফোর্নিয়া হতে আসে। আনারস ঢের -- তবে আম, নিচু ইত্যাদি নাই।

এক রকম শাক আছে, Spinach -- যা রাঁধলে ঠিক আমাদের নটে শাকের মতো খেতে লাগে, আর যেগুলোকে এরা Asparagus (এস্পারেগাস) বলে, তা ঠিক যেন কচি ডেঙ্গোর ডাঁটা, তবে ‘গোপালের মার চচ্চড়ি’ নেই বাবা। কলায়ের দাল কি কোনও দাল নেই, এরা জানেও না। ভাত আছে, পাউরুটি আছেন, হর-রঙের নানা রকমের মাছ-মাংস আছেন। এদের খানা ফরাসীদের মতো। দুধ আছেন, দই কদাচ, ঘোল অপরিাপ্ত। মাঠা (cream) সর্বদাই ব্যবহার। চায়ে, কাফিতে, সকল তাতেই ঐ মাঠা (cream) -- সর নয়, দুধের মাঠা। আর মাখন তো আছেন, আর বরফ-জল -- শীত কি গ্রীষ্ম, দিন কি রাত্রি, ঘোর সর্দি কি জ্বর -- এস্তের^১ বরফ-জল। এরা scientific (বৈজ্ঞানিক) মানুষ, সর্দিতে বরফ-জল খেলে বাড়ে শুনলে হাসে। খুব খাও, খুব ভাল। আর কুলপি এস্তের নানা আকারের।

(উচ্চভাবোদ্দীপক) বটে, তবে যত শুনেছ, তা নয়। একদিন শীতকালে Aurora Borealis^২ হয়েছিল। আর কিছুই লেখবার মতো খুঁজে পাচ্ছি না। এ-সব চিঠি বাজার করো না।

মা-ঠাকুরানীর খরচপত্র কেমন চলছে, তোমরা তা তো কিছুই লেখ নাই। খালি childish prattle (আবোলতাবোল)!! ও-সকল জানবার আমার এ জন্মে বড় একটা সময় নাই, next time-এ (আগামী বারে) দেখা যাবে।

যোগেন বোধ হয় এতদিনে বেশ সেরে গেছে। সারদার ঘুরঘুরে রোগ এখনও শান্তি হয় নাই। একটা power of organisation (সজ্ঞা চালাবার শক্তি) চাই -- বুঝেছ? তোমাদের ভিতর কারুর মাথায় ততটুকু ঘি আছে কি? যদি থাকে তো বুদ্ধি খেলাও দিকি -- তারকদাদা, শরৎ, হরি -- এরা পারবে। শশীর originality (মৌলিকতা) ভারি কম, তবে খুব good workman, persevering (ভাল কাজের লোক -- অধ্যবসায়শীল), সেটা বড়ই দরকার, শশী খুব executive (কাজের লোক), বাদবাকি - - এরা যা বলে, তাই শুনে চলো। কতকগুলো চেলা চাই -- fiery young men (অগ্নিমন্ত্রে দীক্ষিত যুবক), বুঝতে পারলে? Intelligent and brave (বুদ্ধিমান ও সাহসী), যমের মুখে যেতে পারে, সাঁতার দিয়ে সাগর পারে যেতে প্রস্তুত, বুঝলে? Hundreds (শত শত) ঐ রকম চাই, মেয়ে মন্দ both (দুই) -- প্রাণপণে তারই চেষ্টা কর -- চেলা বনাও আর আমাদের purity drilling (পবিত্রতার সাধন) যন্ত্রে ফেলে দাও।

তোমাদের আক্কেল বুদ্ধি এক পয়সাও নাই। Indian Mirror-কে ‘পরমহংস মশায় নরেনকে হেন বলতেন, তেন বলতেন’ কেন বলতে গেলো? আর আজগুবি ফাজগুবি যত -- পরমহংস মশায়ের বুঝি আর কিছুই ছিল না? খালি thought-reading (পরের মনের কথা বলতে পারা) আর nonsense (বাজে) আজগুবি! দু-পয়সার brain (মস্তিষ্ক)-গুলো! ঘৃণা হয়ে যায়! তোদের নিজের বুদ্ধি বড় একটা খেলাতে হবে না -- সাদা বাংলা কয়ে যা দিকি।

বাবুরামের লম্বা পত্র পড়লাম। বুড়ো বেঁচে আছে -- বেশ কথা! তোমাদের আড্ডাটা নাকি বড় malarious (ম্যালেরিয়াগ্রস্ত) -- রাখাল আর হরি লিখছেন। রাজাকে আর হরিকে আমার বহুত বহুত দন্দবৎ ইষ্টিকবৎ ছত্রীবৎ দিবে। বাবুরাম অনেক delirium (প্রলাপ) বকেছে। সান্ডেল আনাগোনা করছে, বেশ বেশ। গুণ্ডকে তোমরা চিঠিপত্র লেখ -- আমার ভালবাসা জানিও ও যত্ন করো। সব ঠিক আসবে ধীরে ধীরে। আমার বহুত চিঠি লেখবার সময় বড় একটা হয় না। Lecture ফেক্চার (বক্তৃতা) তো কিছু লিখে দিই না, একটা লিখে দিয়েছিলুম, যা ছাপিয়েছে। বাকি সব দাঁড়াঝাঁপ, যা মুখে আসে গুরুদেব জুটিয়ে দেন। কাগজপত্রের সঙ্গে কোন সম্বন্ধই নাই। একবার ডেট্রয়েটে তিন ঘন্টা ঝাড়া বুলি ঝেড়েছিলুম। আমি নিজে অবাক হয়ে যাই সময়ে সময়ে; ‘মধো, তোর পেটে এতও ছিল!!’ এরা সব বলে, পুঁথি লেখ; এইবার লিখতে ফিকতে হবে দেখছি। ঐ তো মুশকিল, কাগজ কলম নিয়ে কে হাঙ্গাম করে বাবা!

কোনও চিঠি বাজার গুজব করিসনি, খবরদার! চ্যাণ্ডামো নাকি? যা করতে বলছি পার তো কর,

^২ Aurora Borealis -- (সুমেরু-জ্যোতি) পৃথিবীর উত্তরভাগে রাত্রিকালে (তথায় ছয় মাস ক্রমাগত রাত্রি) কখনও কখনও নভোমন্ডলে এক প্রকার কম্পমান বৈদ্যুতিক আলো দেখা যায়। উহা নানা আকারের এবং নানা বর্ণের। ইহাকেই অরোরার বোরিয়ালিস বলে।

না পার তো মিছে ফেচাং করো না। তোমাদের বাড়িতে কটা ঘর আছে, কেমন করে চলছে, রাঁধুনী-ফাঁধুনী আছে কিনা -- সব লিখবে। মা-ঠাকুরানীকে আমার বহুত বহুত সাষ্টাঙ্গ দিবে। তারকদাদা আর শরতের বুদ্ধি নিয়ে যে কাজটা করতে বলেছি -- করবার চেষ্টা করবে -- দেখব কেমন বাহাদুর। এইটুকু যদি না করতে পারো তাহলে তোমাদের ওপর হতে আমার সব বিশ্বাস আর ভরসা চলে যাবে। মিছা-মিছি কর্তাভজার দল বাঁধতে আমার ইচ্ছা নাই -- I will wash my hands off you for ever (তোমাদের সঙ্গে কোন সম্বন্ধই আমি আর রাখব না)।

সমাজকে জগৎকে electrify (বৈদ্যুতিকশক্তিসম্পন্ন) করতে হবে। বসে বসে গল্পবাজির আর ঘন্টা নাড়ার কাজ? ঘন্টা নাড়া গৃহস্থের কর্ম, মহীন্দ্র মাস্টার, রামবাবু করণ গে। তোমাদের কাজ distribution and propagation of thought currents (ভাবপ্রবাহ বিস্তার)। তাই যদি পারো তবে ঠিক, নইলে বেকার। রোজকার করে খাওগে। মিছে eating the begging bread of idleness is of no use (অন্যায়সলন্ধ ভিক্ষান্ন খাওয়া নিরর্থক) বুঝলে বাপু? কিমধিকমিতি

Character formed (চরিত্র গঠিত) হয়ে যাক, তারপর আমি আসছি, বুঝলে? দু হাজার, দশ হাজার, বিশ হাজার সন্ন্যাসী চাই, মেয়ে-মদ্দ বুঝলে? গৈোর-মা, যোগেন-মা, গোলাপ-মা কি করছেন? চেলা চাই at any risk (যে-কোন রকমে হোক)। তাঁদের গিয়ে বলবে আর তোমরা প্রাণপণে চেষ্টা কর। গৃহস্থ চলার কাজ নয়, ত্যাগী -- বুঝলে? এক এক জনে ১০০ মাথা মুড়িয়ে ফেল, young educated men -- not fools (শিক্ষিত যুবক -- আহাম্মক নয়), তবে বলি বাহাদুর। হুলস্থূল বাঁধাতে হবে, হুকো ফুকো ফেলে কোমড় বেঁধে খাড়া হয়ে যাও। তারকদাদা, মাদ্রাজ কলিকাতার মাঝে বিদ্যুতের মতো চক্র মারো দিকি, বার কতক। জায়গায় জায়গায় centre (কেন্দ্র) কর, খালি চেলা কর, মায় মেয়ে-মদ্দ, যে আসে দে মাথা মুড়িয়ে, তারপর আমি আসছি। মহা spiritual tidal wave (আধ্যাত্মিক বন্যা) আসছে -- নীচ মহৎ হয়ে যাবে, মূর্খ মহাপন্ডিতের গুরু হয়ে যাবে তাঁর কৃপায় -- 'উত্তীর্ণত জাগ্রত প্রাপ্য বরান্ নিবোধত।'

Life is ever expanding, contraction is death (জীবন হচ্ছে সম্প্রসারণ, সংকোচনই মৃত্যু)। যে আত্মস্তরি আপনার আয়েস খুঁজছে, কুঁড়েমি করছে, তার নরকেও জায়গা নাই। যে আপনি নরক পর্যন্ত গিয়ে জীবের জন্য কাতর হয়, চেষ্টা করে, সেই রামকৃষ্ণের পুত্র -- ইতরে কৃপণাঃ (অপরে কৃপার পাত্র)। যে এই মহা সন্ধিপূজার সময় কোমর বেঁধে খাড়া হয়ে গ্রামে গ্রামে ঘরে ঘরে তাঁর সন্দেশ বিতরণ করবে, সেই আমার ভাই, সেই তাঁর ছেলে, বাকি যে তা না পারো -- তফাত হয়ে যাও এই বেলা ভালয় ভালয়।

এই চিঠি তোমরা পড়বে -- যোগেন-মা, গোলাপ-মা সকলকে শুনাবে। এই test (পরীক্ষা), যে রামকৃষ্ণের ছেলে, সে আপনার ভাল চায় না, 'প্রাণাত্যয়েহপি পরকল্যাণচিকীর্ষবঃ' (প্রাণ দিয়েও পরের কল্যাণাকাঙ্ক্ষী) তারা। যারা আপনার আয়েস চায়, কুঁড়েমি চায়, যারা আপনার জিদের সামনে সকলের মাথা বলি দিতে রাজি, তারা আমাদের কেউ নয়, তারা তফাত হয়ে যাক, এই বেলা ভালয় ভালয়। তাঁর চরিত্র, তাঁর শিক্ষা, ধর্ম চারিদিকে ছড়াও -- এই সাধন, এই ভজন; এই সাধন, এই সিদ্ধি। উঠ, উঠ, মহাতরঙ্গ আসছে, Onward, onward (এগিয়ে যাও, এগিয়ে যাও)। মেয়েমদ্দে আচন্ডাল সব পবিত্র তাঁর কাছে -- Onward, onward, নামের সময় নাই, যশের সময় নাই, ভক্তির সময় নাই, দেখা যাবে

পরে। এখন এ জন্মে অনন্ত বিস্তার, তাঁর মহান চরিত্রের, তাঁর মহান জীবনের, তাঁর অনন্ত আত্মার। এই কার্য -- আর কিছুই নাই। যেখানে তাঁর নাম যাবে, কীটপতঙ্গ পর্যন্ত দেবতা হয়ে যাবে, হয়ে যাচ্ছে, দেখেও দেখছ না? এ কি ছেলেখেলা, এ কি জ্যাঠামি, এ কি চ্যাংরামি -- 'উত্তীর্ণত জাগ্রত' -- হরে হরে। তিনি পিছে আছেন। আমি আর লিখতে পারছি না -- Onward, এই কথাটা খালি বলছি, যে যে এই চিঠি পড়বে, তাদের ভিতর আমার spirit (শক্তি) আসবে, বিশ্বাস কর। Onward, হরে হরে। চিঠি বাজার করো না। আমার হাত ধরে কে লেখাচ্ছে। Onward, হরে হরে। সব ভেসে যাবে -- হুঁশিয়ার -- তিনি আসছেন। যে যে তাঁর সেবার অন্য -- তাঁর সেবা নয় -- তাঁর ছেলেদের -- গরিব-গুরবো, পাপী-তাপী, কীট-পতঙ্গ পর্যন্ত, তাদের সেবার জন্য যে যে তৈরি হবে, তাদের ভেতর তিনি আসবেন -- তাদের মুখে সরস্বতী বসবেন, তাদের বক্ষে মহামায়া মহাশক্তি বসবেন। যেগুলো নাস্তিক, অবিশ্বাসী, নরাধম, বিলাসী -- তারা কি করতে আমাদের ঘরে এসেছে? তারা চলে যাক।

অভিনন্দনদেয় --

তোমার দুইখানি পত্র আসিয়াছে ও রামদয়ালবাবুর দুইখানি পত্র পাইয়াছি। Bill of Lading (বিল) পৌঁছিয়াছে, পরন্তু মাল আসিবার অনেক দেরি। শীঘ্র পৌঁছিবার বন্দোবস্ত না করিয়া পাঠাইলে মাল আসিতে ছয় মাস লাগিয়া যায়। হরমোহন চার মাস পূর্বে লিখেন যে, রুদ্রাঙ্ক ও কুশাসন পাঠান হইয়াছে; তাহার খোঁজ-খবর এখনও পাওয়া যায় নাই। অর্থাৎ মাল ইংলন্ডে পৌঁছিলে এখানকার Agent of the Company (কোম্পানির এজেন্ট) আমাকে notice (খবর) দেয়, তারপর মাসখানেক পরে মাল পৌঁছায়। তোমাদের Bill of Lading (বিল) প্রায় তিন সপ্তাহ এসেছে, এখনও notice-এর (খবরের) দেখা নাই! কেবল খেতড়ির রাজার মাল শীঘ্র পৌঁছায়, বোধ হয় তিনি অনেক খরচ করে পাঠান। যাহা হউক, এ দুনিয়ার অপরদিকে, পাতালপুরে যে মাল নিঘাত পৌঁছে যায়, এই পরম ভাগ্য। মাল পৌঁছলেই তোমাদের খবর দেব। এখন তিন মাস অন্ততঃ চুপ করে থাক।

... তোর টিবেটের (তিব্বতের) কি খবর? 'মিররে' ছাপা হলে আমাকে একখানা পাঠিয়ে দিস। ... ছটোপাটিতে কি কাজ হয়? ... লোহার দিল চাই, তবে লক্ষা ডিপ্লুবি। বজ্রবাঁটুলের মতো হতে হবে, পাহাড় পর্বত ভেদ হয়ে যাতে যায়। আসছে শীতে আমি আসছি। দুনিয়ায় আগুন লাগিয়ে দেব -- যে সঙ্গে আসে আসুক, তার ভাগ্যি ভাল; যে না আসবে, সে ইহকাল পরকাল পড়ে থাকবে, থাকুক। তুই কোমর বেঁধে তৈয়ার থাক। তুই শশী আর গঙ্গাধর -- এই তিনজন দেখছি faithful, ... তোদের মুখে হাতে বাগদেবী বসবেন -- ছাতীতে অনন্তবীর্য ভগবান বসবেন -- তোরা এমন কাজ করবি যে দুনিয়া তাক হয়ে দেখবে। তোর নামটা একটু ছোটখাট কর দেখি বাবা, কি নাম রে বাপ! একখানা বই হয়ে যায় এক নামের গুঁতোয়। ঐ যে বলে হরিনামের ভয়ে যম পালায়, তা 'হরি' -- এই নামে নয়। ঐ যে গস্তীর গস্তীর নাম 'অঘভগনরকবিনাশন, ত্রিপুরমদভঞ্জন, অশেষ-নিঃশেষকল্যাণকর' প্রভৃতি নামের গুঁতোয় যমের চৌদ্দপুরুশ পালায়। -- নামটা একটু সরল করলে ভাল হয় না কি? এখন বোধ হয় আর হবে না, ঢাক বেজে গেছে, কিন্তু কি জাঁহাদারি যমতাড়ানে নামি করেছ! কিমধিকমিতি --

বিবেকানন্দ

পুঃ -- বাঙলা দেশটা আর ভারতবর্ষটা চেলে ফেল দেখি। জায়গায় জায়গায় Centre (কেন্দ্র) কর।

ভাগবত এসে পৌঁছেছে -- Edition (সংস্করণ) বড়ই সুন্দর -- কিন্তু এ-দেশের লোকের সংস্কৃত পড়বার ইচ্ছা আদৌ নাই। এজন্য বিক্রি হবার আশা বড়ই কম। ইংলন্ডে হতে পারে, কারণ সেখানে অনেক লোকে সংস্কৃত চর্চা করে। প্রণেতাকে আমার বিশেষ ধন্যবাদ দিবে। আশা করি তাঁহার মহৎ উদ্যম সুসম্পন্ন হবে। আমার

যথাসাধ্য যত্ন করব, তাঁর বই যাতে এখানে বিক্রি হয়। তাঁর Prospectus (গ্রন্থাভাস) সমস্ত জায়গায় জায়গায় পাঠিয়ে দিয়েছি। দয়ালবাবুকে বলবে যে, মুগের দাল, অড়র দাল প্রভৃতিতে ইংলন্ড ও আমেরিকায় একটা খুব ব্যবসা চলিতে পারে। দাল-soup will have a go if properly introduced. (ঠিকমত শুরু করিতে পারলে দালের যুষের বেশ কদর হবে)। যদি ছোট ছোট প্যাকেট করে তার গায়ে রাঁধবার direction (প্রণালী) দিয়ে বাড়িতে বাড়িতে পাঠান যায় তো খুব চলতে পারে। ঐ প্রকার বড়িও খুব চলবে। উদ্যম চাই -- ঘরে বসে ঘোড়ার ডিম হয়। যদি কেউ একটা Company form (কোম্পানি গঠন) করে, ভারতের মালপত্র এদেশে ও ইংলন্ডে আনে তো খুব একটা ব্যবসা হয়। নিরুদ্যম হতভাগার দল -- দশবৎসরের মেয়ের গর্ভাধান করতে কেবল জানে, আর জানে কি?

প্রিয় সান্যাল,

তোমার এক পত্র পাইলাম, তাহাতে টাকা পৌঁছিবাব সংবাদ লিখিয়াছ; কিন্তু বস্টন হইতে কয়েকটি বন্ধু যে টাকা পাঠান, তাহার সংবাদ এখনও পাই নাই -- বোধ হয় দুই-এক সপ্তাহের মধ্যে পাইব। গোপালদাদা কাশী হইতে এক পত্র লেখে। জমির বিষয় যাহা লিখিয়াছ, তাহা কিছুই নহে। পরঞ্চ রাখাল এক পত্রে জমির বিষয় লিখিতেছেন, তাহাও কিছু বিশেষ নহে। দুটো ঘরওয়ালা যে জমির বিষয় লিখিয়াছ, তাহাতে আমার আপত্তি আছে -- অর্থাৎ ঘরের জন্য জমিটার কমি না হয়। জমিটা যাহাতে বড় হয়, তাহার চেষ্টা করিবে। তোমাদের ঐ যে গোঁড়ামি, তাহাতে তোমাদের নিয়ে যে কিছু করা -- তা আমার দ্বারা হবে না। পরমহংসদেব আমার গুরু ছিলেন; আমি তাঁকে যাই ভাবি, দুনিয়া তা ভাববে কেন? গুরুপূজার ভাব বাংলা দেশ ছাড়া অন্যত্র আর নাই -- তথাপি অন্য লোকে সে ভাব লইবার জন্য প্রস্তুত নহে। তোমাদের ভেতর একটা মস্ত মূর্খতা আছে যে, তোমরা একটা কি! বলি কলকাতার দশ ক্রোশ তফাতে -- না তোমাদের কেউ জানে, না তোমাদের গুরুকে কেউ জানে। আর তোমরা সেই 'পরমহংসদেব অবতার' নিয়ে ছেঁড়াছিঁড়ি। ফল -- আমি শশী প্রভৃতিকে কিঞ্চিৎ বোঝাবার চেষ্টা করে দেখলাম যে, সে চেষ্টা নিষ্ফল। অতএব তাদের দিল্লীর লাডু দিয়ে সরে পড়াই ভাল।

মা-ঠাকুরানীর জন্য জমি কিনে দিলে আমি আপনাকে ঋণমুক্ত মনে করব। তারপর আমি আর কিছু বুঝিসুঝি না। তোমরা তো আমার নামটি টেনে নেবার বেলা খুব তৈয়ার -- যে আমি তোমাদেরই একজন। কিন্তু আমি একটা কাজ করতে বললে অমনি পেছিয়ে পড়, 'মতলবকী গরজী জগ্ সারো' -- এ জগৎ মতলবের গরজী।

আমি বাঙলা দেশ জানি ইন্ডিয়া জানি -- লম্বা কথা কইবার একজন, কাজের বেলায় -- ০ (শূন্য)।

আমি এখানে জমিদারিও কিনি নাই, বা ব্যাঙ্কে লাখ টাকাও জমা নাই। এই ঘোর শীতে পর্বত-পাহাড়ে বরফ ঠেলে -- এই ঘোর শীতে রান্তির দুটো-একটা পর্যন্ত রাস্তা ঠেলে লোকচার করে দু-চার হাজার টাকা করেছি -- মা ঠাকুরানীর জন্য জায়গা কিনলেই আমি নিশ্চিত। গুঁতোগুঁতির আড্ডা করে দেবার শক্তি আমার নাই। অবতারের বাচ্চারা কোথায় -- ছোট ছোট অবতারেরা -- ওহে অবতারের পিলেগণ?

অলমিতি। তোমাদের হতে আমার কোনও আশা নাই। তোমরাও আমার কোনও আশা করো না। যে যার আপনার পথে চলে যাও। শুভমস্তু। এ দুনিয়া এই রকম মতলব-ভরা!

চিঠিপত্র উপরোক্ত ঠিকানায় লিখবে এখন হতে। এই ঠিকানা এখন হতে -- আমার নিজের আড্ডা। যদি পার একখানা 'যোগবাশিষ্ঠ রামায়ণ' -- English translation (ইংরেজী অনুবাদ) পাঠাবে। মহিনকে দাম দিতে বলবে। ইতি

পূর্বে যে বইয়ের কথা লিখেছি অর্থাৎ সংস্কৃত নারদ-ও শাভিল্য-সূত্র, তাহা ভুলো না। ইতি

কল্যাণবরেষু,

...তুমি লিখিয়াছ যে তোমার অসুখ আরোগ্য হইয়াছে, কিন্তু তোমাকে এখন হইতে অতি সাবধান হইতে হইবে। পিন্ডি পড়া বা অস্বাস্থ্যকর আহার বা পুতিগন্ধময় স্থানে বাস করিলে পুনশ্চ রোগে ভুগিবার সম্ভাবনা এবং ম্যালেরিয়ার হাত হইতে বাঁচা দুষ্কর। প্রথমতঃ একটা ছোটখাট বাগান বা বাটী ভাড়া লওয়া উচিত, ৩০।৪০ টাকার মধ্যে হইতে পারিবে। দ্বিতীয়তঃ খাবার এবং রান্নার জল যেন ফিল্টার করা হয়। বাঁশের ফিল্টার বড় রকম হইলেই যথেষ্ট। জলেতেই যত রোগ -- পরিষ্কার অপরিষ্কার নহে, রোগবীজপূর্ণ, তাই রোগের কারণ। জল উত্তপ্ত করে ফিল্টার করা হউক। সকলকে স্বাস্থ্যের দিকে প্রথম নজর দিতে হইবে। একজন রাঁধুণী, একটা চাকর, পরিষ্কার বিছানা, সময়ে খাওয়া -- এ সকল অত্যাৱশ্যক। যে প্রকার বলছি সমস্তই যেন করা হয়, ইহাতে অন্যথা না হয়।... টাকাকড়ি খরচের সমস্ত ভার রাখাল যেন লয়, অন্য কেহ তাহাতে উচ্চবাচ্য না করে। নিরঞ্জন বাড়ি, ঘরদ্বার, বিছানা, ফিল্টার যাতে দস্তুরমত ঠিক সাফ থাকে, তাহার ভার লইবে।... সমস্ত কার্যের সফলতা তোমাদের পরস্পরের ভালবাসার উপর নির্ভর করিতেছে। দ্বেষ, ঈর্ষা, অহমিকাবুদ্ধি যতদিন থাকিবে, ততদিন কোনও কল্যাণ নাই।... কালীর Pamphlet (পুস্তিকা) খুব উত্তম হয়েছে, তাতে কোন অতিপ্রসঙ্গ নাই।

ঐ যে কানে কানে গুজোগুজি করা -- তাহা মহাপাপ বলে জানবে; ঐটা ভায়া, একেবারে ত্যাগ দিও [করিও]। মনে অনেক জিনিস আসে, তা ফুটে বলতে গেলেই ক্রমে তিল থেকে তাল হয়ে দাঁড়ায়। গিলে ফেললেই ফুরিয়ে যায়।

মহোৎসব খুব ধুমধামের সহিত হয়ে গেছে, ভাল কথা। আসছে বারে এক লাখ লোক যাতে হয়, তারই চেষ্টা করতে হবে বইকি। মাস্টার মহাশয় প্রভৃতি ও তোমরা এককাটা হয়ে একটা কাগজ যাতে বার করতে পার, তার চেষ্টা দেখ দিকি।... অনন্ত ধৈর্য, অনন্ত উদ্যোগ যাহার সহায়, সে-ই কার্যে সিদ্ধি হবে। পড়াশুনাটা বিশেষ করা চাই, বুঝলে শশী? মেলা মুখ্য-ফুখ্য জড়ো করিসনি বাপু। দুটো চারটে মানুষের মতো -- এককাটা কর দেখি। একটা মিউও যে শুনতে পাইনি। তোমরা মহোৎসবে তো লুচিসন্দেশ বাঁটলে, আর কতকগুলো নিষ্কর্মার দল গান করলে,... তোমরা কী spiritual food (আধ্যাত্মিক খোরাক দিলে, তা তো শুনলাম না? তোদের যে পুরান ভাব nil admirari -- কেউ কিছুই জানে না ভাব -- যতদিন না দূর হবে, ততদিন তোরা কিছুই করতে পারবিনি, ততদিন তোদের সাহস হবেনা। Bullies are always cowards. -- (যারা লোককে তর্জন করে বেড়ায়, তারা চিরকাল কাপুরুষ)।

সকলকে sympathy-র (সহানুভূতির) সহিত গ্রহণ করিবে, রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস মানুষ বা নাই মানুষ। বৃথা তর্ক করতে এলে ভদ্রতার সহিত নিজে নিরস্ত হবে। মাস্টার মহাশয় কতদিন মুখে বোজলা দিয়ে থাকবেন? বোজলাতেই যে জন্ম গেল দেখছি! সকল মতের লোকের সহিত সহানুভূতি প্রকাশ করিবে। এই সকল মহৎ গুণ যখন তোমাদের মধ্যে আসবে, তখন তোমরা মহাতেজে কাজ করতে পারবে, অন্যথা

‘জয় গুরু-ফুর’ কিছুই চলবে না। যাহা হউক, এবারকার মহোৎসব অতি উত্তমই হইয়াছে, তাহাতে আর সন্দেহ নাই এবং তার জন্য তোমরা বিশেষ প্রশংসার উপযুক্ত। কিন্তু you must push forward. Do you see? (তোমাদের এগিয়ে পড়তে হবে, বুঝলে কিনা?) শরৎ কি করছে? ‘আমি কি জানি! আমি কি!’ -- ওরকম বুদ্ধিতে তিন কালেও কিছু জানতে পারবেনা। ঠাকুরদাদার কথা -- শাঁকচুল্লীর নাকি সুর ভাল বটে, কিন্তু কিছু উঁচুদরের চাই, that will appeal to the intellect of the learned (যা লেখাপড়াজানা লোকেরা পড়ে আনন্দ পাবে)। খালি খোলবাজান হাঙ্গামার কী কাজ? Not only this মহোৎসব will be his memorial, but the central union of an intense propaganda of his doctrines.¹ তোকে কি বলব? তোরা এখনও বালক। সব ধীরে ধীরে হবে। তবে সময়ে সময়ে I fret and stamp like a leashed hound.² Onward and forward (এগিয়ে পড়, এগিয়ে যাও) -- আমার পুরান বুলি। এখন এই পর্যন্ত। আমি আছি ভাল। দেশে তাড়াতাড়ি যেয়ে ফল নাই। তোরা উঠে পড়ে লেগে যা দিকি -- সাবাস বাহাদুর! ইতি

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমাদের এক পত্রে অনেক সমাচার জ্ঞাত হইলাম। তবে সকলের বিশেষ সমাচার লিখ নাই। নিরঞ্জনের এক পত্র মধ্যে পাই -- সে সিলোন যাইতেছে সংবাদ পাই। সারদা যাহা করিতেছে, তাহাই আমার অভিমত; তবে 'রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস অবতার' ইত্যাদি প্রচার করিবার আবশ্যিক নাই। তিনি পরোপকার করিতে আসিয়াছিলেন, নিজের নাম ঘোষণা করিতে নহে। চেলারা গুরুর নাম করে; গুরু যা শেখাতে এসেছিলেন, তাতে জলাঞ্জলি দেয়, আর দলাদলি ইত্যাদি তার ফল।

আলাসিঙ্গা লিখে চারুবাবুর বিষয়। আমি তাঁহাকে স্মরণ করিতেছি না। চারুবাবুর বিষয় সবিশেষ লিখিবে ও তাঁহাকে আমার ধন্যবাদ দিবে। সকলের বিষয় বিশেষ করিয়া লিখিবে -- বৃথা বার্তা করিবার সময় কুলায় না। আমার জীবনে বোধ হয় কারুর সহিত ঠাট্টা-বটকেরা করার অপেক্ষা অনেক কার্য আছে।

কর্মকান্ড ত্যাগ করিবার চেষ্টা করিবে; ঘন্টা নাড়া সন্ন্যাসীর নহে এবং যাবৎ জ্ঞান না হয়, তাবৎ কর্ম। আমিই ঐ অনর্থের মূল। এক্ষণে দেখিতেছি যে, ঐ ঘন্টা-পত্র লইয়া রামকৃষ্ণ-অবতারের দল বাঁধিবে এবং তাঁহার শিক্ষায় ধূলি নিক্ষেপ হইবে। তোমরা ঘন্টা ত্যাগ করিতে পার ভালই, নচেৎ আমি তোমাদের সঙ্গে যোগ দিতে পারিব না। দলাদলি, দলবাঁধা, কুপমন্ডুকের মধ্যে আমি নাই, আর যেথায় আমি থাকি। ইতি

'-' থিওসফিস্ট, হইয়াছেন, ভালই, রুচীনাং বৈচিত্র্য! মঙ্গলমস্তু তেষাং, কিমহং ব্রবীম (রুচির বৈচিত্র্য! তাদের মঙ্গল হউক, আমি আর কি বলিব)? Universal brotherhood (সর্বজনীন ভ্রাতৃত্ব), বেশ কথা -- শিবাঃ বঃ সন্তু পন্থানঃ। তার চেয়ে সুখের বিষয় কি আছে?... রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংসের উদারভাব প্রচার করে আবার দলবাঁধা কেমন করে হয়? দলের বীজ হচ্ছে ঐ ঘন্টা-পত্র। আমি হাজারবার ঠুকেছি, এবারও ঠুকলাম -- ফলে কিছু হয় না। আমার নামে যদি তোমাদের দলবাঁধার সহায়তা হয়, তাহলেই আমি লিডার (নেতা) বটি, নইলে আমি কেউ নই! এই সত্য বটে! আমি ওতে নাই। আমি যে রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংসের শিষ্য এবং তোমরাও যে তাই, এইটি বই লিখে ছাপাতে যত্ন তো যথেষ্ট হয়েছে; কিন্তু আমি যে আজ ৬ বৎসর ঘন্টা-পত্র ত্যাগ করারজন্য বলছি, তাতে কারুর কান পাতা নাই!... আমি একমাত্র কর্ম বুঝি -- পরোপকার, বাকি সমস্ত কুকর্ম। তাই শ্রীবুদ্ধদেবের পদানত হই। বুঝতে পারছ?... ফল কথা -- আমি বৈদান্তিক; সচ্চিদানন্দ আমার নিজের আত্মার মহান রূপ ছাড়া অন্য ঈশ্বর বড় একটা দেখতে পাচ্ছি না অবতার মানে -- যাঁহারা সেই ব্রহ্মত্ব প্রাপ্ত হয়েছেন, অর্থাৎ জীবন্মুক্ত। অবতারবিশেষত্ব আমি দেখিতে পাইতেছি না। ব্রহ্মাদিস্তম্ব পর্যন্ত সমস্ত প্রাণী কালে জীবন্মুক্তি প্রাপ্ত হবে এবং আমাদের উচিত সকলের সেই অবস্থা পেতে সহায় হওয়া। এই সহায়তার নাম ধর্ম, বাকি অধর্ম। এই সহায়তার নাম কর্ম, বাকি কুকর্ম; আর আমি কিছু দেখছি না। অন্যবিধ তান্ত্রিক বা বৈদিক কর্মে ফল থাকিতে পারে, কিন্তু তদবলম্বন কেবল বৃথা জীবনক্ষয় -- কারণ কর্মের ফল যে পবিত্রতা, তাহা কেবল পরোপকার মাত্রে ঘটে। যজ্ঞাদি কর্মে ভোগাদি সম্ভব, আত্মার পবিত্রতা অসম্ভব। অতএব সন্ন্যাস অবলম্বন করে, জীবকে উচ্চগতি শিক্ষা না দিয়ে

পুনঃপুনঃ অনর্থকর কর্মকাণ্ড বৃদ্ধি করা আমার মতে দূষণীয়। মূর্খ গৃহস্থ কর্মপর হউক, তাতে ক্ষতি নাই; কিন্তু ত্যাগী!!... সমস্তই প্রত্যেকের আত্মাতে বর্তমান। যে বলে আমি মুক্ত, সেই মুক্ত হবে। যে বলে আমি বদ্ধ, সে বদ্ধ হবে। দীন হীন ভাব আমার মতে পাপ এবং অ'তা। 'নায়মাত্মা বলহীনেন লভ্যঃ'।^১ 'অস্তি ব্রহ্ম বদসি চেদস্তি ভবিষ্যসি, নাস্তি ব্রহ্ম বদসি চেৎ নাস্ত্যেব ভবিষ্যসি'।^২ যে সদা আপনাকে দুর্বল ভাবে, সে কোনও কালে বলবান হইবে না; যে আপনাকে সিংহ জানে, সে 'নির্গচ্ছতি জগজ্জালাৎ পিঞ্জরাদিব কেশরী'।^৩ দ্বিতীয়তঃ রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস কোন নূতন তত্ত্ব প্রচার করিতে আইসেন নাই -- প্রকাশ করিতে আসিয়াছিলেন বটে, অর্থাৎ He was the embodiment of all past religious thoughts of India. His life alone made me understand what the Shastras really meant, and the whole plan and scope of the old Shastras.^৪

মিশনারী-ফিশনারী এদেশে বড় চলল না। এরা ঈশ্বরেচ্ছায় আমার খুব ভালবাসে, কারুর কথায় ভোলবার নয়। এরা আমার ideas (ভাব) যেমন বোঝে, আমার দেশের লোক তেমন পারে না, এবং এরা বড় স্বার্থপর নয়। অর্থাৎ ঐ jealousy (ঈর্ষা) আর হামবড়া ভাবগুলো এরা কাজের বেলা দূর করে দেয়, তখন সকলে মিলে একজন কাজের লোকের কথামতো চলে। তাতেই এরা এত বড়। তবে এরা হচ্ছে টাকা-দেবতার জাত, সকল কথায় পয়সা; আমাদের দেশের লোক টাকার বিষয়ে বড় উদার, এরা তত নয়। কৃপণ ঘরে ঘরে। ওটি ধর্মের মধ্যে। তবে দুষ্কর্ম করলে পর পাদ্রীদের হাতে পড়ে। তখন টাকা দিয়ে স্বর্গে যায়। এগুলো সব দেশেই সমান -- priestcraft (পুরোহিতদের তুকতাক)।

আমি কবে দেশে যাব, কি না যাব, কিছুই বলতে পারি না। এখানে ঘুরে বেড়ান, সেখানেও তাই। তবে এখানে হাজারো লোক আমার কথা শোনে, বোঝে -- হাজারো লোকের উপকার হয়; সেখানে কি?

রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংসের বিষয় মজুমদার যা লিখেছিল, আমি খালি তাই চাহিয়াছিলাম। তা না হয়ে কতকগুলো জার্মান ছেঁড়া পুঁথি পাঠিয়ে দিয়েছে, আর তার মধ্যে দুখানা আমার লেকচার; কি আপদ!!

সারদা যা করছে, তা আমার সম্পূর্ণ অভিমত। তাকে আমার শত শত ধন্যবাদ। বলি, তোমরা যা কিছু করছ, আমি বুঝতে পারি না।... যা হোক মাদ্রাজ ও বম্বেতে আর মনের মত লোক আছে। তারা বিদ্বান এবং সকল কথা বোঝে এবং তারা দয়ালু; অতএব পরহিতচিকীর্ষা বুঝিতে পারে। কিমধিকমিতি।

মা-ঠাকুরানীকে আমার শত শত দণ্ডবৎ দিবে এবং সকলকে আমার যথাযোগ্য সম্ভাষণ দিবে। আমি বই-টাই কিছু ছাপাই নাই। এখানে লেকচার করে বেড়াই মাত্র। গুণ্ড তুলসী প্রভৃতির বিষয় কিছুই লেখ নাই কেন? কালী কি করছে? শরৎ, যোগেন সেরে গেছে কিনা? আমার জীবনের প্রতি দেখে [তাকালে] আমার আপসোস হয় না। দেশে দেশে কিছু না কিছু লোকশিক্ষা দিয়ে বেড়িয়েছি, তার বদলে রণটির টুকড়ো খেয়েছি। যদি দেখতুম যে, কোনও কাজ করিনি, কেবল লোক ঠকিয়ে খেয়েছি, তাহলে আজ গলায় দড়ি

জায়গা। আমার টাকাকড়ি সব মজুত; খালি ভূমি উঠে পড়ে লেগে একটা জমি দেখে শুনে কেনো। জমির জন্য ৩।৪ অথবা ৫ হাজার পর্যন্ত লাগে তো ক্ষতি নাই। ঘর-দ্বার এক্ষণে মাটির ভাল। একতলা কোঠার চেয়ে মাটির ঘর ঢের ভাল। ক্রমে ঘর-দ্বার ধীরে ধীরে উঠবে। যে নামে বা রকমে জমি কিনলে অনেক দিন চলবে, তাই উকিলদের পরামর্শে করিবে। আমার দেশে যাওয়া অনিশ্চিত। সেখানেও ঘোরা, এখানেও ঘোরা; তবে এখানে পণ্ডিতের সঙ্গ, সেখানে মূর্খের সঙ্গ -- এই স্বর্গ-নরকের ভেদ। এদেশের লোকে এককাটা হয়ে কাজ করে, আর আমাদের সকল কাজ বৈরিগ্যি (অর্থাৎ কুড়েমি), হিংসা প্রভৃতির মধ্যে পড়ে চুরমার।

হরমোহন মধ্যে মধ্যে এক দিগ্গজ পত্র লেখেন -- তা আমি অর্ধেক পড়তে পারি না, ইহা আমার পক্ষে পরম মঙ্গল। কারণ অধিকাংশ খবরই এই ডৌলের যথা -- ‘অমুক ময়রার দোকানে বসে অমুক ছেলেরা আপনার বিরুদ্ধে এই-সকল কথা বলিতেছিল, আর তাহাতে আমি অসহ্য বোধে তাহাদের সহিত কলহ করিলাম ইতি।’ আমার পক্ষসমর্থনের জন্য তাহাকে অনেক ধন্যবাদ। কিন্তু জেলে-মালা আমার সম্বন্ধে কে কি বলিতেছে, ইহা সবিশেষ শুনিবার বিশেষ বাধা এই যে -- ‘স্বল্পশচ কালো বহবশচ বিঘ্নাঃ’ (সময় অল্প, বিঘ্ন অনেক)।

একটা Organized Society (সঙ্ঘবদ্ধ সমিতি) চাই। শশী ঘরকন্না দেখুক, সান্যাল টাকাকড়ি বাজারপত্রের ভার নিক, শরৎ সেক্রেটারী হোক অর্থাৎ চিঠিপত্র সব লেখা ইত্যাদি। একটা ঠিকানা কর, মিছে হাজাম কি করছ -- বুঝতে পারলে কিনা? খবরের কাগজে ঢের হয়ে গেছে, এক্ষণে আর দরকার নাই। এক্ষণে তোমরা কিছু কর দিকি দেখি। যদি একটা মঠ বানাতে পার, তবে বলি বাহাদুর, নইলে ঘোড়ার ডিম। মাদ্রাজের লোকদের সঙ্গে যুক্তি করে কাজ করবে! তাদের কাজ করবার অনেক শক্তি আছে। এবারকার মহোৎসব এমনি হুজুগ করে করবে যে, এমন আর কখনও হয় নাই। খাওয়াদাওয়ার হুজুগ যত কম হয়, ততই ভাল। দাঁড়া-প্রসাদ, মালসা ভোগ যথেষ্ট। সুরেশ দত্তর ‘শ্রীরামকৃষ্ণ-জীবনী’ পাঠ করলাম। খুব ভাল; তবে... প্রভৃতি উদাহরণগুলি ছাপিয়েছেন কেন? কি মহাপাপ, ছি ছি!

আমি একটা ইংরেজীতে রামকৃষ্ণের জীবনী very short (অতি সংক্ষিপ্ত) লিখিয়া পাঠাইতেছি। সেটা ছাপাইয়া ও বঙ্গানুবাদ করিয়া মহোৎসবে বিক্রি করিবে, বিতরণ করিলে লোকে পড়ে না। কিঞ্চিৎ দাম চাই। খুব ধুমধামের সঙ্গে মহোৎসব করিবে। কিছু collection (চাঁদা) নেবে। তাতে দু এক হাজার টাকা হতে পারবে। তাহলে মা-ঠাকুরানীর জমির উপর দস্তুরমত ঘর-দ্বার হয়ে যাবে। ইতি

চৌরস বুদ্ধি চাই, তবে কাজ হয়। যে গ্রামে বা শহরে যাও, যেখানে দশজন লোক পরমহংসদেবকে শ্রদ্ধাভক্তি করে, সেখানেই একটা সভা স্থাপন করবে। এত গ্রামে গ্রামে কি ভেরেভা ভাজলে নাকি? হরিসভা প্রভৃতিগুলোকে ধীরে ধীরে ‘স্বাহা’ করতে হবে। কি বলব তোদের? আর একটা ভূত যদি আমার মতো পেতুম! ঠাকুর কালে সব জুটিয়ে দেবেন।... শক্তি থাকলেই বিকাশ দেখাতে হবে।... মুক্তি-ভক্তির ভাব দূর করে দে। এই একমাত্র রাস্তা আছে দূনিয়ায় -- পরোপকারায় হি সতাং জীবিতং পরার্থং প্রা’ উৎসর্জেৎ (পরোপকারের জন্যই সাধুদিগের জীবন, প্রাজ্ঞ ব্যক্তি পরের জন্যই তা উৎসর্গ করবেন)। তোমার ভাল করলেই আমার ভাল হয়, দোসরা আর উপায় নেই, একেবারেই নেই। ‘হে ভগবান, হে ভগবান!’ আরে ভগবান হেন করবেন, তেন করবেন -- আর তুমি বসে বসে কি করবে?... তুই ভগবান, আমি ভগবান, মানুষ ভগবান দুনিয়াতে সব করছে; আবার ভগবান কি গাছের উপর বসে আছেন? এই তো বুদ্ধির দৌড়, তারপর --... যদি কল্যাণ চাস, ওসব হিংসে ঝগড়া ছেড়ে দিয়ে কাজে লেগে যা। যারা তা করতে পারবে

না, তাদের বিদায় করে দে।

বিমলা... শশী সাভেলের লিখিত এক পুস্তক পাঠিয়েছেন এবং লিখেছেন যে, শশীবাবুর সাংসারিক অবস্থা অত্যন্ত খারাপ -- তাই জন্য তাঁর পুস্তকের যদি এ দেশে কেহ কেহ সহায়তা করে। দাদা, সে পুঁথি হল বাঙলা ভাষায় -- এদেশের লোক কি সাহায্য করবে? -- পুঁথি পড়ে বিমলা অবগত হয়েছেন যে, এ দুনিয়াতে যত লোক আছে, তারা সকলে অপবিত্র এবং তাদের প্রকৃতিতে আসলে ধর্ম হবার জো-টি নাই, কেবল ভারতবর্ষের একমুষ্টি ব্রাহ্মণ আছেন, তাঁদের ধর্ম হতে পারবে। আবার তাঁদের মধ্যে শশী (সাভেল) আর বিমলাচরণ -- এঁরা হচ্ছেন চন্দ্রসূর্যস্বরূপ। সাবাস, কি ধর্মের জোর রে বাপ! বিশেষ বাঙলা দেশে ঐ ধর্মটা বড়ই সহজ। অমন সোজা রাস্তা তো আর নাই। তপ-জপের সার সিদ্ধান্ত এই যে, আমি পবিত্র আর সব অপবিত্র! পৈশাচিক ধর্ম, রাক্ষসী ধর্ম, নারকী ধর্ম! যদি আমেরিকার লোকের ধর্ম হতে পারে না, যদি এদেশে ধর্ম প্রচার করা ঠিক নয়, তবে তাহাদের সাহায্য-গ্রহণে আবশ্যিক কি? এদিকে অযাচিত বৃত্তির ধুম, আবার পুঁথিময় আক্ষেপ, আমায় কেউ কিছু দেয় না। বিমলা সিদ্ধান্ত করেছেন যে, যখন ভারতসুদ্ধ লোক শশী (সাভেল) আর বিমলার পদপ্রান্তে ধনরাশি ঢেলে দেয় না, তখন ভারতের সর্বনাশ উপস্থিত। কারণ, শশীবাবু সূক্ষ্ম ব্যাখ্যা অবগত আছেন এবং বিমলা তৎপাঠে নিশ্চিত অবগত হয়েছেন যে, তিনি ছাড়া এ পৃথিবীতে আর কেহই পবিত্র নাই। এ রোগের ঔষধ কি? বলি, শশীবাবুকে মালাবারে যেতে বলো। সেখানকার রাজা সমস্ত প্রজার জমি ছিনিয়ে নিয়ে ব্রাহ্মণগণের চরণার্পণ করেছেন, গ্রামে গ্রামে বড় বড় মঠ, চর্ব্য চূষ্য খানা, আবার নগদ।... ভোগের সময় ব্রাহ্মণেতর জাতের স্পর্শে দোষ নাই -- ভোগ সাজ হলেই স্নান; কেন না ব্রাহ্মণেতর জাতি অপবিত্র -- অন্য সময় তাদের স্পর্শ করাও নাই। এক শ্রেণীর সাধু সন্ন্যাসী আর ব্রাহ্মণ বদমাশ দেশটা উৎসন্ন দিয়েছে। ‘দেহি দেহি’ চুরি বদমাশি -- এরা আবার ধর্মের প্রচারক! পয়সা নেবে, সর্বনাশ করবে, আবার বলে ‘ছুঁয়ো না ছুঁয়ো না’ -- আর কাজ তো ভারি -- ‘আলুতে বেগুনেতে যদি ঠেঁকাঠেঁকি হয়, তাহলে কতক্ষণে ব্রহ্মাণ্ড রসাতলে যাবে?’ ‘১৪ বার হাতে-মাটি না করিলে ১৪ পুরুষ নরকে যায় কি ২৪ পুরুষ?’ -- এই সকল দুর্ভ্রম প্রশ্নের বৈজ্ঞানিক ব্যাখ্যা করেছেন আজ দু হাজার বৎসর ধরে। এদিকে 1/4 of the people are starving (সিকি ভাগ লোক না খেতে পেয়ে মরছে)। ৮ বৎসরের মেয়ের সঙ্গে ৩০ বৎসরের পুরুষের বে দিয়ে মেয়ের মা-বাপ আহ্লাদে আটখানা।... আবার ও কাজে মানা করলে বলেন, আমাদের ধর্ম যায়! ৮ বৎসরের মেয়ের গর্ভাধানের যাঁরা বৈজ্ঞানিক ব্যাখ্যা করেন, তাঁদের কোন দেশি ধর্ম? আবার অনেকে এই প্রথার জন্য মুসলমানদের ঘাড়ে দোষ দেন। মুসলমানদের দোষ বটে!! সব গৃহসূত্রগুলো পড়ে দেখ দেখি, ‘হস্তাৎ যোনিং ন গৃহতি’ যতদিন, ততদিন কন্যা, এর পূর্বেই তার বে দিতে হবে। সমস্ত গৃহসূত্রেই এই আদেশ।

বৈদিক অশ্বমেধ যজ্ঞের ব্যাপার স্মরণ কর -- ‘তদনন্তরং মহিষীং অশ্ব-সন্নিধৌ পাতয়েৎ’ ইত্যাদি! আর হোতা পোতা ব্রহ্মা উদগাতা প্রভৃতারা বেডোল মাতাল হয়ে কেলেঙ্কারি করত। বাবা, জানকী বনে গিয়েছিলেন, রাম একা অশ্বমেধ করলেন -- শুনে হাঁপ ছেড়ে বাঁচলেম বাবা!

এ-কথা সমস্ত ব্রাহ্মণেই আছে -- সমস্ত টীকাকার স্বীকার করেছেন। না করবার জো-টি কি!

এ সকল কথা বলবার মানে এই -- প্রাচীনকালে ঢের ভাল জিনিস ছিল, খারাপ জিনিসও ছিল। ভালগুলি রাখতে হবে, কিন্তু আসছে যে ভারত -- Future India -- Ancient India-র (ভবিষ্যৎ ভারত প্রাচীন ভারতের) অপেক্ষা অনেক বড় হবে। যেদিন রামকৃষ্ণ জন্মেছেন, সেইদিন থেকেই Modern India (বর্তমান ভারত) -- সত্যযুগের আর্বিভাব! আর তোমরা এই সত্যযুগের উদ্বোধন কর -- এই

তাইতেই যখন তোমরা বল, রামকৃষ্ণ অবতার, আবার তারপরই বল, আমরা কিছুই জানিনা, তখনই আমি বলি, liar (মিথ্যাবাদী), চোর ঝুঠ বিলকুল। যদি রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস সত্য হন, তোমরাও সত্য। কিন্তু দেখাতে হবে।... তোমাদের সকলের ভেতর মহাশক্তি আছে, নাস্তিকের ভেতর ঘোড়ার ডিম আছে। যারা আস্তিক, তারা বীর; তাদের মহাশক্তি বিকাশ হবে। দুনিয়া ভেসে যাবে -- ‘দয়া দীন উপকার’ - - মানুষ ভগবান, নারায়ণ -- আত্মায় স্ত্রী পুং নপুং ব্রহ্মক্ষত্রাদি ভেদ নাই -- ব্রহ্মাদিস্তম্ব পর্যন্ত নারায়ণ। কীট less manifested (অল্প অভিব্যক্ত), ব্রহ্ম more manifested (অধিক অভিব্যক্ত)। Every action that helps a being manifest its divine nature more and more is good; every action that retards it, is evil.

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার পত্রে সবিশেষ অবগত হইলাম। তোমার সঙ্কল্প বড়ই উত্তম। কিন্তু তোমাদের জাতির মধ্যে organization (সজ্জবদ্ধ হইয়া কার্য করিবার) শক্তির একেবারেই অভাব। ঐ এক অভাবই সকল অনর্থের কারণ। পাঁচজনে মিলে একটা কাজ করিতে একেবারেই নারাজ। Organization-এর (সজ্জজীবনের) প্রথম আবশ্যিক এই যে, obedience (আজ্ঞাবহতা), যখন ইচ্ছা হল একটু কিছু করিলাম, তারপর ঘোড়ার ডিম -- তাতে কাজ হয় না -- plodding industry and perseverance (স্থির ধীর ভাবে পরিশ্রম ও অধ্যবসায়) চাই। Regular correspondence (নিয়মিত পত্রব্যবহার) অর্থাৎ কি কাজ করছ -- কি ফল হল, প্রতিমাসে দুইবার রীতিমত লিখিয়া পাঠাইবে। একজন উত্তম ইংরেজি ও সংস্কৃত-জানা সন্ন্যাসী এখানে (ইংলন্ডে) আবশ্যিক। আমি এখান হইতে শীঘ্রই পুনরায় আমেরিকা যাইব, আমার অবর্তমানে সে এখানে কার্য করিবে। শরৎ ও শশী এই দুইজন ছাড়া আমি তো আর কাকেও দেখিলাম। শরৎকে টাকা পাঠিয়েছি ও পত্রপাঠ চলে আসতে লিখেছি। রাজাজীকে^১ লিখেছি যে তাঁর বস্বের agent (ভারপ্রাপ্ত কর্মচারী) যেন শরৎকে দেখে শুনে জাহাজে চাপিয়ে দেয়। আমি লিখতে ভুলে গেছি, তুমি যদি মনে করে পার -- শরতের সঙ্গে এক বস্তা মুগের ডাল, ছোলার ডাল ও কিঞ্চিৎ মেথি পাঠিয়ে দিবে।^২ পন্ডিত নারায়ন দাস, শ্রীশঙ্করলাল, ওঝাজী, ডাক্তার ও সকলকে আমার প্রণয় বলিবে। গোপীর চোখের ওষুধ এখানে কি আছে? পেটেন্ট ওষুধ সব জুয়াচুরি সর্বত্র। তাকে আমার আশীর্বাদ দেবে ও আর আর সব চেলাগুলোকে। যজ্ঞেশ্বরবাবু মীরাটে একটা কি সভা করেছেন ও আমাদের সঙ্গে যোগ দিয়ে কাজ করতে চান। ভাল, তাঁর একটা কি কাগজও আছে, কালীকে সেখানে পাঠিয়ে দাও, কালী যদি পারে মীরাটে একটা centre (কেন্দ্র) করুক এবং সেই কাগজটা যাতে হিন্দী ভাষাতে হয়, এমন চেষ্টা করুক -- আমি কিছু কিছু টাকা পাঠিয়ে দেব। কালী মীরাট গিয়ে আমাকে যথাযথ রিপোর্ট করলে আমি টাকা পাঠিয়ে দেব। আজমীরে একটা centre (কেন্দ্র) করবার চেষ্টা কর।... সাহারানপুরে পন্ডিত অগ্নিহোত্রী কি একটা সভা করেছেন। তাঁরা আমাকে এক চিঠি লেখেন। তাঁদের সঙ্গে correspondence (পত্রব্যবহার) রাখিবে। সকলের সঙ্গে মেলামেশা etc., work, work (কাজ কাজ) এই রকম centre (কেন্দ্র) করতে থাক। কলকাতায় -- মাদ্রাজে already (পূর্ব হইতেই) আছে, যদি মীরাটে ও আজমীরে পার তো বড়ই ভাল হয়। ঐপ্রকার ধীরে ধীরে জায়গায় জায়গায় centre (কেন্দ্র) করতে থাক। এখানে আমার সকল চিঠিপত্র C/o মিঃ ই. টি. স্টার্ডি, হাইভিউ, ক্যাভার্স্যাম, রিডিং ইংলন্ড। আমেরিকায় C/o মিস ফিলিপস, 19 W. 38th St., নিউ ইয়র্ক। ক্রমে দুনিয়া ছাপিয়ে ফেলতে হবে। Obedience (আজ্ঞাবহতা) প্রথম দরকার। আঙনে ঝাঁপ দিতে তৈয়ার হতে হবে -- তবে কাজ হয়।... ঐ-রকম রাজপুতানায় গ্রামে গ্রামে সভা কর etc. কিমধিকমিতি --

^২ এই সময়ে স্বামীজী একেবারেই নিরামিষাশী ছিলেন।

প্রিয়বরেষু,

সান্ডেল যে যে পুস্তক পাঠাইয়াছিল তাহা পৌঁছিয়াছে -- এ কথা লিখিতে ভুল হয়। তাহাকে জ্ঞাত করিবে। তোমাদের জন্য লিখি --

১। পক্ষপাতই সকল অনিষ্টের মূল কারণ জানিবে। অর্থাৎ যদ্যপি তুমি কাহারও প্রতি অধিক স্নেহ অন্যাপেক্ষা দেখাও, তাহা হইলেই ভবিষ্যত বিবাদের মূল পত্তন হইবে।

২। কেহ তোমার নিকট অপর কোন ভাইয়ের নিন্দা করিতে আসিলে তাহা বিলকুল শুনিবে না -- শুনাও মহাপাপ, ভবিষ্যৎ বিবাদের সূত্রপাত তাহাতে।

৩। অধিকন্তু সকলের দোষ সহ্য করিবে, লক্ষ্য অপরাধ ক্ষমা করিবে এবং সকলকে তুমি যদি নিঃস্বার্থভাবে ভালবাস, সকলেই ধীরে ধীরে পরস্পরকে ভালবাসিবে। একের স্বার্থ অন্যের উপর নির্ভর করে, এ-কথা বিশেষরূপে বুঝিতে পারিলেই সকলে ঈর্ষা একেবারে ত্যাগ করিবে; দশজনে মিলিয়া একটা কার্য করা -- আমাদের জাতীয় চরিত্রের মধ্যেই নাই, এজন্য ঐ ভাব আনিতে অনেক যত্ন চেষ্টা ও বিলম্ব সহ্য করিতে হইবে। আমি তোমাদের মধ্যে তো বড় ছোট দেখিতে পাই না, কাজের বেলায় সকলেই মহাশক্তি প্রকাশ করিতে পারে, আমি দেখিতে পাইতেছি। শশী কেমন স্থান জাগিয়ে বসে থাকে; তার দৃঢ়নিষ্ঠা একটা মহাভিত্তিস্বরূপ। কালি ও যোগেন টাউন হল মিটিং কেমন উত্তমরূপে সিদ্ধ করিল -- কত গুরুতর কার্য! নিরঞ্জন সিলোন (সিংহল) প্রভৃতি স্থানে অনেক কার্য করিয়াছে। সারদা কত দেশ পর্যটন করিয়া বড় বড় কার্যের বীজ বপন করিয়াছে। হরির বিচিত্র ত্যাগ, স্থির-বুদ্ধি ও তিতিক্ষা আমি যখনই মনে করি, তখনই নূতন বল পাই। তুলসী, গুণ্ড, বাবুরাম, শরৎ প্রভৃতি সকলের মধ্যেই এক এক মহাশক্তি আছে। তিনি যে জহুরী ছিলেন, তাতে এখনো যদি সন্দেহ হয়, তাহলে তোমাতে আর উন্মাদে তফাত কি? দেখ এদেশে শত শত নরনারী প্রভুকে সকল অবতারের শ্রেষ্ঠ বলিয়া পূজা করিতে আরম্ভ করিতেছে। ধীরে ধীরে -- মহাকাব্য ধীরে ধীরে হয়। ধীরে ধীরে বারুদের স্তর পুঁতিতে হয়; তারপর একদিন এক কণা অগ্নি -- আর সমস্ত উচ্ছ্বসিত হয়ে ওঠে।

তিনি কাভারী; ভয় কি? তোমরা অনন্তশক্তিমান -- সামান্য ঈর্ষাবুদ্ধি ও অহংপূর্ণবুদ্ধি দমন করিতে তোমাদের ক-দিন লাগে? যখনই ঐ বুদ্ধি আসিবে, প্রভুর কাছে শরণ লও। শরীর মন তাঁর কাছে সঁপে দাও দেখি, হাঙ্গাম মিটে যাবে একদম।

যে বাড়িতে তোমরা আপাততঃ আছ, তাহাতে স্থান পূর্ণ হইবে না, দেখিতে পাইতেছি। একটা প্রশস্ত বাটীর দরকার, অর্থাৎ সকলে গুঁতোগুঁতি করে একঘরে শোবার আবশ্যিক নাই। পারতপক্ষে একঘরে দুই জনের অধিক থাকা উচিত নহে। একটা বড় হল, সেখানে পুঁথি-পাটা রাখিবে।

প্রত্যহ প্রাতঃকালে ও সন্ধ্যাকালে কালী, হরী, তুলসী, শশী প্রভৃতি অদল-বদল করে যেন কিঞ্চিৎ কিঞ্চিৎ শাস্ত্রপাঠ করে ও পরে সন্ধ্যাকালে আর একবার পিঠ ও ধ্যান-ধারণা ও একটু সঙ্কীর্তনাদি হয়। একদিন যোগ,

একদিন ভক্তি, একদিন জ্ঞান ইত্যাদি বিভাগ করিয়া লইলেই হইবে। এইমত একটা routine (পাঠের ক্রম) করিয়া লইলেই বড়ই মঙ্গলের বিষয় -- সন্ধ্যাকালের পাঠাদির সময় সাধারণ লোকেরা যাহাতে আসিতে পারে; এবং প্রতি রবিবার দশটা হইতে নাগাত রাত্র ক্রমান্বয়ে পাঠ-কীর্তনাদি হওয়া উচিত, সেটা public-এর (সাধারণের) জন্য। এই নিয়মাদি করে কিছুদিন কষ্ট করে চালিয়ে দিলেই পরে আপনা হতে গড় গড় করে চলে যাবে। উক্ত হলে যেন তামাক খাওয়া না হয়। তামাক খাবার একটা যেন আলাহিদা জায়গা থাকে। এই ভাবটা তুমি যদি পরিশ্রম করে ধীরে ধীরে আনতে পার, তা হলে বুঝলাম অনেক কাজ এগলো। কিমধিকমিতি

এইমাত্র তোমার পত্রে সকল সমাচার জ্ঞাত হইলাম। ভারতবর্ষে কার্য হোক না হোক, কার্য এদেশে। কাহারও এক্ষনে আসিবার দরকার নাই। আমি দেশে গিয়ে কয়েকজনকে তৈয়ার করে তুলব, তারপর পাশ্চাত্য দেশে কোন ভয় থাকিবে না। গুণনিধির কথাই লিখিয়াছিলাম। হরি সিং প্রভৃতি সকলকে বিশেষ প্রেম আশীর্বাদ দিবে। ঝগড়াঝাঁটির মধ্যে থাকিবে না। কার সাধ্য খেতড়ির রাজাকে দাবায়? মা জগদম্বা তার শিয়রে। কালীরও চিঠি পেয়েছি -- কাশ্মীরে যদি centre (কেন্দ্র) করতে পার তো বড়ই ভাল হয়। যেখানে পার একটা সেন্টার কর। এখন এদেশে আর বিলেতে আমার গোড়া বেঁধে গেছে; কারু সাধ্য কি তা টলায়? নিউ ইয়র্ক এবার তোলপাড়! আসছে গরমিতে লন্ডন তোলপাড়! বড় বড় হাতি দিগগজ ভেসে যাবে। পুঁটি-পাঁটার কি খবর রে দাদা? তোরা কোমর বেঁধে লেগে যা দেখি, হুঙ্কারে দুনিয়া তোলপাড় করে দেব। এই তো সবে সন্ধ্যা রে ভাই!

দেশে কি মানুষ আছে? ও শ্বশানপুরী। যদি lower classদের education (নিম্নশ্রেণীদের শিক্ষা) দিতে পার, তা হলে উপায় হতে পারে। জ্ঞানবলের চেয়ে বল আর কি আছে -- বিদ্যা শেখাতে পার? বড়-মানুষেরা কোন্ কালে কোন দেশে কার কি উপকার করেছে? সকল দেশেই বড় বড় কাজ গরিবেরা করে। টাকা আসতে কতক্ষণ? মানুষ কই? দেশে কি মানুষ আছে? দেশের লোকগুলো বালক, ওদের সঙ্গে বালকের ন্যায় ব্যবহার করতে হবে। ওদের বুদ্ধিভঙ্গি দশ বছরের মেয়ে বে করে খরচ হয়ে গেছে।

কারুর সঙ্গে ঝগড়া না করে মিলেমিশে চলে যাও -- এ দুনিয়া বড়ই ভয়ানক, কাউকেই বিশ্বাস নাই। ভয় নাই, মা আমার সহায় -- এমন কাজ এবার হবে যে, তোরা অবাক হয়ে যাবি।

ভয় কি? কার ভয়? ছাতি বজ্র করে লেগে যাও। কিমধিকমিতি

বিবেকানন্দ

পুনঃ -- সারদা কি বাঙলা কাগজ বার করবে বলছে? সেটার বিশেষ সাহায্য করবে, সে মতলবটা মন্দ নয়। কারুর উৎসাহ ভঙ্গ করতে নাই। Criticism (বিরুদ্ধ সমালোচনা) একেবারে ত্যাগ করবে। যতদূর ভাল বোধ হয়, ধীরে বুঝিয়ে দিবে। পরস্পরকে criticise (বিরুদ্ধভাবে সমালোচনা) করাই সকল সর্বনাশের মূল! দল ভাঙবার ঐটি মূলমন্ত্র। ‘ও কি জানে?’ ‘সে কি জানে?’ ‘তুই আবার কি করবি?’ -- আর তার সঙ্গে ঐ একটু মুচকে হাসি, ঐগুলো হচ্ছে ঝগড়া-বিবাদের মূলসূত্র।

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার এক পত্র কাল পাই, তাহাতে কতকমত সমাচার পাই। সবিশেষ কিছুই নাই, এই মাত্র। আমার শরীর এক্ষণে আনেক ভাল। এ বৎসর প্রচন্ড শীত প্রভুর কৃপায় কিছুই লাগে না, কি দোদাঁড় শীত! তবে এদের বিদ্যের জোরে সব দাবিয়ে রাখে। প্রত্যেক বাটার নিচের তলা মাটির ভেতর, তার মধ্যে বৃহৎ বয়লার -- সেখান হতে গরম হাওয়া বা স্টীম ঘরে ঘরে রাতদিন ছুটছে। তাইতে সব ঘর গরম, কিন্তু ইহার এক দোষ যে, ঘরের ভেতর গরমি কাল আর বাইরে জিরোর (শূন্যের) নিচে ৩০।৪০ ডিগ্রি! এদেশের বড় মানুষেরা অনেকেই শীতকালে পালায় -- ইওরোপ অপেক্ষাকৃত গরম দেশ।

যাক, এক্ষণে তোমাকে গোটা-দুই উপদেশ দিই। এই চিঠি তোমার জন্য লেখা হচ্ছে। তুমি এই উপদেশগুলি রোজ একবার করে পড়বে এবং সেই রকম কাজ করবে। সারদার চিঠি পাইয়াছি -- সে উত্তম কার্য করিতেছে -- কিন্তু এক্ষণে organisation (সঙ্ঘবদ্ধ হইয়া কার্য করা) চাই। তাহাকে আমার বিশেষ প্রেমালিঙ্গন, আশীর্বাদ -- তারকদাদা প্রভৃতি সকলকে দিবে। তোমাকে আমার এই ক-টি উপদেশ দিবার কারণ এই যে, তোমাতে organizing power (সঙ্ঘগঠন ও পরিচালন-শক্তি) আছে -- এ-কথা ঠাকুর আমায় বললেন, কিন্তু এখনও ফোটে নাই। শীঘ্রই তাঁর আশীর্বাদে ফুটবে। তুমি যে কিছুতেই centre of gravity (ভারকেন্দ্র) ছাড়িতে চাও না, ইহাই তাহার নিদর্শন, তবে intensive and extensive (গভীর ও উদার) দুই হওয়া চাই।

১। এ জগতে যে ত্রিবিধ দুঃখ আছে, সর্বশাস্ত্রের সিদ্ধান্ত এই যে, তাহা নৈসর্গিক (natural) নহে, অতএব অপনয়।

২। বুদ্ধাবতারে প্রভু বলিতেছেন যে, এই আধিভৌতিক দুঃখের কারণ 'জাতি', অর্থাৎ জন্মগত বা গুণগত বা ধনগত সর্বপ্রকার জাতিই এই দুঃখের কারণ। আত্মাতে স্ত্রী-পুং-বর্ণাশ্রমাদি ভাব নাই এবং যে-প্রকার পঙ্ক দ্বারা পঙ্ক ধৌত হয় না, সে-প্রকার ভেদবুদ্ধি দ্বারা অভেদ সাধন হওয়া সম্ভব নহে।

৩। কৃষ্ণবতারে বলিতেছেন যে, সর্বপ্রকার দুঃখের কারণ 'অবিদ্যা'। নিষ্কাম কর্ম দ্বারা চিত্তশুদ্ধি হয়; কিন্তু 'কিং কর্ম কিমকর্মেতি' ইত্যাদি (কোনটি কর্ম, কোনটি অকর্ম -- এই বিষয়ে জ্ঞানীরাও মোহিত হন)।

৪। যে কর্মের দ্বারা এই আত্মভাবের বিকাশ হয় তাহাই কর্ম। যদ্বারা অনাত্মভাবের বিকাশ, তাহাই অকর্ম।

৫। অতএব ব্যক্তিগত, দেশগত ও কালগত কর্মাকর্মের সাধন।

৬। যজ্ঞাদি প্রাচীন কালে উপযুক্ত ছিল, তথা জাত্যাদি কর্ম; আধুনিক সময়ের জন্য তাহা নহে।

৭। রামকৃষ্ণাবতারের জন্মদিন হইতেই সত্যযুগোৎপত্তি হইয়াছে।

৮। রামকৃষ্ণাবতারে জ্ঞানরূপ অসি দ্বারা নাস্তিকতারূপ স্লেচ্ছনিবহ ধ্বংস হইবে এবং ভক্তি ও প্রেমের দ্বারা সমস্ত জগৎ একীভূত হইবে। অর্থাৎ এ অবতারের রজোগুণ অর্থাৎ নামযশাদির আকাঙ্ক্ষা একেবারেই নাই, অর্থাৎ যে তাঁহার উপদেশ গ্রহণ করে, সেই ধন্য; তাঁহাকে মানে বা নাই মানে, ক্ষতি নাই।

৯। প্রাচীনকালে বা আধুনিককালে সাম্প্রদায়িকেরা ভুল করে নাই। They have done well, but they must do better (তাহারা ভালই করিয়াছে, তবে তাহাদিগকে আরও ভাল করিতে হইবে)। কল্যাণ-তর-তম।

১০। অতএব সকলকে -- যেখানে তাহারা আছে, সেইখানেই গ্রহণ করিতে হইবে, অর্থাৎ কাহারও ভাবে ব্যাঘাত না করিয়া উচ্চতর ভাবে লইয়া যাইতে হইবে। তথা সামাজিক অবস্থা মধ্যে যাহা আছে, তাহা উত্তম, কিন্তু উৎকৃষ্ট-তর-তম করিতে হইবে।

১১। জগতের কল্যাণ স্ত্রীজাতির অভ্যুদয় না হইলে সম্ভাবনা নাই, এক পক্ষ পক্ষীর উত্থান সম্ভব নহে।

১২। সেইজন্যই রামকৃষ্ণাবতারে ‘স্ত্রীগুরু’-গ্রহণ, সেইজন্যই নারীভাবসাধন, সেইজন্যই মাতৃভাব-প্রচার।

১৩। সেইজন্যই আমার স্ত্রী-মঠ স্থাপনের জন্য প্রথম উদ্যোগ। উক্ত মঠ গার্গী, মৈত্রেয়ী এবং তদপেক্ষা আরও উচ্চতরভাবাপন্ন নারীকুলের আকরস্বরূপ হইবে।

১৪। চালাকি দ্বারা কোন মহৎ কার্য হয় না। প্রেম, সত্যানুরাগ ও মহাবীর্যের সহায়তায় সকল কার্য সম্পন্ন হয়। তৎ কুরু পৌরুষম্ (সুতরাং পৌরুষ প্রকাশ কর)।

১৫। কাহারও সহিত বিবাদ-বিতর্কে আবশ্যিক নাই। তোমার যাহা শিখাইবার আছে শিখাও -- অন্যের খবরে আবশ্যিক নাই। Give your message, leave others to their own thoughts (তোমার যাহা শিখাইবার আছে শিখাও, অপরে নিজ নিজ ভাব লইয়া থাকুক)। ‘সত্যমেব জয়তে নানৃতং’ -- তদা কিং বিবাদেন? (সত্যেরই জয় হয়, মিথ্যার জয় কখনও হয় না; তবে বিবাদের প্রয়োজন কি?)

এক্ষণে তোমাকে কিঞ্চিৎ বিষয়কার্য শিখাই। প্রথমতঃ যখন আমাকে বা অন্য কাহাকেও পত্র লিখিবে, তখন পূর্বপত্র পাঠ করিয়া সকল প্রশ্নের উত্তর দিবে। বাজে খবর দিবে না। গস্তীর ভাব রাখিতে হইবে। বাল্যগাস্তীর্যভাব মিশ্রিত করিবে। সকলের সহিত মিশিয়া চলিবে। অহংভাব দূর করিবে, সম্প্রদায়-বুদ্ধিবিহীন হইবে, বৃথা তর্ক মহাপাপ।

ম্যাক্সমুলার তোমাদের এক পুস্তক পাঠাইয়াছেন। তাঁহাকে বিনয়পূর্ণ উত্তর দিয়াছ কিনা, এ কথা লেখ নাই। আমি কাহাকে টাকা পাঠাইব, তাহা লেখ নাই। কেমন করিয়া পাঠাইব?... প্রায় দেড় মাসে একখানা পত্র

আসে, একটা ভুল শোধরাইতে তিন মাস লাগে। এই কথা সদা মনে রাখিবে। সারদার পত্রে অবগত হইলাম N. Ghose (ঘোষ) আমাকে যীশুখ্রীষ্টাদির সহিত তুলনাই করিয়াছেন। ও-সকল আমাদের দেশে ভাল বটে; কিন্তু এদেশে ছাপাইয়া পাঠাইলে আমার অবমানের সম্ভাবনা। আমি কাহারও ভাবে ব্যাঘাত করি না, আমি কি মিশনারী? যদি কালী ঐ-সকল কাগজ এতদেশে না পাঠাইয়া থাকে, তাহা হইলে পাঠাইতে নিষেধ করিবে। কেবল Address (অভিনন্দন) পাঠাইলেই যথেষ্ট, proceedingsএ (কার্যবিবরণীতে) কোন আবশ্যিক নাই। এক্ষণে এতদেশের অনেক মানাগন্য নরনারী আমায় শ্রদ্ধা করেন। মিশনারী প্রভৃতির বহু চেষ্টা করিয়া এক্ষণে হার মানিয়া শান্তি অবলম্বন করিয়াছে। সকল কার্যই নানা বিঘ্নের মধ্যে সমাধান হয়। শান্ত্যাব অবলম্বন করিলেই সত্যের জয় হয়। হাডসন (Hudson) নামক কে কি বকিয়াছে, তাহাকে আমার জবাব দিবার কোন আবশ্যিক নাই। প্রথমতঃ অনাবশ্যিক, দ্বিতীয়তঃ তাহা হইলে আমি হাডসন প্রভৃতি ফেরুপুঞ্জের সমদেশবর্তী হইব। তুমি উন্মাদ না কি? আমি এখান হইতে কে এক হাডসনের সহিত লড়াই করিব? প্রভুর কৃপায় হাডসন বাডসনের গুরুর গুরুরা আমার কথা ভক্তিভাবে গ্রহণ করে। তুমি কি পাগল নাকি? খবরের কাগজ প্রভৃতি আর পাঠাইও না। ও-সকল দেশে চলুক, হানি নাই। ও-সকল কাগজে নামের প্রয়োজন ছিল, প্রভুর কার্যের জন্য। যখন তাহা সমাহিত হইয়াছে, তখন আর আবশ্যিক নাই। আমার প্রত্যেক পত্রাদি গোপন করিবে, ঝট করিয়া কাগজে ছাপাইবে না। নামযশের ঐ দায় -- কিছু গোপন রাখা যায় না। আমার চিঠি পূর্বের ভাবের মতো হাটের মাঝে পড়িবে না। কথা কানে হাঁটে, মনে রাখিবে। মা-ঠাকুরানীর জন্য পত্রপাঠ জায়গা অনুসন্ধান করিবে।

ঠাকুরের কাছে সকল কার্যের প্রারম্ভে প্রার্থনা করিবে। তিনি সৎ পন্থা দেখাইবেন। একটা বড় জমি প্রথমে চাই; তার পর বাড়ি ঘর সব হবে। আমাদের মঠ ধীরে ধীরে হবে, ভাবনা নাই। যখন আমাকে চিঠি লিখবে, বিশেষ চিন্তা করে আবশ্যিক সমাচার বিস্তারিতভাবে দিবে -- অনাবশ্যিক অর্থাৎ বাগড়াঝাঁটি আমার শনিবার সময় নাই।

কালী প্রভৃতি সকলেই উত্তম কার্য করিতেছে। সকলকেই আমার প্রেমালিঙ্গন দিও। মাদ্রাজীদের সহিত মিলে মিশে কাজ করিবে এবং মধ্যে মধ্যে একজন তথায় যাইও। নামযশ কত্বের বাসনা জন্মের মতো ত্যাগ করিবে। আমি যতদিন পৃথিবীতে আছি, তিনি আমার মধ্যে কার্য করিতেছেন -- ইহাতে তোমাদের যতদিন বিশ্বাস থাকিবে, ততদিন কোন অমঙ্গলের সম্ভাবনা নাই।

শাঁকচুলী যে ঠাকুরের পুঁথি পাঠাইয়াছে, তাহা পরম সুন্দর। কিন্তু প্রথমে শক্তির বর্ণনা নাই, এই মহাদোষ। দ্বিতীয় edition (সংস্করণ)-এ শুদ্ধ করিতে বলিবে। এই কথা মনে সদা রাখিবে যে, আমরা এক্ষণে জগতের সমক্ষে দণ্ডায়মান। আমাদের প্রত্যেক কার্য, প্রত্যেক কথা লোকে দেখিতেছে, শুনিতেছে -- এই ভাব মনে রাখিয়া সকল কার্য করিবে।

যদি তুমি -- কাহাকে টাকা পাঠাইব অর্থাৎ -- কাহার নামে লিখিতে, তাহা হিলে আজই আমি টাকা পাঠাইতাম। টাকা পাইবামাত্রই জমি খরিদ করিবে। আপাততঃ আমার নামে খরিদ করিবে। পরে আমাদের মঠের জন্য একটা জমি দেখিতে থাক। কাছাকাছি হওয়া চাই, অর্থাৎ দুইটা জমি যাহাতে অতি নিকটে হয়, এমত চেষ্টা করিবে। কলিকাতা হইতে কিছু দূরে হয়, চিন্তা নাই; যেখানে আমরা মঠ বসাইব, সেখাই ধূম মাচিবে।

মহিম চক্রবর্তীর কথায় আমি পরম আনন্দিত হইলাম -- এন্ডিস্ পর্বতে এক্ষণে গয়াক্ষেত্র বনিয়া গেল যে! সে কোথায়? তাহাকে, বিজয় গোস্বামীকে ও আমাদের বন্ধুবর্গকে আমার বিশেষ প্রণয়-সন্তাষণ দিবে।... পরকে মারিতে গেলে ঢাল খাঁড়া চাই, অতএব ইংরেজী ও সংস্কৃত বিশেষরূপে অধ্যয়ন করিবে। কালির ইংরেজী দিন দিন

বেশ পরিষ্কার হইতেছে। সারদার ইংরেজীর অধোগতি হইতেছে; তাহাকে flowery style (ফেনানো ভাষা) পরিত্যাগ করিতে কহিবে। বিজাতীয় ভাষায় flowery style লেখা বড়ই দুষ্কর। তাহাকে আমার লক্ষ ‘সাবাস’ -- ওহি মরদকা কাম; তারকদাদাকেও grammar (ব্যাকরণ)-টা একবার উলটে নিতে বলবে। তারকদাদার ইংরেজী ক্রমশঃ দুরন্ত হয়ে আসছে। সকলেই well done, ‘সাবাস, বাহাদুরোঁ’। আরস্ত অতি সুন্দর হয়েছে। ঐ ডোলে চল। ঈর্ষা-সর্পিণী যদি না আসে তো কোন ভয় নাই, মা ভৈঃ। ‘মড্ডক্তানাঞ্চ যে ভক্তান্তে মে ভক্ততমা মতাঃ’। সকলে একটু গস্তীরভাব ধারণ করিবে।

আমি হিন্দুধর্মের উপর কোন পুস্তক এক্ষণে লিখিতেছি না। তবে আমার মনের ভাব লিপিবদ্ধ করিতেছি। Every religion is an expression, a language to express the same truth, and we must speak to each in his own language.’ -- সারদা এ কথা বুঝিয়াছে বেশ। হিন্দুধর্ম পরে দেখা যাইবে। হিন্দুধর্ম বললে কি এদেশের লোক আসে? সঙ্কীর্ণ বুদ্ধির নামে সকলে পালায়। আসল কথা, তাঁর ধর্ম; হিন্দুরা বলুক হিন্দুধর্ম -- তদৎ সর্বে (সেইরূপ সকলের। তবে ধীরে ধীরে -- শনৈঃ পছাঃ। নবাগন্তুক দীননাথকে আমার আশীর্বাদ দিও। লিখিবার সময় বড়ই অল্প, সর্বদাই লেকচার, লেকচার, লেকচার। Purity -- patience -- perseverance (পবিত্রতা, ধৈর্য, অধ্যবসায়)! মহেন্দ্র মান্দটার প্রভৃতি সকলকে আমার প্রেমালিঙ্গন দিও। মা-ঠাকুরানীকে আমার কোটি সাষ্টাঙ্গ। গোলাপ-মা, যোগীন-মা প্রভৃতি সকলকে আমার নমস্কার। অনেকে যে তাঁর কথা এক্ষণে শুনছে, তাদের কিঞ্চিৎ কিঞ্চিৎ অর্থসাহায্য করিতে বলিবে; কিছু কিছু ‘পেলা’ না নিলে মঠ চলবে কি প্রকারে? এ-কথা সকলকে খুলে বলতে হবে বইকি!

এদেশ হতে শীঘ্র দেশে যাওয়ায় কোন লাভ নাই। বলি, প্রথমতঃ এদেশে একটু বাজলে দেশে মহাধুনি হয়। তারপর এদেশের লোকেরা মহাধনী ও ছাতিওয়াল! দেশের লোকের পয়সাও নাই এবং ছাতি একেবারেই নাই!

ক্রমশঃ প্রকাশ্য। তিনি কি শুধু ভারতের ঠাকুর? ঐ সঙ্কীর্ণ ভাবের দ্বারাই ভারতের অধঃপতন হয়েছে। তার বিনাশ না হলে কল্যাণ অসম্ভব। আমার যদি টাকা থাকিত, তোমাদের প্রত্যেককেই পৃথিবী-পর্যটনে পাঠাতাম। কোণ থেকে না বেড়লে কোন বড় ভাব হুদয়ে আসে না। ক্রমে দেখা যাবে। প্রভুর ইচ্ছা। সকল বড় কাজ ধীরে ধীরে হয়। দুটো জমির কথা ভুলবে না এবং তোমাদের মধ্যে কে এ কার্যের ভার লইবে, তাহা লিখিবে; অপিচ গিরিশ ঘোষ ও অতুলের সহিত পরামর্শ করিবে। জমি আমার নামে খরিদ করিবে, অর্থাৎ মোট কথা এই -- ‘অর্থমনর্থম্’; যার হাতে থাকিলে কারুর মনে ঈর্ষা হবে না, তারই হাতে থাকা ভাল। সান্ডেলকে -- লাটুকে গরম কাপড় (তার মনের মতো) কিনে দিতে বলেছি, এবং গোপালদাদাকে টাকা পাঠাতে বলেছি এবং হুটকোকে টাকা দিতে বলেছি -- তার ঋণ-পরিশোধের জন্য।

দক্ষ ও হরিশের কথা কেউ লেখ নাই কেন? তাদের তোমরা খবর নাও কিনা? সান্ডেল দুঃখ পাচ্ছে,

^১ প্রত্যেক ধর্ম সত্যের এক একটি প্রকাশ, সেই একই সত্যকে প্রকাশ করিবার এক একটি ভাষা, এবং আমাদিগকে প্রত্যেক নরনারীর সহিত তাহার নিজ ভাষায় কথা কহিতে হইবে।

তার কারণ তার মন এখনও গঙ্গাজলের মতন হয় নাই, নিষ্কাম এখনও হয় নাই, ক্রমে হবে। যদি বাঁকটুকু একদম সিধে করে তো আর কোন দুঃখ থাকিবে না। রাখালকে হরিকে আমার বিশেষ আলিঙ্গন প্রণাম জানাইবে। তাদের বিশেষ যত্ন করিবে। তোমরা রাখালকে দিন-দুই জ্বরদস্ত ব্রত করিয়ে দিয়েছ নাকি? কাজটা ভাল কর নাই। যাক, চর্বি মারা যাবে। রাখাল ঠাকুরের ভালবাসার জিনিষ -- এ কথা ভুলো না।

কিছুতেই ভয় খেও না। যতদিন তিনি আমার মাথায় হাত রাখছেন, ততদিন কি কারুর দাবাবার জো আছে? ভবেয়ুঃ কঠাগতাঃ প্রাণাঃ (প্রাণ কঠাগত হউক), তথাপি ডর পাবে না। সিংহ-বিকরমের সহিত অথচ 'কুসুমমিব' (ফুলের মতো) কোমলতার সহিত কার্য করিবে। এবারকার মহোৎসবে খুব ধূম মাতাইবে। খাওয়া দাওয়া অতি সাধারণ -- মহাপ্রসাদ, সরভোগ, দাঁড়াপ্রসাদ ইতি। পরমহংসদেবের জীবন-চরিত-পাঠ। বেদ বেদান্ত পুঁথি একত্র করে আরতি করবে, এবং কিঞ্চিৎ কিঞ্চিৎ পেলা আদায় করিবে। পুরাণ ডোলে নিমন্ত্রণ ত্যাগ করিবে। 'আমন্ত্রয়ে ভবন্তুং সান্দীর্বাদং ভগবতো রামকৃষ্ণস্য বহুমানপুরঃসরঞ্চ' ইত্যাকার একটা লাইন লিখে তারপর লিখবে যে, ঠাকুরের জন্মতিথি-মহোৎসব এবং মঠ চালাইবার খরচের জন্য আপনার সহায়তা প্রয়োজন। যদি আপনার অভিমত হয় তো অমুক স্থানে আমুকের নিকট টাকা পাঠাইবেন -- ইত্যাদি। যদি মনে কর যে, আমার নামে সেই করলে লোকে টাকা দেবে তো সেই করে দিও অর্থাৎ ছাপিয়ে দিও। যদি না হয় তো যেমন ordinarily (সাধারণতঃ) 'রামকৃষ্ণসেবকাঃ সন্ন্যাসিনঃ' অথবা ঐ প্রকার কোন রকম। আর এক পাতা ইংরেজীতে লিখিবে। 'লর্ড (প্রভু) রামকৃষ্ণ' শব্দের কোন অর্থ নাই; উক্ত নাম ত্যাগ করিবে, ইংরেজী অক্ষরে 'ভগবান' লিখিবে। তারপর এক আধ লাইন ইংরেজী লিখিয়া দিবে।

যদি যথেষ্ট অর্থসংগ্রহ হয়, কিয়দংশ খরচ করে বাকি একটা ফান্ড করে রাখবে এবং তোমাদের খরচ তা হতে চালাবে।

ভোগের নাম করে সকলকে পিড়িয়ে বাসি কড়কড়ে ভাত খাওয়াবে না। দুটো ফিলটার তৈয়ার করবে। সেই জলে রান্না ও খাওয়া দুই-ই। ফিলটার করবার পূর্বে জল ফুটিয়ে নেবে, তা হলে ম্যালেরিয়ার বাপ পলায়ন। সকলের স্বাস্থ্যের উপর প্রথম দৃষ্টি রাখিবে। মাটিতে শোওয়া ত্যাগ করিবে, পার যদি -- অর্থাৎ যদি পয়সা জোটে তো বড়ই ভাল। ময়লা কাপড় ব্যারামের প্রধান কারণ। ঐ সকল টাকার কাজ। সারদা তার বন্ধুদের পত্র লিখুক, ঐ প্রকার সকলে চেষ্টা কর। আমি এখানে চেষ্টা করছি বইকি! কিন্তু খালি আমার উপর কোন কাজে নির্ভর করিবে না। ভোগের বিষয় তোমাকে লিখি -- কেবলমাত্র কিঞ্চিৎ পায়সান্ন চড়াইবে; তিনি তাহাই ভালবাসিতেন। ঠাকুরঘর অনেকের সহায়তা করে বটে, কিন্তু রাজসিক তামসিক খাওয়া-দাওয়ার কোন কাজ নাই। আঙুল-বাঁকানো এবং ঘন্টার বিকট আওয়াজ কিঞ্চিৎ কমি করে কিঞ্চিৎ গীতা-উপনিষদাদি পাঠ করিবে। অর্থাৎ Materialism (জড়োপাসনা) যত কম হয় এবং Spirituality (আধ্যাত্মিকতা) যতই বাড়ে, এই কথা আর কি। সাভেল লিখছেন যে, হাজার হাজার লোক খালি ঘন্টানাড়া দেখতে আসে। যদি এ কথা সত্য হয় তো ও-প্রকার লোক না আসাই ভাল। ওরা মেঠাই খেতে আসে; এদিকে মঠের লোক না খেতে পেয়ে মারা যায়, তখন হাজার হাজার লোক কোথায়? আর আমরা কি সর্বত্যাগ করে সাভেলের জন্য ঘন্টা বাজাতে এসেছি? সাভেল কাঁসারীপাড়ায় বাস করুক গে, যদি ঘন্টানাড়া তার এতই ভাল লাগে। অর্থাৎ তিনি তাঁর ছেলেদের মুখে খাচ্ছেন -- তোমার ঘন্টানাড়ার মধ্যে নয়। তাদের একচুল কষ্ট দিয়ে তোমার ঘন্টানাড়া সমস্তই বিফল হয়, অপিচ অমঙ্গল হয় তোমার নিজে। এ কথাটা রোজ একবার মনে রেখো। তিনি তোমার একলার জন্য বা সাভেলের জন্য এসেছিলেন, কি জগতের জন্য? যদি জগতের জন্য, তা হলে জগৎসুদ্ধ লোক তাঁকে বুঝতে পারে, এই ভাবে তাঁকে present করতে (লোকের কাছে ধরতে) হবে। সেইজন্য সুরেশ দত্তের পুঁথিতে যে আবোল-তাবোলগুলো আছে, সেগুলো দূর করে দিতে হবে -- বুঝতে পেরেছ কি? ওগুলো ‘-’ বাবুর বুদ্ধিতে বোধ হয় সুরেশ দত্ত লিখেছে -- হরিবোল হরি! যাক, তার উদ্দেশ্য ভাল, কেবল সেই ছোট বুদ্ধি। দক্ষিণেশ্বরের ভট্‌চাষির জীবনচরিত -- মাস্টার মহাশয় জানে, সুরেশ বাবু লেখে, ‘রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস’ তারা এখনও দেখতে পায় নাই। দুনিয়া তাদের দক্ষিণেশ্বরের কুটুরি। হে প্রভু, হে প্রভু! তবে You must not identify yourselves with any Life of Him written by anybody, nor give your sanction to any.^৩ যতক্ষণ আমাদের নামের সঙ্গে না যায়, ততক্ষণ কোন ভয় নেই। এ-সকল কথা তোমরা কাউকে বলো না --

আমরা আপনাকে ভগবান রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংসদেবের --তম জন্মাৎসবে আমাদের সহিত যোগদানের জন্য সানন্দে আমন্ত্রণ করিতেছি। এই পুণ্যদিনের আনুষ্ঠানের জন্য এবং আলমবাজারের মঠ পরিচালনার জন্য অর্থের একান্ত আবশ্যিক। আপনি যদি মনে করেন যে, এই উদ্দেশ্যটি আপনার সহানুভূতির যোগ্য, তবে এই মহৎ কার্যে আপনার সাহায্য পাইলে আমরা বিশেষ কৃতার্থ হইব।

^৩ তাঁর জীবনচরিত্র যে-কেউ লিখবে, তার সঙ্গে তোমরা নিজেদের জড়িত করো না, বা তা অনুমোদন করো না।

অর্থাৎ সুরেশ দত্তের উদ্দেশ্য ভাল, বইও বেশ লিখেছে -- চলুক কিছু কাজ হবে। তবে তারা তাঁকে কি ঘোড়ার ডিম বুঝেছে? সাভেল আমাকে তিন পাতা লেকচার দিয়েছে যে, মা-ঠাকুরানীকে ভক্তি করতে হবে এবং তিনি আমাকে কত দয়া করেন। সাভেলের এই মহা আবিষ্কারের জন্য ধন্যবাদ! তাঁর [বিষয়] একটা কিছু লিখব মনে করি; কিন্তু ভয়ে পেছিয়ে যাই। যাক, তাঁর ইচ্ছা হয় তো কালে কালে হবে। মহেন্দ্রবাবু মঠ একপ্রকার চালাচ্ছেন; তাঁকে শত শত ধন্যবাদ; তিনি অতি মহৎ, সাভেলকে বলবে, যদি প্রভুর ইচ্ছা হয়, তার সাড়ে পাঁচ সিকের চাকরি আর তিন কড়ার বুদ্ধি শীঘ্রই ঘুচবে। তবে তার কর্ম বাজার-হাট ইত্যাদি করা; সেই কর্ম মন দিয়ে করলে -- অর্থাৎ তাঁর ছেলেপুলের সেবা করলেই তার পরম কল্যাণ হবে। লেকচার-ফেকচার সে এ জন্মের মতো সিকেয় তুলে রাখুক, আসছে বারে দেখা যাবে। তাকে নিজের বুদ্ধি খরচ করতে বারণ করো। যেমনটি বলি দাগা বুলিয়ে যাক। নইলে উলটো উৎপত্তি করে বসবে। 'হাঁ জী হাঁ জী করতে রহিও বৈঠি আপনা ঠাম'।

যোগেন কেমন আছে? হটকো কি চাকরি করতে যাচ্ছে -- কি করছে? হটকোকে একটু লেখাপড়া শেখাবে -- এখনও বয়স আছে। সব খবর খুলে লিখতে হয় -- এ-কথা খুব মনে রেখো। গুপ্ত পড়ছে শুনছে কেমন? তুলসী, লেটোকে ঘুমুতে দিও, যা খেতে চায় দিও, তাড়া দিওনা বিলকুল। বাবুরাম কি করছে; হরি, রাখাল কেমন আছে ইত্যাদি বিলকুল লিখবে। সকল কথা খোলসা করে শুনবে -- আবোল-তাবোল কে কি বললে হরমোহনী ডৌলে লেখবার দরকার নাই। হরমোহনের সাংসারিক অবস্থা কেমন? তারকদাদা খুব কাজ করছে; বাঃ! বাঃ! সাবাস! ঐ-রকম চাই। এক-একটা নক্ষত্রের মতো ছুটে পড় দিকি! গঙ্গা কি করছে? রাজপুতানায় কতকগুলো জমিদার তাকে মানে; তাদের কাছ থেকে ভিক্ষে করে মঠের জন্য টাকা পাঠাতে বলো... ।

শাঁকচুন্নীর বই এইমাত্র পড়লাম। তাকে আমার লক্ষ-লক্ষাধিক প্রেমালিঙ্গন দিবে। তার কণ্ঠে তিনি আবির্ভাব হচ্ছেন। ধন্য শাঁকচুন্নী! শাঁকচুন্নী ঐ পুঁথি সকলকে শোনা। মহোৎসবে শাঁকচুন্নীর পুঁথি সকলের সামনে যেন পড়ে। পুঁথি অতি বড় যদি হয় তো চুম্বক চুম্বক করে যেন পড়ে। শাঁকচুন্নী একটাও আবোল-তাবোল তো লিখে নাই। আমি তার পুঁথি পড়ে যে কি আনন্দ পেয়েছি, তা আর কি বলব! শাঁকচুন্নীর পুঁথি যাতে খুব বিক্রি হয়, সকলে পড়ে (মিলে) চেষ্টা করবে। তারপর শাঁকচুন্নীকে গাঁয়ে গাঁয়ে প্রচার করতে যেতে বলো। বাহবা, সাবাস, এর চেয়ে তার আর কি ভাগ্য হবে?... শশী, শাঁকচুন্নীর পুঁথি and শাঁকচুন্নী himself (নিজে) must electrify the masses (জনসাধারণে শক্তিসঞ্চার করবে)। আরে মোর শাঁকচুন্নী, তোকে প্রাণ খুলে আশীর্বাদ করছি ভাই! প্রভু তোর কণ্ঠে বসুন, দ্বারে দ্বারে তাঁর নাম শুনো। সন্ন্যাসী হবার আবশ্যিক কিছুই নাই। শশী, mass (জনসাধারণ)-এর মধ্যে সন্ন্যাসী হওয়া উচিত নয়। শাঁকচুন্নী is the future apostle for the masses of Bengal (বাঙলার জনসাধারণের নিকট ভাবী বার্তাবহ)। শাঁকচুন্নীকে খুব যত্ন করবে! তার বিশ্বাস-ভক্তির ফল ফলেছে। শাঁকচুন্নীকে এই ক-টা কথা লিখতে বলো -- তার তৃতীয় খন্ডে, প্রচার খন্ডে:

‘বেদবেদান্ত, আর আর সব অবতার যা কিছু করে গেছেন, তিনি একলা নিজের জীবনে তা করে দেখিয়ে গেছেন। তাঁর জীবন না বুঝলে বেদবেদান্ত অবতার প্রভৃতি বোঝা যায় না -- কেন না, He was the explanation (তিনি ব্যাখ্যাস্বরূপ ছিলেন)। তিনি যেদিন থেকে জন্মেছেন, সেদিন থেকে সত্যযুগ এসেছে। এখন সব ভেদাভেদ উঠে গেল, আচন্ডাল প্রেম পাবে। মেয়ে-পুরুষ-ভেদ, ধনী-নির্ধনের ভেদ, পণ্ডিত-বিদ্বান-ভেদ, ব্রাহ্মণ-চন্ডাল-ভেদ সব তিনি দূর করে দিয়ে গেলেন। আর তিনি বিবাদ-ভঙ্গন -- হিন্দু মুসলমান-ভেদ, খ্রিস্টান-হিন্দু ইত্যাদি সব চলে গেল। ঐ যে ভেদাভেদে লড়াই ছিল, তা অন্য যুগের; এ সত্যযুগে তাঁর প্রেমের বন্যায় সব একাকার।’

এই ভাবগুলো তার ভাষায় বিস্তার করে লিখতে বলবে। যে তাঁর পূজা করবে সে অতি নীচ হলেও

মুহূর্তমধ্যে অতি মহান হবে -- মেয়ে বা পুরুষ। আর এবারে মাতৃভাব -- তিনি মেয়ে সেজে থাকতেন, তিনি যেন আমাদের মা -- তেমনি সকল মেয়েকে মার ছায়া বলে দেখতে হবে। ভারতের দুই মহাপাপ -- মেয়েদের পায়ে দলানো, আর ‘জাতি জাতি’ করে গরিবগুলোকে পিষে ফেলা। He was the Saviour of women, Saviour of the masses, Saviour of all high and low.⁸ আর শাঁকচুন্নী ঘরে ঘরে তাঁর পূজা করাক। ব্রাহ্মণ, চন্ডাল, মেয়ে বা পুরুষ -- তাঁর পূজায় সকলের অধিকার। যে ঘটস্থাপনা বা প্রতিমা করে তাঁর পূজা করবে - - মন্ত্র হোক বা না হোক -- যেমন করে যে-ভাষায় যার হাত দিয়ে হোক -- খালি ভক্তি করে যে পূজা করবে, সেই ধন্য হয়ে যাবে। -- এই ডৌলে লিখতে বলো। কুছ পরোয়া নাই; প্রভু তার সহায় হবেন। কিমধিকমিতি

পুঃ -- মোক্ষমূলারকে -- তিনি ভারতের পরম সহায় -- এইভাবে পত্র লিখিবে। বোধহয় লিখিয়াছ।... সে বই আমি অনেকদিন দেখেছি, তাতে আমার ভাবের আভাসও আছে।

যে অভিধানের বিজ্ঞাপন পাঠিয়ে দিয়েছিলে, তা দু-চার বন্ধুকে পাঠিয়েছি -- কি ফল হবে, তা জানি না। তুমি একখানা নারদ-আর শান্ডিল্যসূত্র এবং একখানা ‘যোগবাশিষ্ঠ’ -- যা কলকেতায় তর্জমা হয়েছে -- তা পাঠিয়ে দিতে সাঙেলকে বলবে। ‘যোগবাশিষ্ঠে’র ইংরেজী তর্জমা, বাংলা নয়। ইতি

শাঁকচুন্নী যেন আমার opinion (মত) in his book (তাঁর পুঁথিতে) না ছাপে। তাকে মুখে তুমি বলবে -- অথবা পড়ে শুনাবে। যাকে তাকে আমার correspondence (চিঠিপত্র) পড়তে দিবে না। এ-সমস্ত private (ব্যক্তিগত)। কথা কানে হাঁটে। ইতি

অভিনন্দনসহ,

তোমার ও সান্যালের পত্রে সবিশেষ অবগত হইলাম। তোমার চিঠি লেখার দুইটি দোষ -- বিশেষ তোমার। প্রথম -- কে-সকল কাজের কথা জিজ্ঞাসা করি, প্রায় তার কোনটিরই জবাব থাকে না; দ্বিতীয় -- জবাব লেখায় অত্যন্ত বিলম্ব। তোমরা তো ঘরে বসে আছ ভায়া! আমাকে এ বিদেশে পেটের চেষ্টি করতে হয়, আবার দিনরাত খাটতে হয়; তার উপর লাটিমের মতো ঘুরে বেড়ান।... আমি এখন বেশ বুঝতে পারছি যে, আমায় একা কাজ করতে হবে।

শশী সর্বাপেক্ষা উপযুক্ত বটে; কিন্তু তোমরা খালি শশীর আসা সম্ভব কিনা তাই বিচার করছ।... এ সকল হল মহাবিলাসী বাবুর দেশ, নখের কোণে একটু ময়লা থাকলে তাকে স্পর্শ করে না। শরৎ আসতে না চায় সারদাকে পাঠাবে। অথবা মাদ্রাজে লিখে কোন লোক পাঠাবে। প্রায় দু-মাস পূর্বে আমি এ-বিষয়ে লিখেছি। তারকদা শেষ পত্রে লিখেন যে, পর মেলে (ডাকে) এ-বিষয়ে সবিশেষ জানাবে। কিন্তু এখন দেখছি তার কিছুই ঠিকানা হয় নাই। আশা ছিল -- আমি থাকতে থাকতেই কেউ আসবে; কিন্তু এখনও তো কিছুই ঠিকানা নাই, এবং দু-বছরে এক-একটা সংবাদ আসে। Business is business -- অর্থাৎ কাজকর্ম তৎপর করতে হয়, গড়িমসির কাজ নয়। আসছে সপ্তাহের শেষে আমি আমেরিকায় যাব। অতএব যে আসবে, তার সঙ্গে সাক্ষাতের কোন আশা নাই।

গিরিশবাবু আমার কাজে সহায়তা করতে পারবেন -- কেমন করে? আমি চাই সংস্কৃত-জানা লোক, অর্থাৎ বই-টাই তর্জমা করতে সহায়তা করে স্টার্ডিকে, আমার অনুপস্থিতিতে স্টার্ডির সঙ্গে বইপত্র তর্জমা করে -- এইমাত্র। অধিক আমি আশা করি না।... কেবল এই দরকার, আমার অনুপস্থিতিকালে একটু আধটু সংস্কৃত পড়ায় বা তর্জমা করে -- এই বস্ আবার কি করবে? গিরিশবাবু এদেশে বেড়িয়ে যান না বেশ কথা। ইংলন্ড ও আমেরিকা ঘুরে যেতে ৩০০০ টাকা মাত্র পড়বে। যত লোক এ-সব দেশে আসে ততই ভাল। তবে ঐ টুপিপড়া হতভাগাদের দেখলে গা জ্বলে। ভূত কালো -- আবার সাহেব! ভদ্রলোকের মতো দেশী কাপড়-চোপড় পর বাবা, তা না হয়ে ঐ জানোয়ারী রূপ!

আর কেন, হরি বল! এখানে সমস্তই ব্যয়, আয় এক পয়সাও নাই। স্টার্ডি আমার জন্য অনেক টাকা খরচ করেছে। এখানে লেকচারে আমাদের দেশের মতো উলটে ঘর থেকে খরচ করতে হয়। তবে অনেকদিন করলে ও খাতির জমে গেলে খরচটা পুষিয়ে যায়। টাকাকড়ি সেই যা প্রথম বৎসর আমেরিকায় করি (তারপর হাতে এক পয়সাও নিই না), তা প্রায় ফুড়িয়ে গেল; আমেরিকায় পঁছিব্বার মতো মাত্র আছে। আমার এই ঘুরে ঘুরে লেকচার করে শরীর অত্যন্ত nervous (স্নায়ুপ্রধান) হয়ে পড়েছে -- প্রায় ঘুম হয় না, ইত্যাদি। তার উপর একলা। দেশের লোকের কথা কি বল? কেউ না একটা পয়সা দিয়ে এ-পর্যন্ত সহায়তা করেছে, না একজন সাহায্য করতে এগিয়েছে। এ সংসারে সকলেই সাহায্য চায় -- এবং যত কর ততই চায়। তারপর যদি আর না পার তো তুমি চোর!

... যা লিখতে হয় স্টার্ডিকে লিখবে -- লোক পাঠাবার মতামত -- যখন আসছে যুগে তোমরা সিদ্ধান্ত
উপস্থিত হবে। ...শশীকে আমি বিশ্বাস করি, ভালবাসি। He is the only faithful and true man there
(ওখানে সে-ই একমাত্র বিশ্বস্ত ও খাঁটি লোক)। তার ব্যামো-ফ্যামো সব প্রভুর কৃপায় ভাল হয়ে যাবে। তার সব ভার আমার। ...ইতি

প্রিয় শশী,

তোমার চিঠি, চুনিবাবুর চিঠি, সাভেলের চিঠি পূর্বে পাইয়াছি। রাখালের চিঠি আজ পাইলাম। রাখাল gravel-এ (পাথরিতে) ভুগিয়াছে শুনিয়া দুঃখিত হইলাম। বোধহয়, বদহজমের কারণ হইয়া থাকিবে।... মঠের business (কাজকর্ম) মাস্টার মহাশয় যদি রাজি হন, তাঁকে দিয়ে করাবে, অথবা হটকোকে দিয়ে। সাভেলকে তার সংসার দেখতে বলবে, মঠের কাজে-টাজে বৃথা সময় ব্যয় না করে। হটকোর দেনা শোধ হয়ে গেছে, এখন মাথা মুড়িয়ে নিতে বলবে।... আমি আধা জলে-স্থলে লোক চাই না।

হরমোহনকে বলবে, লেকচার-ফেকচার এখন আমার কিছুই নাই। সুরেশ দত্তের এক 'নারদসূত্র' তোমরা পাঠিয়েছিলে। কেন, দুনিয়ায় কি আর নারদসংহিতা ছাপা ছিল না?... হরমোহন কি-একটা Lord (লর্ড) রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস করেছে? Lordটা আবার কি -- English Lord না Duke?

রাখালকে বলবে, লোকে যা হয় বলুক গে। 'লোক না পোক'। ভাবের ঘরে তোমাদের চুরি না থাকে এবং Jesuitism-এর (কপটতার) দিক মাড়াবে না। Orthodox (আনুষ্ঠানিক) পৌরাণিক হিন্দু আমি কোন্ কালে, বা আচারী হিন্দু কোন্ কালে? I do not pose as one.^১ বাঙালীরাই আমাকে মানুষ করলে, টাকাকড়ি দিয়ে পাঠালে, এখনও আমাকে এখানে পরিপোষণ করছে -- অহ হা!! তাদের মন জুগিয়ে কথা বলতে হবে -- না? বাঙালীরা কি বলে না বলে, ওসব কি গ্রাহ্যের মধ্যে নিতে হয় নাকি? ওদের দেশে বার বছরের মেয়ের ছেলে হয়! যাঁর জন্মে ওদের দেশ পবিত্র হয়ে গেল, তাঁর একটা সিকি পয়সার কিছু করতে পারলে না, আবার লম্বা কথা! বাঙলা দেশে বুদ্ধি যাব আর মনে করেছ? ওরা ভারতবর্ষের নামখারাপ করেছে।... মঠ করতে হয় পশ্চিমে রাজপুতানায়, পাঞ্জাবে even (এমন কি) বোম্বায়ে। বাঙালি!... লন্ডনে কতকগুলো কাফির মতো -- আবার টুপি-টাপা মাথায় দিয়ে ঘুরতে দেখতে পাই। কালো হাতে খানা ছুঁলে ইংরেজরা খায় না -- এই আদর! ঝি-চাকরের দলে ইয়ারকি দিয়ে দেশে গিয়ে বড়লোক হয়!! রাম! রাম! আহর গৌড়ি গুগলি, পান প্রস্রাব-সুবাসিত পুকুরজল, ভোজনপাত্র ছেঁড়া কলাপাতা এবং ছেলের মলমূত্র-মিশ্রিত ভিজে মাটির মেজে, বিহার পেত্নী শাঁকচুম্বীর সঙ্গে, বেশ দিগম্বর কৌপীন ইত্যাদি, মুখে যত জোর! ওদের মতামতে কি আসে যায় রে ভাই? তোরা আপনার কাজ করে যা। মানুষের কি মুখ দেখিস, ভগবানের মুখ দেখ।

^১ এরূপ একজন লোক বলে তো নিজেকে জাহির করি না।

পাণিনিসূত্রের বা কাশিকাবৃত্তি বা ফনিভাষ্যের যদি কোনও বাঙলা বা ইংরেজী (এলাহাবাদের শ্রীশ বসুর) তরজমা থাকে তো পাঠাবে।

--গুলোকে টাকাকড়ির কাজে একদম বিশ্বাস করবে না; অত কাঞ্চন ত্যাগ করতে হবে না। নিজেরা কড়িপাতির খরচ-আদায় সমস্ত করবে। এখন তোদের বাঙালিদের বল দিকি, আমাকে একখানা 'বাচস্পতা' অভিধান পাঠিয়ে দিতে -- দেখি বচনবাগীশের দল! ইংরেজের দেশে ধর্মকর্মের কাজ বড়ই ধীরে ধীরে। এরা হয় গোঁড়া, না হয় নাস্তিক। গোঁড়াগুলো আবার অমনি 'নমো নমো' ধর্ম করে, 'Patriotism (স্বদেশপ্ৰীতি) আমাদের ধর্ম' -- এই মাত্র।

তোমার উপর আমার এখনও বিশ্বাস আছে। খেতড়ির রাজা যা কিছু খবর চান, তুমি নিজে লিখবে, অন্য কাউকেই জানতে পর্যন্ত দেবে না। যে সকল লোক আমাদের সহিত interested (আগ্রহান্বিত) তাদের regularly (নিয়মিতভাবে) চিঠিপত্র লিখবে। Interest (আগ্রহ) জাগিয়ে রাখবে। বাংলাদেশময় জায়গায় জায়গায় centre (কেন্দ্র) করবার চেষ্টা কর। তোমরা তো কোন কিছু এ পর্যন্ত করে উঠতে পারলে না দেখছি; খালি বচন ঝাড়ুছ! তোমারই যেন শরীর খারাপ, বাকিগুলো করছে কি? খালি আমরা লর্ড রামকৃষ্ণের শিষ্য! বলি ও লর্ড রামকৃষ্ণ ব্যাপারটা কি হে? হরমোহনটা তো আধপাগলা বই নয় -- ও একটা কি লর্ড রামকৃষ্ণ লেখে বল তো? লর্ড, ডিউক আবার কি হে? খেপাগুলোর জ্বালায় অস্থির! এখন এই পর্যন্ত। পরের চিঠিতে হালছাল লিখব। Sturdy (স্টার্ডি) সাহেবটি বড়ই ভাল, ভারি গোঁড়া বৈদান্তিক, সংস্কৃত একটু আধটু বোঝে। বহুত পরিশ্রম করলে তবে একটু আধটু কাজ হয় এ-সব দেশে -- বড়ই শক্ত কাজ, আর শীতে বাদলে। তার উপর এখানে ঘরের খেয়ে বনের মোষ তাড়ান। ইংরেজরা লেকচার-ফেকচার শুনতে একটি পয়সাও দেয় না। যদি শুনতে আসে তো তোমার ভাগ্যি, যেমন আমাদের দেশে। তার ওপর এদেশে সাধারণে আমায় জানেও না এখন। তার উপর ভগবান-টগবান বললে ওরা পালিয়ে যায়, বলে -- ঐ রে পাদরী বুঝি! তুমি বসে বসে একটা কাজ কর -- ঋগ্বেদ থেকে আরম্ভ করে, সামান্য পুরাণ তন্ত্র পর্যন্ত সৃষ্টি প্রলয় সম্বন্ধে, জাতি সম্বন্ধে, স্বর্গ নরক আত্মা মন বুদ্ধি ইত্যাদি, ইন্দ্রিয় মুক্তি সংসার (পুনর্জন্ম) সম্বন্ধে কে কি বলে, একত্র করতে থাক। ছেলেখেলা করলে কি হয়? Real scholarly work (রীতিমত পাণ্ডিত্যপূর্ণ বই) চাই। Material (উপাদান) যোগাড় হচ্ছে আসল কাজ। সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা। ইতি

যে যা করে, করতে দিও (উৎপাত ছাড়া)। টাকাখরচ বিলকুল তোমার হাতে রেখো।... অধিক কি বলিব? তুমি ইদিক ওদিক যাওয়াটা বড় একটা ত্যাগ কর। ঘর জাগিয়ে বসে থাক।... স্বাস্থ্যটার উপর বেজায় নজর রাখা চাই -- পরে অন্য কথা। তারকদাদা দেশপর্যটনে উৎসুক -- বেশ কথা, তবে এ সব দেশে বড়ই মাগগি, ১০০০ টাকার কমে মাসে চলে না (ধর্মপ্রচারকের)।... এদের দেশের বাঘভাল্লুকে পাদ্রি-পন্ডিতদের মুখ হতে রুটি ছিনিয়ে নিয়ে খেতে হবে -- এই বুঝ। অর্থাৎ বিদ্যের জোরে এদের দাবিয়ে দিতে হবে, নইলে ফু করে উড়িয়ে দেবে। এরা না বোঝে সাধু, না বোঝে সন্ন্যাসী, না বোঝে ত্যাগ-বৈরাগ্য; বোঝে বিদ্যের তোড়, বক্তৃতার ধুম আর মহা উদ্যোগ। আমার মতে কিন্তু যদি তারকদাদা পাঞ্জাব বা মাদ্রাজে কতকগুলি সভা ইত্যাদি স্থাপন করে বেড়ান ও তোমরা একত্রিত হয়ে organised (সজ্জবদ্ধ) হও তো বড়ই ভাল হয়। নূতন পথ আবিষ্কার করা বড় কাজ বটে; কিন্তু উক্ত পথ পরিষ্কার করা ও প্রশস্ত সুন্দর করাও কঠিন কাজ। আমি যেখানে যেখানে প্রভুর বীজ বপন করে এসেছি, তোমরা যদি সেই সেই স্থানে কিয়ৎকাল বাস করে উক্ত বীজকে বৃক্ষে পরিণত করতে পার, তাহা হইলেও আমার অপেক্ষা অনেক অধিক কাজ তোমরা করবে। উপস্থিত যারা রক্ষা করতে পারে না, তারা অনুপস্থিতে কি করিবে? তৈয়ারি রান্নায় একটু-নুন-তেল যদি দিতে না পার, তাহলে কেমন করে বিশ্বাস হয় যে, সকল যোগাড় করবে? না হয় তারকদাদা আলমোড়ায় একটা হিমালয়ান মঠ স্থাপন করুন, এবং সেথায় একটা লাইব্রেরী করুন; আমরা দু-দশ ঠাণ্ডা জায়গায় বাস করি এবং সাধনভজন করি। যা হোক, প্রভু যাকে যেমন বুদ্ধি দেন, আমার তাতে আপত্তি কি? অপিচ Godspeed -- শিবা বঃ সন্তু পছানঃ। তারকদাদার হৃদয়ে মহা উৎসাহ আছে; এজন্য তাঁহা হতে আমি অনেক আশা করি। তারকদাদার সহিত এক থিওসফিস্টের মূল্যাকাত হয়। সে লন্ডন হতে আমাকে এক চিঠি লেখে। তারপর আর তো খবরাখবর নাই। সে ব্যক্তি ধনী বটে, সে তারকদাদার উপর শ্রদ্ধাবানও বটে। তার নামটা ভুলে গেছি। সে তাঁকে লন্ডনাদি ভ্রমণ করাইতে পারে; এবং আমি যে কার্য করিতে চাই, তাহা সমাধানের জন্য তোমাদের কয়েকজনকে ইওরোপ ও আমেরিকা দেখাইয়া লওয়া অবশ্য কর্তব্য। একচক্র ভ্রমণের পর হৃদয় উদার হবে, তখন আমার idea (ভাব) বুঝতে পারবে ও কাজ করতে পারবে। তবে আমার হাতে টাকা নাই, কি করি? শীঘ্রই প্রভু রাস্তা খুলে দেবেন --

অভিনন্দনদেয়,

তুমি অবগত আছ যে, আমি এক্ষণে ইংলন্ডে। প্রায় এক মাস যাবৎ এখানে থাকিয়া পুনঃ আমেরিকা যাত্রা করিব। আগামি গ্রীষ্মকালে পুনঃ ইংলন্ডে আসিব। এক্ষণে ইংলন্ডে বিশেষ কিছু হইবার আশা নাই, তবে প্রভু সর্বশক্তিমান। ধীরে ধীরে দেখা যাউক।

ইতঃপূর্বে শরতকে আসিবার টাকা পাঠাইয়াছি ও পত্র লিখিয়াছি। শরৎ বা শশী দুইজনের একজন যাহাতে আইসে তাহা করিবে। শশীর রোগ যদি সম্পূর্ণ আরোগ্য হইয়া থাকে, অর্থাৎ নিশ্চিহ্ন হইয়া থাকে, তাহা হইলে পাঠাইবে। চর্মরোগ শীতপ্রধান দেশে বড় প্রবল হইতে পারে না -- উহা এই দারুণ শীতে একদম সারিয়া যাইতে পারে। নতুবা শরৎকে।... Sturdy (স্টার্ডি) সাহেবের টাকা, সে যে-প্রকার লোক চায়, সেই প্রকার আনাইতে হইবে। উক্ত মিঃ স্টার্ডি আমার নিকট দীক্ষা গ্রহণ করিয়াছে এবং বড়ই উদ্যমী সজ্জন। থিওসফির হাঙ্গামায় পড়িয়া বৃথা সময় নষ্ট করিয়াছে বলিয়া বড়ই আপসোস।

প্রথমতঃ এরূপ লোক চাই, যাহার ইংরেজী এবং সংস্কৃতে বিশেষ বোধ। ‘-’ শীঘ্র ইংরেজী শিখিতে পারিবেন এখানে আসিলে, সত্য বটে, কিন্তু এদেশে শিখিতে লোক এখনও আনিতে পারি না; যাহারা শিখাইতে পারিবে, তাহাদের প্রথম চাই। দ্বিতীয় কথা এই যে, যাহারা সম্পদে বিপদে আমায় ত্যাগ করিবে না, তাহাদের আমি বিশ্বাস করি।... আত্যন্ত বিশ্বাসী লোক চাই, তারপর গোড়াপত্তন হয়ে গেলে যার ইচ্ছা গোলমাল কর, ভয় নাই।

... দাদা, না হয় রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস একটা মিছে বস্তুই ছিল, না হয় তাঁর আশ্রিত হওয়া একটা বড় ভুল কর্মই হয়েছে, কিন্তু এখন উপায় কি? একটা জন্ম না হয় বাজেই গেল; মরদের বাত কি ফেরে? দশ স্বামী কি হয়? তোমরা যে যার দলে যাও, আমার কোন আপত্তি নাই, তবে এ দুনিয়া ঘুরে দেখছি যে, তাঁর ঘর ছাড়া আর সকল ঘরেই ‘ভাবের ঘরে চুরি’। তাঁর জনের উপর আমার একান্ত ভালবাসা, একান্ত বিশ্বাস। কি করিব? একঘেয়ে বল বলবে, কিন্তু ঐটি আমার আসল কথা। যে তাঁকে আত্মসমর্পণ করেছে, তার পায়ে কাঁটা বিঁধলে আমার হাড়ে লাগে, অন্য সকলকে আমি ভালবাসি। আমার মতো অসাম্প্রদায়িক জগতে বিরল, কিন্তু ঐটুকু আমার গোঁড়ামি, মাফ করবে। তাঁর দোহাই ছাড়া কার দোহাই দেব? আসছে জন্মে না হয় বড় গুরু দেখা যাবে, এ জন্মে এ শরীর সেই মূর্খ বামুন কিনে নিয়েছে।

সঁপে দেও। আমাদের আর কি চাই? ভক্তি নিজেই যে ফলস্বরূপা -- আবার কি চাই? হে ভাই, যিনি খাইয়ে পরিয়ে বুদ্ধি বিদ্যে দিয়ে মানুষ করলেন, যিনি আত্মার চক্ষু খুলে দিলেন, যাঁকে দিনরাত দেখলে যে জীবন্ত ঈশ্বর, যাঁর পবিত্রতা আর প্রেম আর ঐশ্বর্য রাম, কৃষ্ণ, বুদ্ধ, যীশু, চৈতন্য প্রভৃতিতে এক কণা মাত্র প্রকাশ, তাঁর কাছে নিমকহারামি!!! তোর বুদ্ধ, কৃষ্ণ প্রভৃতি তিন ভাগ গল্প বই তো নয়,... অমন ঠাকুরের দয়া ভোল!... কেঁপে, যীশু জন্মেছিলেন কিনা, তার কোনই প্রমাণ নাই; আর সাক্ষাৎ ঠাকুরকে দেখেও তোদের মাঝে মাঝে মতিভ্রম হয়! ধিক্ তোদের জীবনে!! আর আমি কি বলিব? দেশে দেশে নাস্তিক পাষণ্ডে তাঁর ছবি পূজা করছে, আর তোদের মতিভ্রম হয় সময়ে সময়ে!! তোদের মতো লাখ লাখ তিনি নিশ্বাসে তৈরি করে নেবেন। তোদের জন্ম ধন্য, কুল ধন্য, দেশ ধন্য যে, তাঁর পায়ের ধূলা পেয়েছিস। আমি কি করিব, আমাকে কাজেই গোঁড়া হতে হচ্ছে। আমি যে তাঁর জন ছাড়া আর কোথাও পবিত্রতা ও নিঃস্বার্থতা দেখতে পাই না। সকল জায়গাতেই যে ভাবের ঘরে চুরি, কেবল তাঁর ঘর ছাড়া। তিনি যে রক্ষা করছেন, দেখতে পাচ্ছি যে। ওরে পাগল, পরীর মতো মেয়ে সব, লাখ লাখ টাকা -- এ সকল তুচ্ছ হয়ে যাচ্ছে, এ কি আমার জোরে? না, তিনি রক্ষা করছেন? তাঁর জন ছাড়া যে আমি কাউকেই একটা টাকা, একটা মেয়ে মানুষের কাছে বিশ্বাস করিনে। যাঁর তাঁকে বিশ্বাস নাই আর মা-ঠাকুরানীতে ভক্তি নাই, তার ঘোড়ার ডিমও হবে না, সাদা বাঙলা বললুম, মনে রেখো।

...হরমোহন দূরবস্থা জানিয়েছেন এবং শীঘ্রই স্থান-ছাড়া হতে হবে বলছেন। লেকচার চেয়েছেন -- লেকচার-ফেকচার এখন কিছু নাই, তবে কিছু টাকা এখনও গাঁটে আছে -- তাঁকে পাঠিয়ে দেব, ভয় নাই। পত্রপাঠ পাঠিয়ে দিতাম, কিন্তু সন্দেহ হচ্ছে যে, আমার টাকা মারা গেছে -- সেজন্যই পাঠাই নাই। দ্বিতীয়তঃ কোন্ ঠিকানায় পাঠাব, তা তো জানি না। মাদ্রাজীরা দেখছি, কাগজ বার করতে পারলে না। বিষয়বুদ্ধি হিন্দুজাতির যে একেবারেই নাই। যে সময়ে যে কাজ প্রতিশ্রুত হও, ঠিক সেই সময়ে তা করা চাই; নতুবা লোকের বিশ্বাস চলে যায়। টাকাকড়ির কথা পত্রপাঠ জবাব দিতে হয়।... মাস্টার মশায় যদি রাজি হন, তাহলে তাঁকে কলকাতার এজেন্ট হতে বলবে, কারণ তাঁর উপর আমার পূর্ণ বিশ্বাস এবং তিনি এই সকল বিষয় অনেক বুঝেন, ছেলেমানুষি হুড়দঙ্গুলের কাজ নয়। একটা Centre (কেন্দ্র) -- ঠিকানা তাঁকে করতে বলবে, যে ঠিকানা -- ঘড়ি-ঘড়ি বদলাবে না ও যে ঠিকানায় আমি কলকাতার সমস্ত চিঠিপত্র পাঠিয়ে দেব।...

...তোমার কাগজের idea (সঙ্কল্প) অতি উত্তম এবং উঠে পড়ে লেগে যা, পরোয়া নেই। ৫০০ টাকা পত্রপাঠ পাঠিয়ে দেব, ভাবনা নাই টাকার জন্য। আপাতত এই চিঠি দেখিয়ে কারুর কাছে ধার করে নে। এই চিঠির জবাব -- চিঠির উত্তরে আমি ৫০০ টাকা পাঠিয়ে দেব। ৫০০ টাকায় কিছু আসে যায় কি? খ্রীষ্টিয়ান, মুসলমান ধর্ম প্রচারের ঢের লোক আছে, তুই আপনার দেশী ধর্মের প্রচার এখন করে ওঠ দিকি। তবে কোনও আরবী জানা মুসলমান-ভাষা ধরে যদি পুরান আরবী গ্রন্থের তর্জমা করাতে পার, ভাল হয়। ফার্সী ভাষায় অনেক Indian History (ভারতীয় ইতিহাস) আছে। যদি সেগুলো ক্রমে ক্রমে তর্জমা করাতে পার, একটা বেশ regular item (নিয়মিত বিষয়) হবে। লেখক অনেক চাই। তারপর গ্রাহক যোগাড়ই মুশকিল। উপায় তোরা দেশে দেশে ঘুরে বেড়াস, বাঙলা ভাষা যেখানে যেখানে আছে, লোক ধরে কাগজ গতিয়ে দিবি।... চালাও কাগজ, কুছ পরোয়া নাই। শশী, শরৎ, কালি প্রভৃতি সকলে পড়ে (মিলে) আরম্ভ কর। ঘরে বসে ভাত খেলে কি হয়? তুই খুব বাহাদুরি করেছিস। বাহবা, সাবাস! গুঁজগুঁজেগুলো পেছ পড়ে থাকবে হাঁ করে, আর তুই লক্ষ্য দিয়ে সকলের মাথায় উঠে যাবি। ওরা নিজেদের উদ্ধার করছে না হবে ওদের উদ্ধার, নি হবে কারুর। মোচ্ছব (মহোৎসব) এমনি মাচাবি যে, দুনিয়াময় তার আওয়াজ যায়। অনেকে আছেন, যাঁরা কেবল খুঁত কাড়তে পিরেন; কিন্তু কাজের বেলা তো 'খোঁজ খবর নহি পাওয়ে।' লেগে যা, যত পারিস। পরে আমি ইন্ডিয়ায় (ভারতে) এসে তোলপাড় করে তুলব। ভয় কি? 'নাই নাই বললে সাপের বিষ উরে যায়।' -- নাই নাই বলে যে নাই হয়ে যেতে হবে!

অড়হর দাল, মুগের দাল, আমসত্ত্ব, আমসি, আমতেল, আমের মোরকা, বড়ি, মসলা সমস্ত ঠিকঠিকানায় পৌঁছিয়াছে। Bill of Lading-এতে (মাল-চালানের বিলে) নাম সহি করিবার ভুল হইয়াছিল ও invoice (চালান) ছিল না; তজ্জন্য কিঞ্চিৎ গোল হয়। পরে যাহা হটক ভালয় ভালয় সমস্ত দ্রব্য পৌঁছিয়াছে। বহু ধন্যবাদ! এক্ষণে যদি ইংলন্ডে স্টার্ডির ঠিকানায় -- High View, Caversham, Reading-এতে -- ঐ প্রকার দাল ও কিঞ্চিৎ আমতেল পাঠাও তো আমি ইংলন্ডে পৌঁছিলেই পাইব। ভাজা মুগদাল পাঠাইবার আবশ্যিক নাই। ভাজা দাল কিছু অধিক দিন থাকিলে বোধ হয় খারিপ হয়ে যায়। কিঞ্চিৎ ছোলার দাল পাঠাইবে। ইংলন্ডে duty (শুল্ক) নাই -- মাল পৌঁছিবার কোন গোল নাই। স্টার্ডিকে চিঠি লিখিয়া দিলেই সে মাল লইবে।

তোমার শরীর এখনও সারে নাই, বড়ই দুঃখের বিষয়। খুব ঠান্ডা দেশে যেতে পার, শীতকালে যেখানে বরফ বিস্তর পড়ে -- যথা দার্জিলিং? শীতের ঠুঁতোয় পেটভায়া দুরস্ত হয়ে যাবে, যেমন আমার হয়েছে। আর ঘি ও মসলা একদম ছেড়ে দিতে পার? মাখন ঘির চেয়ে শীঘ্র হজম হয়। অভিধান পৌঁছিলেই খবর দিব। আমার বিশেষ ভালবাসা জানিবে। ও সকলকে জানাইবে। নিরঞ্জনের খবর এখনও ঠিকানা করিতে পার নাই? গোলাপ-মা, যোগীন-মা, রামকৃষ্ণের মা, বাবুরামের মা, গৌর-মা প্রভৃতি সকলকে আমার প্রণামাদি জানাইবে। মহেন্দ্রবাবুর স্ত্রীকে আমার প্রণাম দিবে।

Dear Sarada (প্রিয় সারদা),^১

তোমার পত্রে সবিশেষ অবগত হইলাম। মহোৎসব উপলক্ষে আমি এক cable (তার) পাঠাই, তাহার কোন সংবাদ তো লিখ নাই দেখিতেছি। কয়েক মাস পূর্বে শশী যে সংস্কৃত অভিধান পাঠাইয়াছিল তাহা তো আজিও পৌঁছে নাই।... আমি শীঘ্রই ইংলন্ড যাইতেছি। শরতের এখন আসিবার কোনই আবশ্যিক নাই; কারণ আমি নিজেই ইংলন্ড যাইতেছি। যাদের মনের ঠিকানা করতে ছ-মাস লাগে, তাদের আমার দরকার নাই। তাকে ইওরোপ বেড়াবার জন্য আমি ডাকিও নাই এবং টাকাও আমার নাই। অতএব তাকে আসতে বারণ করবে, কাউকেই আসতে হবে না।

টিব্বেটের (তিব্বতের) সম্বন্ধে তোমার পত্র পাঠ করে তোমার বুদ্ধির উপর হত-শ্রদ্ধা হল। প্রথম -- নোটোভিচ-এর বই সত্য -- nonsense (বাজে কথা)! তুমি কি original (মূল গ্রন্থ) দেখেছ বা India-য় (ভারতে) এনেছ? দ্বিতীয় -- Jesus এবং Samaritan woman-এর (যীশু ও সামারিয়া-দেশীয় নারীর) ছবি কৈলাসের মঠে দেখেছ। কি করে জানলে সে যীশুর ছবি, ঘিষুর নয়? যদি তাও হয়, কি করে জানলে যে, কোনও খ্রিস্টান লোকের দ্বারা তাহা উক্ত মঠে স্থাপিত হয় নাই? টিব্বেটিয়ানদের (তিব্বতীদের) সম্বন্ধে তোমার মতামতও অযথার্থ। তুমি heart of Tibet (তিব্বতের ভিতরটা) তো দেখ নাই -- only a fringe of the trade-route (শুধু বাণিজ্য-পথের ধারে ধারে একটুখানি দেখিয়াছ)। ঐসকল স্থানে কেবল dregs of nation (জাতের নিকৃষ্ট ভাগটাই) দেখতে পাওয়া যায়। কলকাতার চীনেবাজার আর বড়বাজার দেখে যদি কেউ বাঙালীমাত্রকে চোর বলে, তা কি যথার্থ হয়?

শশীর সঙ্গে বিশেষ পরামর্শ করে article (প্রবন্ধ) প্রভৃতি লিখবে...। ইতি

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার পত্রে সবিশেষ অবগত হইলাম। শরৎ পৌঁছিয়াছে সংবাদ পাইলাম। তোমার প্রেরিত Indian Mirror (ইন্ডিয়ান মিরর) ও পত্র পাইলাম। লেখা উত্তম হইতেছে, বরাবর লিখিয়া যাও। দোষ দেখা বড়ই সহজ, গুণ দেখাই মহাপুরুষের ধর্ম -- এ কথা ভুলিবে না। ‘মুগের ডাল তৈয়ার হয় নাই’ মানে কি? ভাজা মুগের ডাল পাঠাইতে আমি পূর্বেই নিষেধ করিয়াছি; ছোলার ডাল ও কাঁচা মুগের ডাল পাঠাইতে বলি। ভাজা মুগ এতদূর আসিতে খারাপ ও বিস্বাদ হইয়া যায়, সিদ্ধ হয় না। যদি এবারও ভাজা মুগ হয়, টেমসের জলে যাইবে ও তোমাদের পন্ডশ্রম। আমার চিঠি না পড়িয়াই কাজ কেন কর? চিঠি হারাও বা কেন? যখন চিঠি লিখবে, পূর্বের পত্র সম্মুখে রাখিয়া লিখিবে। তোমাদের একটু business (কাজ-চালানোর) বুদ্ধি আবশ্যিক। যে-সকল কথা আমি জিজ্ঞাসা করি, তাহার উত্তর প্রায়ই পাই না -- কেবল আবোল-তাবোল! চিঠি হারায় কেন? ফাইল হয় না কেন? সকল কাজেই ছেলেমানুষ! আমার চিঠি হাটের মাঝে পড়া হয় বুঝি? আর যে আসে, সে-ই ফাইল টেনে চিঠি পড়ে বুঝি? You need a little business faculty.... Now what you want is organisation -- that requires strict obedience and division of labour. I will write out everything in particular from England, for which I start tomorrow. I am determined to make you decent workers thoroughly organised...’^১

‘Friend’ (ফ্রেন্ড -- বন্ধু) শব্দ সকলের প্রতি ব্যবহৃত হয়। ইংরেজী ভাষায় ও-সকল cringing politeness (দীনা হীনা ভদ্রতা) নাই; ঐ সকল বাঙলা শব্দের তর্জমা হাস্যাস্পদ হয়। রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস, ঈশ্বর, ভগবান -- ও-সকল এদেশে কি চলে? M -- has a tendency to put that stuff down everybody's throat, but that will make our movement a little sect. You keep separate from such attempts. At the same time, if people worship him as God, no harm. Neither encourage, nor discourage. The masses will always have the person, the higher ones, the principle; we want both. But principles are universal, not persons. Therefore stick to the principle. Principles are universal, not persons. Therefore stick to the principles he taught; let people think whatever they like of his person.... Truce to all quarrels and jealousy and bigotry! These will spoil everything. 'The first should be last and the last first'.^২

^১ তোমাদের একটু কাজ-চালানোর বুদ্ধি থাকা প্রয়োজন। এখন তোমাদের চাই সজ্ঞবদ্ধ হওয়া। সেজন্য সম্পূর্ণ আজ্ঞাবহতা এবং শ্রম-বিভাগের প্রয়োজন। আমি প্রত্যেকটি বিষয় খুঁটিনাটিভাবে ইংলন্ড থেকে লিখে পাঠাব, কাল ইংলন্ড যাত্রা করছি। তোমাদের আমি সজ্ঞবদ্ধ সুন্দর কর্মীতে পরিণত করবই।

প্রিয় শশী,

শ্রীজীর' সম্বন্ধে ম্যাক্সমূলারের লিখিত প্রবন্ধ আগামী মাসে প্রকাশিত হবে। তিনি তাঁর একখানি জীবনী লিখতে রাজী হয়েছেন। তিনি শ্রীজীর সমস্ত বাণী চান। সব উক্তিগুলি সাজিয়ে তাঁকে পাঠাও -- অর্থাৎ কর্মসম্বন্ধে সব এক জায়গায়, বৈরাগ্য সম্বন্ধে অন্যত্র, ঐরূপ ভক্তি, জ্ঞান ইত্যাদি ইত্যাদি সম্বন্ধে। তোমাকে এ কাজ এখনই শুরু করতে হবে। শুধু যে সব কথা ইংরেজীতে অচল, সেগুলি বাদ দিও।^১ বুদ্ধি করে সে সকল জায়গায় যথাসম্ভব অন্য কথা দিবে। 'কামিনী-কাঞ্চন'কে 'কাম-কাঞ্চন' করবে -- lust and gold etc. -- অর্থাৎ তাঁর উপদেশে সর্বজনীন ভাবটা প্রকাশ করা চাই। এই চিঠি কাহাকেও দেখাবার আবশ্যিক নাই। তুমি উক্ত কার্য সমাধা করে সমস্ত উক্তি ইংরেজী তর্জমা ও classify (শ্রেণীবিভাগ) করে 'প্রফেসর ম্যাক্সমূলার, অক্সফোর্ড ইউনিভার্সিটি, ইংলন্ড' -- ঠিকানায় পাঠাবে।

শরৎ কাল আমেরিকায় চলল। এখানকার কাজ পেকে উঠেছে। লন্ডনে একটি centre-এর (কেন্দ্রের) জন্য টাকা already (এর আগেই) উঠে গেছে। আমি next (আগামী) মাসে Switzerland (সুইজারলন্ড) গিয়ে এক দুই মাস থাকব। তারপর আবার লন্ডনে। আমার শুধু শুধু দেশে গিয়ে কি হবে? এই লন্ডন হল -- দুনিয়ার centre (কেন্দ্র)। India-র heart (ভারতের হৃৎপিণ্ড) এখানে। এখানে একটা গেড়ে না বসিয়ে কি যাওয়া হয়? তোরা পাগল নাকি? সম্প্রতি কালীকে আনাব, তাকে তৈয়ার থাকতে বলো। পত্রপাঠ যেন চলে আসে। দুই চারি দিনের মধ্যে তার জন্য টাকা পাঠাব ও কাপড়-চোপড় প্রভৃতি যা যা দরকার সমস্তই লিখে দেব। সেইমত সমস্ত ঠিক করা হয় যেন।

মাতাঠাকুরাণি প্রভৃতি সকলকে আমার অসংখ্য প্রণাম দিবে। মাদ্রাজে তারকদাদা যাচ্ছেন -- উত্তম কথা।

মহাতেজ, মহাবীর্য, মহা উৎসাহ চাই। মেয়ে-নেকড়ার কি কাজ? যে রকম লিখেছিলাম পূর্বপত্রে, সেই রকম ঠিক চলতে চেষ্টা করবে। Organisation (সঙ্ঘ) চাই।

Organisation is power and the secret of that is obedience (সঙ্ঘই শক্তি, আর আজ্ঞাবহতাই হল তার গূঢ় রহস্য)। কিমধিকমিতি

প্রিয় শশী,

এই পত্রপাঠ কালীকে ইংলন্ডে পাঠাইয়া দিবে। পূর্বের পত্রে সংবাদ পাইয়াছ। কলিকাতার মেসার্স
গ্রিন্ডলে কোম্পানির নিকট তাহার 2nd class passage (দ্বিতীয় শ্রেণীর পাথেয় খরচ) গিয়াছে ও কাপড়-চোপড়
কিনিতে যাহা কিছু লাগে তাহাও গিয়াছে। কাপড়-চোপড় অধিক কিছু আবশ্যিক নাই।

কালীকে কতকগুলি বই আনতে হবে। আমার কাছে কেবল ঋগ্বেদ-সংহিতা আছে। কালী যজুর্বেদ
সামবেদ অথর্ব-সংহিতা ও শতপথাদি যতগুলি ব্রাহ্মণ পাওয়া যায় এবং কতকগুলো সূত্র ও যাস্কর নিরুক্ত যদি পায়,
সঙ্গে করেই যেন আনে। অর্থাৎ ঐ বইগুলি আমার চাই।... ঐ বই একটা কাঠের বাক্সয় পুরে আনলেই হবে।

গড়িমসি যেমন শরতের বেলায় হয়েছিল, তা যেন না হয়; পত্রপাঠ চলে আসবে। শরৎ আমেরিকায়
চলে গেছে। আর এখানে কোন কাজ ছিল না -- অর্থাৎ ছ-মাস বাদে এল, তখন আমি এখানে। সে প্রকার না হয়
যেন। চিঠি হারিয়ে যেন না যায় -- শরতের বেলার মতো। তৎপর পাঠিয়ে দিবে। ইতি

কল্যাণবরেণু,

অদ্য রামদুলালবাবুর এক পত্র পাইলাম। তাহাতে তিনি লিখিতেছেন যে, দক্ষিণেশ্বরের মহোৎসবে অনেক বেশ্যা যাইয়া থাকে এবং সেজন্য অনেক ভদ্রলোকের তথায় যাইবার ইচ্ছা কম হইতেছে। পুনশ্চ -- তাঁহার মতে পুরুষদিগের একদিন এবং মেয়েদের আর একদিন হওয়া উচিত। তদ্বিষয়ে আমার বিচার এইঃ

১। বেশ্যারা যদি দক্ষিণেশ্বরের মহাতীর্থে যাইতে না পায় তো কোথায় যাইবে? পাপীদের জন্য প্রভুর বিশেষ প্রকাশ, পুণ্যবানের জন্য তত নহে।

২। মেয়েপুরুষ-ভেদাভেদ, জাতিভেদ, ধনভেদ, বিদ্যাভেদ ইত্যাদি নরক-দ্বাররূপ বহুভেদ সংসারের মধ্যেই থাকুক। পবিত্র তীর্থস্থলে ঐরূপ ভেদ যদি হয়, তাহা হইলে তীর্থ আর নরকে ভেদ কি?

৩। আমাদের মহা জগন্নাথপুরী -- যথায় পাপী-অপাপী, সাধু-অসাধু, আবালবৃদ্ধবনিতা নরনারী সকলের সমান অধিকার। বৎসরের মধ্যে একদিন অন্ততঃ সহস্র সহস্র নরনারী পাপবুদ্ধি ও ভেদবুদ্ধি হস্ত হইতে নিস্তার পাইয়া হরিনাম করে ও শোনে, ইহাই পরম মঙ্গল।

৪। যদি তীর্থস্থলেও লোকের পাপবৃত্তি একদিনের জন্য সঙ্কুচিত না হয়, তাহা তোমাদের দোষ, তাহাদের নহে। এমন মহা ধর্মস্রোত তোল যে, যে জীব তাহার নিকট আসবে, সে-ই ভেসে যাক।

৫। যাহারা ঠাকুরঘরে গিয়াও ঐ বেশ্যা, ঐ নীচ জাতি, ঐ গরিব, ঐ ছোটলোক ভাবে, তাহাদের (অর্থাৎ যাহাদের তোমরা ভদ্রলোক বল) সংখ্যা যতই কম হয়, ততই মঙ্গল। যাহারা ভক্তের জাতি বা যোনি বা ব্যবসায় দেখে, তাহারা আমাদের ঠাকুরকে কি বুঝিবে? প্রভুর কাছে প্রার্থনা করি যে, শত শত বেশ্যা আসুক তাঁর পায়ে মাথা নোয়াতে, বরং একজনও ভদ্রলোক না আসে নাই আসুক। বেশ্যা আসুক, মাতাল আসুক, চোর ডাকাত সকলে আসুক তাঁর অবারিত দ্বার। 'It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.'^১ এ সকল নিষ্ঠুর রাক্ষসীভাব মনেও স্থান দিবে না।

^১ ধনী ব্যক্তির ঈশ্বরের রাজ্যে প্রবেশ অপেক্ষা একটি উষ্ট্রের পক্ষে সূচের ছিদ্রের মধ্যে (খুব সরু পথে) প্রবেশও অপেক্ষাকৃত সহজ। -- বাইবেল

আমি এক্ষণে সুইজরলন্ডে ভ্রমণ করিতেছি -- শীঘ্র জার্মানিতে যাইব অধ্যাপক ডয়সনের সহিত দেখা করিতে। তথা হইতে ইংলন্ডে প্রত্যাগমন ২৩/২৪ সেপ্টেম্বর নাগাত এবং আগামী শীতে দেশে প্রত্যাবর্তন।

আমার ভালবাসা জানিবে ও সকলকে জানাইবে। ইতি

সুহৃদরেষু,

শুনিতেছি, অপরিহার্য সাংসারিক দুঃখ আপনার উপর পড়িয়াছে। আপনি জ্ঞানবান, দুঃখ কি করিতে পারে? তথাপি ব্যবহারিকে বন্ধু-জন-কর্তব্যবোধে এ কথার উল্লেখ। অপিচ, ঐ সকল ক্ষণ অনেক সময় সমধিক অনুভব আনয়ন করে। কিয়ৎকালের জন্য যেন বাদল সরিয়া যায় ও সত্যসূর্যের প্রকাশ হয়। কাহারও বা অর্ধেক বন্ধন খুলিয়া যায়। সকল বন্ধন অপেক্ষা মানের বন্ধন বড় দৃঢ় -- লোকের ভয় যমের ভয় অপেক্ষাও অধিক; তাও যেন একটু শ্লথ হইয়া পড়ে; মন যেন অন্ততঃ মুহূর্তের জন্য দেখিতে পায় যে, লোকের কথা -- মতামত অপেক্ষা অন্তর্য়ামী প্রভুর কথা শুনাই ভাল। আবার মেঘ ঢাকে, এই তো মায়া! যদিও বহু দিবস যাবৎ মহাশয়ের সহিত সাক্ষাৎ সম্বন্ধে পত্রাদি ব্যবহার হয় নাই, তথাপি অন্যের নিকট মহাশয়ের সকল সংবাদই প্রায় প্রাপ্ত হই। মধ্যে মহাশয় কৃপাপূর্বক এক গীতার অনুবাদ ইংলন্ডে আমায় প্রেরণ করেন। তাহার মলাটে একছত্র ভবৎ-হস্তলিপি মাত্র ছিল। শুনলাম, তাহার উত্তরপত্রে অতি অল্প কথা থাকায় মহাশয়ের মনে -- আপনার প্রতি আমার অনুরাগের সম্বন্ধে কিঞ্চিৎ সন্দেহ হইয়াছে।

উক্ত সন্দেহ অমূলক জানিবেন। অল্প কথা লিখিবার কারণ এই যে, চারি-পাঁচ বৎসরের মধ্যে ইংরেজী-গীতার মলাটে ঐ একছত্র মাত্র আপনার হস্তলিপি দেখিলাম। তাহাতে বোধ হইল যে, আপনার যখন অধিক লিখিবার অবকাশ নাই, তখন পড়িবার অবকাশ কি হইবে?

দ্বিতীয়তঃ শুনলাম, গৌরচর্মবিশিষ্ট হিন্দুধর্ম প্রচারকেরই আপনি বন্ধু, দেশী নচ্ছার কালা আদমী আপনার নিকট হয়ে, সে ভয়ও ছিল। তৃতীয়তঃ আমি স্লেচ্ছ শূদ্র ইত্যাদি, যা-তা খাই, যার-তার সঙ্গে খাই -- প্রকাশ্যে সেখানে এবং এখানে। তা ছাড়া মতের বহু বিকৃতি উপস্থিত -- এক নির্গুণ ব্রহ্ম বেশ বুঝিতে পারি, আর তারই ব্যক্তিবিশেষে বিশেষ প্রকাশ দেখিতে পাইতেছি -- ঐ-সকল ব্যক্তিবিশেষের নাম 'ঈশ্বর' যদি হয় তো বেশ বুঝতে পারি -- তন্মুখ কাল্পনিক জগৎকর্তা ইত্যাদি হাস্যকর প্রবন্ধে বুদ্ধি যায় না।

ঐ প্রকার 'ঈশ্বর' জীবনে দেখিয়াছি এবং তাঁহারই আদেশে চলিতেছি। স্মৃতি-পুরাণাদি সামান্যবুদ্ধি মনুষ্যের রচনা -- ভ্রম, প্রমাদ, ভেদবুদ্ধি ও দ্বৈষবুদ্ধিতে পরিপূর্ণ। তাহার যেটুকু উদার ও প্রীতিপূর্ণ, তাহাই গ্রাহ্য, অপরাংশ ত্যাজ্য। উপনিষদ ও গীতা যথার্থ শাস্ত্র -- রাম, কৃষ্ণ, বুদ্ধ, চৈতন্য, নানক, কবীরাদিই যথার্থ অবতার; কারণ ইহাদের হৃদয় আকাশের ন্যায় অনন্ত ছিল -- সকলের উপর রামকৃষ্ণ; রামানুজ-শঙ্করাদি সঙ্কীর্ণ-হৃদয় পন্ডিতজী মাত্র। সে প্রীতি নাই, পরের দুঃখে তাঁহাদের হৃদয় কাঁদে নাই -- শুষ্ক পাণ্ডত্যই -- আর আপনি তাড়াতাড়ি মুক্ত হইব! তা কি হয়, মহাশয়? কখনও হয়েছে, না হবে? 'আমি'র লেশমাত্র থাকতে কি কিছু হবে?

আর এক কথা বুঝেছি যে, পরোপকারই ধর্ম, বাকি যাগযোজ্ঞ সব পাগলামো -- নিজের মুক্তি-ইচ্ছাও অন্যায়। যে পরের জন্য সব দিয়েছে, সে-ই মুক্ত হয় আর যারা 'আমার মুক্তি, আমার মুক্তি' করে দিনরাত মাথা ভাবায়, তারা 'ইতো নষ্টস্ততো ভ্রষ্টঃ' হয়ে বেড়ায়, তাহাও অনেকবার প্রত্যক্ষ করেছি। এই পাঁচ রকম ভেবে মহাশয়কে পত্রাদি লিখিতে ভরসা হয় নাই।

এসব সত্ত্বেও যদি আপনার প্রীতি আমার উপর থাকে, বড়ই আনন্দের বিষয় বোধ করিব। ইতি

তোমার শরীর পূর্বাপেক্ষা ভাল আছে শুনিয়া সুখী হইলাম। যোগেন ভায়ার কথাবার্তা? তিনি সঠিকে কন না, এজন্য সে-সকল শুনে কোন চিন্তা করিও না। আমি সেরেসুরে গেছি। শরীরে জোরও খুব; তৃষ্ণা নাই, আর রাতে উঠিয়া প্রস্রাব বন্ধ। কোমরে বেদনা-ফেদনা নাই; লিভারও ভাল। শরীর ঔষধে কি ফল হল বুঝতে পারলাম না -- কাজেই বন্ধ। আম খুব খাওয়া যাচ্ছে। ঘোড়াচড়াটা বেজায় রপ্ত হচ্ছে -- কুড়ি-ত্রিশ মাইল একনাগাড়ে দৌড়ে গিয়েও কিছুমাত্র বেদনা বা exhaustion (অবসাদ) হয় না। দুধ একদম বন্ধ করেছি -- পেট মোটার ভয়ে। কাল আলমোড়ায় এসেছি। আর বাগানে যাব না। ... বাড়ি ভাড়া-টাড়া যা করতে হয় করবে; এতে আর অত জিজ্ঞাস-পড়া কি করবে!

আজ এখান হইতে উদ্দেশ্যের যে proof (প্রুফ) পাঠাইয়াছিলে, তাহা সংশোধন করিয়া পাঠাইলাম। Rules and regulations (নিয়মাবলী)-টুকু -- যেটুকু আমাদের meeting hall-এ (সভায়) মশায়রা পড়িয়াছিলেন -- ভ্রমপূর্ণ। বিশেষ যত্নের সহিত সংশোধিত করিয়া পুনর্মুদ্রিত করিবে, নহিলে লোক হাসিবে।

বহরমপুরে যে প্রকার কার্য হইতেছে, তাহা অতীব সুন্দর। ঐ সকল কার্যের দ্বারাই জয় হইবে -- মতামত কি অন্তর স্পর্শ করে? কার্য কার্য -- জীবন জীবন -- মতে-ফতে এসে যায় কি? ফিলসফি, যোগ, তপ, ঠাকুরঘর, আলোচাল, কলা মূলো -- এ সব ব্যক্তিগত ধর্ম, দেশগত ধর্ম; পরোপকারই সর্বজনীন মহাব্রত -- আবালবৃদ্ধবনিতা, আচন্ডাল, আপশু সকলেই এ ধর্ম বুঝিতে পারে। শুধু negative (নিষেধাত্মক) ধর্মে কি কাজ হয়? পাথরে ব্যভিচার করে না, গরুতে মিথ্যা কথা কয় না, বৃক্ষেরা চুরি ডাকাতি করে না, তাতে আসে যায় কি? তুমি চুরি কর না, মিথ্যা কথা কও না, ব্যভিচার কর না, চার ঘন্টা ধ্যান কর, আট ঘন্টা ঘন্টা বাজাও -- 'মধু, তা কার কি?' ঐ যে কাজ, অতি অল্প হলেও ওতে বহরমপুর একেবারে কেনা হয়ে গেল -- এখন যা বলবে, লোকে তাই শুনবে। এখন 'রামকৃষ্ণ ভগবান' লোককে আর বুঝাতে হবে না। তা নহিলে কি লোকচারের কর্ম -- কথায় কি চিড়ে ভেজে? ঐ রকম যদি দশটা district (জেলায়) পারতে, তাহলে দশটাই কেনা হয়ে যেত। অতএব বুদ্ধিমান, এখন ঐ কর্মবিভাগটার উপরই খুব ঝোঁক, আর ঐটারই উপকারিতা বাড়াতে প্রাণপণে চেষ্টা কর। কতকগুলো ছেলেকে দ্বারে দ্বারে পাঠাও -- আলখ জাগিয়ে টাকা-পয়সা, ছেঁড়া কাপড়, চালডাল, যা পায় নিয়ে আসুক, তারপর সেগুলো ডিস্ট্রীবিউট (বিতরণ) করবে। ঐ কাজ, ঐ কাজ। তারপর লোকের বিশ্বাস হবে, তারপর যা বলবে শুনবে।

কলিকাতায় মিটিং-এর খরচ-খরচা বাদে যা বাঁচে, ঐ famine-এতে (দুর্ভিক্ষে) পাঠাও বা কলিকাতা ডোমপাড়া, হাড়িপাড়া বা গলিঘুঁজিতে অনেক গরিব আছে, তাদের সাহায্য কর -- হল্ ফল্ -- ঘোড়ার ডিম থাক, প্রভু যা করবার তা করবেন। আমার এখন শরীর বেশ সেরে গেছে।

মেটিরিয়াল (মালমশলা) যোগাড় করছ না কেন? আমি এসে নিজেই কাগজ start (আরম্ভ) করব। দয়া আর ভালবাসায় জগৎ কেনা যায়; লোকচার, বই, ফিলসফি -- সব তার নিচে। শশীকে ঐ রকম একটা কর্মবিভাগ গরিবদের সাহায্যের জন্য করতে লিখবে। আর ঠাকুরপূজো-ফুজোতে যেন টাকাকড়ি বেশী ব্যয় না করে। ... তুমি মঠে ঠাকুরপূজোর খরচ দু-এক টাকা মাসে করে ফেলবে! ঠাকুরের ছেলেপুলে না খেয়ে মারা যাচ্ছে। ... শুধু জল-তুলসীর পূজো করে ভোগের পয়সাটা দরিদ্রের শরীরস্থিত জীবন্ত ঠাকুরকে ভোগ দিবে -- তাহলে সব কল্যাণ হবে। যোগেনের শরীর এখানে খারাপ হয়েছিল, সে আজ যাত্রা করিল -- কলিকাতায়। আমি কাল পুনশ্চ দেউলধার যাত্রা করিব। আমার ভালবাসা জানিবে ও সকলকে জানাইবে। ইতি

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার পত্রে সবিশেষ অবগত হইয়া বিশেষ আনন্দিত হইলাম। Orphanage (অনাথাশ্রম) সম্বন্ধে তোমার যে অভিপ্রায় অতি উত্তম ও শ্রী-মহারাজ তাহা অচিরাৎ পূর্ণ করিবেন নিশ্চিত। একটা স্থায়ী centre (কেন্দ্র) যাহাতে হয়, তাহার জন্য প্রাণপণ চেষ্টা করিবে। টাকার চিন্তা নাই -- কল্যাণ আমি আলমোড়া হইতে plain-এতে (সমতল প্রদেশে) নামিব, যেখানে হাঙ্গাম হইবে সেইখানে একটা চাঁদা করিব -- famine-এর (দুর্ভিক্ষের) জন্য -- ভয় নাই। যে প্রকার আমাদের কলিকাতার মঠ, ঐ নমুনায় প্রত্যেক জেলায় যখন এক-একটি মঠ হইবে, তখনই আমার মনস্কামনা পূর্ণ হইবে। প্রচারের কার্যও যেন বন্ধ না হয় এবং প্রচারাপেক্ষাও বিদ্যাশিক্ষাই প্রধান কার্য; গ্রামের লোকদের lecture (বক্তৃতা) আদি দ্বারা ধর্ম, ইতিহাস ইত্যাদি শিক্ষা দিতে হইবে -- বিশেষ ইতিহাস। ইংলন্ডে আমাদের এই শিক্ষাকার্যের সহায়তার জন্য একটি সভা আছে; ঐ সভার কার্য অতি উত্তম চলিতেছে, সংবাদ পাইয়া থাকি। এই প্রকার চতুর্দিক হইতে ক্রমশঃ সহায় আসিবে। ভয় কি? যারা ভাবে যে, সহায়তা এলে তারপর কার্য করব তাদের দ্বারা কোন কার্য হয় না। যারা ভাবে যে, কার্যক্ষেত্রে নামলেই সহায় আসবে, তারাই কার্য করে।

সব শক্তি তোমাতে আছে বিশ্বাস কর, প্রকাশ হতে বাকি থাকবে না। আমার প্রাণের ভালবাসা ও আশীর্বাদ জানিবে ও ব্রহ্মচারীকে জানাইবে। তুমি মঠে খুব উৎসাহপূর্ণ চিঠি মধ্যে মধ্যে লিখিবে, যাহাতে সকলে উৎসাহিত হয়ে কার্য করে। ওয়া গুরুকি ফতে। কিমধিকমিতি

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার কথামত ডিষ্ট্রিক্ট ম্যাজিস্ট্রেট লেভিঞ্জ সাহেবকে এক পত্র লিখিলাম। অপিচ তুমি তাঁহার বিশেষ বিশেষ কার্যকলাপ বিবৃত করিয়া শশী-ডাক্তারকে দিয়া দেখাইয়া ‘ইন্ডিয়ান মিরর’-এ একটি লম্বাচৌড়া পত্র লিখিবে ও তাহার এক কপি উক্ত মহোদয়কে পাঠাইবে। আমাদের মূর্খগুলো খালি দোষ অনুসন্ধান করে, গুণও কিঞ্চিৎ দেখুক।

আমি আগামী সোমবার এস্থান হইতে প্রস্থান করিতেছি।

Orphan (অনাথ বালক) যোগাড়ের কি করছ? মঠ হতে চারি-পাঁচজনকে না হয় ডাকিয়া লও, গাঁয়ে গাঁয়ে খুঁজিলে দু-দিনেই মিলিবার সম্ভাবনা।

Permanent Centre (স্থায়ী কেন্দ্র) করিতে হইবে বৈকি। আর -- দেবকৃপা না হলে এদেশে কি কাজ হয়? রাজনীতি ইত্যাদিতে কোন যোগ দিবে না অথবা সংস্রব রাখিবে না। অথচ তাদের সহিত কোন বিবাদাদিতেও কাজ নাই। একটা কার্যে তন্ মন ধন। এখানে একটি -- সাহেবমহলে -- ইংরেজী বক্তৃতা হইয়াছিল, ও একটি -- দেশী লোকদিগকে হিন্দিতে। হিন্দিতে আমার এই প্রথম, কিন্তু সকলের তো খুব ভাল লাগল। সাহেবরা অবশ্যই যেমন আছে, নাল গড়িয়ে গেল, ‘কালো মানুষ’। ‘তাই তো কি আশ্চর্য’ ইত্যাদি! আগামী শনিবার আর একটি বক্তৃতা ইংরেজীতে, দেশী লোকের জন্য। এখানে একটি বৃহৎ সভা স্থাপন করা গেল -- ভবিষ্যতে কতদূর কার্য হয় দেখা যাক। সভার উদ্দেশ্য বিদ্যা ও ধর্ম শিক্ষা দেওয়া।

সোমবার বেরিলি-যাত্রা, তারপর সাহারানপুর, তারপর আম্বালা, সেখান হইতে ক্যাপ্টেন সেভিয়ারের সঙ্গে বোধ হয় মসুরী, আর একটু ঠান্ডা পড়লেই দেশে পুনরাগমন ও রাজপুতানায় গমন ইত্যাদি।

তুমি খুব চুটিয়ে কাজ করে যাও, ভয় কি? আমিও ‘ফের লেগে যা’ আরম্ভ করেছি। শরীর তো যাবেই, কুড়েমিতে কেন যায়? It is better to wear out than rust out (মরচে পড়ে পড়ে মরার চেয়ে ক্ষয়ে ক্ষয়ে মরা ভাল)। মরে গেলেও হাড়ে হাড়ে ভেঙ্কি খেলবে, তার ভাবনা কি? দশ বৎসরের ভেতর ভারতবর্ষটাকে ছেয়ে ফেলতে হবে -- ‘এর কমে হবেই না।’ তাল ঠুকে লেগে যাও -- ‘ওয়া গুরুকী ফতে!’ টাকা-ফাকা সব আপনা-আপনি আসবে। মানুষ চাই, টাকা চাই না। মানুষ সব করে, টাকায় কি করতে পারে? মানুষ চাই -- যত পাবে ততই ভাল। ... এই -- তো ঢের টাকা যোগাড় করেছিল, কিন্তু মানুষ নাই -- কি কাজ করলে বল? কিমধিকমিতি।

অভিনন্দনদেয়,

কাশীর হইতে গত পরশু সন্ধ্যাকালে মরীতে পৌঁছিয়াছি। সকলেই বেশ আনন্দে ছিল। কেবল কেটলাল ও গুপ্তের মধ্যে মধ্যে জ্বর হইয়াছিল -- তাহাও সামান্য। এই Address (অভিনন্দনটি) খেতড়ির রাজার জন্য পাঠাইতে হইবে -- সোনালী রঙে ছাপাইয়া ইত্যাদি। রাজা ২১।২২ অক্টোবর নাগাদ বোম্বে পৌঁছিবেন। বোম্বেতে আমাদের কেহই এক্ষণে নাই। যদি কেহ থাকে, তাহাকে এক কপি পাঠাইয়া দিবে -- যাহাতে সে ব্যক্তি রাজাকে জাহাজেই ঐ Address প্রদান করে বা বোম্বে শহরেও কোথাও। উত্তম কপিটি খেতড়িতে পাঠাইবে। একটি মিটিং-এ (সভাতে) ঐটি পাস করিয়া লইবে। যদি কিছু বদলাইতে ইচ্ছা হয়, হানি নাই। তাহার পর সকলে সহি করিবে; কেবল আমার নামের জায়গাটা খালি রাখিবে -- আমি খেতড়ি যাইয়া সহি করিব। এ বিষয়ে কোন ত্রুটি না হয়। যোগেন কেমন আছে পত্র পাঠ লিখিবে -- লালা হংসরাজ সাহানী, উকিল, রাওলপিন্ডির ঠিকানা। রাজা বিনয়কৃষ্ণের তরফের Address (অভিনন্দন)-টা দুদিন নয় দেরি হবে -- আমাদেরটা যেন পৌঁছায়।

ক্যাপ্টেন সেভিয়ার বলিতেছেন যে, তিনি জায়গার জন্য অধীর হইয়া পড়িয়াছেন। মসুরীর নিকট বা অন্য কোনও central (কেন্দ্রস্থানীয়) জায়গায় একটা স্থান যত শীঘ্র হয় -- তাঁর ইচ্ছা। তাঁর ইচ্ছা যে, মঠ হতে দু-তিন জন এসে জায়গা select (পছন্দ) করে। তাদের মনোনীত হলেই তিনি মরী হতে গিয়ে খরিদ করে একদম বিল্ডিং শুরু করবেন। খরচ অবশ্য তিনিই পাঠাবেন। আমার selection (পছন্দ) তো এক আমাদের ইঞ্জিনিয়ার। বাকি আর যে যে এ বিষয়ে বোঝে -- পাঠাবে। ভাব এই যে, খুব ঠান্ডা স্থানেও কাজ নাই, আবার বড় গরমও না হয়। দেরাদুন গরমিকালে অসহ্য -- শীতকালে বেশ। মসুরী itself (খাস মসুরী) শীতকালে বোধ হয় সকলের পক্ষে ঠিক নয়। তার আগিয়ে বা পেছিয়ে -- অর্থাৎ ব্রিটিশ বা গাডোয়াল রাজ্যে জায়গা পাওয়া যাবেই। অথচ সেই জায়গায় বারমাস জল চাই নাইবার-খাবার জন্য। এ বিষয়ে মিঃ সেভিয়ার তোমায় খরচ পাঠিয়ে চিঠি লিখছেন। তাঁর সঙ্গে সমস্ত ঠিকানা করবে।

আমার plan (পরিকল্পনা) এক্ষণে এই -- নিরঞ্জন, লাটু, দীনু এবং কৃষ্ণলালকে জয়পুরে পাঠাই; আমার সঙ্গে কেবল অচু আর গুপ্ত। মরী থেকে রাওলপিন্ডি, তথা হতে জম্মু, সেখান হতে লাহোর, তারপর একেবারে করাচি তথা হতে। আমি এখান হইতেই মঠের জন্য collection (অর্থসংগ্রহ) আরম্ভ করিলাম। যেখান হতে তোমার নামে টাকা আসুক না, তুমি মঠের ফন্ডে জমা করিবে ও দুরন্ত হিসাব রাখিবে। দুটো ফন্ড আলাদা -- একটা কলকাতার মঠের জন্য, আর একটা famine work etc. (দুর্ভিক্ষ সেবাকার্য ইত্যাদি)। আজ সারদা ও গঙ্গার দুই চিঠি পাইলাম। কাল তাদের চিঠি লিখব। আমার বোধ হয় সারদাকে ওখানে না পাঠিয়ে Central Province

(মধ্যপ্রদেশ)-এ পাঠান ভাল ছিল। সেখানে সাগরে ও নাগপুরে আমার অনেক লোক আছে -- ধনী ও পয়সা-

নেমেছেন দেখছি। তাঁকে আমার বিশেষ প্রণয়ালিঙ্গন দিও। এইবার তিনি জেগেছেন দেখে আমার বুক দশহাত হয়ে
উঠল। আমি কালই তাঁকে পত্র লিখছি। অলমিতি -- ওয়া গুরুকী ফতে -- To work! to work! (কাজে লেগে যাও, কাজে লেগে যাও)। তোমার সব চিঠিপত্র পেয়েছি। ইতি

কল্যাণীয়াসু,

মা, বড় দুঃখের বিষয় যে, একান্ত ইচ্ছা সত্ত্বেও এ যাত্রায় সিন্ধুদেশে আসিয়া তোমাদের সহিত সাক্ষাৎ করা ঘটিল না। প্রথমতঃ ক্যাপটেন এবং মিসেস সেভিয়ার নামক যাঁহারা ইংলন্ড হইতে আসিয়া আমার সহিত প্রায় আজ নয় মাস ফিরিতেছেন, তাঁহারা দেরাদুনে জমি খরিদ করিয়া একটি অনাথালয় করিবার জন্য বিশেষ ব্যগ্র। তাঁহাদের অত্যন্ত অনুরোধ যে, আমি যাইয়া ঐ কার্য আরম্ভ করিয়া দিই, তজ্জন্য দেরাদুন না যাইলে নহে।

দ্বিতীয়তঃ আমার অসুখ হওয়ার জন্য জীবনের উপর ভরসা নাই। এক্ষণেও আমার উদ্দেশ্য যে, কলিকাতায় একটি মঠ হয় -- তাহার কিছুই করিতে পারিলাম না। অপিচ দেশের লোক বরং পূর্বে আমাদের মঠে যে সাহায্য করিত, তাহাও বন্ধ করিয়াছে। তাহাদের ধারণা যে, আমি ইংলন্ড হইতে অনেক অর্থ আনিয়াছি! তাহার উপর এবার মহোৎসব হওয়া পর্যন্ত অসম্ভব; কারণ রাসমনির (বাগানের) মালিক বিলাতফেরত বলিয়া আমাকে উদ্যানে যাইতে দেবেন না!! অতএব আমার প্রথম কর্তব্য এই যে, রাজপুতানা প্রভৃতি স্থানে যে দুই-চারিটি বন্ধুবান্ধব আছেন, তাঁহাদের সঙ্গে সাক্ষাৎ করিয়া কলিকাতায় একটি স্থান করিবার জন্য প্রাণপণে চেষ্টা করা। এই সকল কারণের জন্য আপাততঃ অত্যন্ত দুঃখের সহিত সিন্ধুদেশ-যাত্রা স্থগিত রাখিলাম। রাজপুতানা ও কাথিয়াওয়াড় হইয়া আসিবার বিশেষ চেষ্টা করিব। তুমি দুঃখিত হইও না। আমি একদিনও তোমাদের ভুলি না, তবে কর্তব্যটা প্রথমেই করা উচিত। কলিকাতায় এক মঠ হইলে আমি নিশ্চিত হই। এত যে সারা জীবন দুঃখে-কষ্টে কাজ করিলাম, সেটা আমার শরীর যাওয়ার পর নির্বাণ যে হইবে না, সে ভরসা হয়। আজই দেরাদুনে চলিলাম -- সেথায় দিন সাত থাকিয়া রাজপুতানায়, তথা হইতে কাথিয়াওয়াড় ইত্যাদি।

কল্যাণীয়াসু,

মা, তোমার ও হরিপদ বাবাজীর পত্র যথাকালে পাইলাম। অবশ্যই তোমাদের দুঃখিত হইবার কারণ অনেক হইয়াছে। কি করি বল? এক্ষণে দেবাদুনে যে কার্যে আসিয়াছিলাম, তাহাও নিষ্ফল হইল -- সিন্ধুদেশেও যাওয়া হইল না। প্রভুর ইচ্ছা। এক্ষণে রাজপুতানা ও কাথিয়াওয়াড় দেশ হইয়া সিন্ধুদেশের মধ্য দিয়া কলিকাতায় যাইব, ইচ্ছা আছে। পথে কিছু আর একটি বিঘ্ন হইবার সম্ভাবনা। তা যদি না হয়, নিশ্চিত সিন্ধুদেশে আসিতেছি। ছুটি লইয়া হায়দ্রাবাদে বৃথা আসা ইত্যাদিতে তোমাদের নিশ্চয়ই অনেক অসুবিধা হইয়া থাকিবে -- সকলই প্রভুর ইচ্ছা। কষ্ট করিলেই তার সুফল আছে নিশ্চিত। আমি আগামী শুক্রবারে এ স্থান হইতে যাইব -- সাহারানপুর হইয়া একেবারে রাজপুতানায় যাইবার ইচ্ছা। আমার শরীর এক্ষণে ভাল আছে। ভরসা করি, তোমারও নীরোগ শরীরে স্বচ্ছন্দে আছ। এস্থানে ও দেবাদুনের নিকট প্লেগ হওয়ায় অনেক হাঙ্গাম করিতেছে এবং আমাদের অনেকটা ব্যাঘাত সহ্য করিতে হইতেছে ও হইবে। মঠের ঠিকানায় পত্র লিখিলে আমি যে-স্থানেই থাকি না কেন পাইব। তুমি ও হরিপদ বাবাজী আমার বিশেষ আশীর্বাদ ও ভালবাসা জানিবে। ইতি

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার পত্রে সমস্ত সমাচার অবগত হয়ে বিশেষ আনন্দ লাভ করলুম। বিদ্যাবুদ্ধি বাড়ার ভাগ -- উপরে চাকচিক্য মাত্র; সমস্ত শক্তির ভিত্তি হচ্ছে হৃদয়। ‘জ্ঞান-বলক্রিয়া’ শালী আত্মার অধিবাস হৃদয়ে, মস্তিষ্কে নয়। ‘শতঐশ্বর্যকা চ হৃদয়স্য নাড্যঃ’ (হৃদয়ে একশত এবং একটি নাড়ী আছে) ইত্যাদি। হৃদয়ের নিকট ‘সিম্প্যাথেটিক্ গ্যাংলিয়ন’ নামক যে প্রধান কেন্দ্র, সেথায় আত্মার কেলা। হৃদয় যত দেখাতে পারবে, ততই জয়। মস্তিষ্কের ভাষা কেউ কেউ বোঝে, হৃদয়ের ভাষা আব্রহ্মস্তুম্ পর্যন্ত সকলে বোঝে। তবে আমাদের দেশে মড়াকে চেতান -- দেরি হবে; কিন্তু অপার অধ্যবসায় ও ধৈর্যবল যদি থাকে তো নিশ্চিত সিদ্ধি, তার আর কি?

ইংরেজ রাজপুরুষদের দোষ কি? যে পরিবারটির অস্বাভাবিক নির্দয়তার কথা লিখেছে, ওটি কি ভারতবর্ষের অসাধারণ, না সাধারণ? দেশসুদ্ধই ঐ রকম হয়ে দাঁড়িয়েছে। তবে আমাদের দেশী স্বার্থপরতা, নেহাত দুষ্টামি করে হয়নি, বহু শতাব্দী যাবৎ বিফলতা আর নির্যাতনের ফলস্বরূপ এই পশুবৎ স্বার্থপরতা; ও আসল স্বার্থপরতা নয় -- ও হচ্ছে গভীর নৈরাশ্য। একটু সিদ্ধি দেখলেই ওটা সেরে যাবে। ইংরেজ রাজপুরুষেরা ঐটিই দেখছে চারিদিকে, কাজেই প্রথমে বিশ্বাস করতে পারবে কেন? তবে যথার্থ কাজ দেখতে পেলে কেমন ওরা সহানুভূতি করে বল! দেশী রাজপুরুষেরা অমন করে কি?

এই ঘোর দুর্ভিক্ষ, বন্যা, রোগ-মহামারীর দিনে কংগ্রেসওয়ালারা কে কোথায় বল? খালি ‘আমাদের হাতে রাজ্যশাসনের ভার দাও’ বললে কি চলে? কে বা শুনছে ওদের কথা? মানুষ কাজ যদি করে -- তাকে কি আর মুখ ফুটে বলতে হয়? তোমাদের মতো যদি ২০০০ লোক জেলায় জেলায় কাজ করে -- ইংরেজরা ডেকে রাজকার্যে পরামর্শ জিজ্ঞাসা করবে যে!!! ‘স্বকার্যমুদ্বরেৎ প্রাজ্ঞ’ (প্রাজ্ঞ ব্যক্তি নিজের কার্য উদ্ধার করিবেন)। ... অ -- কে centre (কেন্দ্র) খুলতে দেননি, তার বা কি? কিষণগড় দিয়েছে তো? মুখটি বুজিয়া সে কাজ দেখিয়ে যাক -- কিছু বলা-কওয়া, ঝগড়া-ঝাঁটির দরকার নাই। মহামায়ার এ কাজে যে সহায়তা করবে, সে তাঁর দয়া পাবে, যে বাধা দেবে ‘অকারণাবিস্কৃতবৈরদারণঃ’ (বিনা হেতুতে দারণ শত্রুতাবদ্ধ) নিজের পায়ে নিজে কুড়াল মারবে।

‘শনৈঃ পন্থাঃ’ ইত্যাদি, রাই কুড়িয়ে বেল। -- যখন প্রধান কাজ হয়, ভিত্তি স্থাপন হয়, রাস্তা তৈরি হয়, যখন অমানুষ বলের আবশ্যিক হয় -- তখন নিঃশব্দে দু-একজন অসাধারণ পুরুষ নানা বিঘ্ন-বিপত্তির মধ্যে নিঃসাদে কাজ করে। যখন হাজার হাজার লোকের উপকার হয়, ঢাক-ঢোল বেজে ওঠে, দেশসুদ্ধ বাহবা দেয় -- তখন কল চলে গেছে, তখন বালকেও কাজ করতে পারে, আহাম্মকেও কলে একটু বেগ দিতে পারে। এইটি বোঝ -- ঐ দু-একটি গাঁয়ের উপর ঐ ২০টি অনাথ বালক সহিত অনাথাশ্রম, ঐ ১০ জন ২০ জন কার্যকরী -- এই যথেষ্ট, এই বজ্রবীজ। ঐ থেকে কালে লক্ষ লক্ষ লোকের উপকার হবে; এখন ২।১০টা সিংহের প্রয়োজন -- তখন শত শত শৃগালেরাও উত্তম কাজ করতে পারবে।

তোমার সাহেবকে আমার বহু ধন্যবাদ দিও। নির্ভয়ে কাজ করে যাও -- ওয়াহ বাহাদুর!! সাবাস, সাবাস, সাবাস!

ভাগলপুরে যে কেন্দ্র স্থাপনের কথা লিখেছ, সে কথা বেশ -- স্কুলের ছেলেপুলেকে চেতান ইত্যাদি। কিন্তু আমাদের mission (কার্য) হচ্ছে অনাথ, দরিদ্র, মূর্খ, চাষাভূষার জন্য; আগে তাদের জন্য করে যদি সময় থাকে তো ভদ্রলোকের জন্য। ঐ চাষাভূষারা ভালবাসা দেখে ভিজবে; পরে তারাই দু-এক পয়সা সংগ্রহ করে নিজেদের গ্রামে মিশন start (প্রতিষ্ঠা) করবে এবং ক্রমে ওদেরই মধ্য হতে শিক্ষক বেরবে।

কতকগুলো চাষার ছেলেমেয়েকে একটু লিখতে পড়তে শেখাও ও অনেকগুলো ভাব মাথায় ঢুকিয়ে দাও -- তারপর গ্রামের চাষারা চাঁদা করে তাদের এক-একটাকে নিজেদের গ্রামে রাখবে। 'উদ্ধরোদাত্মনা ত্রানং' (নিজেই নিজেকে উদ্ধার করবে) -- সকল বিষয়েই এই সত্য; We help them to help themselves (তারা যাতে নিজেই নিজেদের কাজ করতে পারে, এইজন্য আমরা তাদের সাহায্য করছি)। ঐ যে চাষারা গাল দিচ্ছে -- ঐটুকু হচ্ছে আসল কাজ। ওরা যখন বুঝতে পারবে নিজেদের অবস্থা, উপকার এবং উন্নতির আবশ্যিকতা, তখনই তোমার ঠিক কাজ হচ্ছে জানবে। তাছাড়া পয়সাওয়ালারা দয়া করে গরিবের কিছু উপকার করবে -- তা চিরন্তন হয় না এবং তাই আখেরে উভয় পক্ষের অপকার মাত্র। চাষাভূষা মৃতপ্রায়; এজন্য পয়সাওয়ালারা সাহায্য করে তাদের চেতিয়ে দিক -- এই মাত্র! তারপর চাষারা আপনার কল্যাণ আপনারা বুঝুক, দেখুক এবং করুক। তবে ধনী-দরিদ্রের বিবাদ যেন বাধিয়ে বসো না। ধনীদের আদতে গাল-মন্দ দেবে না। স্বকার্যমুদ্বরেৎ প্রাজ্ঞঃ (প্রাজ্ঞ ব্যক্তি নিজের কার্য উদ্ধার করবে)। তাছাড়া ওরা তো মহামূর্খ, অজ্ঞ -- ওরা কি করবে?

(From the Diary of a Disciple)

(The disciple is Sharatchandra Chakravarty, who published his records in a Bengali book, Swami-Shishya-Samvâda, in two parts. The present series of "Conversations and Dialogues" is a revised translation from this book. Five dialogues of this series have already appeared in the Complete Works, Vol. V.)

[Place: Calcutta, the house of the late Babu Priyanath Mukhopadhyaya, Baghbazar. Year: 1897.]

It is three or four days since Swamiji has set his foot in Calcutta (On February 20, 1897.) after his first return from the West. The joy of the devotees of Shri Ramakrishna knows no bounds at enjoying his holy presence after a long time. And the well-to-do among them are considering themselves blessed to cordially invite Swamiji to their own houses. This afternoon Swamiji had an invitation to the house of Srijut Priyanath Mukhopadhyaya, a devotee of Shri Ramakrishna, at Rajballabhpara in Baghbazar. Receiving this news, many devotees assembled today in his house.

The disciple also, informed of it through indirect sources, reached the house of Mr. Mukherjee at about 2-30 p.m. He had not yet made his acquaintance with Swamiji. So this was to be his first meeting with the Swami.

On the disciple's reaching there, Swami Turiyananda took him to Swamiji and introduced him. After his return to the Math, the Swami had already heard about him, having read a Hymn on Shri Ramakrishna composed by the disciple.

Swamiji also had come to know that the disciple used to visit Nâg Mahâshaya, a foremost devotee of Shri Ramakrishna.*

When the disciple prostrated himself before him and took his seat, Swamiji addressed him in Sanskrit and asked him about Nag Mahashaya and his health, and while referring to his superhuman renunciation, his unbounded love for God, and his humility, he said:

“वयं तत्त्वान्बेषात् हता मधुकर त्वं खलुकृती ।

(Words addressed by King Dushyanta to the bee which was teasing Shakuntalâ by darting at her lips — Kalidasa's Shâkuntalam.)

— "We are undone by our vain quest after reality; while, O bee, you are indeed blessed with success!" He then asked the disciple to send these words to Nag Mahashaya. Afterwards, finding it rather inconvenient to talk to the disciple in the crowd, he called him and Swami Turiyananda to a small room to the west and, addressing himself to the disciple, began to recite these words from the Vivekachudâmani (43):

“मा भैष्ठ विद्वंस्तव नास्त्यपायः
संसारसिन्धोस्तरणोऽस्तुपायः ।
येनैव याता यतयोऽस्य पारं
तमेव मार्गं तव निर्दिशामि ॥

— "O wise one, fear not; you have not to perish. Means there are for crossing the ocean of this round of birth and death. I shall show you the same way by which holy men of renunciation have crossed this ocean." He then asked him to read Âchârya Shankara's work named Vivekachudâmani.

At these words, the disciple went on musing within himself. Was the Swami in this way hinting at the desirability of his own formal initiation? The disciple was at that time a staunch orthodox man in his ways, and a Vedantin. He had not yet settled his mind as regards the adoption of a Guru and was a devoted advocate of Varnâshrama or caste ordinances.

While various topics were going on, a man came in and announced that Mr. Narendranath Sen, the Editor of the Mirror, had come for an interview with Swamiji. Swamiji asked the bearer of this news to show him into that small room. Narendra Babu came and taking a seat there introduced various topics about England and America. In answer to his questions Swamiji said, "Nowhere in the world is to be found another nation like the Americans, so generous, broad-minded, hospitable, and so sincerely eager to accept new ideas."

"Wherever work", he went on, "has been done in America has not been done through my power. The people of America have accepted the ideas of Vedanta, because they are so good-hearted." Referring to England he said, "There is no nation in the world so conservative as the English. They do not like so easily to accept any new idea, but if through perseverance they can be once made to understand any idea, they will never give it up by any means. Such firm determination you will find in no other nation. This is why they occupy the foremost position in the world in power and civilization."

Then declaring that if qualified preachers could be had, there was greater likelihood of the Vedanta work being permanently established in England than in America, he continued, "I have only laid the foundation of the work. If future preachers follow my path, a good deal of work may be done in time."

Narendra Babu asked, "What future prospect is there for us in preaching religion in this way?"

Swamiji said: "In our country there is only this religion of Vedanta. Compared with the Western civilisation, it may be said, we have hardly got anything else. But by the preaching of this universal religion of Vedanta, a religion which gives equal rights to acquire spirituality to men of all creeds and all paths of religious practice, the civilised West would come to know what a wonderful degree of spirituality once developed in India and how that is still existing. By the study of this religion, the Western nations will have increasing regard and sympathy for us. Already these have grown to some extent. In this way, if we have their real sympathy and regard, we would learn from them the sciences bearing on our material life, thereby qualifying ourselves better for the struggle for existence. On the other hand, by learning this Vedanta from us, they will be enabled to secure their own spiritual welfare."

Narendra Babu asked, "Is there any hope of our political progress in this kind of interchange?"

Swamiji said, "They (the Westerners) are the children of the great hero Virochana! Their power makes the five elements play like puppets in their hands. If you people believe that we shall in case of conflict with them gain freedom by applying those material forces, you are profoundly mistaken. Just as a little piece of stone figures before the Himalayas, so we differ from them in point of skill in the use of those forces. Do you know what my idea is? By preaching the profound secrets of the Vedanta religion in the Western world, we shall attract the sympathy and regard of these mighty nations, maintaining for ever the position of their teacher in spiritual matters, and they will remain our teachers in all material concerns. The day when, surrendering the spiritual into their hands, our countrymen would sit at the feet of the West to learn religion, that day indeed the nationality of this fallen nation will be dead and gone for good. Nothing will come of crying day and night before them, 'Give me this or give me that.' When there will grow a link of sympathy and regard between both nations by this give-and-take intercourse, there will be then no need for these noisy cries. They will do everything of their own accord. I believe that by this cultivation of religion and the wider diffusion of Vedanta, both this country and the West will gain enormously. To me the pursuit of politics is a secondary means in comparison with this. I will lay down my life to carry out this belief practically. If you believe in any other way of accomplishing the good of India, well, you may go on working your own way."

Narendra Babu shortly left, expressing his unqualified agreement with Swamiji's ideas. The disciple, hearing the above words from Swamiji, astonishingly contemplated his luminous features with steadfast gaze.

When Narendra Babu had departed, an enthusiastic preacher belonging to the society for the protection of cows came for an interview with Swamiji. He was dressed almost like a Sannyasin, if not fully so — with a Geruâ turban on the head; he was evidently an up-country Indian. At the announcement of this preacher of cow-protection Swamiji came out to the parlour room. The preacher saluted Swamiji and presented him with a picture of the mother-cow. Swamiji took that in his hand and, making it over to one standing by, commenced the following conversation with the preacher:

Swamiji: What is the object of your society?

Preacher: We protect the mother-cows of our country from the hands of the butcher. Cow-infirmaries have been founded in some places where the diseased, decrepit mother-cows or those bought from the butchers are provided for.

Swamiji: That is very good indeed. What is the source of your income?

Preacher: The work of the society is carried on only by gifts kindly made by great men like you.

Swamiji: What amount of money have you now laid by?

Preacher: The Marwari traders' community are the special supporters of this work. They have given a big amount for this good cause.

Swamiji: A terrible famine has now broken out in Central India. The Indian Government has published a death-roll of nine lakhs of starved people. Has your society done anything to render help in this time of famine?

Preacher: We do not help during famine or other distresses. This society has been established only for the protection of mother-cows.

Swamiji: During a famine when lakhs of people, your own brothers and sisters, have fallen into the jaws of death, you have not thought it your duty, though having the means, to help them in that terrible calamity with food!

Preacher: No. This famine broke out as a result of men's Karma, their sins. It is a case of "like Karma, like fruit".

Hearing the words of the preacher, sparks of fire, as it were, scintillated in Swamiji's large eyes; his face became flushed. But he suppressed his feeling and said: "Those associations which do not feel sympathy for men and, even seeing their own brothers dying from starvation, do not give them a handful of rice to save their lives, while giving away piles of food to save birds and beasts, I have not the least sympathy for, and I do not believe that society derives any good from them. If you make a plea of Karma by saying that men die through their Karma, then it becomes a settled fact that it is useless to try or struggle for anything in this world; and your work for the protection of animals is no exception. With regard to your cause also, it can be said — the mother-cows through their own Karma fall into the hands of the butchers and die, and we need not do anything in the matter."

The preacher was a little abashed and said: "Yes, what you say is true, but the Shâstras say that the cow is our mother."

Swamiji smilingly said, "Yes, that the cow is our mother, I understand: who else could give birth to such accomplished children?"

The up-country preacher did not speak further on the subject; perhaps he could not understand the point of Swamiji's poignant ridicule. He told Swamiji that he was begging something of him for the objects of the society.

Swamiji: I am a Sannyasin, a fakir. Where shall I find money enough to help you? But if ever I get money in my possession, I shall first spend that in the service of man. Man is first to be saved; he must be given food, education, and spirituality. If any money is left after doing all these, then only something would be given to your society.

At these words, the preacher went away after saluting Swamiji. Then Swamiji began to speak to us: "What words, these, forsooth! Says he that men are dying by reason of their Karma, so what avails doing any kindness to them! This is decisive proof that the country has gone to rack and ruin! Do you see how much abused the Karma theory of your Hinduism has been? Those who are men and yet have no feeling in the heart for man, well, are such to be counted as men at all?" While speaking these words, Swamiji's whole body seemed to shiver in anguish and grief.

Then, while smoking, Swamiji said to the disciple, "Well, see me again."

Disciple: Where will you be staying, sir? Perhaps you might put up in some rich man's house. Will he allow me there?

Swamiji: At present, I shall be living either at the Alambazar Math or at the garden-house of Gopal Lal Seal at Cossipore. You may come to either place.

Disciple: Sir, I very much wish to speak with you in solitude.

Swamiji: All right. Come one night. We shall speak plenty of Vedanta.

Disciple: Sir, I have heard that some Europeans and Americans have come with you. Will they not get offended at my dress or my talk?

Swamiji: Why, they are also men, and moreover they are devoted to the Vedanta religion. They will be glad to converse with you.

Disciple: Sir, Vedanta speaks of some distinctive qualifications for its aspirants; how could these come out in your Western disciples? The Shastras say — he who has studied the Vedas and the Vedanta, who has formally expiated his sins, who has performed all the daily and occasional duties enjoined by the scriptures, who is self-restrained in his food and general conduct, and specially he who is accomplished in the four special Sâdhanâs (preliminary disciplines), he alone has a right to the practice of Vedanta. Your Western disciples are in the first place non-Brahmins, and then they are lax in point of proper food and dress; how could they understand the system of Vedanta?

Swamiji: When you speak with them, you will know at once whether they have understood Vedanta or not.

Swamiji, perhaps, could now see that the disciple was rigidly devoted to the external observances of orthodox Hinduism. Swamiji then, surrounded by some devotees of Shri Ramakrishna, went over to the house of Srijut Balaram Basu of Baghbazar. The disciple bought the book Vivekachudamani at Bat-tala and went towards his own home at Darjipara.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

I

[Place: Belur, the rented Math premises. Year: 1898.]

Swamiji was staying at the time at the rented garden-house of Nilâmbar Bâbu where the Math had been removed from Alambazar. Arrangements had been made for Shri Ramakrishna's Tithipujâ (Nativity) on a grand scale. On the morning of the auspicious day, Swamiji personally inspected the preliminaries of the worship. The inspection over, Swamiji asked the disciple, "Well, you have brought the holy threads, I hope?"

Disciple: Yes, sir, I have. Everything is ready, as you desired. But, sir, I can't make out why so many holy threads are in requisition.

Swamiji: Every Dvijâti (Brâhmins, Kshatriyas, and Vaishyas are the Dvijatis) (twice-born) has a right to investiture with the holy thread. The Vedas themselves are authority in this matter. Whoever will come here on this sacred birthday of Shri Ramakrishna I shall invest him with the holy thread. These people have fallen from their true status, and the scriptures say that after proper expiation, those fallen in the way earn the right to investiture with the holy thread. This is the great day of Shri Ramakrishna's nativity, and men will be purified by taking his name. So the assembled devotees are to be invested with the holy thread today; do you now understand?

Disciple: I have collected, Sir, quite a good number of holy threads according to your instructions, and after the worship I shall with your permission invest the Bhaktas with them.

Swamiji: To the Bhaktas who are not Brahmins, give this Mantra of Gâyatri (here Swamiji communicated to the disciple the special Gayatris for them.) By degrees all the people of the land have to be lifted to the position of Brahmins, not to speak of the Bhaktas of Shri Ramakrishna. Each Hindu, I say, is a brother of every other, and it is we who have degraded them by our outcry, "Don't touch, don't touch!" And so the whole country has been plunged to the utmost depths of meanness, cowardice, and ignorance. These men have to be uplifted; words of hope and faith have to be proclaimed to them. We have to tell them, "You are men like us, and you have all the rights that we have." Do you understand?

Disciple: Yes, sir, it should be so.

Swamiji: Now, ask those who will take the holy thread to finish their bath in the Gangâ. Than after prostration before Shri Ramakrishna, they will have their investiture.

About forty to fifty Bhaktas then duly received the Gayatri from the disciple and were invested with the holy thread. When receiving them, Swamiji's face beamed with profound delight. A little after this, Shri Girish Chandra Ghosh arrived at the Math from Calcutta.

Now arrangements for music were made at the desire of Swamiji, and Sannyasins of the Math decorated Swamiji as a Yogin.

Swamiji now chanted with the sweetest intonation to the accompaniment of the Tânpurâ, the Sanskrit hymn beginning with — कुञ्जं रामरामेति ("repeating in a low tone the name of Rama" etc.), and when the chanting came to a close, he went on repeating with exquisite charm the holy words "Râma, Râma, Shri Râma, Râma". His eyes were half-closed, and the natural sublimity of his countenance seemed to have deepened a hundred-fold. Everybody remained spellbound for over half an hour.

After the chanting of Shri Rama's name, Swamiji continued to sing a song of Tulsidas on Shri Ramachandra in the same intoxicated strain of mind. Then other music followed.

After this, Swamiji suddenly took to putting off all the decorations he had on his person and began to dress Girish Babu with them. Then he declared, "Paramhansa-deva used to say our brother is the incarnation of Bhairava (Divine companion of Shiva.). There's no distinction between him and us." Girish Babu sat speechless all the time. A piece of geruâ cloth was also brought, and was draped in it and uttered no word of remonstrance. For he had merged his self fully today in the wishes of his brother disciples. Swamiji now said, "Well, G. C., you are to speak to us today about Thâkur (Lord). And all of you (turning all round himself) sit quiet and attentive." Even then, Girish Babu sat motionless, voiceless like marble, absolutely lost in joy. And when at last he opened his lips, he did so to say, "Ah, what can this humble self speak of our Lord of unbounded mercy! Verily in this alone I realise his mercy, that to me, this lowly creature, He has extended the privilege of sitting and mixing on the same footing with you Sannyasins, pure from your childhood, who have renounced all lust and lucre." While speaking thus, the words choked in his throat, and he could not speak anything more.

After this, some pieces of Hindu music were rendered by Swamiji. The devotees were now called to partake of refreshments. After refreshments, Swamiji came and took his seat in the parlour on the ground-floor, and all the many visitors sat round him. Accosting a house-holder friend who had his investiture with the holy thread that day, Swamiji said, "Really you all belong to the twice-born castes, only it is long since you lost your status. From this day again you become the twice-born. Repeat the Gayatri at least a hundred times daily, won't you?" The householder expressed his assent.

Meanwhile Srijut Mahendranath Gupta (Master Mahâshaya [Venerable], or "M") appeared on the scene. Swamiji cordially received him and made him take his seat. "Master Mahashaya," said Swamiji, "this is the anniversary of Shri Ramakrishna's birthday. So you shall have to relate to us something about him." Master Mahashaya bent his head down smilingly in reply.

Just then it was announced that Swami Akhandananda had come from Murshidabad with two Pântuâs* which weighed one maund and a half! All of us hurried out to see these prodigious Pantuas. When they were shown to Swamiji, he said, "Take them up to the chapel for offering."

Making Swami Akhandananda the subject of his remarks, Swamiji said to the disciple, "Mark you, what a great hero he is in work! Of fear, death and the like he has no cognisance — doggedly going on doing his own work — 'work for the welfare of the many, for the happiness of the many'."

Disciple: Sir, that power must have come to him as the result of a good deal of austerities.

Swamiji: True, power comes of austerities; but again, working for the sake of others itself constitutes Tapasyâ (practice of austerity). The karma-yogins regard work itself as part of Tapasya. As on the one hand the practice of Tapasya intensifies altruistic feelings in the devotee and actuates him to unselfish work, so also the pursuit of work for the sake of others carries the worker to the last fruition of Tapasya, namely the purification of the heart, and leads him thus to the realisation of the supreme Âtman (Self).

Disciple: But, sir, how few of us can work whole-heartedly for the sake of others from the very outset! How difficult it is for such broad-mindedness to come at all as will make men sacrifice the desire for their own happiness and devote their lives for others!

Swamiji: And how many have their minds going after Tapasya? With the attraction for lust and lucre working the other way, how many long for the realisation of God? In fact, disinterested work is quite as difficult as Tapasya. So you have no right to say anything against those who go in for work in the cause of others. If you find Tapasya to be to your liking, well, go on with it. Another may find work as congenial to himself, and you have no right to make a prohibition in his case. You seem to have the settled idea in your mind that work is no Tapasya at all!

Disciple: Yes, sir, before this I used to mean quite a different thing by Tapasya.

Swamiji: As by continuing our religious practices we gradually develop a certain determined tendency for it, so by performing disinterested work over and over again, even unwillingly, we gradually find the will merging itself in it. The inclination to work for others develops in this way, do you see? Just do some such work even though unwillingly, and then see if the actual fruit of Tapasya is realised within or not. As the outcome of work for the sake of others, the angularities of the mind get smoothed down, and men are gradually prepared for sincere self-sacrifice for the good of others.

Disciple: But, sir, what is the necessity at all for doing good to others?

Swamiji: Well, it is necessary for one's own good. We become forgetful of the ego when we think of the body as dedicated to the service of others — the body with which most complacently we identify the ego. And in the long run comes the consciousness of disembodiness. The more intently you think of the well-being of others, the more oblivious of self you become. In this way, as gradually your heart gets purified by work, you will come to feel the truth that your own Self is pervading all beings and all things. Thus it is that doing good to others constitutes a way, a means of revealing one's own Self or Âtman. Know this also to be one of the spiritual practices, a discipline for God-realisation. Its aim also is Self-realisation. Exactly as that aim is attained by Jnâna (knowledge), Bhakti (devotion) and so on, also by work for the sake of others.

Disciple: But, sir, if I am to keep thinking of others day and night, when shall I contemplate on the Atman? If I rest wholly occupied with something particular and relative, how can I realise the Atman which is Absolute?

Swamiji: The highest aim of all disciplines, all spiritual paths, is the attainment of the knowledge of Atman. If you, by being devoted to the service of others and by getting your heart purified by such work, attain to the vision of all beings as the Self, what else remains to be attained in the way of Self-realisation? Would you say that Self-realisation is the state of existing as inert matter, as this wall or as this piece of wood, for instance?

Disciple: Though that is not the meaning, yet what the scriptures speak of as the withdrawal of the Self into Its real nature consists in the arresting of all mind-functions and all work.

Swamiji: Yes, this Samâdhi of which the scriptures speak is a state not at all easy to attain. When very rarely it appears in somebody, it does not last for long; so what will he keep himself occupied with? Thus it is that after realising that state described in the scriptures, the saint sees the Self in all beings and in that consciousness devotes himself to service, so that any Karma that was yet left to be worked out through the body may exhaust itself. It is this state which has been described by the authors of the Shâstras (scriptures) as Jivanmukti, "Freedom while living".

Disciple: So after all it comes about, sir, that unless this state of Jivanmukti is attained, work for the sake of others can never be pursued in the truest sense of the term.

Swamiji: Yes, that is what the Shastras say, but they also say that work or service for the good of others leads to this state of Jivanmukti. Otherwise there would be no need on the part of the Shastras to teach a separate path of religious practice, called the Karma-Yoga.

The disciple now understood the point and became silent, and Swamiji giving up the point commenced rendering in a voice of superhuman sweetness the song composed by Babu Girish Chandra Ghosh to commemorate Shri Ramakrishna's Nativity, and beginning:

"Who art Thou lying on the lap of the poor Brahmin matron."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

II

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The rented Math premises at Belur. Year: 1898.]

Today Swamiji is to perform a sacrifice and install Shri Ramakrishna on the site of the new Math. The disciple has been staying at the Math since the night before, with a view to witnessing the installation ceremony.

In the morning Swamiji had his bath in the Ganga and entered the worship-room. Then he made offerings to the sacred Pâdukâs (slippers) of Shri Ramakrishna and fell to meditation.

Meditation and worship over, preparations were now made for going to the new Math premises. Swamiji himself took on his right shoulder the ashes of Shri Ramakrishna's body preserved in a copper casket, and led the van. The disciple in company with other Sannyasins brought up the rear. There was the music of bells and conchs. On his way Swamiji said to the disciple, "Shri Ramakrishna said to me, 'Wherever you will take me on your shoulders, there I will go and stay, be it under a tree or in a hut.' It is therefore that I am myself carrying him on my shoulders to the new Math grounds. Know it for certain that Shri Ramakrishna will keep his seat fixed there, for the welfare of many, for a long time to come."

Disciple: When was it that he said this to you?

Swamiji: (Pointing to the Sâdhus of the Math) Didn't you hear from them? It was at the Cossipur garden.

Disciple: I see. It was on this occasion, I suppose, that the split took place between Shri Ramakrishna's Sannyâsin and householder disciples regarding the privilege of serving him?

Swamiji: Yes, but not exactly a "split" — it was only a misunderstanding, that's all. Rest assured that among those that are Shri Ramakrishna's devotees, and have truly obtained his grace, there is no sect or schism, there cannot be — be they householders or Sannyasins. As to that kind of slight misunderstanding, do you know what it was due to? Well, each devotee colours Shri Ramakrishna in the light of his own understanding and each forms his own idea of him from his peculiar standpoint. He was, as it were, a great Sun and each one of us is eyeing him, as it were, through a different kind of colored glass and coming to look upon that one Sun as parti-coloured. Of course, it is quite true that this leads to schism in course of time. But then, such schisms rarely occur in the lifetime of those who are fortunate enough to have come in direct contact with an Avatâra. The effulgence of that Personality, who takes pleasure only in the Self, dazzles their eyes and sweeps away pride, egotism, and narrow-mindedness from their minds. Consequently they find no opportunity to create sects and party factions. They are content to offer him their heart's worship, each in his own fashion.

Disciple: Sir, do the devotees of Avatara, then view him differently notwithstanding their knowing him to be God, and does this lead the succeeding generations of their followers to limit themselves within narrow bounds and form various little sects?

Swamiji: Quite so. Hence sects are bound to form in course of time. Look, for instance, how the followers of Chaitanya Deva have been divided into two or three hundred sects; and those of Jesus hold thousands of creeds. But all those sects without exception follow Chaitanya Deva or Jesus, and none else.

Disciple: Then, perhaps, Shri Ramakrishna's followers, too, will be divided in course of time into various sects?

Swamiji: Well, of course. But then this Math that we are building will harmonise all creeds, all standpoints. Just as Shri Ramakrishna held highly liberal views, this Math, too, will be a centre for propagating similar ideas. The blazing light of universal harmony that will emanate from here will flood the whole world.

While all this was going on, the party reached the Math premises. Swamiji took the casket down from his shoulder, placed it on the carpet spread on the ground, and bowed before it touching the ground with his forehead. Others too followed suit.

Then Swamiji again sat for worship. After going through Pujâ (worship), he lighted the sacrificial fire, made oblations to it, and himself cooking Pâyasa (milk-rice with sugar) with the help of his brother-disciples, offered it to Shri Ramakrishna. Probably also he initiated certain householders on the spot that day. All this ceremony being done, Swamiji cordially addressed the assembled gentlemen and said, "Pray today all of you, heart and soul, to the holy feet of Shri Ramakrishna, that the great Avatara of this cycle that he is, he may, "For the welfare of the many, and for the happiness of the many — बहुजनहिताय बहुजनसुखाय", reside in this holy spot from this day for a great length of time, and ever continue to make it the unique centre of harmony amongst all religions." Everyone prayed like that with folded palms. Swamiji next called the disciple and said, "None of us (Sannyasins) have any longer the right to take back this casket of Shri Ramakrishna, for we have installed him here today. It behoves you, therefore, to take it on your head back (to Nilambar Babu's garden)". Seeing that the disciple hesitated to touch the casket, Swamiji said, "No fear, touch it, you have my order." The disciple gladly obeyed the injunction, lifted the casket on his head, and moved on. He went first, next came Swamiji, and the rest followed. Swamiji said to the disciple on the way, "Shri Ramakrishna has today sat on your head and is blessing you. Take care, never let your mind think of anything transitory, from this day forth." Before crossing a small bridge, Swamiji again said to him, "Beware, now, you must move very cautiously."

Thus all safely reached the Math and rejoiced. Swamiji now entered into a conversation with the disciple, in the course of which he said, "Through the will of Shri Ramakrishna, his Dharmakshetra — sanctified spot — has been established today. A twelve years' anxiety is off my head. Do you know what I am thinking of at this moment? — This Math will be a center of learning and spiritual discipline. Householders of a virtuous turn like yourselves will build houses on the surrounding land and live there, and Sannyasins, men of renunciation, will live in the center, while on that plot of land on the south of the Math, buildings will be erected for English and American disciples to live in. How do you like this idea?

Disciple: Sir, it is indeed a wonderful fancy of yours.

Swamiji: A fancy do you call it? Not at all, everything will come about in time. I am but laying the foundation. There will be lots of further developments in future. Some portion of it I shall live to work out. And I shall infuse into you fellows various ideas, which you will work out in future. It will not do merely to listen to great principles. You must apply them in the practical field, turn them into constant practice. What will be the good of cramming the high-sounding dicta of the scriptures? You have first to grasp the teachings of the Shastras, and then to work them out in practical life. Do you understand? This is called practical religion.

Thus the talk went on, and gradually drifted to the topic of Shankarâchârya. The disciple was a great adherent of Shankara, almost to the point of fanaticism. He used to look upon Shankara's Advaita philosophy as the crest of all philosophies and could not bear any criticism of him. Swamiji was aware of this, and, as was his wont, wanted to break this one-sidedness of the disciple.

Swamiji: Shankara's intellect was sharp like the razor. He was a good arguer and a scholar, no doubt of that, but he had no great liberality; his heart too seems to have been like that. Besides, he used to take great pride in his Brahmanism — much like a southern Brahmin of the priest class, you may say. How he has defended in his commentary on the Vedanta-Sutras that the non-Brahmin castes will not attain to a supreme knowledge of Brahman! And what specious arguments! Referring to Vidura* he has said that he became a knower of Brahman by reason of his Brahmin body in the previous incarnation. Well, if nowadays any Shudra attains to a knowledge of Brahman, shall we have to side with your Shankara and maintain that because he had been a Brahmin in his previous birth, therefore he has attained to this knowledge? Goodness! What is the use of dragging in Brahminism with so much ado? The Vedas have entitled any one belonging to the three upper castes to study the Vedas and the realisation of Brahman, haven't they? So Shankara had no need whatsoever of displaying this curious bit of pedantry on this subject, contrary to the Vedas. And such was his heart that he burnt to death lots of Buddhist monks — by defeating them in argument! And the Buddhists, too, were foolish enough to burn themselves to death, simply because they were worsted in argument! What can you call such an action on Shankara's part except fanaticism? But look at Buddha's heart! — Ever ready to give his own life to save the life of even a kid — what to speak of "बहुजनहिताय बहुजनसुखाय — For the welfare of the many, for the happiness of the many"! See, what a large-heartedness — what a compassion!

Disciple: Can't we call that attitude of the Buddha, too, another kind of fanaticism, sir? He went to the length of sacrificing his own body for the sake of a beast!

Swamiji: But consider how much good to the world and its beings came out of that 'fanaticism' of his — how many monasteries and schools and colleges, how many public hospitals and veterinary refuges were established, how developed architecture became — think of that. What was there in this country before Buddha's advent? Only a number of religious principles recorded on bundles of palm leaves — and those too known only to a few. It was Lord Buddha who brought them down to the practical field and showed how to apply them in the everyday life of the people. In a sense, he was the living embodiment of true Vedanta.

Disciple: But, sir, it was he who by breaking down the Varnâshrama Dharma (duty according to caste and order of life) brought about a revolution within the fold of Hinduism in India, and there seems to be some truth also in the remark that the religion he preached was for this reason banished in course of time from the soil of India.

Swamiji: It was not through his teachings that Buddhism came to such degradation, it was the fault of his followers. By becoming too philosophic they lost much of their breadth of heart. Then gradually the corruption known as Vâmâchâra (unrestrained mixing with women in the name of religion) crept in and ruined Buddhism. Such diabolical rites are not to be met with in any modern Tantra! One of the principal centres of Buddhism was Jagannâtha or Puri, and you have simply to go there and look at the abominable figures carved on the temple walls to be convinced of this. Puri has come under the sway of the Vaishnavas since the time of Râmânûja and Shri Chaitanya. Through the influence of great personages like these the place now wears an altogether different aspect.

Disciple: Sir, the Shastras tell us of various special influences attaching to places of pilgrimage. How far is this claim true?

Swamiji: When the whole world is the Form Universal of the Eternal Atman, the Ishvara (God), what is there to wonder at in special influences attaching to particular places? There are places where He manifests Himself specially, either spontaneously or through the earnest longing of pure souls, and the ordinary man, if he visits those places with eagerness, attains his end quite easily. Therefore it may lead to the development of the Self in time to have recourse to holy places. But know it for certain that there is no greater Tirtha (holy spot) than the body of man. Nowhere else is the Atman so manifest as here. That car of Jagannatha that you see is but a concrete symbol of this corporeal car. You have to behold the Atman in this car of the body. Haven't you read "आत्मानं रथिनं विद्धि — Know the Atman to be seated on the chariot" etc., "मध्ये वामनमासीनं विश्वे देवा उपासते — All the gods worship the Vâmana (the Supreme Being in a diminutive form) seated in the interior of the body"? The sight of the Atman is the real vision of Jagannatha. And the statement "रथे च वामनं दृष्ट्वा पुनर्जन्म न विद्ययते — Seeing the Vâmana on the car, one is no more subject to rebirth", means that if you can visualise the Atman which is within you, and disregarding which you are always identifying yourself with this curious mass of matter, this body of yours — if you can see that, then there is no more rebirth for you. If the sight of the Lord's image on a wooden framework confers liberation on people, then crores of them would be liberated every year — specially with such facility of communication by rail nowadays! But I do not mean to say that the notion which devotees in general entertain towards Shri Jagannatha is either nothing or erroneous. There is a class of people who gradually rise to higher and higher truths with the help of that image. So it is an undoubted fact that in and through that image there is a special manifestation of the Lord.

Disciple: Sir, are there different religions then for the ignorant and the wise?

Swamiji: Quite so. Otherwise why do your scriptures go to such lengths over the specification of the qualifications of an aspirant? All is truth no doubt, but relative truth, different in degrees. Whatever man knows to be truth is of a like nature: some are lesser truths, others, higher ones in comparison with them, while the Absolute Truth is God alone. This Atman is altogether dormant in matter; in man, designated as a living being, It is partially conscious; while in personages like Shri Krishna, Buddha, and Shankara the same Atman has reached the superconscious stage. There is a state even beyond that, which cannot be expressed in terms of thought or language —
आवाह्यमनसो गौचरम् ।

Disciple: Sir, there are certain Bhakti sects who hold that we must practise devotion by placing ourselves in a particular attitude or relation with God. They do not understand anything about the glory of the Atman and so forth, and exclusively recommend this constant devotional attitude.

Swamiji: What they say is true to their own case. By continued practice along this line, they too shall feel an awakening of Brahman within them. And what we (Sannyasins) are doing is another kind of practice. We have renounced the world. So how will it suit us to practise by putting ourselves in some worldly relation — such as that of mother, or father, or wife or son, and so forth — with God? To us all these ideals appear to be narrow. Of course it is very difficult to qualify for the worship of God in His absolute, unconditioned aspect. But must we go in for poison because we get no nectar? Always talk and hear and reason about this Atman. By continuing to practise in this way, you will find in time that the Lion (Brahman) will wake up in you too. Go beyond all those relative attitudes — mere sports of the mind. Listen to what Yama says in the Katha Upanisad:
उचिष्ठत जाग्रत प्राप्य वरान्निबोधत | (Arise, awake, and learn by approaching the élite.) Arise! Awake! and stop not until the goal is reached!

Here the subject was brought to a close. The bell for taking Prasâda (consecrated food) rang, and Swamiji went to partake of it, followed by the disciple.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

III

[Place: The rented Math premises at Belur. Time: February, 1898.]

Swamiji has removed the Math from Alambazar to Nilambar Babu's garden at Belur. He is very glad to have come to these new premises. He said to the disciple when the latter came, "See how the Ganga flows by and what a nice building! I like this place. This is the ideal kind of place for a Math." It was then afternoon.

In the evening the disciple found Swamiji alone in the upper storey, and the talk went on, on various topics, in the course of which he wanted to know about Swamiji's boyhood days. Swamiji began to say, "From my very boyhood I was a dare-devil sort of fellow. Otherwise, do you think I could make a tour round the world without a single copper in my pocket?"

In boyhood Swamiji had a great predilection for hearing the chanting of the Râmâyana by professional singers. Wherever such chanting would take place in the neighborhood, he would attend it, leaving sport and all. Swamiji related how, while listening to the Ramayana, on some days, he would be so deeply engrossed in it as to forget all about home, and would have no idea that it was late at night, and that he must return home, and so forth. One day during the chant he heard that the monkey-god Hanumân lived in banana orchards. Forthwith he was so much convinced that when the chant was over, he did not go home straight that night, but loitered in a banana orchard close to his house, with the hope of catching sight of Hanuman, till it was very late in the night.

In his student life he used to pass the day-time only in playing and gambolling with his mates, and study at night bolting the doors. And none could know when he prepared his lessons.

The disciple asked, "Did you see any visions, sir, during your school-days?"

Swamiji: While at school, one night I was meditating within closed doors and had a fairly deep concentration of mind. How long I meditated in that way, I cannot say. It was over, and I still kept my seat, when from the southern wall of that room a luminous figure stepped out and stood in front of me. There was a wonderful radiance on its visage, yet there seemed to be no play of emotion on it. It was the figure of a Sannyasin absolutely calm, shaven-headed, and staff and Kamandalu (a Sannyasin's wooden water-bowl) in hand. He gazed at me for some time and seemed as if he would address me. I too gazed at him in speechless wonder. Then a kind of fright seized me, I opened the door, and hurried out of the room. Then it struck me that it was foolish of me to run away like that, that perhaps he might say something to me. But I have never met that figure since. Many a time and often I have thought that if again I saw him, I would no more be afraid but would speak to him. But I met him no more.

Disciple: Did you ever think on the matter afterwards?

Swamiji: Yes, but I could find no clue to its solution. I now think it was the Lord Buddha whom I saw.

After a short pause, Swamiji said, "When the mind is purified, when one is free from the attachment for lust and gold, one sees lots of visions, most wonderful ones! But one should not pay heed to them. The aspirant cannot advance further if he sets his mind constantly on them. Haven't you heard that Shri Ramakrishna used to say, 'Countless jewels lie uncared for in the outer courts of my beloved Lord's sanctum'? We must come face to face with the Atman; what is the use of setting one's mind on vagaries like those?"

After saying these words, Swamiji sat silent for a while, lost in thought over something. He then resumed:

"Well, while I was in America I had certain wonderful powers developed in me. By looking into people's eyes I could fathom in a trice the contents of their minds. The workings of everybody's mind would be potent to me, like a fruit on the palm of one's hand. To some I used to give out these things, and of those to whom I communicated these, many would become my disciples; whereas those who came to mix with me with some ulterior motive would not, on coming across this power of mine, even venture into my presence any more.

"When I began lecturing in Chicago and other cities, I had to deliver every week some twelve or fifteen or even more lectures at times. This excessive strain on the body and mind would exhaust me to a degree. I seemed to run short of subjects for lectures and was anxious where to find new topics for the morrow's lecture. New thoughts seemed altogether scarce. One day, after the lecture, I lay thinking of what means to adopt next. The thought induced a sort of slumber, and in that state I heard as if somebody standing by me was lecturing — many new ideas and new veins of thought, which I had scarcely heard or thought of in my life. On awaking I remembered them and reproduced them in my lecture. I cannot enumerate how often this phenomenon took place. Many, many days did I hear such lectures while lying in bed. Sometimes the lecture would be delivered in such a loud voice that the inmates of adjacent rooms would hear the sound and ask me the next day, "With whom, Swamiji, were you talking so loudly last night?" I used to avoid the question somehow. Ah, it was a wonderful phenomenon."

The disciple was wonder-struck at Swamiji's words and after thinking deeply on the matter said, "Sir, then you yourself must have lectured like that in your subtle body, and sometimes it would be echoed by the gross body also."

Swamiji listened and replied, "Well, may be."

The topic of his American experiences came up. Swamiji said, "In that country the women are more learned than men. They are all well versed in science and philosophy, and that is why they would appreciate and honour me so much. The men are grinding all day at their work and have very little leisure, whereas the women, by studying and teaching in schools and colleges, have become highly learned. Whichever side you turn your eyes in America, you see the power and influence of women."

Disciple: Well, sir, did not the bigoted Christians oppose you?

Swamiji: Yes, they did. When people began to honour me, then the Padris were after me. They spread many slanders about me by publishing them in the newspapers. Many asked me to contradict these slanders. But I never took the slightest notice of them. It is my firm conviction that no great work is accomplished in this world by low cunning; so without paying any heed to these vile slanders, I used to work steadily at my mission. The upshot I used to find was that often my slanderers, feeling repentant afterwards, would surrender to me and offer apologies, by themselves contradicting the slanders in the papers. Sometimes it so happened that learning that I had been invited to a certain house, somebody would communicate those slanders to my host, who hearing them, would leave home, locking his door. When I went there to attend the invitation, I found it was deserted and nobody was there. Again a few days afterwards, they themselves, learning the truth, would feel sorry for their previous conduct and come to offer themselves as disciples. The fact is, my son, this whole world is full of mean ways of worldliness. But men of real moral courage and discrimination are never deceived by these. Let the world say what it chooses, I shall tread the path of duty — know this to be the line of action for a hero. Otherwise, if one has to attend day and night to what this man says or that man writes, no great work is achieved in this world. Do you know this Sanskrit Shloka: "Let those who are versed in the ethical codes praise or blame, let Lakshmi, the goddess of Fortune, come or go wherever she wisheth, let death overtake him today or after a century, the wise man never swerves from the path of rectitude." (Bhartrihari's Nitishataka) Let people praise you or blame you, let fortune smile or frown upon you, let your body fall today or after a Yuga, see that you do not deviate from the path of Truth. How much of tempest and waves one has to weather, before one reaches the haven of Peace! The greater a man has become, the fiercer ordeal he has had to pass through. Their lives have been tested true by the touchstone of practical life, and only then have they been acknowledged great by the world. Those who are faint-hearted and cowardly sink their barks near the shore, frightened by the raging of waves on the sea. He who is a hero never casts a glance at these. Come what may, I must attain my ideal first — this is Purushakâra, manly endeavour; without such manly endeavor no amount of Divine help will be of any avail to banish your inertia.

Disciple: Is, then, reliance on Divine help a sign of weakness?

Swamiji: In the Shastras real self-surrender and reliance on God has been indicated as the culmination of human achievement. But in your country nowadays the way people speak of Daiva or reliance on Divine dispensation is a sign of death, the outcome of great cowardliness; conjuring up some monstrous idea of God-head and trying to saddle that with all your faults and shortcomings. Haven't you heard Shri Ramakrishna's story about "the sin of killing a cow"?* In the end the owner of the garden had to suffer for the sin of killing the cow. Nowadays everybody says: "I am acting as I am being directed by the Lord", and thus throws the burden of both his sins and virtues on the Lord. As if he is himself the lotus-leaf in the water (untouched by it)! If everybody can truly live always in this mood, then he is a Free Soul. But what really happens is that for the "good" I have the credit, but the "bad" Thou, God, art responsible! Praise be to such reliance on God! Without the attainment of the fullness of Knowledge or Divine Love, such a state of absolute reliance on the Lord does not come. He who is truly and sincerely reliant on the Lord goes beyond all idea of the duality of good and bad. The brightest example of the attainment of this state among us at the present time is Nâg Mahâshaya. (Durgâ Charan Nag, a disciple of Shri Ramakrishna.)

Then the conversation drifted to the subject of Nâg Mahâshaya. Swamiji said, "One does not find a second devoted Bhakta like him — Oh, when shall I see him again!"

Disciple: He will soon come to Calcutta to meet you, so mother (Nag Mahashaya's wife) has written to me.

Swamiji: Shri Ramakrishna used to compare him to King Janaka. A man with such control over all the senses one does not hear of even, much less come across. You must associate with him as much as you can. He is one of Shri Ramakrishna's nearest disciples.

Disciple: Many in our part of the country call him a madcap. But I have known him to be a great soul since the very first day of my meeting him. He loves me much, and I have his fervent blessings.

Swamiji: Since you have attained the company of such a Mahâpurusha (holy soul), what more have you to fear about? As an effect of many lives of Tapasyâ one is blessed with the company of such a great soul. How does he live at home?

Disciple: Sir, he has got no business or anything of the kind. He is always busy in serving the guests who come to his house. Beyond the small sum the Pal Babus give him, he has no other means of subsistence; his expenses, however, are like those in a rich family. But he does not spend a pice for his own enjoyment, all that expense is for the service of others. Service — service of others — this seems to be the great mission of his life. It sometimes strikes me that realising the Atman in all creatures, he is engrossed in serving the whole world as a part and parcel of himself. In the service of others he works incessantly and is not conscious even of his body. I suppose, he always lives on the plane which you, sir, call the superconscious state of the mind.

Swamiji: Why should not that be? How greatly was he beloved of Shri Ramakrishna! In your East Bengal, one of Shri Ramakrishna's divine companions has been born in the person of Nag Mahashaya. By his radiance Eastern Bengal has become effulgent.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

IV

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The rented Math Premises at Belur. Year: 1898, November.]

It is two or three days since Swamiji has returned from Kashmir. His health is indifferent. When the disciple came to the Math, Swami Brahmananda said, "Since returning from Kashmir, Swamiji does not speak to anybody, he sits in one place rapt in thought; you go to him and by conversation try to draw his mind a little towards worldly objects."

The disciple coming to Swamiji's room in the upper storey found him sitting as if immersed in deep meditation. There was no smile on his face, his brilliant eyes had no outward look, as if intent on seeing something within. Seeing the disciple, he only said, "You have come, my son? Please take your seat", and lapsed into silence. The disciple seeing the inside of his left eye reddened asked, "How is it that your eye is red?" "That is nothing", said Swamiji and was again silent. When even after along time Swamiji did not speak, the disciple was a little troubled at heart and touching his feet said, "Won't you relate to me what things you have seen at Amarnath?" By the disciple's touching his feet, the tensity of his mood was broken a little, as if his attention was diverted a little outwards. He said, "Since visiting Amarnath, I feel as if Shiva is sitting on my head for twenty-four hours and would not come down." The disciple heard it with speechless wonder.

Swamiji: I underwent great religious austerities at Amarnath and then in the temple of Kshir Bhavâni. Go and prepare me some tobacco, I will relate everything to you.

The disciple joyfully obeyed the order. Swamiji slowly smoking began to say, "On the way to Amarnath, I made a very steep ascent on the mountain. Pilgrims do not generally travel by that path. But the determination came upon me that I must go by that path, and so I did. The labour of the strenuous ascent has told on my body. The cold there is so biting that you feel it like pin-pricks."

Disciple: I have heard that it is the custom to visit the image of Amarnath naked; is it so?

Swamiji: Yes, I entered the cave with only my Kaupina on and my body smeared with holy ash; I did not then feel any cold or heat. But when I came out of the temple, I was benumbed by the cold.

Disciple: Did you see the holy pigeons? I have heard, in that cold no living creatures are found to live, but a flight of pigeons from some unknown place frequents the place occasionally.

Swamiji: Yes, I saw three or four white pigeons; whether they live in the cave or the neighboring hills, I could not ascertain.

Disciple: Sir, I have heard people say that the sight of pigeons on coming out of the temple indicates that one has really been blessed with the vision of Shiva.

Swamiji: I have heard that the sight of the pigeons brings to fruition whatever desires one may have.

Then Swamiji said that on the way back he returned to Srinagar by the common route by which the pilgrims return. A few days after returning to Srinagar, he went to visit Kshir Bhavani Devi and staying there for seven days worshipped the Devi and made Homa to her with offerings of Kshira (condensed milk). Every day he used to worship the Devi with a maund of Kshira as offering. One day, while worshipping, the thought arose in Swamiji's mind: "Mother Bhavani has been manifesting Her Presence here for untold years. The Mohammedans came and destroyed her temple, yet the people of the place did nothing to protect Her. Alas, if I were then living I could never have borne it silently." When, thinking in this strain, his mind was much oppressed with sorrow and anguish, he distinctly heard the voice of the Mother saying, "It was according to My desire that the Mohammedans destroyed this temple. It is My desire that I should live in a dilapidated temple, otherwise, can I not immediately erect a seven-storeyed temple of gold here if I like? What can you do? Shall I protect you or shall you protect me!" Swamiji said, "Since hearing that divine voice, I cherish no more plans. The idea of building Maths etc. I have given up; as Mother wills, so it will be." The disciple, speechless with wonder, began to think, "Did he not one day tell me that whatever I saw and heard was but the echo of the Atman within me, that there was nothing outside?" — and fearlessly spoke it out also — "Sir, you used to say that Divine Voices are the echo of our inward thoughts and feelings." Swamiji gravely said, "Whether it be internal or external, if you actually hear with your ears such a disembodied voice, as I have done, can you deny it and call it false? Divine Voices are actually heard, just as you and I are talking."

The disciple, without controverting accepted Swamiji's words, for his words always carried conviction.

He then brought up the subject of departed spirits, and said, "Sir, these ghosts and departed spirits we hear about — which the Shastras also amply corroborate — are all these true or not?"

Swamiji: Certainly they are true. Whatever you don't see, are they all false for that? Beyond your sight, millions of universes are revolving at great distances. Because you do not see them, are they non-existent for that? But then, do not put your mind on these subjects of ghosts and spirits. Your mental attitude towards them should be one of indifference. Your duty is to realise the Atman within this body. When you realise the Atman, ghosts and spirits will be your slaves.

Disciple: But sir, I think that, if one sees them, it strengthens one's belief in the hereafter, and dispels all doubts about it.

Swamiji: You are heroes; do you mean to say that even you shall have to strengthen your belief in the hereafter by seeing ghosts and spirits! You have read so many sciences and scriptures — have mastered so many secrets of this infinite universe — even with such knowledge, you have to acquire the knowledge of the Atman by seeing ghosts and spirits! What a shame!

Disciple: Well, sir, have you ever seen ghosts and spirits?

Swamiji narrated that a certain deceased relative of his used to come to him as a disembodied spirit. Sometimes it used to bring him information about distant events. But on verification, some of its information was not found to be correct. Afterwards at a certain place of pilgrimage Swamiji prayed for it mentally, wishing it might be released — since then he did not see it again.

The disciple then questioned Swamiji if Shrâddha or other obsequial ceremonies appeased the departed spirits in any way. Swamiji replied, "That is not impossible." On the disciple's asking for the grounds of that belief Swamiji said, "I will explain the subject to you at length some day. There are irrefutable arguments to prove that the Shrâddha ceremony appeases the departed beings. Today I don't feel well. I shall explain it to you another day." But the disciple did not get another opportunity to ask that question to Swamiji.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

V

[Place: The rented Math premises at Belur. Year: 1898, November.]

The Math is still situated in Nilambar Babu's garden house at Belur. It is the month of November. Swamiji is now much engaged in the study and discussion of Sanskrit scriptures. The couplet beginning with "Âchandâlâ-pratihatarayah", he composed about this time. Today Swamiji composed the hymn, "Om Hring Ritam" etc., and handing it over to the disciple said, "See if there is any metrical defect in these stanzas." The disciple made a copy of the poem for this purpose.

On this day it seemed as if the goddess of learning had manifested herself on his tongue. With the disciple he fluently talked about two hours at a stretch in exceedingly melodious Sanskrit. After the disciple had copied the hymn, Swamiji said, "You see, as I write immersed in thought, grammatical slips sometimes occur; therefore I ask you all to look over them."

Disciple: Sir, these are not slips, but the licence of genius.

Swamiji: You may say so; but why will other people assent to that? The other day I wrote an essay on "What is Hinduism", and some amongst you even are complaining that it was written in a very stiff Bengali. I think, language and thought also, like all other things, become lifeless and monotonous in course of time. Such a state seems to have happened now in this country. On the advent of Shri Ramakrishna, however, a new current has set in, in thought and language. Everything has now to be recast in new moulds. Everything has to be propagated with the stamp of new genius. Look, for example, how the old modes of Sannyasins are breaking, yielding place to a new mould by degrees. Society is protesting much against it — but is it of any avail? Neither are we frightened by that. The Sannyasins of the present day have to go to distant countries for preaching, and if they go in an ash-besmeared, half-nude body like the Sâdhus (holy men) of old, in the first place they won't be taken on board the ships, and even if they anyhow reach foreign countries in that dress, they will have to stay in jail. Everything requires to be changed a little according to place, time, and civilisation. Henceforth I am thinking of writing essays in Bengali. Litterateurs will perhaps rail at them. Never mind — I shall try to cast the Bengali language in a new mould. Nowadays, Bengali writers use too many verbs in their writings; this takes away the force of the language. If one can express the ideas of verbs with adjectives, it adds to the force of the language; henceforth try to write in that style. Try to write articles in that style in the Udbodhan. Do you know the meaning of the use of verbs in language? It gives a pause to the thought; hence the use of too many verbs in language is the sign of weakness, like quick breathing, and indicates that there is not much vitality in the language; that is why one cannot lecture well in the Bengali language. He who has control over his language, does not make frequent breaks in his thoughts. As your physique has been rendered languid by living on a dietary of boiled rice and dâl, similar is the case with your language. In food, in modes of life, in thought, and in language, energy has to be infused. With the infusion of vitality all round and the circulation of blood in all arteries and veins, one should feel the throbbing of new life in everything — then only will the people of this land be able to survive the present terrible struggle for existence; otherwise the country and the race will vanish in the enveloping shadows of death at no distant date.

Disciple: Sir, the constitution of the people of this country has been moulded in a peculiar way through long ages. Is it possible to change that within a short time?

Swamiji: If you have known the old ways to be wrong, then why don't you, as I say, learn to live in a better way? By your example ten other people will follow suit, and by theirs another fifty people will learn. By this process in course of time the new idea will awaken in the hearts of the whole race. But even if after understanding, you do not act accordingly, I shall know that you are wise in words only — but practically you are fools.

Disciple: Your words, sir, infuse great courage, enthusiasm, energy and strength into the heart.

Swamiji: By degrees the heart has to be strengthened. If one man is made, it equals the result of a hundred thousand lectures. Making the mind and lips at one, the ideas have to be practised in life. This is what Shri Ramakrishna meant by "allowing no theft in the chamber of thought". You have to be practical in all spheres of work. The whole country has been ruined by masses of theories. He who is the true son of Shri Ramakrishna will manifest the practical side of religious ideas and will set to work with one-pointed devotion without paying heed to the prattling of men or of society. Haven't you heard of the couplet of Tulsidas: "The elephant walks the market-place and a thousand curs bark at him; so the Sadhus have no ill-feeling if worldly people slander them." You have to walk in this way. No count should be taken of the words of people. If one has to pay heed to their praise or blame, no great work can be accomplished in this life. "नायमात्मा बलहीनेन लभ्यः — #8212; The Atman is not to be gained by the weak." If there is no strength in the body and mind, the Atman cannot be realised. First you have to build the body by good nutritious food — then only will the mind be strong. The mind is but the subtle part of the body. You must retain great strength in your mind and words. "I am low, I am low" — repeating these ideas in the mind, man belittles and degrades himself. Therefore, the Shastra (Ashtâvakra Samhita, I. 11) says:

"मुक्ताभिमानी मुक्तो हि बद्धो बद्धाभिमान्यपि । किम्बद्धीह सत्येयं या मतिः सा गतिर्भवेत् ॥

— He who thinks himself free, free he becomes; he who thinks himself bound, bound he remains — this popular saying is true: 'As one thinks, so one becomes.' He alone who is always awake to the idea of freedom, becomes free; he who thinks he is bound, endures life after life in the state of bondage. It is a fact. This truth holds good both in spiritual and temporal matters. Those who are always down-hearted and dispirited in this life can do no work; from life to life they come and go wailing and moaning. "The earth is enjoyed by heroes" — this is the unfailling truth. Be a hero. Always say, "I have no fear." Tell this to everybody — "Have no fear". Fear is death, fear is sin, fear is hell, fear is unrighteousness, fear is wrong life. All the negative thoughts and ideas that are in this world have proceeded from this evil spirit of fear. This fear alone has kept the sun, air and death in their respective places and functions, allowing none to escape from their bounds. Therefore the Shruti says (Katha Upanishad, II. iii, 3) says:

"भयाद्स्वाग्निस्तपति भयात्तपति सूर्यः । भयादिन्द्रश्च वायुश्च मृत्युर्धावति पञ्चमः ॥

— Through fear of this, fire burns, the sun heats; through fear Indra and Vâyu are carrying on their functions, and Death stalks upon this earth." When the gods Indra, Chandra, Vayu, Varuna will attain to fearlessness, then will they be one with Brahman, and all this phantasm of the world will vanish. Therefore I say, "Be fearless, be fearless."

Swamiji, in saying these words, appeared in the eyes of the disciple like the very embodiment of "fearlessness", and he thought, "How in his presence even the fear of death leaves one and vanishes into nothingness!"

Swamiji continued: In this embodied existence, you will be tossed again and again on the waves of happiness and misery, prosperity and adversity — but know them all to be of momentary duration. Never care for them. "I am birthless, the deathless Atman, whose nature is Intelligence" — implanting this idea firmly in your heart, you should pass the days of your life. "I have no birth, no death, I am the Atman untouched by anything" — lose yourself completely in this idea. If you can once become one with this idea, then in the hour of sorrow and tribulation, it will rise of itself in your mind, and you will not have to strive with difficulty to bring it up. The other day, I was a guest of Babu Priyanath Mukherjee at Baidyanath. There I had such a spell of asthma that I felt like dying. But from within, with every breath arose the deep-toned sound, "I am He, I am He". Resting on the pillow, I was waiting for the vital breath to depart, and observing all the time that from within was being heard the sound of "I am He, I am He!" I could hear all along "एकमेवाद्वयं ब्रह्म नेह नानास्ति किञ्चन — The Brahman, the One without a second, alone exists, nothing manifold exists in the world."

The disciple, struck with amazement said, "Sir, talking with you and listening to your realisations, I feel no necessity for the study of scriptures."

Swamiji: No! Scriptures have to be studied also. For the attainment of Jnana, study of scriptures is essential. I shall soon open classes in the Math for them. The Vedas, Upanishads, the Gita, and Bhâgavata should be studied in the classes, and I shall teach the Pânini's Ashtâdhyâyi.

Disciple: Have you studied the Ashtadhayayi of Panini?

Swamiji: When I was in Jaipur, I met a great grammarian and felt a desire to study Sanskrit grammar with him. Although he was a great scholar in that branch, he had not much aptitude for teaching. He explained to me the commentary on the first aphorism for three days continuously, still I could not grasp a bit of it. On the fourth day the teacher got annoyed and said, "Swamiji, I could not make you understand the meaning of the first aphorism even in three days; I fear, you will not be much benefited by my teaching." Hearing these words, a great self-reproach came over me. Putting food and sleep aside, I set myself to study the commentary on the first aphorism independently. Within three hours the sense of the commentary stood explained before me as clearly as anything; then going to my teacher I gave him the sense of the whole commentary. My teacher, hearing me, said, "How could you gather the sense so excellently within three hours, which I failed to explain to you in three days?" After that, every day I began to read chapter after chapter, with the greatest ease. Through concentration of mind everything can be accomplished — even mountains can be crushed to atoms.

Disciple: Sir, everything is wonderful about you.

Swamiji: There is nothing wonderful in this universe. Ignorance constitutes the only darkness, which confers all things and makes them look mysterious. When everything is lighted by Knowledge, the sense of mystery vanishes from the face of things. Even such an inscrutable thing as Maya, which brings the most impossible things to pass, disappears. Know Him, think of Him, by knowing whom everything else is known. And when that Atman is realised, the purport of all scriptures will be perceived as clearly as a fruit on the palm of one's hand. The Rishis of old attained realisation, and must we fail? We are also men. What has happened once in the life of one individual must, through proper endeavour, be realised in the life of others. History repeats itself. This Atman is the same in all, there is only a difference of manifestation in different individuals. Try to manifest this Atman, and you will see your intellect penetrating into all subjects. The intellect of one who has not realised the Atman is one-sided, whereas the genius of the knower of Atman is all-embracing. With the manifestation of the Atman you will find that science, philosophy, and everything will be easily mastered. Proclaim the glory of the Atman with the roar of a lion, and impart fearlessness unto all beings by saying, "Arise, awake, and stop not till the goal is reached."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

VI

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The rented Math premises at Belur. Year: 1898.]

The disciple is staying with Swamiji at the garden-house of Nilambar Babu at Belur for the last two days.

Today, Swamiji has given permission to the disciple to stay in his room at night. When the disciple was serving Swamiji and massaging his feet, he spoke to him: "What folly! Leaving such a place as this, you want to go back to Calcutta! See what an atmosphere of holiness is here — the pure air of the Ganga — what an assemblage of Sadhus — will you find anywhere a place like this!"

Disciple: Sir, as the fruition of great austerities in past lives, I have been blessed with your company. Now bless me that I may not be overcome by ignorance and delusion any more. Now my mind sometimes is seized with a great longing for some direct spiritual realisation.

Swamiji: I also felt like that many times. One day in the Cossipore garden, I had expressed my prayer to Shri Ramakrishna with great earnestness. Then in the evening, at the hour of meditation, I lost the consciousness of the body, and felt that it was absolutely non-existent. I felt that the sun, moon, space, time, ether, and all had been reduced to a homogeneous mass and then melted far away into the unknown; the body-consciousness had almost vanished, and I had nearly merged in the Supreme. But I had just a trace of the feeling of Ego, so I could again return to the world of relativity from the Samâdhi. In this state of Samadhi all the difference between "I" and the "Brahman" goes away, everything is reduced into unity, like the waters of the Infinite Ocean — water everywhere, nothing else exists — language and thought, all fail there. Then only is the state "beyond mind and speech" realised in its actuality. Otherwise, so long as the religious aspirant thinks or says, "I am the Brahman" — "I" and "the Brahman", these two entities persist — there is the involved semblance of duality. After that experience, even after trying repeatedly, I failed to bring back the state of Samadhi. On informing Shri Ramakrishna about it, he said, "If you remain day and night in that state, the work of the Divine Mother will not be accomplished; therefore you won't be able to induce that state again; when your work is finished, it will come again."

Disciple: On the attainment of the absolute and transcendent Nirvikalpa Samadhi can none return to the world of duality through the consciousness of Egoism?

Swamiji: Shri Ramakrishna used to say that the Avatars alone can descend to the ordinary plane from that state of Samadhi, for the good of the world. Ordinary Jivas do not; immersed in that state, they remain alive for a period of twenty-one days; after that, their body drops like a sere leaf from the tree of Samsâra (world).

Disciple: When in Samadhi the mind is merged, and there remain no waves on the surface of consciousness, where then is the possibility of mental activity and returning to the world through the consciousness of Ego? When there is no mind, then who will descend from Samadhi to the relative plane, and by what means?

Swamiji: The conclusion of the Vedanta is that when there is absolute samadhi and cessation of all modifications, there is no return from that state; as the Vedanta Aphorism says: "अनावृत्तिः शब्दान् — There is non-return, from scriptural texts." But the Avatars cherish a few desires for the good of the world. By taking hold of that thread, they come down from the superconscious to the conscious state.

Disciple: But, sir, if one or two desires remain, how can that state be called the absolute, transcendent Samadhi? For the scriptures say that in that state all the modifications of the mind and all desires are stamped out.

Swamiji: How then can there be projection of the universe after Mahâpralaya (final dissolution)? At Mahâpralaya everything is merged in the Brahman. But even after that, one hears and reads of creation in the scriptures, that projection and contraction (of the universe) go on in wave forms. Like the fresh creation and dissolution of the universe after Mahapralaya, the superconscious and conscious states of Avataras also stand to reason.

Disciple: If I argue that at the time of dissolution the seeds of further creation remain almost merged in Brahman, and that it is not absolute dissolution or Nirvikalpa Samadhi?

Swamiji: Then I shall ask you to answer how the projection of the universe is possible from Brahman in which there is no shadow of any qualification — which is unaffected and unqualified.

Disciple: Why, this is but a seeming projection. The reply to the question is given in the scriptures in this way, that the manifestation of creation from Brahman is only an appearance like the mirage in the desert, but really there has been no creation or anything of the kind. This illusion is produced by Maya, which is the negation of the eternally existing Brahman, and hence unreal.

Swamiji: If the creation is false, then you can also regard the Nirvikalpa Samadhi of Jiva and his return therefrom as seeming appearances. Jiva is Brahman by his nature. How can he have any experience of bondage? Your desire to realise the truth that you are Brahman is also a hallucination in that case — for the scripture says, "You are already that." Therefore, "अयमेव हि ते बन्ध समाधिन्मनुतिष्ठसि — This is verily your bondage that you are practising the attainment of Samadhi."

Disciple: This is a great dilemma. If I am Brahman, why don't I always realise it?

Swamiji: In order to attain to that realisation in the conscious plane, some instrumentality is required. The mind is that instrument in us. But it is a non-intelligent substance. It only appears to be intelligent through the light of the Atman behind. Therefore the author of the Panchadashi (III. 40) says: "चिच्छ्रयवेशतः शक्तिश्चेत्तत्रैव विभाति सा — The Shakti appears to be intelligent by the reflection of the intelligence of the Atman." Hence the mind also appears to us like an intelligent substance. Therefore it is certain that you won't be able to know the Atman, the Essence of Intelligence, through the mind. You have to go beyond the mind — for only the Atman exists there — there the object of knowledge becomes the same as the instrument of knowledge. The knower, knowledge, and the instrument of knowledge become one and the same. It is therefore that the Shruti says, "विज्ञात्तारमरे केन विज्ञानीयात् — Through what are you to know the Eternal Subject?" The real fact is that there is a state beyond the conscious plane, where there is no duality of the knower, knowledge, and the instrument of knowledge etc. When the mind is merged, that state is perceived. I say it is "perceived," because there is no other word to express that state. Language cannot express that state. Shankaracharya has styled it "Transcendent Perception" (Aparokshânubhuti). Even after that transcendent perception Avataras descend to the relative plane and give glimpses of that — therefore it is said that the Vedas and other scriptures have originated from the perception of Seers. The case of ordinary Jivas is like that of the salt-doll which attempting to sound the depths of the ocean melted into it. Do you see? The sum and substance of it is — you have only got to know that you are Eternal Brahman.

You are already that, only the intervention of a non-intelligent mind (which is called Maya in the scriptures) is hiding that knowledge. When the mind composed of subtle matter is quelled, the Atman is effulgent by Its own radiance. One proof of the fact that Maya or mind is an illusion is that the mind by itself is non-intelligent and of the nature of darkness; and it is the light of the Atman behind, that makes it appear as intelligent. When you will understand this, the mind will merge in the unbroken Ocean of Intelligence; then you will realise: अयमात्मा ब्रह्म — This Atman is Brahman."

Then Swamiji, addressing the disciple, said, "You feel sleepy, then go to sleep."

In the night the disciple had a wonderful dream, as a result of which he earnestly begged Swamiji's permission to worship him. Swamiji had to acquiesce, and after the ceremony was over he said to the disciple, "Well, your worship is finished, but Premananda will be in a rage at your sacrilegious act of worshipping my feet in the flower-tray meant for Shri Ramakrishna's worship." Before his words were finished, Swami Premananda came there, and Swamiji said to him, "See what a sacrilege he has committed! With the requisites of Shri Ramakrishna's worship, he has worshipped me!" Swami Premananda, smiling, said, "Well done! Are you and Shri Ramakrishna different?" — hearing which the disciple felt at ease.

The disciple is an orthodox Hindu. Not to speak of prohibited food, he does not even take food touched by another.

Therefore Swamiji sometimes used to refer to him as "priest". Swamiji, while he was eating biscuits with his breakfast, said to Swami Sadananda, "Bring the priest in here." When the disciple came to Swamiji, he gave some portion of his food to him to eat. Finding the disciple accepting it without any demur, Swamiji said, "Do you know what you have eaten now? These are made from eggs." In reply, the disciple said, "Whatever may be in it, I have no need to know; taking this sacramental food from you, I have become immortal."

Thereupon Swamiji said, "I bless you that from this day all your egoism of caste, colour, high birth, religious merit and demerit, and all, may vanish for ever!". . .

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

VII

[Place: The rented Math premises at Belur. Year: 1898.]

The disciple has come to the Math this morning. As soon as he stood after touching the feet of Swamiji, Swamiji said, "What's the use of your continuing in service any more? Why not go in for some business?" The disciple was then employed as a private tutor in some family. Asked about the profession of teaching, Swamiji said, "If one does the work of teaching boys for a long time, one gets blunt in intellect; one's intelligence is not manifested. If one stays among a crowd of boys day and night, gradually one gets obtuse. So give up the working of teaching boys."

Disciple: What shall I do, then?

Swamiji: Why, if you want to live the life of a worldly man and have a desire for earning money, then go over to America. I shall give you directions for business. You will find that in five years you will get together a lot of money.

Disciple: What business shall I go in for? And where am I to get the money from?

Swamiji: What nonsense are you talking? Within you lies indomitable power. Only thinking, "I am nothing, I am nothing", you have become powerless. Why, you alone! The whole race has become so. Go round the world once, and you will find how vigorously the life-current of other nations is flowing. And what are you doing? Even after learning so much, you go about the doors of others, crying, "Give me employment". Trampled under others' feet doing slavery for others, are you men any more? You are not worth a pin's head! In this fertile country with abundant water-supply, where nature produces wealth and harvest a thousand times more than in others, you have no food for your stomach, no clothes to cover your body! In this country of abundance, the produce of which has been the cause of the spread of civilisation in other countries, you are reduced to such straits! Your condition is even worse than that of a dog. And you glory in your Vedas and Vedanta! A nation that cannot provide for its simple food and clothing, which always depends on others for its subsistence — what is there for it to vaunt about? Throw your religious observances overboard for the present and be first prepared for the struggle for existence. People of foreign countries are turning out such golden results from the raw materials produced in your country, and you, like asses of burden, are only carrying their load. The people of foreign countries import Indian raw goods, manufacture various commodities by bringing their intelligence to bear upon them, and become great; whereas you have locked up your intelligence, thrown away your inherited wealth to others, and roam about crying piteously for food.

Disciple: In what way, sir, can the means of subsistence be procured?

Swamiji: Why, the means are in your hands. You blindfold your eyes, and say, "I am blind and can see nothing." Tear off the folds from your eyes and you will see the whole world lighted by the rays of the midday sun. If you cannot procure money, go to foreign countries, working your passage as a Lascar. Take Indian cloth, towels, bamboo-work, and other indigenous products, and peddle in the streets of Europe and America; you will find how greatly Indian products are appreciated in foreign markets even now. In America I found, some Mohammedans of the Hooghly district had grown rich by peddling Indian commodities in this way. Have you even less intelligence than they? Take, for example, such excellent fabric as the Varanasi-made Sâris of India, the like of which are not produced anywhere else in the world. Go to America with this cloth. Have gowns made out of this fabric and sell them, and you will see how much you earn.

Disciple: Sir, why will they wear gowns made of the Saris of Varanasi? I have heard that clothes designed diversely are not to the taste of the ladies in those countries.

Swamiji: Whether they will receive or not, I shall look to that. It is for you to exert yourself and go over there. I have many friends in that country, to whom I shall introduce you. At first I shall request them to take this cloth up among themselves. Then you will find many will follow suit, and at last you won't be able to keep the supply up to the enormous demand.

Disciple: Where shall I get the capital for the business?

Swamiji: I shall somehow give you a start; for the rest you must depend on your own exertions. "If you die, you get to heaven; and if you win, you enjoy the earth" (Gita). Even if you die in this attempt, well and good, many will take up the work, following your example. And if you succeed, you will live a life of great opulence.

Disciple: Yes, sir, so it is. But I cannot muster sufficient courage.

Swamiji: That is what I say, my son, you have no Shraddhâ — no faith in yourselves. What will you achieve? You will have neither material nor spiritual advancement. Either put forth your energy in the way I have suggested and be successful in life, or give up all and take to the path we have chosen. Serve the people of all countries through spiritual instruction — then only will you get your dole of food like us. If there is no mutual exchange, do you think anybody cares for anybody else? You observe in our case, that because we give the householders some spiritual instructions, they in return give us some morsels of food. If you do nothing, why will they give you food? You observe so much misery in mere service and slavery of others, still you are not waking up; and so your misery also is never at an end. This is certainly the delusive power of Maya! In the West I have found that those who are in the employment of others have their seats fixed in the back rows in the Parliament, while the front seats are reserved for those who have made themselves famous by self-exertion, or education, or intelligence. In Western countries there is no botheration of caste. Those on whom Fortune smiles for their industry and exertion are alone regarded as leaders of the country and the controllers of its destiny. Whereas in your country, you are simply vaunting your superiority in caste, till at last you cannot even get a morsel of food! You have not the capacity to manufacture a needle, and you dare to criticise the English! Fools! Sit at their feet and learn from them the arts, industries, and the practicality necessary for the struggle for existence. You will be esteemed once more when you will become fit. Then they too will pay heed to your words. Without the necessary preparation, what will mere shouting in the Congress avail?

Disciple: But, sir, all the educated men of the country have joined it.

Swamiji: Well, you consider a man as educated if only he can pass some examinations and deliver good lectures. The education which does not help the common mass of people to equip themselves for the struggle for life, which does not bring out strength of character, a spirit of philanthropy, and the courage of a lion — is it worth the name? Real education is that which enables one to stand on one's own legs. The education that you are receiving now in schools and colleges is only making you a race of dyspeptics. You are working like machines merely, and living a jelly-fish existence.

The peasant, the shoemaker, the sweeper, and such other lower classes of India have much greater capacity for work and self-reliance than you. They have been silently working through long ages and producing the entire wealth of the land, without a word of complaint. Very soon they will get above you in position. Gradually capital is drifting into their hands, and they are not so much troubled with wants as you are. Modern education has changed your fashion, but new avenues of wealth lie yet undiscovered for want of the inventive genius. You have so long oppressed these forbearing masses; now is the time for their retribution. And you will become extinct in your vain search for employment, making it the be-all and end-all of your life.

Disciple: Sir, although our power of originality is less than that of other countries, still the lower classes of India are being guided by our intelligence. So where will they get the power and culture to overcome the higher classes in the struggle for existence?

Swamiji: Never mind if they have not read a few books like you — if they have not acquired your tailor-made civilisation. What do these matter? But they are the backbone of the nation in all countries. If these lower classes stop work, from where will you get your food and clothing? If the sweepers of Calcutta stop work for a day, it creates a panic; and if they strike for three days, the whole town will be depopulated by the outbreak of epidemics. If the labourers stop work, your supply of food and clothes also stops. And you regard them as low-class people and vaunt your own culture!

Engrossed in the struggle for existence, they had not the opportunity for the awakening of knowledge. They have worked so long uniformly like machines guided by human intelligence, and the clever educated section have taken the substantial part of the fruits of their labour. In every country this has been the case. But times have changed. The lower classes are gradually awakening to this fact and making a united front against this, determined to exact their legitimate dues. The masses of Europe and America have been the first to awaken and have already begun the fight. Signs of this awakening have shown themselves in India, too, as is evident from the number of strikes among the lower classes nowadays. The upper classes will no longer be able to repress the lower, try they ever so much. The well-being of the higher classes now lies in helping the lower to get their legitimate rights.

Therefore I say, set yourselves to the task of spreading education among the masses. Tell them and make them understand, "You are our brothers — a part and parcel of our bodies, and we love you and never hate you." If they receive this sympathy from you, their enthusiasm for work will be increased a hundredfold. Kindle their knowledge with the help of modern science. Teach them history, geography, science, literature, and along with these the profound truths of religion. In exchange for that teaching, the poverty of the teachers will also disappear. By mutual exchange both parties will become friendly to each other.

Disciple: But, sir, with the spread of learning among them, they too will in course of time have fertile brains but become idle and inactive like us and live on the fruits of the labour of the next lower classes.

Swamiji: Why shall it be so? Even with the awakening of knowledge, the potter will remain a potter, the fisherman a fisherman, the peasant a peasant. Why should they leave their hereditary calling? "सहजं कर्म कौन्तेय सदोषमपि न त्यजेत् — Don't give up the work to which you were born, even if it be attended with defects." If they are taught in this way, why should they give up their respective callings? Rather they will apply their knowledge to the better performance of the work to which they have been born. A number of geniuses are sure to arise from among them in the course of time. You (the higher classes) will take these into your own fold. The Brahmins acknowledged the valiant king Vishvâmitra as a Brahmin, and think how grateful the whole Kshatriya race became to the Brahmins for this act! By such sympathy and co-operation even birds and beasts become one's own — not to speak of men!

Disciple: Sir, what you say is true, but there yet seems to be a wide gulf between the higher and lower classes. To bring the higher classes to sympathise with the lower seems to be a difficult affair in India.

Swamiji: But without that there is no well-being for your upper classes. You will be destroyed by internecine quarrels and fights — which you have been having so long. When the masses will wake up, they will come to understand your oppression of them, and by a puff of their mouth you will be entirely blown away! It is they who have introduced civilisation amongst you; and it is they who will then pull it down. Think how at the hands of the Gauls the mighty ancient Roman civilisation crumbled into dust! Therefore I say, try to rouse these lower classes from slumber by imparting learning and culture to them. When they will awaken — and awaken one day they must — they also will not forget your good services to them and will remain grateful to you.

After such conversation Swamiji, addressing the disciple, said: Let these subjects drop now — come, tell me what you have decided. Do something, whatever it be. Either go in for some business, or like us come to the path of real Sannyasa, "आत्मनो मोक्षार्थं जगद्धिताय च — For one's own liberation and for the good of the world." The latter path is of course the best way there is. What good will it do to be a worthless householder? You have understood that everything in life is transitory: "नलिनीदलगतजलमसितरलम् तद्गुञ्जीवनमतिशयचपलम् — Life is as unstable as the water on the lotus leaf." Therefore if you have the enthusiasm for acquiring this knowledge of the Atman, do not wait any more but come forward immediately. "यदहरेव विरजेत् तदहरेव प्रव्रजेत् — The very day that you feel dispassion for the world, that very day renounce and take to Sannyasa" (Jâbâlopanishad, 4). Sacrifice your life for the good of others and go round to the doors of people carrying this message of fearlessness "उत्तिष्ठत जाग्रत प्राप्य वरान् निबोधत — Arise, awake, and stop not till the goal is reached."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

VIII

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: Calcutta. Year: 1898.]

Swamiji accompanied by Sister Nivedita, Swami Yogananda, and others has come to visit the Zoological Gardens at Alipur in the afternoon. Rai Rambrahma Sanyal Bahadur, Superintendent of the Gardens, cordially received them and took them round the Gardens. Swamiji, as he went on seeing the various species of animals, casually referred to the Darwinian theory of the gradual evolution of animals. The disciple remembers how, entering the room for snakes, he pointed to a huge python with circular rings on its body, with the remark: "From this the tortoise has evolved in course of time. That very snake, by remaining stationary at one spot for a long time, has gradually turned hard-backed." He further said in fun to the disciple, "You eat tortoises, don't you? Darwin holds that it is this snake that has evolved into the tortoise in the process of time — then you eat snakes too!" The disciple protested, "Sir, when a thing is metamorphosed into another thing through evolution, it has no more its former shape and habits; then how can you say that eating tortoise means eating snakes also?"

This answer created laughter among the party. After seeing some other things, Swamiji went to Rambrahma Babu's quarters in the Gardens, where he took tea, and others also did the same. Finding that the disciples hesitated to sit at the same table and partake of the sweets and tea which Sister Nivedita had touched, Swamiji repeatedly urged him to take them, which he was induced to do, and drinking water himself, he gave the rest of it to the disciple to drink. After this there was a short conversation on Darwin's evolution theory.

Rambrahma Babu: What is your opinion of the evolution theory of Darwin and the causes he has put forward for it?

Swamiji: Taking for granted that Darwin is right, I cannot yet admit that it is the final conclusion about the causes of evolution.

Rambrahma Babu: Did the ancient scholars of our country discuss this subject?

Swamiji: The subject has been nicely discussed in the Samkhya Philosophy. I am of opinion that the conclusion of the ancient Indian philosophers is the last word on the causes of evolution.

Rambrahma Babu: I shall be glad to hear of it, if it can be explained in a few words.

Swamiji: You are certainly aware of the laws of struggle for existence, survival of the fittest, natural selection, and so forth, which have been held by the Western scholars to be the causes of elevating a lower species to a higher. But none of these has been advocated as the cause of that in the system of Patanjali. Patanjali holds that the transformation of one species into another is effected by the "in-filling of nature" (प्रकृत्यापूरणम्) It is not that this is done by the constant struggle against obstacles. In my opinion, struggle and competition sometimes stand in the way of a being's attaining its perfection. If the evolution of an animal is effected by the destruction of a thousand others, then one must confess that this evolution is doing very little good to the world. Taking it for granted that it conduces to physical well-being, we cannot help admitting that it is a serious obstacle to spiritual development. According to the philosophers of our country, every being is a perfect Soul, and the diversity of evolution and manifestation of nature is simply due to the difference in the degree of manifestation of this Soul. The moment the obstacles to the evolution and manifestation of nature are completely removed, the Soul manifests Itself perfectly. Whatever may happen in the lower strata of nature's evolutions, in the higher strata at any rate, it is not true that it is only by constantly struggling against obstacles that one has to go beyond them. Rather it is observed that there the obstacles give way and a greater manifestation of the Soul takes place through education and culture, through concentration and meditation, and above all through sacrifice. Therefore, to designate the obstacles not as the effects but as the causes of the Soul-manifestation, and describe them as aiding this wonderful diversity of nature, is not consonant with reason. The attempt to remove evil from the world by killing a thousand evil-doers, only adds to the evil in the world. But if the people can be made to desist from evil-doing by means of spiritual instruction, there is no more evil in the world. Now, see how horrible the Western struggle theory becomes!

Rambrahma Babu was astonished to hear Swamiji's words and said at length, "India badly needs at the present moment men well versed in the Eastern and Western philosophies like you. Such men alone are able to point out the mistakes of the educated people who see only one side of the shield. I am extremely delighted to hear your original explanation of the evolution theory."

Shortly after, Swamiji with the party left for Baghbazar and reached Balaram Bose's house at about 8 p.m. After a short rest, he came to the drawing-room, where there was a small gathering, all eager to hear of the conversation at the Zoological Gardens in detail. When Swamiji came to the room, the disciple, as the spokesman of the meeting, raised that very topic.

Disciple: Sir, I have not been able to follow all your remarks about the evolution theory at the Zoo. Will you kindly recapitulate them in simple words?

Swamiji: Why, which points did you fail to grasp?

Disciple: You have often told us that it is the power to struggle with the external forces which constitutes the sign of life and the first step towards improvement. Today you seem to have spoken just the opposite thing.

Swamiji: Why should I speak differently? It was you who could not follow me. In the animal kingdom we really see such laws as struggle for existence, survival of the fittest, etc., evidently at work. Therefore Darwin's theory seems true to a certain extent. But in the human kingdom, where there is the manifestation of rationality, we find just the reverse of those laws. For instance, in those whom we consider really great men or ideal characters, we scarcely observe any external struggle. In the animal kingdom instinct prevails; but the more a man advances, the more he manifests rationality. For this reason, progress in the rational human kingdom cannot be achieved, like that in the animal kingdom, by the destruction of others! The highest evolution of man is effected through sacrifice alone. A man is great among his fellows in proportion as he can sacrifice for the sake of others, while in the lower strata of the animal kingdom, that animal is the strongest which can kill the greatest number of animals. Hence the struggle theory is not equally applicable to both kingdoms. Man's struggle is in the mental sphere. A man is greater in proportion as he can control his mind. When the mind's activities are perfectly at rest, the Atman manifests Itself. The struggle which we observe in the animal kingdom for the preservation of the gross body obtains in the human plane of existence for gaining mastery over the mind or for attaining the state of balance. Like a living tree and its reflection in the water of a tank, we find opposite kinds of struggle in the animal and human kingdoms.

Disciple: Why then do you advocate so much the improvement of our physique?

Swamiji: Well, do you consider yourselves as men? You have got only a bit of rationality — that's all. How will you struggle with the mind unless the physique be strong? Do you deserve to be called men any longer — the highest evolution in the world? What have you got besides eating, sleeping, and satisfying the creature-comforts? Thank your stars that you have not developed into quadrupeds yet! Shri Ramakrishna used to say, "He is the man who is conscious of his dignity". You are but standing witnesses to the lowest class of insect-like existence of which the scripture speaks, that they simply undergo the round of births and deaths without being allowed to go to any of the higher spheres! You are simply living a life of jealousy among yourselves and are objects of hatred in the eyes of the foreigner. You are animals, therefore I recommend you to struggle. Leave aside theories and all that. Just reflect calmly on your own everyday acts and dealings with others and find out whether you are not a species of beings intermediate between the animal and human planes of existence! First build up your own physique. Then only you can get control over the mind. नयमात्मा बलहीनेन कृम्यः — This Self is not to be attained by the weak" (Katha Upanishad, I.ii.23).

Disciple: But, sir, the commentator (Shankara) has interpreted the word "weak" to mean "devoid of Brahmacharya or continence".

Swamiji: Let him. I say, "The physically weak are unfit for the realisation of the Self."

Disciple: But many dull-headed persons also have strong bodies.

Swamiji: If you can take the pains to give them good ideas once, they will be able to work them out sooner than physically unfit people. Don't you find that in a weak physique it is difficult to control the sex-appetite or anger? Lean people are quickly incensed and are quickly overcome by the sex-instinct.

Disciple: But we find exceptions to the rule also.

Swamiji: Who denies it? Once a person gets control over the mind, it matters little whether the body remains strong or becomes emaciated. The gist of the thing is that unless one has a good physique one can never aspire to Self-realisation. Shri Ramakrishna used to say, "One fails to attain realisation if there be but a slight defect in the body".

Finding that Swamiji had grown excited, the disciple did not dare to push the topic further, but remained quiet accepting Swamiji's view. Shortly after, Swamiji, addressing those present, said, "By the bye, have you heard that this 'priest' has today taken food which was touched by Nivedita? That he took the sweets touched by her did not matter so much, but — here he addressed the disciple — "how did you drink the water she had touched?"

Disciple: But it was you, sir, who ordered me to do so. Under the Guru's orders I can do anything. I was unwilling to drink the water though. But you drank it and I had to take it as Prasâda.

Swamiji: Well, your caste is gone for ever. Now nobody will respect you as a Brahmin of the priest class.

Disciple: I don't care if they do not. I can take the rice from the house of a Pariah if you order me to.

These words set Swamiji and all those present in a roar of laughter.

The conversation lasted till it was past midnight, when the disciple came back to his lodging, only to find it bolted. So he had to pass the night out of doors.

The wheel of Time has rolled on in its unrelenting course, and Swamiji, Swami Yogananda, and Sister Nivedita are now no more on earth. Only the sacred memory of their lives remains — and the disciple considers himself blessed to be able to record, in ever so meagre a way, these reminiscences.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

IX

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The rented Math premises at Belur. Year: 1898.]

The disciple has come to the Math (monastery) today. It has now been removed to Nilambar Babu's garden-house, and the site of the present Math has recently been purchased. Swamiji is out visiting the new Math-grounds at about four o'clock, taking the disciple with him. The site was then mostly jungle, but on the north side of it there was a one-storeyed brick-built house. Swamiji began to walk over the site and to discuss in the course of conversation the plan of work of the future Math and its rules and regulations.

Reaching by degrees the veranda on the east side of the one-storeyed house, Swamiji said, "Here would be the place for the Sadhus to live. It is my wish to convert this Math into a chief centre of spiritual practices and the culture of knowledge. The power that will have its rise from here will flood the whole world and turn the course of men's lives into different channels; from this place will spring forth ideals which will be the harmony of Knowledge, Devotion, Yoga, and Work; at a nod from the men of this Math a life-giving impetus will in time be given to the remotest corners of the globe; while all true seekers after spirituality will in course of time assemble here. A thousand thoughts like these are arising in my mind.

"Yonder plot of land on the south side of the Math will be the centre of learning, where grammar, philosophy, science, literature, rhetoric, the Shrutis, Bhakti scriptures, and English will be taught. This Temple of Learning will be fashioned after the Tols of old days. Boys who are Brahmacharins from their childhood will live there and study the scriptures. Their food and clothing and all will be supplied from the Math. After a course of five years' training these Brahmacharins may, if they like, go back to their homes and lead householders' lives; or they may embrace the monastic life with the sanction of the venerable Superiors of the Math. The authorities of the Math will have the power to turn out at once any of these Brahmacharins who will be found refractory or of a bad character. Teaching will be imparted here irrespective of caste or creed, and those who will have objection to this will not be admitted. But those who would like to observe their particular caste-rites, should make separate arrangements for their food, etc. They will only attend the classes along with the rest. The Math authorities shall keep a vigilant watch over the character of these also. None but those that are trained here shall be eligible for Sannyasa. Won't it be nice when by degrees this Math will begin to work like this?"

Disciple: Then you want to reintroduce into the country the ancient institution of living a Brahmacharin's life in the house of the Guru?

Swamiji: Exactly. The modern system of education gives no facility for the development of the knowledge of Brahman. We must found Brahmacharya Homes as in times of old. But now we must lay their foundations on a broad basis, that is to say, we must introduce a good deal of change into it to suit the requirements of the times. Of this I shall speak to you later on.

"That piece of land to the south of the Math," Swamiji resumed, "we must also purchase in time. There we shall start an Annasatra — a Feeding Home. There arrangements will be made for serving really indigent people in the spirit of God. The Feeding Home will be named after Shri Ramakrishna. Its scope will at first be determined by the amount of funds. For the matter of that, we may start it with two or three inmates. We must train energetic Brahmacharins to conduct this Home. They will have to collect the funds for its maintenance — ay, even by begging. The Math will not be allowed to give any pecuniary help in this matter. The Brahmacharins themselves shall have to raise funds for it. Only after completing their five years' training in this Home of Service, will they be allowed to join the Temple of Learning branch. After a training of ten years — five in the Feeding Home and five in the Temple of Learning — they will be allowed to enter the life of Sannyasa, having initiation from the Math authorities — provided of course they have a mind to become Sannyasins and the Math authorities consider them fit for Sannyasa and are willing to admit them into it. But the Head of the Math will be free to confer Sannyasa on any exceptionally meritorious Brahmacharin, at any time, in defiance of this rule. The ordinary Brahmacharins, however, will have to qualify themselves for Sannyasa by degrees, as I have just said. I have all these ideas in my brain."

Disciple: Sir, what will be the object of starting three such sections in the Math?

Swamiji: Didn't you understand me? First of all, comes the gift of food; next is the gift of learning, and the highest of all is the gift of knowledge. We must harmonise these three ideals in the Math. By continuously practising the gift of food, the Brahmacharins will have the idea of practical work for the sake of others and that of serving all beings in the spirit of the Lord firmly impressed on their minds. This will gradually purify their minds and lead to the manifestation of Sâttvika (pure and unselfish) ideas. And having this the Brahmacharins will in time acquire the fitness for attaining the knowledge of Brahman and become eligible for Sannyasa.

Disciple: Sir, if, as you say, the gift of (spiritual) knowledge is the highest, why then start sections for the gift of food and the gift of learning?

Swamiji: Can't you understand this point even now? Listen. If in these days of food scarcity you can, for the disinterested service of others, get together a few morsels of food by begging or any other means, and give them to the poor and suffering, that will not only be doing good to yourself and the world, but you will at the same time get everybody's sympathy for this noble work. The worldly-minded people, tied down to lust and wealth, will have faith in you for this labour of love and come forward to help you. You will attract a thousand times as many men by this unasked-for gift of food, as you will by the gift of learning or of (spiritual) knowledge. In no other work will you get so much public sympathy as you will in this. In a truly noble work, not to speak of men, even God Himself befriends the doer. When people have thus been attracted, you will be able to stimulate the desire for learning and spirituality in them. Therefore the gift of food comes first.

Disciple; Sir, to start Feeding Homes we want a site first, then buildings, and then the funds to work them. Where will so much money come from?

Swamiji: The southern portion of the Math premises I am leaving at your disposal immediately, and I am getting a thatched house erected under that Bael tree. You just find out one or two blind or infirm people and apply yourself to their service. Go and beg food for them yourself; cook with your own hands and feed them. If you continue this for some days, you will find that lots of people will be coming forward to assist you with plenty of money. " न हि कत्याणकृत् कश्चिद् दुर्गतिं तात गच्छति — Never, my son, does a doer of good come to grief." (Gita, VI. 40).

Disciple: Yes, it is true. But may not that kind of continuous work become a source of bondage in the long run?

Swamiji: If you have no eye to the fruits of work, and if you have a passionate longing to go beyond all selfish desires, then these good works will help to break your bonds, I tell you. How thoughtless of you to say that such work will lead to bondage! Such disinterested work is the only means of rooting out the bondage due to selfish work. "नाम्यः पश्चा विद्यतेऽयनाय — There is no other way out" (Shvetâsvatara Upanishad, III. 8).

Disciple: Your words encourage me to hear in detail about your ideas of the Feeding Home and Home of Service.

Swamiji: We must build small well-ventilated rooms for the poor. Only two or three of them will live in each room. They must be given good bedding, clean clothes, and so on. There will be a doctor for them, who will inspect them once or twice a week according to his convenience. The Sevâshrama (Home of Service) will be as a ward attached to the Annasatra, where the sick will be nursed. Then, gradually, as funds will accumulate, we shall build a big kitchen. The Annasatra must be astir with constant shouts of food demanded and supplied. The rice-gruel must run into the Ganga and whiten its water! When I see such a Feeding Home started, it will bring solace to my heart.

Disciple: When you have this kind of desire, most likely it will materialise into action in course of time.

Hearing the disciple's words, Swamiji remained motionless for a while, gazing on the Ganga. Then with a beaming countenance he addressed the disciple, saying: "Who knows which of you will have the lion roused up in him, and when? If in a single one amongst you Mother rouses the fire, there will be hundreds of Feeding Homes like that. Knowledge and Power and Devotion — everything exists in the fullest measure in all beings. We only notice the varying degrees of their manifestation and call one great and another little. In the minds of all creatures a screen intervenes as it were and hides the perfect manifestation from view. The moment that is removed, everything is settled; whatever you want, whatever you will desire, will come to pass."

Swamiji continued: "If the Lord wills, we shall make this Math a great centre of harmony. Our Lord is the visible embodiment of the harmony of all ideals. He will be established on earth if we keep alive that spirit of harmony here. We must see to it that people of all creeds and sects, from the Brâhmana down to the Chandâla, may come here and find their respective ideals manifested. The other day when I installed Shri Ramakrishna on the Math grounds, I felt as if his ideas shot forth from this place and flooded the whole universe, sentient and insentient. I, for one, am doing my best, and shall continue to do so — all of you too explain to people the liberal ideas of Shri Ramakrishna; what is the use of merely reading the Vedanta? We must prove the truth of pure Advaitism in practical life. Shankara left this Advaita philosophy in the hills and forests, while I have come to bring it out of those places and scatter it broadcast before the workaday world and society. The lion-roar of Advaita must resound in every hearth and home, in meadows and groves, over hills and plains. Come all of you to my assistance and set yourselves to work."

Disciple: Sir, it appeals to me rather to realise that state through meditation than to manifest it in action.

Swamiji: That is but a state of stupefaction, as under liquor. What will be the use of merely remaining like that? Through the urge of Advaitic realisation, you should sometimes dance wildly and sometimes remain lost to outward sense. Does one feel happy to taste of a good thing by oneself? One should share it with others. Granted that you attain personal liberation by means of the realisation of the Advaita, but what matters it to the world? You must liberate the whole universe before you leave this body. Then only you will be established in the eternal Truth. Has that bliss any match, my boy? You will be established in that bliss of the Infinite which is limitless like the skies. You will be struck dumb to find your presence everywhere in the world of soul and matter. You will feel the whole sentient and insentient world as your own self. Then you can't help treating all with the same kindness as you show towards yourself. This is indeed practical Vedanta. Do you understand me? Brahman is one, but is at the same time appearing to us as many, on the relative plane. Name and form are at the root of this relativity. For instance, what do you find when you abstract name and form from a jar? Only earth, which is its essence. Similarly, through delusion you are thinking of and seeing a jar, a cloth, a monastery, and so on. The phenomenal world depends on this nescience which obstructs knowledge and which has no real existence. One sees variety such as wife, children, body, mind — only in the world created by nescience by means of name and form. As soon as this nescience is removed, the realisation of Brahman which eternally exists is the result.

Disciple: Where has the nescience come from?

Swamiji: Where it has come from I shall tell you later on. When you began to run, mistaking the rope for the snake, did the rope actually turn into a snake? Or was it not your ignorance which put you to flight in that way?

Disciple: I did it from sheer ignorance.

Swamiji: Well, then, consider whether, when you will again come to know the rope as rope, you will not laugh at your previous ignorance. Will not name and form appear to be a delusion then?

Disciple: They will.

Swamiji: If that be so, the name and form turn out to be unreal. Thus Brahman, the Eternal Existence, proves to be the only reality. Only through this twilight of nescience you think this is your wife, that is your child, this is your own, that is not your own, and so on, and fail to realise the existence of the Atman, the illuminator of everything. When through the Guru's instructions and your own conviction you will see, not this world of name and form, but the essence which lies as its substratum then only you will realise your identity with the whole universe from the Creator down to a clump of grass, then only you will get the state in which "मिथ्यते हृदयगन्धिरुच्यन्ते सर्वसंशयाः — The knots of the heart are cut asunder and all doubts are dispelled".

Disciple: Sir, one wishes to know of the origin and cessation of this nescience.

Swamiji: You have understood, I presume, that a thing that ceases to exist afterwards is a phenomenon merely? He who has truly realised Brahman will say — where is nescience, in faith? He sees the rope as rope only, and never as the snake. And he laughs at the alarm of those who see it as the snake. For this reason, nescience has no absolute reality. You can call nescience neither real nor unreal; "सन्नायसन्नायुमयात्मिका नो — Neither real, nor unreal, nor a mixture of both". About a thing that is thus proved to be false, neither question nor answer is of any significance. Moreover, any question on such a thing is unreasonable. I shall explain how. Are not this question and answer made from the standpoint of name and form, of time and space? And can you explain Brahman which transcends time and space, by means of questions and answers? Hence the Shastras and Mantras and such other things are only relatively, and not absolutely, true. Nescience has verily no essence to call its own; how then can you understand it? When Brahman will manifest Itself, there will be no more room for such questions. Have you not heard that story of Shri Ramakrishna about the shoemaker coolie? * The moment one recognises nescience, it vanishes.

Disciple: But, sir, whence has this nescience come?

Swamiji: How can that come which has no existence at all? It must exist first, to admit the possibility of coming.

Disciple: How then did this world of souls and matter originate?

Swamiji: There is only one Existence — Brahman. You are but seeing That under different forms and names, through the veil of name and form which are unreal.

Disciple: But why this unreal name and form? Whence have they come?

Swamiji: The Shastras have described this ingrained notion or ignorance as almost endless in a series. But it has a termination, while Brahman ever remains as It is, without suffering the least change, like the rope which causes the delusion of the snake. Therefore the conclusion of the Vedanta is that the whole universe has been superimposed on Brahman — appearing like a juggler's trick. It has not caused the least aberration of Brahman from Its real nature. Do you understand me?

Disciple: One thing I cannot yet understand.

Swamiji: What is that?

Disciple: You have just said that creation, maintenance, and dissolution, etc. are superimposed on Brahman, and have no absolute existence. But how can that be? One can never have the delusion of something that one has not already experienced. Just as one who has never seen a snake cannot mistake a rope for a snake, so how can one who has not experienced this creation, come to mistake Brahman for the creation? Therefore creation must have been, or is, to have given rise to the delusion of creation. But this brings in a dualistic position.

Swamiji: The man of realisation will in the first place refute your objection by stating that to his vision creation and things of that sort do not at all appear. He sees Brahman and Brahman alone. He sees the rope and not the snake. If you argue that you, at any rate, are seeing this creation, or snake — then he will try to bring home to you the real nature of the rope, with a view to curing your defective vision. When through his instructions and your reasoning you will be able to realise the truth of the rope, or Brahman, then this delusive idea of the snake, or creation, will vanish. At that time, what else can you call this delusive idea of creation, maintenance, and dissolution, but a superimposition on the Brahman? If this appearance of creation etc. has continued as a beginningless series, let it do so; no advantage will be gained by settling this question. Until Brahman is realised as vividly as a fruit on the palm of one's hand this question cannot be adequately settled, and then neither such a question crops up, nor is there need for a solution. The tasting of the reality of Brahman is then like a dumb man tasting something nice, but without the power to express his feelings.

Disciple: What then will be the use of reasoning about it so much?

Swamiji: Reasoning is necessary to understand the point intellectually. But the Reality transcends reasoning: " नैषा तर्केण मतिरापनेया — This conviction cannot be reached through reasoning."

In the course of such conversation Swamiji reached the Math, accompanied by the disciple. Swamiji then explained to the Sannyasins and Brahmacharins of the Math the gist of the above discussion on Brahman. While going upstairs, he remarked to the disciple, "नायमात्मा बलहीनेन लभ्यः — This Atman cannot be attained by the weak."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

X

[Place: The rented Math premises at Belur. Year: 1899.]

The Bengali fortnightly magazine, Udbodhan, was just started by Swami Trigunatita under the direction of Swamiji for spreading the religious views of Shri Ramakrishna among the general public. After the first number came out the disciple came to the Math at Nilambar Babu's garden one day. Swamiji started the following conversation with him about the Udbodhan.

Swamiji: (Humorously caricaturing the name of the magazine) Have you seen the Udbandhana? (The word means "suicide by hanging".)

Disciple: Yes, sir; it is a good number.

Swamiji: We must mould the ideas, language, and everything of this magazine in a new fashion.

Disciple: How?

Swamiji: Not only must we give out Shri Ramakrishna's ideas to all, but we must also introduce a new vigour into the Bengali language. For instance, the frequent use of verbs diminishes the force of a language. We must restrict the use of verbs by the use of adjectives. Begin to write articles in that way, and show them to me before you give them to print in the Udbodhan.

Disciple: Sir, it is impossible for any other man to labour for this magazine in the way Swami Trigunatita does.

Swamiji: Do you think these Sannyasin children of Shri Ramakrishna are born simply to sit under trees lighting Dhuni-fires? Whenever any of them will take up some work, people will be astonished to see their energy. Learn from them how to work. Here, for instance, Trigunatita has given up his spiritual practices, his meditation and everything, to carry out my orders, and has set himself to work. Is this a matter of small sacrifice? What an amount of love for me is at the back of this spirit of work, do you see? He will not stop short of success! Have you householders such determination?

Disciple: But, sir, it looks rather odd in our eyes that Sannyasins in ochre robe should go about from door to door as the Swami is doing.

Swamiji: Why? The circulation of the magazine is only for the good of the householders. By the spread of new ideas within the country the public at large will be benefited. Do you think this unselfish work is any way inferior to devotional practices? Our object is to do good to humanity. We have no idea of making money from the income of this paper. We have renounced everything and have no wives or children to provide for after our death. If the paper be a success, the whole of its income will be spent in the service of humanity. Its surplus money will be profitably spent in the opening of monasteries and homes of service in different places and all sorts of work of public utility. We are not certainly working like householders with the plan of filling our own pockets. Know for certain that all our movements are for the good of others.

Disciple: Even then, all will not be able to appreciate this spirit.

Swamiji: What if they cannot? It neither adds nor takes away anything from us. We do not take up any work with an eye to criticism.

Disciple: So this magazine will be a fortnightly. We should like it to be a weekly.

Swamiji: Yes, but where are the funds? If through the grace of Shri Ramakrishna funds are raised, it can be made into a daily even, in future. A hundred thousand copies may be struck off daily and distributed free in every street and lane of Calcutta.

Disciple: This idea of yours is a capital one.

Swamiji: I have a mind to make the paper self-supporting first, and then set you up as its editor. You have not yet got the capacity to make any enterprise stand on its legs. That is reserved only for these all-renouncing Sannyasins to do. They will work themselves to death, but never yield. Whereas a little resistance or just a trifle of criticism is bewildering to you.

Disciple: Sir, the other day I saw that Swami Trigunatita worshipped the photograph of Sri Ramakrishna in the Press before opening the work and asked for your blessings for the success of the work.

Swamiji: Well, Shri Ramakrishna is our centre. Each one of us is a ray of that light-centre. So Trigunatita worshipped Shri Ramakrishna before beginning the work, did he? It was excellently done. But he told me nothing of it.

Disciple: Sir, he fears you and yesterday he told me to come to you and ask your opinion of the first issue of the magazine, after which, he said, he would see you.

Swamiji: Tell him when you go that I am exceedingly delighted with his work. Give him my loving blessings. And all of you help him as far as you can. You will be doing Shri Ramakrishna's work by that.

Immediately after saying these words Swamiji called Swami Brahmananda to him and directed him to give Swami Trigunatita more money for the Udbodhan if it was needed.

The same evening, after supper, Swamiji again referred to the topic of Udbodhan in the following words:

"In the Udbodhan we must give the public only positive ideas. Negative thoughts weaken men. Do you not find that where parents are constantly taxing their sons to read and write, telling them they will never learn anything, and calling them fools and so forth, the latter do actually turn out to be so in many cases? If you speak kind words to boys and encourage them, they are bound to improve in time. What holds good of children, also holds good of children in the region of higher thoughts. If you can give them positive ideas, people will grow up to be men and learn to stand on their own legs. In language and literature, in poetry and the arts, in everything we must point out not the mistakes that people are making in their thoughts and actions, but the way in which they will gradually be able to do these things better. Pointing out mistakes wounds a man's feelings. We have seen how Shri Ramakrishna would encourage even those whom we considered as worthless and change the very course of their lives thereby! His very method of teaching was a unique phenomenon."

After a short pause, Swamiji continued, "Never take the preaching of religion to mean the turning up of one's nose at everything and at everybody. In matters physical, mental, and spiritual — in everything we must give men positive ideas and never hate anybody. It is your hatred of one another that has brought about your degradation. Now we shall have to raise men by scattering broadcast only positive thoughts. First we must raise the whole Hindu race in this way and then the whole world. That is why Shri Ramakrishna incarnated. He never destroyed a single man's special inclinations. He gave words of hope and encouragement even to the most degraded of persons and lifted them up. We too must follow in his footsteps and lift all up, and rouse them. Do you understand?"

"Your history, literature, mythology, and all other Shastras are simply frightening people. They are only telling them, 'You will go to hell, you are doomed!' Therefore has this lethargy crept into the very vitals of India. Hence we must explain to men in simple words the highest ideas of the Vedas and the Vedanta. Through the imparting of moral principles, good behaviour, and education we must make the Chandála come up to the level of the Brahmana. Come, write out all these things in the Udbodhan and awaken everyone, young and old, man and woman. Then only shall I know that your study of the Vedas and Vedanta has been a success. What do you say? Will you be able to do this?"

Disciple: Through your blessings and command I think I shall succeed in everything.

Swamiji: Another thing. You must learn to make the physique very strong and teach the same to others. Don't you find me exercising every day with dumb-bells even now? Walk in the morning and evenings and do physical labour. Body and mind must run parallel. It won't do to depend on others in everything. When the necessity of strengthening the physique is brought home to people, they will exert themselves of their own accord. It is to make them feel this need that education is necessary at the present moment.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XI

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The Belur Math (under construction). Year: 1899.]

Disciple: Why is it, Swamiji, that our society and country have come to such degradation?

Swamiji: It is you who are responsible for it.

Disciple: How, sir? You surprise me.

Swamiji: You have been despising the lower classes of the country for a very long time and, as a result, you have now become the objects of contempt in the eyes of the world.

Disciple: When did you find us despising them?

Swamiji: Why, you priest-class never let the non-Brahmin class read the Vedas and Vedanta and all such weighty Shastras — never touch them even. You have only kept them down. It is you who have always done like that through selfishness. It was the Brahmins who made a monopoly of the religious books and kept the question of sanction and prohibition in their own hands. And repeatedly calling the other races of India low and vile, they put this belief into their heads that they were really such. If you tell a man, "You are low, you are vile", in season and out of season, then he is bound to believe in course of time that he is really such. This is called hypnotism. The non-Brahmin classes are now slowly rousing themselves. Their faith in Brahminical scriptures and Mantras is getting shaken. Through the spread of Western education all the tricks of the Brahmins are giving way, like the banks of the Padmâ in the rainy season. Do you not see that?

Disciple: Yes, sir, the stricture of orthodoxy is gradually lessening nowadays.

Swamiji: It is as it should be. The Brahmins, in fact, gradually took a course of gross immorality and oppression. Through selfishness they introduced a large number of strange, non-Vedic, immoral, and unreasonable doctrines — simply to keep intact their own prestige. And the fruits of that they are reaping forthwith.

Disciple: What may these fruits be, sir?

Swamiji: Don't you perceive them? It is simply due to your having despised the masses of India that you have now been living a life of slavery for the last thousand years; it is therefore that you are the objects of hatred in the eyes of foreigners and are looked upon with indifference by your countrymen.

Disciple: But, sir, even now it is the Brahmins who direct all ceremonials, and people are observing them according to the opinions of the Brahmins. Why then do you speak like that?

Swamiji: I don't find it. Where do the tenfold Samskâras or purifying ceremonies enjoined by the Shastras obtain still? Well, I have travelled the whole of India, and everywhere I have found society to be guided by local usages which are condemned by the Shrutis and Smritis. Popular customs, local usages, and observances prevalent among women only — have not these taken the place of the Smritis everywhere? Who obeys, and whom? If you can but spend enough money, the priest-class is ready to write out whatever sanctions or prohibitions you want! How many of them read the Vedic Kalpa (Ritual), Grihya and Shrauta Sutras? Then, look, here in Bengal the code of Raghunandana is obeyed; a little farther on you will find the code of Mitâkshâra in vogue; while in another part the code of Manu holds sway! You seem to think that the same laws hold good everywhere! What I want therefore is to introduce the study of the Vedas by stimulating a greater regard for them in the minds of the people, and to pass everywhere the injunctions of the Vedas.

Disciple: Sir, is it possible nowadays to set them going?

Swamiji: It is true that all the ancient Vedic laws will not have a go, but if we introduce additions and alterations in them to suit the needs of the times, codify them, and hold them up as a new model to society, why will they not pass current?

Disciple: Sir, I was under the impression that at least the injunctions of Manu were being obeyed all over India even now.

Swamiji: Nothing of the kind. Just look to your own province and see how the Vâmâchâra (immoral practices) of the Tantras has entered into your very marrow. Even modern Vaishnavism, which is the skeleton of the defunct Buddhism, is saturated with Vamachara! We must stem the tide of this Vamachara, which is contrary to the spirit of the Vedas.

Disciple: Sir, is it possible now to cleanse this Aegean stable?

Swamiji: What nonsense do you say, you coward! You have well-nigh thrown the country into ruin by crying, 'It is impossible, it is impossible!' What cannot human effort achieve?

Disciple: But, sir, such a state of things seems impossible unless sages like Manu and Yâjnavalkya are again born in the country.

Swamiji: Goodness gracious! Was it not purity and unselfish labour that made them Manu and Yajnavalkya, or was it something else? Well, we ourselves can be far greater than even Manu and Yajnavalkya if we try to; why will not our views prevail then?

Disciple: Sir, it is you who said just now that we must revive the ancient usages and observances within the country. How then can we think lightly of sages like Manu and the rest?

Swamiji: What an absurd deduction! You altogether miss my point. I have only said that the ancient Vedic customs must be remodelled according to the need of the society and the times, and passed under a new form in the land. Have I not?

Disciple: Yes, sir.

Swamiji: What, then, were you talking? You have read the Shastras, and my hope and faith rest in men like you. Understand my words in their true spirit, and apply yourselves to work in their light.

Disciple: But, sir, who will listen to us? Why should our countrymen accept them?

Swamiji: If you can truly convince them and practise what you preach, they must. If, on the contrary, like a coward you simply utter Shlokas as a parrot, be a mere talker and quote authority only, without showing them in action — then who will care to listen to you?

Disciple: Please give me some advice in brief about social reform.

Swamiji: Why, I have given you advice enough; now put at least something in practice. Let the world see that your reading of the scriptures and listening to me has been a success. The codes of Manu and lots of other books that you have read — what is their basis and underlying purpose? Keeping that basis intact, compile in the manner of the ancient Rishis the essential truths of them and supplement them with thoughts that are suited to the times; only take care that all races and all sects throughout India be really benefited by following these rules. Just write out a Smriti like that; I shall revise it.

Disciple: Sir, it is not an easy task; and even if such a Smriti be written, will it be accepted?

Swamiji: Why not? Just write it out. "कालो ह्ययं निखधिर्विपुला च पृथ्वी — Time is infinite, and the world is vast." If you write it in the proper way, there must come a day when it will be accepted. Have faith in yourself. You people were once the Vedic Rishis. Only, you have come in different forms, that's all. I see it clear as daylight that you all have infinite power in you. Rouse that up; arise, arise — apply yourselves heart and soul, gird up your loins. What will you do with wealth and fame that are so transitory? Do you know what I think? I don't care for Mukti and all that.

My mission is to arouse within you all such ideas; I am ready to undergo a hundred thousand rebirths to train up a single man.

Disciple: But, sir, what will be the use of undertaking such works? Is not death stalking behind?

Swamiji: Fie upon you! If you die, you will die but once. Why will you die every minute of your life by constantly harping on death like a coward?

Disciple: All right, sir, I may not think of death, but what good will come of any kind of work in this evanescent world?

Swamiji: My boy, when death is inevitable, is it not better to die like heroes than as stocks and stones? And what is the use of living a day or two more in this transitory world? It is better to wear out than to rust out — specially for the sake of doing the least good to others.

Disciple: It is true, sir. I beg pardon for troubling you so much.

Swamiji: I don't feel tired even if I talk for two whole nights to an earnest inquirer; I can give up food and sleep and talk and talk. Well, if I have a mind, I can sit up in Samadhi in a Himalayan cave. And you see that nowadays through the Mother's grace I have not to think about food, it comes anyhow. Why then don't I do so? And why am I here? Only the sight of the country's misery and the thought of its future do not let me remain quiet any more! — Even Samadhi and all that appear as futile — even the sphere of Brahmâ with its enjoyments becomes insipid! My vow of life is to think of your welfare. The day that vow will be fulfilled, I shall leave this body and make a straight run up!

Hearing Swamiji's words the disciple sat speechless for a while, gazing at him, wondering in his heart. Then, with a view to taking his leave, he saluted Swamiji reverently and asked his permission to go.

Swamiji: Why do you want to go? Why not live in the Math? Your mind will again be polluted if you go back to the worldly-minded. See here, how fresh is the air, there is the Ganga, and the Sadhus (holy men) are practising meditation, and holding lofty talks! While the moment you will go to Calcutta, you will be thinking of nasty stuff.

The disciple joyfully replied, "All right, sir, I shall stay today at the Math."

Swamiji: Why "today"? Can't you live here for good? What is the use of going back to the world?

The disciple bent down his head, hearing Swamiji's words. Various thoughts crowded into his brain and kept him speechless.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XII

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The Belur Math (under construction). Year: beginning of 1899.]

Today Swamiji is walking round the new Math grounds in the afternoon in company with the disciple. Standing at a little distance off the Bael tree Swamiji took to singing slowly a Bengali song: (This is one of the songs sung in the homes of Bengal on the eve of Durgâ Pujâ.) "O Himalaya, Ganesh is auspicious to me" etc., ending with the line — "And many Dandis (Sannyasins) and Yogis with matted hair will also come." While singing the song Swamiji repeated this line to the disciple and said, "Do you understand? In course of time many Sadhus and Sannyasins will come here." Saying this he sat under the tree and remarked, "The ground under the Bilva tree is very holy. Meditating here quickly brings about an awakening of the religious instinct. Shri Ramakrishna used to say so."

Disciple: Sir, those who are devoted to the discrimination between the Self and not-Self — have they any need to consider the auspiciousness of place, time, and so forth?

Swamiji: Those who are established in the knowledge of the Atman have no need for such discrimination, but that state is not attained off-hand. It comes as the result of long practice. Therefore in the beginning one has to take the help of external aids and learn to stand on one's own legs. Later on, when one is established in the knowledge of the Atman, there is no more need for any external aid.

The various methods of spiritual practice that have been laid down in the scriptures are all for the attainment of the knowledge of the Atman. Of course these practices vary according to the qualifications of different aspirants. But they also are a kind of work, and so long as there is work, the Atman is not discovered. The obstacles to the manifestation of the Atman are overcome by practices as laid down in the scriptures; but work has no power of directly manifesting the Atman, it is only effective in removing some veils that cover knowledge. Then the Atman manifests by Its own effulgence. Do you see? Therefore does your commentator (Shankara) say, "In our knowledge of Brahman, there cannot be the least touch of work."

Disciple: But, sir, since the obstacles to Self-manifestation are not overcome without the performance of work in some form or other, therefore indirectly work stands as a means to knowledge.

Swamiji: From the standpoint of the causal chain, it so appears prima facie. Taking up this view it is stated in the Purva-Mimâmsâ that work for a definite end infallibly produces a definite result. But the vision of the Atman which is Absolute is not to be compassed by means of work. For the rule with regard to a seeker of the Atman is that he should undergo spiritual practice, but have no eye to its results. It follows thence that these practices are simply the cause of the purification of the aspirant's mind. For if the Atman could be directly realised as a result of these practices, then scriptures would not have enjoined on the aspirant to give up the results of work. So it is with a view to combating the Purva-Mimamsa doctrine of work with motive producing results, that the philosophy of work without motive has been set forth in the Gita. Do you see?

Disciple: But, sir, if one has to renounce the fruits of work, why should one be induced to undertake work which is always troublesome?

Swamiji: In this human life, one cannot help doing some kind of work always. When man has perforce to do some work, Karma-Yoga enjoins on him to do it in such a way as will bring freedom through the realisation of the Atman. As to your objection that none will be induced to work — the answer is, that whatever work you do has some motive behind it; but when by the long performance of work, one notices that one work merely leads to another, through a round of births and rebirths, then the awakened discrimination of man naturally begins to question itself, "Where is the end to this interminable chain of work?" It is then that he appreciates the full import of the words of the Lord in the Gita: "Inscrutable is the course of work." Therefore when the aspirant finds that work with motive brings no happiness, then he renounces action. But man is so constituted that to him the performance of work is a necessity, so what work should he take up? He takes up some unselfish work, but gives up all desire for its fruits. For he has known then that in those fruits of work lie countless seeds of future births and deaths. Therefore the knower of Brahman renounces all actions. Although to outward appearances he engages himself in some work, he has no attachment to it. Such men have been described in the scriptures as Karma-Yogins.

Disciple: Is then the work without motive of the unselfish knower of Brahman like the activities of a lunatic?

Swamiji: Why so? Giving up the fruits of work means not to perform work for the good of one's own body or mind. The knower of Brahman never seeks his own happiness. But what is there to prevent him from doing work for the welfare of others? Whatever work he does without attachment for its fruits brings only good to the world — it is all "for the good of the many, for the happiness of the many". Shri Ramakrishna used to say, "They never take a false step". Haven't you read in the Uttara-Râma-Charita, "ऋषीणाम् पुनराद्यानां वाचमर्थोऽनुधावति — The words of the ancient Rishis have always some meaning, they are never false?" When the mind is merged in the Atman by the suppression of all modifications, it produces "a dispassion for the enjoyment of fruits of work here or hereafter"; there remains no desire in the mind for any enjoyment here, or, after death, in any heavenly sphere. There is no action and interaction of desires in the mind. But when the mind descends from the superconscious state into the world of "I and mine", then by the momentum of previous work or habit, or Samskaras (impressions), the functions of the body go on as before. The mind then is generally in the superconscious state; eating and other functions of the body are done from mere necessity, and the body-consciousness is very much attenuated. Whatever work is done after reaching this transcendental state is done rightly; it conduces to the real well-being of men and the world; for then the mind of the doer is not contaminated by selfishness or calculation of personal gain or loss. The Lord has created this wonderful universe, remaining always in the realm of superconsciousness; therefore there is nothing imperfect in this world. So I was saying that the actions which the knower of the Atman does without attachment for fruits are never imperfect, but they conduce to the real well-being of men and the world.

Disciple: Sir, you said just now that knowledge and work are contradictory, that in the supreme knowledge there is no room at all for work, or in other words, that by means of work the realisation of Brahman cannot be attained. Why then do you now and then speak words calculated to awaken great Rajas (activity)? You were telling me the other day, "Work, work, work — there is no other way."

Swamiji: Going round the whole world, I find that people of this country are immersed in great Tamas (inactivity), compared with people of other countries. On the outside, there is a simulation of the Sâttvika (calm and balanced) state, but inside, downright inertness like that of stocks and stones — what work will be done in the world by such people? How long can such an inactive, lazy, and sensual people live in the world? First travel in Western countries, then contradict my words. How much of enterprise and devotion to work, how much enthusiasm and manifestation of Rajas are there in the lives of the Western people! While, in your own country, it is as if the blood has become congealed in the heart, so that it cannot circulate in the veins — as if paralysis has overtaken the body and it has become languid. So my idea is first to make the people active by developing their Rajas, and thus make them fit for the struggle for existence. With no strength in the body, no enthusiasm at heart, and no originality in the brain, what will they do — these lumps of dead matter! By stimulating them I want to bring life into them — to this I have dedicated my life. I will rouse them through the infallible power of Vedic Mantras. I am born to proclaim to them that fearless message — "Arise! Awake!" Be you my helpers in this work! Go from village to village, from one portion of the country to another, and preach this message of fearlessness to all, from the Brahmin to the Chandâla. Tell each and all that infinite power resides within them, that they are sharers of immortal Bliss. Thus rouse up the Rajas within them — make them fit for the struggle for existence, and then speak to them about salvation. First make the people of the country stand on their legs by rousing their inner power, first let them learn to have good food and clothes and plenty of enjoyment — then tell them how to be free from this bondage of enjoyment.

Laziness, meanness, and hypocrisy have covered the whole length and breadth of the country. Can an intelligent man look on all this and remain quiet? Does it not bring tears to the eyes? Madras, Bombay, Punjab, Bengal — whichever way I look, I see no signs of life. You are thinking yourselves highly educated. What nonsense have you learnt? Getting by heart the thoughts of others in a foreign language, and stuffing your brain with them and taking some university degrees, you consider yourselves educated! Fie upon you! Is this education? What is the goal of your education? Either a clerkship, or being a roguish lawyer, or at the most a Deputy Magistracy, which is another form of clerkship — isn't that all? Open your eyes and see what a piteous cry for food is rising in the land of Bharata, proverbial for its wealth! Will your education fulfil this want? Never. With the help of Western science set yourselves to dig the earth and produce food-stuffs — not by means of mean servitude of others — but by discovering new avenues to production, by your own exertions aided by Western science. Therefore I teach the people of this country to be full of activities, so as to be able to produce food and clothing for themselves. For want of food and clothing and plunged in anxiety for it, the country has come to ruin — what are you doing to remedy this? Throw aside your scriptures in the Ganga and teach the people first the means of procuring their food and clothing, and then you will find time to read to them the scriptures. If their material wants are not removed by the rousing of intense activity, none will listen to words of spirituality. Therefore I say, first rouse the inherent power of the Atman within you, then, rousing the faith of the general people in that power as much as you can, teach them first of all to make provision for food, and then teach them religion. There is no time to sit idle — who knows when death will overtake one?

While saying these words, a mingled expression of remorse, sorrow, compassion, and power shone on his face. Looking at his majestic appearance, the disciple was awed into silence. A little while afterwards Swamiji said again, "That activity and self-reliance must come in the people of the country in time — I see it clearly. There is no escape. The intelligent man can distinctly see the vision of the next three Yugas (ages) ahead. Ever since the advent of Shri Ramakrishna the eastern horizon has been aglow with the dawning rays of the sun which in course of time will illumine the country with the splendour of the midday sun."

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The Belur Math. Beginning of 1899.]

The present Math buildings are almost complete now. Swamiji is not in good health; therefore doctors have advised him to go out on a boat in the mornings and evenings on the Ganga.

Today is Sunday. The disciple is sitting in Swamiji's room and conversing with him. About this time Swamiji framed certain rules for the guidance of the Sannyasins and Brahmacharins of the Math, the object of which was to keep them from indiscriminate mixing with worldly people. The conversation turned on this topic.

Swamiji: Nowadays I feel a peculiar smell of lax self-control in the dress and clothes of worldly people; therefore I have made it a rule in the Math that householders should not sit or lie on the beds of Sadhus. Formerly I used to read in the Shastras that such a smell is felt, and therefore Sannyasins cannot bear the smell of householders. Now I see it is true. By strictly observing the rules that have been framed, the Brahmacharins will in time grow into genuine Sannyasins. When they are established in the ideal of Sannyasa, they will be able to mix on an equal footing with worldly men without any harm. But now if they are not kept within the barriers of strict rules, they will all go wrong. In order to attain to ideal Brahmacharya one has in the beginning to observe strict rules regarding chastity. Not only should one keep oneself strictly aloof from the least association with the opposite sex, but also give up the company of married people even.

The disciple who was a householder was awed at these words of Swamiji, felt dejected that he would not be able to associate freely as before with the Sadhus of the Math and said, "Sir, I feel more intimacy with the Math and its inmates than with my own family. As if they are known to me from a long long time. The unbounded freedom that I enjoy in the Math, I feel nowhere else in the world."

Swamiji: All those who are pure in spirit will feel like that here. Those who do not feel so must be taken as not belonging to this Math and its ideals. That is the reason why many people come here out of mere sensation-mongering and then run away. Those who are devoid of continence and are running after money day and night will never be able to appreciate the ideals of the Math, nor regard the Math people as their own. The Sannyasins of this Math are not like those of old, ash-besmeared, with matted hair and iron tongs in their hands, and curing disease by medicinal titbits; therefore seeing the contrast, people cannot appreciate them. The ways, movements and ideas of our Master were all cast in a new mould, so we are also of a new type. Sometimes dressed like gentlemen, we are engaged in lecturing; at other times, throwing all aside, with "Hara, Hara, Vyom Vyom" on the lips, ash-clad, we are immersed in meditation and austerities in mountains and forests.

Now it won't do to merely quote the authority of our ancient books. The tidal wave of Western civilisation is now rushing over the length and breadth of the country. It won't do now simply to sit in meditation on mountain tops without realising in the least its usefulness. Now is wanted — as said in the Gita by the Lord — intense Karma-Yoga, with unbounded courage and indomitable strength in the heart. Then only will the people of the country be roused, otherwise they will continue to be as much in the dark as you are.

The day is nearly ended. Swamiji came downstairs, dressed for the boating excursion on the Ganga. Swamiji, accompanied by the disciple and two others, boarded the boat, which passed the Dakshineswar temple and reached Panihati where it was anchored below the garden-house of Babu Govinda Kumar Chaudhury. It has once been proposed to rent this house for the use of the Math. Swamiji descended from the boat, went round the house and the garden and looking over the place minutely said, "The garden is nice but is at a great distance from Calcutta. The devotees of Shri Ramakrishna would have been put to trouble to walk such a long distance from Calcutta. It is fortunate that the Math has not been established here." The boat then returned to the Math amid the enveloping darkness.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: Belur Math. Beginning of 1899.]

The disciple has today come to the Math with Nag Mahashaya in company.

Swamiji to Nag Mahashaya (saluting him): You are all right, I hope?

Nag Mahashaya: I have come today to visit you. Glory to Shankara! Glory to Shankara! I am blessed today verily with the sight of Shiva!

Saying these words, Nag Mahashaya out of reverence stood with joined hands before him.

Swamiji: How is your health?

Nag Mahashaya: Why are you asking about this trifling body — this cage of flesh and bones? Verily I am blessed today to see you.

Saying these words, Nag Mahashaya prostrated before Swamiji.

Swamiji (lifting him up): Why are you doing that to me?

Nag Mahashaya: I see with my inner eye that today I am blessed with the vision of Shiva Himself. Glory to Ramakrishna!

Swamiji (addressing the disciple): Do you see? How real Bhakti transforms human nature! Nag Mahashaya has lost himself in the Divine, his body-consciousness has vanished altogether. (To Swami Premananda) Get some Prasada for Nag Mahashaya.

Nag Mahashaya: Prasada! (To Swamiji with folded hands) Seeing you, all my earthly hunger has vanished today.

The Brahmacharins and Sannyasins of the Math were studying the Upanishads. Swamiji said to them, "Today a great devotee of Shri Ramakrishna has come amongst us. Let it be a holiday in honour of Nag Mahashaya's visit to the Math." So all closed their books and sat in a circle round Nag Mahashaya; Swamiji also sat in front of him.

Swamiji (addressing all): Do you see? Look at Nag Mahashaya; he is a householder, yet he has no knowledge of the mundane existence; he always lives lost in Divine consciousness. (To Nag Mahashaya) Please tell us and these Brahmacharins something about Shri Ramakrishna.

Nag Mahashaya (in reverence): What do you say, sir? What shall I say? I have come to see you — the hero, the helper in the divine play of Shri Ramakrishna. Now will people appreciate his message and teachings. Glory to Ramakrishna!

Swamiji: It is you who have really appreciated and understood Shri Ramakrishna. We are only spent in useless wanderings.

Nag Mahashaya: What do you say, sir? You are the image of Shri Ramakrishna — the obverse and reverse of the same coin. Those who have eyes, let them see.

Swamiji: Is the starting of these Maths and Ashramas etc. a step in the right direction?

Nag Mahashaya: I am an insignificant being, what do I understand? Whatever you do, I know for a certainty, will conduce to the well-being of the world — ay, of the world.

Many out of reverence proceeded to take the dust of Nag Mahashaya's feet, which made him much agitated. Swamiji, addressing all, said, "Don't act so as to cause pain to Nag Mahashaya; he feels uncomfortable." Hearing this everybody desisted.

Swamiji: Do please come and stay at the Math. You will be an object-lesson to the boys here.

Nag Mahashaya: I once asked Shri Ramakrishna about that, to which he replied, "Stay as a householder as you are doing." Therefore I am continuing in that life. I see you all occasionally and feel myself blessed.

Swamiji: I will go to your place once.

Nag Mahashaya, mad with joy, said, "Shall such a day dawn? My place will be made holy by your visit, like Varanasi. Shall I be so fortunate as that!"

Swamiji: Well, I have the desire. Now it depends on "Mother" to take me there.

Nag Mahashaya: Who will understand you? Unless the inner vision opens, nobody can understand you. Only Shri Ramakrishna understood you; all else have simply put faith in his words, but none has understood you really.

Swamiji: Now my one desire is to rouse the country — the sleeping leviathan that has lost all faith in his power and makes no response. If I can wake it up to a sense of the Eternal Religion then I shall know that Shri Ramakrishna's advent and our birth are fruitful. That is the one desire in my heart: Mukti and all else appear of no consequence to me. Please give me your blessings that I may succeed.

Nag Mahashaya: Shri Ramakrishna will bless! who can turn the course of your will? Whatever you will, shall come to pass.

Swamiji: Well, nothing comes to pass without his will behind it.

Nag Mahashaya: Your will and his have become one. Whatever is your will is his. Glory to Shri Ramakrishna!

Swamiji: To work one requires a strong body; since coming to this country, I am not doing well; in the West I was in very good health.

Nag Mahashaya: "Whenever one is born in a body," Shri Ramakrishna used to say, "one has to pay the house tax." Disease and sorrow are the tax. But your body is a box of gold mohurs, and very great care should be taken of it. But who will do it? Who will understand? Only Shri Ramakrishna understood. Glory to Ramakrishna!

Swamiji: All at the Math take great care of me.

Nag Mahashaya: It will be to their good if they do it, whether they know it or not. If proper attention is not paid to your body, then the chances are that it will fall off.

Swamiji: Nag Mahashaya, I do not fully understand whether what I am doing is right or not. At particular times I feel a great inclination to work in a certain direction, and I work according to that. Whether it is for good or evil, I cannot understand.

Nag Mahashaya: Well, Shri Ramakrishna said, "The treasure is now locked." — Therefore he does not let you know fully. The moment you know it, your play of human life will be at an end.

Swamiji was pondering something with steadfast gaze. Then Swami Premananda brought some Prasada for Nag Mahashaya who was ecstatic with joy. Shortly after Nag Mahashaya found Swamiji slowly digging the ground with a spade near the pond, and held him by the hand saying, "When we are present, why should you do that?" Swamiji leaving the spade walked about the garden talking the while, and began to narrate to a disciple, "After Shri Ramakrishna's passing away we heard one day that Nag Mahashaya lay fasting in his humbled tiled lodgings in Calcutta. Myself, Swami Turiyananda, and another went together and appeared at Nag Mahashaya's cottage. Seeing us he rose from his bed. We said, 'We shall have our Bhikshâ (food) here today.' At once Nag Mahashaya brought rice, cooking pot, fuel, etc. from the bazaar and began to cook. We thought that we would eat and make Nag Mahashaya also eat. Cooking over, he gave the food to us; we set apart something for him and then sat down to eat. After this, we requested him to take food; he at once broke the pot of rice and striking his forehead began to say: 'Shall I give food to the body in which God has not been realised?' Seeing this we were struck with amazement. Later on after much persuasion we induced him to take some food and then returned."

Swamiji: Will Nag Mahashaya stay in the Math tonight?

Disciple: No, he has some work; he must return today.

Swamiji: Then look for a boat. It is getting dark.

When the boat came, the disciple and Nag Mahashaya saluted Swamiji and started for Calcutta.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XV

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: Belur Math. Year: 1899.]

Swamiji is now in very good health. The disciple has come to the Math on a Sunday morning. After visiting Swamiji he has come downstairs and is discussing the Vedantic scriptures with Swami Nirmalananda. At this moment Swamiji himself came downstairs and addressing the disciple, said, "What were you discussing with Nirmalananda?"

Disciple: Sir, he was saying, "The Brahman of the Vedanta is only known to you and your Swamiji. We on the contrary know that "कृष्णस्तु भगवान् स्वयं — Shri Krishna is the Lord Himself. "

Swamiji: What did you say?

Disciple: I said that the Atman is the one Truth, and that Krishna was merely a person who had realised this Atman. Swami Nirmalananda is at heart a believer in the Advaita Vedanta, but outwardly he takes up the dualistic side. His first idea seems to be to moot the personal aspect of the Ishvara and then by a gradual process of reasoning to strengthen the foundations of Vedanta. But as soon as he calls me a "Vaishnava" I forget his real intention and begin a heated discussion with him.

Swamiji: He loves you and so enjoys the fun of teasing you. But why should you be upset by his words? You will also answer, "You, sir, are an atheist, a believer in Nihilism."

Disciple: Sir, is there any such statement in the Upanishads that Ishvara is an all-powerful Person? But people generally believe in such an Ishvara.

Swamiji: The highest principle, the Lord of all, cannot be a Person. The Jiva is an individual and the sum total of all Jivas is the Ishvara. In the Jiva, Avidyâ, or nescience, is predominant, but Ishvara controls Maya composed of Avidya and Vidyâ and independently projects this world of moving and immovable things out of Himself. But Brahman transcends both the individual and collective aspects, the Jiva and Ishvara. In Brahman there is no part. It is for the sake of easy comprehension that parts have been imagined in It. That part of Brahman in which there is the superimposition of creation, maintenance and dissolution of the universe has been spoken of as Ishvara in the scriptures, while the other unchangeable portion, with reference to which there is no thought of duality, is indicated as Brahman. But do not on that account think that Brahman is a distinct and separate substance from the Jivas and the universe. The Qualified Monists hold that it is Brahman that has transformed Itself into Jivas and the universe. The Advaitins on the contrary maintain that Jivas and the universe have been merely superimposed on Brahman. But in reality there has been no modification in Brahman. The Advaitin says that the universe consists only of name and form. It endures only so long as there are name and form. When through meditation and other practices name and form are dissolved, then only the transcendent Brahman remains. Then the separate reality of Jivas and the universe is felt no longer. Then it is realised that one is the Eternal Pure Essence of Intelligence, or Brahman. The real nature of the Jiva is Brahman. When the veil of name and form vanishes through meditation etc., then that idea is simply realised. This is the substance of pure Advaita. The Vedas, the Vedanta and all other scriptures only explain this idea in different ways.

Disciple: How then is it true that Ishvara is an almighty Person?

Swamiji: Man is man in so far as he is qualified by the limiting adjunct of mind. Through the mind he has to understand and grasp everything, and therefore whatever he thinks must be limited by the mind. Hence it is the natural tendency of man to argue, from the analogy of his own personality, the personality of Ishvara (God). Man can only think of his ideal as a human being. When buffeted by sorrow in this world of disease and death he is driven to desperation and helplessness, then he seeks refuge with someone, relying on whom he may feel safe. But where is that refuge to be found? The omnipresent Atman which depends on nothing else to support It is the only Refuge. At first man does not find that. When discrimination and dispassion arise in the course of meditation and spiritual practices, he comes to know it. But in whatever way he may progress on the path of spirituality, everyone is unconsciously awakening Brahman within him. But the means may be different in different cases. Those who have faith in the Personal God have to undergo spiritual practices holding on to that idea. If there is sincerity, through that will come the awakening of the lion of Brahman within. The knowledge of Brahman is the one goal of all beings but the various ideas are the various paths to it. Although the real nature of the Jiva is Brahman, still as he has identification with the qualifying adjunct of the mind, he suffers from all sorts of doubts and difficulties, pleasure and pain. But everyone from Brahmâ down to a blade of grass is advancing towards the realisation of his real nature. And none can escape the round of births and deaths until he realises his identity with Brahman. Getting the human birth, when the desire for freedom becomes very strong, and along with it comes the grace of a person of realisation, then man's desire for Self-knowledge becomes intensified. Otherwise the mind of men given to lust and greed never inclines that way. How should the desire to know Brahman arise in one who has the hankering in his mind for the pleasures of family life, for wealth and for fame? He who is prepared to renounce all, who amid the strong current of the duality of good and evil, happiness and misery, is calm, steady, balanced, and awake to his Ideal, alone endeavours to attain to Self-knowledge. He alone by the might of his own power tears asunder the net of the world. "निर्गच्छति जगज्जालात् पिञ्जरदिव केशरी —Breaking the barriers of Maya, he emerges like a mighty lion."

Disciple: Well then, is it true that without Sannyasa, there can be no knowledge of Brahman?

Swamiji: That is true, a thousand times. One must have both internal and external Sannyasa — renunciation in spirit as also formal renunciation. Shankaracharya, in commenting on the Upanishadic text, "Neither by Tapas (spiritual practice) devoid of the necessary insignia"(Mundaka Upanishad, III. ii. 4.), he said that by practising Sadhana without the external badge of Sannyasa (the Gerua-robe, the staff, Kamandalu, etc.), Brahman, which is difficult to attain, is not realised. Without dispassion for the world, without renunciation, without giving up the desire for enjoyment, absolutely nothing can be accomplished in the spiritual life. "It is not like a sweetmeat in the hands of a child which you can snatch by a trick." (Song of Râmaprâsad.)

Disciple: But, sir, in the course of spiritual practices, that renunciation may come.

Swamiji: Let those to whom it will come gradually have it that way. But why should you sit and wait for that? At once begin to dig the channel which will bring the waters of spirituality to your life. Shri Ramakrishna used to deprecate lukewarmness in spiritual attainments as, for instance, saying that religion would come gradually, and that there was no hurry for it. When one is thirsty, can one sit idle? Does he not run about for water? Because your thirst for spirituality has not come, therefore you are sitting idly. The desire for knowledge has not grown strong, therefore you are satisfied with the little pleasures of family life.

Disciple: Really I do not understand why I don't get that idea of renouncing everything. Do make some way for that, please.

Swamiji: The end and the means are all in your hands. I can only stimulate them. You have read so many scriptures and are serving and associating with such Sadhus who have known Brahman; if even this does not bring the idea of renunciation, then your life is in vain. But it will not be altogether vain; the effects of this will manifest in some way or other in time.

The disciple was much dejected and again said to Swamiji: "Sir, I have come under your refuge, do open the path of Mukti for me — that I may realise the Truth in this body."

Swamiji: What fear is there? Always discriminate — your body, your house, these Jivas and the world are all absolutely unreal like a dream. Always think that this body is only an inert instrument. And the self-contained Purusha within is your real nature. The adjunct of mind is His first and subtle covering, then, there is this body which is His gross, outer covering. The indivisible changeless, self-effulgent Purusha is lying hidden under these delusive veils, therefore your real nature is unknown to you. The direction of the mind which always runs after the senses has to be turned within. The mind has to be killed. The body is but gross — it dies and dissolves into the five elements. But the bundle of mental impressions, which is the mind, does not die soon. It remains for some time in seed-form and then sprouts and grows in the form of a tree — it takes on another physical body and goes the round of birth and death, until Self-knowledge arises. Therefore I say, by meditation and concentration and by the power of philosophical discrimination plunge this mind in the Ocean of Existence-Knowledge-Bliss Absolute.

When the mind dies, all limiting adjuncts vanish and you are established in Brahman.

Disciple: Sir, it is so difficult to direct this uncontrolled mind towards Brahman.

Swamiji: Is there anything difficult for the hero? Only men of faint hearts speak so. " वीराणामेव कस्तलुगता मुक्तिः न पुनः कापुरुषाणाम् — Mukti is easy of attainment only to the hero — but not to cowards." Says the Gita (VI. 35), "अभ्यासेन तु कौन्तेय वैराग्येण च गृह्यते — By renunciation and by practice is the mind brought under control, O Arjuna." The Chitta or mind-stuff is like a transparent lake, and the waves which rise in it by the impact of sense-impressions constitute Manas or the mind. Therefore the mind consists of a succession of thought-waves. From these mental waves arises desire. Then that desire transforms itself into will and works through its gross instrument, the body. Again, as work is endless, so its fruits also are endless. Hence the mind is always being tossed by countless myriads of waves — the fruits of work. This mind has to be divested of all modifications (Vrittis) and reconverted into the transparent lake, so that there remains not a single wave of modification in it. Then will Brahman manifest Itself. The scriptures give a glimpse of this state in such passages as: "Then all the knots of the heart are cut asunder", etc. Do you understand?

Disciple: Yes, sir, but meditation must base itself on some object?

Swamiji: You yourself will be the object of your meditation. Think and meditate that you are the omnipresent Atman. "I am neither the body, nor the mind, nor the Buddhi (determinative faculty), neither the gross nor the subtle body" — by this process of elimination, immerse your mind in the transcendent knowledge which is your real nature. Kill the mind by thus plunging it repeatedly in this. Then only you will realise the Essence of Intelligence, or be established in your real nature. Knower and known, meditator and the object meditated upon will then become one, and the cessation of all phenomenal superimpositions will follow. This is styled in the Shâstras as the transcendence of the triad or relative knowledge (Triputibheda). There is no relative or conditioned knowledge in this state. When the Atman is the only knower, by what means can you possibly know It? The Atman is Knowledge, the Atman is Intelligence, the Atman is Sachchidananda. It is through the inscrutable power of Maya, which cannot be indicated as either existent or non-existent, that the relative consciousness has come upon the Jiva who is none other than Brahman. This is generally known as the conscious state. And the state in which this duality of relative existence becomes one in the pure Brahman is called in the scriptures the superconscious state and described in such words as, "स्मितसहस्ररशिप्रख्यमाख्याविहीनम् — It is like an ocean perfectly at rest and without a name" (Vivekachudâmani, 410).

Swamiji spoke these words as if from the profound depths of his realisation of Brahman.

Swamiji: All philosophy and scriptures have come from the plane of relative knowledge of subject and object. But no thought or language of the human mind can fully express the Reality which lies beyond the plane of relative Knowledge! Science, philosophy, etc. are only partial truths. So they can never be the adequate channels of expression for the transcendent Reality. Hence viewed from the transcendent standpoint, everything appears to be unreal — religious creeds, and works, I and thou, and the universe — everything is unreal! Then only it is perceived: "I am the only reality; I am the all-pervading Atman, and I am the proof of my own existence." Where is the room for a separate proof to establish the reality of my existence? I am, as the scriptures say, "नित्यमस्मत्प्रसिद्धम् — Always known to myself as the eternal subject" (Vivekachudâmani, 409). I have seen that state, realised it. You also see and realise it and preach this truth of Brahman to all. Then only will you attain to peace.

While speaking these words, Swamiji's face wore a serious expression and he was lost in thought. After some time he continued: "Realise in your own life this knowledge of Brahman which comprehends all theories and is the rationale of all truths, and preach it to the world. This will conduce to your own good and the good of others as well. I have told you today the essence of all truths; there is nothing higher than this."

Disciple: Sir, now you are speaking of Jnana; but sometimes you proclaim the superiority of Bhakti, sometimes of Karma, and sometimes of Yoga. This confuses our understanding.

Swamiji: Well, the truth is this. The knowledge of Brahman is the ultimate goal — the highest destiny of man. But man cannot remain absorbed in Brahman all the time. When he comes out of it, he must have something to engage himself. At that time he should do such work as will contribute to the real well-being of people. Therefore do I urge you in the service of Jivas in a spirit of oneness. But, my son, such are the intricacies of work, that even great saints are caught in them and become attached. Therefore work has to be done without any desire for results. This is the teaching of the Gita. But know that in the knowledge of Brahman there is no touch of any relation to work. Good works, at the most, purify the mind. Therefore has the commentator Shankara so sharply criticised the doctrine of the combination of Jnana and Karma. Some attain to the knowledge of Brahman by the means of unselfish work. This is also a means, but the end is the realisation of Brahman. Know this thoroughly that the goal of the path of discrimination and of all other modes of practice is the realisation of Brahman.

Disciple: Now, sir, please tell me about the utility of Raja-Yoga and Bhakti-Yoga.

Swamiji: Striving in these paths also some attain to the realisation of Brahman. The path of Bhakti or devotion of God is a slow process, but is easy of practice. In the path of Yoga there are many obstacles; perhaps the mind runs after psychic powers and thus draws you away from attaining your real nature. Only the path of Jnana is of quick fruition and the rationale of all other creeds; hence it is equally esteemed in all countries and all ages. But even in the path of discrimination there is the chance of the mind getting stuck in the interminable net of vain argumentation. Therefore along with it, meditation should be practised. By means of discrimination and meditation, the goal or Brahman has to be reached. One is sure to reach the goal by practising in this way. This, in my opinion, is the easy path ensuring quick success.

Disciple: Now please tell me something about the doctrine of Incarnation of God.

Swamiji: You want to master everything in a day, it seems!

Disciple: Sir, if the doubts and difficulties of the mind be solved in one day, then I shall not have to trouble you time and again.

Swamiji: Those by whose grace the knowledge of Atman, which is extolled so much in the scriptures, is attained in a minute are the moving Tirthas (seats of holiness) — the Incarnations. From their very birth they are knowers of Brahman, and between Brahman and the knower of Brahman there is not the least difference. "ब्रह्म वेद ब्रह्मैव भवति — He who knows the Brahman becomes the Brahman" (Mundaka, III. ii. 9). The Atman cannot be known by the mind for It is Itself the Knower — this I have already said. Therefore man's relative knowledge reached up to the Avatars — those who are always established in the Atman. The highest ideal of Ishvara which the human mind can grasp is the Avatars. Beyond this there is no relative knowledge. Such knowers of Brahman are rarely born in the world. And very few people can understand them. They alone are the proof of the truths of the scriptures — the towers of light in the ocean of the world. By the company of such Avatars and by their grace, the darkness of the mind disappears in a trice and realisation flashes immediately in the heart. Why or by what process it comes cannot be ascertained. But it does come. I have seen it happen like that. Shri Krishna spoke the Gita, establishing Himself in the Atman. Those passages of the Gita where He speaks with the word "I", invariably indicate the Atman: "Take refuge in Me alone" means, "Be established in the Atman". This knowledge of the Atman is the highest aim of the Gita. The references to Yoga etc. are but incidental to this realisation of the Atman. Those who have not this knowledge of the Atman are "suicides". "They kill themselves by the clinging to the unreal"; they lose their life in the noose of sense-pleasures. You are also men, and can't you ignore this trash of sensual enjoyment that won't last for two days? Should you also swell the ranks of those who are born and die in utter ignorance? Accept the "beneficial" and discard the "pleasant". Speak of this Atman to all, even to the lowest. By continued speaking your own intelligence also will clear up. And always repeat the great Mantras — "तत्त्वमसि — Thou art That, "सोऽहमस्मि — I am That", "सर्वं खल्विदं ब्रह्म — All this is verily Brahman" — and have the courage of a lion in the heart. What is there to fear? Fear is death — fear is the greatest sin. The human soul, represented by Arjuna, was touched with fear. Therefore Bhagavân Shri Krishna, established in the Atman, spoke to him the teachings of the Gita. Still his fear would not leave him. Later, when Arjuna saw the Universal Form of the Lord, and became established in the Atman, then with all bondages of Karma burnt by the fire of knowledge, he fought the battle.

Disciple: Sir, can a man do work even after realisation?

Swamiji: After realisation, what is ordinarily called work does not persist. It changes its character. The work which the Jnani does only conduces to the well-being of the world. Whatever a man of realisation says or does contributes to the welfare of all. We have observed Shri Ramakrishna; he was, as it were, "देहस्थोऽपि न देहस्थः — In the body, but not of it!" About the motive of the actions of such personages only this can be said: "लोकवत् लीलाकैवल्यम् — Everything they do like men, simply by way of sport" (Brahma-Sutras, II. i. 33).

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XVI

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: Belur Math. Year: 1901.]

The disciple has come to the Math today accompanied by Shri Ranadaprasad Das Gupta, the founder and professor of the Jubilee Art Academy, Calcutta. Ranada Babu is an expert artist, a learned man and an admirer of Swamiji. After the exchange of courtesies Swamiji began to talk with Ranada Babu on various topics relating to art.

Swamiji: I had the opportunity of seeing the beauties of art of nearly every civilised country in the world, but I saw nothing like the development of art which took place in our country during the Buddhistic period. During the régime of the Mogul Emperors also, there was a marked development of art — and the Taj and the Jumma Masjid etc. are standing monuments of that culture.

Art has its origin in the expression of some idea in whatever man produces. Where there is no expression of idea, however much there may be a display of colours and so on, it cannot be styled as true art. Even the articles of everyday use, such as water vessels, or cups and saucers, should be used to express an idea. In the Paris Exhibition I saw a wonderful figure carved in marble. In explanation of the figure, the following words were inscribed underneath: Art unveiling Nature. That is how art sees the inner beauty of nature by drawing away with its own hands the covering veils. The work has been so designed as to indicate that the beauty of nature has not yet become fully unveiled; but the artist is fascinated, as it were, with the beauty of the little that has become manifest. One cannot refrain from praising the sculptor who has tried to express this exquisite idea. You should also try to produce something original like this.

Ranada Babu: Yes, I also have the desire to do some original modelling at leisure. But I meet with no encouragement in this country; it is a poor country and there is want of appreciation.

Swamiji: If you can with your whole heart produce one real thing, if you can rightly express a single idea in art, it must win appreciation in course of time. A real thing never suffers from want of appreciation in this world. It is also heard that some artists have gained appreciation for their works a thousand years after their death!

Ranada Babu: That is true. But we have become so worthless that we haven't got the courage to spend a lot of energy to no purpose. Through these five years' struggle I have succeeded to some extent. Bless me that my efforts be not in vain.

Swamiji: If you set to work in right earnest, then you are sure to be successful. Whoever works at a thing heart and soul not only achieves success in it, but through his absorption in that he also realises the supreme Truth — Brahman. Whoever works at a thing with his whole heart receives help from God.

Ranada Babu: What difference did you find between the art of the West and that of India?

Swamiji: It is nearly the same everywhere. Originality is rarely found. In those countries pictures are painted with the help of models obtained by photographing various objects. But no sooner does one take the help of machinery than all originality vanishes — one cannot give expression to one's ideas. The ancient artists used to evolve original ideas from their brains and try to express them in their paintings. Now the picture being a likeness of photographs, the power of originality and the attempt to develop are getting scarce. But each nation has a characteristic of its own. In its manners and customs, in its mode of living, in painting and sculpture is found the expression of that characteristic idea. For instance, music and dancing in the West are all pointed in their expression. In dance, they look as if jerking the limbs; in instrumental music, the sounds prick the ear like a sword thrust, as it were; so also in vocal music. In this country, on the other hand, the dance has a rolling wave-like movement, and there is the same rounded movement in the varieties of pitch in vocal song. So also in instrumental music. Hence with regard to art also, a different expression is found among different people. People who are very materialistic take nature as their ideal, and try to express in art ideas allied thereto, while the people whose ideal is the transcendent Reality beyond nature try to express that in art through the powers of nature. With regard to the former class of people, nature is the primary basis of art, while with the second class, ideality is the principal motive of artistic development. Thus, though starting with two different ideals in art, they have advanced in it each in its own way. Seeing some paintings in the West you will mistake them for real natural objects. With respect to this country also, when in ancient times sculpture attained a high degree of perfection, if you look at a statue of the period it will make you forget the material world and transport you to a new ideal world. As in Western countries paintings like those of former times are not produced now, so in our country also, attempts to give expression to original ideas in art are no longer seen. For example, the paintings from your art school have got no expression, as it were. It would be well if you try to paint the objects of everyday meditation of the Hindus by giving in them the expression of ancient ideals.

Ranada Babu: I feel much encouraged by your words. I shall try to act up to your suggestions.

Swamiji: Take, for instance, the figure of Mother Kali. In it there is the union of the blissful and the terrible aspects. But in none of the pictures can be seen the true expression of these two aspects. Far from this, there is no attempt to express adequately even one of these two aspects! I have tried to put down some ideas of the terrible aspects of Mother Kali in my English poem, Kali the Mother. Can you express those ideas in a picture?

Ranada Babu: Please let me know them.

Swamiji had the poem brought from the library, and began to read it out most impressively to Ranada Babu. Ranada Babu silently listened to the poem, and after a while, as if visualising the figure with his mind's eye, he turned to Swamiji with a frightened look.

Swamiji: Well, will you be able to express this idea in the picture?

Ranada Babu: Yes, I shall try (Ranada Babu began to paint this picture the very next day, but it was never finished, nor shown to Swamiji.); but it turns one's head even to imagine the idea.

Swamiji: After drawing the picture, please show it to me. Then I will tell you about the points necessary to perfect it.

Then Swamiji had the design which he had sketched for the seal (Printed on the title page of this volume.) of the Ramakrishna Mission brought, showed it to Ranada Babu and asked his opinion on it. It depicted a lake in which a lotus blossomed, and there was a swan, and the whole was encircled by a serpent. Ranada Babu at first could not catch the significance of it and asked Swamiji to explain. Swamiji said, "The wavy waters in the picture are symbolic of Karma; the lotus, of Bhakti; and the rising-sun, of Jnana. The encircling serpent is indicative of Yoga and the awakened Kundalini Shakti, while the swan in the picture stands for the Paramâtman (Supreme Self). Therefore the idea of the picture is that by the union of Karma, Jnana, Bhakti, and Yoga, the vision of the Paramatman is obtained."

Ranada Babu kept silent, gratified to hear the motif of the picture. After a while he said, "I wish I could learn about art from you!"

Then Swamiji showed to Ranada Babu a drawing, depicting his plan of the future Ramakrishna Temple and Math. Then he began to say, "In the building of this prospective Temple and Math I have the desire to bring together all that is best in Eastern and Western art. I shall try to apply in its construction all the ideas about architecture which I have gathered in my travels all over the world. A big prayer-hall will be built with roof supported on numerous clustered pillars. In its walls, hundreds of lotuses will be in full bloom. It must be big enough to accommodate a thousand persons sitting in meditation. The Ramakrishna temple and prayer-hall should be built together in such a way that from a distance it would taken for a representation of the symbol, "Om". Within the temple there would be a figure of Shri Ramakrishna seated on a swan. On the two sides of the door will be represented the figure of a lion and a lamb licking each other's body in love — expressing the idea that great power and gentleness have become united in love. I have these ideas in my mind; and if I live long enough I shall carry them out. Otherwise future generations will try if they can do it by degrees. It is my opinion that Shri Ramakrishna was born to vivify all branches of art and culture in this country. Therefore this Math has to be built up in such a way that religion, work, learning, Jnana, and Bhakti may spread over the world from this centre. Be you my helpers in this work."

Ranada Babu and the assembled Sannyasins and Brahmacharins listened to Swamiji in mute wonder. After a while Swamiji resumed, "I am discussing the subject at length with you as you are yourself an adept in the line. Now please tell me what you have learnt about the highest ideals of art as the result of your long study of it."

Ranada Babu: What new thing can I tell you? On the contrary, it is you who have opened my eyes on this subject. I have never heard such instructive words on the subject of art in my life. Bless me, sir, that I can work out the ideas that I have got from you.

Then Swamiji got up from his seat and paced the lawn, remarking to the disciple, "He is a very spirited young man."

Disciple: Sir, he is astonished to hear your words.

Swamiji, without answering the disciple, began to hum the lines of a song which Shri Ramakrishna used to sing, "The controlled mind is a great treasure, the philosopher's stone, which yields whatever you want."

After walking a while, Swamiji, washing his face, entered his room with the disciple in company and read the article on Art in the Encyclopaedia Britannica for some time. After finishing it, he began to make fun with the disciple, caricaturing the words and accents of East Bengal.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XVII

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: Belur Math. Year: 1901.]

Swamiji has just returned from East Bengal and Assam a few days back. He is ill, and his feet have swollen. Coming to the Math, the disciple went upstairs and prostrated himself at Swamiji's feet. In spite of his ill health, Swamiji wore his usual smiling face and affectionate look.

Disciple: How are you, Swamiji?

Swamiji: What shall I speak of my health, my son? The body is getting unfit for work day by day. It has been born on the soil of Bengal, and some disease or other is always overtaking it. The physique of this country is not at all good. If you want to do some strenuous work, it cannot bear the strain. But the few days that the body lasts, I will work for you. I shall die in harness.

Disciple: If you give up work for some time and take rest, then you will be all right. Your life means good to the world.

Swamiji: Am I able to sit quiet, my son! Two or three days before Shri Ramakrishna's passing away, She whom he used to call "Kali" entered this body. It is She who takes me here and there and makes me work, without letting me remain quiet or allowing me to look to my personal comforts.

Disciple: Are you speaking metaphorically?

Swamiji: Oh, no; two or three days before his leaving the body, he called me to his side one day, and asking me to sit before him, looked steadfastly at me and fell into Samadhi. Then I really felt that a subtle force like an electric shock was entering my body! In a little while, I also lost outward consciousness and sat motionless. How long I stayed in that condition I do not remember; when consciousness returned I found Shri Ramakrishna shedding tears. On questioning him, he answered me affectionately, "Today, giving you my all, I have become a beggar. With this power you are to do many works for the world's good before you will return." I feel that power is constantly directing me to this or that work. This body has not been made for remaining idle.

Hearing these words with speechless wonder the disciple thought — who knows how common people will take these words? Thereupon he changed the topic and said, "Sir, how did you like our East Bengal?"

Swamiji: I liked it on the whole. The fields, I saw, were rich in crops, the climate also is good, and the scenery on the hill-side is charming. The Brahmaputra Valley is incomparable in its beauty. The people of East Bengal are a little stronger and more active than those of this part. It may be due to their taking plenty of fish and meat. Whatever they do, they do with great persistence. They use a great deal of oil and fat in their food, which is not good, because taking too much of oily and fatty food produces fat in the body.

Disciple: How did you find their religious consciousness?

Swamiji: About religious ideas, I noticed the people are very conservative, and many have turned into fanatics in trying to be liberal in religion. One day a young man brought to me, in the house of Mohini Babu at Dacca, a photograph and said, "Sir, please tell me who he is. Is he an Avatara?" I told him gently many times that I know nothing of it. When even on my telling him three or four times the boy did not cease from his persistent questioning, I was constrained to say at last, "My boy, henceforth take a little nutritious food and then your brain will develop. Without nourishing food, I see your brain has become dried up." At these words the young man may have been much displeased. But what could I do? Unless I spoke like this to the boys, they would turn into madcaps by degrees.

Disciple: In our East Bengal a great many Avataras have cropped up recently.

Swamiji: People may call their Guru an Avatara; they may have any idea of him they like. But Incarnations of God are not born anywhere and everywhere and at all seasons. At Dacca itself I heard there were three or four Avataras!

Disciple: How did you find the women of that side?

Swamiji: The women are very nearly the same everywhere. I found Vaishnavism strong at Dacca. The wife of H__ seemed to be very intelligent. With great care she used to prepare food and send it to me.

Disciple: I heard you have been to Nag Mahashaya's place.

Swamiji: Yes, going so far, should I not visit the birthplace of such a great soul? His wife fed me with many delicacies prepared by her own hand. The house is charming, like a peace retreat. There I took a swimming bath in a village pond. After that I had such a sound sleep that I woke at half past two in the afternoon. Of the few days I had sound sleep in my life, that in Nag Mahashaya's house was one. Rising from sleep I had a plentiful repast. Nag Mahashaya's wife presented me a cloth which I tied round my head as a turban and started for Dacca. I found that the photograph of Nag Mahashaya was being worshipped there. The place where his remains lie interred ought to be well kept. Even now it is not as it should be.

Disciple: The people of that part have not been able to appreciate Nag Mahashaya.

Swamiji: How can ordinary people appreciate a great man like him? Those who had his company are blessed indeed.

Disciple: What did you see at Kâmâkhyâ?

Swamiji: The Shillong hills are very beautiful. There I met Sir Henry Cotton, the Chief Commissioner of Assam. He asked me, "Swamiji, after travelling through Europe and America, what have you come to see here in these distant hills?" Such a good and kind-hearted man as Sir Henry Cotton is rarely found. Hearing of my illness, he sent the Civil Surgeon and inquired after my health mornings and evenings. I could not do much lecturing there, because my health was very bad. On the way Nitai served and looked after me nicely.

Disciple: What did you find the religious ideas of that part to be?

Swamiji: It is the land of the Tantras. I heard of one "Hankar Deva" who is worshipped there as an Avatara. I heard his sect is very wide-spread. I could not ascertain if "Hankar Deva" was but another form of the name Shankaracharya. They are monks — perhaps Tântrika Sannyasins, or perhaps one of the Shankara sects.

Disciple: The people of East Bengal have not been able to appreciate you as is the case with Nag Mahashaya.

Swamiji: Whether they appreciate me or not, the people there are more active and energetic than those of these parts. In time it will develop more. What are nowadays known as refined or civilised ways have not yet thoroughly entered those parts. Gradually they will. In all times, etiquette and fashion spread to the countryside from the capital. And this is happening in East Bengal also. The land that has produced a great soul like Nag Mahashaya is blessed and has a hopeful future. By the light of his personality Eastern Bengal is radiant.

Disciple: But, sir, ordinary people did not know him as a great soul. He hid himself in great obscurity.

Swamiji: There they used to make much fuss about my food and say, "Why should you eat that food or eat from the hands of such and such?" — and so on. To which I had to reply, "I am a Sannyasin and a mendicant friar and what need have I to observe so much outward formality with regard to food etc.? Do not your scriptures say, "चरेन्माधुकरिं वृत्तिमपि म्लेच्छकुलादपि — One should beg one's food from door to door, ay even from the house of an outcast"? But of course external forms are necessary in the beginning, for the inner realisation of religion, in order to make the truth of the scriptures practical in one's life. Haven't you heard of Shri Ramakrishna's story of "wringing out the almanac for water"?* Outward forms and observances are only for the manifestation of the great inner powers of man. The object of all scriptures is to awaken those inner powers and make him understand and realise his real nature. The means are of the nature of ordinances and prohibitions. If you lose sight of the ideal fight over the means only, what will it avail? In every country I have visited, I find this fighting over the means going on, and people have no eye on the ideal. Shri Ramakrishna came to show the truth of this.

Realisation of the truth is the essential thing. Whether you bathe in the Ganga for a thousand years or live on vegetable food for a like period, unless it helps towards the manifestation of the Self, know that it is all of no use. If on the other hand, any one can realise the Atman, without the observance of outward forms, then that very non-observance of forms is the best means. But even after the realisation of Atman, one should observe outward forms to a certain extent for setting an example to the people. The thing is you must make the mind steadfast on something. If it is steadfast on one object, it attains to concentration, that is, its other modifications die out and there is a uniform flow in one direction. Many become wholly preoccupied with the outward forms and observances merely and fail to direct their mind to thoughts of the Atman! If you remain day and night within the narrow groove of ordinances and prohibitions, how will there be any expression of the soul? The more one has advanced in the realisation of the Atman, the less is he dependent on the observances of forms. Shankaracharya also has said, "निश्चैगुण्ये पथि विचरतां को विधिः को निषेधः — Where is there any ordinance or prohibition for him whose mind is always above the play of the Gunas?" Therefore the essential truth is realisation. Know that to be the goal. Each distinct creed is but a way to the Truth. The test of progress is the amount of renunciation that one has attained. Where you find the attraction for lust and wealth considerably diminished, to whatever creed he may belong, know that his inner spirit is awakening. The door of Self-realisation has surely opened for him. On the contrary if you observe a thousand outward rules and quote a thousand scriptural texts, still, if it has not brought the spirit of renunciation in you, know that your life is in vain. Be earnest over this realisation and set your heart on it. Well, you have read enough of scriptures. But tell me, of what avail has it been? Some perhaps thinking of money have become millionaires, whereas you have become a Pundit by thinking of scriptures. But both are bondages. Attain the supreme knowledge and go beyond Vidyâ and Avidyâ, relative knowledge and ignorance.

Disciple: Sir, through your grace I understand it all, but my past Karma does not allow me to assimilate these teachings.

Swamiji: Throw aside your Karma and all such stuff. If it is a truth that by your own past action you have got this body; then, nullifying the effects of evil works by good works, why should you not be a Jivanmukta in this very body? Know that freedom or Self-Knowledge is in your own hands. In real knowledge there is no touch of work. But those who work after being Jivanmuktas do so for the good of others. They do not look to the results of works. No seed of desire finds any room in their mind. And strictly speaking it is almost impossible to work like that for the good of the world from the householder's position. In the whole of Hindu scriptures there is the single instance of King Janaka in this respect. But you nowadays want to pose as Janakas (lit. fathers) in every home by begetting children year after year, while he was without the body-consciousness!

Disciple: Please bless me that I may attain Self-realisation in this very life.

Swamiji: What fear? If there is sincerity of spirit, I tell you, for a certainty, you will attain it in this very life. But manly endeavour is wanted. Do you know what it is? "I shall certainly attain Self-knowledge. Whatever obstacles may come, I shall certainly overcome them" — a firm determination like this is Purushakâra. "Whether my mother, father, friends, brothers, wife, and children live or die, whether this body remains or goes, I shall never turn back till I attain to the vision of the Atman" — this resolute endeavour to advance towards one's goal, setting at naught all other considerations, is termed manly endeavour. Otherwise, endeavour for creature comforts even beasts and birds show. Man has got this body simply to realise Self-knowledge. If you follow the common run of people in the world and float with the general current, where then is your manliness? Well, the common people are going to the jaws of death! But you have come to conquer it! Advance like a hero. Don't be thwarted by anything. How many days will this body last, with its happiness and misery? When you have got the human body, then rouse the Atman within and say — I have reached the state of fearlessness! Say — I am the Atman in which my lower ego has become merged for ever. Be perfect in this idea; and then as long as the body endures, speak unto others this message of fearlessness: "Thou art That", "Arise, awake, and stop not till the goal is reached!" If you can achieve this, then shall I know that you are really a tenacious East Bengal man.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XVIII

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: Belur Math. Year: 1901.]

Swamiji is in indifferent health since his return to the Math from the Shillong Hills. His feet have swollen. All this has made his brother-disciples very anxious. At the request of Swami Niranjananda, Swamiji has agreed to take Âyurvedic medicine. He is to begin this treatment from next Tuesday and entirely give up taking water and salt. Today is Sunday. The disciple asked him, "Sir, it is terribly hot now and you drink water very frequently; it will be unbearable for you now to stop taking water altogether for this treatment."

Swamiji: What do you say? I shall make a firm resolve, on the morning of the day I shall begin this treatment, not to take any water. After that no water shall pass down the throat any more. For three weeks not a drop of water shall be able to go down the throat. The body is but an outer covering of the mind and whatever the mind will dictate to it, it will have to carry out. So there is nothing to be afraid of. At the request of Niranjan I have to undergo this treatment. Well, I cannot be indifferent to the request of my brother-disciples.

It is now about ten o'clock. Swamiji cheerfully raised the topic of his future Math for women, saying, "With the Holy Mother as the centre of inspiration, a Math is to be established on the eastern bank of the Ganga. As Brahmacharins and Sâdhus will be trained in this Math here, so in the other Math also, Brahmacharinis and Sâdhvis will be trained."

Disciple: Sir, history does not tell us of any Maths for women in India in ancient times. Only during the Buddhistic period one hears of Maths for women; but from it in course of time many corruptions arose. The whole country was overrun by great evil practices.

Swamiji: It is very difficult to understand why in this country so much difference is made between men and women, whereas the Vedanta declares that one and the same conscious Self is present in all beings. You always criticise the women, but say what have you done for their uplift? Writing down Smritis etc., and binding them by hard rules, the men have turned the women into mere manufacturing machines! If you do not raise the women, who are the living embodiment of the Divine Mother, don't think that you have any other way to rise.

Disciple: Women are a bondage and a snare to men. By their Maya they cover the knowledge and dispassion of men. It is for this, I suppose, that scriptural writers hint that knowledge and devotion are difficult of attainment to them.

Swamiji: In what scriptures do you find statements that women are not competent for knowledge and devotion? In the period of degradation, when the priests made other castes incompetent for the study of the Vedas, they deprived the women also of all their rights. Otherwise you will find that in the Vedic or Upanishadic age Maitreyi, Gârgi, and other ladies of revered memory have taken the places of Rishis through their skill in discussing about Brahman. In an assembly of a thousand Brahmanas who were all erudite in the Vedas, Gargi boldly challenged Yâjñavalkya in a discussion about Brahman. Since such ideal women were entitled to spiritual knowledge, why shall not the women have the same privilege now? What has happened once can certainly happen again. History repeats itself. All nations have attained greatness by paying proper respect to women. That country and that nation which do not respect women have never become great, nor will ever be in future. The principal reason why your race has so much degenerated is that you have no respect for these living images of Shakti. Manu says, "Where women are respected, there the gods delight; and where they are not, there all works and efforts come to naught." (Manu, III. 56.) There is no hope of rise for that family or country where there is no estimation of women, where they live in sadness. For this reason, they have to be raised first; and an ideal Math has to be started for them.

Disciple: Sir, when you first returned from the West, in your lecture at the Star Theatre you sharply criticised the Tantras. Now by your supporting the worship of women, as taught in the Tantras, you are contradicting yourself.

Swamiji: I denounced only the present corrupted form of Vâmâchâra of the Tantras. I did not denounce the Mother-worship of the Tantras, or even the real Vamachara. The purport of the Tantras is to worship women in a spirit of Divinity. During the downfall of Buddhism, the Vamachara became very much corrupted, and that corrupted form obtains to the present day. Even now the Tantra literature of India is influenced by those ideas. I denounced only these corrupt and horrible practices — which I do even now. I never objected to the worship of women who are the living embodiment of Divine Mother, whose external manifestations, appealing to the senses have maddened men, but whose internal manifestations, such as knowledge, devotion, discrimination and dispassion make man omniscient, of unflinching purpose, and a knower of Brahman. "सैषा प्रसन्ना वरदा नृणां भवति मुक्तये — She, when pleased, becomes propitious and the cause of the freedom of man" (Chandi, I. 57). Without propitiating the Mother by worship and obeisance, not even Brahmâ and Vishnu have the power to elude Her grasp and attain to freedom. Therefore for the worship of these family goddesses, in order to manifest the Brahman within them, I shall establish the women's Math.

Disciple: It may be a good idea but where will you get the women inmates? With the present hard restrictions of society, who will permit the ladies of their household to join your Math?

Swamiji: Why so? Even now there are women disciples of Shri Ramakrishna. With their help I shall start this Math. The Holy Mother will be their central figure and the wives and daughters of the devotees of Shri Ramakrishna will be its first inmates. For they will easily appreciate the usefulness of such a Math. After that, following their example, many householders will help in their noble work.

Disciple: The devotees of Shri Ramakrishna will certainly join this work. But I don't think the general public will help in this work.

Swamiji: No great work has been done in the world without sacrifice. Who on seeing the tiny sprout of the banyan can imagine that in course of time it will develop into a gigantic banyan tree? At present I shall start the Math in this way. Later on you will see that after a generation or two people of this country will appreciate the worth of this Math. My women disciples will lay down their lives for it. Casting off fear and cowardice, you also be helpers in this noble mission and hold this high ideal before all. You will see, it will shed its lustre over the whole country in time.

Disciple: Sir, please tell me all about your plan of this Math for women.

Swamiji: On the other side of the Ganga a big plot of land will be acquired, where unmarried girls or Brahmacharini widows will live; devout married women will also be allowed to stay now and then. Men will have no concern with this Math. The elderly Sadhus of the Math will manage the affairs of this Math from a distance. There shall be a girls' school attached to this women's Math, in which religious scriptures, literature, Sanskrit, grammar, and even some amount of English should be taught. Other matters such as sewing, culinary art, rules of domestic work, and upbringing of children, will also be taught while Japa, worship, meditation, etc. shall form an indispensable part of the teaching. Those who will be able to live here permanently, renouncing home and family ties, will be provided with food and clothing from the Math. Those who will not be able to do that will be allowed to study in this Math as day-scholars. With the permission of the head of the Math, the latter will be allowed even to stay in the Math occasionally, and during such stay will be maintained by the Math. The elder Brahmacharinis will take charge of the training of the girl students in Brahmacharya. After five or six years' training in this Math, the guardians of the girls may marry them. If deemed fit for Yoga and religious life, with the permission of the guardians they will be allowed to stay in this Math, taking the vow of celibacy. These celibate nuns will in time be the teachers and preachers of the Math. In villages and towns they will open centres and strive for the spread of female education. Through such devout preachers of character there will be the real spread of female education in the country. So long as the students will remain in association with this Math, they must observe Brahmacharya as the basic ideal of this Math.

Spirituality, sacrifice, and self-control will be the motto of the pupils of this Math, and service or Sevâ-dharma the vow of their life. In view of such ideal lives, who will not respect and have faith in them? If the life of the women of this country be moulded in such fashion, then only will there be the reappearance of such ideal characters as Sitâ, Sâvitri and Gârgi. To what straits the strictures of local usages have reduced the women of this country, rendering them lifeless and inert, you could understand if only you visited the Western countries. You alone are responsible for this miserable condition of the women, and it rests with you also to raise them again. Therefore I say, set to work. What will it do to memorise a few religious books like the Vedas and so on?

Disciple: Sir, if the girl students after being trained in this Math marry, how will one find ideal characters in them? Will it not be better if the rule is made that those who will be educated in this Math shall not marry?

Swamiji: Can that be brought about all at once? They must be given education and left to themselves. After that they will act as they think best. Even after marriage and entering the world, the girls educated as above will inspire their husbands with noble ideals and be the mothers of heroic sons. But there must be this rule that the guardians of the students in the women's Math must not even think of marrying them before they attain the age of fifteen.

Disciple: Sir, then those girls will not command reputation in society. Nobody would like to marry them.

Swamiji: Why will not they be wanted in marriage? You have not yet understood the trend of society. These learned and accomplished girls will never be in want of bridegrooms. Society nowadays does not follow the texts recommending child-marriage nor will do so in future. Even now don't you see?

Disciple: But there is sure to be a violent opposition against this in the beginning.

Swamiji: Let it be. What is there to be afraid of in that? Opposition to a righteous work initiated with moral courage will only awaken the moral power of the initiators the more. That which meets with no obstruction, no opposition, only takes men to the path of moral death. Struggle is the sign of life.

Disciple: Yes, sir.

Swamiji: In the highest reality of the Parabrahman, there is no distinction of sex. We notice this only in the relative plane. And the more the mind becomes introspective, the more that idea of difference vanishes. Ultimately, when the mind is wholly merged in the homogeneous and undifferentiated Brahman, such ideas as this is a man or that a woman do not remain at all. We have actually seen this in the life of Shri Ramakrishna. Therefore do I say that though outwardly there may be difference between men and women, in their real nature there is none. Hence, if a man can be a knower of Brahman, why cannot a woman attain to the same knowledge? Therefore I was saying that if even one amongst the women became a knower of Brahman, then by the radiance of her personality thousands of women would be inspired and awakened to truth, and great well-being of the country and society would ensue. Do you understand?

Disciple: Sir, your teachings have opened my eyes today.

Swamiji: Not fully yet. When you realise that all-illuminating reality of the Atman, then you will see that this idea of sex-distinction has vanished altogether, then only will you look upon women as the veritable manifestation of Brahman. We have seen in Shri Ramakrishna how he had this idea of divine motherhood in every woman, of whatever caste she might be, or whatever might be her worth. It is because I have seen this that I ask you all so earnestly to do likewise and open girls' schools in every village and try to uplift them. If the women are raised, then their children will by their noble actions glorify the name of the country — then will culture, knowledge, power, and devotion awaken in the land.

Disciple: But, sir, contrary results appear to have come out of the present female education. With just a smattering of education, they take merely to the Western modes of living, but it is not clear how far they are advancing in the spirit of renunciation, self-control, austerity, Brahmacharya and other qualities conducive to Brahmajñana.

Swamiji: In the beginning a few mistakes like that are unavoidable. When a new idea is preached in the country, some, failing to grasp it properly, go wrong in that way. But what matters it to the well-being of society at large? Well, those who are pioneers of the little bit of female education that now obtains in the country were undoubtedly very great-hearted. But the truth is that some defect or other must creep into that learning or culture which is not founded on a religious basis. But now female education is to be spread with religion as its centre. All other training should be secondary to religion. Religious training, the formation of character and observance of the vow of celibacy — these should be attended to. In the female education which has obtained up till now in India, it is religion that has been made a secondary concern, hence those defects you were speaking of have crept in. But no blame attaches therefore to the women. Reformers having proceeded to start female education without being Brahmacharins themselves have stumbled like that. Founders of all good undertakings, before they launch on their desired work, must attain to the knowledge of the Atman through rigorous self-discipline. Otherwise defects are bound to occur in their work.

Disciple: Yes, sir, it is observed that many educated women spend their time in reading novels and so on; but in East Bengal even with education women have not given up their religious observances. Is it so here in this part?

Swamiji: In every country, nations have their good and bad sides. Ours is to do good works in our lives and hold an example before others. No work succeeds by condemnation. It only repels people. Let anybody say what he likes, don't contradict him. In this world of Maya, whatever work you will take up will be attended with some defect. "सर्वारम्भा हि दोषेण धूमेनाग्निरिवावृत्ताः — All works are covered with defects as fire is with smoke" (Gita, XVIII. 48). Every fire has a chance of being attended with smoke. But will you, on that account, sit inactive? As far as you can, you must go on doing good work.

Disciple: What is this good work?

Swamiji: Whatever helps in the manifestation of Brahman is good work. Any work can be done so as to help, if not directly, at least indirectly, the manifestation of the Atman. But following the path laid down by the Rishis, that knowledge of the Atman manifests quickly; on the contrary, the doing of works which have been indicated by the scriptural writers as wrong, brings only bondage of the soul and sometimes this bondage of delusion does not vanish even in many lives. But in all ages and climes, freedom is sure to be attained by Jivas ultimately. For the Atman is the real nature of the Jiva. Can anybody give up his own nature? If you fight with your shadow for a thousand years, can you drive it away from you? — it will always remain with you.

Disciple: But, sir, according to Shankara, Karma is antagonistic to Jnana. He has variously refuted the intermingling of Jnana and Karma. So how can Karma be helpful to the manifestation of Jnana?

Swamiji: Shankara after saying so has again described Karma as indirect help to the manifestation of Jnana and the means for the purification of the mind. But I do not contradict his conclusion that in transcendent knowledge there is no touch of any work whatsoever. So long as man is within the realm of the consciousness of action, agent, and the result of action, he is powerless to sit idle without doing some work. So, as work is thus ingrained in the very nature of man, why don't you go on doing such works as are helpful to the manifestation of the knowledge of the Atman? That all work is the effect of ignorance may be true from the absolute standpoint, but within the sphere of relative consciousness it has a great utility. When you will realise the Atman, the doing or non-doing of work will be within your control, and whatever you will do in that state will be good work, conducive to the well-being of Jivas and the world. With the manifestation of Brahman, even the breath you draw will be to the good of Jiva. Then you will no longer have to work by means of conscious planning. Do you understand?

Disciple: Yes, it is a beautiful conclusion reconciling Karma and Jnana from the Vedantic standpoint.

At this time, the bell for supper rang, and the disciple, before going to partake of it, prayed with folded hands, "Bless me, sir, that I may attain to the knowledge of Brahman in this very life." Swamiji placing his hand on the disciple's head said, "Have no fear, my son. You are not like ordinary worldly men — neither householders, nor exactly Sannyasins — but quite a new type."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XIX

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: Belur Math. Year: 1901.]

Swamiji is in indifferent health. At the earnest request of Swami Niranjananda he has been taking Ayurvedic medicines for six or seven days. According to this treatment, the drinking of water is strictly forbidden. He has to appease his thirst with milk.

The disciple has come to the Math early in the day. Swamiji on seeing him spoke with affection, "Oh, you have come? Well done, I was thinking of you."

Disciple: I hear that you are living on milk for the last six or seven days.

Swamiji: Yes, at the earnest entreaty of Niranjan, I had to take to this medicine! I cannot disregard their request.

Disciple: You were in the habit of taking water very frequently. How could you give it up altogether?

Swamiji: When I heard that according to this treatment water had to be given up, I made a firm resolve immediately not to take water. Now the idea of drinking water does not even occur to the mind.

Disciple: The treatment is doing you good I hope?

Swamiji: That I don't know. I am simply obeying the orders of my brother-disciples.

Disciple: I think that indigenous drugs such as the Vaidyas use, are very well-suited to our constitution.

Swamiji: My idea is that it is better even to die under the treatment of a scientific doctor than expect recovery from the treatment of laymen who know nothing of modern science, but blindly go by the ancient books, without gaining a mastery of the subject — even though they may have cured a few cases.

Swamiji cooked certain dishes, one of which was prepared with vermicelli. When the disciple, who partook of it, asked Swamiji what it was, he replied, "It is a few English earthworms which I have brought dried from London." This created laughter among those present at the expense of the disciple. Despite his spare food and scanty sleep, Swamiji is very active. A few days ago, a new set of the Encyclopaedia Britannica had been bought for the Math. Seeing the new shining volumes, the disciple said to Swamiji, "It is almost impossible to read all these books in a single lifetime." He was unaware that Swamiji had already finished ten volumes and had begun the eleventh.

Swamiji: What do you say? Ask me anything you like from these ten volumes, and I will answer you all.

The disciple asked in wonder, "Have you read all these books?"

Swamiji: Why should I ask you to question me otherwise?

Being examined, Swamiji not only reproduced the sense, but at places the very language of the difficult topics selected from each volume. The disciple, astonished, put aside the books, saying, "This is not within human power!"

Swamiji: Do you see, simply by the observance of strict Brahmacharya (continence) all learning can be mastered in a very short time — one has an unflinching memory of what one hears or knows but once. It is owing to this want of continence that everything is on the brink of ruin in our country.

Disciple: Whatever you may say, sir, the manifestation of such superhuman power cannot be the result of mere Brahmacharya, something else there must be.

Swamiji did not say anything in reply.

Then Swamiji began to explain lucidly to the disciple the arguments and conclusions about the difficult points in all philosophies. In course of the conversation Swami Brahmananda entered the room and said to the disciple, "You are a nice man! Swamiji is unwell, and instead of trying to keep his mind cheerful by light talk, you are making him talk incessantly, raising the most abstruse subjects!" The disciple was abashed. But Swamiji said to Swami Brahmananda, "Keep your regulation of Ayurvedic treatment aside. These are my children; and if my body goes in teaching them, I don't care." After this, some light talk followed. Then arose the topic of the place of Bhâratchandra in Bengali literature. From the beginning Swamiji began to ridicule Bharatchandra in various ways and satirised the life, manners, marriage-customs, and other usages of society at the time of Bharatchandra, who was an advocate of child-marriage. He expressed the opinion that the poems of Bharatchandra, being full of bad taste and obscenities, had not found acceptance in any cultured society except in Bengal, and he said, "Care should be taken that such books do not come into the hands of boys." Then raising the topic of Michael Madhusudan Dutt, he added, "That was a wonderful genius born in your province. There is not another epic in Bengali literature like the Meghnâdbadh, no mistake in that; and it is difficult to come across a poem like that in the whole of modern European literature."

Disciple: But, sir, I think Michael was very fond of a bombastic style.

Swamiji: Well, if anybody in your country does anything new, you at once hoot him. First examine well what he is saying, but instead of that, the people of the country will chase after anything which is not quite after the old modes. For example, in order to bring to ridicule this Meghnabadh Kâvya, which is the gem of Bengali literature, the parody of Chhuchhundaribadh Kâvya (The Death of a Mole) was written. They may caricature as much as they like, it does not matter. But the Meghnadbadh Kavya still stands unshaken in its reputation like the Himalayas while the opinions and writings of carping critics who are busy picking holes in it have been washed away into oblivion. What will the vulgar public understand of this epic Michael has written in such a vigorous diction and an original metre? And at the present time Girish Babu is writing wonderful books in a new metre which your overwise Pundits are criticising and finding fault with. But does G.C. care for that? People will appreciate the book afterwards.

Thus speaking on the subject of Michael he said, "Go and get the Meghnadbadh Kavya from the library downstairs." On the disciple's bringing it he said, "Now read, let me see how you can read it."

The disciple read a portion, but the reading not being to the liking of Swamiji, he took the book and showed him how to read and asked him to read again. Then he asked him, "Now, can you say which portion of the Kavya is best?" The disciple failing to answer, Swamiji said, "That portion of the book which describes how Indrajit has been killed in battle and Mandodari, beside herself with grief, is dissuading Râvana from the battle — but Ravana casting off forcibly from his mind the grief for his son is firmly resolved on battle like a great hero, and forgetting in a fury of rage and vengeance all about his wife and children, is ready to rush out for battle — that is the most finely conceived portion of the book. Come what may, I shall not forget my duty, whether the world remains or dissolves—these are the words of a great hero. Inspired by such feelings, Michael has written that portion."

Saying this, Swamiji opened the particular passage and began to read it in the most impressive manner.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XX

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: Belur Math. Year: 1901.]

Swamiji is much better under the Ayurvedic treatment. The disciple is at the Math. While attending on Swamiji, he asked, "The Atman is all-pervading, the very life of the life of all beings, and so very near. Still why is It not perceived?"

Swamiji: Do you see yourself that you have eyes? When others speak of the eyes, then you are reminded that you have got eyes. Again when dust or sand enters into them and sets up an irritation, then you feel quite well that you have got eyes. Similarly the realisation of this universal Atman which is inner than the innermost is not easily attained. Reading from scriptures or hearing from the lips of the preceptor, one has some idea of It, but when the hard lashes of the bitter sorrow and pain of the world make the heart sore, when on the death of one's near and dear relatives, man thinks himself helpless, when the impenetrable and insurmountable darkness about the future life agitates his mind, then does the Jiva pant for a realisation of the Atman. Therefore is sorrow helpful to the knowledge of the Atman. But one should remember the bitter lesson of experience. Those who die, merely suffering the woes of life like cats and dogs, are they men? He is a man who even when agitated by the sharp interaction of pleasure and pain is discriminating, and knowing them to be of an evanescent nature, becomes passionately devoted to the Atman. This is all the difference between men and animals. That which is nearest is least observed. The Atman is the nearest of the near, therefore the careless and unsteady mind of man gets no clue to It. But the man who is alert, calm, self-restrained, and discriminating, ignores the external world and diving more and more into the inner world, realises the glory of the Atman and becomes great. Then only he attains to the knowledge of the Atman and realises the truth of such scriptural texts as, "I am the Atman", "Thou art That, O Shvetaketu," and so on. Do you understand?

Disciple: Yes, sir. But why this method of attaining Self-knowledge through the path of pain and suffering? Instead of all this, it would have been well if there had been no creation at all. We were all at one time identified with Brahman. Why then this desire for creation on the path of Brahman? Why again this going forth of the Jiva (who is no other than Brahman) along the path of birth and death, amidst the interaction of the dualities of life?

Swamiji: When a man is intoxicated, he sees many hallucinations; but when the intoxication goes off, he understands them as the imaginations of a heated brain. Whatever you see of this creation which is without a beginning, but has an end, is only an effect of your state of intoxication; when that passes off, such questions will not arise at all.

Disciple: Then is there no reality in the creation, and preservation, etc. of the Universe?

Swamiji: Why should not there be? So long as you identify yourself with the body and have the ego-consciousness, all these will remain. But when you are bereft of the body-consciousness and devoted to the Atman and live in the Atman, then with respect to you none of these will remain, and such questions as whether there is any creation or birth or death will have no room. Then you will have to say —

कव गतं केन वा नीतं कुत्र लीनमीदं जगत् ।
अधुनैव मया दृष्टं नासितं किं महद्दुःखम् ॥

— "Where is it gone, by whom is it taken, wherein is the world merged? It was just observed by me and is it non-existent now? What a wonder!" (Vivekachudâmani 483).

Disciple: If there is no knowledge of the existence of the universe, how can it be said, "Wherein is the world merged?"

Swamiji: Because one has to express the idea in language, therefore that mode of expression has been used. The author has tried to express in thought and language about the state where thought or language cannot reach, and therefore he has stated the fact that the world is wholly unreal, in a relative mode like the above. The world has no absolute reality which only belongs to Brahman, which is beyond the reach of mind and speech. Say what more you have to ask. Today I will put an end to all your arguments.

The bell of the evening service in the worship-room rang at the time, and everybody made for it. But the disciple stayed in Swamiji's room, noticing which Swamiji said, "Won't you go to the worship-room?"

Disciple: I should like to stay here.

Swamiji: All right.

After some time the disciple looking outside of the room said, "It is the new-moon night and all the quarters are overspread with darkness. It is the night for the worship of Mother Kali."

Swamiji without saying anything gazed at the eastern sky for some time and said, "Do you see what a mysterious and solemn beauty there is in this darkness!" Saying this and continuing to look at the dense mass of darkness, he stood enrapt. After some minutes had passed, Swamiji slowly began to sing a Bengali song, "O Mother, in deep darkness flashes Thy formless beauty", etc. After the song Swamiji entered his room and sat down with an occasional word like "Mother, Mother", or "Kali, Kali", on his lips.

Uneasy at Swamiji's profoundly abstracted mood, the disciple said, "Now, sir, please speak with me."

Swamiji smilingly said, "Can you fathom the beauty and profundity of the Atman whose external manifestation is so sweet and beautiful?" The disciple wished for a change of topic, noticing which, Swamiji began another song of Kali: "O Mother, Thou flowing stream of nectar, in how many forms and aspects dost Thou play in manifestation!" After the song he said, "This Kali is Brahman in manifestation. Haven't you heard Shri Ramakrishna's illustration of the 'snake moving and the snake at rest' (representing the dynamic and static aspects of the same thing)?"

Disciple: Yes, sir.

Swamiji: This time, when I get well, I shall worship the Mother with my heart's blood, then only will She be pleased. Your Raghunandan also says like that. The Mother's child shall be a hero, a Mahâvira. In unhappiness, sorrow, death, and desolation, the Mother's child shall always remain fearless.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: Belur Math. Year: 1901.]

Swamiji is staying at the Math nowadays. His health is not very good, but he goes out for a walk in the mornings and evenings. The disciple, after bowing at the feet of Swamiji, inquired about his health.

Swamiji: Well, this body is in such a pitiable condition, but none of you are stepping forward to help in my work! What shall I do single-handed? This time the body has come out of the soil of Bengal, so can it bear the strain of much work? You who come here are pure souls; and if you do not become my helpers in this work, what shall I do alone?

Disciple: Sir, these self-sacrificing Brahmacharins and Sannyasins are standing behind you, and I think that each one of them can devote his life to your work — still why do you speak in this way?

Swamiji: Well, I want a band of young Bengal — who alone are the hope of this country. My hope of the future lies in the youths of character — intelligent, renouncing all for the service of others, and obedient — who can sacrifice their lives in working out my ideas and thereby do good to themselves and the country at large. Otherwise, boys of the common run are coming in groups and will come. Dullness is written on their faces — their hearts are devoid of energy, their bodies feeble and unfit for work, and minds devoid of courage. What work will be done by these? If I get ten or twelve boys with the faith of Nachiketâ, I can turn the thoughts and pursuits of this country in a new channel.

Disciple: Sir, so many young men are coming to you, and do you find none among them of such a nature?

Swamiji: Among those who appear to me to be of good calibre, some have bound themselves by matrimony; some have sold themselves for the acquisition of worldly name, fame, or wealth; while some are of feeble bodies. The rest, who form the majority, are unable to receive any high idea. You are no doubt fit to receive my high ideas, but you are not able to work them out in the practical field. For these reasons sometimes an anguish comes into the mind, and I think that taking this human body, I could not do much work through untowardness of fortune. Of course, I have not yet wholly given up hope, for, by the will of God, from among these very boys may arise in time great heroes of action and spirituality who will in future work out my ideas.

Disciple: It is my firm belief that your broad and liberal ideas must find universal acceptance some day or other. For I see they are all-sided and infusing vigour into every department of thought and activity. And the people of the country are accepting, either overtly or covertly, your ideas, and teaching them to the people.

Swamiji: What matters it if they acknowledge my name or not? It is enough if they accept my ideas. Ninety-nine per cent of the Sadhus, even after renouncing lust and wealth, get bound at the last by the desire of name and fame. "Fame . . . that last infirmity of noble mind" — haven't you read? We shall have to work, giving up altogether all desire for results. People will call us both good and bad. But we shall have to work like lions, keeping the ideal before us, without caring whether "the wise ones praise or blame us".

Disciple: What ideal should we follow now?

Swamiji: You have now to make the character of Mahâvira your ideal. See how at the command of Râmachandra he crossed the ocean. He had no care for life or death! He was a perfect master of his senses and wonderfully sagacious. You have now to build your life on this great ideal of personal service. Through that, all other ideals will gradually manifest in life. Obedience to the Guru without questioning, and strict observance of Brahmacharya — this is the secret of success. As on the one hand Hanumân represent the ideal of service, so on the other hand he represents leonine courage, striking the whole world with awe. He has not the least hesitation in sacrificing his life for the good of Rama. A supreme indifference to everything except the service of Rama, even to the attainment of the status of Brahmâ and Shiva, the great World-Gods! Only the carrying out of Shri Rama's best is the one vow of this life! Such whole-hearted devotion is wanted. Playing on the Khol and Kartâl and dancing in the frenzy of Kirtana has degenerated the whole people. They are, in the first place, a race of dyspeptics — and if in addition to this they dance and jump in that way, how can they bear the strain? In trying to imitate the highest Sâdhana, the preliminary qualification for which is absolute purity, they have been swallowed in dire Tamas. In every district and village you may visit, you will find only the sound of the Khol and Kartâl! Are not drums made in the country? Are not trumpets and kettle-drums available in India? Make the boys hear the deep-toned sound of these instruments. Hearing from boyhood the sound of these effeminate forms of music and listening to the kirtana, the country is well-nigh converted into a country of women. What more degradation can you expect? Even the poet's imagination fails to draw this picture! The Damaru (An hour-glass-shaped drum, held in Shiva's hand.) and horn have to be sounded, drums are to be beaten so as to raise the deep and martial notes, and with "Mahavira, Mahavira" on your lips and shouting "Hara, Hara, Vyom, Vyom" , the quarters are to be reverberated. The music which awakens only the softer feelings of man is to be stopped now for some time. Stopping the light tunes such as Kheâl and Tappâ for some time, the people are to be accustomed to hear the Dhrupad music. Through the thunder-roll of the dignified Vedic hymns, life is to be brought back into the country. In everything the austere spirit of heroic manhood is to be revived. In following such an ideal lies the good of the people and the country. If you can build your character after such an ideal, then a thousand others will follow. But take care that you do not swerve an inch from the ideal. Never lose heart. In eating, dressing, or lying, in singing or playing, in enjoyment or disease, always manifest the highest moral courage. Then only will you attain the grace of Mahâshakti, the Divine Mother.

Disciple: Sir, at times I am overcome by low spirits, I don't know how.

Swamiji: Then think like this: "Whose child am I? I associate with him and shall I have such weak-mindedness and lowness of spirits?" Stamping down such weakness of mind and heart, stand up, saying, "I am possessed of heroism — I am possessed of a steady intellect — I am a knower of Brahman, a man of illumination." Be fully conscious of your dignity by remembering, "I am the disciple of such and such who is the companion-in-life of Shri Ramakrishna, the conqueror of lust and wealth." This will produce a good effect. He who has not this pride has no awakening of Brahman within him. Haven't you heard Râmprasâd's song? He used to say, "Whom do I fear in the world, whose sovereign is the Divine Mother!" Keep such a pride always awake in the mind. Then weakness of mind and heart will no longer be able to approach you. Never allow weakness to overtake your mind. Remember Mahavira, remember the Divine Mother! And you will see that all weakness, all cowardice will vanish at once.

Saying these words, Swamiji came downstairs and took his accustomed seat on a cot in the courtyard. Then, addressing the assembled Sannyasins and Brahmacharins, he said, "Here is the unveiled presence of Brahman. Fie upon those who disregarding It set their mind on other things! Ah! here is Brahman as palpable as a fruit in one's palm. Don't you see? Here!"

These words were spoken in such an appealing way, that every one stood motionless like a figure painted on canvas and felt as if he were suddenly drawn into the depth of meditation. . . . After some time that tension of feeling passed and they regained their normal consciousness.

Next, in the course of a walk, Swamiji spoke to the disciple. "Did you see how everybody had become concentrated today? These are all children of Shri Ramakrishna, and on the very uttering of the words, they felt the truth."

Disciple: Sir, not to speak of them, even my heart was overflowing with an unearthly bliss! But now it appears like a vanished dream.

Swamiji: Everything will come in time. Now, go on working. Set yourself to some work for the good of men sunk in ignorance and delusion. You will see that such experiences will come of themselves.

Disciple: I feel nervous to enter into its labyrinths — neither have I the strength. The scriptures also say, "Impenetrable is the path of Karma".

Swamiji: What do you wish to do then?

Disciple: To live and hold discussion with one like you, who has realised the truth of all scriptures and through hearing, thinking, and meditating on the Truth to realise Brahman in this very life. I have no enthusiasm, nor perhaps the strength, for anything else.

Swamiji: If you love that, well, you can go on doing it. And speak about your thoughts and conclusions about the Shastras to others, it will benefit them. So long as there is the body, one cannot live without doing some work or other; therefore one should do such work as is conducive to the good of others. Your own realisations and conclusions about scriptural truths may benefit many a seeker after Truth. Put them into writing which may help many others.

Disciple: First let me realise the Truth, then I shall write. Shri Ramakrishna used to say; "Without the badge of authority, none will listen to you."

Swamiji: There may be many in the world who have got stuck in that stage of spiritual discipline and reasoning through which you are passing, without being able to pass beyond that stage. Your experience and way of thinking, if recorded, may be of benefit to them at least. If you put down in easy language the substance of the discussions which you hold with the Sadhus of this Math, it may help many.

Disciple: Since you wish it, I shall try to do it.

Swamiji: What is the good of that spiritual practice or realisation which does not benefit others, does not conduce to the well-being of people sunk in ignorance and delusion, does not help in rescuing them from the clutches of lust and wealth? Do you think, so long as one Jiva endures in bondage, you will have any liberation? So long as he is not liberated — it may take several lifetimes — you will have to be born to help him, to make him realise Brahman. Every Jiva is part of yourself — which is the rationale of all work for others. As you desire the whole-hearted good of your wife and children, knowing them to be your own, so when a like amount of love and attraction for every Jiva will awaken in you, then I shall know that Brahman is awakening in you, not a moment before. When this feeling of the all-round good of all without respect for caste or colour will awaken in your heart, then I shall know you are advancing towards the ideal.

Disciple: Sir, it is a most tremendous statement that without the salvation of all, there shall be no salvation for an individual! I have never heard of such a wonderful proposition.

Swamiji: There is a class of Vedantists who hold such a view. They say that individual liberation is not the real and perfect form of liberation, but universal and collective liberation is true Mukti. Of course, both merits and defects can be pointed out in that view.

Disciple: According to Vedanta, the state of individualised existence is the root of bondage, and the Infinite Intelligence, through desires and effects of works, appears bound in that limiting condition. When by means of discrimination that limiting condition vanishes and the Jiva is bereft of all adjuncts, then how can there be bondage for the Atman which is of the essence of transcendent Intelligence? He for whom the idea of the Jiva and the world is a persisting reality may think that without the liberation of all he has no liberation. But when the mind becomes bereft of all limiting adjuncts and is merged in Brahman, where is there any differentiation for him? So nothing can operate as a bar to his Mukti.

Swamiji: Yes, what you say is right, and most Vedantins hold that view, which is also flawless. In that view, individual liberation is not barred. But just consider the greatness of his heart who thinks that he will take the whole universe with him to liberation!

Disciple: Sir, it may indicate boldness of heart, but it is not supported by the scriptures.

Swamiji was in an abstracted mood and did not listen to the words. After some time he said: "Day and night think and meditate on Brahman, meditate with great one-pointedness of mind. And during the time of awakesness to outward life, either do some work for the sake of others or repeat in your mind, 'Let good happen to Jivas and the world!' 'Let the mind of all flow in the direction of Brahman!' Even by such continuous current of thought the world will be benefited. Nothing good in the world becomes fruitless, be it work or thought. Your thought-currents will perhaps rouse the religious feeling of someone in America."

Disciple: Sir, please bless me that my mind may be concentrated on the Truth.

Swamiji: So it will be. If you have earnestness of desire, it will certainly be.

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The Math, Belur. Year: 1901.]

At the time Belur Math was established, many among the orthodox Hindus were wont to make sharp criticism of the ways of life in the Math. Hearing the report of such criticism from the disciple, Swamiji would say (in the words of the couplet of Tulasidas), "The elephant passes in the market-place, and a thousand curs begin barking after him; so the Sadhus have no ill-feeling when worldly people slander then." Or again he would say, "Without persecution no beneficent idea can enter into the heart of a society." He would exhort everybody, "Go on working without an eye to results. One day you are sure to reap the fruits of it." Again, on the lips of Swamiji were very often heard the words of the Gita, "A doer of good never comes to grief, my son."

In May or June, 1901, seeing the disciple at the Math Swamiji said, "Bring me a copy of Ashtâvimshati-tattva (Twenty-eight Categories) of Raghunandan at an early date."

Disciple: Yes, sir, but what will you do with the Raghunandan Smriti, which the present educated India calls a heap of superstition?

Swamiji: Why? Raghunandan was a wonderful scholar of his time. Collecting the ancient Smritis, he codified the customs and observances of the Hindus, adapting them to the needs of the changed times and circumstances. All Bengal is following the rules laid down by him. But in the iron grip of his rules regulating the life of a Hindu from conception to death, the Hindu society was much oppressed. In matters of eating and sleeping, in even the ordinary functions of life, not to speak of the important ones, he tried to regulate every one by rules. In the altered circumstances of the times, that did not last long. At all times in all countries the Karma-kânda, comprising the social customs and observances, changes form. Only the Jnâna-kânda endures. Even in the Vedic age you find that the rituals gradually changed in form. But the philosophic portion of the Upanishads has remained unchanged up till now — only there have been many interpreters, that is all.

Disciple: What will do you with the Smriti of Raghunandan?

Swamiji: This time I have a desire to celebrate the Durgâ Puja (worship of goddess Durga). If the expenses are forthcoming, I shall worship the Mahâmâyâ. Therefore I have a mind to read the ceremonial forms of that worship. When you come to the Math next Sunday, you must bring a copy of the book with you.

Disciple: All right, sir.

Next Saturday the disciple brought a copy of the book, and Swamiji was much pleased to get it. Meeting the disciple a week after this he said, "I have finished the Raghunandan Smriti presented by you. If possible, I shall celebrate the Puja of the Divine Mother."

The Durga Puja took place with great éclat at the proper time.

Shortly after this Swamiji performed a Homa before the Mother Kali at Kalighat. Referring this incident he spoke to the disciple, "Well, I was glad to see that there was yet a liberality of view at Kalighat. The temple authorities did not object in the least to my entering the temple, though they knew that I was a man who had returned from the West. On the contrary, they very cordially took me into the holy precincts and helped me to worship the Mother to my heart's content."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The Math, Belur. Year: 1902.]

Today is the anniversary celebration of Shri Ramakrishna — the last that Swamiji ever saw. The disciple presented an invocatory hymn on Shri Ramakrishna to Swamiji. He then proceeded to rub Swamiji's feet gently. Before starting to read the poem, Swamiji spoke to him: "Do it very gently as the feet have become very tender."

After reading the poem Swamiji said, "It is well done."

Swamiji's illness had increased so much that the disciple, observing it, felt sore at heart. Understanding his inner feeling, Swamiji said, "What are you thinking? This body is born and it will die. If I have been able to instil a few of my ideas into you all, then I shall know that my birth has not been in vain."

Disciple: Are we fit objects of your mercy? If you bless me, without taking my fitness into consideration, then I will consider myself fortunate.

Swamiji: Always remember that renunciation is the root idea. Unless one is initiated into this idea, not even Brahmâ and the World-Gods have the power to attain Mukti.

Disciple: It is a matter of deep regret that even hearing this from you almost every day, I have not been able to realise it.

Swamiji: Renunciation must come, but in the fulness of time. "कालेनात्मनि विन्दति — In the fulness of time one attains to knowledge within himself." When the few Samskâras (tendencies) of the previous life are spent, then renunciation sprouts up in the heart.

After some time he said, "Why should you go outside and see the big concourse of people? Stay with me now. And ask Niranjan to sit at the door, so that nobody may disturb me today."

Then the following conversation took place between Swamiji and the disciple:

Swamiji: I think that it will be better if from now the anniversary is celebrated in a different way. The celebration should extend to four or five days instead of one. On the first day, there may be study and interpretation of scriptures; on the second, discussion on the Vedas and the Vedanta and the solution of the problems in connection with them; on the third day, there may be a question class. The fourth day may be fixed for lectures. On the last day, there will be a festival on the present lines. This will be like the Durga Puja extending over four or five days. Of course, if the celebration is on the above lines, none but the devotees of Shri Ramakrishna will be able to attend on the other days except the last. But that does not matter. A large promiscuous crowd of people does not mean a great propagation of the message of Shri Ramakrishna.

Disciple: Sir, it is a beautiful idea. Next time it will be done according to your wishes.

Swamiji: Now, my son, you all will carry them out. I have no more inclination for these things.

Disciple: Sir, this year many Kirtana parties have come.

Hearing these words Swamiji stood up holding the iron bars of the window and looked at the assembled crowd of devotees. After some time he sat down.

Swamiji: You are the actors in the Divine Lilâ (play) of Shri Ramakrishna. After this, not to speak of ours, people will take your names also. These hymns which you are writing will afterwards be read by people for the acquisition of love and knowledge. Know that the attainment of the knowledge of the Atman is the highest object of life. If you have devotion for the Avatars who are the world-teachers, that knowledge will manifest of itself in time.

Disciple: Sir, shall I attain to such knowledge?

Swamiji: By the blessings of Shri Ramakrishna you shall attain to divine love and knowledge. You will not find much happiness in the worldly life.

Disciple: Sir, if you condescend to destroy the weakness of my mind, then only there is hope for me.

Swamiji: What fear! When you have chanced to come here, you shall be free.

Disciple (with great entreaty): You must save me and lift me from ignorance in this very life.

Swamiji: Say, who can save anybody? The Guru can only take away some covering veils. When these veils are removed, the Atman shines in Its own glory and manifests like the sun.

Disciple: Then why do we find mention of grace in the scriptures?

Swamiji: Grace means this. He who has realised the Atman becomes a storehouse of great power. Making him the centre and with a certain radius a circle is formed, and whoever comes within the circle becomes animated with the ideas of that saint, i.e. they are overwhelmed by his ideas. Thus without much religious striving, they inherit the results of his wonderful spirituality. If you call this grace, you may do so.

Disciple: Is there no other grace than this?

Swamiji: Yes, there is. When the Avatars come, then with him are born liberated persons as helpers in his world-play. Only Avatars have the power to dispel the darkness of a million souls and give them salvation in one life. This is known as grace. Do you understand?

Disciple: Yes, sir. But what is the way for those who have not been blessed with the sight of him?

Swamiji: The way for them is to call on him. Calling on him, many are blessed with his vision — can see him in human form just like ours and obtain his grace.

Disciple: Have you ever had a vision of Shri Ramakrishna after his passing away?

Swamiji: After his leaving the body, I associated for some time with Pavhâri Bâbâ of Ghazipur. There was a garden not far distant from his Âshrama where I lived. People used to say it was a haunted garden, but as you know, I am a sort of demon myself and have not much fear of ghosts. In the garden there were many lemon trees which bore numerous fruits. At that time I was suffering from diarrhoea, and there no food could be had except bread. So, to increase the digestive powers, I used to take plenty of lemons. Mixing with Pavhari Baba, I liked him very much, and he also came to love me deeply. One day I thought that I did not learn any art for making this weak body strong, even though I lived with Shri Ramakrishna for so many years. I had heard that Pavhari Baba knew the science of Hatha-Yoga. So I thought I would learn the practices of Hatha-Yoga from him, and through them strengthen the body. You know, I have a dogged resolution, and whatever I set my heart on, I always carry out. On the eve of the day on which I was to take initiation, I was lying on a cot thinking; and just then I saw the form of Sri Ramakrishna standing on my right side, looking steadfastly at me, as if very much grieved. I had dedicated myself to him, and at the thought that I was taking another Guru I was much ashamed and kept looking at him. Thus perhaps two or three hours passed, but no words escaped from my mouth. Then he disappeared all on a sudden. My mind became upset seeing Shri Ramakrishna that night, so I postponed the idea of initiation from Pavhari Baba for the day. After a day or two again the idea of initiation from Pavhari Baba arose in the mind — and again in the night there was the appearance of Shri Ramakrishna as on the previous occasion. Thus when for several nights in succession I had the vision of Shri Ramakrishna, I gave up the idea of initiation altogether, thinking that as every time I resolved on it, I was getting such a vision, then no good but harm would come from it.

After some time he addressed the disciple, saying, "Those who have seen Shri Ramakrishna are really blessed. Their family and birth have become purified by it. All of you will also get his vision. The very fact that you have come here, shows that you are very near to him. Nobody has been able to understand who came on earth as Sri Ramakrishna. Even his own nearest devotees have got no real clue to it. Only some have got a little inkling of it. All will understand it afterwards."

The conversation was thus going on when Swami Niranjanananda knocked at the door. The disciple rose and inquired, "Who has come?" Swami Niranjanananda replied, "Sister Nivedita and some other English ladies." They were admitted into the room, sat on the floor and inquired about the health of Swamiji. After a few more words they went away. Then Swamiji said to the disciple, "See how cultured they are! If they were Bengalis, they would have made me talk at least for half an hour, even though they found me unwell."

It is about half past two now, and there is a great gathering of people outside. Understanding the disciple's mind, Swamiji said, "Just go and have a look round — but come back soon."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XXIV

[Place: The Math, Belur. Year: 1902.]

After returning from Eastern Bengal Swamiji stayed in the Math and lived a simple childlike life. Every year some Santal labourers used to work in the Math. Swamiji would joke and make fun with them and loved to hear their tales of weal and woe. One day several noted gentlemen of Calcutta came to visit Swamiji in the Math. That day Swamiji had started such a warm talk with the Santals that, when he was informed of the arrival of those gentlemen, he said, "I shan't be able to go now. I am happy with these men." Really that day Swamiji did not leave the poor Santals to see those visitors.

One among the Santals was named Keshta. Swamiji loved Keshta very much. Whenever Swamiji came to talk with them, Keshta used to say to Swamiji, "O my Swamiji, do not come to us when we are working, for while talking with you our work stops and the supervising Swami rebukes us afterwards." Swamiji would be touched by these words and say, "No, no, he will not say anything; tell me a little about your part of the country" — saying which he used to introduce the topic of their worldly affairs.

One day Swamiji said to Keshta, "Well, will you take food here one day?" Keshta said, "We do not take food touched by you; if you put salt in our food and we eat it, we shall lose our caste." Swamiji said, "Why should you take salt? We will prepare curry for you without salt, will you then take it?" Keshta agreed to it. Then at orders of Swamiji, bread, curry, sweets, curd, etc. were arranged for the Santals, and he made them sit before him to eat. While eating, Keshta said, "Whence have you got such a thing? We never tasted anything like this." Feeding them sumptuously, Swamiji said, "You are Nârâyanas, God manifest; today I have offered food to Narayana." The service of "Daridra Narayana" — God in the poor — about which Swamiji spoke, he himself performed one day like this.

After their meal, the Santals went for rest, and Swamiji, addressing the disciple, said, "I found them the veritable embodiment of God — such simplicity, such sincere guileless love I have seen nowhere else." Then, addressing the Sannyasins of the Math, he said, "See how simple they are. Can you mitigate their misery a little? Otherwise, of what good is the wearing of the Gerua robe? Sacrifice of everything for the good of others is real Sannyasa. They have never enjoyed any good thing in life. Sometimes I feel a desire to sell the Math and everything, and distribute the money to the poor and destitute. We have made the tree our shelter. Alas! the people of the country cannot get anything to eat, and how can we have the heart to raise food to our mouths? When I was in the Western countries, I prayed to the Divine Mother, "People here are sleeping on a bed of flowers, they eat all kinds of delicacies, and what do they not enjoy, while people in our country are dying of starvation. Mother, will there be no way for them! One of the objects of my going to the West to preach religion was to see if I could find any means for feeding the people of this country.

"Seeing the poor people of our country starving for food, a desire comes to me to overthrow all ceremonial worship and learning, and go round from village to village collecting money from the rich by convincing them through force of character and Sadhana, and to spend the whole life in serving the poor.

"Alas! nobody thinks of the poor of this land. They are the backbone of the country, who by their labour are producing food—these poor people, the sweepers and labourers, who if they stop work for one day will create a panic in the town. But there is none to sympathise with them, none to console them in their misery. Just see, for want of sympathy from the Hindus, thousands of Pariahs in Madras are turning Christians. Don't think this is simply due to the pinch of hunger; it is because they do not get any sympathy from us. We are day and night calling out to them, 'Don't touch us! Don't touch us!' Is there any compassion or kindness of heart in the country? Only a class of 'Don't-touchists'; kick such customs out! I sometimes feel the urge to break the barriers of 'Don't-touchism', to go at once and call out, 'Come, all who are poor, miserable, wretched, and down-trodden', and to bring them all together in the name of Shri Ramakrishna. Unless they rise, the Mother won't awaken. We could not make any provision for food and clothes for these — what have we done then? Alas! they know nothing of worldliness, and therefore even after working day and night cannot provide themselves with food and clothes. Let us open their eyes. I see clear as daylight that there is the one Brahman in all, in them and in me — one Shakti dwells in all. The only difference is of manifestation. Unless the blood circulates over the whole body, has any country risen at any time? If one limb is paralysed, then even with the other limbs whole, not much can be done with that body — know this for certain."

Disciple: Sir, there is such a diversity of religions and ideas among the people of this country that it is a difficult affair to bring harmony among them.

Swamiji (in anger): If you think any work difficult, then do not come here. Through the grace of God all paths become easy. Your work is to serve the poor and miserable, without any distinction of caste or colour, and you have no need to think about the results. Your duty is to go on working, and then everything will follow of itself. My method of work is to construct and not to pull down. Read the history of the world, and you will find that a great soul stood as the central figure in a certain period of a country. Animated by his ideas, hundreds of people did good to the world. You are all intelligent boys, and have been coming here for a long time. Say, what have you done? Couldn't you give one life for the service of others? In the next life you may read Vedanta and other philosophies. Give this life for the service of others, then I shall know that your coming here has not been in vain.

Saying these words, Swamiji sat silent, wrapt in deep thought. After some time, he added, "After so much austerity, I have understood this as the real truth — God is present in every Jiva; there is no other God besides that. 'Who serves Jiva, serves God indeed'." After some pause Swamiji, addressing the disciple, said, "What I have told you today, inscribe in your heart. See that you do not forget it."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XXV

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The Math, Belur. Year: beginning of 1902.]

It was Saturday, and the disciple came to the Math just before evening. An austere routine was being followed now at the Math regarding spiritual practices. Swamiji had issued an order that all Brahmacharins and Sannyasins should get up very early in the morning and practise Japa and meditation in the worship-room. Swamiji was having little sleep during these days, and would rise from bed at three in the morning.

On the disciple saluting Swamiji just after his appearance at the Math, he said, "Well, see how they are practising religious exercises here nowadays. Everyone passes a considerable time in Japa and meditation on mornings and evenings. Look there — a bell has been procured, which is used for rousing all from sleep. Everyone has to get up before dawn. Shri Ramakrishna used to say, 'In the morning and evening the mind remains highly imbued with Sattva ideas; those are the times when one should meditate with earnestness.'

"After the passing away of Shri Ramakrishna we underwent a lot of religious practice at the Baranagore Math. We used to get up at 3 a.m. and after washing our face etc.— some after bath, and others without it — we would sit in the worship-room and become absorbed in Japa and meditation. What a strong spirit of dispassion we had in those days! We had no thought even as to whether the world existed or not. Ramakrishnananda busied himself day and night with the duties pertaining to Shri Ramakrishna's worship and service, and occupied the same position in the Math as the mistress of the house does in a family. It was he who would procure, mostly by begging, the requisite articles for Shri Ramakrishna's worship and our subsistence. There have been days when the Japa and meditation continued from morning till four or five in the afternoon. Ramakrishnananda waited and waited with our meals ready, till at last he would come and snatch us from our meditation by sheer force. Oh, what a wonderful constancy of devotion we have noticed in him!"

Disciple: Sir, how did you use to meet the Math expenses then?

Swamiji: What a question! Well, we were Sadhus, and what would come by begging and other means, would be utilised for defraying the Math expenses. Today both Suresh Babu (Surendra Nath Mitra) and Balaram Babu are no more; had they been alive they would have been exceedingly glad to see this Math. You have doubtless heard Suresh Babu's name. It was he who used to bear all the expenses of the Baranagore Math. It was this Suresh Mitra who used to think most for us in those days. His devotion and faith have no parallel!

Disciple; Sir, I have heard that you did not see him very often while he was dying.

Swamiji: We could only do so if we were allowed (by his relatives). Well, it is a long tale. But know this for certain that among worldly people it is of little count to your relatives and kinsmen whether you live or die. If you succeed in leaving some property, you will find even in your lifetime that there has been set up a brawl over it in your household. You will have no one to console you in your death-bed — not even your wife and sons! Such is the way of the world!

Referring to the past condition of the Math, Swamiji went on, "Owing to want of funds I would sometimes fight for abolishing the Math altogether. But I could never induce Ramakrishnananda to accede to the proposal. Know Ramakrishnananda to be the central figure of the Math. There have been days when the Math was without a grain of food. If some rice was collected by begging, there was no salt to take it with! On some days there would be only rice and salt, but nobody cared for it in the least. We were then being carried away by a tidal wave of spiritual practice. Boiled Bimba leaves, rice, and salt — this was the menu for a month at a stretch. Oh, those wonderful days! The austerities of that period were enough to dismay supernatural beings, not to speak of men. But it is a tremendous truth that if there be real worth in you, the more are circumstances against you, the more will that inner power manifest itself. But the reason why I have provided for beds and a tolerable living in this Math is that the Sannyasins that are enrolling themselves nowadays will not be able to bear so much strain as we did. There was the life of Shri Ramakrishna before us, and that was why we did not care much for privations and hardships. Boys of this generation will not be able to undergo so much hardship. Hence it is that I have provided for some sort of habitation and a bare subsistence for them. If they get just enough food and clothing, the boys will devote themselves to religious practice and will learn to sacrifice their lives for the good of humanity."

Disciple: Sir, outside people say a good deal against this sort of bedding and furniture.

Swamiji: Let them say. Even in jest they will at least once think of this Math. And they say, it is easier to attain liberation through cherishing a hostile spirit. Shri Ramakrishna used to say, "Men should be ignored like worms." Do you mean we have to conduct ourselves according to the chance opinion of others? Pshaw!

Disciple: Sir, you sometimes say, "All are Nârâyanas, the poor and the needy are my Narayanas", and again you say, "Men should be ignored like worms." What do you really mean?

Swamiji: Well, there is not the least doubt that all are Narayanas. But all Narayanas do not criticise the furniture of the Math. I shall go on working for the good of men, without caring in the least for the criticisms of others — it is in this sense that the expression, "Men are to be ignored like worms", has been used. He who has a dogged determination like that shall have everything. Only some may have it sooner, and others a little later, that is all. But one is bound to reach the goal. It is because we had such a determination that we have attained the little that we have. Otherwise, what dire days of privation we have had to pass through! One day, for want of food I fainted in the outer platform of a house on the roadside and quite a shower of rain had passed over my head before I recovered my senses! Another day, I had to do odd jobs in Calcutta for the whole day without food, and had my meal on my return to the Math at ten or eleven in the night. And these were not solitary instances.

Saying these words, Swamiji sat for a while pursuing some trend of thought. Then he resumed:

Real monasticism is not easy to attain. There is no order of life so rigorous as this. If you stumble ever so little, you are hurled down a precipice — and are smashed to pieces. One day I was travelling on foot from Agra to Vrindaban. There was not a farthing with me. I was about a couple of miles from Vrindaban when I found a man smoking on the roadside, and I was seized with a desire to smoke. I said to the man, "Hallo, will you let me have a puff at your Chillum?" He seemed to be hesitating greatly and said, "Sire, I am a sweeper." Well, there was the influence of old Samskaras, and I immediately stepped back and resumed my journey without smoking. I had gone a short distance when the thought occurred to me that I was a Sannyasin, who had renounced caste, family, prestige, and everything — and still I drew back as soon as the man gave himself out as a sweeper, and could not smoke at the Chillum touched by him! The thought made me restless at heart; then I had walked on half a mile. Again I retraced my steps and came to the sweeper whom I found still sitting there. I hastened to tell him, "Do prepare a Chillum of tobacco for me, my dear friend." I paid no heed to his objections and insisted on having it. So the man was compelled to prepare a Chillum for me. Then I gladly had a puff at it and proceeded to Vrindaban. When one has embraced the monastic life, one has to test whether one has gone beyond the prestige of caste and birth, etc. It is so difficult to observe the monastic vow in right earnest! There must not be the slightest divergence between one's words and actions.

Disciple: Sir, you sometimes hold before us the householder's ideal and sometimes the ideal of the Sannyasin. Which one are we to adopt?

Swamiji: Well, go on listening to all. Then stick to that one which appeals to you — grip it hard like a bulldog.

Swamiji came downstairs accompanied by the disciple, while speaking these words, and began to pace to and fro, uttering now and then the name of Shiva or humming a song on the Divine Mother, such as, "Who knows how diversely Thou playest, O Mother, Thou flowing stream of nectar", and so on.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XXVI

[Place: The Math, Belur. Year: 1902.]

The disciple passed the preceding night in Swamiji's room. At 4 a.m. Swamiji roused him and said "Go and knock up the Sadhus and Brahmacharins from sleep with the bell." In pursuance of the order, the disciple rang the bell near the Sadhus who slept. The monastic inmates hastened to go to the worship-room for meditation.

According to Swamiji's instructions, the disciple rang the bell lustily near Swami Brahmananda's bed, which made the latter exclaim, "Good heavens! The Bângâl (Meaning an East Bengal man, used as a term of endearing reproach for the disciple.) has made it too hot for us to stay in the Math!" On the disciple's communicating this to Swamiji, he burst out into a hearty laugh, saying, "Well done!"

Then Swamiji, too, washed his face and entered the chapel accompanied by the disciple.

The Sannyasins — Swami Brahmananda and others — were already seated for meditation. A separate seat was kept for Swamiji, on which he sat facing the east, and pointing to a seat in front to the disciple, said, "Go and meditate, sitting there."

Shortly after taking his seat, Swamiji became perfectly calm and motionless, like a statue, and his breathing became very slow. Everyone else kept his seat.

After about an hour and a half, Swamiji rose from meditation with the words "Shiva, Shiva". His eyes were flushed, the expression placid, calm, and grave. Bowing before Shri Ramakrishna he came downstairs and paced the courtyard of the Math. After a while he said to the disciple. "Do you see how the Sadhus are practising meditation etc. nowadays? When the meditation is deep, one sees many wonderful things. While meditating at the Baranagore Math, one day I saw the nerves Idâ and Pingalâ. One can see them with a little effort. Then, when one has a vision of the Shushumnâ, one can see anything one likes. If a man has unflinching devotion to the Guru, spiritual practices — meditation, Japa, and so forth — come quite naturally; one need not struggle for them. "The Guru is Brahmâ, the Guru is Vishnu, and the Guru is Shiva Himself."

Then the disciple prepared tobacco for Swamiji and when he returned with it, Swamiji spoke as he puffed at it, "Within there is the lion — the eternally pure, illumined, and ever free Atman; and directly one realises Him through meditation and concentration, this world of Maya vanishes. He is equally present in all; and the more one practises, the quicker does the Kundalini (the 'coiled-up' power) awaken in him. When this power reaches the head, one's vision is unobstructed — one realises the Atman."

Disciple: Sir, I have only read of these things in the scriptures, but nothing has been realised as yet.

Swamiji: कालेनात्मनि विन्दति — is bound to come in time. But some attain this early, and others are a little late. One must stick to it — determined never to let it go. This is true manliness. You must keep the mind fixed on one object, like an unbroken stream of oil. The ordinary man's mind is scattered on different objects, and at the time of meditation, too, the mind is at first apt to wander. But let any desire whatever arise in the mind, you must sit calmly and watch what sort of ideas are coming. By continuing to watch in that way, the mind becomes calm, and there are no more thought-waves in it. These waves represent the thought-activity of the mind. Those things that you have previously thought deeply, have transformed themselves into a subconscious current, and therefore these come up in the mind in meditation. The rise of these waves, or thoughts, during meditation is an evidence that your mind is tending towards concentration. Sometimes the mind is concentrated on a set of ideas — this is called meditation with Vikalpa or oscillation. But when the mind becomes almost free from all activities, it melts in the inner Self, which is the essence of infinite Knowledge, One, and Itself Its own support. This is what is called Nirvikalpa Samâdhi, free from all activities. In Shri Ramakrishna we have again and again noticed both these forms of Samadhi. He had not to struggle to get these states. They came to him spontaneously, then and there. It was a wonderful phenomenon. It was by seeing him that we could rightly understand these things. Meditate every day alone. Everything will open up of itself. Now the Divine Mother — the embodiment of illumination — is sleeping within, hence you do not understand this. She is the Kundalini. When, before meditating, you proceed to "purify the nerves", you must mentally strike hard on the Kundalini in the Mulâdhâra (sacral plexus), and repeat, "Arise, Mother, arise!" One must practise these slowly. During meditation, suppress the emotional side altogether. This is a great source of danger. Those that are very emotional no doubt have their Kundalini rushing quickly upwards, but it is as quick to come down as to go up. And when it does come down, it leaves the devotee in a state of utter ruin. It is for this reason that Kirtanas and other auxiliaries to emotional development have a great drawback. It is true that by dancing and jumping, etc. through a momentary impulse, that power is made to course upwards, but it is never enduring. On the contrary when it traces back its course, it rouses violent lust in the individual. Listening to my lectures in America, through temporary excitement many among the audience used to get into an ecstatic state, and some would even become motionless like statues. But on inquiry I afterwards found that many of them had an excess of the carnal instinct immediately after that state. But this happens simply owing to a lack of steady practice in meditation and concentration.

Disciple: Sir, in no scriptures have I ever read these secrets of spiritual practice. Today I have heard quite new things.

Swamiji: Do you think the scriptures contain all the secrets of spiritual practice? These are being handed down secretly through a succession of Gurus and disciples. Practise meditation and concentration with the utmost care. Place fragrant flowers in front and burn incense. At the outset take such external help as will make the mind pure. As you repeat the name of your Guru and Ishta, say, "Peace be to all creatures and the universe!" First send impulses of these good wishes to the north, south, east, west, above, below — in all directions, and then sit down to meditate. One has to do this during the early stages. Then sitting still (you may face in any direction), meditate in the way I have taught you while initiating. Don't leave out a single day. If you have too much pressing work, go through the spiritual exercises for at least a quarter of an hour. Can you reach the goal without steadfast devotion, my son?

Now Swamiji went upstairs, and as he did so, he said, "You people will have your spiritual insight opened without much trouble. Now that you have chanced to come here, you have liberation and all under your thumb. Besides practising meditation, etc., set yourselves heart and soul to remove to a certain extent the miseries of the world, so full of wails. Through hard austerities I have almost ruined this body. There is hardly any energy left in this pack of bones and flesh. You set yourselves to work now, and let me rest a while. If you fail to do anything else, well, you can tell the world at large about the scriptural truths you have studied so long. There is no higher gift than this, for the gift of knowledge is the highest gift in the world."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XXVII

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: The Math, Belur. Year: 1902.]

Swamiji was now staying at the Math. The disciple came to the Math and towards the evening accompanied Swamiji and Swami Premananda for a walk. Finding Swamiji absorbed in thought, the disciple entered into a conversation with Swami Premananda on what Shri Ramakrishna used to say of Swamiji's greatness. After walking some distance Swamiji turned to go back to the Math. Seeing Swami Premananda and the disciple near by, he said, "Well, what were you talking?" The disciple said, "We were talking about Shri Ramakrishna and his words." Swamiji only heard the reply, but again lapsed into thought and walking along the road returned to the Math. He sat on the camp-cot placed under the mango-tree and, resting there some time, washed his face and then, pacing the upper verandah, spoke to the disciple thus: "Why do you not set about propagating Vedanta in your part of the country? There Tântrikism prevails to a fearful extent. Rouse and agitate the country with the lion-roar of Advaitavâda (monism). Then I shall know you to be a Vedantist. First open a Sanskrit school there and teach the Upanishads and the Brahma-Sutras. Teach the boys the system of Brahmacharya. I have heard that in your country there is much logic-chopping of the Nyâya school. What is there in it? Only Vyâpti (pervasiveness) and Anumâna (inference) — on these subjects the Pandits of the Nyaya school discuss for months! What does it help towards the Knowledge of the Atman? Either in your village or Nag Mahashaya's, open a Chatushpâthi (indigenous school) in which the scriptures will be studied and also the life and teachings of Shri Ramakrishna. In this way you will advance your own good as well as the good of the people, and your fame will endure.

Disciple: Sir, I cherish no desire for name or fame. Only, sometimes I feel to do as you are saying. But by marriage I have got so entangled in the world that I fear my desire will always remain in the mind only.

Swamiji: What if you have married? As you are maintaining your parents and brothers with food and clothing, so do for your wife likewise; and by giving her religious instruction draw her to your path. Think her to be a partner and helper in the living of your religious life. At other times look upon her with an even eye with others. Thinking thus all the unsteadiness of the mind will die out. What fear?

The disciple felt assured by these words. After his meal, Swamiji sat on his own bed, and the disciple had an opportunity of doing some personal service for him.

Swamiji began to speak to the disciple, enjoining him to be reverential to the Math members: "These children of Shri Ramakrishna whom you see, are wonderful Tyâgis (selfless souls), and by service to them you will attain to the purification of mind and be blessed with the vision of the Atman. You remember the words of the Gita: 'By interrogation and service to the great soul'. Therefore you must serve them, by which you will attain your goal; and you know how much they love you."

Disciple: But I find it very difficult to understand them. Each one seems to be of a different type.

Swamiji: Shri Ramakrishna was a wonderful gardener. Therefore he has made a bouquet of different flowers and formed his Order. All different types and ideas have come into it, and many more will come. Shri Ramakrishna used to say, "Whoever has prayed to God sincerely for one day, must come here." Know each of those who are here to be of great spiritual power. Because they remain shrivelled before me, do not think them to be ordinary souls. When they will go out, they will be the cause of the awakening of spirituality in people. Know them to be part of the spiritual body of Shri Ramakrishna, who was the embodiment of infinite religious ideas. I look upon them with that eye. See, for instance, Brahmananda, who is here — even I have not the spirituality which he has. Shri Ramakrishna looked upon him as his mind-born son; and he lived and walked, ate and slept with him. He is the ornament of our Math — our king. Similarly Premananda, Turiyananda, Trigunatitananda, Akhandananda, Saradananda, Ramakrishnananda, Subodhananda, and others; you may go round the world, but it is doubtful if you will find men of such spirituality and faith in God like them. They are each a centre of religious power, and in time that power will manifest.

The disciple listened in wonder, and Swamiji said again: "But from your part of the country, except Nag Mahashaya none came to Shri Ramakrishna. A few others who saw Shri Ramakrishna could not appreciate him." At the thought of Nag Mahashaya, Swamiji kept silent for some time. It was only four or five months since he had passed away. Swamiji had heard that on one occasion a spring of Ganga water rose in the house of Nag Mahashaya, and recollecting this he asked the disciple, "Well, how did that event take place? Tell me about it."

Disciple: I only heard about it, but did not see it with my own eyes. I heard that in a Mahâvâruni Yoga Nag Mahashaya started with his father for Calcutta. But not getting any accommodation in the railway train he stayed for three or four days in Narayangunge in vain and returned home. Then Nag Mahashaya said to his father, "If the mind is pure, then the Mother Ganga will appear here." Then at the auspicious hour of the holy bath, a jet of water rose, piercing the ground of his courtyard. Many of those who saw it are living today. But that was many years before I met him.

Swamiji: There was nothing strange in it. He was a saint of unfalsified determination. I do not consider such a phenomenon at all strange in his case.

Saying this, Swamiji, feeling sleepy, lay on his side. At this the disciple came down to take his supper.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XXVIII

(Translated from Bengali)

[Place: From Calcutta to the Math on a boat. Year: 1902.]

While walking on the banks of the Ganga at Calcutta one afternoon, the disciple saw a Sannyasin in the distance approaching towards Ahiritola Ghat. While he came near, the disciple found the Sannyasin to be no other than his Guru, Swami Vivekananda. In his left hand he had a leaf receptacle containing fried gram, which he was eating like a boy, and was walking in great joy. When he stood before him, the disciple fell at his feet and asked the reason for his coming to Calcutta unexpectedly.

Swamiji: I came on business. Come, will you go to the Math? Eat a little of the fried gram. It has a nice saline and pungent taste.

The disciple took the food with gladness and agreed to go to the Math with him.

Swamiji: Then look for a boat.

The disciple hurried to hire a boat. He was settling the amount of the boat-hire with the boatman, who demanded eight annas, when Swamiji also appeared on the scene and stopped the disciple saying, "Why are you higgling with them?" and said to the boatman, "Very well, I will give you eight annas", and got into the boat. That boat proceeded slowly against the current and took nearly an hour and half to reach the Math. Being alone with Swamiji in the boat, the disciple had an opportunity of asking him freely about all subjects. Raising the topic of the glorificatory poem which the disciple had recently composed singing the greatness of the devotees of Shri Ramakrishna, Swamiji asked him, "How do you know that those whom you have named in your hymn are the near and intimate disciples of Shri Ramakrishna?"

Disciple: Sir, I have associated with the Sannyasin and householder disciples of Shri Ramakrishna for so many years; I have heard from them that they are all devotees of Shri Ramakrishna.

Swamiji: Yes, they are devotees of Shri Ramakrishna. But all devotees do not belong to the group of his most intimate and nearest disciples. Staying in the Cossipore Garden, Shri Ramakrishna said to us, "The Divine Mother showed me that all of these are not my inner devotees." Shri Ramakrishna said so that day with respect to both his men and women devotees.

Then speaking of the way Shri Ramakrishna would indicate different grades among devotees, high and low, Swamiji began to explain to the disciple at length the great difference there is between the householder's and the Sannyasin's life.

Swamiji: Is it possible that one would serve the path of lust and wealth and understand Shri Ramakrishna aright at the same time? Or will it ever be possible? Never put your faith in such words. Many among the devotees of Shri Ramakrishna are now proclaiming themselves as Ishvara-koti (of Divine class), Antaranga (of inner circle), etc. They could not imbibe his great renunciation or dispassion, yet they say they are his intimate devotees! Sweep away all such words. He was a prince of Tyagis (self-renouncers), and obtaining his grace can anybody spend his life in the enjoyment of lust and wealth?

Disciple: Is it then, sir, that those who came to him at Dakshineswar were not his devotees?

Swamiji: Who says that? Everybody who has gone to Shri Ramakrishna has advanced in spirituality, is advancing, and will advance. Shri Ramakrishna used to say that the perfected Rishis of a previous Kalpa (cycle) take human bodies and come on earth with the Avatars. They are the associates of the Lord. God works through them and propagates His religion. Know this for a truth that they alone are the associates of the Avatara who have renounced all self for the sake of others, who, giving up all sense-enjoyments with repugnance, spend their lives for the good of the world, for the welfare of the Jivas. The disciples of Jesus were all Sannyasins. The direct recipients of the grace of Shankara, Ramanuja, Shri Chaitanya and Buddha were the all-renouncing Sannyasins. It is men of this stamp who have been through succession of disciples spreading the Brahma-vidyâ (knowledge of Brahman) in the world. Where and when have you heard that a man being the slave of lust and wealth has been able to liberate another or to show the path of God to him? Without himself free, how can he make others free? In Veda, Vedanta, Itihâsa (history), Purâna (ancient tradition), you will find everywhere that the Sannyasins have been the teachers of religion in all ages and climes. History repeats itself. It will also be likewise now. The capable Sannyasin children of Shri Ramakrishna, the teacher of the great synthesis of religions, will be honoured everywhere as the teachers of men. The words of others will dissipate in the air like an empty sound. The real self-sacrificing Sannyasins of the Math will be the centre of the preservation and spread of religious ideas. Do you understand?

Disciple: Then is it not true — what the householder devotees of Shri Ramakrishna are preaching about him in diverse ways?

Swamiji: It can't be said that they are altogether false; but what they are saying about Shri Ramakrishna is only partial truth. According to one's own capacity, one has understood Shri Ramakrishna and so is discussing about him. It is not bad either to do so. But if any of his devotees has concluded that what he has understood of him is the only truth, then he is an object of pity. Some are saying that Shri Ramakrishna was a Tantrika and Kaula, some that he was Shri Chaitanya born on earth to preach "Nâradiya Bhakti" (Bhakti as taught by Nâradâ); some again that to undertake spiritual practices is opposed to faith in him as an Avatara while some are opining that it is not agreeable to his teachings to take to Sannyasa. You will hear such words from the householder devotees, but do not listen to such one-sided estimates. He was the concentrated embodiment of how many previous Avatars! Even spending the whole life in religious austerity, we could not understand it. Therefore one has to speak about him with caution and restraint. As are one's capacities, so he fills one with spiritual ideas. One spray from the full ocean of his spirituality, if realised, will make gods of men. Such a synthesis of universal ideas you will not find in the history of the world again. Understand from this who was born in the person of Shri Ramakrishna. When he used to instruct his Sannyasin disciples, he would rise from his seat and look about to see if any householder was coming that way or not. If he found none, then in glowing words he would depict the glory of renunciation and austerity. As a result of the rousing power of that fiery dispassion, we have renounced the world and become averse to worldliness.

Disciple: He used to make such distinctions between householders and Sannyasins!

Swamiji: Ask and learn from the householder devotees themselves about it. And you yourself can think and know which are greater — those of his children who for the realisation of God have renounced all enjoyments of the worldly life and are spending themselves in the practice of austerities on hills and forests, Tirthas and Ashramas (holy places and hermitages), or those who are praising and glorifying his name and practising his remembrance, but are not able to rise above the delusion and bondage of the world? Which are greater — those who are coming forward in the service of humanity, regarding them as the Atman, those who are continent since early age, who are the moving embodiments of renunciation and dispassion, or those who like flies are at one time sitting on a flower, and at the next moment on a dung heap? You can yourself think and come to a conclusion.

Disciple: But, sir, what does the world really mean to those who have obtained his grace? Whether they remain in the householder's life or take to Sannyasa, it is immaterial — so it appears to me.

Swamiji: The mind of those who have truly received his grace cannot be attached to worldliness. The test of his grace is unattachment to lust or wealth. If that has not come in anyone's life, then he has not truly received his grace.

When the above discussion ended thus, the disciple raising another topic, asked Swamiji, "Sir, what is the outcome of all your labours here and in foreign countries?"

Swamiji: You will see only a little manifestation of what has been done. In time the whole world must accept the universal and catholic ideas of Shri Ramakrishna and of this, only the beginning has been made. Before this flood everybody will be swept off.

Disciple: Please tell me more about Shri Ramakrishna. I like very much to hear of him from your lips.

Swamiji: You are hearing so much about him all the time, what more? He himself is his own parallel. Has he any exemplar?

Disciple: What is the way for us who have not seen him?

Swamiji: You have been blessed with the company of these Sadhus who are the direct recipients of his grace. How then can you say you have not seen him? He is present among his Sannyasin disciples. By service to them, he will in time be revealed in your heart. In time you will realise everything.

Disciple: But, sir, you speak about others who have received his grace, but never about what he used to say about yourself.

Swamiji: What shall I say about myself? You see, I must be one of his demons. In his presence even, I would sometimes speak ill of him, hearing which he would laugh.

Saying thus Swamiji's face assumed a grave aspect, and he looked towards the river with an absent mind and sat still for some time. Within a short time the evening fell and the boat also reached the Math. Swamiji was then humming a tune to himself, "Now in the evening of life, take the child back to his home."

When the song was finished, Swamiji said, "In your part of the country (East Bengal) sweet-voiced singers are not born. Without drinking the water of mother Ganga, a sweet, musical voice is not acquired."

After paying the hire, Swamiji descended from the boat and taking off his coat sat in the western verandah of the Math. His fair complexion and ochre robe presented a beautiful sight.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

(From the Diary of a Disciple (Shri Sharat Chandra Chakravarty, B.A.))

XXIX

[Place: Belur Math. Year: 1902.]

Today is the first of Âshârh (June-July). The disciple has come to the Math before dusk from Bally, with his office-dress on, as he has not found time to change it. Coming to the Math, he prostrated himself at the feet of Swamiji and inquired about his health. Swamiji replied that he was well, but looking at his dress, he said, "You put on coat and trousers, why don't you put on collars?" Saying this, he called Swami Saradananda who was near and said, "Give him tomorrow two collars from my stock." Swami Saradananda bowed assent to his order.

The disciple then changed his office-dress and came to Swamiji, who, addressing him, said, "By giving up one's national costume and ways of eating and living, one gets denationalised. One can learn from all, but that learning which leads to denationalisation does not help one's uplift but becomes the cause of degradation."

Disciple: Sir, one cannot do without putting on dress approved by superior European officers in official quarters.

Swamiji: No one prevents that. In the interests of your service, you put on official dress in official quarters. But on returning home you should be a regular Bengali Babu — with flowing cloth, a native shirt, and with the Chudder on the shoulder. Do you understand?

Disciple: Yes, sir.

Swamiji: You go about from house to house only with the European shirt on. In the West, to go about visiting people with simply the shirt on is ungentlemanly — one is considered naked. Without putting on a coat over the shirt, you will not be welcomed in a gentleman's house. What nonsense have you learnt to imitate in the matter of dress! Boys and young men nowadays adopt a peculiar manner of dress which is neither Indian nor Western, but a queer combination.

After such talk Swamiji began to pace the bank of the river, and the disciple was alone with him. He was hesitating to ask Swamiji a question about religious practices.

Swamiji: What are you thinking? Out with it.

The disciple with great delicacy said, "Sir, I have been thinking that if you can teach me some method by which the mind becomes calm within a short time, by which I may be immersed in meditation quickly, I shall feel much benefited. In the round of worldly duties, I feel it difficult to make the mind steady in meditation at the time of spiritual practice."

Swamiji seemed delighted at this humility and earnestness of the disciple. In reply he affectionately said, "After some time come to me when I am alone upstairs, I will talk to you about it."

Coming up shortly after, the disciple found that Swamiji was sitting in meditation, facing the west. His face wore a wonderful expression, and his whole body was completely motionless. The disciple stood by, looking with speechless wonder on the figure of Swamiji in meditation, and when even after standing long he found no sign of external consciousness in Swamiji, he sat noiselessly by. After half an hour, Swamiji seemed to show signs of a return to external consciousness. The disciple found that his folded hands began to quiver, and a few minutes later Swamiji opened his eyes and looking at the disciple said, "When did you come?"

Disciple: A short while ago.

Swamiji: Very well, get me a glass of water.

The disciple hurriedly brought a glass of water and Swamiji drinking a little, asked the disciple to put the glass back in its proper place. The disciple did so and again sat by Swamiji.

Swamiji: Today I had a very deep meditation.

Disciple: Sir, please teach me so that my mind also may get absorbed in meditation.

Swamiji: I have already told you all the methods. Meditate every day accordingly, and in the fulness of time you will feel like that. Now tell me what form of Sadhana appeals to you most.

Disciple: Sir, I practise every day as you have told me, still I don't get a deep meditation. Sometimes I think it is useless for me to practise meditation. So I feel that I shall not fare well in it, and therefore now desire only eternal companionship with you.

Swamiji: Those are weaknesses of the mind. Always try to get absorbed in the eternally present Atman. If you once get the vision of the Atman, you will get everything — the bonds of birth and death will be broken.

Disciple: You bless me to attain to it. You asked me, still I don't get a deep meditation. By some means, do please make my mind steady.

Swamiji: Meditate whenever you get time. If the mind once enters the path of Sushumna, everything will get right. You will not have to do much after that.

Disciple: You encourage me in many ways. But shall I be blessed with a vision of the Truth? Shall I get freedom by attaining true knowledge?

Swamiji: Yes, of course. Everybody will attain Mukti, from a worm up to Brahmâ, and shall you alone fail? These are weaknesses of the mind; never think of such things.

After this, he said again: "Be possessed of Shraddhâ (faith), of Virya (courage), attain to the knowledge of the Atman, and sacrifice your life for the good of others — this is my wish and blessing."

The bell for the meal ringing at this moment, Swamiji asked the disciple to go and partake of it. The disciple, prostrating himself at the feet of Swamiji, prayed for his blessings. Swamiji putting his hand on his head blessed him and said, "If my blessings be of any good to you, I say — may Bhagavân Shri Ramakrishna give you his grace! I know of no blessing higher than this." After meals, the disciple did not go upstairs to Swamiji, who had retired early that night. Next morning the disciple, having to return to Calcutta in the interests of his business appeared before Swamiji upstairs.

Swamiji: Will you go immediately?

Disciple: Yes, sir.

Swamiji: Come again next Sunday, won't you?

Disciple: Yes, certainly.

Swamiji: All right, there is a boat coming.

The disciple took leave of Swamiji. He did not know that this was to be his last meeting with his Ishtadeva (chosen Ideal) in the physical body. Swamiji with a glad heart bade him farewell and said, "Come on Sunday." The disciple replied, "Yes, I will," and got downstairs.

The boatmen were calling for him, so he ran for the boat. Boarding it, he saw Swamiji pacing the upper verandah, and saluting him he entered the boat.

Seven days after this, Swamiji passed away from mortal life. The disciple had no knowledge of the impending catastrophe. Getting the news on the second day of Swamiji's passing away, he came to the Math, and therefore he had not the good fortune to see his physical form again!

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

XXX

(Translated from Bengali)

[Shri Priya Nath Sinha]

We evince a sad lack of restraint in conversation or any conjoint action such as music and so on. Everyone tries to put himself foremost. The jostling at railway or steamer station is another illustration of his. A friend of Swamiji had a talk with him one day at the Math on this subject. Swamiji remarked, "You see, we have an old adage: 'If your son is not inclined to study, put him in the Durbars (Sâbha).' The word Sabha here does not mean social meetings, such as take place occasionally at people's houses — it means royal Durbars. In the days of the independent kings of Bengal, they used to hold their courts mornings and evenings. There all the affairs of the State were discussed in the morning — and as there were no newspapers at that time, the king used to converse with the leading gentry of the capital and gather from them all information regarding the people and the State. These gentlemen had to attend these meetings, for if they did not do so, the king would inquire into the reason of their non-attendance. Such Durbars were the centres of culture in every country and not merely in ours. In the present day, the western parts of India, especially Rajputana, are much better off in this respect than Bengal, as something similar to these old Durbars still obtains there."

Q. — Then, Maharaj, have our people lost their own good manners because we have no kings of our own?

Swamiji: It is all a degeneration which has its root in selfishness. That in boarding a steamer one follows the vulgar maxim, "Uncle, save thy own precious skin", and in music and moments of recreation everyone tries to make a display of himself, is a typical picture of our mental state. Only a little training in self-sacrifice would take it away. It is the fault of the parents who do not teach their children good manners. Self-sacrifice, indeed, is the basis of all civilisation.

On the other hand, owing to the undue domination exercised by the parents, our boys do not get free scope for growth. The parents consider singing as improper. But the son, when he hears a fine piece of music, at once sets his whole mind on how to learn it, and naturally he must look out for an Âddâ. (Something like a club. The word has got a bad odour about it in Bengali.) Then again, "It is a sin to smoke!" So what else can the young man do than mix with the servants of the house, to indulge in this habit in secret? In everyone there are infinite tendencies, which require proper scope for satisfaction. But in our country that is not allowed; and to bring about a different order of things would require a fresh training of the parents. Such is the condition! What a pity! We have not yet developed a high grade of civilisation; and in spite of this, our educated Babus want the British to hand over the government to them to manage! It makes me laugh and cry as well. Well, where is that martial spirit which, at the very outset, requires one to know how to serve and obey and to practise self-restraint! The martial spirit is not self-assertion but self-sacrifice. One must be ready to advance and lay down one's life at the word of command, before he can command the hearts and lives of others. One must sacrifice himself first.

A devotee of Shri Ramakrishna once passed some severe remarks, in a book written by him, against those who did not believe in Shri Ramakrishna as an Incarnation of God. Swamiji summoned the writer to his presence and addressed him thus in a spirited manner:

What right had you to write like that, abusing others? What matters it if they do not believe in your Lord? Have we created a sect? Are we Ramakrishnites, that we should look upon anyone who will not worship him, as our enemy? By your bigotry you have only lowered him, and made him small. If your Lord is God Himself, then you ought to know that in whatsoever name one is calling upon him, it is his worship only — and who are you to abuse others? Do you think they will hear you if you inveigh against them? How foolish! You can only win others' hearts when you have sacrificed yourself to them, otherwise why should they hear you?

Regaining his natural composure after a short while, Swamiji spoke in a sorrowful tone:

Can anyone, my dear friend, have faith or resignation in the Lord, unless he himself is a hero? Never can hatred and malice vanish from one's heart unless one becomes a hero, and unless one is free from these, how can one become truly civilised? Where in this country is that sturdy manliness, that spirit of heroism? Alas, nowhere. Often have I looked for that, and I found only one instance of it, and only one.

Q. — In whom have you found it, Swamiji?

Swamiji: In G. C. (Babu Girish Chandra Ghosh.) alone I have seen that true resignation — that true spirit of a servant of the Lord. And was it not because he was ever ready to sacrifice himself that Shri Ramakrishna took upon himself all his responsibility? What a unique spirit of resignation to the Lord! I have not met his parallel. From him have I learnt the lesson of self-surrender.

So saying, Swamiji raised his folded hands to his head out of respect to him.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

XXXI

(Translated from Bengali)

[Shri Priya Nath Sinha]

Arrangements were being made for Swamiji's leaving India for America for the second time (1899 A.D.). He had gone to Calcutta to see one of his friends, and returning from there stopped for a few minutes at Balaram Babu's house at Baghbazar. He then sent for another friend to accompany him to the Math. The friend came, and the following conversation took place between him and Swamiji:

Swamiji: A very funny thing happened today. I went to a friend's house. He has had a picture painted, the subject of which is "Shri Krishna addressing Arjuna on the battlefield of Kurukshetra". Shri Krishna stands on the chariot, holding the reins in His hand and preaching the Gita to Arjuna. He showed me the picture and asked me how I liked it. "Fairly well", I said. But as he insisted on having my criticism on it, I had to give my honest opinion by saying, "There is nothing in it to commend itself to me; first, because the chariot of the time of Shri Krishna was not like the modern pagoda-shaped car, and also, there is no expression in the figure of Shri Krishna."

Q. — Was not the pagoda-chariot in use then?

Swamiji: Don't you know that since the Buddhistic era, there has been a great confusion in everything in our country? The kings never used to fight in pagoda-chariots. There are chariots even today in Rajputana that greatly resemble the chariots of old. Have you seen the chariots in the pictures of Grecian mythology? They have two wheels, and one mounts them from behind; we had that sort of chariot. What good is it to paint a picture if the details are wrong? An historical picture comes up to a standard of excellence when after making proper study and research, things are portrayed exactly as they were at that period. The truth must be represented, otherwise the picture is nothing. In these days, our young men who go in for painting are generally those who were unsuccessful at school, and who have been given up at home as good-for-nothing; what work of art can you expect from them? To paint a really good picture requires as much talent as to produce a perfect drama.

Q. — How then should Shri Krishna be represented in the picture in question?

Swamiji: Shri Krishna ought to be painted as He really was, the Gita personified; and the central idea of the Gita should radiate from His whole form as He was teaching the path of Dharma to Arjuna, who had been overcome by infatuation and cowardice.

So saying Swamiji posed himself in the way in which Shri Krishna should be portrayed, and continued: "Look here, thus does he hold the bridle of the horses — so tight that they are brought to their haunches, with their forelegs fighting the air, and their mouths gaping. This will show a tremendous play of action in the figure of Shri Krishna. His friend, the world-renowned hero, casting aside his bow and arrows, has sunk down like a coward on the chariot, in the midst of the two armies. And Shri Krishna, whip in one hand and tightening the reins with the other, has turned Himself towards Arjuna, with his childlike face beaming with unworldly love and sympathy, and a calm and serene look — and is delivering the message of the Gita to his beloved comrade. Now, tell me what idea this picture of the Preacher of the Gita conveys to you."

The friend: Activity combined with firmness and serenity.

Swamiji: Ay, that's it! Intense action in the whole body, and withal a face expressing the profound calmness and serenity of the blue sky. This is the central idea of the Gita — to be calm and steadfast in all circumstances, with one's body, mind, and soul centred at His hallowed Feet!

कर्मण्यकर्म यः पश्येदकर्मणि च कर्म यः ।
स बुद्धिमान्मनुष्येषु स युक्तः कृत्स्नकर्मकृत् ॥(Gita IV.18).

He who even while doing action can keep his mind calm, and in whom, even when not doing any outward action, flows the current of activity in the form of the contemplation of Brahman, is the intelligent one among men, he indeed is the Yogi, he indeed is the perfect worker.

At this moment, the man who had been sent to arrange a boat returned and said that it was ready; so Swamiji told his friend, "Now let us go to the Math. You must have left word at home that you were going there with me?"

They continued their talk as they walked to the boat.

Swamiji: This idea must be preached to everyone — work, work, endless work — without looking at results, and always keeping the whole mind and soul steadfast at the lotus feet of the Lord!

Q. — But is this not Karma-Yoga?

Swamiji: Yes, this is Karma-Yoga; but without spiritual practices you will never be able to do this Karma-Yoga. You must harmonise the four different Yogas; otherwise how can you always keep your mind and heart wholly on the Lord?

Q. — It is generally said that work according to the Gita means the performance of Vedic sacrifices and religious exercises; any other kind of work is futile.

Swamiji: All right; but you must make it more comprehensive. Who is responsible for every action you do, every breath you take, and every thought you think? Isn't it you yourself?

The friend: Yes and no. I cannot solve this clearly. The truth about it is that man is the instrument and the Lord is the agent. So when I am directed by His will, I am not at all responsible for my actions.

Swamiji: Well, that can be said only in the highest state of realisation. When the mind will be purified by work and you will see that it is He who is causing all to work, then only you will have a right to speak like that. Otherwise it is all bosh, a mere cant.

Q. — Why so, if one is truly convinced by reasoning that the Lord alone is causing all actions to be done?

Swamiji: It may hold good when one has been so convinced. But it only lasts for that moment, and not a whit afterwards. Well, consider this thoroughly, whether all that you do in your everyday life, you are not doing with an egoistic idea that you yourself are the agent. How long do you remember that it is the Lord who is making you work? But then, by repeatedly analysing like that, you will come to a state when the ego will vanish and in its place the Lord will come in. Then you will be able to say with justice "Thou, Lord, art guarding all my actions from within." But, my friend, if the ego occupies all the space within your heart, where forsooth will there be room enough for the Lord to come in? The Lord is verily absent!

Q. — But it is He who is giving me the wicked impulse?

Swamiji: No, by no means. It would be blaspheming the Lord to think in that way. He is not inciting you to evil action, it is all the creation of your desire for self-gratification. If one says the Lord is causing everything to be done, and wilfully persists in wrong-doing, it only brings ruin on him. That is the origin of self-deception. Don't you feel an elation after you have done a good deed? You then give yourself the credit of doing something good — you can't help it, it is very human. But how absurd to take the credit of doing the good act on oneself and lay the blame for the evil act on the Lord! It is a most dangerous idea — the effect of ill-digested Gita and Vedanta. Never hold that view. Rather say that He is causing the good work to be done while you are responsible for the evil action. That will bring on devotion and faith, and you will see His grace manifested at every step. The truth about it is that no one has created you — you have created yourself. This is discrimination, this is Vedanta. But one does not understand it before realisation. Therefore the aspirant should begin with the dualistic standpoint, that the Lord is causing the good actions, while he is doing the evil. This is the easiest way to the purification of the mind. Hence you find dualism so strong among the Vaishnavas. It is very difficult to entertain Advaitic (non-dualistic) ideas at the outset. But the dualistic standpoint gradually leads to the realisation of the Advaita.

Hypocrisy is always a dangerous thing. If there is no wilful self-deception, that is to say, if one sincerely believes that the most wicked impulse is also prompted by the Lord, rest assured that one will not have to do those mean acts for long. All the impurities of the mind are quickly destroyed. Our ancient scriptural writers understood this well. And I think that the Tantrika form of worship originated from the time that Buddhism began to decline and, through the oppression of the Buddhists, people began to perform their Vedic sacrifices in secret. They had no more opportunity to conduct them for two months at a stretch, so they made clay images, worshipped them, and consigned them to the water — finishing everything in one night, without leaving the least trace! Man longs for a concrete symbol, otherwise his heart is not satisfied. So in every home that one-night sacrifice began to take place. As Shri Ramakrishna used to say, "Some enter the house by the scavenger's entrance", so the spiritual teachers of that time saw that those who could not perform any religious rite owing to their evil propensities, also needed some way of coming round by degrees to the path of virtue. For them those queer Tantrika rites came to be invented.

Q. — They went on doing evil actions thinking them to be good. So how could this remove their evil tendencies?

Swamiji: Why, they gave a different direction to their propensities; they did them, but with the object of realising the Lord.

Q. — Can this really be done?

Swamiji: It comes to the same thing. The motive must be right. And what should prevent them from succeeding?

Q. — But many are caught in the temptation for wine, meat, etc. in trying to get along with such means.

Swamiji: It was therefore that Shri Ramakrishna came. The days of practising the Tantra in that fashion are gone. He, too, practised the Tantra, but not in that way. Where there is the injunction of drinking wine, he would simply touch his forehead with a drop of it. The Tantrika form of worship is a very slippery ground. Hence I say that this province has had enough of the Tantra. Now it must go beyond. The Vedas should be studied. A harmony of the four kinds of Yogas must be practised and absolute chastity must be preserved.

Q. — What do you mean by the harmony of the four Yogas?

Swamiji: Discrimination between the real and the unreal, dispassion and devotion, work and practices in concentration, and along with these there must be a reverential attitude towards women.

Q. — How can one look with reverence on women?

Swamiji: Well, they are the representatives of the Divine Mother. And real well-being of India will commence from the day that the worship of the Divine Mother will truly begin, and every man will sacrifice himself at the altar of the Mother. . . .

Q. — Swamiji, in your boyhood, when we asked you to marry, you would reply, "I won't, but you will see what I shall become." You have actually verified your words.

Swamiji: Yes, dear brother, you saw how I was in want of food, and had to work hard besides. Oh, the tremendous labour! Today the Americans out of love have given me this nice bed, and I have something to eat also. But, also, I have not been destined to enjoy physically — and lying on the mattress only aggravates my illness. I feel suffocated, as it were. I have to come down and lie on the floor for relief!

NOTE

Swami Vivekananda left Calcutta for the West, for the second time, on the 20th June, 1899, by the BISN steamship Golconda. In reading these pages the reader should remember that Swamiji wrote them in a light, humorous tone in Bengali, which it is impossible to render in English.

The second section of these memoirs, relates to his return journey from the West at the end of 1900.

These were originally published in the Udbodhan.

ON ART

In art, interest must be centred on the principal theme. Drama is the most difficult of all arts. In it two things are to be satisfied — first, the ears, and second, the eyes. To paint a scene, if one thing be painted, it is easy enough; but to paint different things and yet to keep up the central interest is very difficult. Another difficult thing is stage-management, that is, combining different things in such a manner as to keep the central interest intact.

ON MUSIC

There is science in Dhrupad, Kheyal, etc., but it is in Kirtana, i.e. in Mâthura and Viraha and other like compositions that there is real music — for there is feeling. Feeling is the soul, the secret of everything. There is more music in common people's songs, and they should be collected together. The science of Dhrupad etc., applied to the music of Kirtana will produce the perfect music.

ON MANTRA AND MANTRA-CHAITANYA

The Mantra-Shâstris (upholders of the Mantra theory) believe that some words have been handed down through a succession of teachers and disciples, and the mere utterance of them will lead to some form of realisation. There are two different meanings of the word Mantra-chaitanya. According to some, if you practise the repetition of a certain Mantra, you will see the Ishta-Devatâ who is the object or deity of that Mantra. But according to others, the word means that if you practise the repetition of a certain Mantra received from a Guru not competent, you will have to perform certain ceremonials by which that Mantra will become Chetana or living, and then its repetition will be successful. Different Mantras, when they are thus "living", show different signs, but the general sign is that one will be able to repeat it for a long time without feeling any strain and that his mind will very soon be concentrated. This is about the Tantrika Mantras.

From the time of the Vedas, two different opinions have been held about Mantras. Yâska and others say that the Vedas have meanings, but the ancient Mantra-shastris say that they have no meaning, and that their use consists only in uttering them in connection with certain sacrifices, when they will surely produce effect in the form of various material enjoyments or spiritual knowledge. The latter arises from the utterance of the Upanishads.

ON CONCEPTIONS OF GODHEAD

Man's inner hankering is to find some one who is free, that is, beyond the laws of nature. The Vedantins believe in such an Eternal Ishvara, while the Buddhists and the Sâmkhyas believe only a Janyeshvara (created God), that is, a God who was a man before, but has become God through spiritual practice. The Purânas reconcile these two positions by the doctrine of Incarnation. That is, they say that the Janyeshvara is nothing but the Nitya (Eternal) Ishvara, taking by Mâyâ the form of a Janyeshvara. The argument of the Sankhyas against the doctrine of Eternal Ishvara, viz "how a liberated soul can create the universe", is based on false grounds. For you cannot dictate anything to a liberated soul. He is free, that is, he may do whatever he likes. According to the Vedanta, the Janyeshvaras cannot create, preserve, or destroy the universe.

ON FOOD

You preach to others to be men but cannot give them good food. I have been thinking over this problem for the last four years. I wish to make an experiment whether something of the nature of flattened rice can be made out of wheat. Then we can get a different food every day. About drinking water, I searched for a filter which would suit our country. I found one pan-like porcelain vessel through which water was made to pass, and all the bacilli remained in the porcelain pan. But gradually that filter would itself become the hotbed of all germs. This is the danger of all filters. After continued searching I found one method by which water was distilled and then oxygen was passed into it. After this the water became so pure that great improvement of health was sure to result from its use.

ON SANNYĀSA AND FAMILY LIFE

Talking of the respective duties of a monk and a householder, Swamiji said:

A Sannyasin should avoid the food, bedding, etc., which have been touched or used by householders, in order to save himself — not from hatred towards them — so long as he has not risen to the highest grade, that is, become a Paramahansa. A householder should salute him with "Namo Nârâyanâya", and a Sannyasin should bless the former.

मेरुसर्षपयोर्यद्यत् सूर्यखद्योतयोरिव ।
सत्सिन्धुसगरयोर्यद्यत् तथा भिक्षुगृहस्थयोः ॥

— Like the difference between the biggest mountain and a mustard-seed, between the sun and a glow-worm, between the ocean and a streamlet, is the wide gulf between a Sannyasin and a householder.

Swami Vivekananda made everyone utter this and, chanting some Vedanta stanzas, said, "You should always repeat to yourselves these Shlokas. 'Shravana' not only means hearing from the Guru, but also repetition to our own selves. 'आवृत्तिरसकृत्पदेशात् — Scriptural truth should be often repeated for such has been repeatedly enjoined' — In this Sutra of Vedanta, Vyasa lays stress on repetition."

ON QUESTIONING THE COMPETENCY OF THE GURU

In the course of a conversation Swamiji spiritedly remarked, "Leave off your commercial calculating ideas. If you can get rid of your attachment to a single thing, you are on the way to liberation. Do not see a public woman, or sinner, or Sâdhu. That vile woman also is the Divine Mother. A Sannyâsin says once, twice, that she is Mother; then he gets deluded again and says, 'Hence, O vile, unchaste woman!' At a moment all your ignorance may vanish. It is foolish talk that ignorance disperses gradually. There are disciples who have been devoted to the Guru even when he has fallen from the ideal. I have seen in Rajputana one whose spiritual teacher had turned a Christian, but who nevertheless went on giving him his regular dues. Give up your Western ideas. Once you have pledged your faith to a particular teacher, stick to him with all force. It is children who say that there is no morality in the Vedanta. Yes, they are right. Vedanta is above morality. Talk of high things, as you have become Sannyasins."

SHRI RAMAKRISHNA:

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF HIS LIFE AND TEACHINGS

In a narrow society there is depth and intensity of spirituality. The narrow stream is very rapid. In a catholic society, along with the breadth of vision we find a proportionate loss in depth and intensity. But the life of Sri Ramakrishna upsets all records of history. It is a remarkable phenomenon that in Sri Ramakrishna there has been an assemblage of ideas deeper than the sea and vaster than the skies.

We must interpret the Vedas in the light of the experience of Sri Ramakrishna. Shankaracharya and all other commentators made the tremendous mistake to think that the whole of the Vedas spoke the same truth. Therefore they were guilty of torturing those of the apparently conflicting Vedic texts which go against their own doctrines, into the meaning of their particular schools. As, in the olden times, it was the Lord alone, the deliverer of the Gita, who partially harmonised these apparently conflicting statements, so with a view to completely settling this dispute, immensely magnified in the process of time, He Himself has come as Sri Ramakrishna. Therefore no one can truly understand the Vedas and Vedanta, unless one studies them in the light of the utterance of Sri Ramakrishna who first exemplified in his life and taught that these scriptural statements which appear to the cursory view as contradictory, are meant for different grades of aspirants and are arranged in the order of evolution. The whole world will undoubtedly forget its fights and disputes and be united in a fraternal tie in religious and other matters as a consequence of these teachings.

If there is anything which Sri Ramakrishna has urged us to give up as carefully as lust and wealth, it is the limiting of the infinitude of God by circumscribing it within narrow bounds. Whoever, therefore, will try to limit the infinite ideals of Sri Ramakrishna in that way, will go against him and be his enemy.

One of his own utterances is that those who have seen the chameleon only once, know only one colour of the animal, but those who have lived under the tree, know all the colours that it puts on. For this reason, no saying of Sri Ramakrishna can be accepted as authentic, unless it is verified by those who constantly lived with him and whom he brought up to fulfil his life's mission.

Such a unique personality, such a synthesis of the utmost of Jnana, Yoga, Bhakti and Karma, has never before appeared among mankind. The life of Sri Ramakrishna proves that the greatest breadth, the highest catholicity and the utmost intensity can exist side by side in the same individual, and that society also can be constructed like that, for society is nothing but an aggregate of individuals.

He is the true disciple and follower of Sri Ramakrishna, whose character is perfect and all-sided like this. The formation of such a perfect character is the ideal of this age, and everyone should strive for that alone.

ON SHRI RAMAKRISHNA AND HIS VIEWS

By force, think of one thing at least as Brahman. Of course it is easier to think of Ramakrishna as God, but the danger is that we cannot form Ishvara-buddhi (vision of Divinity) in others. God is eternal, without any form, omnipresent. To think of Him as possessing any form is blasphemy. But the secret of image-worship is that you are trying to develop your vision of Divinity in one thing.

Shri Ramakrishna used to consider himself as an Incarnation in the ordinary sense of the term, though I could not understand it. I used to say that he was Brahman in the Vedantic sense; but just before his passing away, when he was suffering from the characteristic difficulty in breathing, he said to me as I was cogitating in my mind whether he could even in that pain say that he was an Incarnation, "He who was Râma and Krishna has now actually become Ramakrishna — but not in your Vedantic sense!" He used to love me intensely, which made many quite jealous of me. He knew one's character by sight, and never changed his opinion. He could perceive, as it were, supersensual things, while we try to know one's character by reason, with the result that our judgments are often fallacious. He called some persons his Antarangas or 'belonging to the inner circle', and he used to teach them the secrets of his own nature and those of Yoga. To the outsiders or Bahirangas he taught those parables now known as "Sayings". He used to prepare those young men (the former class) for his work, and though many complained to him about them, he paid no heed. I may have perhaps a better opinion of a Bahiranga than an Antaranga through his actions, but I have a superstitious regard for the latter. "Love me, love my dog", as they say. I love that Brahmin priest intensely, and therefore, love whatever he used to love, whatever he used to regard! He was afraid about me that I might create a sect, if left to myself.

He used to say to some, "You will not attain spirituality in this life." He sensed everything, and this will explain his apparent partiality to some. He, as a scientist, used to see that different people required different treatment. None except those of the "inner circle" were allowed to sleep in his room. It is not true that those who have not seen him will not attain salvation; neither is it true that a man who has seen him thrice will attain Mukti (liberation).

Devotion as taught by Nârada, he used to preach to the masses, those who were incapable of any higher training.

He used generally to teach dualism. As a rule, he never taught Advaitism. But he taught it to me. I had been a dualist before.

SHRI RAMAKRISHNA: THE NATION'S IDEAL

In order that a nation may rise, it must have a high ideal. Now, that ideal is, of course, the abstract Brahman. But as you all cannot be inspired by an abstract ideal, you must have a personal ideal. You have got that, in the person of Shri Ramakrishna. The reason why other personages cannot be our ideal now is, that their days are gone; and in order that Vedanta may come to everyone, there must be a person who is in sympathy with the present generation. This is fulfilled in Shri Ramakrishna. So now you should place him before everyone. Whether one accepts him as a Sâdhu or an Avatâra does not matter.

He said he would come once more with us. Then, I think, he will embrace Videha-Mukti (Absolute Emancipation). If you wish to work, you must have such an Ishta-Devatâ, or Guardian Angel, as the Christian nations call it. I sometimes imagine that different nations have different Ishta-Devatas, and these are each trying for supremacy. Sometimes I fancy, such an Ishta-Devata becomes powerless to do service to a nation.

MERCINARIES IN RELIGION

(Delivered in Minneapolis on November 26, 1893: Reported in the Minneapolis Journal)

The Unitarian church was crowded yesterday morning by an audience anxious to learn something of eastern religious thought as outlined by Swami Vivekananda, a Brahmin priest, who was prominent in the Parliament of Religions at Chicago last summer. The distinguished representative of the Brahmin faith was brought to Minneapolis by the Peripatetic Club, and he addressed that body last Friday evening. He was induced to remain until this week, in order that he might deliver the address yesterday. . . .

Dr. H.M. Simmons, the pastor, . . . read from Paul's lesson of faith, hope and charity, and "the greatest of these is charity", supplementing that reading by a selection from the Brahmin scripture which teaches the same lesson, and also a selection from the Moslem faith, and poems from the Hindu literature, all of which are in harmony with Paul's utterances.

After a second hymn Swami Vivekandi [sic] was introduced. He stepped to the edge of the platform and at once had his audience interested by the recital of a Hindu story. He said in excellent English:

"I will tell you a story of five blind men. There was a procession in a village in India, and all the people turned out to see the procession, and specially the gaily caparisoned elephant. The people were delighted, and as the five blind men could not see, they determined to touch the elephant that they might acquaint themselves with its form. They were given the privilege, and after the procession had passed, they returned home together with the people, and they began to talk about the elephant. 'It was just like a wall,' said one. 'No it wasn't,' said another, 'it was like a piece of rope.' 'You are mistaken,' said a third, 'I felt him and it was just a serpent.' The discussion grew excited, and the fourth declared the elephant was like a pillow. The argument soon broke into more angry expressions, and the five blind men took to fighting. Along came a man with two eyes, and he said, 'My friends, what is the matter?' The disputation was explained, whereupon the new-comer said, 'Men, you are all right: the trouble is you touched the elephant at different points. The wall was the side, the rope was the tail, the serpent was the trunk, and the toes were the pillow. Stop your quarrelling; you are all right, only you have been viewing the elephant from different standpoints.'

Religion, he said, had become involved in such a quarrel. The people of the West thought they had the only religion of God, and the people of the East held the same prejudice. Both were wrong; God was in every religion.

There were many bright criticisms on Western thought. The Christians were characterised as having a "shopkeeping religion". They were always begging of God — "O God, give me this and give me that; O God, do this and do that." The Hindu couldn't understand this. He thought it wrong to be begging of God. Instead of begging, the religious man should give. The Hindu believed in giving to God, to his fellows, instead of asking God to give to them. He had observed that the people of the West, very many of them, thought a great deal of God, so long as they got along all right, but when the reverse came, then God was forgotten: not so with the Hindu, who had come to look upon God as a being of love. The Hindu faith recognised the motherhood of God as well as the fatherhood, because the former was a better fulfilment of the idea of love. The Western Christian would work all the week for the dollar, and when he succeeded he would pray, "O God, we thank thee for giving us this benefit", and then he would put all the money into his pocket; the Hindu would make the money and then give it to God by helping the poor and the less fortunate. And so comparisons were made between the ideas of the West and the ideas of the East. In speaking of God, Vivekanandi said in substance: "You people of the West think you have God. What is it to have God? If you have Him, why is it that so much criminality exists, that nine out of ten people are hypocrites? Hypocrisy cannot exist where God is. You have your palaces for the worship of God, and you attend them in part for a time once a week, but how few go to worship God. It is the fashion in the West to attend church, and many of you attend for no other reason. Have you then, you people of the West, any right to lay exclusive claim to the possession of God?"

Here the speaker was interrupted by spontaneous applause. He proceeded: "We of the Hindu faith believe in worshipping God for love's sake, not for what He gives us, but because God is love, and no nation, no people, no religion has God until it is willing to worship Him for love's sake. You of the West are practical in business, practical in great inventions, but we of the East are practical in religion. You make commerce your business; we make religion our business. If you will come to India and talk with the workman in the field, you will find he has no opinion on politics. He knows nothing of politics. But you talk to him of religion, and the humblest knows about monotheism, deism, and all the isms of religion. You ask:

"What government do you live under?' and he will reply: 'I don't know. I pay my taxes, and that's all I know about it.' I have talked with your labourers, your farmers, and I find that in politics they are all posted. They are either Democrat or Republican, and they know whether they prefer free silver or a gold standard. But you talk to them of religion; they are like the Indian farmer, they don't know, they attend such a church, but they don't know what it believes; they just pay their pew rent, and that's all they know about it — or God."

The superstitions of India were admitted, "but what nation doesn't have them?" he asked. In summing up, he held that the nations had been looking at God as a monopoly. All nations had God, and any impulse for good was God. The Western people, as well as the Eastern people, must learn to "want God", and this "want" was compared to the man under water, struggling for air; he wanted it, he couldn't live without it. When the people of the West "wanted" God in that manner, then they would be welcome in India, because the missionaries would then come to them with God, not with the idea that India knows not God, but with love in their hearts and not dogma.

THE DESTINY OF MAN

(Delivered in Memphis on January 17, 1894: Reported in Appeal-Avalanche)

The audience was moderately large, and was made up of the best literary and musical talent of the city, including some of the most distinguished members of the legal fraternity and financial institutions.

The speaker differs in one respect in particular from some American orators. He advances his ideas with as much deliberation as a professor of mathematics demonstrates an example in algebra to his students. Kananda (In those days Swamiji was generally referred to by American Press as Vive Kananda.) speaks with perfect faith in his own powers and ability to hold successfully his position against all argument. He advances no ideas, nor make assertions that he does not follow up to a logical conclusion. Much of his lecture is something on the order of Ingersoll's philosophy. He does not believe in future punishment nor in God as Christians believe in Him. He does not believe the mind is immortal, from the fact that it is dependent, and nothing can be immortal except it is independent of all things. He says: "God is not a king sitting away in one corner of the universe to deal out punishment or rewards according to a man's deeds here on earth, and the time will come when man will know the truth, and stand up and say, 'I am God,' am life of His life. Why teach that God is far away when our real nature, our immortal principle is God?"

"Be not deluded by your religion teaching original sin, for the same religion teaches original purity. When Adam fell, he fell from purity. (Applause) Purity is our real nature, and to regain that is the object of all religion. All men are pure; all men are good. Some objections can be raised to them, and you ask why some men are brutes? That man you call a brute is like the diamond in the dirt and dust — brush the dust off and it is a diamond, just as pure as if the dust had never been on it, and we must admit that every soul is a big diamond.

"Nothing is baser than calling our brother a sinner. A lioness once fell upon a flock of sheep and killed a lamb. A sheep found a very young lion, and it followed her, and he gave it suck, and it grew up with the sheep and learned to eat grass like a sheep. One day an old lion saw the sheep lion and tried to get it away from the sheep, but it ran away as he approached. The big lion waited till he caught the sheep lion alone, and he seized it and carried it to a clear pool of water and said, 'You are not a sheep, but a lion; look at your picture in the water.' The sheep lion, seeing its picture reflected from the water, said, 'I am a lion and not a sheep.' Let us not think we are sheep, but be lions, and don't bleat and eat grass like a sheep.

"For four months I have been in America. In Massachusetts I visited a reformatory prison. The jailor at that prison never knows for what crimes the prisoners are incarcerated. The mantle of charity is thrown around them. In another city there were three newspapers, edited by very learned men, trying to prove that severe punishment was a necessity, while one other paper contended that mercy was better than punishment. The editor of one paper proved by statistics that only fifty per cent of criminals who received severe punishment returned to honest lives, while ninety per cent of those who received light punishment returned to useful pursuits in life.

"Religion is not the outcome of the weakness of human nature; religion is not here because we fear a tyrant; religion is love, unfolding, expanding, growing. Take the watch — within the little case is machinery and a spring. The spring, when wound up, tries to regain its natural state. You are like the spring in the watch, and it is not necessary that all watches have the same kind of a spring, and it is not necessary that we all have the same religion. And why should we quarrel? If we all had the same ideas the world would be dead. External motion we call action; internal motion is human thought. The stone falls to the earth. You say it is caused by the law of gravitation. The horse draws the cart and God draws the horse. That is the law of motion. Whirlpools show the strength of the current; stop the current and stagnation ensues. Motion is life. We must have unity and variety. The rose would smell as sweet by any other name, and it does not matter what your religion is called.

"Six blind men lived in a village. They could not see the elephant, but they went out and felt of him. One put his hand on the elephant's tail, one of them on his side, one on his tongue [trunk], one on his ear. They began to describe the elephant. One said he was like a rope; one said he was like a great wall; one said he was like a boa constrictor, and another said he was like a fan. They finally came to blows and went to pummelling each other. A man who could see came along and inquired the trouble, and the blind men said they had seen the elephant and disagreed because one accused the other of lying. 'Well,' said the man, 'you have all lied; you are blind, and neither of you have seen it.' That is what is the matter with our religion. We let the blind see the elephant. (Applause).

"A monk of India said, 'I would believe you if you were to say that I could press the sands of the desert and get oil, or that I could pluck the tooth from the mouth of the crocodile without being bitten, but I cannot believe you when you say a bigot can be changed.' You ask why is there so much variance in religions? The answer is this: The little streams that ripple down a thousand mountain sides are destined to come at last to the mighty ocean. So with the different religions. They are destined at last to bring us to the bosom of God. For 1,900 years you have been trying to crush the Jews. Why could you not crush them? Echo answers: Ignorance and bigotry can never crush truth."

The speaker continued in this strain of reasoning for nearly two hours, and concluded by saying: "Let us help, and not destroy."

REINCARNATION

(Delivered in Memphis on January 19, 1894: Reported in Appeal-Avalanche)

Swami Vive Kananda, the beturbaned and yellow-robed monk, lectured again last night to a fair-sized and appreciative audience at the La Salette Academy on Third street.

The subject was "Transmigration of the Soul, or "metempsychosis". Possibly Vive Kananda never appeared to greater advantage than in this role, so to speak. Metempsychosis is one of the most widely-accepted beliefs among the Eastern races, and one that they are ever ready to defend, at home or abroad. As Kananda said:

"Many of you do not know that it is one of the oldest religious doctrines of all the old religions. It was known among the Pharisees, among the Jews, among the first fathers of the Christian Church, and was a common belief among the Arabs. And it lingers still with the Hindus and the Buddhists.

"This state of things went on until the days of science which is merely a contemplation of energies. Now, you Western people believe this doctrine to be subversive of morality. In order to have a full survey of the argument, its logical and metaphysical features, we will have to go over all the ground. All of us believe in a moral governor of this universe; yet nature reveals to us instead of justice, injustice. One man is born under the best of circumstances. Throughout his entire life circumstances come ready made to his hands — all conducive to happiness and a higher order of things. Another is born, and at every point his life is at variance with that of his neighbour. He dies in depravity, exiled from society. Why so much impartiality [partiality] in the distribution of happiness?

"The theory of metempsychosis reconciles this disharmonious chord in your common beliefs. Instead of making us immoral, this theory give us the idea of justice. Some of you say: 'It is God's will.' This is no answer. It is unscientific. Everything has a cause. The sole cause and whole theory of causation being left with God, makes Him a most immoral creature. But materialism is as much illogical as the other. So far as we go, perception [causation?] involves all things. Therefore, this doctrine of the transmigration of the soul is necessary on these grounds. Here we are all born. Is this the first creation? Is creation something coming out of nothing? Analysed completely, this sentence is nonsense. It is not creation, but manifestation.

"A something cannot be the effect of a cause that is not. If I put my finger in the fire, the burn is a simultaneous effect, and I know that the cause of the burn was the action of my placing my finger in contact with the fire. And as in the case of nature, there never was a time when nature did not exist, because the cause has always existed. But for argument[s] sake, admit that there was a time when there was no existence. Where was all this mass of matter? To create something new would be the introduction of so much more energy into the universe. This is impossible. Old things can be re-created, but there can be no addition to the universe.

"No mathematical demonstration could be made that would have this theory of metempsychosis. According to logic, hypothesis and theory must not be believed. But my contention is that no better hypothesis has been forwarded by the human intellect to explain the phenomena of life.

"I met with a peculiar incident while on a train leaving the city of Minneapolis. There was a cowboy on the train. He was a rough sort of a fellow and a Presbyterian of the blue nose type. He walked up and asked me where I was from. I told him India. 'What are you?' he said. 'Hindu', I replied. 'Then you must go to hell', he remarked. I told him of this theory, and after [my] explaining it, he said he had always believed in it because he said that one day when he was chopping a log, his little sister came out in her clothes and said that she used to be a man. That is why he believed in the transmigration of souls. The whole basis of the theory is this: If a man's actions be good, he must be a higher being, and vice versa.

"There is another beauty in this theory — the moral motor [motive] it supplies. What is done is done. It says, 'Ah, that it were done better.' Do not put your finger in the fire again. Every moment is a new chance."

Vive Kananda spoke in this strain for some time, and he was frequently applauded.

Swami Vive Kananda will lecture again this after moon at 4 o'clock at La Salette Academy on "The Manners and Customs of India."

COMPARATIVE THEOLOGY

(Delivered in Memphis on January 21, 1894: Reported in Appeal-Avalanche)

"Comparative Theology" was the subject of a discourse last night by Swami Vive Kananda at the Young Men's Hebrew Association Hall. It was the blue-ribbon lecture of the series, and no doubt increased the general admiration the people of this city entertain for the learned gentleman.

Heretofore Vive Kananda has lectured for the benefit of one charity-worthy object or another, and it can be safely said that he has rendered them material aid. Last night, however, he lectured for his own benefit. The lecture was planned and sustained by Mr. Hu L. Brinkley, one of Vive Kananda's warmest friends and most ardent admirers. In the neighbourhood of two hundred gathered at the hall last night to hear the eminent Easterner for the last time in this city.

The first question the speaker asserted in connection with the subject was: "Can there be such a distinction between religions as their creeds would imply?"

He asserted that no differences existed now, and he retraced the line of progress made by all religions and brought it back to the present day. He showed that such variance of opinion must of necessity have existed with primitive man in regard to the idea of God, but that as the world advanced step by step in a moral and intellectual way, the distinctions became more and more indistinct, until finally it had faded away entirely, and now there was one all-prevalent doctrine — that of an absolute existence.

"No savage", said the speaker, "can be found who does not believe in some kind of a god."

"Modern science does not say whether it looks upon this as a revelation or not. Love among savage nations is not very strong. They live in terror. To their superstitious imaginations is pictured some malignant spirit, before the thought of which they quake in fear and terror. Whatever he likes he thinks will please the evil spirit. What will pacify him he thinks will appease the wrath of the spirit. To this end he labours even against his fellow-savage."

The speaker went on to show by historical facts that the savage man went from ancestral worship to the worship of elephants, and later to gods, such as the God of Thunder and Storms. Then the religion of the world was polytheism. "The beauty of the sunrise, the grandeur of the sunset, the mystifying appearance of the star-bedecked skies, and the weirdness of thunder and lightning impressed primitive man with a force that he could not explain, and suggested the idea of a higher and more powerful being controlling the infinities that flocked before his gaze," said Vive Kananda.

Then came another period — the period of monotheism. All the gods disappeared and blended into one, the God of Gods, the ruler of the universe. Then the speaker traced the Aryan race up to that period, where they said: "We live and move in God. He is motion." Then there came another period known to metaphysics as the "period of Pantheism". This race rejected Polytheism and Monotheism, and the idea that God was the universe, and said "the soul of my soul is the only true existence. My nature is my existence and will expand to me."

Vive Kananda then took up Buddhism. He said that they neither asserted nor denied the existence of a God. Buddha would simply say, when his counsel was sought: "You see misery. Then try to lessen it." To a Buddhist misery is ever present, and society measures the scope of his existence. Mohammedans, he said, believed in the Old Testament of the Hindu [Hebrew] and the New Testament of the Christian. They do not like the Christians, for they say they are heretics and teach man-worship. Mohammed ever forbade his followers having a picture of himself.

"The next question that arises," said he, "are these religions true or are some of them true and some of them false? They have all reached one conclusion, that of an absolute and infinite existence. Unity is the object of religion. The multiple of phenomena that is seen at every hand is only the infinite variety of unity. An analysis of religion shows that man does not travel from fallacy to truth, but from a lower truth to a higher truth.

"A man brings in a coat to a lot of people. Some say the coat does not fit them. Well, you get out; you can't have a coat. Ask one Christian minister what is the matter with all the other sects that are opposed to his doctrines and dogmas, and he will answer: 'Oh, they're not Christians.' But we have better instruction than these. Our own natures, love, and science — they teach us better. Like the eddies to a river, take them away and stagnation follows. Kill the difference in opinions, and it is the death of thought. Motion is necessity. Thought is the motion of the mind, and when that ceases death begins.

"If you put a simple molecule of air in the bottom of a glass of water it at once begins a struggle to join the infinite atmosphere above. So it is with the soul. It is struggling to regain its pure nature and to free itself from this material body. It wants to regain its own infinite expansion. This is everywhere the same. Among Christians, Buddhists, Mohammedans, agnostic, or priest, the soul is struggling. A river flows a thousand miles down the circuitous mountain side to where it joins the seas, and a man is standing there to tell it to go back and start anew and assume a more direct course! That man is a fool. You are a river that flows from the heights of Zion. I flow from the lofty peaks of the Himalayas. I don't say to you, go back and come down as I did, you're wrong. That is more wrong than foolish. Stick to your beliefs. The truth is never lost. Books may perish, nations may go down in a crash, but the truth is preserved and is taken up by some man and handed back to society, which proves a grand and continuous revelation of God."

BUDDHISM, THE RELIGION OF THE LIGHT OF ASIA

(Delivered in Detroit on March 19, 1894: Reported in Detroit Tribune)

Vive Kananda lectured to an audience of about 150 [according to the Journal, 500] at the Auditorium last night upon "Buddhism, the Religion of the Light of Asia." Honourable Don M. Dickinson introduced him to the audience.

"Who shall say that this system of religion is divine and that doomed?" asked Mr. Dickinson in his introductory remarks. "Who shall draw the mystic line?"

Vive Kananda reviewed at length the early religions of India. He told of the great slaughter of animals on the altar of sacrifice; of Buddha's birth and life; of his puzzling questions to himself over the causes of creation and the reasons for existence; of the earnest struggle of Buddha to find the solution of creation and life; of the final result.

Buddha, he said, stood head and shoulders above all other men. He was one, he said, [of] whom his friends or enemies could never say that he drew a breath or ate a crumb of bread but for the good of all.

"He never preached transmigration of the soul," said Kananda, "except he believed one soul was to its successor like the wave of the ocean that grew and died away, leaving naught to the succeeding wave but its force. He never preached that there was a God, nor did he deny there was a God.

"'Why should we be good?' his disciples asked of him.

"'Because', he said, 'you inherited good. Let you in your turn leave some heritage of good to your successors. Let us all help the onward march of accumulated goodness, for goodness' sake.'

"He was the first prophet. He never abused any one or arrogated anything to himself. He believed in our working out our own salvation in religion.

"'I can't tell you,' he said, on his deathbed, 'nor any one. Depend not on any one. Work out your own religion [salvation].'

"He protested against the inequality of man and man, or of man and beast. All life was equal, he preached. He was the first man to uphold the doctrine of prohibition in liquors. 'Be good and do good', he said. 'If there is a God, you have Him by being good. If there is no God, being good is good. He is to be blamed for all he suffers. He is to be praised for all his good.'

"He was the first who brought the missionaries into existence. He came as a saviour to the downtrodden millions of India. They could not understand his philosophy, but they saw the man and his teachings, and they followed him."

In conclusion Kananda said that Buddhism was the foundation of the Christian religion; that the catholic church came from Buddhism.

THE SCIENCE OF YOGA

(Fragmentary notes of a lecture recorded by Ida Ansell and reprinted from Vedanta and the West, July-August 1957.)

(Delivered at Tucker Hall, Alameda, California, on April 13, 1900)

The old Sanskrit word Yoga is defined as [Chittavrittinirodha]. It means that Yoga is the science that teaches us to bring the Chitta under control from the state of change. The Chitta is the stuff from which our minds are made and which is being constantly churned into waves by external and internal influences. Yoga teaches us how to control the mind so that it is not thrown out of balance into wave forms. . . .

What does this mean? To the student of religion almost ninety-nine per cent of the books and thoughts of religion are mere speculations. One man thinks religion is this and another, that. If one man is more clever than the others, he overthrows their speculations and starts a new one. Men have been studying new religious systems for the last two thousand, four thousand, years — how long exactly nobody knows. . . . When they could not reason them out, they said, "Believe!" If they were powerful, they forced their beliefs. This is going on even now.

But there are a set of people who are not entirely satisfied with this sort of thing. "Is there no way out?" they ask. You do not speculate that way in physics, chemistry, and mathematics. Why cannot the science of religion be like any other science? They proposed this way: If such a thing as the soul of man really exists, if it is immortal, if God really exists as the ruler of this universe — He must be [known] here; and all that must be [realised] in [your own] consciousness.

The mind cannot be analysed by any external machine. Supposing you could look into my brain while I am thinking, you would only see certain molecules interchanged. You could not see thought, consciousness, ideas, images. You would simply see the mass of vibrations — chemical and physical changes. From this example we see that this sort of analysis would not do.

Is there any other method by which the mind can be analysed as mind? If there is, then the real science of religion is possible. The science of Raja-Yoga claims there is such a possibility. We can all attempt it and succeed to a certain degree. There is this great difficulty: In external sciences the object is [comparatively easy to observe]. The instruments of analysis are rigid; and both are external. But in the analysis of the mind the object and the instruments of analysis are the same thing. . . . The subject and the object become one. . . .

External analysis will go to the brain and find physical and chemical changes. It would never succeed [in answering the questions]: What is the consciousness? What is your imagination? Where does this vast mass of ideas you have come from, and where do they go? We cannot deny them. They are facts. I never saw my own brain. I have to take for granted I have one. But man can never deny his own conscious imagination. .

The great problem is ourselves. Am I the long chain I do not see — one piece following the other in rapid succession but quite unconnected? Am I such a state of consciousness [for ever in a flux]? Or am I something more than that — a substance, an entity, what we call the soul? In other words, has man a soul or not? Is he a bundle of states of consciousness without any connection, or is he a unified substance? That is the great controversy. If we are merely bundles of consciousness, . . . such a question as immortality would be merely delusion. . . . On the other hand, if there is something in me which is a unit, a substance, then of course I am immortal. The unit cannot be destroyed or broken into pieces. Only compounds can be broken up. . . .

All religions except Buddhism believe and struggle in some way or other to reach such a substance. Buddhism denies the substance and is quite satisfied with that. It says, this business about God, the soul, immortality, and all that — do not vex yourselves with such questions. But all the other religions of the world cling to this substance. They all believe that the soul is the substance in man in spite of all the changes, that God is the substance which is in the universe. They all believe in the immortality of the soul. These are speculations. Who is to decide the controversy between the Buddhists and the Christians? Christianity says there is a substance that will live for ever. The Christian says, "My Bible says so." The Buddhist says, "I do not believe in your book." . . .

The question is: Are we the substance [the soul] or this subtle matter, the changing, billowing mind? . . . Our minds are constantly changing. Where is the substance within? We do not find it. I am now this and now that. I will believe in the substance if for a moment you can stop these changes. . . .

Of course all the beliefs in God and heaven are little beliefs of organised religions. Any scientific religion never proposes such things.

Yoga is the science that teaches us to stop the Chitta [the mind-stuff] from getting into these changes. Suppose you succeed in leading the mind to a perfect state of Yoga. That moment you have solved the problem. You have known what you are. You have mastered all the changes. After that you may let the mind run about, but it is not the same mind any more. It is perfectly under your control. No more like wild horses that dash you down. . . . You have seen God. This is no longer a matter of speculation. There is no more Mr. So-and-So, . . . no more books or Vedas, or controversy of preachers, or anything. You have been yourself: I am the substance beyond all these changes. I am not the changes; if I were, I could not stop them. I can stop the changes, and therefore I can never be the changes. This is the proposition of the science of Yoga. . . .

We do not like these changes. We do not like changes at all. Every change is being forced upon us. . . . In our country bullocks carry a yoke on their shoulders [which is connected by a pole with an oil press]. From the yoke projects a piece of wood [to which is tied a bundle of grass] just far enough to tempt the bullock, but he cannot reach it. He wants to eat the grass and goes a little farther [thereby turning the oil press]. . . . We are like these bullocks, always trying to eat the grass and stretching our necks to reach it. We go round and round this way. Nobody likes these changes. Certainly not! . . . All these changes are forced upon us. . . . We cannot help it. Once we have put ourselves in the machine, we must go on and on. The moment we stop, there is greater evil than if we continued forward. . . .

Of course misery comes to us. It is all misery because it is all unwilling. It is all forced. Nature orders us and we obey, but there is not much love lost between us and nature. All our work is an attempt to escape nature. We say we are enjoying nature. If we analyse ourselves, we find that we are trying to escape everything and invent ways to enjoy this and that. . . . [Nature is] like the Frenchman who had invited an English friend and told him of his old wines in the cellar. He called for a bottle of old wine. It was so beautiful, and the light sparkled inside like a piece of gold. His butler poured out a glass, and the Englishman quietly drank it. The butler had brought in a bottle of castor oil! We are drinking castor oil all the time; we cannot help it. . . .

[People in general] . . . are so reduced to machinery they do not . . . even think. Just like cats, dogs and other animals, they are also driven with the whip by nature. They never disobey, never think of it. But even they have some experience of life. . . .

[Some, however,] begin to question: What is this? What are all these experiences for? What is the Self? Is there any escape? Any meaning to life? . . .

The good will die. The wicked will die. Kings will die, and beggars will die. The great misery is death. . . . All the time we are trying to avoid it. And if we die in a comfortable religion, we think we will see Johns and Jacks afterwards and have a good time.

In your country they bring Johns and Jacks down to show you [in Seances]. I saw such people numbers of times and shook hands with them. Many of you may have seen them. They bang the piano and sing "Beulah Land": America is a vast land. My home is on the other side of the world. I do not know where Beulah Land is. You will not find it in any geography. See our good comfortable religion! The old, old moth-eaten belief!

Those people cannot think. What can be done for them? They have been eaten up by the world. There is nothing in them to think. Their bones have become hollow, their brains are like cheese. . . . I sympathise with them. Let them have their comfort! Some people are evidently very much comforted by seeing their ancestors from Beulah Land.

One of these mediums offered to bring my ancestors down to me. I said, "Stop there. Do anything you like, but if you bring my ancestors, I don't know if I can restrain myself." The medium was very kind and stopped.

In our country, when we begin to get worried by things, we pay something to the priests and make a bargain with God. . . . For the time being we feel comforted, otherwise we will not pay the priests. A little comfort comes, but [it turns] into reaction shortly. . . . So again misery comes. The same misery is here all the time. Your people in our country says, "If you believe in our doctrine you are safe." Our people among the lower classes believe in your doctrines. The only change is that they become beggars. . . . But is that religion? It is politics — not religion. You may call it religion, dragging the word religion down to that sense. But it is not spiritual.

Among thousands of men and women a few are inclined to something higher than this life. The others are like sheep. . . . Some among thousands try to understand things, to find a way out. The question is: Is there a way out? If there is a way out, it is in the soul and nowhere else. The ways out from other sources have been tried enough, and all [have been found wanting]. People do not find satisfaction. The very fact that those myriads of theories and sects exist show that people do not find satisfaction.

The science of Yoga proposes this, that the one way out is through ourselves. We have to individualise ourselves. If there is any truth, we can [realise it as our very essence]. . . . We will cease being driven about by nature from place to place. . . .

The phenomenal world is always changing: [to reach the Changeless] that is our goal. We want to be That, to realise that Absolute, the [changeless] Reality. What is preventing us from realising that Reality? It is the fact of creation. The creative mind is creating all the time and gets mixed up with its own creation. [But we must also remember that] it is creation that discovered God. It is creation that discovered the Absolute in every individual soul. . . .

Going back to our definition: Yoga is stopping the Chitta, the mind-stuff, from getting into these changes. When all this creation has been stopped — if it is possible to stop it — then we shall see for ourselves what we are in reality. . . . The Uncreated, the One that creates, manifests itself.

The methods of Yoga are various. Some of them are very difficult; it takes long training to succeed. Some are easy. Those who have the perseverance and strength to follow it through attain to great results. Those who do not may take a simpler method and get some benefit out of it.

As to the proper analysis of the mind, we see at once how difficult it is to grapple with the mind itself. We have become bodies. That we are souls we have forgotten entirely. When we think of ourselves, it is the body that comes into our imagination. We behave as bodies. We talk as bodies. We are all body. From this body we have to separate the soul. Therefore the training begins with the body itself, [until ultimately] the spirit manifests itself. . . . The central idea in all this training is to attain to that power of concentration, the power of meditation.

নমস্কারপূর্বকম্--

বৈদ্যনাথে পূর্ণবাবুর বাসায় কয়েকদিন আছি। শীত বড় নাই, শরীরও বড় ভাল নহে -- হজম হয় না, বোধ হয় জলে লৌহাধিক্যের জন্য। কিছুই ভাল লাগিল না -- স্থান, কাল ও সঙ্গ। কাল কাশী চলিলাম। দেওঘরে অচ্যুতানন্দ ‘-’র বাসায় ছিল। সে আমাদের সংবাদ পাইয়াই বিশেষ আগ্রহ করিয়া রাখিবার জন্য বড় জিদ করে। শেষে আর একদিন দেখা হইয়াছিল -- ছাড়ে নাই। সে বড় কর্মী, কিন্তু সঙ্গে ৭।৮টা স্ত্রীলোক বুড়ী, ‘জয় রাধে কৃষ্ণ’ই অধিক -- রুচি ভাল, শ্রীশ্রীগৌরাঙ্গের মহিমা। তাহার কর্মচারীরাও আমাদের অত্যন্ত ভক্তি করে। তাহারা কেহ কেহ উহার উপর বড় চটা, তাহারা তাহার নানাস্থানে দুষ্কর্মের কথা কহিতে লাগিল।

প্রসঙ্গক্রমে আমি ‘-’র কথা পাড়িলাম। তোমাদের তাঁহার সম্বন্ধে অনেক ভ্রম বা সন্দেহ আছে, তজ্জন্যই বিশেষ অনুসন্ধান করিয়া লিখিতেছি। তাঁহাকে এখানকার বৃদ্ধ কর্মচারীরাও বড় মান্য ও ভক্তি করে। তিনি অতি বালিকা-অবস্থায় ‘-’র কাছে আসিয়াছিলেন, বরাবর স্ত্রীর ন্যায় ছিলেন। এমন কি, ‘-’র মন্ত্রগুরু ভগবানদাস বাবাজীও জানিতেন যে, তিনি উহার স্ত্রী। তাহারা বলে, উহার মা তাঁহাকে ‘-’র কাছে দিয়া গিয়াছিল। যাহা হউক, তাঁহার এক পুত্র হয় ও মরিয়া যায় এবং সেই সময়ে ‘-’ কোথা হইতে একটা ‘জয় রাধে কৃষ্ণ’ বামনী আনিয়া ঘরে ঢোকায়, এই সকল কারণে তিনি তাহাকে ফেলিয়া পালান। যাহা হউক, সকলে একবাক্যে স্বীকার করে যে, তাঁহার চরিত্রে কখন কোন দোষ ছিল না, তিনি অতি সতী বরাবর ছিলেন এবং কখন স্ত্রী-স্বামী ভিন্ন ‘-’র সহিত অন্য কোন ব্যবহার বা অন্য কাহারও প্রতি কু-ভাব ছিল না। এত অল্প বয়সে আসিয়াছিলেন যে, সে সময়ে অন্য পুরুষ-সংসর্গ সম্ভবে না। তিনি ‘-’র নিকট হইতে পলাইয়া যাইবার পর তাহাকে লেখেন যে, আমি কখনও তোমাকে স্বামী ভিন্ন অন্য ব্যবহার করি নাই, কিন্তু বেশ্যাসক্ত ব্যক্তির সহিত আর বাস করা অসম্ভব। ইহার পুরাতন কর্মচারীরাও ইহাকে শয়তান ও তাঁহাকে দেবী বলিয়া বিশ্বাস করে ও বলে, ‘তিনি যাবার পর হইতেই ইহার মতিচ্ছন্ন হইয়াছে।’

এ সকল লিখিবার উদ্দেশ্য এই যে, তাঁহার বাল্যকালসম্বন্ধী গল্পে আমি পূর্বে বিশ্বাস করিতাম না। এ সকল ভাব, সমাজে যাহাকে বিবাহ বলে না, তাহার মধ্যে এত পবিত্রতা -- আমি romance (কাল্পনিক) মনে করিতাম, কিন্তু বিশেষ অনুসন্ধানে জানিয়াছি, সকল ঠিক। তিনি অতি পবিত্র, আবার পবিত্র, তাহাতে কোনও সন্দেহ নাই। ঐ সকল সন্দেহের জন্য আমরা সকলেই তাঁহার নিকট অপরাধী। আমি তাঁহাকে অসংখ্য প্রণাম করিতেছি ও অপরাধের জন্য ক্ষমা চাহিতেছি। তিনি মিথ্যাবাদিনী নহেন। তাঁহার ধর্মে ঐকান্তিকী আস্থাও চিরকাল ছিল, এ কথাও শুনিলাম। এক্ষণে ইহাই শিখিলাম, ঐ প্রকার তেজ মিথ্যাবাদিনী ব্যভিচারিণীতে সম্ভবে না।

আপনার পীড়া এখনও আরাম হইতেছে না। এখানে খুব পয়সা খরচ করিতে না পারিলে রোগীর বিশেষ সুবিধা বুঝি না। যাহা হয় বিবেচনা করিবেন। সকল দ্রব্যই অন্যত্র হইতে আনাইয়া লইতে হইবে।

পূজ্যপাদেষু,

আমি এক্ষণে গাজীপুরে সতীশবাবুর নিকট রহিয়াছি। যে কয়েকটি স্থান দেখিয়া আসিয়াছি, তন্মধ্যে এইটি স্বাস্থ্যকর। বৈদ্যনাথের জল বড় খারাপ, হজম হয় না। এলাহাবাদ অত্যন্ত ঘিঞ্জি -- কাশীতে যে কয়েকদিন ছিলাম দিনরাত জ্বর হইয়া থাকিত -- এত ম্যালেরিয়া। গাজীপুরের বিশেষতঃ আমি যে স্থানে থাকি, জলবায়ু অতি স্বাস্থ্যকর। পওহারী বাবার বাড়ী দেখিয়া আসিয়াছি। চারিদিকে উচ্চ প্রাচীর, ইংরেজী বাংলার মতন, ভিতরে বাগান আছে, বড় বড় ঘর, chimney &c. (চিমনি ইত্যাদি)। কাহাকেও ঢুকিত দেন না, ইচ্ছা হইলে দ্বারদেশে আসিয়া ভিতর থেকে কথা কন মাত্র। একদিন যাইয়া বসিয়া বসিয়া হিম খাইয়া ফিরিয়া আসিয়াছি। রবিবারে কাশী যাইব। ইতিমধ্যে বাবাজীর সহিত দেখা হইল তো হইল -- নহিলে এই পর্যন্ত। প্রমদাবাবুর বাগান সম্বন্ধে কাশী হইতে স্থির করিয়া লিখিব। কালী ভট্টাচার্য যদি একান্ত আসিতে চাহে তো আমি কাশীতে রবিবার যাইলে যেন আসে -- না আসিলেই ভাল। কাশীতে দুই-চারিদিন থাকিয়া শীঘ্রই হৃষীকেশ চলিতেছি -- প্রমদাবাবুর সঙ্গে যাইলেও যাইতে পারে। আপনারা এবং তুলসীরাম সকলে আমার যথাযোগ্য নমস্কারাদি জানিবেন ও ফকির, রাম, কৃষ্ণময়ী প্রভৃতিকে আমার আশীর্বাদ।

পূজ্যপাদেশু,

আপনার আপসোস-পত্র পাইয়াছি। আমি শীঘ্র এ স্থান পরিত্যাগ করিতেছি না, বাবাজীর অনুরোধ এড়াইবার জো নাই।

সাধুদের সেবা করিয়া কি হইল বলিয়া আপসোস করিয়াছেন। কথা ঠিক বটে, অথচ নহে বটে। Ideal bliss--এর (আদর্শ আনন্দ) দিকে চাহিতে গেলে এ কথা সত্য বটে, কিন্তু যে স্থান ছাড়িয়া আসিয়াছেন সে দিকে তাকাইলেই দেখিতে পাইবেন -- ছিলেন গরু, হইয়াছেন মানুষ, হইবেন দেবতা এবং ঈশ্বর। পরন্তু ঐ প্রকার 'কি হইল', 'কি হইল' অতি ভাল -- উন্নতির আশাস্বরূপ, নহিলে কেহ উঠিতে পারে না। 'পাগড়ি বেঁধেই ভগবান' যে দেখে, তাহার ঐখানেই খতম। আপনার সর্বদাই যে মনে পড়ে 'কি হইল', আপনি ধন্য নিশ্চিত জানিবেন -- আপনার মার নাই।

গিরিশবাবুর সহিত মাতাঠাকুরানীকে আনিবার জন্য আপনার কি মতান্তর হইয়াছে, গিরিশবাবু লিখিয়াছেন -- সে বিষয়ে আমার বলিবার কিছুই নাই। তবে আপনি অতি বুদ্ধিমান ব্যক্তি, কার্যসিদ্ধির প্রধান উপায় যে ধৈর্য -- এ আপনি ঠিক বুঝেন, সে বিষয়ে চপলমতি আমরা আপনার নিকট বহু শিক্ষার উপযুক্ত, সন্দেহ নাই। কাশীতে আমি--যোগীন-মাতার ঘাড় না ভাঙা যায় এ বিষয়ে একদিন বাদানুবাদচ্ছলে কহিয়াছিলাম। তৎসংযায় আর আমি কোন খবর জানি না এবং জানিতে ইচ্ছাও রাখি না। মাতাঠাকুরানীর যে প্রকার ইচ্ছা হইবে, সেই প্রকারই করিবেন। আমি কোন্ নরাধম, তাঁহার সম্বন্ধে কোন বিষয়ে কথা কহি? যোগীন-মাতাকে যে বারণ করিয়াছিলাম, তাহা যদি দোষের হইয়া থাকে, তজ্জন্য লক্ষ লক্ষ প্রার্থনা করিতেছি। আপনার মুখ বড় কড়া এবং ফস ফস করিয়া large promises (বেশি বেশি অঙ্গীকার-বাক্য) বহির হয় না বলিয়া আমিও আপনার উপর অনেক সময়ে বিরক্ত হই, কিন্তু বিচার করিয়া দেখি যে, আপনিই সন্ধিবেচনায় কার্য করেন। -- 'slow but sure' (ধীর, কিন্তু নিশ্চিত)।

What is lost in power is gained in speed (শক্তি যে পরিমাণ ব্যয়িত হয়, গতিবৃদ্ধিতে তাহা পোষাইয়া যায়), যাহাই হউক, সংসারে কথা লইয়াই কাজ। কথার ছাল ছাড়াইয়া (তাতে আপনার কৃপণতার আবরণ -- এত ছাড়াইয়া) অন্তর্দৃষ্টি সকলের হয় না এবং বহু সঙ্গ না করিলে কোন ব্যক্তিকে বুঝা যায় না। ইহা মনে করিয়া এবং শ্রীশ্রীগুরুদেব এবং মাতাঠাকুরানীকে স্মরণ করিয়া -- নিরঞ্জন যদি আপনাকে কিছু কটুবাক্য বলিয়া থাকে ক্ষমা করিবেন। 'ধর্ম -- দলে নহে, হুজুগে নহে', গুরুদেবের এই সকল উপদেশ ভুলিয়া যান কেন? আপনার যা করিবার সাধ্য করুন, কিন্তু তাহার কি ব্যবহার হইল, কি না হইল, ভাল মন্দ বিচার করার অধিকার আমাদের বোধ হয় নাই। ... গিরিশবাবু যে

জন্মেৎসব কবে হইবে পত্রপাঠ লিখিবেন। আমার কোমরে একটা বেদনায় বড় অসুস্থ করিয়াছে। আর দিনকয়েক বাদে এ স্থানে বড় শোভা হইবে -- ক্রোশ-ক্রোশব্যাপী গোলাপফুলের মাঠে ফুল ফুটিবে। সেই সময়ে কতকগুলো তাজাফুল ও ডাল মহোৎসব উপলক্ষে পাঠাইবে বলিতেছে। যোগেন কোথায়, কেমন আছে? বাবুরাম কেমন আছে? সারদা কি এখন তেমনি চঞ্চলচিত্ত? গুপ্ত কি করিতেছে? তারক-দাদা, গোপাল-দাদা প্রভৃতিকে আমার প্রণাম। মাস্টারের ভাইপো কতদূর পড়িল? রাম ও ফকির ও কৃষ্ণময়ীকে আমার আশীর্বাদাদি দিবেন। তাহারা পড়াশুনা কেমন করিতেছে? ভগবান্ করন্, আপনার ছেলে যেন 'মানুষ' হয় -- না-মরদ না হয়। তুলসীবাবুকে আমার লক্ষ লক্ষ সাদর সম্ভাষণ দিবেন এবং এবারে একলা সাভেলও নিজের খাটনি খাটিতে পারিবে কিনা? চুনীবাবু কেমন আছেন?

বলরামবাবু, মাতাঠাকুরানী যদি আসিয়া থাকেন, আমার কোটি কোটি প্রণাম দিবেন ও আশীর্বাদ করিতে বলিবেন -- যেন আমার অটল অধ্যবসায় হয়, কিংবা এ শরীরে যদি তাহা অসম্ভব, যেন শীঘ্রই ইহার পতন হয়।

(পরের পত্রখানি) গুপ্তকে দেখাইবেন।

পূজ্যপাদেষু,

আপনার পত্র কল্যা পাইয়াছি। সুরেশবাবুর পীড়া অত্যন্ত কঠিন শুনিয়া অতি দুঃখিত হইলাম। অদৃষ্টে যাহা আছে, তাহাই হইবে। আপনারও পীড়া হইয়াছে, দুঃখের বিষয়। ‘অহং’-বুদ্ধি যতদিন থাকে, ততদিন চেষ্টার ত্রুটি হইলে তাহাকে আলস্য এবং দোষ এবং অপরাধ বলা যায়। যাঁহার উক্ত বুদ্ধি নাই, তাঁহার সম্বন্ধে তিতিক্ষাই ভাল। জীবাত্তার বাসভূমি এই শরীর কর্মের সাধনস্বরূপ -- ইহাকে যিনি নরককুন্ড করেন তিনি অপরাধী এবং যিনি অযত্ন করেন, তিনিও দোষী। যেমন সামনে আসিবে, খুঁত খুঁত কিছু মাত্র না করিয়া তেমনই করিয়া যাউন।

‘নাভিনন্দেত মরণং নাভিনন্দেত জীবিতম।
কালমেব প্রতীক্ষেত নিদেশং ভৃতকো যথা।’

-- যেটুকু সাধ্য সেটুকু করা, মরণও ইচ্ছা না করিয়া এবং জীবনও ইচ্ছা না করিয়া -- ভৃত্যের ন্যায় আজ্ঞা প্রতীক্ষা করিয়া থাকাই শ্রেষ্ঠ ধর্ম।

কাশীতে অত্যন্ত ইনফ্লুয়েঞ্জা হইতেছে -- প্রমদাবাবু প্রয়াগে গিয়াছেন। বাবুরাম হঠাৎ এ স্থানে আসিয়াছে, তাহার জ্বর হইয়াছে -- এমন অবস্থায় বাহির হওয়া ভাল হয় নাই। কালীকে^১ ১০ টাকা পাঠানো গিয়াছে -- সে বোধহয় গাজীপুর হইয়া কলিকাতাভিমুখে যাইবে। আমি কল্যা এ স্থান হইতে চলিলাম। কালী আসিয়া আপনাদের পত্র লিখিলে যাহা হয় করিবেন। আমি লম্বা। আর পত্র লিখিবেন না, কারণ আমি এ স্থান হইতে চলিলাম। বাবুরাম ভাল হইয়া যাহা ইচ্ছা করিবেন।

ফুল -- বোধ হয় রিসিট (রসিদ) প্রাপ্তিমাত্রই আনাইয়া লইয়াছেন। মাতাঠাকুরানীকে আমার অসংখ্য প্রণাম।

আপনারা আর্শীবাদ করুন যেন আমার সমদৃষ্টি হয় -- সহজাত বন্ধন ছাড়াইয়া পাতানো বাঁধনে আবার যেন না ফাঁসি। যদি কেহ মঙ্গলকর্তা থাকেন এবং যদি তাঁহার সাধ্য এবং সুবিধা হয়, আপনাদের পরম মঙ্গল হউক -- ইহাই আমার দিবারাত্র প্রার্থনা। কিমধিকমিতি --

ভট্টাচার্য মহাশয়,

আপনার প্রণয়পূর্ণ পত্রপাঠে অতিশয় প্রীত হইলাম। কাপড় বুনিবার যন্ত্র যত শীঘ্র পারি খোঁজ করিয়া আপনাকে লিখিব। এক্ষণে আমি অ্যানিস্কুাম্ নামক সমুদ্রতীর-গ্রামে বিশ্রাম করিতেছি -- শীঘ্রই শহরে যাইয়া অনুসন্ধান করিব। গরমীকালে এই সকল সমুদ্রতীর-স্থান লোকপূর্ণ হয়। কেউ নাইতে আসে, কেউ বিশ্রাম করতে আসে -- ***

ক্রমে সব হবে -- শনৈঃ পছা শনৈঃ কছা শনৈঃ পর্বতলজ্জনম্।' কাগজপত্র সব ঠিকঠাক পৈঁছে গেছে, তাতে কোনও গোলমাল নাই, দুশমনের মুখ বন্ধ হয়ে গেছে। ...ম -- বলছেন, “ও বদমাশ” -- তাতে কানও পাতে না -- এদের গুণ কত। কত দয়া, আমার শত জন্মেও এদের ঋণ শোধ হবে না -- আমি আমেরিকার মেয়েদের পুষ্টিপুত্র -- এঁরা যথার্থই আমার মা -- এঁদের কল্যাণ হবে না তো কাদের হবে?

মধ্যে Greenacre বলে একস্থানে কয়েক-শ মেয়েমদ্দ এ দেশের মাথাওয়ালা একত্র হয়েছিল। আমি সেখানে ছিলাম প্রায় দুমাস। রোজ এক গাছের তলায় আমাদের হিন্দু ফ্যাসনে বসতুম আর আমার চারিদিকে আমার চেলাচলিত্রি ঘাসের উপর বসত। রোজ সকালে -- উপদেশ দিতাম -- কত আগ্রহ এদের। দেশসুদ্ধ লোক আমাকে জানে, পাদ্রীরা বড়ই চটা। সকলে নয় অবিশ্যি, এদের learned পাদ্রীর মধ্যে অনেকে আমার চেলা আছে।

আমি হচ্ছি এদের পুষ্টি। আমায় গাল দিলে এদের মেয়ে-মহলে তার নামে ধিক্কার পড়ে যায়। কবে দেশে যাব বলতে পারি না -- বোধ হয় আসছে শীতকালে যাব। সেখানেও ঘুরে বেড়ান, এখানেও তাই। কিমধিকমিতি। চিঠিটা ফাঁস করবেন না -- বুঝতে পেরেছেন -- আমার এখন প্রত্যেক কথাটি হুঁশিয়ার হয়ে কইতে হয় -- public man -- সব ... ওৎ পেতে থাকে। ...

তোমার পত্রে সকল সমাচার জ্ঞাত হইলাম। ‘ট্রিবিউন’ পত্রে উক্ত টেলিগ্রাফ বাহির হওয়ার কোনও সংবাদ পাই নাই। চিকাগো নগর ছয়মাস যাবৎ ত্যাগ করিয়াছি এখনও যাইবার সাবকাশ নাই; এজন্য বিশেষ খবর লইতে পারি নাই। তোমার পরিশ্রম অত্যন্ত হইয়াছে, তার জন্য তোমায় কি ধন্যবাদই বা দিই? অদ্ভুত কার্যক্ষমতা তোমরা দেখাইয়াছ। ঠাকুরের কথা কি মিথ্যা হয়? তোমাদের সকলের মধ্যে অদ্ভুত তেজ আছে। শশী সান্ডেলের বিষয় পূর্বেই লিখিয়াছি। ঠাকুরের কৃপায় কিছু চাপা থাকে না। তবে তিনি সম্প্রদায়স্থাপনাদি করণ, হানি কি? ‘শিবা বঃ সন্তু পছানঃ’^১ দ্বিতীয়তঃ তোমার পত্রের মর্ম বুঝিলাম না। আমি অর্থসংগ্রহ করিয়া আপনাদের মঠ স্থাপন করিব, ইহাতে যদি লোকে নিন্দা করে তো আমার কোনও ক্ষতিবৃদ্ধি দেখি না। কূটস্থ বুদ্ধি তোমাদের আছে, কোনও হানি হইবে না। তোমাদের পরস্পরের উপর নিরতিশয় প্রেম থাকুক, ইতর-সাধারণের উপর উপেক্ষাবুদ্ধি ধারণ করিলেই যথেষ্ট। কালীকৃষ্ণ বাবু অনুরাগী ও মহৎ ব্যক্তি। তাঁহাকে আমার বিশেষ প্রণয় কহিও। যতদিন তোমরা পরস্পরের উপর ভেদবুদ্ধি না করিবে, ততদিন প্রভুর কৃপায় ‘রণে বনে পর্বতমস্তকে বা’ তোমাদের কোনও ভয় নাই। ‘শ্রেয়াংসি বহুবিন্য়ানি’,^২ ইহা তো হইবেই। অতি গম্ভীর বুদ্ধি ধারণ কর। বালবুদ্ধি জীবে কে বা কি বলিতেছে, তাহার খবরমাত্রও লইবে না। উপেক্ষা, উপেক্ষা, উপেক্ষা ইতি।

শশীকে পূর্বে লিখিয়াছি সবিশেষ। খবরের কাগজ পুস্তকাদি পাঠাইও না। টেকি স্বর্গে গেলেও ধান ভানে -- দেশেও ঘুরে মরা, এদেশেও তাই, বাড়ার ভাগ বোঝা বওয়া এদেশে আমি কেমন করে লোকের পুস্তকের খন্দের জোটাই বল? আমি একটা সাধারণ মানুষ বই নয়। এদেশের খবরের কাগজ প্রভৃতিতে যাহা কিছু আমার বিষয় লেখে, আমি তাহা অগ্নিদেবকে সমর্পণ করি। তোমরাও তাহাই কর। তাহাই ব্যবস্থা।

ঠাকুরের কাজের জন্য একটু হাঙ্গামের দরকার ছিল, তা হয়ে গেছে, বেশ কথা; এক্ষণে ইতরগুলো কি বকে না বকে, তাতে কোনও রকমে তোমরা কর্ণপাত করিবে না। আমি টাকা রোজগার করি বা যা করি, হেঁজিপেঁজি লোকের কথায় কি তাঁর কাজ আটকাবে? ভায়া, তুমি এখন ছেলেমানুষ। আমার চুলে পাক ধরেছে। হেঁজিপেঁজি লোকদের কথায় আর মতামতের উপর আমার শ্রদ্ধা আঁচে বুঝে লও। তোমরা যতদিন কোমড় বেঁধে এককটা হয়ে আমার পিছে দাঁড়াবে, ততদিন পৃথিবী একত্র হলেও কোন ভয় নাই। ফলে এই পর্যন্ত বুঝিলাম যে, আমাকে অতি উচ্চ আসন গ্রহণ করিতে হইবে। তোমাদের ছাড়া আর কাহাকেও পত্র লিখিব না। ইতি।

বলি, গুণনিধি কোথায় আছে, খোঁজ করে তাকে মাঠে যত্ন করে আনবার চেষ্টা করিবে। সে লোকটা অতি sincere (অকপট) ও বড়ই পণ্ডিত। তোমরা দুটো জায়গার ঠিকানা করবেই করবে, যে যা বলে,

^১ তোমাদের পথ মঙ্গলময় হউক। -- অভিজ্ঞানশকুন্তলম্

^২ ভাল কাজে অনেক বিঘ্ন হইয়া থাকে।

বলে যাক। খবরের কাগজে আমার স্বপক্ষে অথবা বিপক্ষে কে কি লেখে, লিখুক; গ্রাহ্যমধ্যেই আনবে না। আর দাদা, বার বার ব্যাগভা করি,^৩ আর ঝুড়ি ঝুড়ি খবরের কাগজাদি পাঠাইও না। বিশ্রাম এখন কোথায়? আমরা যখন শরীর ছেড়ে দিব, তখন কিছুদিন বিশ্রাম করিব। ভায়া, ঐ তেজে একবার মহোৎসব কর দিকি। রৈ রৈ হয়ে যাক। ওয়া বাহাদুর! সাবাস! নিধে পেলার দল প্রেমের তরঙ্গে ভেসে চলে যাবে। তোমরা হলে হাতি, পিঁপড়ের কামড়ে কি তোমাদের ভয়।

তোমার প্রেরিত Address (অভিনন্দন) অনেক দিন হল এসেছে এবং তার জবাবও চলে গেছে প্যারী বাবুর নিকট।

এই কথা মনে রেখো -- দুটো চোখ, দুটো কান, কিন্তু একটা মুখ। উপেক্ষা, উপেক্ষা, উপেক্ষা। ‘ন হি কল্যাণকৃৎ কশ্চিৎ দুর্গতিং তাত গচ্ছতি’।^৪ ভয় কার? কাদের ভয় রে ভাই? এখানে মিশনারী-ফিশনারী চৌঁচিয়ে চৌঁচিয়ে ক্ষান্ত হয়ে গেছে -- অমনি সকল জগৎ হবে।

কিমধিকমিতি। হেঁজিপেঁজিদের সঙ্গে মেশবারও আবশ্যিক নাই। ওদের কাছে ভিক্ষেও করতে হবে না। ঠাকুর সব জোটাচ্ছেন এবং জোটাবেন। ভয় কিরে, ভাই? সকল বড় কাজ মহা বিঘ্নের মধ্য দিয়ে হয়ে থাকে। হে বীর ‘স্মর পৈরুশমাত্ননঃ উপেক্ষিতব্যঃ জনাঃ সুকৃপণাঃ কামকাঞ্চনবশগাঃ’।^৬ এক্ষণে আমি এদেশে দৃঢ়প্রতিষ্ঠ। অতএব আমার সহায়তার আবশ্যিক নাই। কিন্তু আমার সহায়তা করিতে যাইয়া ভ্রাতৃস্নেহাৎ তোমাদের মধ্যে যে পৈরুশমের আবির্ভাব হইয়াছে, তাহা প্রভুর কার্যে নিযুক্ত কর, এই তোমাদের নিকট আমার প্রার্থনা। মনের ভাব বিশেষ উপকার বোধ না হইলে প্রকাশ করিবে না। প্রিয় হিতবচন মহাশত্রুরও প্রতি প্রয়োগ করিবে।

হে ভাই, নামযশের ধনের ভোগের ইচ্ছা জীবের স্বতই আছে। তাহাতে যদি দুদিক চলে তো সকলেই আগ্রহে করিতে থাকে। ‘পরগুণ-পরমাণুং পর্বতকৃত্য’ অপিচ, তমসাচ্ছন্নবুদ্ধি জীবকে বালচেষ্ঠা করিতে দাও। গরম ঠেকলেই আপনি পালিয়ে যাবে! চাঁদে থুথু ফেলবার চেষ্ঠা করুক; ‘শুভং ভবতু তেষাম্’ (তাদের মঙ্গল হউক)। যদি তাদের মধ্যে মাল থাকে, সিদ্ধি কে বারণ করতে পারে? যদি ঈর্ষ্যা-পরবশ হয়ে আত্মফালন মাত্র করে তো সব বৃথা হবে।

হরমোহন মালা পাঠিয়েছেন। বেশ কথা। বলি, এদেশে আমাদের দেশের মতো ধর্ম চলে না। তবে এদের দেশের মতো করে দিতে হয়। এদের হিন্দু হতে বললে এরা সকলে পালিয়ে যাবে ও ঘৃণা করবে,

প্রিয় শিবানন্দ,

এইমাত্র তোমার পত্র পেলাম। সম্ভবতঃ ইতিমধ্যে তুমি আমার অন্য চিঠিগুলি পেয়েছ এবং জেনেছ যে, আর আমেরিকায় কিছু পাঠাবার দরকার নাই। কোন কিছুই বাড়াবাড়ি ভাল নয়। এই যে খবরের কাগজগুলো আমায় বাড়িয়ে তুলছে, তাতে আমার খ্যাতি হয়েছে সন্দেহ নাই, কিন্তু এর ফল এখানকার চেয়ে ভারতে বেশি। এখানে বরং রাতদিন খবরের কাগজে নাম বাজতে থাকলে উচ্চশ্রেণীর লোকদের মনে বিরক্তি জন্মায়; অতএব যথেষ্ট হয়েছে। এখন এই সকল সভার অনুসরণে ভারতে সজ্জবদ্ধ হতে চেষ্টা কর। আর এদেশে কিছু পাঠাবার দরকার নেই। প্রথমে মাতাঠাকুরানীর জন্য একটি জায়গা করবার দৃঢ়সঙ্কল্প করেছি, কারণ মেয়েদের জায়গাই প্রথম দরকার। ... যদি মায়ের বাড়িটি প্রথমে ঠিক হয়ে যায়, তাহলে আর আমি কোন কিছুর জন্য ভাবি না। ... আমি ইতিপূর্বেই ভারতবর্ষে চলে যেতাম, কিন্তু ভারতবর্ষে টাকা নাই। হাজার হাজার লোক রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংসকে মানে, কিন্তু কেউ একটি পয়সা দেবে না -- এই হচ্ছে ভারতবর্ষ। এখানে লোকের টাকা আছে, আর তারা দেয়। আসছে শীতে আমি ভারতবর্ষে যাচ্ছি। ততদিন তোমরা মিলেমিশে থাকো।

জগৎ উচ্চ উচ্চ নীতির (principles) জন্য আদৌ ব্যস্ত নয়; তারা চায় ব্যক্তি (person)। তারা যাকে পছন্দ করে, তার কথা ধৈর্যের সহিত শুনবে, তা যতই অসার হোক না কেন -- কিন্তু যাকে তারা পছন্দ করে না, তার কথা শুনবেই না। এইটি মনে রেখো এবং লোকের সহিত সেইমত ব্যবহার করো। সব ঠিক হয়ে যাবে। যদি শাসন করতে চাও, সকলের গোলাম হয়ে যাও। এই হল আসল রহস্য। কথাগুলি রক্ষা হলেও ভালবাসায় ফল হবেই। যে-কোন ভাষার আবরণেই থাকুক না কেন, ভালবাসা মানুষ আপনা হতেই বুঝতে পারে।

ভায়া, রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস যে ভগবানের বাবা, তাতে আমার সন্দেহমাত্র নাই; তবে তিনি কি বলতেন, লোককে দেখতে দাও; তুমি জোর করে কি দেখাতে পার? -- এইমাত্র আমার objection (আপত্তি)।

লোকে বলুক, আমরা কি বলব? দাদা, বেদ-বেদান্ত পুরাণ-ভাগবতে যে কি আছে, তা রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংসকে না পড়লে কিছুতেই বুঝা যাবে না। His life is a searchlight of infinite power thrown upon the whole mass of Indian religious thought. He was the living commentary to the Vedas and to their aim. He had lived in one life the whole cycle of the national religious existence in India.^২

^১ এই পত্রখানির প্রথম দুই প্যারা ও ৪র্থ প্যারার শেষার্ধ ইংরেজীতে লিখিত।

^২ তাঁহার জীবন অনন্তশক্তিপূর্ণ একটি সন্ধানী আলো; ইহা ভারতের সমগ্র ধর্মভাবের উপর বিচ্ছুরিত হইয়াছে। তিনি বেদ ও বেদান্তের জীবন্ত ভাষ্যস্বরূপ ছিলেন এবং এক জীবনে ভারতের জাতীয় ধর্মজীবনের সমগ্র কল্পটি অতিবাহিত করিয়াছেন।

ভগবান শ্রীকৃষ্ণ জন্মেছিলেন কিনা জানি না, বুদ্ধ চৈতন্য প্রভৃতি একঘেয়ে, রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস the latest and the most perfect (সবচেয়ে আধুনিক এবং সবচেয়ে পূর্ণবিকশিত চরিত্র) -- জ্ঞান, প্রেম, বৈরাগ্য, লোকহিতচিকীর্ষা, উদারতার জমাট; কারণ সঙ্গে কি তাঁহার তুলনা হয়? তাঁকে যে বুঝতে পারে না, তার জন্ম বৃথা। আমি তাঁর জন্মজন্মান্তরের দাস, এই আমার পরম ভাগ্য, তাঁর একটা কথা বেদবেদান্ত অপেক্ষা অনেক বড়। তস্য দাস দাস-দাসোহহং। তবে একঘেয়ে গোঁড়ামি দ্বারা তাঁর ভাবের ব্যাঘাত হয় -- এইজন্য চটি। তাঁর নাম বরং ডুবে যাক -- তাঁর উপদেশ (শিক্ষা) ফলবতী হোক। তিনি কি নামের দাস?

ভায়া, যীশুখ্রীষ্টকে জেলে-মালায় ভগবান বলেছিল, পন্ডিতেরা মেরে ফেললে; বুদ্ধকে বেনে-রাখালে তাঁর জীবদ্দশায় মেনেছিল। রামকৃষ্ণকে জীবদ্দশায় -- নাইনটিহু সেঞ্চুরির (উনবিংশ শতাব্দীর) শেষভাগে ইউনিভার্সিটির ভূত ব্রহ্মদাত্যারা ঈশ্বর বলে পূজা করছে। ... হাজার হাজার বৎসর পূর্বে তাঁদের (কৃষ্ণ, বুদ্ধ, খ্রীষ্ট প্রভৃতির) দু-দশটি কথা পুঁথিতে আছে মাত্র। ‘যার সঙ্গে ঘর করিনি, সেই বড় ঘরনী’ -- এ যে আজন্ম দিনরাত্রি সঙ্গ করেও তাঁদের চেয়ে ঢের বড় বলে বোধ হয়, এই ব্যাপারটা কি বুঝতে পার ভায়া?

মা-ঠাকরুন কি বস্তু বুঝতে পারনি, এখনও কেহই পার না, ক্রমে পারবে। ভায়া, শক্তি বিনা জগতের উদ্ধার হবে না। আমাদের দেশ সকলের অধম কেন, শক্তিহীন কেন? -- শক্তির অবমাননা সেখানে বলে। মা-ঠাকুরানী ভারতে পুনরায় সেই মহাশক্তি জাগাতে এসেছেন, তাঁকে অবলম্বন করে আবার সব গার্গী মৈত্রেয়ী জগতে জন্মাবে। দেখছ কি ভায়া, ক্রমে সব বুঝবে। এইজন্য তাঁর মঠ প্রথমে চাই। রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস বরং যান, আমি ভীত নই। মা-ঠাকুরানী গেলে সর্বনাশ! শক্তির কৃপা না হলে কি ঘোড়ার ডিম হবে! আমেরিকা ইউরোপে কি দেখছি? -- শক্তির পূজা, শক্তির পূজা। তবু এরা অজানতে পূজা করে, কামের দ্বারা করে। আর যারা বিশুদ্ধভাবে, সাত্ত্বিকভাবে, মাতৃভাবে পূজা করবে, তাদের কী কল্যাণ না হবে! আমার চোখ খুলে যাচ্ছে, দিন দিন সব বুঝতে পারছি। সেইজন্য আগে মায়ের জন্য মঠ করতে হবে। আগে মা আর মায়ের মেয়েরা, তারপর বাবা আর বাপের ছেলেরা, এই কথা বুঝতে পার কি?

সকলে ভাল, সকলকে আশীর্বাদ কর। দাদা, দুনিয়াময় তাঁর ঘর ছাড়া আর সকল জায়গাতেই যে ভাবের ঘরে চুরি! দাদা, রাগ করো না, তোমরা এখনও কেউ মাকে বোঝনি। মায়ের কৃপা আমার উপর বাপের কৃপার চেয়ে লক্ষ গুণ বড়। ... ঐ মায়ের দিকে আমিও একটু গোঁড়া। মার হুকুম হলেই বীরভদ্র ভূতপ্রেত সব করতে পারে। তারক ভায়া, আমেরিকা আসবার আগে মাকে আশীর্বাদ করতে চিঠি লিখেছিলুম, তিনি এক আশীর্বাদ দিলেন, অমনি ছুপ করে পগার পার, এই বুঝ। দাদা, এই দারণ শীতে গাঁয়ে গাঁয়ে লোকচার করে লড়াই করে টাকার যোগাড় করছি -- মায়ের মঠ হবে।

বাবুরামের মার বুড়োবয়সে বুদ্ধির হানি হয়েছে। জ্যাস্ত দুর্গা ছেড়ে মাটির দুর্গা পূজা করতে বসেছে। দাদা, বিশ্বাস বড় ধন; দাদা, জ্যাস্ত দুর্গার পূজা দেখাব, তবে আমার নাম। তুমি জমি কিনে জ্যাস্ত দুর্গা মাকে যে দিন বসিয়ে দেবে, সেই দিন আমি একবার হাঁপ ছাড়ব। তার আগে আমি দেশে যাচ্ছি না। যত শীঘ্র পারবে -- । টাকা পাঠাতে পারলে আমি হাঁপ ছেড়ে বাঁচি; তোমরা যোগাড় করে এই আমার দুর্গোৎসবটি করে দাও দেখি। গিরিশ ঘোষ মায়ের পূজা খুব করছে, ধন্য সে, তার কুল ধন্য। দাদা, মায়ের কথা মনে পড়লে সময় সময় বলি, ‘কো রামঃ?’ দাদা, ও ঐ যে বলছি ওইখানটায় আমার গোঁড়ামি।

রামকৃষ্ণ পরমহংস ঈশ্বর ছিলেন কি মানুষ ছিলেন, যা হয় বলো, দাদা, কিন্তু যার মায়ের উপর

ভক্তি নাই, তাকে ধিক্কার দিও।

নিরঞ্জন লাঠিবাজি করে, কিন্তু তার মায়ের উপর বড় ভক্তি। তার লাঠি হজম হয়ে যায়। নিরঞ্জন এমন কার্য করছে যে, তোমরা শুনলে অবাক হয়ে যাবে। আমি খবর রাখছি। তুমিও যে মাদ্রাজীদের সঙ্গে যোগদান করে কার্য করছ, সে বড়ই ভাল। দাদা, তোমার উপর আমার ঢের ভরসা, সকলকে মিলেমিশে চালাও ভায়া। মায়ের জমিটা যেমন করেছ, অমনি আমি হুপ্ করে আসছি আর কি। জমিটা বড় চাই, building (বাড়ি) আপাততঃ মাটির ঘর ভাল, ক্রমে ভাল building (পাকাবাড়ি) তুলব, চিন্তা নাই।

ম্যালেরিয়ার প্রধান কারণ জল। দুটো তিনটে ফিলটার তৈয়ার কর না কেন? জল সিদ্ধ করে ফিলটার করলে কোন ভয় থাকে না।

হরিশের কথা তো কিছুই শুনতে পাই না। আর দক্ষরাজা কেমন আছে? সকলের বিশেষ খবর চাই। আমাদের মঠের চিন্তা নাই, আমি দেশে গিয়ে সব ঠিকঠাক করব।

দুটো বড় Pasteur's bacteria-proof (পাস্তুরের জীবাণু-প্রতিষেধক) ফিলটার কিনবে; সেই জলে রান্না, সেই জল খাওয়া -- ম্যালেরিয়ার বাপ পালিয়ে যাবে। ... On and on; work, work, work; this is only the beginning (এগিয়ে চল; কাজ, কাজ, কাজ; এই তো সবে আরম্ভ)।

কিমধিকমিতি --

বিবেকানন্দ

প্রাণাধিকেষু,

তারকদাদা ও হরির আগের লিখিত এক পত্র শেষে পাই। তাহাতে অবগত হইলাম যে, তাঁহারা কলিকাতায় আসিতেছেন। পূর্বের পত্রে সমস্ত জানিয়াছি। রামদয়ালবাবুর পত্র পাই। তথামত ছবি পাঠান হইবে। মা-ঠাকুরানীর জন্য জমি খরিদ করিতে হইবে, তাহা ঠিক করিবে -- অর্থাৎ বিল্ডিং আপাতত মাটির হউক, পরে দেখা যাইবে। কিন্তু জমিটা প্রশস্ত চাই। কি প্রকারে কাহাকে টাকা পাঠাইব, সমস্ত সন্ধান করিয়া লিখিবে। তোমাদের মধ্যে একজন বৈষয়িক কার্যের ভার লইবে।

সাভেলকে সমস্ত বৈষয়িক ব্যাপার সন্ধান করিয়া এক পত্র লিখিতে বলিবে। সাভেল চাকরি-বাকরি করিতেছে কেমন? যদি প্রভুর ইচ্ছা হয়, শীঘ্রই অনেক কাজ করিতে পারিবে। হরমোহন কেদারবাবুর টাকার কথা কি লিখিয়াছে। আমি টাকা পত্রপাঠ পাঠাইব; কিন্তু কাহার নামে ও কাহাকে পাঠাইব, জানি না। একজন সেখানে এজেন্ট না হইলে কোনও কাজ চলিতে পারে না।

বিমলা -- কালীকৃষ্ণ ঠাকুরের জামাতা -- এক সুদীর্ঘ পত্র লিখিয়াছেন যে, তাঁহার হিন্দুধর্মের এখন যথেষ্ট ব্যুৎপত্তি! আমাকে প্রতিষ্ঠা হইতে সাবধান হইবার জন্য অনেক সুন্দর উপদেশ দিয়াছেন। এবং তাঁহার গুরু শশীবাবুর সাংসারিক দারিদ্রের কথা লিখিতেছেন। শিব, শিব! যাঁহার বড় মানুষ শ্বশুর তিনি কিছুই পারেন না, আর আমার তিন কালে শ্বশুর মোটেই নাই!! শশীবাবুর প্রণীত এক পুস্তক পাঠাইয়াছেন। উক্ত পুস্তকে সূক্ষ্মতত্ত্বের বৈজ্ঞানিক ব্যাখ্যা করা হইয়াছে। বিমলার ইচ্ছা যে, এতদেশ হইতে উক্ত পুস্তক ছাপাইবার সাহায্য হয়। তাহার তো কোন উপায় দেখি না, কারণ ইহারা বাংলা ভাষা তো মোটেই জানে না। তাহার উপর হিন্দুধর্মের সহায়তা কৃশ্চানরা কেন করিবে? বিমলা এক্ষণে সহজ ব্রহ্মজ্ঞান লাভ করিয়াছেন -- পৃথিবীর মধ্যে হিন্দু শ্রেষ্ঠ, তন্মধ্যে ব্রাহ্মণ! ব্রাহ্মণমধ্যে শশী ও বিমলা -- এই দুইজন ছাড়া পৃথিবীতে আর কাহারও ধর্ম হইতে পারেই না; কারণ তাহাদের 'উর্ধ্বস্রোতস্বিনীবৃত্তি' নিচের দিকে ঝুঁকিয়া পড়িয়াছে এবং উক্ত দুইজনের কেবল উচ্চদিকে ...! এই প্রকারে বিমলা এক্ষণে সনাতন ধর্মের যাহা আসল সার, তাহা খিঁচিয়া লইয়াছেন!

^১ ত্রিভুবনের হিত করিতে যিনি ভালবাসেন।

হরমোহন মধ্যে এক দিগ্গজ পত্র লেখেন। তাতে প্রধান খবর প্রায়ই এই রকম, যথা -- ‘অমুক ময়রার দোকানে অমুক ছেলে আপনার নিন্দা করিল; তাহাতে অসহ্য হওয়ায় আমি লড়াই করি’ ইত্যাদি। কে তাকে লড়াই করিতে বলে, প্রভু জানেন। ... যাক, তাহার ভালবাসাকে বলিহারি যাই এবং তাহার perseverance (অধ্যবসায়)-কে। মধ্যে যদি পার immediately (অবিলম্বে) হাওলাত করে কেদারবাবুর টাকা সুদসমেত দিও, আমি পত্রপাঠ পাঠাইয়া দিব। কাকে টাকা পাঠাই, কোথায় পাঠাই। তোমাদের যে হরিঘোষের গোয়াল। আমার টাকার কিছুই অভাব নাই, ... কেদারবাবুর টাকা twice over (দ্বিগুণ পরিশোধ করিব), তাহাকে ক্ষুণ্ণ হইতে মানা করিবে। আমি জানতাম, উপেন তাহা পরিশোধ করিয়াছে এতদিনে। যাক, উপেনকে কিছুই বলিবার আবশ্যিক নাই। আমি পত্রপাঠ পাঠিয়ে দিব।

যে মহাপুরুষ -- হুজুক সাজ করে দেশে ফিরে যেতে লিখছেন, তাঁকে বলো, কুকুরের মতো কারুর পা চাটা আমার স্বভাব নহে। যদি সে মরদ হয় তো একটা মঠ বানিয়ে আমায় ডাকতে বলে। নইলে কার ঘরে ফিরে যাব? এ দেশ আমার more (অধিক) ঘর -- হিন্দুস্থানে কি আছে? কে ধর্মের আদর করে? কে বিদ্যের আদর করে? ঘরে ফিরে এস!!! ঘর কোথা?

এবারকার মহোৎসব এমনি করবে যে, আর কখনও তেমন হয় নাই। আমি একটা ‘পরমহংস মহাশয়ের জীবনচরিত’ লিখে পাঠাব। সেটা ছাপিয়ে ও তর্জমা করে বিক্রি করবে। বিতরণ করলে লোকে পড়ে না, কিছু দাম লইবে। হুজুকের শেষ!!!... এই তো কলির সন্ধ্যা। আমি মুক্তি চাই না, ভক্তি চাই না; আমি লাখ নরকে যাব, ‘বসন্তবল্লোকহিতং চরন্তঃ’ (বসন্তের ন্যায় লোকের কল্যাণ আচরণ করে) -- এই আমার ধর্ম। আমি কুড়ে, নিষ্ঠুর, নির্দয়, স্বার্থপর ব্যক্তিদের সহিত কোন সংস্রব রাখিতে চাই না। যাহার ভাগ্যে থাকে, সে এই মহাকার্যে সহায়তা করিতে পারে।... সাবধান, সাবধান! এ সকল কি ছেলেখেলা, স্বপন-দেখা নাকি? মধ্যে, সাবধান! সুরেশ দত্তের ‘রামকৃষ্ণচরিত’ পড়িলাম, মন্দ হয় নাই। শশী সাভেলের কোন উপকার যদি তোমাদের দ্বারা হয়, করিবে। বেচারী ভক্ত মানুষ, বড়ই কষ্ট পাচ্ছে। আমি তো দাদা এখানে বসে কোন উপায় দেখি না। কিমধিকমিতি।

দাদা, একবার গর্জে গর্জে মধুপানে লেগে যাও দিকি -- মাস্টার, জি. সি. ঘোষ, অতুল, রামদা, নৃত্যগোপাল, শাঁকচুল্লি! বলি, শাঁকচুল্লির কোনও কথাই তো তোমরা লেখ না! সে গেল কোথা? মাকে ভক্তি করছে তেমনি কিনা? নৃত্যগোপাল-দাদার শরীর বেশ ভাল হয়েছে কিনা, বাবুরাম যোগেন সেরেছে কিনা -- ইত্যাদি আমি সকলের বিষয় পুঞ্জানুপুঞ্জ জানতে চাই। শরৎকে কি সাভেলকে একটি বিশেষ পত্রে সব খুলে লিখতে বলবে। কালীকৃষ্ণ, ভবনাথ, দাশু, সাতু, হরি চাটুয্যে সকলকে তোমরা ভালবাস কিনা -- সব লিখবে।... তোরা এক একটা মানুষ হ দিকি রে বাবা! গঙ্গাধর খেতড়ি থেকে তো পালায় নাই?

বলি, আর খবরের কাগজ পাঠাবার আবশ্যিক নাই। তার ঢের মেরে গেছে। তোদের কারও organising power (সংগঠন-শক্তি) নাই দেখিতেছি; বড়ই দুঃখের বিষয়। সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা দিবে, সকলের help (সাহায্য) আমি চাই; কারুর সঙ্গে বিবাদবিসংবাদ খবরদার যাতে না হয়। Neither money pays, nor name, nor fame, nor learning it; it is character that can cleave through adamant walls of difficulties,² মনে রেখো। লোকের সঙ্গে যাওয়া-আসা, বিশেষ করিয়া মতামত pooh pooh (দুঃ ছাই) করিবে না, তাতে লোক বড়ই চটে। জায়গায় জায়গায় এক একটা সেন্টার করিতে হইবে -- এ তো বড় সহজ! যেমন তোমরা জায়গায় জায়গায় ফের,

² টাকায় কিছু হয় না, নামযশে কিছু হয় না, বিদ্যায় কিছু হয় না, চরিত্রই বাধাবিয়ের বজ্রদৃঢ় প্রাচীর ভেদ করতে পারে।

অমনি একটি সেন্টার করবে সেখানে। এই রকম করে কার্য হবে। যেখানে পাঁচজন লোক তাঁকে মানে,
সেখানেই এক ডেরা -- এমনি করে চল এবং সর্বদা সকল জায়গার সঙ্গে communication
(যোগাযোগ) রাখিতে হইবে। ইতি

অভিনন্দনসহ,

...মা-ঠাকুরানীকে আমার বহুত সাষ্টাঙ্গ প্রণাম জানাইবেন।

শিব শিব!

এখন আমি নিউ ইয়র্ক শহরে। এ শহর গরমিকালে ঠিক কলকেতার মতো গরম, অজস্র ঘাম বয়ে পড়ছে, হাওয়ার লেশ নাই। দুই মাস উত্তর দিকে গিয়েছিলাম, সেথায় বেশ ঠাণ্ডা। এ পত্রপাঠ জবাব লিখিবে। এ পত্র পৌঁছবার পূর্বে আমি ইংলন্ডে চলিলাম। ইতি

প্রিয় শশী,

পূর্বপত্রে যদি ভুল হইয়া থাকে, তাহা হইলে এই পত্রে লিখি যে কালী যে দিবস start (যাত্রা) করিবে, সেদিন কিম্বা তাহার আগে যেন E. T. মহাশয়াসু,

আপনার পত্রে সাতিশয় আনন্দ লাভ করিলাম। যদি আমার বা আমার গুরুভ্রাতাদিগের কোনও একটি বিশেষ আদরের বস্তু ত্যাগ করিলে অনেক শুদ্ধসত্ত্ব এবং যথার্থ স্বদেশহিতৈষী আমাদের কার্যে সহায় হন, তাহা হইলে সে ত্যাগে আমাদের মুহূর্তমাত্র বিলম্ব হইবে না বা এক ফোঁটাও চক্ষের জল পড়িবে না জানিবেন এবং কার্যকালে দেখিবেন। তবে এতদিন কাহাকেও তো দেখি নাই, সে প্রকার সহায়তায় অগ্রসর। দু-এক জন আমাদের hobby-র (খেয়ালের) জায়গায় তাঁহাদের hobby বসাইতে চাহিছেন, এই পর্যন্ত। যদি যথার্থ স্বদেশের বা মনুষ্যকুলের কল্যাণ হয়, শ্রীগুরুর পূজা ছাড়া কি কথা, কোনও উৎকট পাপ করিয়া খ্রীষ্টীয়ানদের অনন্ত নরক-ভোগ করিতেও প্রস্তুত আছি, জানিবেন। তবে মানুষ দেখিতে দেখিতে বৃদ্ধ হতে চলিলাম। এ সংসার বড়ই কঠিন স্থান। গ্রীক দার্শনিকের লঠন হাতে করিয়া অনেক দিন হইতেই বেড়াইতেছি। আমার গুরুঠাকুর সর্বদা একটি বাউলের গান গাহিতেন -- সেইটি মনে পড়িল:

‘মনের মানুষ হয় যে জনা
নয়নে তায় যায় গো জানা,
সে দু এক জনা,
সে রসের মানুষ উজান পথে করে আনাগোনা।

এই তো গেল আমার তরফ থেকে। এর একটিও অতিরঞ্জিত নয় জানিবেন এবং কার্যকালেও দেখিবেন।

তারপর যে-সকল দেশহিতৈষী মহাত্মা গুরুপূজাটি ছাড়লেই আমাদের সঙ্গে যোগ দিতে পারেন, তাঁদের সম্বন্ধেও আমার এতটুকু খুঁত আছে। বলি, এত দেশের জন্য বুক ধড়ফড়, কলিজা ছেঁড়-ছেঁড়, প্রাণ যায়-যায়, কঠে ঘড়-ঘড় ইত্যাদি -- আর একটি ঠাকুরেই সব বন্ধ করে দিলে?

এই যে প্রবল তরঙ্গশালিনী নদী, যার বেগে পাহাড়-পর্বত যেন ভেসে যায়, একটি ঠাকুরে একেবারে হিমালয়ে ফিরিয়ে দিলে! বলি, ও-রকম দেশহিতৈষিতাতে কি বড় কাজ হবে মনে করেন, বা ও-রকম সহায়তায় বড় বিশেষ উপকার হতে পারে? আপনারা জানেন, আমি তো কিছুই বুঝিতে পারি না। তৃষ্ণার্তের এত জলের বিচার, ক্ষুধায় মৃতপ্রায়ের এত অন্নবিচার, এত নাক-সিটকানো? কে জানে কার কি গতিমতি! আমার যেন মনে হয়, ও-সব লোক গ্লাসকেসের ভিতর ভাল; কাজের সময় যত ওরা পিছনে থাকে, ততই কল্যাণ।

প্রীত ন মানে জাত কুজাত।
ভুখ ন মানে বাসী ভাত।।

আমি তো এই জানি। তবে আমার সব ভুল হতে পারে, ঠাকুরের আঁটিটি গলায় আটকে যদি সব মারা যায় তো না হয় আঁটিটি ছাড়িয়া দেওয়া যায়। যাহা হউক, এ সম্বন্ধে আপনাদের সঙ্গে অনেক কথা কহিবার অত্যন্ত আকাঙ্ক্ষা রহিল।

এ সকল কথা কহিবার জন্য রোগ, শোক, মৃত্যু সকলেই আমায় এ পর্যন্ত সময় দিয়াছেন, বিশ্বাস -- এখনও দিবেন। ইতি

এই নববর্ষে আপনার সমস্ত কামনা পূর্ণ হউক।

SIX LESSONS ON RAJA-YOGA

(These lessons are composed of notes of class talks given by Swami Vivekananda to an intimate audience in the house of Mrs. Sara C. Bull, a devoted American disciple, and were preserved by her and finally printed in 1913 for private circulation — Ed.)

Râja-Yoga is as much a science as any in the world. It is an analysis of the mind, a gathering of the facts of the supersensuous world and so building up the spiritual world. All the great spiritual teachers the world has known said, "I see and I know." Jesus, Paul, and Peter all claimed actual perception of the spiritual truths they taught.

This perception is obtained by Yoga.

Neither memory nor consciousness can be the limitation of existence. There is a superconscious state. Both it and the unconscious state are sensationless, but with a vast difference between them — the difference between ignorance and knowledge. Present Yoga as an appeal to reason, as a science.

Concentration of the mind is the source of all knowledge.

Yoga teaches us to make matter our slave, as it ought to be. Yoga means "yoke", "to join", that is, to join the soul of man with the supreme Soul or God.

The mind acts in and under consciousness. What we call consciousness is only one link in the infinite chain that is our nature.

This "I" of ours covers just a little consciousness and a vast amount of unconsciousness, while over it, and mostly unknown to it, is the superconscious plane.

Through faithful practice, layer after layer of the mind opens before us, and each reveals new facts to us. We see as if it were new worlds created before us, new powers are put into our hands, but we must not stop by the way or allow ourselves to be dazzled by these "beads of glass" when the mine of diamonds lies before us.

God alone is our goal. Failing to reach God, we die.

Three things are necessary to the student who wishes to succeed.

First. Give up all ideas of enjoyment in this world and the next, care only for God and Truth. We are here to know truth, not for enjoyment. Leave that to brutes who enjoy as we never can. Man is a thinking being and must struggle on until he conquers death, until he sees the light. He must not spend himself in vain talking that bears no fruit. Worship of society and popular opinion is idolatry. The soul has no sex, no country, no place, no time.

Second. Intense desire to know Truth and God. Be eager for them, long for them, as a drowning man longs for breath. Want only God, take nothing else, let not "seeming" cheat you any longer. Turn from all and seek only God.

Third. The six trainings: First — Restraining the mind from going outward. Second — Restraining the senses. Third — Turning the mind inward. Fourth — Suffering everything without murmuring. Fifth — Fastening the mind to one idea. Take the subject before you and think it out; never leave it. Do not count time. Sixth — Think constantly of your real nature. Get rid of superstition. Do not hypnotise yourself into a belief in your own inferiority. Day and night tell yourself what you really are, until you realise (actually realise) your oneness with God.

Without these disciplines, no results can be gained.

We can be conscious of the Absolute, but we can never express It. The moment we try to express It, we limit It and It ceases to be Absolute.

We have to go beyond sense limit and transcend even reason, and we have the power to do this.

[After practising the first lesson in breathing a week, the pupil reports to the teacher.]

FIRST LESSON

This is a lesson seeking to bring out the individuality. Each individuality must be cultivated. All will meet at the centre. "Imagination is the door to inspiration and the basis of all thought." All prophets, poets, and discoverers have had great imaginative power. The explanation of nature is in us; the stone falls outside, but gravitation is in us, not outside. Those who stuff themselves, those who starve themselves, those who sleep too much, those who sleep too little, cannot become Yogis. Ignorance, fickleness, jealousy, laziness, and excessive attachment are the great enemies to success in Yoga practice. The three great requisites are:

First. Purity, physical and mental; all uncleanness, all that would draw the mind down, must be abandoned.

Second. Patience: At first there will be wonderful manifestations, but they will all cease. This is the hardest period, but hold fast; in the end the gain is sure if you have patience.

Third. Perseverance: Persevere through thick and thin, through health and sickness, never miss a day in practice.

The best time for practice is the junction of day and night, the calmest time in the tides of our bodies, the zero point between two states. If this cannot be done, practise upon rising and going to bed. Great personal cleanliness is necessary — a daily bath.

After bathing, sit down and hold the seat firm, that is, imagine that you sit as firm as a rock, that nothing can move you. Hold the head and shoulders and the hips in a straight line, keeping the spinal column free; all action is along it, and it must not be impaired.

Begin with your toes and think of each part of your body as perfect; picture it so in your mind, touching each part if you prefer to do so. Pass upward bit by bit until you reach the head, thinking of each as perfect, lacking nothing. Then think of the whole as perfect, an instrument given to you by God to enable you to attain Truth, the vessel in which you are to cross the ocean and reach the shores of eternal truth. When this has been done, take a long breath through both nostrils, throw it out again, and then hold it out as long as you comfortably can. Take four such breaths, then breathe naturally and pray for illumination.

"I meditate on the glory of that being who created this universe; may he illuminate my mind." Sit and meditate on this ten or fifteen minutes.

Tell your experiences to no one but your Guru.

Talk as little as possible.

Keep your thoughts on virtue; what we think we tend to become.

Holy meditation helps to burn out all mental impurities. All who are not Yogis are slaves; bond after bond must be broken to make us free.

All can find the reality beyond. If God is true, we must feel him as a fact, and if there is a soul, we ought to be able to see it and feel it.

The only way to find if there be a soul is to be something which is not the body.

The Yogis class our organs under two chief heads: organs of sense and organs of motion, or knowledge and action.

The internal organ or mind has four aspects. First — Manas, the cogitating or thinking faculty, which is usually almost entirely wasted, because uncontrolled; properly governed, it is a wonderful power. Second — Buddhi, the will (sometimes called the intellect). Third — Ahamkâra, the self-conscious egotism (from Aham). Fourth — Chitta, the substance in and through which all the faculties act, the floor of the mind as it were; or the sea in which the various faculties are waves.

Yoga is the science by which we stop Chitta from assuming, or becoming transformed into, several faculties. As the reflection of the moon on the sea is broken or blurred by the waves, so is the reflection of the Atman, the true Self, broken by the mental waves. Only when the sea is stilled to mirror-like calmness, can the reflection of the moon be seen, and only when the "mind-stuff", the Chitta is controlled to absolute calmness, is the Self to be recognised.

The mind is not the body, though it is matter in a finer form. It is not eternally bound by the body. This is proved as we get occasionally loosened from it. We can learn to do this at will by controlling the senses.

When we can do that fully, we shall control the universe, because our world is only what the senses bring us. Freedom is the test of the higher being. Spiritual life begins when you have loosened yourself from the control of the senses. He whose senses rule him is worldly — is a slave.

If we could entirely stop our mind-stuff from breaking into waves, it would put an end to our bodies. For millions of years we have worked so hard to manufacture these bodies that in the struggle we have forgotten our real purpose in getting them, which was to become perfect. We have grown to think that body-making is the end of our efforts. This is Mâyâ. We must break this delusion and return to our original aim and realise we are not the body, it is our servant.

Learn to take the mind out and to see that it is separate from the body. We endow the body with sensation and life and then think it is alive and real. We have worn it so long that we forget that it is not identical with us. Yoga is to help us put off our body when we please and see it as our servant, our instrument, not our ruler. Controlling the mental powers is the first great aim in Yoga practices. The second is concentrating them in full force upon any subject.

You cannot be a Yogi if you talk much.

SECOND LESSON

(These lessons are composed of notes of class talks given by Swami Vivekananda to an intimate audience in the house of Mrs. Sara C. Bull, a devoted American disciple, and were preserved by her and finally printed in 1913 for private circulation — Ed.)

This Yoga is known as the eightfold Yoga, because it is divided into eight principal parts. These are:

First — Yama. This is most important and has to govern the whole life; it has five divisions:

- 1st. Not injuring any being by thought, word, or deed.
- 2nd. Non-covetousness in thought, word, or deed.
- 3rd. Perfect chastity in thought, word, or deed.
- 4th. Perfect truthfulness in thought, word, or deed.
- 5th. Non-receiving of gifts.

Second — Niyama. The bodily care, bathing daily, dietary, etc.

Third — Âsana, posture. Hips, shoulders, and head must be held straight, leaving the spine free.

Fourth — Prânâyâma, restraining the breath (in order to get control of the Prâna or vital force).

Fifth — Pratyâhâra, turning the mind inward and restraining it from going outward, revolving the matter in the mind in order to understand it.

Sixth — Dhâranâ, concentration on one subject.

Seventh — Dhyâna, meditation.

Eighth — Samâdhi, illumination, the aim of all our efforts.

Yama and Niyama are for lifelong practice. As for the others, we do as the leech does, not leave one blade of grass before firmly grasping another. In other words, we have thoroughly to understand and practise one step before taking another.

The subject of this lesson is Pranayama, or controlling the Prana. In Raja-Yoga breathing enters the psychic plane and brings us to the spiritual. It is the fly-wheel of the whole bodily system. It acts first upon the lungs, the lungs act on the heart, the heart acts upon the circulation, this in turn upon the brain, and the brain upon the mind. The will can produce an outside sensation, and the outside sensation can arouse the will. Our wills are weak; we do not realise their power, we are so much bound up in matter. Most of our action is from outside in. Outside nature throws us off our balance, and we cannot (as we ought) throw nature off her balance. This is all wrong; the stronger power is really within.

The great saints and teachers were those who had conquered this world of thought within themselves and so spake with power. The story (For the story see Complete Works of Swami Vivekananda, Vol. I.) of the minister confined in a high tower, who was released through the efforts of his wife who brought him a beetle, honey, a silken thread, a cord, and a rope, illustrates the way we gain control of our mind by using first the physical regulation of the breath as the silken thread. That enables us to lay hold on one power after another until the rope of concentration delivers us from the prison of the body and we are free. Reaching freedom, we can discard the means used to bring us there.

Pranayama has three parts:

- 1st. Puraka — inhaling.
- 2nd. Kumbhaka — restraining.
- 3rd. Rechaka — exhaling.

There are two currents passing through the brain and circulating down the sides of the spine, crossing at the base and returning to the brain. One of these currents, called the "sun" (Pingalâ), starts from the left hemisphere of the brain, crosses at the base of the brain to the right side of the spine, and recrosses at the base of the spine, like one-half of the figure eight.

The other current, the "moon" (Idâ), reverses this action and completes this figure eight. Of course, the lower part is much longer than the upper. These currents flow day and night and make deposits of the great life forces at different points, commonly known as "plexuses"; but we are rarely conscious of them. By concentration we can learn to feel them and trace them over all parts of the body. These "sun" and "moon" currents are intimately connected with breathing, and by regulating this we get control of the body.

In the Katha Upanishad the body is described as the chariot, the mind is the reins, the intellect is the charioteer, the senses are the horses, and the objects of the senses their road. The self is the rider, seated in the chariot. Unless the rider has understanding and can make the charioteer control his horses, he can never attain the goal; but the senses, like vicious steeds, will drag him where they please and may even destroy him. These two currents are the great "check rein" in the hands of the charioteer, and he must get control of this to control the horses. We have to get the power to become moral; until we do that, we cannot control our actions. Yoga alone enables us to carry into practice the teachings of morality. To become moral is the object of Yoga. All great teachers were Yogis and controlled every current. The Yogis arrest these currents at the base of the spine and force them through the centre of the spinal column. They then become the current of knowledge, which only exists in the Yogi.

Second Lesson in Breathing: One method is not for all. This breathing must be done with rhythmic regularity, and the easiest way is by counting; as that is purely mechanical, we repeat the sacred word "Om" a certain number of times instead.

The process of Pranayama is as follows: Close the right nostril with the thumb and then slowly inhale through the left nostril, repeating the word "Om" four times.

Then firmly close both nostrils by placing the forefinger on the left one and hold the breath in, mentally repeating "Om" eight times.

Then, removing the thumb from the right nostril, exhale slowly through that, repeating "Om" four times.

As you close the exhalation, draw in the abdomen forcibly to expel all the air from the lungs. Then slowly inhale through the right nostril, keeping the left one closed, repeating "Om" four times. Next close the right nostril with the thumb and hold the breath while repeating "Om" eight times. Then uncloze the left nostril and slowly exhale, repeating "Om" four times, drawing in the abdomen as before. Repeat this whole operation twice at each sitting, that is, making four Pranayamas, two for each nostril. Before taking your seat it is well to begin with prayer.

This needs to be practised a week; then gradually increase the duration of breathing, keeping the same ratio, that is, if you repeat "Om" six times at inhalation, then do the same at exhalation and twelve times during Kumbhaka. These exercises will make us more spiritual, more pure, more holy. Do not be led aside into any byways or seek after power. Love is the only power that stays by us and increases. He who seeks to come to God through Raja-Yoga must be strong mentally, physically, morally, and spiritually. Take every step in that light.

Of hundreds of thousands only one soul will say, "I will go beyond, and I will penetrate to God." Few can face the truth; but to accomplish anything, we must be willing to die for Truth.

THIRD LESSON

(These lessons are composed of notes of class talks given by Swami Vivekananda to an intimate audience in the house of Mrs. Sara C. Bull, a devoted American disciple, and were preserved by her and finally printed in 1913 for private circulation — Ed.)

Kundalini: Realise the soul not as matter, but as it is. We are thinking of the soul as body, but we must separate it from sense and thought. Then alone can we know we are immortal. Change implies the duality of cause and effect, and all that changes must be mortal. This proves that the body cannot be immortal, nor can the mind, because both are constantly changing. Only the unchangeable can be immortal, because there is nothing to act upon it.

We do not become it, we are it; but we have to clear away the veil of ignorance that hides the truth from us. The body is objectified thought. The "sun" and "moon" currents bring energy to all parts of the body. The surplus energy is stored at certain points (plexuses) along the spinal column commonly known as nerve centres.

These currents are not to be found in dead bodies and can only be traced in a healthy organism.

The Yogi has an advantage; for he is able not only to feel them, but actually to see them. They are luminous in his life, and so are the great nerve centres.

There is conscious as well as unconscious action. The Yogis possess a third kind, the superconscious, which in all countries and in all ages has been the source of all religious knowledge. The superconscious state makes no mistakes, but whereas the action of the instinct would be purely mechanical, the former is beyond consciousness.

It has been called inspiration, but the Yogi says, "This faculty is in every human being, and eventually all will enjoy it."

We must give a new direction to the "sun" and "moon" currents and open for them a new passage through the centre of the spinal cord. When we succeed in bringing the currents through this passage called "Sushumnâ", up to the brain, we are for the time being separated entirely from the body.

The nerve centre at the base of the spine near the sacrum is most important. It is the seat of the generative substance of the sexual energy and is symbolised by the Yogi as a triangle containing a tiny serpent coiled up in it. This sleeping serpent is called Kundalini, and to raise this Kundalini is the whole object of Raja-Yoga.

The great sexual force, raised from animal action and sent upward to the great dynamo of the human system, the brain, and there stored up, becomes Ojas or spiritual force. All good thought, all prayer, resolves a part of that animal energy into Ojas and helps to give us spiritual power. This Ojas is the real man and in human beings alone is it possible for this storage of Ojas to be accomplished. One in whom the whole animal sex force has been transformed into Ojas is a god. He speaks with power, and his words regenerate the world.

The Yogi pictures this serpent as being slowly lifted from stage to stage until the highest, the pineal gland, is reached. No man or woman can be really spiritual until the sexual energy, the highest power possessed by man, has been converted into Ojas.

No force can be created; it can only be directed. Therefore we must learn to control the grand powers that are already in our hands and by will power make them spiritual instead of merely animal. Thus it is clearly seen that chastity is the corner-stone of all morality and of all religion. In Raja-Yoga especially, absolute chastity in thought, word, and deed is a sine qua non. The same laws apply to the married and the single. If one wastes the most potent forces of one's being, one cannot become spiritual.

All history teaches us that the great seers of all ages were either monks and ascetics or those who had given up married life; only the pure in life can see God.

Just before making the Prânâyâma, endeavour to visualise the triangle. Close your eyes and picture it vividly in your imagination. See it surrounded by flames and with the serpent coiled in the middle. When you can clearly see the Kundalini, place it in imagination at the base of the spine, and when restraining the breath in Kumbhaka, throw it forcibly down on the head of the serpent to awaken it. The more powerful the imagination, the more quickly will the real result be attained and the Kundalini be awakened. Until it does, imagine it does: try to feel the currents and try to force them through the Sushumna. This hastens their action.

FOURTH LESSON

(These lessons are composed of notes of class talks given by Swami Vivekananda to an intimate audience in the house of Mrs. Sara C. Bull, a devoted American disciple, and were preserved by her and finally printed in 1913 for private circulation — Ed.)

Before we can control the mind we must study it. We have to seize this unstable mind and drag it from its wanderings and fix it on one idea. Over and over again this must be done. By power of will we must get hold of the mind and make it stop and reflect upon the glory of God.

The easiest way to get hold of the mind is to sit quiet and let it drift where it will for a while. Hold fast to the idea, "I am the witness watching my mind drifting. The mind is not I." Then see it think as if it were a thing entirely apart from yourself. Identify yourself with God, never with matter or with the mind.

Picture the mind as a calm lake stretched before you and the thoughts that come and go as bubbles rising and breaking on its surface. Make no effort to control the thoughts, but watch them and follow them in imagination as they float away. This will gradually lessen the circles. For the mind ranges over wide circles of thought and those circles widen out into ever-increasing circles, as in a pond when we throw a stone into it. We want to reverse the process and starting with a huge circle make it narrower until at last we can fix the mind on one point and make it stay there. Hold to the idea, "I am not the mind, I see that I am thinking, I am watching my mind act", and each day the identification of yourself with thought and feeling will grow less, until at last you can entirely separate yourself from the mind and actually know it to be apart from yourself.

When this is done, the mind is your servant to control as you will. The first stage of being a Yogi is to go beyond the senses. When the mind is conquered, he has reached the highest stage.

Live alone as much as possible. The seat should be of comfortable height; put first a grass mat, then a skin (fur), next a silken cover. It is better that the seat has no back and it must stand firm.

Thoughts being pictures, we should not create them. We have to exclude all thought from the mind and make it a blank; as fast as a thought comes we have to banish it. To be able to accomplish this, we must transcend matter and go beyond our body. The whole life of man is really an effort to do this.

Each soul has its own meaning: In our nature these two things are connected.

The highest ideal we have is God. Meditate on Him. We cannot know the Knower, but we are He.

Seeing evil, we are creating it. What we are, we see outside, for the world is our mirror. This little body is a little mirror we have created, but the whole universe is our body. We must think this all the time; then we shall know that we cannot die or hurt another, because he is our own. We are birthless and deathless and we ought only to love.

"This whole universe is my body; all health, all happiness is mine, because all is in the universe." Say, "I am the universe." We finally learn that all action is from us to the mirror.

Although we appear as little waves, the whole sea is at our back, and we are one with it. No wave can exist of itself.

Imagination properly employed is our greatest friend; it goes beyond reason and is the only light that takes us everywhere.

Inspiration is from within and we have to inspire ourselves by our own higher faculties.

FIFTH LESSON

(These lessons are composed of notes of class talks given by Swami Vivekananda to an intimate audience in the house of Mrs. Sara C. Bull, a devoted American disciple, and were preserved by her and finally printed in 1913 for private circulation — Ed.)

Pratyâhâra and Dhâranâ: Krishna says, "All who seek me by whatever means will reach me", "All must reach me." Pratyahara is a gathering toward, an attempt to get hold of the mind and focus it on the desired object. The first step is to let the mind drift; watch it; see what it thinks; be only the witness. Mind is not soul or spirit. It is only matter in a finer form, and we own it and can learn to manipulate it through the nerve energies.

The body is the objective view of what we call mind (subjective). We, the Self, are beyond both body and mind; we are "Atman", the eternal, unchangeable witness. The body is crystallised thought.

When the breath is flowing through the left nostril, it is the time for rest; when through the right, for work; and when through both, the time to meditate. When we are calm and breathing equally through both nostrils, we are in the right condition for quiet meditation. It is no use trying to concentrate at first. Control of thought will come of itself.

After sufficient practice of closing the nostrils with the thumb and forefinger, we shall be able to do it by the power of will, through thought alone.

Prânâyâma is now to be slightly changed. If the student has the name of his "Ishta" (Chosen Ideal), he should use that instead of "Om" during inhalation and exhalation, and use the word "Hum" (pronounced Hoom) during Kumbhaka.

Throw the restrained breath forcibly down on the head of the Kundalini at each repetition of the word Hum and imagine that this awakens her. Identify yourself only with God. After a while thoughts will announce their coming, and we shall learn the way they begin and be aware of what we are going to think, just as on this plane we can look out and see a person coming. This stage is reached when we have learnt to separate ourselves from our minds and see ourselves as one and thought as something apart. Do not let the thoughts grasp you; stand aside, and they will die away.

Follow these holy thoughts; go with them; and when they melt away, you will find the feet of the Omnipotent God. This is the superconscious state; when the idea melts, follow it and melt with it.

Haloës are symbols of inner light and can be seen by the Yogi. Sometimes we may see a face as if surrounded by flames and in them read the character and judge without erring. We may have our Ishta come to us as a vision, and this symbol will be the one upon which we can rest easily and fully concentrate our minds.

We can imagine through all the senses, but we do so mostly through the eyes. Even imagination is half material. In other words, we cannot think without a phantasm. But since animals appear to think, yet have no words, it is probable that there is no inseparable connection between thought and images.

Try to keep up the imagination in Yoga, being careful to keep it pure and holy. We all have our peculiarities in the way of imaginative power; follow the way most natural to you; it will be the easiest.

We are the results of all reincarnations through Karma: "One lamp lighted from another", says the Buddhist — different lamps, but the same light.

Be cheerful, be brave, bathe daily, have patience, purity, and perseverance, then you will become a Yogi in truth. Never try to hurry, and if the higher powers come, remember that they are but side-paths. Do not let them tempt you from the main road; put them aside and hold fast to your only true aim-God. Seek only the Eternal, finding which we are at rest for ever; having the all, nothing is left to strive for, and we are for ever in free and perfect existence — Existence absolute, Knowledge absolute, Bliss absolute.

SIXTH LESSON

(These lessons are composed of notes of class talks given by Swami Vivekananda to an intimate audience in the house of Mrs. Sara C. Bull, a devoted American disciple, and were preserved by her and finally printed in 1913 for private circulation — Ed.)

Sushumnâ: It is very useful to meditate on the Sushumna. You may have a vision of it come to you, and this is the best way. Then meditate for a long time on that. It is a very fine, very brilliant thread, this living passage through the spinal cord, this way of salvation through which we have to make the Kundalini rise.

In the language of the Yogi, the Sushumna has its ends in two lotuses, the lower lotus surrounding the triangle of the Kundalini and the top one in the brain surrounding the pineal gland; between these two are four other lotuses, stages on the way:

- 6th. Pineal Gland.
- 5th. Between the Eyes.
- 4th. Bottom of the Throat.
- 3rd. Level with the Heart.
- 2nd. Opposite the Navel.
- 1st. Base of Spine.

We must awaken the Kundalini, then slowly raise it from one lotus to another till the brain is reached. Each stage corresponds to a new layer of the mind.

STRUGGLE FOR EXPANSION

(Written by the Swami during his first visit to America in answer to questions put by a Western disciple.)

The old dilemma, whether the tree precedes the seed or the seed the tree, runs through all our forms of knowledge. Whether intelligence is first in the order of being or matter; whether the ideal is first or the external manifestation; whether freedom is our true nature or bondage of law; whether thought creates matter or matter thought; whether the incessant change in nature precedes the idea of rest or the idea of rest precedes the idea of change — all these are questions of the same insoluble nature. Like the rise and fall of a series of waves, they follow one another in an invariable succession and men take this side or that according to their tastes or education or peculiarity of temperaments.

For instance, if it be said on the one hand that, seeing the adjustment in nature of different parts, it is clear that it is the effect of intelligent work; on the other hand it may be argued that intelligence itself being created by matter and force in the course of evolution could not have been before this world. If it be said that the production of every form must be preceded by an ideal in the mind, it can be argued, with equal force, that the ideal was itself created by various external experiences. On the one hand, the appeal is to our ever-present idea of freedom; on the other, to the fact that nothing in the universe being causeless, everything, both mental and physical, is rigidly bound by the law of causation. If it be affirmed that, seeing the changes of the body induced by volition, it is evident that thought is the creator of this body, it is equally clear that as change in the body induces a change in the thought, the body must have produced the mind. If it be argued that the universal change must be the outcome of a preceding rest, equally logical argument can be adduced to show that the idea of unchangeability is only an illusory relative notion, brought about by the comparative differences in motion.

Thus in the ultimate analysis all knowledge resolves itself into this vicious circle: the indeterminate interdependence of cause and effect. Judging by the laws of reasoning, such knowledge is incorrect; and the most curious fact is that this knowledge is proved to be incorrect, not by comparison with knowledge which is true, but by the very laws which depend for their basis upon the selfsame vicious circle. It is clear, therefore, that the peculiarity of all our knowledge is that it proves its own insufficiency. Again, we cannot say that it is unreal, for all the reality we know and can think of is within this knowledge. Nor can we deny that it is sufficient for all practical purposes. This state of human knowledge which embraces within its scope both the external and the internal worlds is called Mâyâ. It is unreal because it proves its own incorrectness. It is real in the sense of being sufficient for all the needs of the animal man.

Acting in the external world Maya manifests itself as the two powers of attraction and repulsion. In the internal its manifestations are desire and non-desire (Pravritti and Nivritti). The whole universe is trying to rush outwards. Each atom is trying to fly off from its centre. In the internal world, each thought is trying to go beyond control. Again each particle in the external world is checked by another force, the centripetal, and drawn towards the centre. Similarly in the thought-world the controlling power is checking all these outgoing desires.

Desires of materialisation, that is, being dragged down more and more to the plane of mechanical action, belong to the animal man. It is only when the desire to prevent all such bondage to the senses arises that religion dawns in the heart of man. Thus we see that the whole scope of religion is to prevent man from falling into the bondage of the senses and to help him to assert his freedom. The first effort of this power of Nivritti towards that end is called morality. The scope of all morality is to prevent this degradation and break this bondage. All morality can be divided into the positive and the negative elements; it says either, "Do this" or "Do not do this". When it says, "Do not", it is evident that it is a check to a certain desire which would make a man a slave. When it says, "Do", its scope is to show the way to freedom and to the breaking down of a certain degradation which has already seized the human heart.

Now this morality is only possible if there be a liberty to be attained by man. Apart from the question of the chances of attaining perfect liberty, it is clear that the whole universe is a case of struggle to expand, or in other words, to attain liberty. This infinite space is not sufficient for even one atom. The struggle for expansion must go on eternally until perfect liberty is attained. It cannot be said that this struggle to gain freedom is to avoid pain or to attain pleasure. The lowest grade of beings, who can have no such feeling, are also struggling for expansion; and according to many, man himself is the expansion of these very beings.

AN INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE

(In order to truly appreciate this correspondence, the reader has to be informed of the occasion which gave rise to it and also to remember the relation that existed between the correspondents. At the outset of the first letter the Swami speaks of "the hard raps" that he gave to this correspondent. These were nothing but a very strong letter which he wrote to her in vindication of his position on the 1st February, 1895, which will be found reproduced in the fifth volume of the Complete Works of the Swami. It was a very beautiful letter full of the fire of a Sannyâsin's spirit, and we request our readers to go through it before they peruse the following text. Mary Hale, to whom the Swami wrote, was one of the two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hale whom the Swami used to address as Father Pope and Mother Church. The Misses Hales and their two cousins were like sisters to him, and they also in their turn held the Swami in great love and reverence. Some of the finest letters of the Swami were written to them.

In the present correspondence the Swami is seen in a new light, playful and intensely human, yet keyed to the central theme of his life, Brahmajnâna. The first letter was written from New York, 15th February 1895 — Ed.)

Now Sister Mary,
You need not be sorry
For the hard raps I gave you,
You know full well,
Though you like me tell,
With my whole heart I love you.

The babies I bet,
The best friends I met,
Will stand by me in weal and woe.
And so will I do,
You know it too.

Life, name, or fame, even heaven forgo
For the sweet sisters four
Sans reproche et sans peur,
The truest, noblest, steadfast, best.

The wounded snake its hood unfurls,
The flame stirred up doth blaze,
The desert air resounds the calls
Of heart-struck lion's rage.

The cloud puts forth its deluge strength
When lightning cleaves its breast,
When the soul is stirred to its inmost depth
Great ones unfold their best.

Let eyes grow dim and heart grow faint,
And friendship fail and love betray,
Let Fate its hundred horrors send,
And clotted darkness block the way.

All nature wear one angry frown,
To crush you out — still know, my soul,
You are Divine. March on and on,
Nor right nor left but to the goal.

Nor angel I, nor man, nor brute,
Nor body, mind, nor he or she,
The books do stop in wonder mute
To tell my nature; I am He.

Before the sun, the moon, the earth,
Before the stars or comets free,
Before e'en time has had its birth,
I was, I am, and I will be.

The beauteous earth, the glorious sun,
The calm sweet moon, the spangled sky,
Causation's laws do make them run;
They live in bonds, in bonds they die.

And mind its mantle dreamy net
Cast o'er them all and holds them fast.
In warp and woof of thought are set,
Earth, hells, and heavens, or worst or best.

Know these are but the outer crust —
All space and time, all effect, cause.
I am beyond all sense, all thoughts,
The witness of the universe.

Not two or many, 'tis but one,
And thus in me all me's I have;
I cannot hate, I cannot shun
Myself from me, I can but love.

From dreams awake, from bonds be free,
Be not afraid. This mystery,
My shadow, cannot frighten me,
Know once for all that I am He.

Well, so far my poetry. Hope you are all right. Give my love to mother and Father Pope. I am busy to death and have almost no time to write even a line. So excuse me if later on I am rather late in writing.

Yours eternally,

VIVEKANANDA.

Miss M.B.H. sent Swami the following doggerel in reply:

The monk he would a poet be
And wooed the muse right earnestly;
In thought and word he could well beat her,
What bothered him though was the metre.

His feet were all too short too long,
The form not suited to his song;
He tried the sonnet, lyric, epic,
And worked so hard, he waxed dyspeptic.

While the poetic mania lasted
He e'en from vegetables fasted,
Which Léon (Leon Landberg, a disciple of the Swami who lived with him for some time.) had with tender care
Prepared for Swami's dainty fare.

One day he sat and mused alone —
Sudden a light around him shone,
The "still small voice" his thoughts inspire
And his words glow like coals of fire.

And coals of fire they proved to be
Heaped on the head of contrite me —
My scolding letter I deplore
And beg forgiveness o'er and o'er.

The lines you sent to your sisters four
Be sure they'll cherish evermore
For you have made them clearly see
The one main truth that "all is He".

Then Swami:

In days of yore,
On Ganga's shore preaching,
A hoary priest was teaching
How Gods they come
As Sitâ Râm,
And gentle Sita pining, weeping.
The sermons end,
They homeward wend their way —
The hearers musing, thinking.

When from the crowd
A voice aloud
This question asked beseeching, seeking —
"Sir, tell me, pray,
Who were but they
These Sita Ram you were teaching, speaking!"

So Mary Hale,
Allow me tell,
ou mar my doctrines wronging, baulking.
I never taught
Such queer thought
That all was God — unmeaning talking!

But this I say,
Remember pray,
That God is true, all else is nothing,
This world's a dream
Though true it seem,
And only truth is He the living!
The real me is none but He,
And never, never matter changing!
With undying love and gratitude to you all. . . .

And then Miss M.B.H.:

The difference I clearly see
 'Twixt tweedledum and tweedledee —
 That is a proposition sane,
 But truly 'tis beyond my vein
 To make your Eastern logic plain.

If "God is truth, all else is naught,"
 This "world a dream", delusion up wrought,
 What can exist which God is not?

All those who "many" see have much to fear,
 He only lives to whom the "One" is clear.
 So again I say
 In my poor way,
 I cannot see but that all's He,
 If I'm in Him and He in me.

Then the Swami replied:

Of temper quick, a girl unique,
 A freak of nature she,
 A lady fair, no question there,
 Rare soul is Miss Mary.
 Her feelings deep she cannot keep,
 But creep they out at last,
 A spirit free, I can foresee,
 Must be of fiery cast.

Tho' many a lay her muse can bray,
 And play piano too,
 Her heart so cool, chills as a rule
 The fool who comes to woo.
 Though, Sister Mary, I hear they say
 The sway your beauty gains,
 Be cautious now and do not bow,
 However sweet, to chains.

For 'twill be soon, another tune
 The moon-struck mate will hear
 If his will but clash, your words will hash
 And smash his life I fear.
 These lines to thee, Sister Mary,
 Free will I offer, take
 Tit for tat" — a monkey chat,
 For monk alone can make.

WHEN WILL CHRIST COME AGAIN?

I never take much notice of these things. I have come to deal with principles. I have only to preach that God comes again and again, and that He came in India as Krishna, Râma, and Buddha, and that He will come again. It can almost be demonstrated that after each 500 years the world sinks, and a tremendous spiritual wave comes, and on the top of the wave is a Christ.

There is a great change now coming all over the world, and this is a cycle. Men are finding that they are losing hold of life; which way will they turn, down or up? Up, certainly. How can it be down? Plunge into the breach; fill up the breach with your body, your life. How should you allow the world to go down when you are living?

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN MAN AND CHRIST

There is much difference in manifested beings. As a manifested being you will never be Christ. Out of clay, manufacture a clay elephant, out of the same clay, manufacture a clay mouse. Soak them in water, they become one. As clay, they are eternally one; as fashioned things, they are eternally different. The Absolute is the material of both God and man. As Absolute, Omnipresent Being, we are all one; and as personal beings, God is the eternal master, and we are the eternal servants.

You have three things in you: (1) the body, (2) the mind, (3) the spirit. The spirit is intangible, the mind comes to birth and death, and so does the body. You are that spirit, but often you think you are the body. When a man says, "I am here", he thinks of the body. Then comes another moment when you are on the highest plane; you do not say, "I am here". But if a man abuses you or curses you and you do not resent it, you are the spirit. "When I think I am the mind, I am one spark of that eternal fire which Thou art; and when I feel that I am the spirit, Thou and I are one" — so says a devotee to the Lord. Is the mind in advance of the spirit?

God does not reason; why should you reason if you knew? It is a sign of weakness that we have to go on crawling like worms to get a few facts and build generalisations, and then the whole thing tumbles down again. The spirit is reflected in the mind and everything. It is the light of the spirit that makes the mind sensate. Everything is an expression of the spirit; the minds are so many mirrors. What you call love and fear, hatred, virtue, and vice are all reflections of the spirit; only when the reflector is base the reflection is bad.

ARE CHRIST AND BUDDHA IDENTICAL?

It is my particular fancy that the same Buddha became Christ. Buddha prophesied, "I will come again in five hundred years", and Christ came here in five hundred years. These are the two Lights of the whole human nature. Two men have been produced, Buddha and Christ; these are the two giants, huge gigantic personalities, two Gods. Between them they divide the whole world. Wherever there is the least knowledge in the world, people bow down either to Buddha or Christ. It would be very hard to produce more like them, but I hope there will be. Mohammed came five hundred years after, five hundred years after came Luther with his Protestant wave, and this is five hundred years after that again. It is a great thing in a few thousand years to produce two such men as Jesus and Buddha. Are not two such enough? Christ and Buddha were Gods, the others were prophets. Study the life of these two and see the manifestation of power in them — calm and non-resisting, poor beggars owning nothing, without a cent in their pockets, despised all their lives, called heretic and fool — and think of the immense spiritual power they have wielded over humanity.

SALVATION FROM SIN

We are to be saved from sin by being saved from ignorance. Ignorance is the cause of which sin is the result.

COMING BACK TO THE DIVINE MOTHER

When a nurse takes a baby out into the garden and plays with the baby, the Mother may send a word to the baby to come indoors. The baby is absorbed in play, and says, "I won't come; I don't want to eat." After a while the baby becomes tired with his play and says, "I will go to Mother." The nurse says, "Here is a new doll", but the baby says, "I don't care for dolls any more. I will go to Mother", and he weeps until he goes. We are all babies. The Mother is God. We are absorbed in seeking for money, wealth, and all these things; but the time will come when we will awaken; and then this nature will try to give us more dolls, and we will say, "No, I have had enough; I will go to God."

NO INDIVIDUALITY APART FROM GOD

If we are inseparable from God, and always one, have we no individuality? Oh yes; that is God. Our individuality is God. This is not real individuality which you have now. You are coming towards that true one. Individuality means what cannot be divided. How can you call this state — we are now — individuality? One hour you are thinking one way, and the next hour another way, and two hours after another way. Individuality is that which changes not. It would be tremendously dangerous for the present state to remain in eternity, then the thief would always remain a thief, and the blackguard, a blackguard. If a baby died, it would have to remain a baby. The real individuality is that which never changes, and will never change; and that is God within us.

SAYINGS AND UTTERANCES

1. "Did Buddha teach that the many was real and the ego unreal, while orthodox Hinduism regards the One as the real, and the many as unreal?" the Swami was asked. "Yes", answered the Swami. "And what Ramakrishna Paramahansa and I have added to this is, that the Many and the One are the same Reality, perceived by the same mind at different times and in different attitudes."
2. "Remember!" he said once to a disciple, "Remember! the message of India is always 'Not the soul for nature, but nature for the soul!'"
3. "What the world wants today is twenty men and women who can dare to stand in the street yonder, and say that they possess nothing but God. Who will go? Why should one fear? If this is true, what else could matter? If it is not true, what do our lives matter!'"
4. "Oh, how calm would be the work of one who really understood the divinity of man! For such, there is nothing to do, save to open men's eyes. All the rest does itself."
5. "He (Shri Ramakrishna) was contented simply to live that great life and to leave it to others to find the explanation!"
6. "Plans! Plans!" Swami Vivekananda explained in indignation, when one of his disciples had offered him some piece of worldly wisdom. "That is why . . . Western people can never create a religion! If any of you ever did, it was only a few Catholic saints who had no plans. Religion was never preached by planners!"
7. "Social life in the West is like a peal of laughter; but underneath, it is a wail. It ends in a sob. The fun and frivolity are all on the surface: really it is full of tragic intensity. Now here, it is sad and gloomy on the outside, but underneath are carelessness and merriment.

"We have a theory that the universe is God's manifestation of Himself just for fun, that the Incarnations came and lived here 'just for fun'. Play, it was all play. Why was Christ crucified? It was mere play. And so of life. Just play with the Lord. Say, "It is all play, it is all play". Do you do anything?"
8. "I am persuaded that a leader is not made in one life. He has to be born for it. For the difficulty is not in organisation and making plans; the test, the real test, of the leader, lies in holding widely different people together along the line of their common sympathies. And this can only be done unconsciously, never by trying."
9. In explanation of Plato's doctrine of Ideas, Swamiji said, "And so you see, all this is but a feeble manifestation of the great ideas, which alone, are real and perfect. Somewhere is an ideal for you, and here is an attempt to manifest it! The attempt falls short still in many ways. Still, go on! You will interpret the ideal some day."
10. Answering the remark of a disciple who felt that it would be better for her to come back to this life again and again and help the causes that were of interest to her instead of striving for personal salvation with a deep longing to get out of life, the Swami retorted quickly: "That's because you cannot overcome the idea of progress. But things do not grow better. They remain as they are; and we grow better by the changes we make in them."
11. It was in Almora that a certain elderly man, with a face full of amiable weakness, came and put him a question about Karma. What were they to do, he asked, whose Karma it was to see the strong oppress the weak? The Swami turned on him in surprised indignation. "Why, thrash the strong, of course!" he said, "You forget your own part in this Karma: Yours is always the right to rebel!"

12. "Ought one to seek an opportunity of death in defense of right, or ought one to take the lesson of the Gitâ and learn never to react?" the Swami was asked. "I am for no reaction", said the Swami, speaking slowly and with a long pause. Then he added " — for Sannyâsins. Self-defense for the householder!"

13. "It is a mistake to hold that with all men pleasure is the motive. Quite as many are born to seek after pain. Let us worship the Terror for Its own sake."

14. "Ramakrishna Paramahansa was the only man who ever had the courage to say that we must speak to all men in their own language!"

15. "How I used to hate Kâli!" he said, referring to his own days of doubts in accepting the Kali ideal, "And all Her ways! That was the ground of my six years' fight — that I would not accept Her. But I had to accept Her at last! Ramakrishna Paramahansa dedicated me to Her, and now I believe that She guides me in everything I do, and does with me what She will. . . . Yet I fought so long! I loved him, you see, and that was what held me. I saw his marvellous purity. . . . I felt his wonderful love. . . . His greatness had not dawned on me then. All that came afterwards when I had given in. At that time I thought him a brain-sick baby, always seeing visions and the rest. I hated it. And then I, too, had to accept Her!"

"No, the thing that made me do it is a secret that will die with me. I had great misfortunes at the time. . . . It was an opportunity. . . . She made a slave of me. Those were the very words: 'a slave of you'. And Ramakrishna Paramahansa made me over to Her. . . . Strange! He lived only two years after doing that, and most of the time he was suffering. Not more than six months did he keep his own health and brightness.

"Guru Nanak was like that, you know, looking for the one disciple to whom he would give his power. And he passed over all his own family — his children were as nothing to him — till he came upon the boy to whom he gave it; and then he could die.

"The future, you say, will call Ramakrishna Paramahansa an Incarnation of Kali? Yes, I think there's no doubt that She worked up the body of Ramakrishna for Her own ends.

"You see, I cannot but believe that there is somewhere a great Power that thinks of Herself as feminine, and called Kali and Mother. . . . And I believe in Brahman too. . . . But is it not always like that? Is it not the multitude of cells in the body that make up the personality, the many brain-centres, not the one, that produce consciousness? . . . Unity in complexity! Just so! And why should it be different with Brahman? It is Brahman. It is the One. And yet — and yet — it is the gods too!"

16. "The older I grow, the more everything seems to me to lie in manliness. This is my new gospel."

17. Referring to some European reference to cannibalism, as if it were a normal part of life in some societies, the Swami remarked, "That is not true! No nation ever ate human flesh, save as a religious sacrifice, or in war, out of revenge. Don't you see? That's not the way of gregarious animals! It would cut at the root of social life!"

18. "Sex-love and creation! These are at the root of most religions. And these in India are called Vaishnavism, and in the West Christianity. How few have dared to worship Death or Kali! Let us worship Death! Let us embrace the Terrible, because it is terrible, not asking that it be toned down. Let us take misery for misery's own sake!"

19. "The three cycles of Buddhism were five hundred years of the Law, five hundred years of images, and five hundred years of Tantras. You must not imagine that there was ever a religion in India called Buddhism with temples and priests of its own order! Nothing of the sort. It was always within Hinduism. Only at one time the influence of Buddha was paramount, and this made the nation monastic."

20. "The conservative's whole ideal is submission. Your ideal is struggle. Consequently it is we who enjoy the life, and never you! You are always striving to change yours to something better; and before a millionth part of the change is carried out, you die. The Western ideal is to be doing; the Eastern to be suffering. The perfect life would be a wonderful harmony doing and suffering. But that can never be.

"In our system it is accepted that a man cannot have all he desires. Life is subjected to many restraints. This is ugly, yet it brings out points of light and strength. Our liberals see only the ugliness and try to throw it off. But they substitute something quite as bad; and the new custom takes as long as the old for us to work to its centres of strength.

"Will is not strengthened by change. It is weakened and enslaved by it. But we must be always absorbing. Will grows stronger by absorption. And consciously or unconsciously, will is the one thing in the world that we admire. Suttee is great in the eyes of the whole world, because of the will that it manifests.

"It is selfishness that we must seek to eliminate. I find that whenever I have made a mistake in my life, it has always been because self entered into the calculation. Where self has not been involved, my judgment has gone straight to the mark.

"Without self, there would have been no religious system. If man had not wanted anything for himself, do you think he would have had all this praying and worship? Why! he would never have thought of God at all, except perhaps for a little praise now and then, at the sight of a beautiful landscape or something. And that is the only attitude there ought to be. All praise and thanks. If only we were rid of self!

"You are quite wrong when you think that fighting is a sign of growth. It is not so at all. Absorption is the sign. Hinduism is a very genius of absorption. We have never cared for fighting. Of course we could strike a blow now and then, in defense of our homes! That was right. But we never cared for fighting for its own sake. Every one had to learn that. So let these races of newcomers whirl on! They'll all be taken into Hinduism in the end!"

21. "The totality of all souls, not the human alone, is the Personal God. The will of the Totality nothing can resist. It is what we know as law. And this is what we mean by Shiva and Kali and so on."

22. "Worship the Terrible! Worship Death! All else is vain. All struggle is vain. That is the last lesson. Yet this is not the coward's love of death, not the love of the weak or the suicide. It is the welcome of the strong man who has sounded everything to its depths and knows that there is no alternative."

23. "I disagree with all those who are giving their superstitions back to my people. Like the Egyptologist's interest in Egypt, it is easy to feel an interest in India that is purely selfish. One may desire to see again the India of one's books, one's studies, one's dreams. My hope is to see again the strong points of that India, reinforced by the strong points of this age, only in a natural way. The new stage of things must be a growth from within.

"So I preach only the Upanishads. If you look, you will find that I have never quoted anything but the Upanishads. And of the Upanishads, it is only that One idea, strength. The quintessence of the Vedas and Vedanta and all lies in that one word. Buddha's teaching was non-resistance, or non-injury. But I think this is a better way of teaching the same thing. For behind that non-injury lay a dreadful weakness. It is weakness that conceives the idea of resistance. I do not think of punishing or escaping from a drop of sea-spray. It is nothing to me. Yet to the mosquito it would be serious. Now I would make all injury like that. Strength and fearlessness. My own ideal is that saint whom they killed in the Mutiny and who broke his silence, when stabbed to the heart, to say, 'And thou also art He!'

"But you may ask, 'What is the place of Ramakrishna in this scheme?'

"He is the method, that wonderful unconscious method! He did not understand himself. He knew nothing of England or the English, save that they were queer folk from over the sea. But he lived that great life: and I read the meaning. Never a word of condemnation for any! Once I had been attacking one of our sects of diabolists. I had been raving on for three hours, and he had listened quietly. 'Well, well!' said the old man as I finished, 'perhaps every house may have a backdoor. Who knows?'

"Hitherto the great fault of our Indian religion has lain in its knowing only two words: renunciation and Mukti. Only Mukti here! Nothing for the householder!

"But these are the very people whom I want to help. For are not all souls of the same quality? Is not the goal of all the same?

"And so strength must come to the nation through education."

24. The Puranas, the Swami considered, to be the effort of Hinduism to bring lofty ideas to the door of the masses. There had been only one mind in India that had foreseen this need, that of Krishna, probably the greatest man who ever lived.

The Swami said, "Thus is created a religion that ends in the worship of Vishnu, as the preservation and enjoyment of life, leading to the realisation of God. Our last movement, Chaitanyaism, you remember, was for enjoyment. At the same time Jainism represents the other extreme, the slow destruction of the body by self-torture. Hence Buddhism, you see, is reformed Jainism; and this is the real meaning of Buddha's leaving the company of the five ascetics. In India, in every age, there is a cycle of sects which represents every gradation of physical practice, from the extreme of self-torture to the extreme of excess. And during the same period will always be developed a metaphysical cycle, which represents the realisation of God as taking place by every gradation of means, from that of using the senses as an instrument to that of the annihilation of the senses. Thus Hinduism always consists, as it were, of two counter-spirals, completing each other, round a single axis.

"'Yes!' Vaishnavism says, 'it is all right — this tremendous love for father, for mother, for brother, husband, or child! It is all right, if only you will think that Krishna is the child, and when you give him food, that you are feeding Krishna!' This was the cry of Chaitanya, 'Worship God through the senses', as against the Vedantic cry, 'Control the senses! suppress the senses!'

"I see that India is a young and living organism. Europe is young and living. Neither has arrived at such a stage of development that we can safely criticise its institutions. They are two great experiments, neither of which is yet complete. In India we have social communism, with the light of Advaita — that is, spiritual individualism — playing on and around it; in Europe you are socially individualists, but your thought is dualistic, which is spiritual communism. Thus the one consists of socialist institutions hedged in by individualist thought, while the other is made up of individualist institutions within the hedge of communistic thought.

"Now we must help the Indian experiment as it is. Movements which do not attempt to help things as they are, are, from that point of view, no good. In Europe, for instance, I respect marriage as highly as non-marriage. Never forget that a man is made great and perfect as much by his faults as by his virtues. So we must not seek to rob a nation of its character, even if it could be proved that the character was all faults."

25. "You may always say that the image is God. The error you have to avoid is to think God is the image."

26. The Swami was appealed to on one occasion to condemn the fetishism of the Hottentot. "I do not know", he answered, "what fetishism is!" Then a lurid picture was hastily put before him of the object alternately worshipped, beaten, and thanked. "I do that!" he exclaimed. "Don't you see," he went on, a moment later, in hot resentment of injustice done to the lowly and absent, "don't you see that there is no fetishism? Oh, your hearts are steeled, that you cannot see that the child is right! The child sees person everywhere. Knowledge robs us of the child's vision. But at last, through higher knowledge, we win back to it. He connects a living power with rocks, sticks, trees and the rest. And is there not a living Power behind them? It is symbolism, not fetishism! Can you not see?"

27. One day he told the story of Satyabhâmâ's sacrifice and how the word "Krishna", written on a piece of paper and thrown into the balance, made Krishna himself, on the other side, kick the beam. "Orthodox Hinduism", he began, "makes Shruti, the sound, everything. The thing is but a feeble manifestation of the pre-existing and eternal idea. So the name of God is everything: God Himself is merely the objectification of that idea in the eternal mind. Your own name is infinitely more perfect than the person you! The name of God is greater than God. Guard your speech!"

28. "I would not worship even the Greek Gods, for they were separate from humanity! Only those should be worshipped who are like ourselves but greater. The difference between the gods and me must be a difference only of degree."

29. "A stone falls and crushes a worm. Hence we infer that all stones, falling, crush worms. Why do we thus immediately reapply a perception? Experience, says one. But it happens, let us suppose, for the first time. Throw a baby into the air, and it cries. Experience from past lives? But why applied to the future? Because there is a real connection between certain things, a pervasiveness, only it lies with us to see that the quality neither overlaps, nor falls short of, the instance. On this discrimination depends all human knowledge.

"With regard to fallacies, it must be remembered that direct perception itself can only be a proof, provided the instrument, the method, and the persistence of the perception are all maintained pure. Disease or emotion will have the effect of disturbing the observation. Therefore direct perception itself is but a mode of inference. Therefore all human knowledge is uncertain and may be erroneous. Who is a true witness? He is a true witness to whom the thing said is a direct perception. Therefore the Vedas are true, because they consist of the evidence of competent persons. But is this power of perception peculiar to any? No! The Rishi, the Aryan, and the Mlechchha all alike have it.

"Modern Bengal holds that evidence is only a special case of direct perception, and that analogy and parity of reasoning are only bad inferences. Therefore, of actual proofs there are only two, direct perception and inference.

"One set of persons, you see, gives priority to the external manifestation, the other to the internal idea. Which is prior, the bird to the egg, or the egg to the bird? Does the oil hold the cup or the cup the oil? This is a problem of which there is no solution. Give it up! Escape from Maya!"

30. "Why should I care if the world itself were to disappear? According to my philosophy, that, you know, would be a very good thing! But, in fact, all that is against me must be with me in the end. Am I not Her soldier?"

31. "Yes, my own life is guided by the enthusiasm of a certain great personality, but what of that? Inspiration was never filtered out to the world through one man!

"It is true I believe Ramakrishna Paramahansa to have been inspired. But then I am myself inspired also. And you are inspired. And your disciples will be; and theirs after them; and so on, to the end of time!

"Don't you see that the age for esoteric interpretation is over? For good or for ill, that day is vanished, never to return. Truth, in the future, is to be open to the world!"

32. "Buddha made the fatal mistake of thinking that the whole world could be lifted to the height of the Upanishads. And self-interest spoilt all. Krishna was wiser, because He was more politic. But Buddha would have no compromise. The world before now has seen even the Avatâra ruined by compromise, tortured to death for want of recognition, and lost. But Buddha would have been worshipped as God in his own lifetime, all over Asia, for a moment's compromise. And his reply was only: 'Buddhahood is an achievement, not a person!' Verily was He the only man in the world who was ever quite sane, the only sane man ever born!"

33. People had told the Swami in the West that the greatness of Buddha would have been more appealing, had he been crucified! This he stigmatised as "Roman brutality", and pointed out, "The lowest and most animal liking is for action. Therefore the world will always love the epic. Fortunately for India, however, she has never produced a Milton, with his 'hurled headlong down the steep abyss!' The whole of that were well exchanged for a couple of lines of Browning!" It had been this epic vigour of the story, in his opinion, that had appealed to the Roman. The crucifixion it was that carried Christianity over the Roman world. "Yes, Yes!" he reiterated. "You Western folk want action! You cannot yet perceive the poetry of every common little incident in life! What beauty could be greater than that of the story of the young mother coming to Buddha with her dead boy? Or the incident of the goats? You see the Great Renunciation was not new in India! . . . But after Nirvâna, look at the poetry!

"It is a wet night, and he comes to the cowherd's hut and gathers in to the wall under the dripping eaves. The rain is pouring down and the wind rising.

"Within, the cowherd catches a glimpse of a face through the window and thinks, 'Ha, ha! Yellow garb! stay there! It's good enough for you!' And then he begins to sing.

"My cattle are housed, and the fire burns bright. My wife is safe, and my babes sleep sweet! Therefore ye may rain, if ye will, O clouds, tonight!"

"And the Buddha answers from without, "My mind is controlled: my senses are all gathered in; my heart firm. Therefore ye may rain, if ye will, O clouds, tonight!"

"Again the cowherd: 'The fields are reaped, and the hay is fast in the barn. The stream is full, and the roads are firm. Therefore ye may rain, if ye will, O clouds, tonight.'

"And so it goes on, till at last the cowherd rises, in contrition and wonder, and becomes a disciple.

"Or what would be more beautiful than the barber's story?"

The Blessed One passed by my house,
my house — the Barber's!
I ran, but He turned and awaited me,
Awaited me — the Barber!
"I said, 'May I speak, O Lord, with Thee?'
And He said 'Yes!'
'Yes!' to me — the Barber!
"And I said, 'Is Nirvana for such as I?'
And He said 'Yes!'
Even for me — the Barber!
"And I said, 'May I follow after Thee?'
And He said, 'Oh yes!'
Even I — the Barber!
And I said, 'May I stay, O Lord, near Thee?'
"And He said, 'Thou mayest!'
Even to me — the poor Barber!"

34. "The great point of contrast between Buddhism and Hinduism lies in the fact that Buddhism said, 'Realise all this as illusion', while Hinduism said, 'Realise that within the illusion is the Real.' Of how this was to be done, Hinduism never presumed to enunciate any rigid law. The Buddhist command could only be carried out through monasticism; the Hindu might be fulfilled through any state of life. All alike were roads to the One Real. One of the highest and greatest expressions of the Faith is put into the mouth of a butcher, preaching by the orders of a married woman to a Sannyasin. Thus Buddhism became the religion of a monastic order, but Hinduism, in spite of its exaltation of monasticism, remains ever the religion of faithfulness to duty, whatever it be, as the path by which man may attain God."

35. "Lay down the rules for your group and formulate your ideas," the Swami said, dealing with the monastic ideal for women, "and put in a little universalism, if there is room for it. But remember that not more than half a dozen people in the whole world are ever at any time ready for this! There must be room for sects, as well as for rising above sects. You will have to manufacture your own tools. Frame laws, but frame them in such a fashion that when people are ready to do without them, they can burst them asunder. Our originality lies in combining perfect freedom with perfect authority. This can be done even in monasticism."

36. "Two different races mix and fuse, and out of them rises one strong distinct type. This tries to save itself from admixture, and here you see the beginning of caste. Look at the apple. The best specimens have been produced by crossing; but once crossed, we try to preserve the variety intact."

37. Referring to education of girls in India he said, "In worship of the gods, you must of course use images. But you can change these. Kali need not always be in one position. Encourage your girls to think of new ways of picturing Her. Have a hundred different conceptions of Saraswati. Let them draw and model and paint their own ideas.

"In the chapel, the pitcher on the lowest step of the altar must be always full of water, and lights in great Tamil butter-lamps must be always burning. If, in addition, the maintenance of perpetual adoration could be organised, nothing could be more in accord with Hindu feeling.

"But the ceremonies employed must themselves be Vedic. There must be a Vedic altar, on which at the hour of worship to light the Vedic fire. And the children must be present to share in the service of oblation. This is a rite which would claim the respect of the whole of India.

"Gather all sorts of animals about you. The cow makes a fine beginning. But you will also have dogs and cats and birds and others. Let the children have a time for going to feed and look after these.

"Then there is the sacrifice of learning. That is the most beautiful of all. Do you know that every book is holy in India, not the Vedas alone, but the English and Mohammedan also? All are sacred.

"Revive the old arts. Teach your girls fruit-modelling with hardened milk. Give them artistic cooking and sewing. Let them learn painting, photography, the cutting of designs in paper, and gold and silver filigree and embroidery. See that everyone knows something by which she can earn a living in case of need.

"And never forget Humanity! The idea of a humanitarian man-worship exists in nucleus in India, but it has never been sufficiently specialised. Let your students develop it. Make poetry, make art, of it. Yes, a daily worship at the feet of beggars, after bathing and before the meal, would be a wonderful practical training of heart and hand together. On some days, again, the worship might be of children, of your own pupils. Or you might borrow babies and nurse and feed them. What was it that Mâtâji (Tapaswini Mataji, foundress of the Mahâkâli Pâthasâlâ, Calcutta.) said to me? 'Swamiji! I have no help. But these blessed ones I worship, and they will take me to salvation!' She feels, you see, that she is serving Umâ in the Kumâri, and that is a wonderful thought, with which to begin a school."

38. "Love is always a manifestation of bliss. The least shadow of pain falling upon it is always a sign of physicality and selfishness."

39. "The West regards marriage as consisting in all that lies beyond the legal tie, while in India it is thought of as a bond thrown by society round two people to unite them together for all eternity. Those two must wed each other, whether they will or not, in life after life. Each acquires half of the merit of the other. And if one seems in this life to have fallen hopelessly behind, it is for the other only to wait and beat time, till he or she catches up again!"

40. "Consciousness is a mere film between two oceans, the subconscious and the superconscious."

41. "I could not believe my own ears when I heard Western people talking so much of consciousness! Consciousness? What does consciousness matter! Why, it is nothing compared with the unfathomable depths of the subconscious and the heights of the superconscious! In this I could never be misled, for had I not seen Ramakrishna Paramahansa gather in ten minutes, from a man's subconscious mind, the whole of his past, and determine from that his future and his powers?"

42. "All these (visions etc.) are side issues. They are not true Yoga. They may have a certain usefulness in establishing indirectly the truth of our statements. Even a little glimpse gives faith that there is something behind gross matter. Yet those who spend time on such things run into grave dangers.

"These (psychic developments) are frontier questions! There can never be any certainty or stability of knowledge reached by their means. Did I not say they were 'frontier questions'? The boundary line is always shifting!"

43. "Now on the Advaitic side it is held that the soul neither comes nor goes, and that all these spheres or layers of the universe are only so many varying products of Âkâsha and Prâna. That is to say, the lowest or most condensed is the Solar Sphere, consisting of the visible universe, in which Prana appears as physical force, and Akasha as sensible matter. The next is called the Lunar Sphere, which surrounds the Solar Sphere. This is not the moon at all, but the habitation of the gods; that is to say, Prana appears in it as psychic forces, and Akasha as Tanmatras or fine particles. Beyond this is the Electric Sphere; that is to say, a condition inseparable from Akasha, and you can hardly tell whether electricity is force or matter. Next is the Brahmaloaka, where there is neither Prana nor Akasha, but both are merged into the mind-stuff, the primal energy. And here — there being neither Prana nor Akasha — the Jiva contemplates the whole universe as Samashti or the sum total of Mahat or mind. This appears as Purusha, an abstract Universal Soul, yet not the Absolute, for still there is multiplicity. From this the Jiva finds at last that Unity which is the end. Advaitism says that these are the visions which arise in succession before the Jiva, who himself neither goes nor comes, and that in the same way this present vision has been projected. The projection (Srishti) and dissolution must take place in the same order, only one means going backward and the other coming out.

"Now, as each individual can only see his own universe, that universe is created with his bondage and goes away with his liberation, although it remains for others who are in bondage. Now, name and form constitute the universe. A wave in the ocean is a wave only in so far as it is bound by name and form. If the wave subsides, it is the ocean, but that name-and-form has immediately vanished forever, so that the name and form of a wave could never be without the water that was fashioned into the wave by them. Yet the name and form themselves were not the wave; they die as soon as ever it returns to water, but other names and forms live on in relation to other waves. This name-and-form is called Maya and the water is Brahman. The wave was nothing but water all the time, yet as a wave it had the name and form. Again this name-and-form cannot remain for one moment separated from the wave, although the wave, as water, can remain eternally separate from name and form. But because the name and form can never be separated, they can never be said to exist. Yet they are not zero. This is called Maya."

44. "I am the servant of the servants of the servants of Buddha. Who was there ever like him? — the Lord — who never performed one action for himself — with a heart that embraced the whole world! So full of pity that he — prince and monk — would give his life to save a little goat! So loving that he sacrificed himself to the hunger of a tigress! — to the hospitality of a pariah and blessed him! And he came into my room when I was a boy, and I fell at his feet! For I knew it was the Lord Himself!"

45. "He (Shuka) is the ideal Paramahansa. To him alone amongst men was it given to drink a handful of the waters of that one undivided Ocean of Sat-Chit-Ânanda — Existence, Knowledge, and Bliss Absolute! Most saints die, having heard only the thunder of its waves upon the shore. A few gain the vision, and still fewer, taste of It. But he drank of the Sea of Bliss!"

46. "What is this idea of Bhakti without renunciation? It is most pernicious."

47. "We worship neither pain nor pleasure. We seek through either to come at that which transcends them both."

48. "Shankaracharya had caught the rhythm of the Vedas, the national cadence. Indeed I always imagine that he had some vision such as mine when he was young, and recovered the ancient music that way. Anyway, his whole life's work is nothing but that, the throbbing of the beauty of the Vedas and the Upanishads."

49. "Though the love of a mother is in some ways greater, yet the whole world takes the love of man and woman as the type (of the soul's relation to God). No other has such tremendous idealising power. The beloved actually becomes what he is imagined to be. This love transforms its object."

50. "Is it so easy to be Janaka — to sit on a throne absolutely unattached, caring nothing for wealth or fame, for wife or child? One after another in the West has told me that he has reached this. But I could only say, 'Such great men are not born in India!'"

51. "Never forget to say to yourself and to teach to your children, as the difference between a firefly and the blazing sun, between the infinite ocean and a little pond, between a mustard seed and the mountain Meru, such is the difference between the householder and the Sannyasin!

"Everything is fraught with fear: Renunciation alone is fearless.

"Blessed be even the fraudulent Sâdhus and those who have failed to carry out their vows, inasmuch as they also have witnessed to their ideal and so are in some degree the cause of the success of others!

"Let us never, never, forget our ideal!"

52. "The river is pure that flows, the monk is pure that goes!"

53. "The Sannyasin who thinks of gold, to desire it, commits suicide."

54. "What do I care if Mohammed was a good man, or Buddha? Does that altar my goodness or evil? Let us be good for our own sake on our own responsibility."

55. "You people in this country are so afraid of losing your in-di-vid-u-al-i-ty! Why, you are not individuals yet. When you realise your whole nature, you will attain your true individuality, not before. There is another thing I am constantly hearing in this country, and that is that we should live in harmony with nature. Don't you know that all the progress ever made in the world was made by conquering nature? We are to resist nature at every point if we are to make any progress."

56. "In India they tell me I ought not to teach Advaita Vedanta to the people at large; but I say, I can make even a child understand it. You cannot begin too early to teach the highest spiritual truths."

57. "The less you read, the better. Read the Gita and other good works on Vedanta. That is all you need. The present system of education is all wrong. The mind is crammed with facts before it knows how to think. Control of the mind should be taught first. If I had my education to get over again and had any voice in the matter, I would learn to master my mind first, and then gather facts if I wanted them. It takes people a long time to learn things because they can't concentrate their minds at will."

58. "If a bad time comes, what of that? The pendulum must swing back to the other side. But that is no better. The thing to do is to stop it."

মহাশয়,

কাশীধামে যাইবার সঙ্কল্প ছিল এবং আমার গুরুদেবের জন্মভূমি পরিদর্শনান্তর কাশীধামে পৌঁছিব -- এইরূপ কল্পনা ছিল; কিন্তু আমার দুরদৃষ্টবশতঃ উক্ত গ্রামে যাইবার পথে অত্যন্ত জ্বর হইল এবং তৎপরে কলেরার ন্যায় ভেদবমি হইয়াছিল। তিন-চারি দিনের পর পুনরায় জ্বর হইয়াছে; এক্ষণে শরীর এ প্রকার দুর্বল যে, দুই কদম চলিবার সামর্থ্যও নাই। অতএব বাধ্য হইয়া এক্ষণে পূর্বোক্ত সঙ্কল্প পরিত্যাগ করিতে হইল। ভগবানের কি ইচ্ছা জানিনা, কিন্তু আমার শরীর এ পথের নিতান্ত অনুপযুক্ত। যাহা হউক শরীর বিশেষ বড় কথা নহে। কিছুদিন এস্থানে থাকিয়া কিঞ্চিৎ সুস্থ হইলেই মহাশয়ের চরণ দর্শন করিবার অভিলাষ আছে। বিশেষ্বরের ইচ্ছা যাহা, তাহাই হইবে, আপনিও আশীর্বাদ করুন। জ্ঞানানন্দ ভায়াকে আমার প্রণাম, মহাশয়ও জানিবেন। ইতি

পূজ্যপাদ মহাশয়,

মহাশয়ের পত্র পাইয়া পরম প্রীত হইলাম। এরূপস্থলে অনেকেই সংসারের দিকে টলিতে উপদেশ দেন। মহাশয় সত্যগ্রাহী এবং বজ্রসারসদৃশ হৃদয়বান -- আপনার উৎসাহবাক্য পরম আশ্বাসিত হইলাম। আমার এ স্থানের গোলযোগ প্রায় সমস্ত মিটিয়াছে, কেবল একটি জমি বিক্রয় করিবার জন্য দালাল লাগাইয়াছি, অতি শীঘ্রই বিক্রয় করিবার আশা আছে। তাহা হইলেই নিশ্চিন্ত হইয়া একেবারে কাশিধামে মহাশয়ের সন্নিকট যাইতেছি।

আপনি ২০ টাকার এক কেতা নোট পাঠাইয়াছিলেন। আপনি অতি মহৎ; কিন্তু আমার দুর্ভাগ্য -- মহাশয়ের প্রথমোদ্দেশ্য পালনে আমার মাতা ভ্রাতাদের সাংসারিক অহঙ্কার প্রতিবন্ধক হইল, কিন্তু দ্বিতীয় উদ্দেশ্য অর্থাৎ আমার কাশী যাইবার জন্য ব্যবহার করিয়া চরিতার্থ হইব। ইতি

প্রেমাস্পদেষু,

ইতঃপূর্বে পত্র পাইয়া থাকিবে। এক্ষণে ইংলন্ডে আমার যাবতীয় পত্রাদি উপরিউক্ত ঠিকানায় পাঠাইবে। মিঃ স্টার্ডি তারকদাদার পরিচিত। তিনি আমাকে এখানে আনাইয়াছেন এবং আমরা উভয়ে একত্রে ইংলন্ডে হাঙ্গাম করিবার চেষ্টায় আছি। এবার আমি নভেম্বর মাসে পুনরায় আমেরিকা যাত্রা করিব, অতএব এখানে একজন উত্তম সংস্কৃত ও ইংরেজী, বিশেষতঃ ইংরেজী-জানা লোকের আবশ্যিক -- শরৎ বা তুমি বা সারদা। তাহার মধ্যে তোমার শরীর যদি একদম আরোগ্য হইয়া থাকে তো বড়ই ভাল। তুমি আসিবে, নতুবা শরৎকে পাঠাইবে। কাজ এই যে আমি যে-সকল চেলা-পত্র এখানে রাখিয়া যাইব, তাহাদের শিক্ষা দেওয়া ও বেদান্তাদি পড়ান এবং একটু-আধটু ইংরেজীতে তর্জমা করা, মধ্যে মধ্যে লেকচার-পত্র দেওয়া। ‘কর্মণা বাধ্যতে বুদ্ধিঃ।’ --র আসিবার বড়ই ইচ্ছা, কিন্তু গোড়া শক্ত করে না গাঁথিলে ফাঁস হইয়া যাইবে। এই পত্রে এক চেক পাঠাইলাম, তাহাতে কাপড়-চোপড় কিনিবে (অর্থাৎ যে আসিবে)। চেক মহেন্দ্রবাবু -- মাস্টার মহাশয়ের নামে পাঠাইলাম। গঙ্গাধরের টিবেটি চোঙ্গা মঠে আছে; ঐ চং-এর এক চোঙ্গা গেরুয়া রং-এর বানাইয়া লইবে। Collar (কলার)-টা যেন কিছু উপরে হয়, অর্থাৎ গলা পর্যন্ত ঢাকা পড়ে।... সকলের আগে একটা খুব গরম ওভারকোট; শীত বড়ই প্রবল। জাহাজের উপর ওভারকোট খুব গরম...। সেকেন্ড ক্লাসের টিকেট পাঠাইতেছি: অর্থাৎ ফাস্ট ক্লাস সেকেন্ড ক্লাসে বড় বিশেষ নাই।... যদি শশীর আসা স্থির হয়, তাহা হইলে পূর্ব হইতে নিরামিষ খাওয়ার বন্দোবস্ত করিয়া লইবে।

বোম্বে যাইয়া মেসার্স কিং কিং এন্ড কোং, ফোর্ট, বোম্বে অফিসে যাইয়া বলিবে যে, ‘আমি স্টার্ডি সাহেবের লোক’ -- তাহা হইলে তাহারা তোমাকে এক টিকেট দেবে ইংলন্ড পর্যন্ত। এখান হইতে এক চিঠি উক্ত কোম্পানির উপর যাইতেছে। খেতড়ির রাজাকে এক চিঠি লিখিতেছি যে, তাঁহার বোম্বের এজেন্ট যেন তোমাকে দেখিয়া শুনিয়া book (বুক) করিয়া দেয়। যদি এই ১৫০ টাকায় কাপড়-চোপড় না হয়, রাখাল যেন তোমায় বাকি টাকা দেয়; আমি পরে তাহাকে পাঠাইয়া দিব। তাছাড়া ৫০ টাকা হাত খরচের জন্য রাখিবে -- রাখালকে দিতে বলিবে। তারপর আমি পাঠাইয়া দিব। চুনীবাবুর জন্য যে টাকা পাঠাইয়াছি, তাহার খবর আজও পাই নাই। পত্রপাঠ চলিয়া আসিবে। মহেন্দ্রবাবুকে বলিবে, তিনি আমার কলিকাতার এজেন্ট। তিনি যেন পত্রপাঠ মিঃ স্টার্ডিকে এক চিঠি লিখেন যে, যা কিছু কলিকাতা সম্বন্ধে লেখা পড়া business (বৈষয়িক কার্য) ইত্যাদি আমাদের করিতে হইবে, তাহা তিনি করিতে রাজি আছেন। অর্থাৎ মিঃ স্টার্ডি আমার ইংলন্ডের সেক্রেটারি, মহেন্দ্রবাবু কলিকাতার, আলসিঙ্গা মাদ্রাজের ইত্যাদি ইত্যাদি। মাদ্রাজে এ খবর পাঠাইবে। সকলে উঠিয়া পড়িয়া না লাগিলে কি কাজ হয়? ‘উদ্যোগীনাং পুরুষসিংহমুপৈতি লক্ষ্মীঃ’ (উদ্যোগী পুরুষসিংহেরই লক্ষ্মী লাভ হয়) ইত্যাদি। পেছ দেখতে হবে না -- forward (এগিয়ে চল)। অনন্ত বীর্য, অনন্ত উৎসাহ, অনন্ত সাহস ও অনন্ত ধৈর্য, তবে মহাকাব্য সাধন হবে। দুনিয়ায় আগুন লাগিয়ে দিতে হবে।

আর যে দিন স্টীমার ঠিক হবে, তৎক্ষণাৎ মিঃ স্টার্ডিকে এক পত্র লিখিবে যে, ‘অমুক স্টীমারে

আমি আসিতেছি।' নতুবা লন্ডনে পৌঁছিয়া গোলমাল হইয়া না যাও। যে স্টীমার একদম লন্ডন যায়, তাহাই লইবে; কারণ তাহাতে যদিও দু-চারি দিন অধিক লাগে, পরন্তু ভাড়া কম লাগে। এক্ষণে আমাদের অধিক পয়সা তো নাই। কালে দলে দলে চতুর্দিকে পাঠাইব। কিমধিকমিতি

পুঃ -- পত্রপাঠ খেতড়ির রাজাকে লিখিবে যে, তুমি বোম্বে যাইতেছ ইত্যাদি এবং তাঁহার লোক যেন তোমায় জাহাজে চড়িয়া দেয়।

প্রিয় রাখাল,

আগামী রবিবার 'মোম্বাসা' জাহাজে আমার রওনা হবার কথা। স্বাস্থ্য খারাপ হওয়ায় পুনর এবং আরও অনেক স্থানের নিমন্ত্রণ প্রত্যাখ্যান করতে হয়েছে। অতিরিক্ত পরিশ্রমে ও গরমে শরীর অত্যন্ত খারাপ হয়েছে।

থিওসফিস্টরা ও অন্যান্য সকলে আমাকে ভয় দেখাতে চেয়েছিল; সুতরাং আমকেও দু-চারটি কথা -- খোলাখুলিভাবে তাদের শোনাতে হয়েছিল। তুমি জান, তাদের দলে যোগ দিতে অস্বীকার করায় তারা আমাকে আমেরিকায় বরাবর নির্যাতিত করেছে। এখানেও তারা তাই শুরু করতে চেয়েছিল, কাজেই আমার মত পরিষ্কার করে বলতে হয়েছিল। এতে আমার কলকাতার বন্ধুদের কেউ যদি অসন্তুষ্ট হয়ে থাকেন তো ভগবান তাঁদের কৃপা করুন। তোমার পাবার কারণ নেই; আমি নিঃসঙ্গ নই -- প্রভু সর্বদাই আমার সঙ্গে আছেন। অন্য কীই বা করতে পারতুম। ইতি

প্রিয় শশী,

তোমরা অবশ্যই এতদিনে মাদ্রাজ পঁছিয়াছ। বিলিগিরি অবশ্যই অতি যত্ন করিতেছে ও সদানন্দ তোমার সেবা করিতেছে। পূজা-অর্চা পূর্ণ সাত্ত্বিকভাবে মাদ্রাজে করিতে হইবে। রজোগুণের লেশমাত্র যেন না থাকে। আলাসিঙ্গা বোধ হয় এতদিনে মাদ্রাজে পঁছিয়াছে। কাহারও সহিত বাদ-বিবাদ করিবে না -- সদা শান্তিভাব আশ্রয় করিবে। আপাততঃ বিলিগিরির বাটীতেই ঠাকুর স্থাপনা করিয়া পূজাদি হউক, তবে পূজার ঘন্টা একটু কমাইয়া সে সময়টা পাঠাদি ও লেকচার প্রভৃতি কিছু কিছু যেন হয়। কান ফুঁকতে যত পার, ততই মঙ্গল জানিবে। কাগজ দুটোর তত্ত্বাবধান করিবে ও যাহা পার সহায়তা করিবে। বিলিগিরির দুটি বিধবা কন্যা আছেন। তাঁদের শিক্ষা দিবে ও তাঁদের দ্বারা ঐ প্রকার আরও বিধবারা যাহাতে স্বধর্মে থাকিয়া সংস্কৃত ও ইংরেজী শিক্ষা পায়, এ বিষয়ে যত্ন সবিশেষ করিবে। কিন্তু এসব কার্য তফাত হইতে। যুবতীর সাক্ষাতে অতি সাবধান। একবার পড়িলে আর গতি নাই এবং ও অপরাধের ক্ষমা নাই।

গুণ্ডকে কুকুরে কামড়াইয়াছে শুনিয়া বড়ই দুঃখিত হইলাম, কিন্তু শুনিতোছি যে, ঐ কুকুর হন্যা নহে -- তাহা হইলে ভয়ের কারণ নাই। যাহা হউক, গঙ্গাধরের প্রেরিত ঔষধ সেবন করান যেন হয়। প্রাতঃকালে পূজাদি অল্পে সারা করিয়া সপরিবার বিলিগিরিকে ডাকাইয়া কিঞ্চিৎ গীতাদি পাঠ করিবে। রাধাকৃষ্ণ-প্রেম শিক্ষার কিছুমাত্র আবশ্যিক নাই। শুদ্ধ সীতারাম ও হরপার্বতীতে ভক্তি শিখাইবে। এ বিষয়ে কোন ভুল না হয়। যুবক-যুবতীদের [পক্ষে] রাধাকৃষ্ণলীলা একেবারে বিষের ন্যায় জানিবে। বিশেষ বিলিগিরি প্রভৃতি রামানুজীরা রামোপাসক, তাঁদের শুদ্ধ ভাব যেন কদাচ বিনষ্ট না হয়।

বৈকালে ঐ প্রকার সাধারণ লোকের জন্য কিছু শিক্ষাদি দিবে। এই প্রকার ধীরে ধীরে ‘পর্বতমপি লঙ্ঘয়েৎ’।

পরমশুদ্ধ ভাব যেন সর্বদা রক্ষিত হয়। ঘৃণাক্ষরেও যেন বামাচার না আসে। বাকি প্রভু সকল বুদ্ধি দিবেন, ভয় নাই। বিলিগিরিকে আমার বিশেষ দণ্ডবৎ ও আলিঙ্গনাদি দিবে। ঐ প্রকার সকল ভক্তদের আমার প্রণামাদি দিও। আমার রোগ অনেকটা এক্ষণে শান্ত হইয়াছে -- একেবারে সারিয়া গেলেও যাইতে পারে -- প্রভুর ইচ্ছা। আমার ভালবাসা, নমস্কার, আশীর্বাদাদি জানিবে।

পুনঃ -- ডাক্তার নঞ্জুন্ড রাওকে আমার বিশেষ প্রেমালিঙ্গন ও আশীর্বাদ দিবে ও তাঁহাকে যতদূর পার সহায়তা করিও। তামিল অর্থাৎ ব্রাহ্মণের জাতির মধ্যে যাহাতে সংস্কৃত বিদ্যার চর্চা হয়, তাহা করিবে।

অভিনন্দনদেয়,

তোমার পত্রে বিশেষ সমাচার অবগত হইলাম। সুধীরের এক পত্র পাইলাম এবং মাস্টারমহাশয়েরও এক পত্র পাই। নিত্যানন্দের (যোগেন চাটুয্যের) দুই পত্র দুর্ভিক্ষস্থল হইতে পাইয়াছি।

টাকাকড়ি এখনও যেন জলে ভাসছে ... জোগাড় নিশ্চিত হবে। হল, বিল্ডিং, জমি ও ফন্ড -- সব ঠিক হয়ে যাবে। কিন্তু না আঁচালে তো বিশ্বাস নেই -- এবং দু-তিন মাস এক্ষণে আমি তো আর গরম দেশে যাচ্ছি না। তারপর একবার tour (ভ্রমণ) করে টাকা যোগাড় করব নিশ্চিত। এ বিধায় যদি তুমি বোধ কর যে, ঐ আট কাঠা frontage (সামনে খোলা জমি) না হয় ..., তাহলে ... দালালের বায়না জলে ফেলার মতো দিলে ক্ষতি নাই। এ-বিষয় নিজে বুদ্ধি করে করবে, আমি অধিক আর কি লিখব? তাড়াতাড়িতে ভুল হওয়ার বিশেষ সম্ভব। ... মাস্টারমহাশয়কে বলিবে, তিনি যে বিষয়ে বলিয়াছেন, তাহা আমার খুব অভিমত।

গঙ্গাধরকে লিখিবে যে, যদি ভিক্ষাদি সেখানে (দুর্ভিক্ষস্থলে) দুপ্রাপ্য হয় তো গাঁটের পয়সা খেচ করিয়া খাইবে এবং সপ্তাহে সপ্তাহে এক-একটা পত্র উপেনের কাগজে ('বসুমতী'তে) প্রকাশ করিবে। তাহাতে অন্য লোকেও সহায়তা করিতে পারে।

শশীর এক পত্রে জানিতেছি, ... সে নির্ভয়ানন্দকে চায়। যদি উত্তম বিবেচনা কর, নির্ভয়ানন্দকে মাদ্রাজ পাঠাইয়া গুপ্তকে আনাইবে। মঠের Rules & Regulations-এর (নিয়মাবলীর) ইংরেজী অনুবাদ বা বাঙলা কপি শশীকে পাঠাইবে এবং সেখানে যেন ঐ প্রকার কার্য হয়, তাহা লিখিবে।

কলিকাতায় সভা বেশ চলিতেছে শুনিয়া সুখী হইলাম। এক দুই জন না আইসে কিছুই দরকার নাই (কিছু আসে যায় না)। ক্রমে সকলেই আসিবে। সকলের সঙ্গে সহৃদয়তা প্রভৃতি রাখিবে। মিষ্টি কথা অনেক দূর যায়, নূতন লোক যাহাতে আসে, তাহার চেষ্টা করাই বিশেষ প্রয়োজন। নূতন নূতন মেস্বর চাই।

যোগেন আছে ভাল। আমি -- আলমোড়াও অত্যন্ত গরম হওয়ায় ২০ মাইল দূরে এক উত্তম বাগানে আছি; অপেক্ষাকৃত ঠান্ডা, কিন্তু গরম। গরম কলিকাতা হইতে বিশেষ প্রভেদ কি?

জ্বরভাবটা সব সেরে গেছে। আরও ঠান্ডা দেশে যাবার যোগাড় দেখছি। গরমি বা পথশ্রম হলেই দেখছি লিভারে গোল দাঁড়ায়। এখানে হাওয়া এত শুষ্ক যে, দিন-রাত্র নাক জ্বালা করছে ও জিভ যেন কাঠের চোকলা। তোমরা আর criticise (সমালোচনা) করো না; নইলে এতদিনে আমি মজা করে ঠান্ডা দেশে পড়তুম। ... তুমি ও-সব মুখ্য-সুখ্যদের কথা কি শোন? যেমন তুমি আমাকে কলায়ের দাল খেতে দিতে না -- starch (শ্বেতসার) বলে!! আবার কি খবর -- না, ভাত আর রুটি ভেজে খেলে আর starch (শ্বেতসার) থাকে না!!! অদ্ভুত বিদ্যে বাবা!! আসল কথা আমার পুরান ধাত আসছেন। ... এইটি বেশ দেখতে পাচ্ছি। এ-দেশে এখন এ-দেশী রঙ চঙ

ব্যামো সব। সে-দেশে সে-দেশি রঙ চঙ সব! রাত্রির খাওয়াটা মনে করছি খুব light (লঘু) করব; সকালে আর দুপুরবেলা খুব খাব, রাত্রে দুধ ফল ইত্যাদি। তাই তো ওৎ করে ফলের বাগানে পড়ে আছি, হে কর্তা!!

তুমি ভয় খাও কেন? বাট্ করে কি দানা মরে? এই তো বাতি জ্বলল, এখনও সারা রাত্রি গাওনা আছে। আজকাল মেজাজটাও বড় খিটখিটে নাই, ও জ্বরভাবগুলো সব ঐ লিভার -- আমি বেশ দেখছি। আচ্ছা, ওকেও দুরস্ত বনাচ্ছি -- ভয় কি? ... খুব চুটিয়ে বুক বেঁধে কাজ কর দিকি, একবার তোলপাড় করা যাক। কিমধিকমিতি।

মঠের সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা দিবে ও next meeting (আগামী সভা)-কে আমার greeting (সাদর সম্ভাষণ) দিও ও কহিও যে, যদিও আমি শরীরের সহিত উপস্থিত নহি, তথাপি আমার আত্মা সেথায়, যেথায় প্রভুর নামকীর্তন হয়। ‘যাবৎ তব কথা সঞ্চরিস্যতি মেদিনীম্’ ইত্যাদি (হনুমান) -- হে রাম, যেথায় তোমার কথা হয়, সেথায় আমি হাজির। আত্মা সর্বব্যাপী কিনা! ইতি

প্রেমাস্পদেষু,

এখান হইতে আলমোড়ায় যাইয়া যোগেন-ভায়ার জন্য বিশেষ চেষ্টা করিলাম। কিন্তু ভায়া একটু আরাম বোধ করিয়াই দেশে যাত্রা করিলেন। সুভালা-ভ্যালি পৌঁছে সংবাদ দিবেন। ... ডাঙি আদি পাওয়া অসম্ভব বিধায় লাটুর যাওয়া হইল না। আমি ও অচ্যুত পুনরায় এ স্থানে আসিয়াছি। আমার শরীর এই ঘোড়ার পিঠে রৌদ্রে উর্ধ্বশ্বাস দৌড়ের দরুন একটু আজ খারাপ আছে। শশীবাবুর ঔষধ প্রায় দুই সপ্তাহ খাইলাম -- বিশেষ কিছুই দেখি না। -- লিভারের বেদনাটা গিয়াছে ও কসরত করার দরুন হাত পা বিশেষ muscular (পেশীবহুল) হইয়াছে, কিন্তু পেটটা বিষম ফুলিতেছে -- উঠতে বসতে হাঁপ ধরে। বোধ হয় দুখ খাওয়াই তার কারণ। শশীকে জিজ্ঞাসা করিবে যে, দুধ ছাড়িয়া দেওয়া যায় কিনা। পূর্বে আমার দুইবার sun-stroke (সর্দি-গরম) হয়। সেই অবধি রৌদ্র লাগিলেই চোখ লাল হয়, দুই-তিন দিন শরীর খারাপ যায়।

মঠের খবর শুনিয়া বিশেষ সুখী হইলাম ও দুর্ভিক্ষের কার্য উত্তমরূপে হইতেছে শুনিলাম। দুর্ভিক্ষের জন্য 'ব্রহ্মবাদিন' আফিস হইতে টাকা আসিয়াছে কিনা লিখিবে এবং এখান হইতেও শীঘ্র টাকা যাইবে। দুর্ভিক্ষ আরও অনেক স্থানে তো আছে। একটি গ্রামে এতদিন থাকিবার আবশ্যক নাই। উহাদিগকে অন্যত্র যাইতে বলিবে এবং এক এক জনকে এক এক জায়গায় যাইতে লিখিবে। ঐ সকল কাজই আসল কাজ; ঐরূপে ক্ষেত্র কর্ষিত হইলে পরে ধর্মের বীজ রোপন করা যাইতে পারে। ঐ যে গোঁড়ারা আমাদের গালি করিতেছে, ঐ রকম (সেবা) কার্যই তাহার একমাত্র উত্তর -- এইটি সদা মনে রাখিবে। শশী ও সারদা যে প্রকার বলিতেছে, সেই প্রকার ছাপাইতে আমার কোন আপত্তি নাই।

মঠের নাম কি হইবে একটা স্থির তোমরাই কর। ... টাকা সাত সপ্তাহের মধ্যে পৌঁছাবে; জমির তো কোন খবর নাই। এ বিষয়ে কাশীপুরের কেষ্টগোপালের বাগানটা নিলে ভাল হয় না? পরে কার্য ক্রমে হবে। যদি মত হয়, এ বিষয় কাহাকেও -- মঠস্থ বা বাহিরের -- না বলিয়া চুপি চুপি অনুসন্ধান করিও। দুই-কান হইলেই কাজ খারাপ হয়। যদি ১৫।১৬ হাজারের ভিতর হয় তো তৎক্ষণাৎ কিনিবে (যদি ভাল বোঝ)। যদি কিছু বেশি হয় তো বায়না করিয়া ঐ সাত সপ্তাহ অপেক্ষা করিও। আমার মতে আপাততঃ ওটা লওয়াই ভাল। বাকি ধীরে ধীরে হবে। ও বাগানের সহিত আমাদের সমস্ত association (স্মৃতি জড়িত)। বাস্তবিক এটাই আমাদের প্রথম মঠ। অতি গোপনে -- 'ফলানুমেয়াঃ প্রারম্ভাঃ সংস্কারাঃ প্রাক্তনা ইব'।^১

কাশীপুরের বাগানের অবশ্য জমির দাম বেড়ে গেছে; কিন্তু কড়ি তেমনি কমে গেছে। যা হয় একটা কর ও শীঘ্র কর। গয়ং গচ্ছ করতে করতে যত কাজ মাটি হয়। ওটাও তো নিতেই হবে, আজ না হয় কাল -- আর যত বড়ই গঙ্গাতীরে মঠ হউক না। অন্য লোক দিয়ে কথা পাড়লে আরও ভাল হয়। আমাদের কেনা টের পেলে লম্বা দর

^১ ফল দেখেই কাজের বিচার সম্ভব হয়; যেমন ফল দেখে পূর্ব সংস্কারের আনুমান করা হয়।

হাঁকবে। চেপে কাজ করে চল। অভীঃ, ঠাকুর সহায়। ভয় কি? সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা দিবে।

প্রিয় শশী,

তোমার কাজকর্ম বেশ চলছে, খবর পাইলাম। তিনটি ভাষ্য বেশ করে পড়ে রাখবে, আর ইওরোপীয় দর্শনাদিও বেশ করে পড়বে, ইহাতে অন্যথা না হয়। পরকে মারতে গেলে ঢাল-তলোয়ার চাই, এ-কথা যেন ভুল একদম না হয়। শুল্ক এক্ষণে পৌঁছিয়াছে, তোমার সেবাদিও বেশ চলছে বোধ হয়। সদানন্দ যদি সেখানে থাকিতে না চায়, কলিকাতায় পাঠাইয়া দিবে, এবং প্রতি সপ্তাহে একটা রিপোর্ট -- আয়-ব্যয় প্রভৃতি সব সমেত মঠে পাঠাইতে ভুল যেন না হয়। আলাসিঙ্গার বোনাই এখানে বদ্রী শার নিকট হতে চারিশত টাকা ধার করিয়া লইয়া গিয়াছে; পৌঁছিবামাত্র পাঠাইবার কথা, এখনও কেন পাঠাইল না। আলাসিঙ্গাকে জিজ্ঞাসিবে এবং সত্বর পাঠাইতে কহিবে; কারণ আমি পরশুদিন এখান হতে যাচ্ছি -- মসুরী পাহাড় বা অন্য কোথাও যাই পরে ঠিক করব। কাল এখানে ইংরেজ-মহলে এক লেকচার হয়েছিল, তাতে বড়ই খুশী। কিন্তু তার আগের দিন হিন্দিতে এক বক্তৃতা করি, তাতে আমি বড়ই খুশী -- হিন্দিতে যে oratory (বাগ্মিতা) করতে পারব তা তো আগে জানতাম না। মঠে ছেলেপুলে যোগাড় হচ্ছে কি? যদি হয় তো কলিকাতায় যেভাবে কার্য হচ্ছে, ঠিক সেইভাবে করে যাও। নিজের বুদ্ধি এখন কিছুদিন বেশি খরচ করবে না, পাছে ফুরিয়ে যায় -- কিছুদিন পরে করো।

তোমার শরীরের উপর বিশেষ লক্ষ্য রাখবে -- তবে বিশেষ আত্মপুতুতে শরীর উল্টা আরও খারাপ হয়ে যায়। বিদ্যের জোর না থাকলে কেউ ঘন্টাফন্টা মানবে না -- এ-কথাটা নিশ্চিত, এবং এইটি মনে স্থির রেখে কার্য করবে।

আমার হৃদয়ের ভালবাসা ও আশীর্বাদ জানিবে ও গুডউইন প্রভৃতিকে জানাইবে। ইতি

কল্যাণবরেষু,

মাদ্রাজের কাজ অর্থাভাবে উত্তমরূপে চলিতেছে না শুনিয়া অত্যন্ত দুঃখিত হইলাম। আলসিঙ্গা ও তাহার ভগিনীপতির টাকা আলমোড়ায় পৌঁছিয়াছে শুনিয়া সুখী হইয়াছি। গুডউইন লিখিতেছে, যে টাকা বাকি আছে লেকচার-এর দরুন -- তাহা হইতে কিছু লইবার জন্য, Reception Committee (অভ্যর্থনা সমিতি)-কে চিঠি লিখিতে বলিতেছে। ... উক্ত লেকচার-এর টাকা Reception-এ (অভ্যর্থনায়) খরচ করা অতি নীচ কার্য -- তাহার বিষয়ে আমি কোন কথা কাহাকেও বলিতে ইচ্ছা করি না। টাকা সম্বন্ধে আমাদের দেশীয় লোক যে কিরূপ, তাহা আমি বিলক্ষণ বুঝিয়াছি। ... তুমি নিজে বন্ধুদের -- আমার তরফ হইতে এ-কথা বুঝাইয়া বলিবে এবং তাঁহারা যদি খরচ চালান ভাল, নতুবা তোমরা কলিকাতার মঠে চলিয়া আসিবে, অথবা রামনাদে মঠ উঠাইয়া লইয়া যাইবে।

আমি এক্ষণে ধর্মশালার পাহাড়ে যাইতেছি। নিরঞ্জন, দীনু, কৃষ্ণলাল, লাটু ও অচ্যুত অমৃতসরে থাকিবে। সদানন্দকে এতদিন মঠে কেন পাঠাও নাই? যদি সেখানে এখনও থাকে, পরে অমৃতসরে হইতে নিরঞ্জন পত্র লিখিলেই তাহাকে পাঞ্জাবে পাঠাইবে। আমি কিছুদিন আরও পাঞ্জাবী পাহাড়ে বিশ্রাম করিয়া পাঞ্জাবে কার্য আরম্ভ করিব। পাঞ্জাব ও রাজপুতানাই কার্যের ক্ষেত্র। কার্য আরম্ভ করিয়াই তোমাদের পত্র লিখিব।

আমার শরীর মধ্যে বড় খারাপ হইয়াছিল। এক্ষণে ধীরে ধীরে শুধরাইতেছে। পাহাড়ে দিনকতক থাকিলেই ঠিক হইয়া যাইবে। আলাসিঙ্গা, জি. জি., গুডউইন, গুণ্ড, সুকুল প্রভৃতি সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা দিও, তুমিও জানিও। ইতি

প্রধান বিচারপতি, শ্রীনগর, কাশ্মীর
১৩ সেপ্টেম্বর, ১৮৯৭

অভিনন্দনসহ,

এক্ষণে কাশ্মীর। এদেশ সম্বন্ধে যে প্রশংসা শুনিয়েছি, তাহা সত্য। এমন সুন্দর দেশ আর নাই, আর লোকগুলিও সুন্দর, তবে ভাল চক্ষু হয় না। কিন্তু এমন নরক-কুন্ডের মতো ময়লা গ্রাম ও শহর আর কোথাও নাই। শ্রীনগরে ঋষিবরবাবুর বাড়িতে ওঠা গেছে। তিনি বিশেষ যত্নও করছেন। আমার চিঠিপত্র তাঁর ঠিকানায় পাঠাইবে। আমি দু-এক দিনের মধ্যে অন্যত্র বেড়াইতে যাইব; কিন্তু আসিবার সময় পুনরায় শ্রীনগর হইয়া আসিব। এবং চিঠিপত্রও পাইব। গঙ্গাধর সম্বন্ধে যে চিঠি পাইয়াছি, তা দেখিলাম। তাহাকে লিখিবে যে মধ্যপ্রদেশে অনেক orphan (অনাথ) রহিয়াছে ও গোরখপুরে। সেখান হইতে পাঞ্জাবীরা অনেক ছেলেপুলে আনাইতেছে। মহেন্দ্রবাবুকে বলিয়া কহিয়া একটা এ-বিষয়ে agitation (আন্দোলন) করা উচিত -- যাহাতে কলিকাতার লোকে ঐ-সকল orphan - এর charge (ভার) নেয়, সে বিষয়ে একটা আন্দোলন হওয়া উচিত -- বিশেষতঃ যাহাতে মিশনারীরা যে-সকল orphan (অনাথ) লইয়াছে, তাহাদের যেন ফিরাইয়া দেয় -- সে-বিষয়ে গভর্নমেন্টকে Memorial (স্মারকলিপি) দেওয়া উচিত। গঙ্গাধরকে আসিতে বল এবং রামকৃষ্ণ-সভার তরফ হইতে এ-বিষয়ে একটা বিষয় হুজুক করা উচিত। কোমড় বেঁধে বাড়ি বাড়ি গিয়ে হুজুক কর। Central Province (মধ্য প্রদেশ) এবং গোরখপুর ইত্যাদিতে যে-সব প্রধান বাঙালী আছে, তাদের পত্র লিখে সব facts (বিবরণ) জানাও এবং তুমুল আন্দোলন কর। রামকৃষ্ণ-সভা একদম জেঁকে যাক। হুজুকের উপর হুজুক -- বিরাম না যেন হয়, এই হল secret (রহস্য)। সারদার কার্যের পরিপাটি দেখে খুব খুশী হলাম। গঙ্গাধর এবং সারদা যেখানে যেখানে গেছে, সেই সেই জেলায় এক একটা centre (কেন্দ্র) না করে আর যেন বিরত না হয়।

এইমাত্র গঙ্গাধরের পত্র পাইলাম। সে ঐ জেলায় centre (কেন্দ্র) করিতে দৃঢ়প্রতিজ্ঞ -- বেশ কথা। তাহাকে লিখিও যে, তাহার বন্ধু ম্যাজিস্ট্রেট আমার পত্রের অতি সুন্দর উত্তর দিয়াছেন। কাশ্মীর হইতে নামিয়াই লাটু, নিরঞ্জন, দীনু ও খোকাকে পাঠাইয়া দিব; কারণ উহাদের এখানে আর কোন কার্য সম্ভব নয়, এবং কুড়ি-পঁচিশ দিনের মধ্যে শুদ্ধানন্দ, সুশীল ও আর একজনকে পাঠাইবে। তাহাদের আম্বালায় ক্যান্টনমেন্ট মেডিকেল হল, শ্যামাচরণ মুখোপাধ্যায়ের বাটীতে পাঠাইব। আমি সেখান হতে লাহোরে যাইব। দুটো করে গেরুয়া রঙের মোটা গেঞ্জি, পাতবার আর মুড়ি দেবার দুই দুই কম্বল, আর গায়ে দেবার একটা করে গরম কাপড় ইত্যাদি লাহোরে কিনিয়া দিব। যদি 'রাজযোগ' বইয়ের অনুবাদ হইয়া গিয়া থাকে তো তাহা ছাপাইবে ঘরের পয়সায়। ... ভাষা যেখানে দুরূহ আছে, তাহা অতি সরল করিবে এবং যদি পারে -- তুলসী তাহার একটা হিন্দি তর্জমা করুক। ঐ বইগুলি বাহির হইলে মঠের অনেক সাহায্য হয়।

হয় পরে লিখিব। দু-এক দিনের মধ্যে যদি হয় তো থাকিব; নহিলে আমি বেড়াইতে চলিলাম। সেভিয়ার মরীতেই রহিল। তাহার শরীর বড়ই অসুস্থ -- টাঙ্গার ঝটকায়। মরীর বাঙালী বাবুরা বড়ই ভাল এবং ভদ্র।

জি. সি. ঘোষ, অতুল, মাস্টার মহাশয় প্রভৃতি সকলকে আমার সাষ্টাঙ্গ দিবে ও সকলকে তাতাইয়া রাখিবে। যোগেন যে বাটী কিনিবার কথা বলিয়াছিল, তাহার খবর কি? আমি এখান হইতে অক্টোবর মাসে নামিয়া পাঞ্জাবে দু-চারটি লেকচার দিব। তাহার পর সিন্ধু হইয়া কচ্ছ, ভূজ ও কাথিয়াওয়াড় -- সুবিধা হইলে পুনা পর্যন্ত, নহিলে বরোদা হইয়া রাজপুতানা। রাজপুতানা হইয়া N. W. P. (উত্তর-পশ্চিম প্রদেশ) ও নেপাল, তারপর কলিকাতা -- এই তো প্রোগ্রাম এখন; পরে প্রভু জানেন। সকলকে আমার প্রণাম আশীর্বাদ ইত্যাদি।

অভিনন্দনদেয়,

তোমার স্নেহপূর্ণ চিঠিখানি পেয়েছি, মঠের চিঠিও পেয়েছি। দু-তিন দিনের মধ্যেই আমি পাঞ্জাব রওনা হচ্ছি। বিলাতি ডাক এসেছে। মিস্ নোবল্ তার পত্রে যে-সব প্রশ্ন করেছে সেগুলি সম্বন্ধে আমার উত্তর এইঃ

(১) প্রায় সব শাখা-কেন্দ্রই খোলা হয়েছে, তবে এখনও আন্দোলনের আরম্ভ মাত্র।

(২) সন্ন্যাসীদের অধিকাংশই শিক্ষিত, যারা তা নয় তারাও লৌকিক শিক্ষা পাচ্ছে। কিন্তু অকপট নিঃস্বার্থপরতাই সৎকার্যের জন্য সবচেয়ে বেশি প্রয়োজন। সে উদ্দেশ্যে অন্য সব শিক্ষার চেয়ে আধ্যাতাত্ত্বিক শিক্ষার দিকেই সমধিক মনোযোগ দেওয়া হয়।

(৩) লৌকিক বিদ্যার শিক্ষকবৃন্দ: আমরা যাদের কর্মীরূপে পাচ্ছি তাদের অধিকাংশই শিক্ষিত। এক্ষণে আবশ্যিক -- শুধু তাহাদিগকে আমাদের কার্যপ্রণালী শেখান এবং চরিত্র গঠন করা। শিক্ষার উদ্দেশ্য -- তাহাদিগকে আজ্ঞানুবর্তী ও নির্ভীক করা; আর তার প্রণালী হচ্ছে -- প্রথমতঃ গরিবদের জীবনযাত্রার ব্যবস্থা করা এবং মানসিক উচ্চতর স্তরগুলির দিকে এগিয়ে দেওয়া।

শিল্প ও কলা: অর্থাভাবহেতু আমাদের কর্মতালিকার অন্তর্গত এই অংশ এখনও আরম্ভ করতে পারছি না। বর্তমানে যে সোজা কাজটুকু করা চলে, তা হচ্ছে -- ভারতবাসীদিগকে স্বদেশী দ্রব্য ব্যবহার করতে উৎসাহিত করা এবং ভারতীয় শিল্প-দ্রব্যাদি যাতে ভারতের বাইরে বিক্রয় হয়, তার জন্য বাজার সৃষ্টি করা। যারা নিজেরা দালাল নয়, পরন্তু এই শাখার সমস্ত লভ্যাংশ শিল্পীদের উপকারের জন্য ব্যয় করতে প্রস্তুত, কেবল তাদের দ্বারাই এ কাজ করান উচিত।

(৪) জায়গায় জায়গায় ঘুরে বেড়ান ততদিনই প্রয়োজন হবে, যতদিন না জনসাধারণ শিক্ষার প্রতি আকৃষ্ট হয়। অন্য সব কিছু অপেক্ষা পরিব্রাজক সন্ন্যাসীদের ধর্মভাব ও ধর্মজীবন সমধিক কার্যকর হবে।

(৫) সকল জাতির মধ্যে আমাদের প্রভাব বিস্তারিত হবে। এ পর্যন্ত উচ্চ স্তরের মধ্যেই কেবল কাজ হয়েছে; কিন্তু দুর্ভিক্ষ-সাহায্যকেন্দ্রগুলিতে আমাদের কর্ম-বিভাগের কাজ শুরু হওয়ার পর থেকে নিম্নতর জাতিগুলিকেও আমরা প্রভাবিত করতে পারছি।

(৬) প্রায় সকল হিন্দুই আমাদের কাজ সমর্থন করেন; কিন্তু এই জাতীয় কার্যে প্রত্যক্ষ সহায়তা করতে তাঁরা অভ্যস্ত নহেন।

(৭) হাঁ, আমরা গোড়া থেকেই আমাদের দান ও অন্যান্য সৎকার্যে ভারতীয় বিভিন্নধর্মাবলম্বীর মধ্যে

ইতরবিশেষ করি না।^১

এই সূত্র অনুসারে মিস নোবলকে চিঠি লিখলেই হবে। যোগেনের চিকিৎসার যেন কোন ত্রুটি না হয় -- আসল ভেঙেও টাকা খরচ করবে। ভবনাথের স্ত্রীকে দেখতে গিয়েছিলে কি?

ব্রহ্মচারী হরিপ্রসন্ন যদি আসতে পারে তো ভাল হয়। মিঃ সেভিয়ার একটা কেন্দ্র স্থানের জন্য বড়ই ব্যস্ত হয়ে পড়েছে -- যা হয় একটা শীঘ্র করে ফেলতে পারলে হয়। হরিপ্রসন্ন ইঞ্জিনিয়ার মানুষ, বাট করে কিছু করতে পারবে। আর জায়গা-টায়গা সে ব্যক্তি বোঝেও ভাল। দেবাদুন মসুরীর নিকট একটা জায়গা হওয়া তাদের পছন্দ -- অর্থাৎ যেখানে বেশী শীত না হয় এবং বার মাস থাকা চলে। হরিপ্রসন্নকে অতএব একদম আম্বালায় শ্যামাপদ মুখোপাধ্যায়ের বাড়ি, মেডিকেল হল, আম্বালা ক্যান্টনমেন্ট-এ পাঠাবে পত্রপাঠ। আমি পাঞ্জাবে নেমেই সেভিয়ারকে তার সঙ্গে দিয়ে পাঠাব। আমি ঝাঁ করে পাঞ্জাবটা হয়ে করাচি দিয়ে কাথিয়াওয়াড় গুজরাট না হয়ে রাজপুতানার ভিতর দিয়ে নেপাল হয়ে চট করে চলে আসছি। তুলসী যে মধ্যভারতে গেছে -- সে কি দুর্ভিক্ষকার্যের জন্য? এখানে আমরা সব ভাল আছি ...। সাধারণ স্বাস্থ্য খুব ভাল ও ডায়েবেটিস্ অনেক দিন ভাগলওয়া হয়েছেন -- আর কোনও ভয় করব না। সকলকে আমার আশীর্বাদ, প্রণাম ও ভালবাসা দিও। কালী নিউ ইয়র্কে পৌঁছিয়াছে, খবর পাইয়াছি; কিন্তু সে কোনও চিঠিপত্র লিখে নাই। স্টার্ডি লিখছে, তার work (কাজ) এত বেড়ে উঠেছিল যে, লোকে অবাক হয়ে যায় -- আবার দু-চার জন তার খুব প্রশংসা করে চিঠিও লিখেছে। যা হোক, আমেরিকাতে অত গোল নাই -- এক রকম চলে যাবে। শুদ্ধানন্দ এবং তার ভাইকেও হরিপ্রসন্নর সঙ্গে পাঠাবে -- এ দলের মধ্যে খালি গুপ্ত আর অচ্যুত আমার সঙ্গে থাকবে। ইতি

অভিনন্দয়েষু,

গোপাল-দাদার এক পত্রে অবগত হইলাম যে, তোমরা কোন্নগরে জমি দেখিয়া আসিয়াছ। জমি নাকি ষোল বিঘা নিষ্কর এবং দাম আট-দশ হাজারের কম। স্বাস্থ্য ইত্যাদি সকল বিবেচনা করিয়া যেমন ভাল হয় করিবে। আমি দু-এক দিনের মধ্যে পাঞ্জাব চলিলাম। আতের এ জ্ঞানে চিঠিপত্র আর লিখিনও না। Next (পরবর্তী) ঠিকানা আমি 'তার' করিব। হরিপ্রসন্নকে পাঠাইবার কথা যেন ভুলো না। গোপাল-দাদাকে বলিবে যে, 'তাহার শরীর শীঘ্রই ভাল হইয়া যাইবে -- শীত আসছে, ভয় কি? -- খুব খাও দাও, মৌজ উড়াও।' যোগেনের শরীর কেমন থাকে তদ্বিষয়ে মিসেস সি. সেভিয়ার, স্প্রিং ডেল, মরী, ঠিকানায় এক চিঠি লিখিবে এবং তাহার উপর To wait arrival (না আসা পর্যন্ত অপেক্ষা করিবে) লিখিয়া দিও। সকলকে ভালবাসা আশীর্বাদ ইত্যাদি দিও। কিমধিকমিতি

পুঃ -- খেতড়ির রাজা ১০ অক্টোবর বোম্বাই আসিবে, Address (অভিনন্দন)-টা ভুলিও না।

অভিনন্দনদেয়,

কাশীর হতে আজ দশ দিন পর্যন্ত সমস্ত কাজ যেন একটা ঝাঁকে করেছি বলে মনে হচ্ছে। সেটা শরীরের রোগ হোক বা মনেরই হোক। এক্ষণে আমার সিদ্ধান্ত এই যে, আমি আর কাজের যোগ্য নই। ... তোমাদের উপর অত্যন্ত কটু ব্যবহার করেছি, বুঝতে পারছি। তবে তুমি আমার সব সহ্য করবে আমি জানি; ও মঠে আর কেউ নেই যে সব সহ্যবে। তোমার উপর অধিক কটু ব্যবহার করেছি; যা হবার তা হয়েছে -- কর্ম! আমি অনুতাপ কি করব, ওতে বিশ্বাস নাই -- কর্ম! মায়ের কাজ আমার দ্বারা যতটুকু হবার ছিল ততটুকু করিয়ে শেষ শরীর-মন চুর করে ছেড়ে দিলেন 'মা'। মায়ের ইচ্ছা!

এক্ষণে আমি এ সমস্ত কাজ সতে অবসর নিলাম। দু-এক দিনের মধ্যে আমি সব ... ছেড়ে দিয়ে একলা একলা চলে যাব, কোথাও চুপ করে বাকি জীবন কাটা। তোমরা মাপ করতে হয় করো, যা ইচ্ছা হয় করো। মিসেস বুল বেশি টাকা দিয়েছেন। শরতের উপর তাঁর একান্ত বিশ্বাস। শরতের পরামর্শ নিয়ে সকল মঠের কাজ করো, যা হয় করো। তবে আমি চিরকাল বীরের মতো চলে এসেছি -- আমার কাজ বিদ্যুতের মতো শীঘ্র, আর বজ্রের মতো অটল চাই। আমি ঐ রকমই মরব। সেইজন্য আমার কাজটি করে দিও -- হারা-জিতের সঙ্গে কোনও সম্পর্ক নাই। আমি লড়ায়ে কখনও পেছপাও হইনি; এখন কি ... হবে? হার-জিত সকল কাজেই আছে; তবে আমার বিশ্বাস যে, কাপুরুষ মরে নিশ্চিত কৃমিকীট হয়ে জন্মায়। যুগ যুগ তপস্যা করলেও কাপুরুষের উদ্ধার নেই -- আমায় কি শেষে কৃমি হয়ে জন্মাতে হবে? ... আমার চোখে এ সংসার খেলামাত্র -- চিরকালই তাই থাকবে। এর মান-অপমান দু-টাকা লাভ-লোকসান নিয়ে কি ছমাস ভাবতে হবে? ... আমি কাজের মানুষ! খালি পরামর্শ হচ্ছে -- ইনি পরামর্শ দিচ্ছেন, উনি ভয় দেখাচ্ছেন, তো উনি ডর! আমার চোখে এ জীবনটা এমন কিছু মিষ্টি নয় যে, অত ভয়-ডর করে হুঁশিয়ার হয়ে বাঁচতে হবে। টাকা, জীবন, বন্ধু-বান্ধব, মানুষের ভালবাসা, আমি -- সব অত সিদ্ধি নিশ্চিত করে যে কাজ করতে চায়, অত ভয় যদি করতে হয় তো গুরুদেব যা বলতেন যে, 'কাক বড় স্যায়না --' তার তাই হয়। আর যা-ই হোক, এ-সব টাকা কড়ি, মঠ-মড়ি, প্রচার-ফ্রচার কি জন্য? সমস্ত জীবনের এক উদ্দেশ্য -- শিক্ষা। তা ছাড়া ধন-বাড়ি স্ত্রী-পুরুষ প্রয়োজন কি?

এজন্য টাকা গেল, কি হার হল -- আমি অত বুঝতে পারি না বা পারব না। লড়াই করলুম কোমর বেঁধে -- এ আমি খুব বুঝি; আর যে বলে, 'কুছ পরোয়া নেই, ওয়া বাহাদুর, আমি সঙ্গেই আছি' ... তাকে বুঝি, সে বীরকে বুঝি, সে দেবতাকে বুঝি। তেমন নরদেবের পায়ে আমার কোটি কোটি নমস্কার; তারাই জগৎপাবন, তারাই সংসারের উদ্ধারকর্তা! আর যেগুলো খালি 'বাপ রে এগিও না, ওই ভয়, ওই ভয়' -- ডিস্‌পেপটিকগুলো -- প্রায়ই ভয়তরাসে। তবে আমার মায়ের কৃপায় মনে এত জোর যে, ঘোর ডিস্‌পেপসিয়া কখনও আমায় কাপুরুষ করতে পারবেনা। কাপুরুষদের আর কি বলব, কিছুই বলবার নাই। কিন্তু যত বীর এ জগতে বড় কাজ করতে নিষ্ফল হয়েছেন, যাঁরা কখনও কখনও কাজ থেকে হঠেননি, যে সকল বীর ভয় আর অহঙ্কারবশে হুকুম অগ্রাহ্য করেননি, তাঁরা যেন আমায় চরণে স্থান দেন। আমি শাক্ত মায়ের ছেলে। মিনমিনে ভিন্‌ভিনে, ছেঁড়া ন্যাতা, তমোগুণ আর নরককুন্ড আমার চক্ষে দু-ই এক। মা জগদম্বে, হে গুরুদেব! তুমি চিরকাল বলতে, 'এ বীর!' -- আমায় যেন কাপুরুষ হয়ে মরতে না হয়। এই আমার প্রার্থনা, হে ভাই! ... 'উৎপৎস্যতেহস্তি মম কোহপি সমানধর্মা' -- এই

ঠাকুরের দাসানুদাসের মধ্যে কেউ না কেউ উঠবে আমার মতো, যে আমায় বুঝবে।

‘জাগো বীর ঘুচায় স্বপন; শিয়রে শমন, ... তাহা না ডরাক তোমা’ -- যা কখনও করিনি, রণে পৃষ্ঠ দিইনি, আজ কি ... তাই হবে? ... হারবার ভয়ে লড়াই থেকে হঠে আসব? হার তো অপ্দের আভরণ; কিন্তু না লড়েই হারব?

তারা! মা! ... একটা তাল ধরবার মানুষ নেই; আবার মনে মনে খুব অহঙ্কার, ‘আমরা সব বুঝি’। ... আমি এখন চললাম, সব ... তোমাদের রইল। মা আবার মানুষ দেন -- যাদের ছাতিতে সাহস, হাতে বল, চোখে আগুন জ্বলে, যারা জগদম্বার ছেলে -- এমন একজনও যদি দেন, তবে কাজ করব, তবে আবার আসব; নইলে জানলুম মায়ের ইচ্ছা এই পর্যন্ত। আমার এখন ‘ঘড়িকে ঘোড়া ছোটে’, আমি চাই তড়িঘড়ি কাজ, নির্ভীক হৃদয়।

সারদা বেচারীকে অনেক গাল দিয়েছি। কি করব? ... আমি গাল দিই; কিন্তু আমারও বলবার ঢের আছে। ... আমি হাঁপাতে হাঁপাতে দাঁড়িয়ে দাঁড়িয়ে ওর article (প্রবন্ধ) লিখেছি। সব ... ভাল নইলে বৈরাগ্য হবে কেন? ... শেষটা কি আর মা আমায় জড়িয়ে মারবেন? সকলকার কাছে আমার অনেক অপরাধ -- যা হয় করো।

আমি তোমাদের সকলকে প্রাণ খুলে আশীর্বাদ করছি -- মা যেন মহাশক্তিরূপে তোমাদের মধ্যে আসেন, ‘অভয়প্রতিষ্ঠং’ অভয় যেন তোমাদের করেন। আমি জীবনে এই দেখলাম, যে সদা আত্ম-সাবধান করে, সে পদে পদে বিপদে পড়ে। যে মানের ভয়ে মরে, সে অপমানই পায়। যে সদা লোকসানের ভয় করে, সে সর্বদা খোঁয়ায়। ... তোমাদের সব কল্যাণ হোক! অলমিতি।

অভিনন্দনসহ,

লাহোরে লেকচার এক রকম হইয়া গেল। দু-এক দিনের মধ্যেই দেৱাদুন যাত্রা করিব। তোমাদের সকলের অমত এবং অন্যান্য অনেক বাধাবশতঃ সিন্ধুযাত্রা এখন স্থগিত রহিল। আমার দুইখানি বিলাতী চিঠি কে রাস্তায় খুলিয়াছে। অতএব আমার চিঠিপত্র এক্ষণে আর পাঠাইবে না। খেতড়ি হইতে লিখলে পাঠাইবে। যদি উড়িয়া যায় যাও তো এমন বন্দোবস্ত করিয়া যাও যে, কোন ব্যক্তি তোমার প্রতিনিধি হইয়া সমস্ত কার্য করে - যথা হরি। বিশেষতঃ এক্ষণে আমি প্রতিদিন আমেরিকা হইতে টাকার অপেক্ষা করিতাছি।

হরি ও শরতের নামে যে উইল করিবার জন্য বলিয়াছিলাম, তাহা বোধ হয় হইয়া গিয়াছে।

এখানে সম্ভবতঃ সদানন্দ ও সুধীরকে ছাড়িয়া যাইব একটি সভা স্থাপন করিয়া। এবার লেকচারাদি আর নয় -- একেবারে ছুড়মুড় রাজপুতানায় যাচ্ছি। মঠ না করে আর কথা নয়। শরীর regular exercise (নিয়মিত ব্যায়াম) না করিলে কখনও ভাল থাকে না, বকে বকেই যত ব্যারাম ধরে, ইহা নিশ্চিত জানিও। সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা। ইতি

অভিনন্দনসহ,

বোধ হয় তোমার ও হরীর শরীর এক্ষণে বেশ আছে। লাহোরে খুব ধূম-ধামের সহিত কার্য হইয়া গেল। এক্ষণে দেরাদুনে চলিলাম। সিন্ধুযাত্রা স্থগিত রহিল। দীনু, লাটু ও কৃষ্ণলাল জয়পুরে পৌঁছিয়াছে কিনা, এখনও কোন সংবাদ নাই। এখান হইতে মঠের খরচের জন্য বাবু নগেন্দ্রনাথ গুপ্ত মহাশয় চাঁদা আদায় করিয়া পাঠাইবেন। রীতিমত receipt (রসিদ) তাঁহাকে দিও। মরী, রাওলপিন্ডি ও শিয়ালকোট হইতে কিছু পাইয়াছ কিনা লিখিবে।

এই পত্রের জবাব C/o Post Master, Dehra Dun লিখিও। অন্য চিঠি আমি দেরাদুন হইতে পত্র লিখিলে পর পাঠাইবে। আমার শরীর বেশ আছে। তবে রাতে দু-একবার উঠিতে হয়। নিদ্রা উত্তম হইতেছে। খুব লোকচার করিলেও নিদ্রার ব্যাঘাত হয় না, আর exercise (ব্যায়াম) রোজ আছে। ভাত তো আজ ৩ মাস রোজ খাই, কিন্তু কোন গোল নাই। এইবার উঠে-পড়ে লাগ। সেই বড় জায়গাটার উপর চুপিসাড়ে চোখ রাখ। এবার মনোৎসব^১ যাতে সেথায় হয়, তার বিধিমত চেষ্টা করা যাচ্ছে। সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা। ইতি

অভিনন্দনদেয়,

আমরা কাল খেতড়ি যাত্রা করিব। দেখিতে দেখিতে লটবহর অত্যন্ত বাড়িয়া উঠিয়াছে। খেতড়ি হইয়া সকলকেই মঠে পাঠাইবার সঙ্কল্প আছে। যে-সকল কাজ এদের দ্বারা হইবে মনে করেছিলাম, তাহার কিছুই হইল না। অর্থাৎ আমার সঙ্গে সঙ্গে থাকিলে কেহই যে কিছুই করিতে পারিবে না -- তাহা নিশ্চিত। স্বাধীনভাবে না ঘুরিলে ইহাদের দ্বারা কিছুই হইবে না। অর্থাৎ আমার সঙ্গে থাকিলে কে ইহাদের পুঁছিবে -- কেবল সময় নষ্ট। এই জন্য ইহাদের পাঠাইতেছি মঠে।

Famine (দুর্ভিক্ষ) ফন্ডে যে টাকা বাঁচিয়াছে, তাহা একটা permanent work (স্থায়ী কার্যের) ফন্ড করিয়া রাখিয়া দিবে। অন্য কোনও বিষয়ে তাহা খরচ করিবে না এবং সমস্ত famine work (দুর্ভিক্ষ-কার্য)-এর হিসাব দেখাইয়া লিখিবে যে, বাকি এত আছে অন্য good work (ভাল কাজ)-এর জন্য।

কাজ আমি চাই -- don't want any humbug (কোন প্রতারক চাই না)। যাদের কাজ করার ইচ্ছা নেই -- 'যাদু, এই বেলা পথ দেখ' তারা। খেতড়ি পৌঁছিয়াই তোমার power of attorney (ক্ষমতাপত্র)-তে সহি করিয়া পাঠাইয়া দিব -- যদি পৌঁছিয়া তাকে। আমেরিকার বস্টন ছাপওয়ালার চিঠিমাত্রই খুলিবে, অন্য কোনও চিঠি খুলিবে না। আমার চিঠিপত্র খেতড়িতে পাঠাইবে। টাকা আমি রাজপুতানাতেই পাইব, তাহার কোনও চিন্তা নাই। তোমরা প্রাণপণে জায়গাটা ঠিক কর -- এবার নিজের জমির উপর মহোৎসব করিতেই হইবে।

টাকাটা কি বেঙ্গল ব্যাঙ্কে আছে অথবা তুমি অন্য কোথাও রাখিয়া দিয়াছ? টাকাকড়ি সম্বন্ধে বিশেষ সাবধান হইবে। হিসাব তন্ন তন্ন রাখিবে ও টাকার জন্য আপনার বাপকেও বিশ্বাস নাই জানিবে। ইতি

তোমার পত্রে সকল সমাচার অবগত হইলাম ও তোমার 'তারে'র জবাব পূর্বেই দিয়েছি। নিরঞ্জন ও গোবিন্দলাল সা কাঠগুদামে যোগীন-মার অপেক্ষা করিবে। আমি নৈনিতাল পৌঁছিলে এখান হইতে বাবুরাম ঘোড়া চড়িয়া নৈনিতালে যায় কাহারও কথা না শুনিয়া এবং আসিবার দিনও ঘোড়া চড়িয়া আমাদের সঙ্গে আসে। আমি ডান্ডি চড়িয়া অনেক পিছে পড়িয়াছিলাম। রাত্রে যখন ডাকবাংলায় পৌঁছি, শুনলাম বাবুরাম আবার পড়িয়া গিয়াছে ও হাতে চোট লাগিয়াছে -- ভাঙে-চুরে নাই, এবং ধমকানি খাইবার ভয়ে দেশী ডাকবাংলায় আছে; কারণ পড়িবার দরুন মিস ম্যাকলাউড তাহাকে ডান্ডি দিয়া নিজে তাহার ঘোড়ায় আসিয়াছে। সে-রাত্রে আর আমার সহিত দেখা হয় নাই। পরদিন ডান্ডির যোগাড় করিতেছি -- ইতোমধ্যে শুনলাম সে পায়ে হাঁটিয়া চলিয়া গিয়াছে। সেই অবধি তাহার আর কোনও খবর নাই। দু-এক জায়গায় তার করিয়াছি; কিন্তু খবর নাই। বোধ হয় কোনও গ্রামে ... বসিয়া আছে।

যোগীন-মার জন্য ডান্ডি হইবে; কিন্তু বাকি সকলকে পায়ে হাঁটিতে হইবে।

আমার শরীর অপেক্ষাকৃত অনেক ভাল, কিন্তু ডিম্পেপসিয়া (অজীর্ণতা) যায় নাই এবং পুনর্বীর অনিদ্রা আসিয়াছে। তুমি যদি কবিরাজী একটা ভাল ডিম্পেপসিয়ার ঔষধ শীঘ্র পাঠাও তো ভাল হয়।

ওখানে যে দুই-একটি case (রোগের আক্রমণ) এক্ষণে হইতেছে, তাহার জন্য সরকারী প্লেগ হাসপাতালে অনেক জায়গা আছে এবং ward-এ ward-এ (মহল্লায় মহল্লায়) ও হাসপাতাল হইবার কথা হইতেছে। এ সকল দেখিয়া ও আবশ্যিক বুঝিয়া যাহা ভাল হয় করিবে। তবে বাগবাজারের কে কি বলছে, তাহা public opinion (জনসাধারণের মত) নহে জানিবে। ... আবশ্যিক-কালে অভাব যেন না হয় ও অনর্থক অর্থব্যয় না হয় -- এই সকল দেখিয়া কাজ করিবে।

রামলালের জন্য বিশেষ বুঝিয়া উপস্থিত-মতো জায়গা কিনিয়া দিবে রঘুবীরের নামে। তাহাতে উপস্থিত মা-ঠাকুরানী ও তাঁহার অবর্তমানে রামলাল, শিবু তাঁহাদের উত্তরাধিকারী সেবায়ত থাকে, অথবা যেমন ভাল হয় করিবে। বাড়ি তুমি যেমন ভাল বুঝ, এখনই আরম্ভ করিয়া দিবে; কারণ নূতন বাড়িতে ২।১ মাস বাস করা ঠিক নহে, damp (স্যাঁৎস্যাঁতে) হয়। ... পরে পোস্তা হইবে। কাগজের জন্য টাকার চেষ্টা হইতেছে। যে ১২০০ টাকা তোমায় কাগজের জন্য দিয়াছি, তাহা ঐ হিসাবেই যেন থাকে।

আর আর সকলে ভাল আছে। সদানন্দ কাল পা মুচড়াইয়া বলিতেছে, সন্ধ্যা নাগাদ আরাম হইবে। এবারে আলমোড়ায় জলহাওয়া অতি উত্তম। তাহাতে সেভিয়ার যে বাংলা লইয়াছে, তাহা আলমোড়ার মধ্যে উৎকৃষ্ট। ওপারে এনি বেস্যান্ট চক্রবর্তীর সহিত একটি ছোট বাংলায় আছে। চক্রবর্তী এখন গগনের (গাজীপুরের) জামাই। আমি একদিন দেখা করিতে গিয়াছিলাম। এনি বেস্যান্ট আমায় অনুনয় করে বললে যে, আপনার সম্প্রদায়ের সহিত যেন আমার সম্প্রদায়ের পৃথিবীময় প্রীতি থাকে ইত্যাদি। আজ বেস্যান্ট চা খাইতে এখানে আসিবে। আমাদের

মেয়েরা নিকটে একটি ছোট বাংলায় আছে এবং বেশ আছে। কেবল আজ মিস ম্যাকলাউড একটু অসুস্থ। হ্যারি সেভিয়ার দিন দিন সাধু বনে যাচ্ছে। ... হরি ভাই-এর নমস্কার এবং সদানন্দ, অজয় ও সুরেনের প্রণাম জানিবে। আমার ভালবাসা জানিবে ও সকলকে জানাইবে। ইতি

অভিনন্দনদেয়,

তোমার বরাবর একটি বুঝিবার ভ্রম হয় এবং ‘-’ এর প্রবল বুদ্ধির দোষে বা গুণে সেটি যায় না। সেটি এই যে, যখন আমি হিসাব-কিতাবের কথা বলি, তোমার মনে হয় যে, আমি তোমাদের অবিশ্বাস করছি। ... আমার কেবল ভয় এই যে, এখন তো এক-রকম খাড়া করা গেল। অতঃপর আমরা চলে গেলে যাতে কাজ চলে এবং বেড়ে যায়, তাহাই দিনরাত্র আমার চিন্তা। হাজারই theoretical knowledge (তাত্ত্বিক জ্ঞান), থাকুক -- হাতে - হেতড়ে না করলে কোন বিষয়ে শেখা যায় না। Election (নির্বাচন), টাকাকড়ির হিসাব এবং discussion (আলোচনা)-এর জন্য বারংবার আমি বলি, যাতে সকলে কাজের জন্য তৈয়ার হয়ে থাকে। একজন মরে গেলে অমনি একজন (দশজন if necessary -- প্রয়োজন হলে) should be ready to take it up (কাজে লাগবার জন্য প্রস্তুত থাকা উচিত)। দ্বিতীয় কথা -- মানুষের interest (আগ্রহ) না থাকিলে কেউ খাটে না; সকলকে দেখানো উচিত যে, every one has a share in the work and property, and a voice in the management (প্রত্যেকেরই কাজে ও সম্পত্তিতে অংশ আছে এবং কার্যধারা সম্বন্ধে মতপ্রকাশের ক্ষমতা আছে) - এই বেলা থেকে। Alternately (পর্যায়ক্রমে) প্রত্যেককেই responsible position (দায়িত্বপূর্ণ কাজ) দেবে with an eye to watch and control (নিয়ন্ত্রণের প্রতি দৃষ্টি রেখে), তবে লোক তৈয়ার হয় for business (কাজের জন্য)। এমন machine (যন্ত্র)-টি খাড়া কর যে, আপনি-আপনি চলে যায়, যে মরে বা যে বাঁচে। আমাদের ইন্ডিয়ায় ঐটি great defect (প্রধান দোষ), we cannot make a permanent organisation (আমরা স্থায়ী প্রতিষ্ঠান গড়তে পারি না), and the reason is because we never like to share power with others and never think of what will come after we are gone. (আর তার কারণ এই যে, আমরা অপরের সঙ্গে কখনও ক্ষমতা ভাগ করে নিতে চাই না এবং আমাদের পরে কি হবে, তা কখনও ভাবি না)।

প্লেগ সম্বন্ধে সব লিখেছি। মিসেস বুল ও মূলার প্রভৃতির মত যে, যখন পাড়ায় পাড়ায় হাসপাতাল হয়ে গেল, তখন মিছে কতকগুলো টাকা খরচ কেন? We will lend our services as nurses etc. Those that pay the piper must command the tune (আমরা শুধু সেবক হিসাবে কাজ করব। যারা টাকা দেয়, তাদের কথা শুনতে হয়)।

কাশ্মীরের রাজা জমি দিতে রাজি। জমি দেখেও এসেছি। এখন দু-চার দিনের মধ্যে হয়ে যাবে -- প্রভুর যদি ইচ্ছা হয়। এখানে একটি ছোট বাড়ি করে যাব এইবারেই। যাবার সময় leave it in the charge of Justice Mukherjee (বিচারপতি মুখোপাধ্যায়ের তত্ত্বাবধানে রেখে যাব)। আর তুমি না হয় এসে এখানে শীত কাটিয়ে যাও with somebody else (অপর কাকেও সঙ্গে নিয়ে); শরীরও সেরে যাবে এবং কাজও হবে। যে টাকা press (ছাপাখানা)-এর [জন্য] রেখে এসেছি, তাহলেই হবে। -- তুমি যেমন বিবেচনা কর। এবার N. W. P. (উত্তর-পশ্চিমপ্রদেশ), রাজপুতানা প্রভৃতিতে কতকগুলো টাকা পাব -- নিশ্চিত। ভাল কথা, কয়েক জনকে ... এইভাবে টাকা দিও। এই টাকা আমি মঠ থেকে কর্জ নিচ্ছি এবং পরিশোধ করব to you with interest

(তোমার কাছে সুদ সমেত)।

আমার শরীর এক রকম ভালই আছে। বাড়ি ঘর আরম্ভ হয়েছে -- বেশ কথা। সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা দিও। ইতি

কল্যাণবরেষু,

তোমার পত্র ও তার পাইয়া সমস্ত অবগত হইলাম। প্রভুর নিকট প্রার্থনা করি যে, নির্বিঘ্নে সিন্ধি ভাষা পরীক্ষায় উত্তীর্ণ হও।

মধ্যে আমার শরীর অত্যন্ত অসুস্থ হইয়া পড়ায় কিঞ্চিৎ দেরি হইয়া পড়িল, নতুবা এই সপ্তাহের মধ্যেই পাঞ্জাবে যাইবার কল্পনা ছিল। এক্ষণে দেশে অতিশয় গ্রীষ্ম বলিয়া ডাক্তার যাইতে নিষেধ করিতেছেন। অক্টোবরের শেষ সপ্তাহ নাগাত বোধ হয় করাচি পৌঁছিব। এক্ষণে এক-রকম ভাল আছি। আমার সঙ্গে এবার কেহ নাই। দুজন আমেরিকান লেডি-ফ্রেন্ড মাত্র আছেন। তাঁহাদের সঙ্গে বোধ হয় লাহোরে ছাড়িব। তাঁহারা কলিকাতায় বা রাজপুতানায় আমার অপেক্ষা করিবেন। আমি সম্ভবতঃ কচ্ছ, ভুজ, জুনাগড়, ভাবনগর, লিমডি ও বরোদা হইয়া কলিকাতায় যাইব। নভেম্বর বা ডিসেম্বরে চীন ও জাপান হইয়া আমেরিকায় যাইব -- এই তো এখন বাসনা। পরে শ্রীপ্রভুর হাত। আমার এখানকার সমস্ত খরচপত্র উক্ত আমেরিকান বন্ধুরা দেন এবং করাচি পর্যন্ত ভাড়া প্রভৃতি তাঁহাদের নিকট হইতেই লইব। তবে যদি তোমার সুবিধা হয়, ৫০ টাকা টেলিগ্রাম করিয়া C/o ঋষিবর মুখোপাধ্যায়, চিফ জজ, কাশ্মীর স্টেট, শ্রীনগর -- এঁর নামে পাঠাইলে অনেক উপকার হইবে। কারণ সম্প্রতি ব্যারামে পড়িয়া বাজে খরচ কিছু হইয়াছে, এবং সর্বদা বিদেশী শিষ্যদের নিকট টাকা ভিক্ষা করিতে লজ্জা করে।

কাশ্মীরে স্বাস্থ্য একেবারে ভাঙিয়া গিয়াছে এবং ৯ বৎসর যাবৎ দুর্গাপূজা দেখি নাই -- এ বিধায় কলিকাতা চলিলাম। আমেরিকা যাইবার সঙ্কল্প এখন পরিত্যাগ করিয়াছি এবং শীতকালের মধ্যে করাচি আসিবার অনেক সময় হইবে।

অভিনন্দনদেয়সু,

তোমার পত্রে অনেক সংবাদ পাইলাম। আমার শরীর জাহাজে অনেক ভাল ছিল, কিন্তু ডাঙায় আসিয়া পেটে বায়ু হওয়ায় একটু খারাপ। একজন বড় ডাক্তার বললেন নিরামিষ খাও, আর ভাল ছুঁয়ো না। এনি এখানকার একজন মুরগি ডাক্তার। ঐর মতে ইউরিক এসিড-গোলমালে যত ব্যারাম হয়। মাংস এবং ডাল ইউরিক এসিড বানায়; অতএব ‘ত্যাগ্যং ব্রহ্মপদং’ ইত্যাদি। যা হোক, আমি তাকে সেলাম করে চলে এলাম। Examine (পরীক্ষা) করে বললে চিনি-ফিনি নেই -- আলবুমেন আছে। থাক! নাড়ী খুব জোর, বুকটাও দুর্বল বটে। মন্দ কি, দিনকতক হবিষ্যশী হওয়া ভাল। এখানে বড় গোলযোগ -- বন্ধু-বান্ধব সব গরমির দিনে বাইরে গেছে। তার উপর শরীর তত ভাল নয় -- খাওয়া-দাওয়াও গোলমাল। অতএব দু-চার দিনের মধ্যেই আমেরিকায় চললুম। মিসেস বুলের জন্য একটা হিসাব পাঠাইও -- কত টাকা জমি কিনতে, কত টাকা বাড়ি, খাই খরচ কত টাকা ইত্যাদি, ইত্যাদি।

যা হোক কাগজটার উপর খুব নজর রাখবে। মনে জেনো যে, আমি গেছি। এই বুঝে স্বাধীনভাবে তোমরা কাজ কর। ‘টাকাকড়ি, বিদ্যাবুদ্ধি সমস্ত দাদার ভরসা’ হইলেই সর্বনাশ আর কি! কাগজটার পর্যন্ত টাকা আমি আনব, আবার লেখাও আমার সব -- তোমরা কি করবে? সাহেবরা^১ কি করছেন? আমার হয়ে গেছে! তোমরা যা করবার কর। একটা পয়সা আনবার কেউ নেই, একটা প্রচার করবার কেউ নেই, একটা বিষয় রক্ষা করবার বুদ্ধি কারু নেই। এক লাইন লিখবার ক্ষমতা কারুর নাই -- সব খামকা মহাপুরুষ! ... তোমাদের যখন এই দশা, তখন ছেলেদের হাতে ছ-মাস ফেলে দাও সমস্ত জিনিস -- কাগজ-পত্র, টাকা-কড়ি, প্রচার ইত্যাদি। তারাও কিছু না পারে তো সব বেচে-কিনে যাদের টাকা তাদের দিয়ে ফকির হও। মঠের খবর তো কিছু পাই না। শরৎ কি করছে? আমি কাজ চাই। মরবার আগে দেখতে চাই যে, আজীবন কষ্ট করে যা খাড়া করেছি, তা এক-রকম চলছে। তুমি টাকাকড়ির বিষয় কমিটির সঙ্গে প্রত্যেক বিষয়ে পরামর্শ করে কাজ করবে। কমিটির সহ করে নেবে প্রত্যেক খরচের জন্য। নইলে তুমিও বদনাম নেবে আর কি! লোকে টাকা দিলেই একদিন না একদিন হিসাব চায় -- এই দস্তুর। প্রতি পদে সেটি তৈয়ার না থাকা বড়ই অন্যায়। ... ঐ-রকম প্রথমে কুঁড়েমি করতে করতেই লোকে জোচ্চর হয়। মঠে যারা আছে, তাদের নিয়ে একটি কমিটি করবে, আর প্রতি খরচ তারা সহ না দিলে হবে না -- একদম! ... আমি কাজ চাই, vigour (উদ্যম) চাই -- যে মরে সে বাঁচে; সন্ন্যাসীর আবার মরা-বাঁচা কি?

শরৎ যদি কলিকাতা না জাগিয়ে তুলতে পারে ... তুমি যদি এই বৎসরের মধ্যে পোস্তা না গাঁথতে পার তো দেখতে পাবে তামাশা! আমি কাজ চাই ... no humbug (কোন বুজরুকি নয়)। মাতাঠাকুরানীকে আমার সাষ্টাঙ্গ, ইত্যাদি। ইতি

অভিনন্দনদেয়,

তোমার এক পত্র পূর্বে পাই। শরতের এক পত্র কাল পেয়েছি। তাঁর জন্মোৎসবের^১ নিমন্ত্রণপত্র দেখলাম। শরতের বাতের কথা শুনে ভয় হয়। রাম রাম! খালি রোগ শোক যন্ত্রণা সঙ্গে আছে দু-বছর। শরৎকে বলো যে, আমি বেশি খাটছি না আর। তবে পেটের খাওয়ার মতো না খাটলে শুকিয়ে মরতে হবে যে! ... দুর্গাপ্রসন্ন পাঁচিলের যা হয় অবশ্যই এতদিনে করে দিয়েছে। ... পাঁচিল তোলা কিছু হাঙ্গাম তো নয়। ... পারি তো সেই জায়গাটায় একটা ছোট বাড়ি বানিয়ে নিয়ে বুড়ো দিদিমা ও মা-র কিছুদিন সেবা করব। দুষ্কর্ম কাউকেই ছাড়ে না, মা কাউকেই সাজা দিতে ছাড়েন না। আমার কর্ম ভুগে নিলুম। এখন তোমরা সাধু মহাপুরুষ লোক -- মায়ের কাছে একটু বলবে ভাই, যে আর এ হাঙ্গাম আমার ঘাড়ে না থাকে। আমি এখন চাচ্ছি একটু শান্তি; আর কাজকর্মের বোঝা বইবার শক্তি যেন নাই। বিরাম এবং শান্তি -- যে কটা দিন বাঁচব, সেই কটা দিন। জয় গুরু, জয় শ্রীগুরু!

লেকচার ফেকচার কিছুই নয়। শান্তিঃ! মঠ-(এর) ট্রাস্ট-ডীড শরৎ পাঠিয়া দিলেই সই করে দিই। তোমরা সব দেখ। আমি সত্য সত্য বিশ্রাম চাই। এ রোগের নাম Neurosthenia -- এ স্নায়ুরোগ। এ একবার হলে বৎসর কতক থাকে। তবে দু-চার বৎসর একদম rest (বিশ্রাম) হলে সেরে যায়। ... এ দেশ ঐ রোগের ঘর। এইখান থেকে উনি ঘাড়ে চড়েছেন। তবে উনি মারাত্মক হওয়া দূরে থাকুক, দীর্ঘ জীবন দেন। আমার জন্য ভেবো না। আমি গড়িয়ে গড়িয়ে যাব। গুরুদেবের কাজ এগোচ্ছে না -- এই দুঃখ। তাঁর কাজ কিছুই আমার দ্বারা হলে না -- এই আপসোস! তোমাদের কত গাল দিই, কটু বলি -- আমি মহা নরাধম! আজ তাঁর জন্মদিনে তোমাদের পায়ের ধুলো আমার মাথায় দাও -- আমার মন স্থির হয়ে যাবে। জয় গুরু, জয় গুরু, জয় গুরু, জয় গুরু। তুমি শরণং মম, তুমি শরণং মম (তুমিই আমার শরণ, তুমিই আমার শরণ)। এখন মন স্থির আছে, বলে রাখি। এই চিরকালের মনের ভাব। এ ছাড়া যেগুলো আসে, সেগুলো রোগ জানবে। আর আমায় কাজ করতে একদম দিও না। আমি এখন চুপ করে ধ্যান জপ করব কিছুকাল -- এই মাত্র। তারপর মা জানেন। জয় জগদম্বে!

প্রিয় তুরীয়ানন্দ,

মিসেস হ্যান্সবার্গের একখানি চিঠিতে জানলাম যে, তুমি তাঁদের ওখানে গিয়েছিলে। তাঁরা তোমাকে খুব পছন্দ করেন। এবং আমার বিশ্বাস, তুমিও বুঝতে পেরেছ তাঁদের বন্ধুত্ব কত অকৃত্রিম, পবিত্র ও স্বার্থলেশশূন্য। আমি কাল পারি (Paris) যাত্রা করছি, যোগাযোগ সব ঠিক হয়ে এসেছে। কালী এখানে নেই। আমি চলে যাচ্ছি বলে সে একটু ভাবিত হয়ে পড়েছে -- কিন্তু এ ছাড়া উপায় কি?

তোমরা কে কি কর ইত্যাদি পুঞ্জানুপুঞ্জ লিখে আমায় পত্র লিখবে। তোমার মাকে পত্র লিখ না কেন? ও কি কথা? মাতৃভক্তি সকল কল্যাণের কারণ। তোমার ভাই কলকাতায় পড়ছে-শুনছে কেমন?

তোদের সব আনন্দ-দের নাম মনেও থাকে না -- কোনটাকে কি বলি! সবগুলোকে এক সাঁটে আমার ভালবাসা দিবি। খগেনের শরীর বেশ সেরে গেছে খবর পেয়েছি -- বড়ই সুখের কথা। তোদের -- সেভিয়ার যত্ন করে কিনা সব লিখবি। দীনুর শরীরও ভাল আছে -- বড় সুখের বিষয়। কালী ছোকরার একটু মোটা হবার tendency (প্রবণতা) আছে; তার পাহাড় চড়াই-উৎরাইতে সব সেরে যাবে নিশ্চিত। স্বরূপকে বলবি, আমি তার কাগজ চালানোতে বিশেষ খুশি। He is doing splendid work (সে চমৎকার কাজ করছে)।

^১ স্বামীজী গীতার ভাবটি লইয়া প্রশ্ন করিয়াছেন, উহার অর্থ -- কোথায় থাক, কি বল, কোথায় যাও ইত্যাদি।

হরি ভাই,

এক্ষণে ফ্রান্স দেশের সমুদ্রতটে অবস্থান করছি। Congress of History of Religions (ধর্মেতিহাস সম্মেলন) হয়ে গেছে। সে কিছু নয়, জন কুড়ি পন্ডিত শালগ্রামের উৎপত্তি, জিহোবার উৎপত্তি ইত্যাদি বক্বাদ করেছে! আমিও খানিক বক্বাদ তায় করেছি।

আমার শরীর-মন ভেঙে গেছে। বিশ্রাম অত্যাবশ্যিক। তার উপর একে নির্ভর করবার লোক কেউ নেই, তায় আমি যতক্ষণ থাকব, আমার উপর ভরসা করে সকলে অত্যন্ত স্বার্থপর হয়ে যাবে।

... লোকের সঙ্গে ব্যবহার করতে গেলে দিনরাত মনঃকষ্ট। কাজেই ... সব লিখে পড়ে আলাদা হয়ে গেছি। এখন আমি লিখে দিচ্ছি যে, কারও একাধিপত্য থাকবে না। সমস্ত কাজ majority-র (অধিকাংশের) হুকুমে হবে ... সেই মত ট্রাস্ট ডীড্ করিয়ে নিলেই আমি বাঁচি।

এ বৃত্তান্ত ঐ পর্যন্ত। এখন তোমরা যা হয় কর। আমার কাজ আমি করে দিয়েছি, বস। গুরুমহারাজের কাছে ঋণী ছিলাম -- প্রাণ বার করে আমি শোধ করে দিয়েছি। সে কথা তোমায় কি বলব ... দলিল করে পাঠিয়েছি সর্বেসর্বা কত্তান্তির! কত্তান্তি ছাড়া বাকি সব করে দিয়েছি।

গঙ্গাধর, তুমি, কালী, শশী, নূতন ছেলেরা -- এদের ঠেলে ঐ রাখাল ও বাবুরামকে কত্তা করে দিচ্ছি! গুরুদেব বড় বলতেন। এ তাঁর কাজ। ... প্রাণ ধরে সই করে দিয়েছি। এখন থেকে যা করব, সে আমার কাজ।

আমি এখন আমার কাজ করতে চললুম। গুরুমহারাজের ঋণ^১ প্রাণ বার করে শুধে দিয়েছি। তাঁর আর দাবি-দাওয়া নেই।

তোমরা যা করছ, ও গুরুমহারাজের কাজ, করে যাও। আমার যা করবার করে দিয়েছি, বস! ও-সব সম্বন্ধে আমায় আর কিছু লিখো না, বলো না, ওতে আমার মতামত একদম নেই। ... এখন থেকে অন্য রকম। ... ইতি

প্রেমাস্পদেষু,

তোমার পত্রে সমস্ত সমাচার অবগত হলুম। পূর্বে স্যানফ্রান্সিস্কো হতে পুরো বেদান্তী ও ‘হোম অব ট্রুথ’ (Home of Truth)-দের মধ্যে কিঞ্চিৎ গোলমালের আভাস পেয়েছি, একজন লিখেছিল ও-রকম হয়েই থাকে, বুদ্ধি করে সকলকে সন্তুষ্ট রেখে কাজ চালিয়ে দেওয়াই বিজ্ঞতা।

আমি এখন কিছুদিন অজ্ঞাতবাস করছি। ফরাসীদের সঙ্গে থাকব তাদের ভাষা শিখবার জন্য। এক-রকম নিশ্চিত হওয়া গেছে, অর্থাৎ ট্রাস্ট ডীড-ফীড সই করে কলকাতায় পাঠিয়েছি; আমার আর কোনও স্বত্ব বা অধিকার রাখি নাই। তোমরা এখন সকল বিষয়ের মালিক, প্রভুর কৃপায় সকল কাজ করে নেবে।

আমার আর ঘুরে ঘুরে মরতে ইচ্ছা বড় নাই। এখন কোথাও বসে পুঁথিপাটা নিয়ে কালক্ষেপ করাই যেন উদ্দেশ্য। ফরাসী ভাষাটা কতক আয়ত্ত হয়েছে, কিন্তু দু এক মাস তাদের সঙ্গে বসবাস করলে বেশ কথাবার্তা কইবার অধিকার জন্মাবে।

এ ভাষাটা আর জার্মান -- এ দুটোয় উত্তম অধিকার জন্মালে এক-রকম ইওরোপীয় বিদ্যায় যথেষ্ট প্রবেশ লাভ হয়। এ ফরাসীর লোক কেবল মস্তিস্ক-চর্চা, ইহলোক বাঞ্ছা; ঈশ্বর বা জীব -- কুসংস্কার বলে দৃঢ় ধারণা, ও-সব কথা কইতে চায় না!!! আসল চার্বাকের দেশ! দেখি প্রভু কি করেন! তবে এদেশ হচ্ছে পাশ্চাত্য সভ্যতার শীর্ষ। পারি নগরী পাশ্চাত্য সভ্যতার রাজধানী।

প্রচার সংক্রান্ত সকল কাজ হতে আমায় বিরাম দাও, ভায়া। আমি ও-সব থেকে এখন তফাতে, তোমরা করে-কর্মে নাও। আমার দৃঢ় ধারণা ‘মা’ এখন আমা অপেক্ষা তোমাদের দ্বারা শতগুণ কাজ করাবেন।

কালীর এক পত্র অনেক দিন হল পেয়েছিলাম। সে এতদিনে বোধহয় নিউ ইয়র্কে এসেছে। মিস ওয়াল্ডো মধ্যে মধ্যে খবর নেয়।

আমার শরীর কখনও ভাল, কখনও মন্দ। মধ্যে আবার সেই মিসেস মিলটনের হাতঘষা চিকিৎসা হচ্ছে। সে বলে, তুমি ভাল হয়ে গেছ already (ইতিমধ্যেই)! এই তো দেখছি যে -- এখন পেটে বায়ু হাজার হোক -- চলতে হাঁটতে চড়াই করতেও কোনও কষ্ট হয় না। প্রাতঃকালে খুব ডন-বৈঠক করি। তারপর কালা জলে এক ডুব!!

কাল যার কাছে থাকব তার বাড়ি দেখে এসেছি। সে গরিব মানুষ -- scholar (পন্ডিত); তার ঘরে একঘর বই, একটা ছ-তলার ফ্লাটে থাকে। তায় এদেশে আমেরিকার মত লিফট নেই -- চড়াই ওতরাই। ওতে কিন্তু আমার আর কষ্ট হয় না।

সে বাড়িটির চারিধারে একটি সুন্দর সাধারণ পার্ক আছে। সে লোকটি ইংরাজী কইতে পারে না, সেইজন্য আরও যাচ্ছি। কাজ-কাজেই ফরাসী কইতে হবে আমায়। এখন মায়ের ইচ্ছা। বাকি তাঁর কাজ, তিনি জানেন। ফুটে তো বলেন না, 'গুম্ হোকে রহতী হ্যায়', তবে মাঝখান থেকে ধ্যান-জপটা তো খুব হয়ে যাচ্ছে দেখছি।

মিস বুক, মিস বেল, মিসেস এম্পিনেল, মিস বেকহাম, মিঃ জর্জ, ডাক্তার লোগান প্রভৃতি সকল বন্ধুদের আমার ভালবাসা দিও এবং তুমি নিজে জেনো।

তথা লস্ এঞ্জেলসের সকলকে আমার ভালবাসা। ইতি

প্রিয় ভূরীয়ানন্দ,

Just now received your letter (এই মাত্র তোমার পত্র পেলাম)। মায়ের ইচ্ছায় সব কাজ চলে যাবে, ভয় খেও না। আমি শীঘ্রই এখান হতে অন্যত্র চলে যাব। বোধ হয় কন্সতান্তিনোপল্ প্রভৃতি দেখে বেড়াব কিছুদিন। তারপর ‘মা’ জানেন। মিসেস উইলমটের এক পত্র পেলাম। তাতে তো তার খুব উৎসাহ বলেই বোধ হল। নিশ্চিত হয়ে গট হয়ে বস। সব ঠিক হয়ে যাবে। যদি নাদশ্রবণাদি দ্বারা কারও হানি হয় তো ধ্যান ত্যাগ করে দিনকতক মাছ-মাংস খেলেই ও পালিয়ে যাবে। শরীর যদি দুর্বল না হতে থাকে তাহলে কোনও ভয়ের কারণ নেই। ধীরে ধীরে অভ্যাস।

তোমার পত্রের জবাব আসবার আগেই আমি এ স্থান ত্যাগ করব। অতএব এর জবাব এস্থানে আর পাঠিও না। সারদার^১ কাগজপত্র সব পেয়েছি, এবং তাকে কয়েক সপ্তাহ হল বহুত লিখে পাঠান গেছে। আরও পরে পাঠাবার উদ্দেশ্য রইল। আমার যাত্রা এখন কোথা, তার নিশ্চিত নাই। এইমাত্র যে, নিশ্চিত হবার চেষ্টা করছি।

কালীরও এক পত্র আজ পেলাম। তার জবাব কাল লিখব। শরীর এক-রকম গড়মড় করে চলছে। খাটলেই খারাপ, না খাটলেই ভাল, আর কি? মা জানেন। নিবেদিতা ইংলন্ড গেছে, মিসেস বুল আর তাতে টাকা জোগাড় করছে। কিমেনগড়ের বালিকাগুলিকে নিয়ে সেইখানেই স্কুল করবে, তার ইচ্ছা। যা পারে করুক। আমি কোনও বিষয়ে আর বলি না -- এই মাত্র। আমার ভালবাসা জানিবে। কিন্তু কার্য সম্বন্ধে কোনও বিষয়ে আমার কোনও উপদেশ নাই। ইতি

SIX LESSONS ON RAJA-YOGA

(These lessons are composed of notes of class talks given by Swami Vivekananda to an intimate audience in the house of Mrs. Sara C. Bull, a devoted American disciple, and were preserved by her and finally printed in 1913 for private circulation — Ed.)

Râja-Yoga is as much a science as any in the world. It is an analysis of the mind, a gathering of the facts of the supersensuous world and so building up the spiritual world. All the great spiritual teachers the world has known said, "I see and I know." Jesus, Paul, and Peter all claimed actual perception of the spiritual truths they taught.

This perception is obtained by Yoga.

Neither memory nor consciousness can be the limitation of existence. There is a superconscious state. Both it and the unconscious state are sensationless, but with a vast difference between them — the difference between ignorance and knowledge. Present Yoga as an appeal to reason, as a science.

Concentration of the mind is the source of all knowledge.

Yoga teaches us to make matter our slave, as it ought to be. Yoga means "yoke", "to join", that is, to join the soul of man with the supreme Soul or God.

The mind acts in and under consciousness. What we call consciousness is only one link in the infinite chain that is our nature.

This "I" of ours covers just a little consciousness and a vast amount of unconsciousness, while over it, and mostly unknown to it, is the superconscious plane.

Through faithful practice, layer after layer of the mind opens before us, and each reveals new facts to us. We see as it were new worlds created before us, new powers are put into our hands, but we must not stop by the way or allow ourselves to be dazzled by these "beads of glass" when the mine of diamonds lies before us.

God alone is our goal. Failing to reach God, we die.

Three things are necessary to the student who wishes to succeed.

First. Give up all ideas of enjoyment in this world and the next, care only for God and Truth. We are here to know truth, not for enjoyment. Leave that to brutes who enjoy as we never can. Man is a thinking being and must struggle on until he conquers death, until he sees the light. He must not spend himself in vain talking that bears no fruit. Worship of society and popular opinion is idolatry. The soul has no sex, no country, no place, no time.

Second. Intense desire to know Truth and God. Be eager for them, long for them, as a drowning man longs for breath. Want only God, take nothing else, let not "seeming" cheat you any longer. Turn from all and seek only God.

Third. The six trainings: First — Restraining the mind from going outward. Second — Restraining the senses. Third — Turning the mind inward. Fourth — Suffering everything without murmuring. Fifth — Fastening the mind to one idea. Take the subject before you and think it out; never leave it. Do not count time. Sixth — Think constantly of your real nature. Get rid of superstition. Do not hypnotise yourself into a belief in your own inferiority. Day and night tell yourself what you really are, until you realise (actually realise) your oneness with God.

Without these disciplines, no results can be gained.

We can be conscious of the Absolute, but we can never express It. The moment we try to express It, we limit It and It ceases to be Absolute.

We have to go beyond sense limit and transcend even reason, and we have the power to do this.

[After practising the first lesson in breathing a week, the pupil reports to the teacher.]

FIRST LESSON

This is a lesson seeking to bring out the individuality. Each individuality must be cultivated. All will meet at the centre. "Imagination is the door to inspiration and the basis of all thought." All prophets, poets, and discoverers have had great imaginative power. The explanation of nature is in us; the stone falls outside, but gravitation is in us, not outside. Those who stuff themselves, those who starve themselves, those who sleep too much, those who sleep too little, cannot become Yogis. Ignorance, fickleness, jealousy, laziness, and excessive attachment are the great enemies to success in Yoga practice. The three great requisites are:

First. Purity, physical and mental; all uncleanness, all that would draw the mind down, must be abandoned.

Second. Patience: At first there will be wonderful manifestations, but they will all cease. This is the hardest period, but hold fast; in the end the gain is sure if you have patience.

Third. Perseverance: Persevere through thick and thin, through health and sickness, never miss a day in practice.

The best time for practice is the junction of day and night, the calmest time in the tides of our bodies, the zero point between two states. If this cannot be done, practise upon rising and going to bed. Great personal cleanliness is necessary — a daily bath.

After bathing, sit down and hold the seat firm, that is, imagine that you sit as firm as a rock, that nothing can move you. Hold the head and shoulders and the hips in a straight line, keeping the spinal column free; all action is along it, and it must not be impaired.

Begin with your toes and think of each part of your body as perfect; picture it so in your mind, touching each part if you prefer to do so. Pass upward bit by bit until you reach the head, thinking of each as perfect, lacking nothing. Then think of the whole as perfect, an instrument given to you by God to enable you to attain Truth, the vessel in which you are to cross the ocean and reach the shores of eternal truth. When this has been done, take a long breath through both nostrils, throw it out again, and then hold it out as long as you comfortably can. Take four such breaths, then breathe naturally and pray for illumination.

"I meditate on the glory of that being who created this universe; may he illuminate my mind." Sit and meditate on this ten or fifteen minutes.

Tell your experiences to no one but your Guru.

Talk as little as possible.

Keep your thoughts on virtue; what we think we tend to become.

Holy meditation helps to burn out all mental impurities. All who are not Yogis are slaves; bond after bond must be broken to make us free.

All can find the reality beyond. If God is true, we must feel him as a fact, and if there is a soul, we ought to be able to see it and feel it.

The only way to find if there be a soul is to be something which is not the body.

The Yogis class our organs under two chief heads: organs of sense and organs of motion, or knowledge and action.

The internal organ or mind has four aspects. First — Manas, the cogitating or thinking faculty, which is usually almost entirely wasted, because uncontrolled; properly governed, it is a wonderful power. Second — Buddhi, the will (sometimes called the intellect). Third — Ahamkâra, the self-conscious egotism (from Aham). Fourth — Chitta, the substance in and through which all the faculties act, the floor of the mind as it were; or the sea in which the various faculties are waves.

Yoga is the science by which we stop Chitta from assuming, or becoming transformed into, several faculties. As the reflection of the moon on the sea is broken or blurred by the waves, so is the reflection of the Atman, the true Self, broken by the mental waves. Only when the sea is stilled to mirror-like calmness, can the reflection of the moon be seen, and only when the "mind-stuff", the Chitta is controlled to absolute calmness, is the Self to be recognised.

The mind is not the body, though it is matter in a finer form. It is not eternally bound by the body. This is proved as we get occasionally loosened from it. We can learn to do this at will by controlling the senses.

When we can do that fully, we shall control the universe, because our world is only what the senses bring us. Freedom is the test of the higher being. Spiritual life begins when you have loosened yourself from the control of the senses. He whose senses rule him is worldly — is a slave.

If we could entirely stop our mind-stuff from breaking into waves, it would put an end to our bodies. For millions of years we have worked so hard to manufacture these bodies that in the struggle we have forgotten our real purpose in getting them, which was to become perfect. We have grown to think that body-making is the end of our efforts. This is Mâyâ. We must break this delusion and return to our original aim and realise we are not the body, it is our servant.

Learn to take the mind out and to see that it is separate from the body. We endow the body with sensation and life and then think it is alive and real. We have worn it so long that we forget that it is not identical with us. Yoga is to help us put off our body when we please and see it as our servant, our instrument, not our ruler. Controlling the mental powers is the first great aim in Yoga practices. The second is concentrating them in full force upon any subject.

You cannot be a Yogi if you talk much.

THE WOMEN OF INDIA

(New Discoveries, Vol. 2, pp. 411-26.)

The following lecture was delivered at Cambridge, December 17, 1894, and recorded by Miss Frances Willard's stenographer.

Swami Vivekananda faced bigotry in America on several issues of Indian culture — one was the Indian woman. Naturally he sought to correct Western misconceptions. When he lectured in his own country, however, there was no greater advocate for improving the life of Indian women than the Swami.

In speaking about the women of India, ladies and gentlemen, I feel that I am going to talk about my mothers and sisters in India to the women of another race, many of whom have been like mothers and sisters to me. But though, unfortunately, within very recent times there have been mouths only to curse the women of our country, I have found that there are some who bless them too. I have found such noble souls in this nation as Mrs. [Ole] Bull and Miss [Sarah] Farmer and Miss [Frances] Willard, and that wonderful representative of the highest aristocracy of the world, whose life reminds me of that man of India, six hundred years before the birth of Christ, who gave up his throne to mix with the people. Lady Henry Somerset has been a revelation to me. I become bold when I find such noble souls who will not curse, whose mouths are full of blessing for me, my country, our men and women, and whose hands and hearts are ever ready to do service to humanity.

I first intend to take a glimpse into times past of Indian history, and we will find something unique. All of you are aware, perhaps, that you Americans and we Hindus and this lady from Iceland [Mrs. Sigrid Magnusson] are the descendants of one common ancestry known as Aryans. Above all, we find three ideas wherever the Aryans go: the village community, the rights of women and a joyful religion.*

The first [idea] is the system of village communities — as we have just heard from Mrs. Bull concerning the North. Each man was his own [lord?] and owned the land. All these political institutions of the world we now see, are the developments of those village systems. As the Aryans went over to different countries and settled, certain circumstances developed this institution, others that.

The next idea of the Aryans is the freedom of women. It is in the Aryan literature that we find women in ancient times taking the same share as men, and in no other literature of the world.

Going back to our Vedas — they are the oldest literature the world possesses and are composed by your and my common ancestors (they were not written in India — perhaps on the coast of the Baltic, perhaps in Central Asia — we do not know).

Their oldest portion is composed of hymns, and these hymns are to the gods whom the Aryans worshipped. I may be pardoned for using the word gods; the literal translation is "the bright ones". These hymns are dedicated to Fire, to the Sun, to Varuna and other deities. The titles run: "such-and-such a sage composed this verse, dedicated to such-and-such a deity".

In the tenth chapter comes a peculiar hymn — for the sage is a woman — and it is dedicated to the one God who is at the background of all these gods. All the previous hymns are spoken in the third person, as if someone were addressing the deities. But this hymn takes a departure: God [as the Devi] is speaking for herself. The pronoun used is "I".

"I am the Empress of the Universe, the Fulfiller of all prayers." (Vide "Devi Sukta", Rig-Veda 10.125)

This is the first glimpse of women's work in the Vedas. As we go on, we find them taking a greater share — even officiating as priests. There is not one passage throughout the whole mass of literature of the Vedas which can be construed even indirectly as signifying that woman could never be a priest. In fact, there are many examples of women officiating as priests.

Then we come to the last portion of these Vedas — which is really the religion of India — the concentrated wisdom of which has not been surpassed even in this century. There, too, we find women preeminent. A large portion of these books are words which have proceeded from the mouths of women. It is there — recorded with their names and teachings.

There is that beautiful story of the great sage Yâjñavalkya, the one who visited the kingdom of the great king Janaka. And there in that assembly of the learned, people came to ask him questions. One man asked him, "How am I to perform this sacrifice?" Another asked him, "How am I to perform the other sacrifice?" And after he had answered them, there arose a woman who said, "These are childish questions. Now, have a care: I take these two arrows, my two questions. Answer them if you can, and we will then call you a sage. The first is: What is the soul? The second is: What is God?" (Brihadâranyaka Upanishad 3.8.1.-12.)

Thus arose in India the great questions about the soul and God, and these came from the mouth of a woman. The sage had to pass an examination before her, and he passed well.

Coming to the next stratum of literature, our epics, we find that education has not degenerated. Especially in the caste of princes this ideal was most wonderfully held.

In the Vedas we find this idea of marrying — the girls chose for themselves; so the boys. In the next stratum they are married by their parents, except in one caste.

Even here I would ask you to look at another side. Whatever may be said of the Hindus, they are one of the most learned races the world has ever produced. The Hindu is the metaphysician; he applies everything to his intellect. Everything has to be settled by astrological calculation.

The idea was that the stars govern the fate of every man and woman. Even today when a child is born, a horoscope is cast. That determines the character of the child. One child is born of a divine nature, another of a human, others of lower character.

The difficulty was: If a child who was of a monster-character was united with a child of a god-character, would they not have a tendency to degenerate each other?

The next difficulty was: Our laws did not allow marriage within the same clans. Not only may one not marry within his own family — or even one of his cousins — but one must not marry into the clan of his father or even of his mother.

A third difficulty was: If there had been leprosy or phthisis or any such incurable disease within six generations of either bride or bridegroom, then there must not be a marriage.

Now taking [into account] these three difficulties, the Brahmin says: "If I leave it to the choice of the boy or girl to marry, the boy or girl will be fascinated with a beautiful face. And then very likely all these circumstances will bring ruin to the family". This is the primary idea that governs our marriage laws, as you will find. Whether right or wrong, there is this philosophy at the background. Prevention is better than cure.

That misery exists in this world is because we give birth to misery. So the whole question is how to prevent the birth of miserable children. How far the rights of a society should extend over the individual is an open question. But the Hindus say that the choice of marriage should not be left in the hands of the boy or girl.

I do not mean to say that this is the best thing to do. Nor do I see that leaving it in their hands is at all a perfect solution. I have not found a solution yet in my own mind; nor do I see that any country has one.

We come next to another picture. I told you that there was another peculiar form of marriage (generally among the royalty) where the father of the girl invited different princes and noblemen and they had an assembly. The young lady, the daughter of the king, was borne on a sort of chair before each one of the princes in turn. And the herald would repeat: "This is Prince So-and-so, and these are his qualifications". The young girl would either wait or say, "Move on". And before the next prince, the crier would also give a description, and the girl would say, "Move on". (All this would be arranged beforehand; she already had the liking for somebody before this.) Then at last she would ask one of the servants to throw the garland over the head of the man, and it would be thrown to show he was accepted. (The last of these marriages was the cause of the Mohammedan invasion of India.) (Vide later this chapter for the story of Samjuktâ, daughter of a Rajput prince, who became the Queen of Delhi.) These marriages were specially reserved for the prince caste.

The oldest Sanskrit poem in existence, the Râmâyana, has embodied the loftiest Hindu ideal of a woman in the character of Sitâ. We have not time to go through her life of infinite patience and goodness. We worship her as God incarnate, and she is named before her husband, Râma. We say not "Mr. and Mrs.", but "Mrs. and Mr." and so on, with all the gods and goddesses, naming the woman first.

There is another peculiar conception of the Hindu. Those who have been studying with me are aware that the central conception of Hindu philosophy is of the Absolute; that is the background of the universe. This Absolute Being, of whom we can predicate nothing, has Its powers spoken of as She — that is, the real personal God in India is She. This Shakti of the Brahman is always in the feminine gender.

Rama is considered the type of the Absolute, and Sita that of Power. We have no time to go over all the life of Sita, but I will quote a passage from her life that is very much suited to the ladies of this country.

The picture opens when she was in the forest with her husband, whither they were banished. There was a female sage whom they both went to see. Her fasts and devotions had emaciated her body.

Sita approached this sage and bowed down before her. The sage placed her hand on the head of Sita and said: "It is a great blessing to possess a beautiful body; you have that. It is a greater blessing to have a noble husband; you have that. It is the greatest blessing to be perfectly obedient to such a husband; you are that. You must be happy".

Sita replied, "Mother, I am glad that God has given me a beautiful body and that I have so devoted a husband. But as to the third blessing, I do not know whether I obey him or he obeys me. One thing alone I remember, that when he took me by the hand before the sacrificial fire — whether it was a reflection of the fire or whether God himself made it appear to me — I found that I was his and he was mine. And since then, I have found that I am the complement of his life, and he of mine".

Portions of this poem have been translated into the English language. Sita is the ideal of a woman in India and worshipped as God incarnate.

We come now to Manu the great lawgiver. Now, in this book there is an elaborate description of how a child should be educated. We must remember that it was compulsory with the Aryans that a child be educated, whatever his caste. After describing how a child should be educated, Manu adds: "Along the same lines, the daughters are to be educated — exactly as the boys".*

I have often heard that there are other passages where women are condemned. I admit that in our sacred books there are many passages which condemn women as offering temptation; you can see that for yourselves. But there are also passages that glorify women as the power of God. And there are other passages which state that in that house where one drop of a woman's tear falls, the gods are never pleased and the house goes to ruin. Drinking wine, killing a woman and killing a Brahmin are the highest crimes in the Hindu religion. I admit there are condemnatory sentences [in some of our books]; but here I claim the superiority of these Hindu books, for in the books of other races there is only condemnation and no good word for a woman.

Next, I will come to our old dramas. Whatever the books say, the dramas are the perfect representation of society as it then existed. In these, which were written from four hundred years before Christ onward, we find even universities full of both boys and girls. We would not [now] find Hindu women, as they have since become cut off from higher education.* But [at that time], they were everywhere pretty much the same as they are in this country — going out to the gardens and parks to take promenades.

There is another point which I bring before you and where the Hindu woman is still superior to all other women in the world — her rights. The right to possess property is as absolute for women in India as for men — and has been for thousands and thousands of years.

If you have any lawyer friend and can take up commentaries on the Hindu law, you will find it all for yourselves. A girl may bring a million dollars to her husband, but every dollar of that is hers. Nobody has any right to touch one dollar of that. If the husband dies without issue, the whole property of the husband goes to her, even if his father or mother is living. And that has been the law from the past to the present time. That is something which the Hindu woman has had beyond that of the women of other countries.

The older books — or even newer books — do not prohibit the Hindu widows from being married; it is a mistake to think so. They give them their choice, and that is given to both men and women. The idea in our religion is that marriage is for the weak, and I don't see any reason to give up that idea today. They who find themselves complete — what is the use of their marrying? And those that marry — they are given one chance. When that chance is over, both men and women are looked down upon if they marry again; but it is not that they are prohibited. It is nowhere said that a widow is not to marry. The widow and widower who do not marry are considered more spiritual.

Men, of course, break through this law and go and marry; whereas women — they being of a higher spiritual nature — keep to the law. For instance, our books say that eating meat is bad and sinful, but you may still eat such-and-such a meat — mutton, for instance. I have seen thousands of men who eat mutton, and never in my life have I seen a woman of higher caste who eats meat of any kind. This shows that their nature is to keep the law — keeping more towards religion. But do not judge too harshly of Hindu men. You must try to look at the Hindu law from my position too, for I am a Hindu man.

This non-marriage of widows gradually grew into a custom. And whenever in India a custom becomes rigid, it is almost impossible to break through it — just as in your country, you will find how hard it is to break through a five-day custom of fashion. In the lower castes, except two, the widows remarry.

There is a passage in our later law books [which states] that a woman shall not read the Vedas. But they are prohibited to even a weak Brahmin. If a Brahmin boy is not strong-minded, the law is applied to him also. But that does not show that education is prohibited to them, for the Vedas are not all that the Hindus have. Every other book women can read. All the mass of Sanskrit literature, that whole ocean of literature — science, drama, poetry — is all for them. They can go there and read everything, except the [Vedic] scriptures.*

In later days the idea was that woman was not intended to be a priest; so what is the use of her studying the Vedas? In that, the Hindus are not so far behind other nations. When women give up the world and join our Order, they are no longer considered either men or women. They have no sex. The whole question of high or low caste, man or woman, dies out entirely.

Whatever I know of religion I learned from my master, and he learned it of a woman.

Coming back to the Rajput woman, I will try to bring to you a story from some of our old books — how during the Mohammedan conquest, one of these women was the cause of what led to the conquest of India.

A Rajput prince of Kanauj — a very ancient city — had a daughter [Samjukta]. She had heard of the military fame of Prithvi Raj [King of Ajmere and Delhi] and all his glory, and she was in love with him.

Now her father wanted to hold a Râjasuya sacrifice, so he invited all the kings in the country. And in that sacrifice, they all had to render menial service to him because he was superior over all; and with that sacrifice he declared there would be a choice by his daughter.

But the daughter was already in love with Prithvi Raj. He was very mighty and was not going to acknowledge loyalty to the king, her father, so he refused the invitation. Then the king made a golden statue of Prithvi Raj and put it near the door. He said that that was the duty he had given him to perform — that of a porter.

The upshot of the whole affair was that Prithvi Raj, like a true knight, came and took the lady behind him on his horse, and they both fled.

When the news came to her father, he gave chase with his army, and there was a great battle in which the majority of both armies was killed. And [thus the Rajputs were so weakened that] the Mohammedan empire in India began.

When the Mohammedan empire was being established in northern India, the Queen of Chitore [Râni Padmini] was famed for her beauty. And the report of her beauty reached the sultan, and he wrote a letter for the queen to be sent to his harem. The result was a terrible war between the King of Chitore and the sultan. The Mohammedans invaded Chitore. And when the Rajputs found they could not defend themselves any more, the men all took sword in hand and killed and were killed, and the women perished in the flames.

After the men had all perished, the conqueror entered the city. There in the street was rising a horrible flame. He saw circles of women going around it, led by the queen herself. When he approached near and asked the queen to refrain from jumping into the flames, she said, "This is how the Rajput woman treats you", and threw herself into the fire.

It is said that 74,500 women perished in the flames that day to save their honour from the hands of the Mohammedans. Even today when we write a letter, after sealing it we write "74½" upon it, meaning that if one dares to open this letter, that sin of killing 74,500 women will be upon his head.

I will tell you the story of another beautiful Rajput girl.* There is a peculiar custom in our country called "protection". Women can send small bracelets of silken thread to men. And if a girl sends one of these to a man, that man becomes her brother.

During the reign of the last of the Mogul emperors — the cruel man who destroyed that most brilliant empire of India — he similarly heard of the beauty of a Rajput chieftain's daughter. Orders were sent that she should be brought to the Mogul harem.

Then a messenger came from the emperor to her with his picture, and he showed it to her. In derision she stamped upon it with her feet and said, "Thus the Rajput girl treats your Mogul emperor". As a result, the imperial army was marched into Rajputana.

In despair the chieftain's daughter thought of a device. She took a number of these bracelets and sent them to the Rajput princes with a message: "Come and help us". All the Rajputs assembled, and so the imperial forces had to go back again.

I will tell you a peculiar proverb in Rajputana. There is a caste in India called the shop class, the traders. They are very intelligent — some of them — but the Hindus think they are rather sharp. But it is a peculiar fact that the women of that caste are not as intelligent as the men. On the other hand, the Rajput man is not half as intelligent as the Rajput woman.

The common proverb in Rajputana is: "The intelligent woman begets the dull son, and the dull woman begets the sharp son". The fact is, whenever any state or kingdom in Rajputana has been managed by a woman, it has been managed wonderfully well.

We come to another class of women. This mild Hindu race produces fighting women from time to time. Some of you may have heard of the woman [Lakshmi Bai, Queen of Jhansi] who, during the Mutiny of 1857, fought against the English soldiers and held her own ground for two years — leading modern armies, managing batteries and always charging at the head of her army. This queen was a Brahmin girl.

A man whom I know lost three of his sons in that war. When he talks of them he is calm, but when he talks of this woman his voice becomes animated. He used to say that she was a goddess — she was not a human being. This old veteran thinks he never saw better generalship.

The story of Chand Bibi, or Chand Sultana [1546 - 1599], is well known in India. She was the Queen of Golconda, where the diamond mines were. For months she defended herself. At last, a breach was made in the walls. When the imperial army tried to rush in there, she was in full armour, and she forced the troops to go back.*

In still later times, perhaps you will be astonished to know that a great English general had once to face a Hindu girl of sixteen.

Women in statesmanship, managing territories, governing countries, even making war, have proved themselves equal to men — if not superior. In India I have no doubt of that. Whenever they have had the opportunity, they have proved that they have as much ability as men, with this advantage — that they seldom degenerate. They keep to the moral standard, which is innate in their nature. And thus as governors and rulers of their state, they prove — at least in India — far superior to men. John Stuart Mill mentions this fact.

Even at the present day, we see women in India managing vast estates with great ability. There were two ladies where I was born who were the proprietors of large estates and patronesses of learning and art and who managed these estates with their own brains and looked to every detail of the business.

Each nation, beyond a general humanity, develops a certain peculiarity of character — so in religion, so in politics, so in the physical body, so in mental habitude, so in men and women, so in character. One nation develops one peculiarity of character, another takes another peculiarity. Within the last few years the world has begun to recognize this.

The very peculiarity of Hindu women, which they have developed and which is the idea of their life, is that of the mother. If you enter a Hindu's home, you will not find the wife to be the same equal companion of the husband as you find her here. But when you find the mother, she is the very pillar of the Hindu home. The wife must wait to become the mother, and then she will be everything.

If one becomes a monk, his father will have to salute him first because he has become a monk and is therefore superior to him. But to his mother he — monk or no monk — will have to go down on his knees and prostrate himself before her. He will then put a little cup of water before her feet, she will dip her toe in it, and he will have to drink of it. A Hindu son gladly does this a thousand times over again!*

Where the Vedas teach morality, the first words are, "Let the mother be your God" (Taittiriya Upanishad 1.11.) — and that she is. When we talk of woman in India, our idea of woman is mother. The value of women consists in their being mothers of the human race. That is the idea of the Hindu.

I have seen my old master taking little girls by the hands, placing them in a chair and actually worshipping them — placing flowers at their feet and prostrating himself before these little children — because they represented the mother God.

The mother is the God in our family. The idea is that the only real love that we see in the world, the most unselfish love, is in the mother — always suffering, always loving. And what love can represent the love of God more than the love which we see in the mother? Thus the mother is the incarnation of God on earth to the Hindu.

"That boy alone can understand God who has been first taught by his mother." I have heard wild stories about the illiteracy of our women. Till I was a boy of ten, I was taught by my mother. I saw my grandmother living and my great-grandmother living, and I assure you that there never was in my line a female ancestor who could not read or write, or who had to put "her mark" on a paper. If there was a woman who could not read or write, my birth would have been impossible. Caste laws make it imperative.

So these are wild stories which I sometimes hear — such as the statement that in the Middle Ages reading and writing were taken away from Hindu women. I refer you to Sir William Hunter's History of the English People, where he cited Indian women who could calculate a solar eclipse.

I have been told that either too much worship of the mother makes the mother selfish or too much love of the children for the mother makes them selfish. But I do not believe that. The love which my mother gave to me has made me what I am, and I owe a debt to her that I can never repay.

Why should the Hindu mother be worshipped? Our philosophers try to find a reason and they come to this definition: We call ourselves the Aryan race. What is an Aryan? He is a man whose birth is through religion. This is a peculiar subject, perhaps, in this country; but the idea is that a man must be born through religion, through prayers. If you take up our law books you will find chapters devoted to this — the prenatal influence of a mother on the child.

I know that before I was born, my mother would fast and pray and do hundreds of things which I could not even do for five minutes. She did that for two years. I believe that whatever religious culture I have, I owe to that. It was consciously that my mother brought me into the world to be what I am. Whatever good impulse I have was given to me by my mother — and consciously, not unconsciously.

"A child materially born is not an Aryan; the child born in spirituality is an Aryan." For all this trouble — because she has to make herself so pure and holy in order to have pure children — she has a peculiar claim on the Hindu child. And the rest [of her traits] is the same with all other nations: she is so unselfish. But the mother has to suffer most in our families.

The mother has to eat last. I have been asked many times in your country why the [Hindu] husband does not sit with his wife to eat — if the idea is, perhaps, that the husband thinks she is too low a being. This explanation is not at all right. You know, a hog's hair is thought to be very unclean. A Hindu cannot brush his teeth with the brushes made of it, so he uses the fibre of plants. Some traveller saw one Hindu brushing his teeth with that and then wrote that "a Hindu gets up early in the morning and gets a plant and chews it and swallows it!" Similarly, some have seen the husband and wife not eating together and have made their own explanation. There are so many explainers in this world, and so few observers — as if the world is dying for their explanations! That is why I sometimes think the invention of printing was not an unmixed blessing. The real fact is: just as in your country many things must not be done by ladies before men, so in our country the fact is that it is very indecorous to munch and munch before men. If a lady is eating, she may eat before her brothers. But if the husband comes in, she stops immediately and the husband walks out quickly. We have no tables to sit at, and whenever a man is hungry he comes in and takes his meal and goes out. Do not believe that a Hindu husband does not allow his wife to sit at the table with him. He has no table at all.

The first part of the food — when it is ready — belongs to the guests and the poor, the second to the lower animals, the third to the children, the fourth to the husband, and last comes the mother. How many times I have seen my mother going to take her first meal when it was two o'clock. We took ours at ten and she at two because she had so many things to attend to. [For example], someone knocks at the door and says, "Guest", and there is no food except what was for my mother. She would give that to him willingly and then wait for her own. That was her life and she liked it. And that is why we worship mothers as gods.

I wish you would like less to be merely petted and patronized and more to be worshipped! [You], a member of the human race! — the poor Hindu does not understand that [inclination of yours]. But when you say, "We are mothers and we command", he bows down. This is the side then that the Hindus have developed.

Going back to our theories — people in the West came about one hundred years ago to the point that they must tolerate other religions. But we know now that toleration is not sufficient toward another religion; we must accept it. Thus it is not a question of subtraction, it is a question of addition. The truth is the result of all these different sides added together. Each of all these religions represents one side, the fullness being the addition of all these. And so in every science, it is addition that is the law.

Now the Hindu has developed this side. But will this side be enough? Let the Hindu woman who is the mother become the worthy wife also, but do not try to destroy the mother. That is the best thing you can do. Thus you get a better view of the universe instead of going about all over the world, rushing into different nations and criticizing them and saying, "The horrid wretches — all fit to be barbecued for eternity!"

If we take our stand on this position — that each nation under the Lord's will is developing one part of human nature — no nation is a failure. So far they have done well, now they must do better! [Applause]

Instead of calling the Hindus "heathens", "wretches", "slaves", go to India and say, "So far your work is wonderful, but that is not all. You have much more to do. God bless you that you have developed this side of woman as a mother. Now help the other side — the wife of men".

And similarly, I think (I tell it with the best spirit) that you had better add to your national character a little more of the mother side of the Hindu nature! This was the first verse that I was taught in my life, the first day I went to school: "He indeed is a learned man who looks upon all women as his mother, who looks upon every man's property as so much dust, and looks upon every being as his own soul".

There is the other idea of the woman working with the man. It is not that the Hindus had not those ideals, but they could not develop them.

It is alone in the Sanskrit language that we find four words meaning husband and wife together. It is only in our marriage that they [both] promise, "What has been my heart now may be thine". It is there that we see that the husband is made to look at the Pole-star, touching the hand of his wife and saying, "As the Pole-star is fixed in the heavens, so may I be fixed in my affection to thee". And the wife does the same.

Even a woman who is vile enough to go into the streets can sue her husband and have a maintenance. We find the germs of these ideas in all our books throughout our nation, but we were not able to develop that side of the character.

We must go far beyond sentiment when we want to judge. We know it is not emotion alone that governs the world, but there is something behind emotion. Economic causes, surrounding circumstances and other considerations enter into the development of nations. (It is not in my present plan to go into the causes that develop woman as wife.)

So in this world, as each nation is placed under peculiar circumstances and is developing its own type, the day is coming when all these different types will be mixed up — when that vile sort of patriotism which means "rob everybody and give to me" will vanish. Then there will be no more one-sided development in the whole world, and each one of these [nations] will see that they had done right.

Let us now go to work and mix the nations up together and let the new nation come.

Will you let me tell you my conviction? Much of the civilization that comprises the world today has come from that one peculiar race of mankind — the Aryans.*

[Aryan] civilization has been of three types: the Roman, the Greek, the Hindu. The Roman type is the type of organization, conquest, steadiness — but lacking in emotional nature, appreciation of beauty and the higher emotions. Its defect is cruelty. The Greek is essentially enthusiastic for the beautiful, but frivolous and has a tendency to become immoral. The Hindu type is essentially metaphysical and religious, but lacking in all the elements of organization and work.

The Roman type is now represented by the Anglo-Saxon; the Greek type more by the French than by any other nation; and the old Hindus do not die! Each type has its advantage in this new land of promise. They have the Roman's organization, the power of the Greek's wonderful love for the beautiful, and the Hindu's backbone of religion and love of God. Mix these up together and bring in the new civilization.

And let me tell you, this should be done by women. There are some of our books which say that the next incarnation, and the last (we believe in ten), is to come in the form of a woman.

We see resources in the world yet remaining because all the forces that are in the world have not come into use. The hand was acting all this time while other parts of the body were remaining silent. Let the other parts of the body be awakened and perhaps in harmonious action all the misery will be cured. Perhaps, in this new land, with this new blood in your veins, you may bring in that new civilization — and, perhaps, through American women.

As to that ever blessed land which gave me this body, I look back with great veneration and bless the merciful being who permitted me to take birth in that holiest spot on earth. When the whole world is trying to trace its ancestry from men distinguished in arms or wealth, the Hindus alone are proud to trace their descent from saints.

That wonderful vessel which has been carrying for ages men and women across this ocean of life may have sprung small leaks here and there. And of that, too, the Lord alone knows how much is owing to themselves and how much to those who look down with contempt upon the Hindus.

But if such leaks there are, I, the meanest of her children, think it my duty to stop her from sinking even if I have to do it with my life. And if I find that all my struggles are in vain, still, as the Lord is my witness, I will tell them with my heartfelt benediction: "My brethren, you have done well — nay, better than any other race could have done under the same circumstances. You have given me all that I have. Grant me the privilege of being at your side to the last and let us all sink together".

NOTE

Swami Vivekananda delivered scores of lectures and classes during his relatively short ministry. Unfortunately the Swami was not always accompanied by a professional stenographer who could keep pace with the exceptional speed of his extempore deliveries. However, a few students managed to take notes of some lectures and classes, which are today the only available records of works that would otherwise have been lost to the world.

The original quotation marks of the note-takers have been reproduced.

THE ETHER*

This article first appeared anonymously in the February 1895 issue of the New York Medical Times, a prestigious monthly medical journal founded and edited by Dr. Egbert Guernsey.

Classification or grouping of phenomena by their similarities is the first step in scientific knowledge — perhaps it is all. An organized grouping, revealing to us a similarity running through the whole group, and a conviction that under similar circumstances the group will arrange itself in the same form — stretched over all time, past, present and future — is what we call law.

This finding of unity in variety is really what we call knowledge. These different groups of similars are stowed away in the pigeon-holes of the mind, and when a new fact comes before us we begin to search for a similar group already existing in one of the pigeon-holes of the mind. If we succeed in finding one ready-made, we take the newcomer in immediately. If not, we either reject the new fact, or wait till we find more of his kind, and form a new place for the group.

Facts which are extraordinary thus disturb us; but and when we find many like them, they cease to disturb, even when our knowledge about their cause remains the same as before.

The ordinary experiences of our lives are no less wonderful than any miracles recorded in any sacred book of the world; nor are we any more enlightened as to the cause of these ordinary experiences than of the so-called miracles. But the miraculous is "extraordinary", and the everyday experience is "ordinary". The "extraordinary" startles the mind, the "ordinary" satisfies.

The field of knowledge is so varied, and the more the difference is from the centre, the more widely the radii diverge.

At the start the different sciences were thought to have no connection whatever with each other; but as more and more knowledge comes in — that is, the more and more we come nearer the centre — the radii are converging more and more, and it seems that they are on the eve of finding a common centre. Will they ever find it?

The study of the mind was, above all, the science to which the sages of India and Greece had directed their attention. All religions are the outcome of the study of the inner man. Here we find the attempt at finding the unity, and in the science of religion, as taking its stand upon general and massive propositions, we find the boldest and the most vigorous manifestation of this tendency at finding the unity.

Some religions could not solve the problem beyond the finding of a duality of causes, one good, the other evil. Others went as far as finding an intelligent personal cause, a few went still further beyond intellect, beyond personality, and found an infinite being.

In those, and only those systems which dared to transcend beyond the personality of a limited human consciousness, we find also an attempt to resolve all physical phenomena into unity.

The result was the "Akâsha" of the Hindus and the "Ether" of the Greeks.

This "Akasha" was, after the mind, the first material manifestation, said the Hindu sages, and out of this "Akasha" all this has been evolved.

History repeats itself; and again during the latter part of the nineteenth century, the same theory is coming with more vigour and fuller light.

It is being proved more clearly than ever that as there is a co-relation of physical forces there is also a co-relation of different [branches of] knowledge, and that behind all these general groups there is a unity of knowledge.

It was shown by Newton (Isaac Newton, 1642 – 1727.) that if light consisted of material particles projected from luminous bodies, they must move faster in solids and liquids than in air, in order that the laws of refraction might be satisfied.

Huyghens, (Christian Huyghens, 1629 – 1695.) on the other hand, showed that to account for the same laws on the supposition that light consisted in the undulating motion of an elastic medium, it must move more slowly in solids and fluids than in gases. Fizeau (Armand Hippolyte Louis Fizeau, 1819 – 1896.) and Foucault (Jean Bernard Léon Foucault, 1819 – 1868.) found Huyghens's predictions correct.

Light, then, consists in the vibrating motion of a medium, which must, of course, fill all space. This is called the ether.

In the fact that the theory of a cosmic ether explains fully all the phenomena of radiation, refraction, diffraction and polarization of light is the strongest argument in favour of the theory.

Of late, gravitation, molecular action, magnetic, electric, and electro-dynamic attractions and repulsions have thus been explained.

Sensible and latent heat, electricity and magnetism themselves have been of late almost satisfactorily explained by the theory of the all-pervading ether.

Zöllner, (Johann K. F. Zöllner, 1834 – 1882.) however, basing his calculations upon the data supplied by the researches of Wilhelm Weber (Wilhelm Eduard Weber, 1804 – 1891.), thinks that the transmission of life force between the heavenly bodies is effected both ways, by the undulation of a medium and by the actual evidence of particles.

Weber found that the molecules, the smallest particles of bodies, were composed of yet smaller particles, which he called the electric particles, and which in the molecules are in a constant circular motion. These electric particles are partly positive, partly negative.

Those of the same electricity repulse those of different electricity; attracting each other, each molecule contains the same amount of electric particles, with a small surplus of either positive or negative quickly changing the balance.

Upon this Zöllner builds these propositions:

- (1) The molecules are composed of a very great number of particles — the so-called electric particles, which are in constant circular motion around each other within the molecule.
- (2) If the inner motion of a molecule increases over a certain limit, then electric particles are emitted. They then travel from one heavenly body through space until they reach another heavenly body, where they are either reflected or absorbed by other molecules.
- (3) The electric particles thus traversing space are the ether of the physicist.
- (4) These ether particles have a twofold motion: first, their proper motion; second, an undulatory motion, for which they receive the impulse from the ether particles rotating in the molecules.

(5) The motion of the smallest particles corresponds to that of the heavenly bodies.

The corollary is:

The law of attraction which holds good for the heavenly bodies also holds good for the smallest particles.

Under these suppositions, that which we call space is really filled with electric particles, or ether.

Zöllner also found the following interesting calculation for the electric atoms:

Velocity: 50,143 geographical miles per second.

Amount of ether particles in a water molecule: 42,000 million.

Distance from each other: 0.0032 millimeter.

So far as it goes, then, the theory of a universal cosmic ether is the best at hand to explain the various phenomena of nature.

As far as it goes, the theory that this ether consists of particles, electric or otherwise, is also very valuable. But on all suppositions, there must be space between two particles of ether, however small; and what fills this inter-ethereal space? If particles still finer, we require still more fine ethereal particles to fill up the vacuum between every two of them, and so on.

Thus the theory of ether, or material particles in space, though accounting for the phenomena in space, cannot account for space itself.

And thus we are forced to find that the ether which comprehends the molecules explains the molecular phenomena, but itself cannot explain space because we cannot but think of ether as in space. And, therefore, if there is anything which will explain this space, it must be something that comprehends in its infinite being the infinite space itself. And what is there that can comprehend even the infinite space but the Infinite Mind?

FIRST MEETING WITH MADAME EMMA CALVE

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 484-86.)

[The story of the first meeting of Swami Vivekananda and Madame Emma Calvé, as told in Calvé's autobiography, My Life]

. . . [Swami Vivekananda] was lecturing in Chicago one year when I was there; and as I was at that time greatly depressed in mind and body, I decided to go to him.

. . . Before going I had been told not to speak until he addressed me. When I entered the room, I stood before him in silence for a moment. He was seated in a noble attitude of meditation, his robe of saffron yellow falling in straight lines to the floor, his head swathed in a turban bent forward, his eyes on the ground. After a pause he spoke without looking up.

"My child", he said, "what a troubled atmosphere you have about you. Be calm. It is essential".

Then in a quiet voice, untroubled and aloof, this man who did not even know my name talked to me of my secret problems and anxieties. He spoke of things that I thought were unknown even to my nearest friends. It seemed miraculous, supernatural.

"How do you know all this?" I asked at last. "Who has talked of me to you?"

He looked at me with his quiet smile as though I were a child who had asked a foolish question.

"No one has talked to me", he answered gently. "Do you think that it is necessary? I read in you as in an open book."

Finally it was time for me to leave.

"You must forget", he said as I rose. "Become gay and happy again. Build up your health. Do not dwell in silence upon your sorrows. Transmute your emotions into some form of external expression. Your spiritual health requires it. Your art demands it."

I left him deeply impressed by his words and his personality. He seemed to have emptied my brain of all its feverish complexities and placed there instead his clear and calming thoughts. I became once again vivacious and cheerful, thanks to the effect of his powerful will. He did not use any of the hypnotic or mesmeric influences. It was the strength of his character, the purity and intensity of his purpose that carried conviction. It seemed to me, when I came to know him better, that he lulled one's chaotic thoughts into a state of peaceful acquiescence, so that one could give complete and undivided attention to his words.

FIRST MEETING WITH JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

(An excerpt from Madame Verdier's journal quoted in the New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 487-88.)

[As told by Madame Emma Calvé, to Madame Drinette Verdier]

Mr. X, in whose home Swamiji was staying in Chicago, was a partner or an associate in some business with John D. Rockefeller. Many times John D. heard his friends talking about this extraordinary and wonderful Hindu monk who was staying with them, and many times he had been invited to meet Swamiji but, for one reason or another, always refused. At that time Rockefeller was not yet at the peak of his fortune, but was already powerful and strong-willed, very difficult to handle and a hard man to advise.

But one day, although he did not want to meet Swamiji, he was pushed to it by an impulse and went directly to the house of his friends, brushing aside the butler who opened the door and saying that he wanted to see the Hindu monk.

The butler ushered him into the living room, and, not waiting to be announced, Rockefeller entered into Swamiji's adjoining study and was much surprised, I presume, to see Swamiji behind his writing table not even lifting his eyes to see who had entered.

After a while, as with Calvé, Swamiji told Rockefeller much of his past that was not known to any but himself, and made him understand that the money he had already accumulated was not his, that he was only a channel and that his duty was to do good to the world — that God had given him all his wealth in order that he might have an opportunity to help and do good to people.

Rockefeller was annoyed that anyone dared to talk to him that way and tell him what to do. He left the room in irritation, not even saying goodbye. But about a week after, again without being announced, he entered Swamiji's study and, finding him the same as before, threw on his desk a paper which told of his plans to donate an enormous sum of money toward the financing of a public institution.

"Well, there you are", he said. "You must be satisfied now, and you can thank me for it."

Swamiji didn't even lift his eyes, did not move. Then taking the paper, he quietly read it, saying: "It is for you to thank me". That was all. This was Rockefeller's first large donation to the public welfare.

A DUSKY PHILOSOPHER FROM INDIA

[An interview by Blanche Partington, San Francisco Chronicle, March 18, 1900]

. . . Bowing very low in Eastern fashion on his entrance to the room, then holding out his hand in good American style, the dusky philosopher from the banks of the Ganges gave friendly greeting to the representative of that thoroughly Occidental institution, the daily press.

. . . I asked for a picture to illustrate this article, and when someone handed me a certain "cut" which has been extensively used in lecture advertisements here, he uttered a mild protest against its use.

"But that does not look like you", said I.

"No, it is as if I wished to kill someone", he said smiling, "like — like —"

"Othello", I inserted rashly. But the little audience of friends only smiled as the Swami made laughing recognition of the absurd resemblance of the picture to the jealous Moor. But I do not use that picture.

"Is it true, Swami", I asked, "that when you went home after lecturing in the Congress of Religions after the World's Fair, princes knelt at your feet, a half dozen of the ruling sovereigns of India dragged your carriage through the streets, as the papers told us? We do not treat our priests so".

"That is not good to talk of", said the Swami. "But it is true that religion rules there, not dollars."

"What about caste?"

"What of your Four Hundred?" he replied, smiling. "Caste in India is an institution hardly explicable or intelligible to the Occidental mind. It is acknowledged to be an imperfect institution, but we do not recognize a superior social result from your attempts at class distinction. India is the only country which has so far succeeded in imposing a permanent caste upon her people, and we doubt if an exchange for Western superstitions and evils would be for her advantage."

"But under such regime — where a man may not eat this nor drink that, nor marry the other — the freedom you teach would be impossible", I ventured.

"It is impossible", assented the Swami; "but until India has outgrown the necessity for caste laws, caste laws will remain". "Is it true that you may not eat food cooked by a foreigner — unbeliever?" I asked.

"In India the cook — who is not called a servant — must be of the same or higher caste than those for whom the food is cooked, as it is considered that whatever a man touches is impressed by his personality, and food, with which a man builds up the body through which he expresses himself, is regarded as being liable to such impression. As to the foods we eat, it is assumed that certain kinds of food nourish certain properties worthy of cultivation, and that others retard our spiritual growth. For instance, we do not kill to eat. Such food would be held to nourish the animal body, at the expense of the spiritual body, in which the soul is said to be clothed on its departure from this physical envelope, besides laying the sin of blood-guiltiness upon the butcher."

"Ugh!" I exclaimed involuntarily, an awful vision of reproachful little lambs, little chicken ghosts, hovering cow spirits — I was always afraid of cows anyway — rising up before me.

"You see", explained the Brahmin [Kshatriya], "the universe is all one, from the lowest insect to the highest Yogi. It is all one, we are all one, you and I are one —". Here the Occidental audience smiled, the unconscious monk chanting the oneness of things in Sanskrit and the consequent sin of taking any life.

. . . He was pacing up and down the room most of the time during our talk, occasionally standing over the register — it was a chill morning for this child of the sun — and doing with grace and freedom whatever occurred to him, even, at length, smoking a little.

"You, yourself, have not yet attained supreme control over all desires", I ventured. The Swami's frankness is infectious.

"No, madam", and he smiled the broad and brilliant smile of a child; "Do I look it?" But the Swami, from the land of hasheesh and dreams, doubtless did not connect my query with its smoky origin.

"Is it usual among the Hindoo priesthood to marry?" I ventured again.

"It is a matter of individual choice", replied this member of the Hindoo priesthood. "One does not marry that he may not be in slavery to a woman and children, or permit the slavery of a woman to him."

"But what is to become of the population?" urged the anti-Malthusian.

"Are you so glad to have been born?" retorted the Eastern thinker, his large eyes flashing scorn. "Can you conceive of nothing higher than this warring, hungry, ignorant world? Do not fear that the you may be lost, though the sordid, miserable consciousness of the now may go. What worth having [would be] gone?"

"The child comes crying into the world. Well may he cry! Why should we weep to leave it? Have you thought" — here the sunny smile came back — "of the different modes of East and West of expressing the passing away? We say of the dead man, 'He gave up his body'; you put it, 'he gave up the ghost'. How can that be? Is it the dead body that permits the ghost to depart? What curious inversion of thought!"

"But, on the whole, Swami, you think it better to be comfortably dead than a living lion?" persisted the defender of populations.

"Swâhâ, Swaha, so be it!" shouted the monk.

"But how is it that under such philosophy men consent to live at all?"

"Because a man's own life is sacred as any other life, and one may not leave chapters unlearned", returned the philosopher. "Add power and diminish time, and the school days are shorter; as the learned professor can make the marble in twelve years which nature took centuries to form. It is all a question of time."

"India, which has had this teaching so long, has not yet learned her lesson?"

"No, though she is perhaps nearer than any other country, in that she has learned to love mercy."

"What of England in India?" I asked.

"But for English rule I could not be here now", said the monk, "though your lowest free-born American Negro holds higher position in India politically than is mine. Brahmin and coolie, we are all 'natives'. But it is all right, in spite of the misunderstanding and oppression. England is the Tharma [Karma?] of India, attracted inevitably by some inherent weakness, past mistakes, but from her blood and fibre will come the new national hope for my countrymen. I am a loyal subject of the Empress of India!" and here the Swami salaamed before an imaginary potentate, bowing very low, perhaps too low for reverence.

"But such an apostle of freedom — ", I murmured.

"She is the widow for many years, and such we hold in high worth in India", said the philosopher seriously. "As to freedom, yes, I believe the goal of all development is freedom, law and order. There is more law and order in the grave than anywhere else — try it."

"I must go", I said. "I have to catch a train".

"That is like all Americans", smiled the Swami, and I had a glimpse of all eternity in his utter restfulness. "You must catch this car or that train always. Is there not another, later?"

But I did not attempt to explain the Occidental conception of the value of time to this child of the Orient, realizing its utter hopelessness and my own renegade sympathy. It must be delightful beyond measure to live in the land of "time enough". In the Orient there seems time to breathe, time to think, time to live; as the Swami says, what have we in exchange? We live in time; they in eternity.

"WE ARE HYPNOTIZED INTO WEAKNESS BY OUR SURROUNDINGS"

(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, pp. 396-98.)

[An interview by the San Francisco Examiner, March 18, 1900]

Hindoo Philosopher Who Strikes at the Root of Some Occidental Evils and Tells How We Must Worship God Simply and Not with Many Vain Prayers.

.....
One American friend he may be assured of — the Swami is a charming person to interview.

Pacing about the little room where he is staying, he kept the small audience of interviewer and friend entertained for a couple of hours.

"Tell you about the English in India? But I do not wish to talk of politics. But from the higher standpoint, it is true that but for the English rule I could not be here. We natives know that it is through the intermixture of English blood and ideas that the salvation of India will come. Fifty years ago, all the literature and religion of the race were locked up in the Sanskrit language; today the drama and the novel are written in the vernacular, and the literature of religion is being translated. That is the work of the English, and it is unnecessary, in America, to descant upon the value of the education of the masses."

"What do you think of the Boers War?" was asked.

"Oh! Have you seen the morning paper? But I do not wish to discuss politics. English and Boers are both in the wrong. It is terrible — terrible — the bloodshed! English will conquer, but at what fearful cost! She seems the nation of Fate."

And the Swami with a smile, began chanting the Sanskrit for an unwillingness to discuss politics.

Then he talked long of ancient Russian history, and of the wandering tribes of Tartary, and of the Moorish rule in Spain, and displaying an astonishing memory and research. To this childlike interest in all things that touch him is doubtless due much of the curious and universal knowledge that he seems to possess.

MARRIAGE

(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, p. 138.)

From Miss Josephine MacLeod's February 1908 letter to Mary Hale, in which she described Swami Vivekananda's response to Alberta Sturges's question:

ALBERTA STURGES: Is there no happiness in marriage?

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: Yes, Alberta, if marriage is entered into as a great austerity — and everything is given up — even principle!

LINE OF DEMARCATION

(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, p. 225.)

From Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences of a question-answer exchange following the class entitled "Hints on Practical Spirituality":

Q: Swami, if all things are one, what is the difference between a cabbage and a man?

A: Stick a knife into your leg, and you will see the line of demarcation.

GOD IS!

(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, p. 276.)

Alice Hansbrough's record of a question-answer session after a class lecture:

Q: Then, Swami, what you claim is that all is good?

A: By no means. My claim is that all is not — only God is! That makes all the difference.

RENUNCIATION

(New Discoveries, Vol. 6, p. 11-12.)

From Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences of a question-answer session following one of Swami Vivekananda's San Francisco classes pertaining to renunciation:

WOMAN STUDENT: Well, Swami, what would become of the world if everyone renounced?

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: Madam, why do you come to me with that lie on your lips? You have never considered anything in this world but your own pleasure!

SHRI RAMAKRISHNA'S DISCIPLE

(New Discoveries, Vol. 6, p. 12.)

Mrs. Edith Allan described a teacher-student exchange in one of Swami Vivekananda's San Francisco classes:

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: I am the disciple of a man who could not write his own name, and I am not worthy to undo his shoes. How often have I wished I could take my intellect and throw it into the Ganges!

STUDENT: But, Swami, that is the part of you I like best.

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: That is because you are a fool, Madam — like I am.

THE MASTER'S DIVINE INCARNATION

(New Discoveries, Vol. 6, p. 17.)

From Mrs. Edith Allan's reminiscences:

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: I have to come back once more. The Master said I am to come back once more with him.

MRS. ALLAN: You have to come back because Shri Ramakrishna says so?

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: Souls like that have great power, Madam.

A PRIVATE ADMISSION

(New Discoveries, Vol. 6, p. 121.)

From Mrs. Edith Allan's reminiscences of Swami Vivekananda's stay in northern California, 1900:

WOMAN STUDENT: Oh, if I had only lived earlier, I could have seen Shri Ramakrishna!

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA (turning quietly to her): You say that, and you have seen me?

A GREETING

(New Discoveries, Vol. 6, p. 136.)

From Mr. Thomas Allan's reminiscences of Swami Vivekananda's visit to Alameda, California, 1900:

MR. ALLAN: Well, Swami, I see you are in Alameda!

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: No, Mr. Allan, I am not in Alameda; Alameda is in me.

"THIS WORLD IS A CIRCUS RING"

(New Discoveries, Vol. 6, p. 156.)

From Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences of Swami Vivekananda's conversation with Miss Bell at Camp Taylor, California, in May 1900:

MISS BELL: This world is an old schoolhouse where we come to learn our lessons.

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: Who told you that? [Miss Bell could not remember.] Well, I don't think so. I think this world is a circus ring in which we are the clowns tumbling.

MISS BELL: Why do we tumble, Swami?

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: Because we like to tumble. When we get tired, we will quit.

ON KALI

(The Complete Works of Sister Nivedita, Vol. I, p. 118.)

Sister Nivedita's reminiscence of a conversation with Swami Vivekananda at the time she was learning the Kâli worship:

SISTER NIVEDITA: Perhaps, Swamiji, Kali is the vision of Shiva! Is She?

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: Well! Well! Express it in your own way. Express it in your own way!

TRAINING UNDER SHRI RAMAKRISHNA

(The Complete Works of Sister Nivedita, Vol. I, pp. 159-60.)

While on board a ship to England, Swami Vivekananda was touched by the childlike devotion of the ship's servants:

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: You see, I love our Mohammedans!

SISTER NIVEDITA: Yes, but what I want to understand is this habit of seeing every people from their strongest aspect. Where did it come from? Do you recognize it in any historical character? Or is it in some way derived from Shri Ramakrishna?

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: It must have been the training under Ramakrishna Paramahansa. We all went by his path to some extent. Of course it was not so difficult for us as he made it for himself. He would eat and dress like the people he wanted to understand, take their initiation, and use their language. "One must learn", he said, "to put oneself into another man's very soul". And this method was his own! No one ever before in India became Christian and Mohammedan and Vaishnava, by turn!

1. From Mrs. Prince Woods's description of Swami Vivekananda's departure from the Woods's residence in Salem, Massachusetts, in August 1893. Swami Vivekananda gave his staff, his most precious possession, to Dr. Woods, who was at that time a young medical student, and his trunk and his blanket to Mrs. Kate T. Woods, saying:

"Only my most precious possessions should I give to my friends who have made me at home in this great country." (ND 1: 42)

2. On the back of Swami Vivekananda's transcription from Louis Rousselet's book India and Its Native Princes — Travels in Central India and in the Presidencies of Bombay and Bengal, dated February 11, 1894:

"I say there is but one remedy for one too anxious for the future — to go down on his knees." (ND 1: 225)

"Thou art He that beareth the burdens of the universe; help me to bear the little burden of this life." (ND 2: 32)

4. An extract from another prayer offered by Swami Vivekananda at the Chicago World's Parliament of Religions:

"At the head of all these laws, in and through every particle of matter and force, stands One through whose command the wind blows, the fire burns, the clouds rain, and death stalks upon the earth. And what is His nature? He is everywhere the pure and formless One, the Almighty and the All Merciful. Thou art our Father. Thou art our beloved Friend." (ND 2: 33)

5. From Mary T. Wright's journal entry dated Saturday, May 12, 1894:

The widows of high caste in India do not marry, he said; only the widows of low caste may marry, may eat, drink, dance, have as many husbands as they choose, divorce them all, in short enjoy all the benefits of the highest society in this country. . . .

"When we are fanatical", he said, "we torture ourselves, we throw ourselves under huge cars, we cut our throats, we lie on spiked beds; but when you are fanatical you cut other people's throats, you torture them by fire and put them on spiked beds! You take very good care of your own skins!" (ND 2: 58-59)

6. An 1894 extract from the Greenacre Voice, quoting one of the Swami's teachings delivered at Greenacre, Maine:

"You and I and everything in the universe are that Absolute, not parts, but the whole. You are the whole of that Absolute." (ND 2: 150)

7. In a March 5, 1899 letter from Sister Nivedita to Miss Josephine MacLeod:

"I am at heart a mystic, Margot, all this reasoning is only apparent — I am really always on the lookout for signs and things — and so I never bother about the fate of my initiations. If they want to be Sannyâsins badly enough I feel that the rest is not my business. Of course it has its bad side. I have to pay dearly for my blunder sometimes — but it has one advantage. It has kept me still a Sannyasin through all this — and that is my ambition, to die a real Sannyasin as Ramakrishna Paramahansa actually was — free from lust — and desire of wealth, and thirst for fame. That thirst for fame is the worst of all filth." (ND 3: 128-29)

8. From John Henry Wright's March 27, 1896 letter to Mary Tappan Wright, in which Swami Vivekananda stated that England is just like India with its castes:

"I had to have separate classes for the two castes. For the high caste people — Lady This and Lady That, Honourable This and Honourable That — I had classes in the morning; for the low caste people, who came pell-mell, I had classes in the evening." (ND 4: 73)

9. While Swami Vivekananda was offering flowers at the feet of the Virgin Mary in a small chapel in Switzerland in the summer of 1896, he said:

"For she also is the Mother." (ND 4: 276)

10. From Mr. J. J. Goodwin's October 23, 1896 letter to Mrs. Ole Bull, quoting Swami Vivekananda's conversation at Greycoat Gardens in London

"It is very good to have a high ideal, but don't make it too high. A high ideal raises mankind, but an impossible ideal lowers them from the very impossibility of the case."

(ND 4: 385)

11. A November 20, 1896 entry from Swami Abhedananda's diary, quoting Swami Vivekananda's observation of the English people:

"You can't make friends here without knowing their customs, behaviour, politics. You have to know the manners of the rich, the cultured and the poor." (ND 4: 478)

12. In Mr. J. J. Goodwin's November 11, 1896 letter to Mrs. Ole Bull, quoting Swami Vivekananda's unpublished statement toward the end of "Practical Vedanta — IV":

"A Jiva can never attain absolutely to Brahman until the whole of Mâyâ disappears. While there is still a Jiva left in Maya, there can be no soul absolutely free. . . . Vedantists are divided on this point." (ND 4: 481)

13. From Swami Saradananda's letter to a brother-disciple, concerning Swami Vivekananda's last days:

Sometimes he would say, "Death has come to my bedside; I have been through enough of work and play; let the world realize what contribution I have made; it will take quite a long time to understand that". (ND 4: 521)

14. In an October 13, 1898 letter to Mrs. Ashton Jonson, written from Kashmir, Sister Nivedita described Swami Vivekananda's spiritual mood:

To him at this moment "doing good" seems horrible. "Only the Mother does anything. Patriotism is a mistake. Everything is a mistake. It is all Mother. . . . All men are good. Only we cannot reach all. . . . I am never going to teach any more. Who am I that I should teach anyone? . . . Swamiji is dead and gone." (ND 5: 3-4)

15. From Mr. Sachindranath Basu's letter recounting Swami Vivekananda's closing remarks in his talk to swamis and novices assembled at Belur Math, June 19, 1899:

"My sons, all of you be men. This is what I want! If you are even a little successful, I shall feel my life has been meaningful." (ND 5: 17)

16. During an evening talk with Swami Saradananda in the spring of 1899:

"Men should be taught to be practical, physically strong. A dozen such lions will conquer the world, not millions of sheep. Men should not be taught to imitate a personal ideal, however great." (ND 5: 17)

17. From Mrs. Mary C. Funke's reminiscences of her August 1899 voyage to America with Swamis Vivekananda and Turiyananda:

"And if all this Maya is so beautiful, think of the wondrous beauty of the Reality behind

it!" (ND 5: 76)

"Why recite poetry when there [pointing to sea and sky] is the very essence of poetry?" (Ibid.)

18. In Miss Josephine MacLeod's September 3, 1899 letter to Mrs. Ole Bull:

"In one's greatest hour of need one stands alone." (ND 5: 122)

19. From Sister Nivedita's October 27, 1899 diary entry at Ridgely Manor, in which Swami Vivekananda expressed his concern for Olea Bull Vaughn:

"Nightmares always begin pleasantly — only at the worst point [the] dream is broken — so death breaks [the] dream of life. Love death." (ND 5: 138)

20. In a December 1899 letter from Miss Josephine MacLeod to Sister Nivedita:

"All the ideas the Californians have of me emanated from Chicago." (ND 5: 179)

21. From Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences which quoted Swami Vivekananda as telling Mr. Baumgardt:

"I can talk on the same subject, but it will not be the same lecture." (ND 5: 230)

22. Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences relating Swami Vivekananda's response to her sight-seeing attempts:

"Do not show me sights. I have seen the Himalayas! I would not go ten steps to see sights; but I would go a thousand miles to see a [great] human being!" (ND 5: 244)

23. From Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences relating Swami Vivekananda's interest in the problem of child training:

He did not believe in punishment. It had never helped him, he said, and added, "I would never do anything to make a child afraid". (ND 5: 253)

24. Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's record of Swami Vivekananda's explanation of God to seventeen-year-old Ralph Wyckoff:

"Can you see your own eyes? God is like that. He is as close as your own eyes. He is your own, even though you can't see Him." (ND 5: 254)

25. Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences regarding Swami Vivekananda's opinion of the low-caste English soldiers who occupied India:

"If anyone should despoil the Englishman's home, the Englishman would kill him, and rightly so. But the Hindu just sits and whines!

"Do you think that a handful of Englishmen could rule India if we had a militant spirit? I teach meat-eating throughout the length and breadth of India in the hope that we can build a militant spirit!" (ND 5: 256)

26. Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences of a picnic in Pasadena, California when a Christian Science woman suggested to Swami Vivekananda that one should teach people to be good:

"Why should I desire to be 'good'? All this is His handiwork [waving his hand to indicate the trees and the countryside]. Shall I apologize for His handiwork? If you want to reform John Doe, go and live with him; don't try to reform him. If you have any of the Divine Fire, he will catch it." (ND 5: 257)

27. From Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences:

"When once you consider an action, do not let anything dissuade you. Consult your heart, not others, and then follow its dictates." (ND 5: 311)

28. From Mr. Frank Rhodehamel's notes taken during a March 1900 lecture in Oakland, California:

"Never loved a husband the wife for the wife's sake, or the wife the husband for the husband's sake. It is God in the wife the husband loves, and God in the husband the wife loves. (Cf. Brihadâraṇyaka Upanishad II.4.5.) It is God in everyone that draws us to that one in love. [It is] God in everything, in everybody that makes us love. God is the only love. . . . In everyone is God, the Atman; all else is but dream, an illusion." (ND 5: 362)

29. From Mr. Frank Rhodehamel's notes taken during a March 1900 lecture in Oakland, California:

Oh, if you only knew yourselves! You are souls; you are gods. If ever I feel [that I am] blaspheming, it is when I call you man." (ND 5: 362)

30. An excerpt from Mr. Thomas J. Allan's reminiscences of Swami Vivekananda's March 1900 San Francisco lecture series on India:

"Send us mechanics to teach us how to use our hands, and we will send you missionaries to teach you spirituality." (ND 5: 365)

31. Mrs. Edith Allan's reminiscences of Swami Vivekananda's philosophical observations while cooking at the Turk Street flat:

"The Lord dwells in the hearts of all beings, O Arjuna, by His illusive power causing all beings to revolve as though mounted on a potter's wheel.' [Bhagavad-Gitâ XVIII.61] This has all happened before, like the throw of a dice, so it is in life; the wheel goes on and the same combination comes up; that pitcher and glass have stood there before, so, too, that onion and potato. What can we do, Madam, He has us on the wheel of life." (ND 6: 17)

32. From Mrs. Edith Allan's reminiscences of an after-lunch conversation:

"The Master said he would come again in about two hundred years — and I will come with him. When a Master comes, he brings his own people." (ND 6: 17)

33. Mrs. Edith Allan's reminiscences of Swami Vivekananda's "kitchen" counsel while he was staying in San Francisco, California, in 1900:

"If I consider myself greater than the ant that crawls on the ground I am ignorant." (ND 6: 19)

"Madam, be broad—minded; always see two ways. When I am on the heights I say, 'Shivoham, Shivoham: I am He, I am He!' and when I have the stomachache I say, 'Mother have mercy on me!'" (Ibid.)

"Learn to be the witness. If two dogs are fighting on the street and I go out there, I get mixed up in the fight; but if I stay quietly in my room, I witness the fight from the window. So learn to be the witness." (Ibid.)

34. From Mr. Thomas J. Allan's reminiscences of a private talk with Swami Vivekananda in San Francisco, California, 1900:

"We do not progress from error to truth, but from truth to truth. Thus we must see that none can be blamed for what they are doing, because they are, at this time, doing the best they can. If a child has an open razor, don't try to take it from him, but give him a red apple or a brilliant toy, and he will drop the razor. But he who puts his hand in the fire will be burned; we learn only from experience." (ND 6: 42)

35. From Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences of a walk home with Swami Vivekananda after one of his lectures in San Francisco in 1900:

"You have heard that Christ said, 'My words are spirit and they are life'. So are my words spirit and life; they will burn their way into your brain and you will never get away from them!" (ND 6: 57-58)

36. From Mrs. Alice Hansbrough's reminiscences in San Francisco, 1900 — referring to Swami Vivekananda's great heart:

"I may have to be born again because I have fallen in love with man." (ND 6: 79)

37. From Mrs. George Roorbach's reminiscences of Swami Vivekananda at Camp

Taylor, California, in May 1900:

"In my first speech in this country, in Chicago, I addressed that audience as 'Sisters and Brothers of America', and you know that they all rose to their feet. You may wonder what made them do this, you may wonder if I had some strange power. Let me tell you that I did have a power and this is it — never once in my life did I allow myself to have even one sexual thought. I trained my mind, my thinking, and the powers that man usually uses along that line I put into a higher channel, and it developed a force so strong that nothing could resist it." (ND 6: 155)

38. In a conversation with Swami Turiyananda, which probably took place in New York:

"The call has come from Above: 'Come away, just come away — no need of troubling your head to teach others'. It is now the will of the Grand Old Lady (The "Grand Old Lady" was a figure in a children's game, whose touch put one outside the game.) that the play should be over." (ND 6: 373)

39. In a July 1902 Prabuddha Bharata eulogy, "a Western disciple" wrote:

The Swami had but scant sympathy with iconoclasts, for as he wisely remarked, "The true philosopher strives to destroy nothing, but to help all". (VIN: 638)

40. Sister Nivedita's reminiscences of Swami Vivekananda in an October 9, 1899 letter to Miss Josephine MacLeod:

He has turned back on so much — "Let your life in the world be nothing but a thinking to yourself". (LSN I: 213)

41. Swami Vivekananda's luncheon remarks to Mrs. Ole Bull, recorded by Sister Nivedita in an October 18, 1899 letter to Miss Josephine MacLeod:

"You see, there is one thing called love, and there is another thing called union. And union is greater than love.

"I do not love religion. I have become identified with it. It is my life. So no man loves that thing in which his life has been spent, in which he really has accomplished something. That which we love is not yet ourself. Your husband did not love music for which he had always stood. He loved engineering in which as yet he knew comparatively little. This is the difference between Bhakti and Jnana; and this is why Jnana is greater than Bhakti." (LSN I: 216)

42. Swami Vivekananda's remarks on his spiritual ministry, recorded in Sister Nivedita's October 15, 1904 letter to Miss Josephine MacLeod:

"Only when they go away will they know how much they have received." (LSN II: 686)

43. Sister Nivedita's reminiscences in a November 5, 1904 letter to Alberta Sturges (Lady Sandwich) of Swami Vivekananda's talk on renunciation while he was staying at

Ridgely Manor:

"In India we never say that you should renounce a higher thing for a lower. It is better to be absorbed in music or in literature than in comfort or pleasure, and we never say otherwise." (LSN II: 690)

44. In Sister Nivedita's November 19, 1909 letter to Miss Josephine MacLeod:

"The fire burns if we plunge our hand in — whether we feel it or not — so it is with him who speaks the name of God." (LSN II: 1030)

45. Swami Vivekananda's reminiscences of Shri Ramakrishna, recorded in Sister Nivedita's July 6, 1910 letter to Dr. T. K. Cheyne:

"He could not imagine himself the teacher of anyone. He was like a man playing with balls of many colours, and leaving it to others to select which they would for themselves." (LSN II: 1110)

46. Sister Nivedita's reminiscences of a conversation with Swami Vivekananda at Ridgely Manor, recorded in an 1899 letter written from Ridgely Manor to Miss Josephine MacLeod:

I have never heard the Prophet talk so much of Shri Ramakrishna. He told us what I had heard before of [his master's] infallible judgement of men. . . .

"And so", Swami said, "you see my devotion is the dog's devotion. I have been wrong so often and he has always been right, and now I trust his judgement blindly". And then he told us how he would hypnotize anyone who came to him and in two minutes know all about him, and Swami said that from this he had learnt to count our consciousness as a very small thing. (LSN II: 1263)

47. From Sister Nivedita's January 27, 1900 letter to Sister Christine:

Swami said today that he is beginning to see the needs of humanity in quite a different light — that he is already sure of the principle that is to help, but is spending hours every day in trying to solve the methods. That what he had known hitherto is for men living in a cave — alone, undisturbed — but now he will give "humanity something that will make for strength in the stress of daily life". (LSN II: 1264)

48. In a July 7, 1902 letter to Sister Christine, Sister Nivedita recorded one of Swami Vivekananda's remarks made while giving a class to the monks at Belur Math on July 4, 1902:

"Do not copy me. Kick out the man who imitates." (LSN II: 1270)

49. The Swami's comment after he made a statement concerning the ideal of the freedom of the soul, which brought it into apparent conflict with the Western conception of the service of humanity as the goal of the individual:

"You will say that this does not benefit society. But before this objection can be admitted you will first have to prove that the maintenance of society is an object in itself." (CWSN 1: 19)

50. Sister Nivedita wrote:

He touched on the question of his own position as a wandering teacher and expressed the Indian diffidence with regard to religious organization or, as someone expresses it, "with regard to a faith that ends in a church". "We believe", he said, "that organization always breeds new evils".

He prophesied that certain religious developments then much in vogue in the West would speedily die, owing to love of money. And he declared that "Man proceeds from truth to truth, and not from error to truth". (CWSN 1: 19-20)

51. "The universe is like a cobweb and minds are the spiders; for mind is one as well as many." (CWSN 1: 21)

52. "Let none regret that they were difficult to convince! I fought my Master for six years with the result that I know every inch of the way! Every inch of the way!" (CWSN 1: 22)

53. Swami Vivekananda was elucidating to what heights of selflessness the path of love leads and how it draws out the very best faculties of the soul:

"Suppose there were a baby in the path of the tiger! Where would your place be then? At his mouth — any one of you — I am sure of it." (CWSN 1: 24)

54. "That by which all this is pervaded, know That to be the Lord Himself!" (CWSN 1: 27)

55. Concerning Swami Vivekananda's attitude toward religion:

Religion was a matter of the growth of the individual, "a question always of being and becoming". (CWSN 1: 28)

56. "Forgive when you also can bring legions of angels to an easy victory." While victory was still doubtful, however, only a coward to his thinking would turn the other cheek. (CWSN 1: 28-29)

57. "Of course I would commit a crime and go to hell forever if by that I could really help a human being!" (CWSN 1: 34)

58. To a small group, including Sister Nivedita, after a lecture:

"I have a superstition — it is nothing, you know, but a personal superstition! — that the same soul who came once as Buddha came afterwards as Christ." (CWSN 1: 35)

59. After Swami Vivekananda was told of Sister Nivedita's willingness to serve India:

"For my own part I will be incarnated two hundred times, if that is necessary, to do this work amongst my people that I have undertaken." (CWSN 1: 36)

60. Sister Nivedita's memory of an incident:

He was riding on one occasion with the Raja of Khetri, when he saw that his arm was bleeding profusely and found that the wound had been caused by a thorny branch which he had held aside for himself to pass. When the Swami expostulated, the Rajput laughed the matter aside. "Are we not always the defenders of the faith, Swamiji?" he said.

"And then", said the Swami, telling the story, "I was just going to tell him that they ought not to show such honour to the Sannyasin, when suddenly I thought that perhaps they were right after all. Who knows? Maybe I too am caught in the glare of this flashlight of your modern civilization, which is only for a moment".

" — I have become entangled", he said simply to one who protested that to his mind the wandering Sâdhu of earlier years, who had scattered his knowledge and changed his name as he went, had been greater than the abbot of Belur, burdened with much work and many cares. "I have become entangled." (CWSN 1: 43)

61. Sister Nivedita wrote:

One day he was talking in the West of Mirâ Bâi — that saint who once upon a time was Queen of Chitore — and of the freedom her husband had offered her if only she would remain within the royal seclusion. But she could not be bound. "But why should she not?" someone asked in astonishment. "Why should she?" he retorted. "Was she living down here in this mire?" (CWSN 1: 44)

62. As years went by, the Swami dared less and less to make determinate plans or dogmatize about the unknown:

"After all, what do we know? Mother uses it all. But we are only fumbling about." (CWSN 1: 44)

63. Quoting Swami Vivekananda, Sister Nivedita remembered:

Love was not love, it was insisted, unless it was "without a reason" or without a "motive" . . . (CWSN 1: 52)

64. About Swami Vivekananda, Sister Nivedita wrote:

When asked by some of his own people what he considered, after seeing them in their own country, to be the greatest achievement of the English, he answered "that they had known how to combine obedience with self-respect". (CWSN 1: 54)

65. Swami Sadananda reported that early in the morning, while it was still dark, Swami Vivekananda would rise and call the others, singing:

"Awake! Awake! all ye who would drink of the divine nectar!" (CWSN 1: 56)

66. Sister Nivedita remembered:

At this time [during the Swami's itinerant days, near Almora] he passed some months in a cave overhanging a mountain village. Only twice have I known him to allude to this experience. Once he said, "Nothing in my whole life ever so filled me with the sense of work to be done. It was as if I were thrown out from that life in caves to wander to and fro in the plains below". And again he said to someone, "It is not the form of his life that makes a Sadhu. For it is possible to sit in a cave and have one's whole mind filled with the question of how many pieces of bread will be brought to one for supper!" (CWSN 1: 61)

67. About his own poem "Kali the Mother":

"Scattering plagues and sorrows", he quoted from his own verses,

Dancing mad with joy,
Come, Mother, come!
For terror is Thy name!
Death — is in Thy breath.
And every shaking step
Destroys a world for e'er.

"It all came true, every word of it", he interrupted himself to say.

Who dares misery love.
Dance in Destruction's dance,
And hug the form of death, . . .

"To him the Mother does indeed come. I have proved it. For I have hugged the form of Death!" (CWSN 1: 98-99)

68. Sister Nivedita, referring to her plans for a girls' school:

Only in one respect was he [Swami Vivekananda] inflexible. The work for the education of Indian women, to which he would give his name, might be as sectarian as I chose to make it. "You wish through a sect to rise beyond all sects." (CWSN 1: 102)

69. Commenting on Sister Nivedita's visit to Gopaler-Ma's dwelling — a small cell:

"Ah! this is the old India that you have seen, the India of prayers and tears, of vigils and fasts, that is passing away, never to return!" (CWSN 1: 109)

>70. About the aims of the Ramakrishna Order:

The same purpose spoke again in his definition of the aims of the Order of Ramakrishna — "to effect an exchange of the highest ideals of the East and the West and to realize these in practice" (CWSN 1: 113)

71. After teaching Sister Nivedita the worship of Shiva, Swami Vivekananda then culminated it in an offering of flowers at the feet of the Buddha. He said, as if addressing each soul that would ever come to him for guidance:

"Go thou and follow Him, who was born and gave His life for others five hundred times before He attained the vision of the Buddha!" (CWSN 1: 114)

72. Upon returning from a pilgrimage in Kashmir:

"These gods are not merely symbols! They are the forms that the Bhaktas have seen!" (CWSN 1: 120)

73. Sister Nivedita's reminiscences of Swami Vivekananda's words heard long before:

"The Impersonal God seen through the mists of sense is personal." (CWSN 1: 120)

74. Swami Vivekananda's comment when he was reminded of the rareness of criminality in India:

"Would God it were otherwise in my land, for this is verily the virtuousness of death!" (CWSN 1: 123)

75. Swami Vivekananda said:

"The whole of life is only a swan song! Never forget those lines:

The lion, when stricken to the heart, gives out his mightiest roar.
When smitten on the head, the cobra lifts its hood.
And the majesty of the soul comes forth, only when a man is wounded to his depths."

(CWSN 1: 124)

76. After hearing of the death of Shri Durga Charan Nag (Nag Mahashay):

"[He] was one of the greatest of the works of Ramakrishna Paramahansa." (CWSN 1: 129)

77. About Shri Ramakrishna's transformative power, Swami Vivekananda said:

"Was it a joke that Ramakrishna Paramahansa should touch a life? Of course he made new men and new women of those who came to him, even in these fleeting contacts!" (CWSN 1: 130)

78. While speaking on the true spirit of a Sannyasin, Swami Vivekananda said:

"I saw many great men in Hrishikesh. One case that I remember was that of a man who seemed to be mad. He was coming nude down the street, with boys pursuing and throwing stones at him. The whole man was bubbling over with laughter while blood was streaming down his face and neck. I took him and bathed the wound, putting ashes on it to stop the bleeding. And all the time with peals of laughter he told me of the fun the boys and he had been having, throwing the stones. 'So the Father plays', he said.

"Many of these men hide, in order to guard themselves against intrusion. People are a trouble to them. One had human bones strewn about his cave and gave it out that he lived on corpses. Another threw stones. And so on. . . .

"Sometimes the thing comes upon them in a flash. There was a boy, for instance, who used to come to read the Upanishads with Abhedananda. One day he turned and said, 'Sir, is all this really true?'

"'Oh yes!' said Abhedananda, 'It may be difficult to realize, but it is certainly true'.

"And next day, that boy was a silent Sannyasin, nude, on his way to Kedarnath!

"What happened to him? you ask. He became silent!

"But the Sannyasin needs no longer to worship or to go on pilgrimage or perform austerities. What then is the motive of all this going from pilgrimage to pilgrimage, shrine to shrine, and austerity to austerity? He is acquiring merit and giving it to the world!" (CWSN 1: 133)

79. Referring to the story of Shibi Rana:

"Ah yes! These are the stories that are deep in our nation's heart! Never forget that the Sannyasin takes two vows: one to realize the truth and one to help the world — and that the most stringent of stringent requirements is that he should renounce any thought of heaven!" (CWSN 1: 134)

80. To Sister Nivedita:

"The Gitâ says that there are three kinds of charity: the Tâmasic, the Râjasic and the Sâttvic. Tamasic charity is performed on an impulse. It is always making mistakes. The doer thinks of nothing but his own impulse to be kind. Rajasic charity is what a man does for his own glory. And Sattvic charity is that which is given to the right person, in the right way, and at the proper time. . . .

"When it comes to the Sattvic, I think more and more of a certain great Western woman in whom I have seen that quiet giving, always to the right person in the right way, at the right time, and never making a mistake.

"For my own part, I have been learning that even charity can go too far. . . .

"As I grow older I find that I look more and more for greatness in little things. I want to know what a great man eats and wears, and how he speaks to his servants. I want to find a Sir Philip Sidney (Sir Philip Sidney (1554-1586): English poet, soldier and politician.) greatness! Few men would remember the thirst of others, even in the moment of death.

"But anyone will be great in a great position! Even the coward will grow brave in the glare of the footlights. The world looks on. Whose heart will not throb? Whose pulse will not quicken till he can do his best?

"More and more the true greatness seems to me that of the worm doing its duty silently, steadily, from moment to moment and from hour to hour." (CWSN 1: 137)

81. Referring to the great individual — the divine incarnation, the Guru, and the Rishi:

"You do not yet understand India! We Indians are man — worshippers, after all! Our God is man!" (CWSN 1: 144)

82. On another occasion, Swami Vivekananda used the word "man-worshippers" in an entirely different sense:

"This idea of man—worship exists in nucleus in India, but it has never been expanded. You must develop it. Make poetry, make art, of it. Establish the worship of the feet of beggars as you had it in Mediaeval Europe. Make man-worshippers." (CWSN 1: 144-45)

83. To Sister Nivedita:

"There is a peculiar sect of Mohammedans who are reported to be so fanatical that they take each newborn babe and expose it, saying, 'If God made thee, perish! If Ali made thee, live!' Now this, which they say to the child, I say, but in the opposite sense, to you tonight: 'Go forth into the world and there, if I made you, be destroyed! If Mother made you, live!'" (CWSN 1: 151)

84. Long after Southern magnates in America had apologized to Vivekananda when they learned that he had been mistaken for a Negro and was thus refused admission into hotels, the Swami remarked to himself:

"What! rise at the expense of another! I didn't come to earth for that! . . . If I am grateful to my white-skinned Aryan ancestor, I am far more so to my yellow-skinned Mongolian ancestor and, most so of all, to the black-skinned Negritoid!" (CWSN 1: 153)

85. Commenting on the dungeon-cages of mediaeval prisoners on Mont-Saint-Michel:

CWSN 1: 154)

"Oh, I know I have wandered over the whole earth, but in India I have looked for nothing save the cave in which to meditate!" (Ibid.)

86. Though he considered offspring of the Roman Empire to be brutal and the Japanese notion of marriage a horror, Swami Vivekananda nevertheless summed up the constructive ideals, never the defects, of a community:

"For patriotism, the Japanese! For purity, the Hindu! And for manliness, the European! There is no other in the world who understands, as does the Englishman, what should be the glory of a man!" (CWSN 1: 160)

87. Swami Vivekananda said of himself before he left for America in 1893:

"I go forth to preach a religion of which Buddhism is nothing but a rebel child and Christianity, with all her pretensions, only a distant echo!" (CWSN 1: 161)

88. Describing the night Buddha left his wife to renounce the world, Swami Vivekananda said:

"What was the problem that vexed him? Why! It was she whom he was about to sacrifice for the world! That was the struggle! He cared nothing for himself!" (CWSN 1: 172)

89. After describing Buddha's touching farewell to his wife, the Swami said:

"Have you never thought of the hearts of the heroes? How they were great, great, great — and soft as butter?" (CWSN 1: 172)

90. Swami Vivekananda's description of Buddha's death and its similarity with that of Shri Ramakrishna's:

He told how the blanket had been spread for him beneath the tree and how the Blessed One had lain down, "resting on his right side like a lion" to die, when suddenly there came to him one who ran for instruction. The disciples would have treated the man as an intruder, maintaining peace at any cost about their Master's death-bed, but the Blessed One overheard, and saying, "No, no! He who was sent (Lit., "the Tathâgata". "A word", explained Swami Vivekananda, "which is very like your 'Messiah'".) is ever ready", he raised himself on his elbow and taught. This happened four times and then, and then only, Buddha held himself free to die. "But first he spoke to reprove Ananda for weeping. The Buddha was not a person but a realization, and to that any one of them might attain. And with his last breath he forbade them to worship any."

The immortal story went on to its end. But to one who listened, the most significant moment had been that in which the teller paused — at his own words "raised himself on his elbow and taught" — and said, in brief parenthesis, "I saw this, you know, in the case of Ramakrishna Paramahansa". And there rose before the mind the story of one, destined to learn from that teacher, who had travelled a hundred miles, and arrived at Cossipore only when he lay dying. Here also the disciples would have refused admission, but Shri Ramakrishna intervened, insisting on receiving the new-comer, and teaching him. (CWSN 1: 175-176)

91. Commenting on the historic and philosophic significance of Buddhistic doctrine:

"Form, feeling, sensation, motion and knowledge are the five categories in perpetual flux and fusion. And in these lies Maya. Of any one wave nothing can be predicated, for it is not. It but was and is gone. Know, O Man, thou art the sea! Ah, this was Kapila's philosophy, but his great disciple [Buddha] brought the heart to make it live!" (CWSN 1: 176)

92. Concerning the Buddhist First Council and the dispute as to its President:

"Can you imagine what their strength was? One said it should be Ananda, because he had loved Him most. But someone else stepped forward and said no! for Ananda had been guilty of weeping at the death-bed. And so he was passed over!" (CWSN 1: 177)

93. Considering reincarnation a "scientific speculation" rather than an article of faith:

"Why, one life in the body is like a million years of confinement, and they want to wake up the memory of many lives! Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof! . . . Yes! Buddhism must be right! Reincarnation is only a mirage! But this vision is to be reached by the path of Advaita alone!" (CWSN 1: 180-81)

94. "Had I lived in Palestine, in the days of Jesus of Nazareth, I would have washed his feet, not with my tears, but with my heart's blood!" (CWSN 1: 189)

95. "For the Advaitin, therefore, the only motive is love. . . . It is the Saviour who should go on his way rejoicing, not the saved!" (CWSN 1: 197-98)

96. On the necessity of restraint in a disciple's life:

"Struggle to realize yourself without a trace of emotion! . . . Watch the fall of the leaves, but gather the sentiment of the sight from within at some later time!" (CWSN 1: 207)

"Mind! No loaves and fishes! No glamour of the world! All this must be cut short. It must be rooted out. It is sentimentality—the overflow of the senses. It comes to you in colour, sight, sound, and associations. Cut it off. Learn to hate it. It is utter poison!" (Ibid., 207-208)

97. On the value of types:

"Two different races mix and fuse, and out of them rises one strong distinct type. A strong and distinct type is always the physical basis of the horizon. It is all very well to talk of universalism, but the world will not be ready for that for millions of years!

"Remember! if you want to know what a ship is like, the ship has to be specified as it is — its length, breadth, shape, and material. And to understand a nation, we must do the same. India is idolatrous. You must help her as she is. Those who have left her can do nothing for her!" (CWSN 1: 209)

98. Describing the Indian ideal of Brahmacharya in the student's life, Swami Vivekananda said:

"Brahmacharya should be like a burning fire within the veins!" (CWSN 1: 216)

99. Concerning marriage by arrangement instead of choice, Swami Vivekananda said:

"There is such pain in this country! Such pain! Some, of course, there must always have been. But now the sight of Europeans with their different customs has increased it. Society knows that there is another way!

[To a European] "We have exalted motherhood and you, wifehood; and I think both might gain by some interchange.

"In India the wife must not dream of loving even a son as she loves her husband. She must be Sati. But the husband ought not to love his wife as he does his mother. Hence a reciprocated affection is not thought so high as one unreturned. It is 'shopkeeping'. The joy of the contact of husband and wife is not admitted in India. This we have to borrow from the West. Our ideal needs to be refreshed by yours. And you, in turn, need something of our devotion to motherhood." (CWSN 1: 221-22)

100. Speaking to a disciple with great compassion:

"You need not mind if these shadows of home and marriage cross your mind sometimes. Even to me, they come now and again!" (CWSN 1: 222)

101. On hearing of the intense loneliness of a friend:

"Every worker feels like that at times!" (CWSN 1: 222)

102. Concerning the Hindu and Buddhist monastic and non-monastic ideals:

"The glory of Hinduism lies in the fact that while it has defined ideals, it has never dared to say that any one of these alone was the one true way. In this it differs from Buddhism, which exalts monasticism above all others as the path that must be taken by all souls to reach perfection. The story given in the Mahâbhârata of the young saint who was made to seek enlightenment, first from a married woman and then from a butcher, is sufficient to show this. 'By doing my duty', said each one of these when asked, 'by doing my duty in my own station, have I attained this knowledge'. There is no career then which might not be the path to God. The question of attainment depends only, in the last resort, on the thirst of the soul." (CWSN 1: 223)

103. With reference to the idea that the lover always sees the ideal in the beloved, Swami Vivekananda responded to a girl's newly avowed love:

"Cling to this vision! As long as you can both see the ideal in one another, your worship and happiness will grow more instead of less." (CWSN 1: 224)

104. "The highest truth is always the simplest." (CWSN 1: 226)

105. Swami Vivekananda's remarks on American séances:

"Always the greatest fraud by the simplest means." (CWSN 1: 233)

106. On Western and Eastern views of a person as a body or a soul:

"Western languages declare that man is a body and has a soul; Eastern languages declare that he is a soul and has a body." (CWSN 1: 236-37)

107. Concerning Swami Vivekananda's reverence for his Guru:

"I can criticize even an Avatâra [divine incarnation] without the slightest diminution of my love for him! But I know quite well that most people are not so; and for them it is safest to protect their own Bhakti!" (CWSN 1: 252)

"Mine is the devotion of the dog! I don't want to know why! I am contented simply to follow!" (Ibid., 252-53)

108. "Ramakrishna Paramahansa used to begin every day by walking about in his room for a couple of hours, saying 'Satchidânanda!' or 'Shivoham!' or some other holy word." (CWSN 1: 255)

109. A few months before his passing away, Swami Vivekananda said:

"How often does a man ruin his disciples by remaining always with them! When men are once trained, it is essential that their leader leaves them; for without his absence they cannot develop themselves!" (CWSN 1: 260)

110. A few days before his passing away, the Swami said:

"I am making ready for death. A great Tapasyâ and meditation has come upon me, and I am making ready for death." (CWSN 1: 261-62)

111. In Kashmir after an illness, Swami Vivekananda said as he lifted a couple of pebbles:

"Whenever death approaches me, all weakness vanishes. I have neither fear, nor doubt, nor thought of the external. I simply busy myself making ready to die. I am as hard as that [the pebbles struck one another in his hand] — for I have touched the feet of God!" (CWSN 1: 262)

RESPONSE TO WELCOME*

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 83-84.)

[*Editorial synthesis of four Chicago newspaper reports from:
Herald, Inter Ocean, Tribune, and Record,
ca. September 11, 1893*]

(Cf. "Response to Welcome", Complete Works I: 3-4, for a somewhat different version.)

[Sisters and Brothers of America,]

It fills my heart with joy unspeakable to rise in response to the grand words of welcome given to us by you. I thank you in the name of the most ancient order of monks the world has ever seen, of which Gautama was only a member. I thank you in the name of the Mother of religions, of which Buddhism and Jainism are but branches; and I thank you, finally, in the name of the millions and millions of Hindoo people of all castes and sects. My thanks also to some of the speakers on the platform who have told you that these different men from far-off nations will bear to the different lands the idea of toleration which they may see here. My thanks to them for this idea.

I am proud to belong to a religion which has taught the world both tolerance and universal acceptance. We believe not only in universal tolerance but we accept all religions to be true. I am proud to tell you that I belong to a religion in whose sacred language, the Sanskrit, the word exclusion is untranslatable. (Applause) I am proud to belong to a nation which has sheltered the persecuted and the refugees of all religions and all nations of the earth. I am proud to tell you that we have gathered in our bosom the purest remnant of the Israelites, a remnant of which came to southern India and took refuge with us in the very years in which their holy temple was shattered to pieces by Roman tyranny. I am proud to belong to the religion which has sheltered and is still fostering the remnant of the grand Zoroastrian nation.

I will quote to you, brothers, a few lines from a hymn which every Hindoo child repeats every day. I feel that the very spirit of this hymn, which I remember to have repeated from my earliest boyhood, which is every day repeated by millions and millions of men in India, has at last come to be realized. "As the different streams, having their sources in different places, all mingle their water in the sea; O Lord, so the different paths which men take through different tendencies, various though they appear, crooked or straight, all lead to Thee."

The present convention, which is one of the most august assemblies ever held, is in itself an indication, a declaration to the world of the wonderful doctrine preached in the Gita: "Whosoever comes to Me, through whatsoever form I reach him, all are struggling through paths that in the end always lead to me." Sectarianism, bigotry and its horrible descendant fanaticism, have possessed long this beautiful earth. It has filled the earth with violence, drenched it often and often with human gore, destroyed civilization and sent whole nations into despair. But its time has come, and I fervently believe that the bell that tolled this morning in honor of the representatives of the different religions of the earth, in this parliament assembled, is the death-knell to all fanaticism (applause), that it is the death-knell to all persecution with the sword or the pen, and to all uncharitable feelings between brethren wending their way to the same goal, but through different ways.

PARLOR TALK*

(New Discoveries.)

[Chicago Record, September 11, 1893]

Four leaders of religious thought were sitting in Dr. Barrow's [Barrows's] parlor — the Jain, George Condin [Candlin], the missionary who has passed sixteen years in China, Swami Vivekananda, the learned Brahman (The Swami was a Kshatriya, not a Brahmin.) Hindoo, and Dr. John H. Barrows, the Chicago Presbyterian. These four talked as if they were brothers of one faith.*

The Hindoo is of smooth countenance. His rather fleshy face is bright and intelligent. He wears an orange turban and a robe of the same color. His English is very good. "I have no home," said he.

I travel about from one college to another in India, lecturing to the students. Before starting for America I had been for some time in Madras. Since arriving in this country I have been treated with utmost courtesy and kindness. It is very gratifying to us to be recognized in this Parliament, which may have such an important bearing on the religious history of the world. We expect to learn much and take back some great truths to our 15,000,000 faithful Brahmins.

RELIGION NOT THE CRYING NEED OF INDIA*

[Chicago Inter Ocean, September 21, 1893]

Suami Vivekananda

At the close of the reading of Mr. Headland's paper on "Religion in Peking" Dr. Momerie announced that the other speakers bulletined for the evening had failed to appear. It was but 9 o'clock, and the main auditorium and galleries were well filled. There was an outburst of applause as they caught sight of the Hindoo monk, Vivekananda, sitting in his orange robe and scarlet turban upon the platform.

This popular Hindoo responded to the generous applause by saying that he did not come to speak to-night. He took occasion, however, to criticise many of the statements made in the paper by Mr. Headland. Referring to the poverty which prevails in China, he said that the missionaries would do better to work in appeasing hunger than in endeavoring to persuade the Chinese to renounce their faith of centuries and embrace Christianity at [as] the price of food. And then the Hindu stepped back on the platform and whispered to Bishop Keane, of the Catholic church, a moment.

He then resumed his address by saying that Bishop Keane had told him that Americans would not be offended at honest criticism. He said he had heard of all the terrible things and horrible conditions which prevail in China but he had not heard that any asylums had been erected by Christians for remedying all these difficulties. He said:

Christian brethren of America, you are so fond of sending out missionaries to save the souls of heathens. I ask you what have you done and are doing to save their bodies from starvation? (Applause). In India, there are 300,000,000 men and women living on an average of a little more than 50 cents a month. I have seen them living for years upon wild flowers. Whenever there was a little famine hundreds of thousands died of starvation. Christian missionaries come and offer life but only on condition that the Hindoos become Christians, abandoning the faith of their fathers and forefathers. Is it right? There are hundreds of asylums, but if the Mohammedans or the Hindoos go there they would be kicked out. There are thousands of asylums erected by Hindoos where anybody would be received. There are hundreds of churches that have been erected with the assistance of the Hindoos, but no Hindoo temples for which a Christian has given a penny.

What the East Needs

Brethren of America, the crying evil of the East is not religion. We have more than religion enough; what they want is bread, but they are given a stone. (Applause). It is an insult to a suffering man dying of hunger to preach to him metaphysics. Therefore, if you wish to illustrate the meaning of "brotherhood" treat the Hindoo more kindly, even though he be a Hindoo and is faithful to his religion. Send missionaries to them to teach them how better to earn a better piece of bread and not to teach them metaphysical nonsense. (Great applause).

And then the monk said he was in ill health today and wished to be excused. But there were thunders of applause and cries of "Go on" and Mr. Vivekananda continued.

The paper just read says something about the miserable and ignorant priest. The same may be said of India. I am one of those monks who have been described as beggarly. That is the pride of my life. (Applause). I am proud in that sense to be Christ-like. I eat what I have today and think not of tomorrow. "Behold the lilies of the field; they toil not, neither do they spin." The Hindoo carries that out literally. Many gentlemen present in Chicago sitting on this platform can testify that for the last twelve years I never knew whence my next meal was coming. I am proud to be a beggar for the sake of the Lord. The idea in the east is [that] to preach or teach anything for the sake of money is low and vulgar, but to teach the name of the Lord for pay is such a degradation as would cause the priest to lose caste and be spat upon. There is one suggestion in the paper that is true: If the priests of China and India were organized there is an enormous amount of potential energy which could be used for regeneration of society and humanity. I endeavored to organize it in India, but failed for lack of money. It may be I shall get the help I want in America.

But we know it is very hard for a heathen to get any help from "Christian people". (Great applause). I have heard so much of this land of freedom, of liberty and freedom of thought that I am not discouraged. I thank you, ladies and gentlemen.

And then the popular visitor bowed gracefully and sought to retire with a graceful smile, but the audience cried to him to proceed. Mr. Vivekananda, fairly bubbling with an expression of good nature, then explained the Hindoo theory of [re]incarnation. At the close of the address Dr. Momerie [a delegate from England] said that he now understood why the newspapers had well called this parliament an approach to the millennium. . . .

THE CHICAGO LETTER

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 162-63.)

[New York Critic, November 11, 1893]

. . . It was an outgrowth of the Parliament of Religions, which opened our eyes to the fact that the philosophy of the ancient creeds contains much beauty for the moderns. When we had once clearly perceived this, our interest in their exponents quickened, and with characteristic eagerness we set out in pursuit of knowledge. The most available means of obtaining it, after the close of the Parliament, was through the addresses and lectures of Suami Vivekananda, who is still in this city. His original purpose in coming to this country was to interest Americans in the starting of new industries among the Hindoos, but he has abandoned this for the present, because he finds that, as "the Americans are the most charitable people in the world," every man with a purpose comes here for assistance in carrying it out. When asked about the relative condition of the poor here and in India, he replied that our poor would be princes there, and that he had been taken through the worst quarter of the city only to find it, from the standpoint of his knowledge, comfortable and even pleasant.

A Brahmin of the Brahmins, Vivekananda gave up his rank to join the brotherhood of monks, where all pride of caste is voluntarily relinquished. And yet he bears the mark of race upon his person. His culture, his eloquence, and his fascinating personality have given us a new idea of Hindoo civilization. He is an interesting figure, his fine, intelligent, mobile face in its setting of yellows, and his deep, musical voice prepossessing one at once in his favor. (The Swami quoted this passage in his letter to Shri Haridas Viharidas Desai, written November 15, 1893 (Vide Complete Works, VIII: 327)). So it is not strange that he has been taken up by the literary clubs, has preached and lectured in churches, until the life of Buddha and the doctrines of his faith have grown familiar to us. He speaks without notes, presenting his facts and his conclusions with the greatest art, the most convincing sincerity; and rising at times to a rich, inspiring eloquence. As learned and cultivated, apparently, as the most accomplished Jesuit, he has also something Jesuitical in the character of his mind; but though the little sarcasms thrown into his discourses are as keen as a rapier, they are so delicate as to be lost on many of his hearers. Nevertheless his courtesy is unflinching, for these thrusts are never pointed so directly at our customs as to be rude. At present he contents himself with enlightening us in regard to his religion and the words of its philosophers. He looks forward to the time when we shall pass beyond idolatry — now necessary in his opinion to the ignorant classes, — beyond worship, even, to a knowledge of the presence of God in nature, of the divinity and responsibility of man. "Work out your own salvation," he says with the dying Buddha; "I cannot help you. No man can help you. Help yourself."

Viva Kananda, the Hindoo Orator Delivers an Interesting Lecture

(Of which there is no verbatim transcript available. Cf. Complete Works, III: 481 for a less comprehensive report of the same lecture.)

[Daily Cardinal, University of Wisconsin at Madison,
November 21, 1893]

A crowded house greeted Viva Kananda at the Congregational Church last evening. The speaker was attired in native costume, which consisted of a cream turban, with yellow gown and cardinal sash.

The first part of the lecture was devoted to illustrating the many resemblances of Sanscrit [sic], the language of the Hindoos, to that of English. They have no word in their language which means salvation; to them it is freedom from bondage. They believe that man's real nature is perfect, and that cause and effect controls all except God. Religion was aptly illustrated by the story of the blind men who each felt of a portion of a huge elephant, and each thought the animal like the particular part he felt of it; so with religion each of the various sects have a part of the whole truth, while truth itself is infinite and no man can say "I have seen it all."

The Hindoo belief was shown to be one of the most charitable of beliefs. Persecution is something unknown in India; there is no such word in their language. The lecturer challenged the world to show an instance in Hindoo progress, of a Christian missionary being persecuted. A Greek historian, writing of them said: "No Hindoo man is dishonest, no Hindoo woman unchaste."

Viva Kananda came to this country from India in the interest of the world's congress of religions, and his lecture last evening on the "Religions of India," was an inspiration to all who heard him. He has a pleasant, clear-cut, dusky face, and a decidedly impressive manner and bearing. His voice is low and pleasant, with a secret something which rivets your attention at the start.

ALL RELIGIONS ARE TRUE
SUCH IS THE MESSAGE BROUGHT FROM INDIA

BY A HINDU MONK
(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 200-202.)

[Daily Iowa Capitol, November 28, 1893]

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA TELLS OF ANCIENT FAITH
SPEAKS AGAIN TONIGHT

(The lecture was "The Hindu Religion", delivered November 27, 1893, of which there is no verbatim transcript available. Cf. Complete Works, III: 482-84 for different highlights of the same lecture.)

It was a rare as well as an odd treat which the people of Des Moines enjoyed last evening at the Central Church of Christ. A monk, of the ancient faith of Brahma, made a happy presentation of that faith, not so much of its peculiarities as of its underlying principles. The audience was a good sized one, perhaps 500 or 600 persons being present. The main floor being well filled and there were perhaps a couple of hundred in the gallery.

The speaker opened by saying that all religious systems were an attempt to answer the question What am I? This and the kindred ones, Whence Come I? and Whither Am I Going? are constantly recurring. Without following the speaker throughout the entire lecture, suffice it to say, that underlying the Hindu religion according to the speaker is the belief that "We are all divine". In each is a conscious spirit that survives the body and the mind and is a part of the absolute. The speaker very ably defended religion against the attacks of science. The latter can use only the five senses, and unless a thing can be proven to be by these senses [it] is disposed to doubt its existence. But does science know that there are only five senses? The speaker contended for the existence of a supersensuous sense; through which man obtains revelations of spiritual truths. The Hindu word for revelation is "Veda". Hence the "Vedas" are the revelations. These writings are not confined to those of the Hindus, but include those of all peoples; because said the speaker, all religions are true.

When "revelations" undertake to tell of material things they enter upon a domain which belongs to science and are not to be accepted. There was an ancient superstition that because Moses gave a revelation of the will of God, therefore everything Moses wrote must be true. There is a modern superstition that, because there are mistakes in the writings of Moses, therefore nothing Moses wrote is true. When Moses wrote the tables of the law he was inspired. When he told of the creation what he said was merely the speculations of Moses the Jew.

The speaker was not favorably impressed with the efforts to make Hindu converts — perverts he calls them — to Christianity, nor the converse. All religions being true, such perversions serve no good end. The Hindu religion the speaker claimed is not disposed to antagonize any belief; it absorbs them. As for tolerating different beliefs, the language of the Hindu has no word corresponding with the English word "intolerance". That language had a word for religion and one for sect. The former embraced all beliefs. The conception of the latter the speaker illustrated by telling the story of the frog, who had no idea there was any world outside the well in which he had always lived.

The speaker urged his hearers to cultivate the divine within them and to discard the "nonsense" of sects.

The lecturer is an able, dignified and forcible speaker. His mastery of English is perfect, there being only the faintest indications of a foreign accent. The lecturer was followed with closest attention by the audience. After the lecture, the speaker consented to answer questions to a portion of the audience that remained for that purpose. In the course of the answers he said that the Hindus were altogether opposed to the destruction of the life of any animal. He admitted the worship of the sacred cow. He said further that the Hindus had nothing answering to our church organizations. He was his own priest, bishop and pope. . . .

A MESSAGE FROM INDIA
(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 204-6.)

Vive Kananda, the Famous Hindoo Monk and Scholar, Appears in Des Moines

[Iowa State Register, November 28, 1893]

A YOUNG MAN OF THIRTY YEARS
AND A BIG, ACTIVE BRAIN AND TRUE HEART

The people of Des Moines had a glimpse of Oriental life and thought at its best yesterday, from the lips of the famous Hindoo monk, Swami Vive Kananda. A central figure in the great Parliament of Religions at Chicago this summer, where he coped with some of the greatest minds of the country with honor to himself and his people, he gave those who heard him, and especially those who met him at Dr. Breeden's, something new to think about. It was a message from over the sea, from another people of wholly different surroundings, training, customs and traditions, but as the monk says, the basic principles are the same in all religions. It is his doctrine that there is good in all religions and he preaches it with great power. . . .

Yesterday afternoon he met a large number of the brightest women in Des Moines, members of the various literary clubs, at the invitation of Mrs. H. O. Breeden, at her home, 1318 Woodland avenue, (An informal talk of which there is no verbatim transcript available.) and he talked to them for two or three hours about his religion, his view of Christianity, in which he heartily concurs, and of the manners and customs of his people. The thing which Vive Kananda most strongly insists upon is that the Hindoo religion is not to be blamed for all that is bad in India any more than Christianity is to be blamed for all that is bad in America. And he insists that it is absurd to give Christianity credit for all the marvelous undertakings and achievements of the people who cherish it. He joins in the praise of the sublime things in the bible [sic], but says that when Moses undertook to speak of the creation of the world, he was merely Moses, the Jew and nothing more.

This view from the other side, and a sympathetic side at that, is a most helpful and instructive and intensely interesting one. Vive Kananda uses the purest English, for he was well educated in the English university, Calcutta.

He praises the American women most enthusiastically.

I do not know what would have become of me if it had not been for your women, he said to a reporter for The Register last night.

They took me up and took care of me and made all necessary arrangements for me. They are the best women in the world. They have been so kind to me,

[the Swami said] with a grateful smile.

REINCARNATION*

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, p. 206-7.)

[Daily Iowa Capitol, November 29, 1893]

Swami Vivekananda last night talked of reincarnation. (Of which there is no verbatim transcript available.) It is based, he contended, on the fact that there never has been a new creation; that creation has existed coevally with God from all eternity. Departed souls find bodies to inhabit either better or worse than their former tenement, according as they made them fit for one or the other. The lecturer will speak again on Thanksgiving evening at the same place on the manners and customs of India.

AN INTELLECTUAL FEAST

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, p. 208.)

[Iowa State Register, November 30, 1893]

The remarkable discussions started by the famous Hindu monk, Vive Kananda, were the topic of interest in intellectual circles yesterday.* Especially so was his comment on the work of American missionaries in India, and his strong defense of his own people and morals and religion. His position is that the people of India do not need any more religion, but training in the practical things of life that will enable them to cope with the English who have occupied India. Vive Kananda was the guest of Mr. F. W. Lehman and Mr. O. H. Perkins yesterday and in their company visited the state house, which he very much admired. He took a special interest in the portraits of the American Indians that he saw there. . . .

A PRAYER MEETING*
(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, p. 207.)

[Des Moines Daily News, November 30, 1893]

Vivekananda attended a prayer meeting Wednesday evening and witnessed the baptism of two young women. The service impressed him very much. He said:

I see. The sentiment is ennobling and the ceremony beautiful. It is the more impressive that the minister is honest, earnest and believes what he says.

ON AMERICAN WOMEN*

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, p. 208.)

[Daily Iowa Capitol, November 30, 1893]

The now celebrated Hindu monk, Swami Vivekananda will lecture for the last time in Des Moines tonight. He will speak on "Life in India" ["Manners and Customs of India"] a most interesting theme. The renowned Hindu is a brilliant man about 30 years old. He says American women are lovely, but American men are entirely too practical.

ON THE BRAHMO SAMAJ*

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, p. 215.)

[Iowa State Register, December 1, 1893]

Before he left the city [Des Moines, Iowa], Vive Kananda took occasion to say a warm word of praise for the Bramo-Somaj [sic], the work it is doing in India, especially for the women, and of its representative in this country. The visit of Vive Kananda, stirring as it did the intellectual centers of the city to their depths and starting a lively religious discussion, prepared the way for the present visitor [Nagarkar] from the Orient and heightened public interest in whatever he might have to say.

A WITTY HINDU

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 216-17.)

[Minneapolis Journal, December 15, 1893]

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA
ENTERTAINS ANOTHER LARGE AUDIENCE

A large number of people assembled at the Unitarian church last evening for the purpose of listening to Swami Vivekananda of India. The customs and manners of the people of that country were described, (The lecture was "The Manners and Customs of India", of which there is no verbatim transcript available. Cf. the following American newspaper report, "The Manners and Customs of India", for other highlights of the lecture.) and during his lecture the Brahmin took occasion to show up some of the rough points of America. He is of the humorist order and his quick replies and witty sallies rarely failed to evoke applause. He would not admit that his people were wrong in everything, but there were a great many things peculiar to India which the Americans did not approve of and yet which might be all right. He had never seen husband and wife go before a magistrate to tell their troubles. They grew up with the idea that they were to be married and they loved each other as brothers and sisters.

He described the customs of his country, the temples, the art of the juggler and all of the other peculiarities of oriental countries in a manner that was charming. Following the address a number of questions were asked by persons in the audience.

THE MANNERS AND CUSTOMS OF INDIA *

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 217-19.)

[Minneapolis Tribune, December 15, 1893]

Swami Vive Kananda, the Brahmin priest, was greeted by a packed house last evening at the First Unitarian Church, when he appeared before his second Minneapolis audience. Vive Kananda is a bright, quick witted talker, ready at all points to attack or defend, and inserts a humor into his speeches that is not lost upon his auditors. He spoke last evening under the auspices of the Kappa Kappa Gammas of the University, and the audience embraced a large number of earnest thinking men and women, pleased to be enlightened upon the "Manners and Customs of India," which was his chosen subject. (Of which there is no verbatim transcript available. Cf. the preceding American newspaper report, "A witty Hindu", for other highlights of the lecture.)

Robed in his native garb, with his hands for the most part clasped behind his back, Kananda paces back and forth the narrow platform, talking as he paces, with long pauses between his sentences, as if willing that his words should sink into the deepest soil. His talk is not so weighty that the frivolous mind may not appreciate some of his sayings, but he also speaks a philosophy that carries gravest truth. He tells of the manners and customs of India, of the divided life between the male and female, of the reverence for and holiness of women, and again of their degeneracy; of the calm and peaceful life, that yet is not true life because it is not liberty; he speaks of the Mohammedans, who form one-fifth of the Indian population, and that 65,000,000, equal to the entire population of the United States. He describes the magnificence of the temples, the art of the jugglers, who are the gypsies of the Indian race, and he touches upon the superstitions of the people, of how they fill the water jars and stand them in the doorway before starting on a journey; he speaks of the metaphysical knowledge of the plowman, who yet only knows that he "pays taxes to the government"; he admits the reverence of the Hindu for the river Ganges, and his ever lingering wish that he shall die on its banks; he tells all these things in a quiet, half supercilious voice that presently leads to some remark on the American way of doing things, and then his audience is in a ripple of laughter, and a tremor of clapping expresses amused acknowledgement of his sarcasm. . . .

When some one at the close of his lecture asked him "What class of people are reached and converted by the missionaries?" he quickly replied, "You know as much about that, the American sees the reports, we never do", he has turned the query into a cause for smiling, and while the house regains its composure he paces quietly to and fro. The address was followed with the closest attention and was supplemented by several questions and answers among the audience, from whom he invited interrogation.

HINDU PHILOSOPHY

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 366-69.)

[Detroit Tribune, February 18, 1894]

ITS RECENT EXPRESSION BY VIVE KANANDA.

HIS MISSION WORTHY THE SERIOUS ATTENTION OF AMERICANS.

THE TWO REMARKABLE THINGS IN THE UNITED STATES WHICH GRATIFIES THE DISTINGUISHED PAGAN — WHAT ENVIRONMENT WILL DO FOR ANY PEOPLE — RAP AT MISSIONARIES.

There has seldom been such a sensation in cultured circles in Detroit, as that created by the advent of Swami Vive Kananda, the learned Hindu monk, whose exceptional command of our own language has enabled us to receive impressions concerning ourselves from an oriental standpoint and to acquire knowledge of a people of whose peculiar civilization and philosophy we have heard so much.

Both in public and private the Hindu brother has talked freely and frankly. He acknowledges that the masses in India are very poor, very ignorant and are divided into a diversity of sects, with forms of worship varying from downright idolatry to the broadest and most liberal form of divine conception based on the brotherhood of man and the oneness of God. His mission, he says, is not to proselyte us — to try and make us think as he does — but to get means to start a college in India for the education of teachers who are to go among the common people and work a reform of existing evils, of which there are many. He states that India is priest-ridden to a harrowing degree. It is priest-craft that distorts truth and perpetuates ignorance. It is priest-craft that substitutes its own crude and narrow interpretations for truth, which perverts the people and prevents their moral progression. The Swami regards all sects and creeds from a broad basis. He even sees good in idolatry. It is an ideal, he thinks, for the ignorant whose mental capacity is insufficient to grasp abstract ideas, and who require a direct personification in some material form. He frankly states that we of the occident are also retarded in our progression by too much priest-craft, and that we are not free from idolatrous practices, in that some of our sects worship shrines, figures and pictures and even the sanctity with which the rostrum and pulpit of a modern church is regarded is an ideal idolatry.

Two Remarkable Things in This Country

The Swami notes two most remarkable things in this country, when asked his frank opinion of us: First, the superiority of our women, as regards influence in position and intellect. Second, in our charities and treatment of the poor, he says, we have almost solved the problem as to what shall be done with them. Not only in this, in the direction of hospitals and charitable institutions, but in our tremendous development of labor-saving machinery. He has no admiration for our material progress, as it does not make man better, nor for our boasted civilization, as we only ape and imitate the customs and manners of the English — sometimes to a very ridiculous extent. We are yet too young, to have a distinctive civilization; we have yet to assimilate the human sewerage of Europe we have allowed to be poured upon us, before we produce a distinct American type.

[The writer goes on to say that the Swami's Indian background makes it difficult for him to understand that Western competitiveness is not undesirable but a primal law of nature itself — the survival of the fittest — and that inasmuch as "the dreamy and sentimental philosophy of the Hindoos" accounts for their poverty, degradation, and domination by a "mere handful of Englishmen," the Swami would do well neither to ignore nor to despise the materialism of the West. Having thus editorialized, he continues:]

His Criticism of Missionaries

If what he states is true about the results accomplished by foreign missions in India, the various boards of these various organizations would do well to consult him and follow his advice. It is for the betterment of his people he is here. But he says missionary work does no good; only adds additional sects and creeds to an already sect-ridden country; that the teachings of the Vedas, with which every Hindoo is familiar, is identical with the teachings of Christ. He makes the reasonable plea that foreign creeds and dogmas are not consonant with their inherited proclivities or civilization, and are consequently difficult to propagate.

The mission of Kananda is, however, one that should commend it[self] to every lover of humanity. He hopes to see the best of our material philosophy and progress infused into Hindoo civilization, and that, also, we may take lessons from them, until we shall all become, as we once were in ages past, brother Aryans, possessing a common civilization — the exalted philosophy of non-self, being alike without sect or creed in oneness with God.

RABBI GROSSMAN IS REFRESHED BY SWAMI VIVE KANANDA

I take him to my heart as I take all the great and good of all lands and of all times. But you, will you take my Krishna to your heart? No — you cannot, you dare not — still you are the cultured and I am the heathen. . . .

VIVE KANANDA LEAVES

[Detroit Journal, February 23, 1894]

HE TELLS SOMETHING ABOUT THE CONDITIONS OF HINDOO LABORERS.

Swami Vive Kananda repaid the admiration of his lady acquaintances by writing verses, at the same time religious and semi-sentimental, yesterday afternoon.* He departed this morning for Ada, O. [Ohio].

In a conversation concerning the material condition of the Hindu workingmen, the learned monk said that the poor lived on porridge alone. The laborer ate a breakfast of porridge, went off to his daily toil and returned in the evening to another breakfast of porridge and called it dinner. In most of the provinces the farmers were so poor that they could not afford to eat any of the wheat raised. A day laborer on a farm received only 12 pence a day, but a dollar in India brought 10 times as much as it would in this country. Cotton was raised, but its fiber was so short it had to be woven by hand, and even then it was necessary to import American and Egyptian cotton to mix with it.

CULTURE AT HOME

[Detroit Evening News, February 25, 1894]

ANECDOTES OF SWAMI VIVE KANANDA'S VISIT TO DETROIT.

Anecdotes of Swami Vive Kananda's visit are numerous and amusing — at least they must have been amusing to him, although a little humiliating to the American self-love. One lady said:

"I really was ashamed at the contrast between the knowledge possessed by him and by some of our Detroit men who consider themselves gentlemen of culture. At one dinner party a gentleman asked Kananda what books he would advise him to read on chemistry, whereupon the Hindu monk responded with a long list of English works on this science, which one would naturally expect an American to know more about than a Hindu. Another gentleman followed by a request as to books on astronomy, to which Kananda obligingly answered with another equally good list of English astronomical works. But his growing astonishment reached its climax when a lady spoke of 'The Christ,' and said, 'What do those words mean?' He again furnished the desired information, but in a tone growing slightly sarcastic."

Probably the choicest example of nineteenth century civilization and culture was given by a lady, who asked Kananda if he liked the English. He very naturally responded that he did not. Then she continued, with fine tact, to pursue the subject still further by touching references to that pleasant event, the Sepoy rebellion. As the Hindu grew excited she smiled at him ironically and said:

"I thought I could disturb your philosophical Eastern calm."

KANANDA, THE PAGAN

[Detroit Tribune, March 11, 1894]

ATTACKED CHRISTIAN MISSIONS IN LAST NIGHT'S LECTURE.

AND HIS WORDS WERE WARMLY APPLAUDED
BY THE AUDIENCE.

CHRISTIAN NATIONS KILL AND MURDER, HE SAID, AND IMPORT DISEASE INTO FOREIGN COUNTRIES, THEN ADD INSULT TO INJURY BY PREACHING OF A CRUCIFIED CHRIST.

Swami Vive Kananda lectured to a very large audience at the Detroit Opera House last night on "Christian Missions in India.", (Cf. "Christianity in India", Complete Works, VIII: 214-9, for a somewhat less comprehensive report of the same lecture.) One could believe that the lecture was intended as an answer to the many statements of missionaries which have been aimed at Kananda during the past two weeks in this city.

Kananda was introduced by Honorable Thomas W. Palmer last night, who recited a fable by way of preface. "Two knights of honor once met on the field," he said, "and seeing a shield hanging on a tree they halted. One said: 'What a very fine silver shield.' The other replied that it was not silver but copper. Each disputed the other's statement until at last they got off their horses, tied them to the tree, and drawing their swords fought for several hours. After they were both well spent by the loss of blood they staggered against each other and fell on the opposite sides from where they had been fighting. Then one glanced up at the pendant shield and said: 'You were right, my friend. The shield is copper.' The other looked up and said: 'It is I who was mistaken. The shield is silver.' If they had looked at both sides of the shield in the first place it would have saved the loss of much blood. I think that if we looked at both sides of every question there would be less argument and fighting.

"We have with us tonight a gentleman who, from the christian standpoint is, I suppose, a pagan. But he belongs to a religion which was old long before ours was thought of by men. I am sure that it will be pleasant to hear from the copper side of the shield. We have looked at it only from the silver side. Ladies and Gentlemen, Swami Vive Kananda."

Kananda, who had remained seated on the stage during Mr. Palmer's remarks, stepped to the front, clad in the orange robe and unique turban of the Brahman [sic] priest, bowed in acknowledgement of the welcoming applause, and launched at once into his subject.

What India Is

[The Swami said:]

I do not know about the efforts of christian missionaries in China and Japan except through reading the books and literature on the subject, but I can speak about the efforts of christianizing India. But before I go into this I want to place before you an idea of what India is.

Then he explained in detail how the 300,000,000 inhabitants of India are divided into castes, between which there can be no affiliation, how the natives of the south cannot understand the language of the ones of the north, and vice versa. He told how the lower caste lived on the flesh of dead animals, and never bathed their bodies, and how impossible it would be for the higher class to mingle with them, although they were granted the protection of the same laws.

He referred to the first appearance of the christians in an attempt to evangelize the followers of Buddah [Buddha]. They were Spaniards, he said, and they discovered a temple near Ceylon, in which was presented a tooth of Buddah as a sacred relic. "The Spaniard christians thought that their God commanded them to go and fight and kill and murder," he said, and so they seized the tooth of Buddah and destroyed it. By the way, it was not a tooth of Buddah at all, but a relic manufactured by the priests — it was a foot long. (Laughter)

Every religion has its miracles; you needn't laugh because the tooth was a foot long. Well, after the Spaniards took away the tooth they converted a few hundred and killed a few thousands; and there Spain stops in the history of missionary efforts among the Buddhists.

The Portugese [sic] christians, he said, discovered the great temple at Bombay, built in the form of a body with three heads, in representation of the trinity as the Hindoo believes in a trinity.

"The Portugese saw it and couldn't explain it," said Kananda, with a sarcastic ring in his voice, and so they concluded that it was of the devil, and gathered their forces and knocked off the three heads of the temple. The devil is such a handy man. I am sorry to see him so fast disappearing.

Then Kananda outlined the various stages of christian evangelization in India, and paid very high tribute to two or three missionaries, who, he said, had been great exceptions to the rule, and lived among the people to uplift and minister to their needs.

Antagonize Native Interests

The Hindoo priest told how as soon as the land came into possession of the English people every village had its white colony, which huddled itself together and withdrew from all association with the natives. Then when the missionaries reached the country, he said, they would naturally go at once among the English people, who sympathized with them and with whom they could converse. The missionaries know nothing of the native language, he says, and so they cannot dwell with the people. Most of them are married and for the sake of getting their wives into the English society they identify themselves with all their interests, and in doing so directly antagonize the interests of the natives, and make it impossible to get in touch with them.

"We sometimes have famines in India," he said.

And so the young missionaries will hang about the fag end of a famine and give a starving native 5 shillings, and there you have him, a ready-made christian; take him. That was probably a baptist missionary, and so when a methodist missionary comes along he gives the same native 5 shillings, and his name is again registered as a convert. The only band of converts around each missionary is composed of those dependent upon him for a living. They have to be christians or starve. And they are dwindling as the money supply decreases. I am glad if you want to make christians in India by giving work and bread to the poor. God speed you to do that. There is one benefit that must be credited to the missionary movement. It makes education cheap. The missionaries bring some money with them from the people who send them, and the Indian government appropriates some, so that there are some very good colleges and schools available to the natives through missionaries. But I will be frank with you. There are no conversions from the schools to the christian religion. The Hindoo boy is very clever. He takes the bait, but never gets the hook.

The speaker said that the lady missionary goes into certain houses, gets four shillings a month, reads the Bible, while the native girls give indifferent attention, and teaches them to knit while they pay very keen attention. The girls, like the boys, he said are always alert to learn practical things, but they will give little heed to the christian religion, although they will espouse it if necessary to get the other advantages.

Most Missionaries Incompetent

"The most of the men whom you send us as missionaries are incompetent," he said.

I have never known of a single man who has studied Sanscrit [sic] before going to India as a missionary and yet all our books and literature are printed in it.

He suggested as an explanation of the visits of the missionaries that "perhaps the atheism and scepticism at home is pushing the missionaries out all over the world." When in India he said he had thought the sole business of christianity [was] to send all people to the fires of hell, but since coming to America he has found that there are a great many liberal men. He referred to the parliament of religions, and told how a certain editor of a presbyterian paper had written an article at the close of the parliament entitled "The Lying Hindoo," in which he had scored him very severely.

In the article the editor said that "while in the parliament he was here as our guest, but now that it is over we ought to make an enthusiastic attack against him and his false doctrines."

In referring to the medical missionaries in India Kananda said:

India requires health, but it must be health for people. And how can you help our people if you do not get in touch with them? When you come to us as missionaries you ought to throw over all idea of nationality. Jesus didn't go about among the English officials attending champagne suppers. He didn't care to have his wife get into high European society. If your missionary does not follow Christ what right has he to call himself a christian? We want missionaries of Christ. Let such come to India by the hundreds and thousands. Bring Christ's life to us and let it permeate the very core of society. Let Him be preached in every village and corner of India. But don't have your missionaries choose their profession as a means of livelihood. Let them have the call of Christ. Let them feel within that they were born for that work.

As far as converting India to christianity is concerned, there is no hope. If it were possible it ought not to be done. It would be dangerous; it would mark the destruction of all religions. If the whole universe should come to have the same temperament, physical or mental, destruction would immediately result. Why couldn't you convert the Jew? Why couldn't you make the Persians christians? Why is it that to every African who becomes a christian 100 become followers of Mohammed? Why can't you make an impression on India and China, and Japan? Because oneness of mental temperament all over the world would be death. Nature is too wise to allow such things.

Filled the World with Bloodshed

[The Swami said:]

The christian nations have filled the world with bloodshed and tyranny. It is their day now. You kill and murder and bring drunkenness and disease in our country, and then add insult to injury by preaching Christ and Him crucified. What christian voice goes through the land protesting against such horrors? I have never heard any. You drink the idea in your mothers' milk that you are angels and we are devils. It is not enough that there be sunlight; you must have the eyes to see it. It is not only necessary that there be goodness in people; you must have the appreciation of goodness within yourselves in order to distinguish it. This is in every heart until it has been murdered by superstition and hideous blasphemy.

Then Kananda drew a very beautiful simile to illustrate that the essential truths of all religions are [the] same, and all else is but incidental and unimportant environment. He told how the savage man might find a few jewels, and prizing them, tie them with a rude thong and string them about his neck. As he became slightly civilized he would perhaps exchange the thong for a string. Becoming still more enlightened he would fasten his jewels with a silken cord; and when possessed of a high civilization he would make an elaborate gold setting for his treasures. But throughout all the changes in settings the jewels — the essentials — would remain the same.

If the Hindoo wishes to criticize the christian religion he talks of the fables and miracles, and all the nonsense of the Bible, but he does not say one word in disparagement of the sermon on the mount, or of the beautiful life of Jesus. And so when the christian criticizes the Hindoo religion he talks about the dogmas and the temples, but he says nothing [should say nothing] against the morality and philosophy of the Hindoo. Help the Jew and let him help you. Help the Hindoo and let him help you. I deny that any human being has the faculty of seeing good at all who cannot see it in all places. There is the same beauty in the character of Christ and the character of Buddah. It is not an assimilation that we want, but adjustment and harmony. I ask the preachers to give up, first, the idea of nationality; and second, the idea of sects. God's children have no sects.

Much has been said about the ladies of India, and of their faults and condition. There are faults; God help us to make them right. We are thankful for your criticism of our women. But while you are speaking of them I will say that I should be glad to see a dozen spiritual women in America. Nice dress, wealth, brilliant society, operas, novels — . Even intellectuality is not all that there is for a man or woman. There should be also spirituality, but that side is entirely absent from christian countries. They live in India.

Vive Kananda's large audience listened very respectfully to his remarks last night, and once or twice applauded heartily.

AS THE WAVE FOLLOWS WAVE

(New Discoveries, Vol. 1, pp. 441-43.)

[Detroit Tribune, March 20, 1894]

SO SOUL FOLLOWS SOUL, ACCORDING TO KANANDA.

Vive Kananda lectured to an audience of about 150 [according to the Journal, 500] at the Auditorium last night upon "Buddhism, the Religion of the Light of Asia." (Of which there is no verbatim report available.) Honorable Don M. Dickinson introduced him to the audience.

"Who shall say that this system of religion is divine and that doomed?" asked Mr. Dickinson in his introductory remarks. "Who shall draw the mystic line?"

He also said that at one time the followers of Buddha were the unwilling allies of the christian religion. Kananda appeared in a robe of orange yellow with a sash-like cord about the waist, and a turban draped out of some eastern cloth of silken texture, the flowing end of which was brought in front over one shoulder.

Vive Kananda reviewed at length the early religions of India. He told of the great slaughter of animals on the altar of sacrifice; of Buddha's birth and life; of his puzzling questions to himself over the causes of creation and the reasons for existence; of the earnest struggle of Buddha to find the solution of creation and life; of the final result.

Buddha, he said, stood head and shoulders above all other men. He was one, he said, [of] whom his friends or enemies could never say that he drew a breath or ate a crumb of bread but for the good of all.

"He never preached transmigration of the soul," said Kananda, except he believed one soul was to its successor like the wave of the ocean that grew and died away, leaving naught to the succeeding wave but its force. He never preached that there was a God, nor did he deny there was a God.

"Why should we be good?" his disciples asked of him.

"Because," he said, "you inherited good. Let you in your turn leave some heritage of good to your successors. Let us all help the onward march of accumulated goodness, for goodness' sake."

He was the first prophet. He never abused any one or arrogated anything to himself. He believed in our working out our own salvation in religion.

"I can't tell you," he said, on his death bed, "nor any one. Depend not on any one. Work out your own religion [salvation]."

He protested against the inequality of man and man, or of man and beast. All life was equal, he preached. He was the first man to uphold the doctrine of prohibition in liquors. "Be good and do good," he said. "If there is a God you have him by being good. If there is no God, being good is good. He is to be blamed for all he suffers. He is to be praised for all his good."

He was the first who brought the missionaries into existence. He came as a savior to the downtrodden millions of India. They could not understand his philosophy, but they saw the man and his teachings and they followed him.

In conclusion Kananda said that Buddhism was the foundation of the christian religion; that the catholic church came from Buddhism.

WAYSIDE STORIES

[Detroit Evening News, March 21, 1894]

Curiosity, says our Hindoo visitor, is the most conspicuous trait of the American people, but he added that it is the way to knowledge. This has long been the European estimate of the American, or more strictly the Yankee character, and perhaps the Hindoo's comment was an echo of what he had heard the Englishmen in India say of the "Yankee."

[Bay City Times Press, March 21, 1894]

He gave an interesting lecture at the Opera House last evening. It is rarely that Bay City people have the opportunity of listening to a lecture similar to the one given last evening by Swami Vive Kananda. The gentleman is a native of India, having been born at Calcutta about 30 years ago. The lower floor of the Opera house was about half filled when the speaker was introduced by Dr. C. T. Newkirk. During his discourse, he scored the people of this country for their worship of the almighty dollar. It is true that there is caste in India. There, a murderer can never reach the top. Here, if he gets a million dollars he is as good as any one. In India, if a man is a criminal once, he is degraded forever. One of the great factors in the Hindoo religion is its tolerance of other religions and beliefs. Missionaries are much more severe on the religions of India than upon that of other Oriental countries, because the Hindoos allow them to be, thus carrying out one of their cardinal beliefs, that of toleration. Kananda is a highly educated and polished gentleman. It is said that he was asked in Detroit if the Hindoos throw their children into the river. Whereupon, he replied that they do not, neither do they burn witches at the stake. The speaker lectures in Saginaw tonight.

KANANDA ARRIVES

(New Discoveries, Vol. 2, p. 11.)

[Saginaw Evening News, March 21, 1894]

Swami Vive Kananda, the Hindu Monk, arrived this afternoon from Bay City and is registered at the Vincent. He dresses like a well-to-do American and speaks excellent English. He is slightly above the medium height, is stoutly built and his complexion resembles that of an Indian. In answer to a question by a NEWS representative, he said he learned English from private tutors, and by contact with Europeans, who visited Hindustan. He further stated that his talk tonight would be explanatory of the religion of the Hindoo and to show that they are not heathen but believe in a future state.

NORTH SHORE CLUB

The Meeting, Tuesday Afternoon, Addressed by Suami Vive Kananda, a Learned Monk from India — Description of the Manners and Customs of His Country

(Delivered April 17, 1894, of which there is no verbatim transcript available.)

At the meeting of the North Shore Club, Tuesday afternoon, the audience was a large and brilliant one, representing the highest culture, and including many distinguished guests. Suami Vive Kananda, from India, a learned monk, who speaks English with ease and fluency, gave an intensely interesting description of the manners and customs of his country. Suami Vive Kananda, who wore the yellow robe and turban of his order, began by saying that India is divided into two parts, the northern and the southern. In each the language and customs are so different that the speaker who was from the northern portion on meeting a fellow countryman at the Parliament of Religions from the southern, was obliged to converse with him in English, neither being able to understand the other's native language. Throughout the entire country there are nine languages and 100 dialects spoken.

There is some uniformity of religion, yet each sect is a religion and a law unto itself. Many erroneous descriptions have been written about India, based on imperfect knowledge from which inferences have been drawn that have been most prejudicial. With the Hindoo everything is subservient to religion and he gives up all that is antagonistic to it, his creed being that he is not to enjoy life but to conquer it and gain a supreme mastery over self, which is the highest type of civilization. Caste distinctions which are being obliterated are simply the Aryans and the un-Aryans — the Brahmins and the Sudras. The Brahmin, who is the child of a thousand years' culture, must lead a life of rigid discipline; but the Sudra, who is ignorant, is allowed great latitude.

Woman in the position of mother is accorded universal reverence in India. When a son who has become a monk returns to his home, his father, when greeting him, must kneel and touch his forehead to the earth; but the monk must kneel before his mother. Women in India do not throw their children into the rivers to be devoured by crocodiles. Widows are not burned on the funeral pyre of their husband unless it is a voluntary act of self-immolation.

There is no divorce allowed for the high class; a woman who leaves her husband, even if she be most degraded, holds still an interest in his property. Suami Vive Kananda recited a beautiful passage from the Legend of the Ramayana, one of the grandest poems of India, which showed what the love of a wife for her husband should be. The love of Sita for Rama. He added, "Much is said in these days of the 'survival of the fittest,'" and western nations use it as an argument against India, reasoning that their own wealth, prosperity and power show them to be greater and their religion higher and purer.

But India has seen mighty nations rise and fall whose aim has been only the power of conquest and the glory of this life. India has been repeatedly despoiled, has worn the yoke of the conqueror and borne the burden of oppression with indomitable patience and has shown tolerance to all, because she has possessed the knowledge that her people hold fast to a religion that stands securely on a high spirituality and not on the shifting sand of present enjoyment.

A LECTURE ON "INDIA AND HINDUISM"

(New Discoveries, Vol. 2, p. 42.)

[New York Daily Tribune, April 25, 1894]

Swami Vivekananda lectured before Mrs. Arthur Smith's conversation circle last evening at the Waldorf on "India and Hinduism." (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) Miss Sara Humbert, contralto, and Miss Annie Wilson, soprano, sang several selections. The lecturer wore an orange-colored coat and the accompanying yellow turban, which is called a beggar's suit. This is worn when a Buddhist has given up "everything for God and humanity." The theory of reincarnation was discussed. The speaker said that many clergymen who were more aggressive than learned asked: "Why one is unconscious of a former life if such a thing had been?" The reply was that "It would be childish to lay a foundation for consciousness, as man is unconscious of his birth in this life, and also of much that has transpired."

The speaker said that "no such thing" as "a Judgment Day" existed in his religion, and that his god neither punished nor rewarded. If wrong was done in any way, the natural punishment was immediate. The soul, he added, passed from one body to another, until it had become a perfect spirit, able to do without the limitations of a body. . . .

On Sunday, April 15, Swami Vivekananda, the Hindoo monk whose scholarly exposition of Brahmanism caused such favorable comment at the Congress of Religions, spoke at Vespers. (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) — We say much of the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God, but few understand the meaning of these words. True brotherhood is possible only when the soul draws so near to the All-Father that jealousies and petty claims of superiority must vanish because we are so much above them. We must take care lest we become like the frog of the well in the old Hindoo story, who, having lived for a long time in a small place, at last denied the existence of a larger space.

Swami Virekanmda [sic] lectured on "India and Reincarnation" last evening at the home of Miss Mary Phillips, No. 19 West Thirty-eighth-st. (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) He mentioned among other salient points regarding Hindooism, or Brahminism, that their religion bore no distinctive name; that it was considered that a belief in the truth of all creeds was religion, and that the belief that one certain dogma was the real and only religion was sect. The Karmic law of cause and effect was explained, also the external and internal natures in their close relations to each other. The actions in this world, as governed by a previous life and the change to still another life, were dwelt upon in detail.

Swami Vivekananda Tells About the Religion of High Caste Indians

(Of which no verbatim transcript is available.)

[Lawrence, Massachusetts, Evening Tribune, May 16, 1894]

Liberty hall was comfortably filled last evening, on the occasion of the lecture by Swami Vivekananda, the noted Brahmin monk, who was a prominent personality at the world's parliament of religions at Chicago last summer, and who is spending some time in this country, studying its manners and customs. The lecture was under the auspices of the woman's club, and was a novel and interesting occasion. The noted Hindu was pleasantly introduced by the president of the club, Miss Wetherbee, who alluded to the great antiquity of India, its wonderful history and the high intellectual qualities of the Hindu race.

The speaker of the evening was attired in native costume, namely, a bright scarlet robe, confined at the waist by a long scarf of the same color, and wore a picturesque white silk turban wound round his head. At the first glance one saw the swarthy complexion, the dark and dreamy eyes and introspective manner of a high caste Brahmin, whose life is devoted to religion and who is also a celibate. That he is a finely educated person, appeared in his wonderful command of English and his power of argument, while an occasional quotation from Milton and Dickens, showed that he was appreciative of the great English classics.

He first spoke of that striking peculiarity of the social condition of the Hindu's caste, affirming that it is not now as strict an institution as in the past, although even now everything goes by heredity. Mixture of castes, though not absolutely forbidden, entails disadvantage on the children. The Brahmin or high caste person devotes the first part of his life to the study of the Vedas or sacred books and the latter part to meditating on the divinity, being supposed to have overcome the human in himself, and to be only a soul.

The speaker did not hesitate to criticise adversely some western customs, especially some connected with the position of woman. He affirmed that we worship women in the wife, while all women to the Hindu represent the mother element. In America when a woman ceases to be young and beautiful, she has a hard time of it, but in India kings must step aside for an aged woman to pass, so great is the respect in which they are held. He affirmed that some of the most beautiful portions of the Vedas, the Hindu bible, were written by women, but that there was no other bible in this world in which they had any part.

Considerable time was given to refuting the statement, which he characterized as untrue, in regard to the cruelty practised to widows in India, the speaker referring in the course of his remarks to the zenana widows, who have been for some time the objective point of Christian missionaries from other countries. Marriage is an institution very safely guarded and, in addition to the law that a Brahmin must not marry a relative, none are allowed to marry who are known to have such a disease as consumption or any incurable physical ill. The strict rules of caste which prevent a person from drinking from the same glass as another, and other kindred regulations, although [not] part of the religion, were excellent in their result on the physical condition of a country, numbering 285 millions, in the prevention of the spread of contagious diseases. The speaker was horrified, as he might well be, at the promiscuous water drinking seen in railroad trains and stations in this country. The children are, first of all, taught kindness to all living beings and so thoroughly is this training that the smallest child instinctively turns aside from stepping on a worm. A strange thought that among these so called heathen there is no need of the society with the long name which often fails in its mission in Christian lands.* The guest of a house, that is, a man who comes to the door and says, "I am hungry," is God's own image to the Hindu and is treated with the utmost kindness and consideration, being fed before the master and mistress of the establishment.

The speaker alluded sadly to the poverty of his country, for, while the upper caste live in comfort, there are millions whose only food is dried flowers, and who are so low in the scale of existence that they have hardly an identity, and are pitiful objects in the plane of existence. He hinted quite forcibly that food and education would be better than the sermons which Christians and Mohammedans had been throwing at them for the last hundred years. Many of the simple and primitive customs of this peculiar people were told with naivete and innocence that was refreshing in this age when words are used to conceal thoughts. He said there was no flirting or coquetting between their young men and maids, and that the latter did not strut forth into public places with all their bravery [finery?] on for the purpose of securing a husband, all of which made the inhabitants of this great and glorious republic wonder if something were not slightly rotten in the state of Denmark. It is well to see both sides of the shield in order to be able to decide with an unprejudiced eye, and many of the listeners went away quite puzzled in mind at hearing some of their pet American customs arraigned by a Hindu and a heathen.

The address was a most interesting one and was listened to with deep attention by all present. At the close many [questions] were presented to the thoughtful monk, who wasted very few words in social flourishes or unmeaning talk. He seemed much interested in Dr. Bowker, the only one in the audience who had ever visited the strange land which was centuries old before this republic was born.

THE BRAHMAN MONK
(New Discoveries, Vol. 2, pp. 68-71.)

Swami Vivekananda the Guest of the Woman's Club

(Of which no verbatim transcript is available Cf. the preceding American newspaper report, "Lecture by Hindoo monk" of the Lawrence Evening Tribune (pp. 463-66), for other highlights of the same lecture.)

[Lawrence American and Andover Advertiser, May 18, 1894]

HE POINTS OUT THE BETTER PHASES OF BRAHMANISM.

AND DELIVERS A POINTED MESSAGE TO CHRISTIANS.

Swami Vivekananda, the Brahman monk addressed a most interested audience Tuesday night in Library Hall under the auspices of the Lawrence Woman's Club.

Miss Wetherbee introduced the speaker and prepared the way for a cordial reception which American courtesy rarely fails to give a distinguished visitor from another nation.

Miss Wetherbee wisely referred to him as a prominent personality at the World's Parliament of Religions, also to the strong impression made by him at the World's fair. . . .

His Iterations

. . . In his own country, in his own class, he addresses all women as mother. The Brahmin is educated thus to think of women as mother and a man may not marry his mother. In that country the mother instinct is developed in woman; in this he thought the wife instinct was cultivated, and the most beautiful thing in his lecture was his tribute to the mother, and not unnoticed was the reference to the kindness of heart of the little Hindoo child which would instinctively cause him to turn aside from his path rather than crush a worm.

The Subject of Marriage formed a large part of his lecture. Among the high classes, called Aryans, women think of marriage as indecent [?]. A widow is not expected to ever marry again. A man who never marries, is highly praised, and indeed worshipped, but should he marry then in the minutes all would be changed. He who does not marry is looked upon as high-minded, as holy and spiritual.

Among the Aryans no money is paid in marriage [?], and as female children are largely in the majority it is one of most difficult things for a father to marry his daughter, and from the time of her birth he racks his brains to find her a husband.

With the two lower classes the rules in regard to marriage are all different. Widows marry again and wives and husbands if desirous become divorced. When a child is born an astrologer comes and casts a horoscope of the child, he delineates the future character of the boy or girl — it is decided whether he is manly or a devilish child; if devilish — he is married to one next in caste, and thus is obtained a minute chance of bettering the condition of the devilish child.

The matter of marriage is not left to the decision of the child as in that case he might marry because [he was] in love with a good nose or good eyes and so in having his own way would spoil the whole thing. The fact was emphasised that only the higher classes think of a and of worshiping God instead of thinking of marriage. He spoke of the pitiful condition of the lower classes, their poverty and their ignorance. Millions and millions are [un]able to write their name and yet he said:

We are all preaching sermons into them, when their hands are reaching out for bread. Poverty is so extreme in the lower classes that fifty cents a month is the average income of a Hindoo. Millions live on one poor meal a day and millions subsist on wild flowers for food.

He spoke of the idea being prevalent that there were no scholars among the women of India and stated that this was an error as many women of the Brahmins were married but became scholars, and with evident pride he referred to the fact that in no nation could one line be found that had been written by a woman excepting his own country alone where many beautiful things in their Bible had been written by women.

In Any Bible

Swami Vivekananda did not fail to inform the audience in English words which could not be misunderstood, that the effort to raise his people by teaching them the Christian religion was a thankless task. He said:

We have seen the Greek and the Persian come to us — we have seen the Spaniard with guns come to make us Christians, still we are Hindoos and thus we shall remain.

Had Vivekananda used all the power of his flashing eyes and his expressive voice it would have been a most dramatic speech when he said:

I dare here in America to say that we of India shall stand by our religion.

He said our customs were good for us and we were welcome to them. He stood before us as he has before many a cultured American audience — he, the learned exponent of the Brahman religion, the only Hindoo who has ever come to this country to tell us — as forcibly as he dared and as politely as he could and yet be forcible, — to say no more to the poor Hindoo but to be so very kind as to mind our own business.

After the lecture many of the audience gladly availed themselves of the opportunity offered by Mr. and Mrs. Young to meet Vivekananda at their residence where he has been entertained and has proven himself to be a most delightful guest.

A defense of Mahomet [sic] by a Hindu to a Christian audience; the lesson that all prophets are to be revered and their teachings studied reverently; that the followers of these teachers should not confound for us by their behavior the revelation made from God to man by prophecy — was the theme at Greenacre yesterday.

Clear thought and statement patiently corrected the crude and superficial adverse criticism and comment that had been made concerning the Eastern belief — reincarnation. The statement was masterful, because simple, and was brought home by illustrations familiar and commonplace. This was followed by a nobly eloquent plea for the judicial spirit in judging the history of the time and the faith of Mahomet himself and the service done the human race by the essentials of this faith as a prophet of God. Men and women present, many of whom fear the heathen, were moved as they tell us Wendell Phillips (American orator and reformer (1811-1884).) was wont to move the hard hearts to consider the sin of slavery.

Scorn, wit and intellect did noble service in all gentleness and dignity in this appeal that the defects, the horrors, of each and all religions should be put one side that the essentials common to all — the immortality of the soul, one God, the Father and his prophets sacred, each, to some division of the human family, and each having truth to give needful to all — should be recognized and revered to salvation.

The speaker, Swami Vivekananda, gave what only a great soul is capable of giving. It was an hour never to be forgotten. This man brought those present into the light of truth, whatever their prejudice and training, as Phillips Brooks united Unitarian and Episcopalianism, and all who love the good and true came to hold him for their bishop. So this Hindu, in his constructive thought, when he will give it, can make the power of the prophets known to us by his own presence.

(Vide the notes from discourses delivered at Greenacre, Maine, entitled "The Religion of India", in this volume of the Complete Works (pp. 267-71.)

Under the Swami's famous pine at Greenacre, Vivekananda said:

"I am neither body nor changes of the body; nor am I senses nor objects of the senses. I am Existence Absolute. Bliss Absolute. Knowledge Absolute. I am It. I am It.

"I am neither death nor fear of death; nor was I ever born, nor had I parents. I am Existence Absolute. Bliss Absolute. Knowledge Absolute. I am It. I am It.

"I am not misery nor have I misery. I am not enemy nor have I enemies. I am Existence Absolute. Bliss Absolute. Knowledge Absolute. I am It. I am It.

"I am without form, without limit, beyond space, beyond time; I am in everything, I am the basis of the universe — everywhere am I. I am Existence Absolute. Bliss Absolute. Knowledge Absolute. I am It. I am It."

THE NONSENSE OF NATIONS

(New Discoveries, Vol. 2, pp. 154-155.)

[Boston Evening Transcript, August 15, 1894]

A short résumé is given below of the last of the talks of Vivekananda under the pines at Eliot, (Of which no verbatim transcript is available. Vide "The Religion of India" — notes from discourses delivered at Greenacre, Maine — in this volume of the Complete Works (pp. 267-71).) in the temple of the gods, to paraphrase Bryant's (William Cullen Bryant (1794–1878).) line —

"The groves were God's first Temple."

What is the nation? What is law? We have laws only that we may become outlaws (above law).

There is the freedom of the soul; through this we know the freedom of law. I am of the nation of those who seek the liberty of the soul. I am of the nation of those who worship God.

The divine ones of God are all my Masters. I learn of your Christ in learning of Krishna, of Buddha, in learning of Mohamet. I worship God alone. "I am existence absolute, bliss absolute, Knowledge Absolute." I condemn nothing that I find in nation, state or religion, finding God in all. Our growth is not from evil to good, but from good to better, and so on and on. I learn from all that is called evil or good. The nation and all such nonsense may go. It is love, love, love God and my brother.

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA ARRIVES IN BALTIMORE HIS VIEWS ON RELIGION

Swami Vivekananda, a Brahmin high priest of India, arrived in Baltimore last night, and is the guest of Rev. Walter Vrooman. . . .

To an American reporter last night Swami Vivekananda said:

I have been very favorably impressed with American institutions during my stay in this country. My time has been divided between four cities — Chicago, New York, Boston and Detroit. I never heard of Chicago when in India, but I had frequently heard of Baltimore. The main criticism I have to pass on America is that you have too little religion here. In India they have too much. I think the world would be better if some of India's surplus of religion could be sent over here, while it would be to India's profit if its people could have some of America's industrial advancement and civilization. I am a believer in all religions. I think there is truth in my religion; I think there is truth in your religion. It is the same truth in all religions applying itself through various channels to the same end. I think the great need of the world is less law, and more godly men and women. . . .

PRIEST SWAMI IN TOWN

[Baltimore News, October 13, 1894]

A High Caste Hindoo Visiting in Baltimore

HIS GORGEOUS GARB ATTRACTS MUCH ATTENTION IN THE LOBBY AT THE RENNERT — HE WHISTLES AND INDULGES IN EAST INDIAN WIT — HE COMES TO BALTIMORE ON A TOUR OF THE COUNTRY AND WILL SPEAK AT THE LYCEUM TOMORROW NIGHT.

Swami Vivekananda, High Priest of the Hindoos, walked into the lobby of the Hotel Rennert this forenoon attired in a flaming red cloak and a gaudy yellow turban that made him the centre of all eyes. . . .

His Idea of Humor

Swami Vivekananda has the sense of humor about him. He was talking this morning about the Food Show, which he intends to visit. He says he doesn't know much about food except to swallow it, and that is a very representative specimen of the wit of Ormus (Hormuz, or Ormuz, an ancient Iranian town.) and of Ind.

Another time he spoke of women's rights and said laughingly that women had more rights the world over than they were credited with having. When he changed his black coat, before going to the Rennert, and put on the cardinal red garment with the yellow turban he came out of his room smiling, and said:

"A transformation!"

The High Priest can whistle and has enough music in his soul to start the tunes in class-meeting if he were Methodist instead of Hindoo. He whistled a couple of strains in his room this morning for a reporter of The News. It was not "Daisy Bell" nor yet "Sweet Marie," and must have been some sort of a heathen Hindoo jingle. . . .

Views on Topics of the Day

Swami is traveling around the country, as he says, lecturing and studying American institutions, but he seems not to have got much into the pith of American sociology, for he knows nothing of such questions as European immigration, divorce, the race problem, etc., which are worrying the economists of the land.

He is, however, posted on Oriental immigration, and says the United States has no right to bar out the Chinese. He says the law of love must prevail and force must yield. He predicts the downfall of any nation that uses force. He says also that the United States should open her doors to the world. He believes the Southern part of the continent should be filled with Hindoos and Chinese.

"There is no such thing as divorce in India," he said;

our law does not allow it. Our women are more limited in their sphere than the women of America. Some of them are as highly educated. They are entering the medical profession to some extent now. I see no reason why American women should not vote.

He evaded a question as to the position of Hindoo women in their homes and their treatment by their husbands. It may be that he does not know much about it. He is not a married man. Priests of his caste do not marry.

He mentioned two things which he said had impressed him in America. One was the absence of poverty in the country at large, and the other was the unusual prevalence of ignorance in the South.

Likes the Elevator

When he went to the elevator at the Rennert he said:

There is an American institution which we do not have to any extent in India. I like it very much.

A lady was just coming off the elevator. She was somewhat startled by the red and yellow costume of the priest, but his imperturbable countenance gave no sign of consciousness of the attention he attracted.

His address tomorrow night at the Lyceum will be mainly introductory of himself and explanatory of the Hindoo nation. He will speak briefly, but will remain in Baltimore and speak more at length a week from tomorrow night.

A WISE MAN AMONG US

[Baltimore Sunday Herald, October 14, 1894]

Visit of a Distinguished Hindoo Priest to This City

HE IS A GUEST OF THE VROOMAN BROTHERS AND IS INTERESTED IN THE ESTABLISHMENT OF AN INTERNATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF RELIGIONS — HIS GORGEOUS GARB.

.....

. . . Mr. Vivecananda conversed with a Sunday Herald reporter, speaking English with ease and with an accent similar to that of an educated Italian. He displayed the greatest familiarity with the institutions of this country, religious, political and social.

Mr. Vivecananda came to Baltimore at the invitation of the Vrooman brothers, Hiram, Carl and Walter, and while in this city will be their guest. Rev. Hiram Vrooman was seen at his residence, 1122 North Calvert Street, yesterday, and talked freely in reference to the visit of the distinguished guest.

"Mr. Vivecananda," he said, "is one of the most intelligent men I have ever met. He came to this city at our invitation, and while here will confer with us in reference to the founding of the international university, which it is proposed to establish as an outcome of the World's Congress of Religions, which was such an interesting feature of the World's Fair. This university is one of Mr. Vivecananda's pet ideas, and has the full sympathy of myself and my brothers, and also a number of gentlemen of wealth and position, including several religions. Among its promoters are members of the Roman Catholic and Hebrew religions. The idea of the university is education in general religion. . . .

"One of Mr. Vivecananda's ideas in the establishing of the university is that it may serve to educate a superior kind of missionary for work in India. While he is steadfast to his own religious belief, he wishes that the present system of sending ignorant men as missionaries to India may be discontinued and men sent there who can teach the Christian religion from an elevated standpoint. In this wish he is animated only by a desire for the good of general religion. . . .

"Mr. Vivecananda told me that his father was a great believer in the Lord Jesus, as he called Him, and that when a boy he had read in the Gospel of St. John the thrilling description of the crucifixion of the Savior and wept over it. He will remain in this city for several weeks. To-morrow evening he will deliver a brief address at our meeting at the Lyceum, and on Sunday week will speak at length at our second meeting on the university plan."

LOVE RELIGION'S ESSENCE

(Ray and Wanda Ellis, "Swami Vivekananda in Washington D.C.", The Vedanta Kesari, 1991, pp. 370-73.)

Vive Kananda, a Brahmin Monk, Preaches at the People's Church

[Washington Times, Monday, October 29, 1894]

Vive Kananda, the Brahmin monk, spoke to the congregation of the People's Church, No. 423 G Street northwest, at 11:00 a.m. yesterday. (On Sunday, October 28, 1894, Swami Vivekananda delivered two talks at the People's Church, of which there are no verbatim transcripts available. Cf. Complete Works, II: 497-99 for an interview with the Swami given after this morning sermon.) . . . Dr. Kent introduced the monk. . . .

Vive Kananda, coming forward, said as a boy at the university he studied comparative religion. In India are many religions. One-fifth are Mahomedans. A million are Christians. He studied all. He listened to a great Hindoo preacher, and when he had finished, said:

"My brother, have you seen God?"

"The preacher looked up in surprise.

"No."

"How, then, do you know these things are true?"

"My father told me."

"Who told your father?"

"His father," and so on through his ancestors to the clouds.

He heard a Christian preacher of great eloquence. This man told the seeker for truth that if he was not immersed in water at once he was in great danger to be roasted alive. Upon further questions this Christian also, through the records of his books, went back to his ancestors, and so back to the clouds.

The Student Not Satisfied

This did not satisfy the student. He set about praying. He prayed sometimes three days and nights with much weeping and without food. He finally found a man who knew no books, not even to write his own name. This sage was preaching his religion. When asked the old question, he replied:

"Yes, I see God now and I will teach you to see Him."

This man bore the stamp of God in his features. It was the same certificate that came to the man of Nazareth when the dove descended upon Him at Jordan. He made his hearer to believe that God lives and religion is not a mockery.

For twelve years Kananda sat at this man's feet. He was the master. He said one day, "Take up this book." Kananda took up the book and read. It was a calendar. He read in it where the rainfall was foretold. It said that within a certain time so many tons of rain would fall in a certain district. "Now," said the teacher, "close the book and press it." He did so. "Squeeze it very hard." He obeyed. "Did any water come from the book?" "None." So are all books. The true religion is here, at the heart.

The truth is people do not want God. Far from it. Religion is largely fashionable. My lady has a fine parlor, elegant furniture, a piano, beautiful jewelry, well-fitting, costly dresses, a hat that is the latest thing out. She cannot get along without a dash of religion to keep up with her set. There is much of this religion, but it is hypocrisy, and hypocrisy is the root of all evil. This sort of religion is not of God. It is only the shadow. People with such religion sometimes grow to be in earnest and talk about religious things as if they had some reality. So talking about religion without having it these people fall to quarreling and fighting. "Mine, mine," is the cry, never "thine, thine." "My religion is best." "No, mine," and so they fight as did the savage tribes about their rival gods, Mambo and Jumbo. Competition in religion, as in business, is the bane of all.

Love Abideth

Your own Paul says "all else shall perish, but love abideth." That is the great truth. That false doctrine that my nation shall be aggrandized at the cost of every other nation is not of God.

A youth went to his master and said, "I want to know God." The master paid little attention, but the youth persisted and would not be put off. Finally one day the master said: "Let us go down to the river and have a bath." So they went down and the youth plunged in. The master followed and falling upon him held him under. The youth struggled, but the master would not let him up. Finally, when he seemed to be almost dead he desisted, drew him from the water and revived him. "What did you most want when in the water?" the master asked. "Breath," was the answer. "Then you don't want God."

So it is with men, what do you want? You want breath, without it you cannot live; you want bread, without it you cannot live; you want a house, without it you cannot live. When you want God as you want these things, He manifests himself to you. It is a great thing to want God.

A majority of men and women in this world want the enjoyments of sense. They have been told that there is a God afar off and if they will send him a cartload of words he will help them get these good things of this world. But in every land there are a few persons who want God. They would be one with the essence of good and truth. Religion is not shopkeeping. Love asks no return; love begs not; love gives.

Religion is not an outgrowth of fear; religion is joyous. It is the spontaneous outburst of the songs of birds and the beautiful sight of the morning. It is an expression of the spirit. It is from within an expression of the free and noble spirit.

If misery is religion, what is hell? No man has a right to make himself miserable. To do so is a mistake; it is a sin. Every peal of laughter is a prayer sent to God.

To go back, what I have learned is this: Religion is not in books, not in forms, not in sects, not in nations; religion is in the human heart. It is engraved there. The proof of it is in ourselves.

I make two points. There are sects. Let them go on increasing in number till each is a sect by himself. None can see God exactly as another; each must believe in Him and serve Him as he sees Him. Then I want a harmonizing of the sects. Individuality is not in a fight with universality.

Let each for himself and all together fight evils. If you have a power of eight and I a power of four, and you come and destroy me, you have lost at least four. You have only four left to conquer evil. It is love alone that can conquer hatred. If there is power in hate there is infinitely more power in love.

THE HINDOO OPTIMISTIC

(Ray and Wanda Ellis, "Swami Vivekananda in Washington D.C., The Vedanta Kesari, 1991, pp. 369-70.)

[Washington Times, November 2, 1894]

Vive Kananda Compares Religions and Talks of Reincarnation

(The untranscribed lecture advertised as "Karma and Reincarnation", delivered at the People's Church, Sunday, October 28, 1894.)

Optimism is the feature of the belief of the Aryas or Hindoos as distinguished from Western religions, according to the Brahman monk, Vive Kananda, who spoke to a fair-sized audience at Metzerott Hall last night. His subject was reincarnation. Much of his lecture was devoted to comparison of Hindoo with Christian doctrine.

To illustrate the tenet of reincarnation he compared the human body to a river. Each drop of water passes on and is replaced by another. The entire body of water, he observed, changes wholly in a few moments, but we call it the same river. In the same way the particles of the body are constantly replaced by others and no two days do we have the same body, yet we preserve our identity.

The spirit remains so, the Hindoos believe, that the person may have a different and more sudden and violent change in death and yet pass on in its existence to some other place in the universe, to some other planet or star, and then take on a body of flesh again or of some other kind.

He said there ought to be no talk of sin. The mistakes of the past ought to be used only for guidance in the future, never to be moaned over. When the lesson is learned from them they should be forgotten.

"Strike a light," he said, "sit not in darkness and sorrow. Do always better and be happy." . . .

VIVEKANANDA'S LECTURE

(New Discoveries, Vol. 2, p. 203.)

[Baltimore News, November 3, 1894]

Swami Vivekananda, Hindoo high priest, lectured last night at Harris' Academy of Music Concert Hall. His subject was "India and Its Religion." (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) He explained the belief of the various Eastern religions, including his own, which is Brahminism. He ridiculed the idea of sending missionaries of so many different faiths to heathen lands, and said that the various religions engaged in missionary work should be united. Mr. Vivekananda explained that the Hindoo religion is optimistic and not pessimistic. His main point was the doctrine of reincarnation, which means that all have existed before and will live again in other forms. The proceeds of the lecture will be applied to the work of founding an international college.

Then It will Come Out All Right, Says Swami Vivekananda

The English people were given a raking over last night by Swami Vivekananda of India, who lectured to a throng at the Pouch mansion. (Of which no verbatim transcript is available. Cf. the newspaper report "Some Customs of the Hindus", Complete Works, II: 515-17, for a complementary report of the same lecture.) He said that the English used three B's — Bible, brandy and bayonets — in civilizing India. The preacher went ahead with the Bible to get the lay of the fortifications. The English, he said, had exaggerated the social conditions of India in their writings. They got their ideas from the Pariahs, who were a sort of human scavenger. No self-respecting Hindoo, he declared, would associate with an Englishman. The story about widows throwing themselves under the chariot of Juggernaut he declared to be a myth. Child marriage and caste he agreed were bad. Caste, he said, originated with the mechanics' guilds. What India needed was to be let alone, and it would come out all right.

ABOU BEN ADHEM'S IDEAL

[New York World, December 8, 1895]

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA THE YOGI, COMES FROM BOMBAY, PREACHING LOVE FOR HIS FELLOW-MAN.

To find an ascetic of the Highest Eastern type clad in a red and flowing Hindoo cloak over unmistakable American trousers is necessarily a surprise. But in other things besides dress is Swami Vivekananda astonishing. In the first place he declares that your religion or any one else's religion is just as good as his own, and if you should happen to be a Christian or Mussulman, Baptist or Brahmin, atheist, agnostic or Catholic, it will make no difference to him. All that he asks is that you act righteously according to your lights.

The Yogi, with his peculiar notions of dress and worship, arrived Friday on the Brittanic. He went to No. 228 West Thirty—ninth street. While in New York he will lecture upon metaphysics and psychology, and will also disseminate in a general way his ideas on the universal religion which asks no man to take another by the throat because his creed happens to be different. "Let me help my fellowman; that is all I seek," he says.

"There are four general types of men," he says, the rational, the emotional, the mystical and the worker. For them we must have their proper worship. There comes the rational man, who says, "I care not for this form of worship. Give me the philosophical, the rational — that I can appreciate." So for the rational man is the rational, philosophic worship.

There comes the worker. He says: "I care not for the worship of the philosopher. Give me work to do for my fellow-men." So for him is made a worship, as for the mystical the emotional. In the religion for all these men are the elements of their faith.

"No," said the Swami, very softly, in answer to a question,

I do not believe in the occult. If a thing be unreal it is not. What is unreal does not exist. Strange things are natural phenomena. I know them to be matters of science. Then they are not occult to me. I do not believe in occult societies. They do no good, and can never do good.

In fact, the Swami belongs to no society, cult or creed. His is a religion which compasses all worship, all classes, all beliefs.

Swami, who is a very dark-featured and good-looking young fellow, explained his creed yesterday in remarkably pure English. One forgot when he spoke that an orthodox choker peered over the Bombay robe which in turn scantily concealed the American trousers. One saw instead a winning smile and a pair of deep, lustrous black eyes.

Swami believes in reincarnation. He believes that with the purification of the body the soul rises to a higher condition, and as the purification through matter continues the spirit rises, until released from further migration and is joined with the universal spirit.

Such a man as the Jew-baiter [Hermann?] Ahlwardt, who has just arrived in this country, the Swami cannot understand. "You say," he said, that he comes here to preach hate against his fellow-men. Is he not of wrong mind? Is he allowed to spread this hate? The doctors should examine his brain to find out the wrong.

The peculiar name of the Yogi signifies, literally, "The bliss of discrimination." He is the first Indian Yogi who ever came to this country. He comes from Bombay.

THE DOCTRINE OF THE SWAMI

(New Discoveries, Vol. 3, pp. 340-41.)

[New York Herald, January 19, 1896]

The following is a brief sketch of the Swami's fundamental teachings: (A summary of the Swami's teachings taken from what appears to be a written statement.)

Every man must develop according to his own nature. As every science has its methods so has every religion. Methods of attaining the end of our religion are called Yoga, and the different forms of Yoga that we teach are adapted to the different natures and temperaments of men. We classify them in the following way, under four heads:

- (1) Karma Yoga — The manner in which a man realizes his own divinity through works and duty.
- (2) Bhakti Yoga — The realization of a divinity through devotion to and love of a personal God.
- (3) Rajah Yoga — The realization of divinity through control of mind.
- (4) Gnana Yoga — The realization of man's own divinity through knowledge.

These are all different roads leading to the same center — God. Indeed, the varieties of religious belief are an advantage, since all faiths are good, so far as they encourage man to religious life. The more sects there are the more opportunities there are for making successful appeals to the divine instinct in all men.

"UNIVERSAL RELIGION"

(New Discoveries, Vol. 3, pp. 475-79.)

Vivekananda's Lecture on the Creeds of the World

[Hartford Daily Times, February 1, 1896]

A fair house greeted the Hindu monk, Vivekananda, last night. . . . He was introduced by Mr. C. B. Patterson, in some fitting remarks. . . . His subject last night was "The Ideal, or Universal Religion". ("The Ideal of a Universal Religion" was delivered January 31, 1896, of which there is no verbatim transcript available.)

Throughout the universe there are two forces constantly at work, the centrifugal and centripetal, positive and negative, action and reaction, attraction and repulsion. We find love and hatred, good and evil. What plane is stronger than the spiritual plane, the plane of religion? The world furnishes no hate stronger than that engendered by religion, and no love stronger. No teachings have brought more unhappiness into the world, nor more happiness. The beautiful teachings of Buddha have been carried across the Himalayas, at a height of 20,000 feet, by his disciples. Five hundred years later came the teachings of your beautiful Christ, and these have been carried on the wings of the wind. On the other hand, look at your beautiful earth deluged in blood in the interest of propagandism and religion. As soon as a man comes into the company of those who do not believe as he does, his very nature changes. It is his own opinions he fights for, not religion. He becomes the very embodiment of cruelty and fanaticism. His religion is all right, but when he starts out to fight for his own selfish opinions he is all wrong. People are up in arms about the Armenian and the Turkish butcheries, but their consciences don't say a word when the butcheries are committed in the interest of their own religion. In human beings we find a curious mixture of God, man, and devil, and religion stirs up the latter more than anything else. When we all think alike, the God side of our nature comes out; but let there be a clash of opinions, and presto, change! the devil has the floor. This has been so from time immemorial, and will be so always. In India we know what fanaticism means, for that country for the last thousand years has been the especial field of missionaries. But above the clash of opinions, and the fight for religions, there comes the voice of peace. For 3,000 years efforts have been made to bring the different religions into harmony. But we know how this effort has failed. And it always will fail, and it ought to fail. We have a network of words about love, peace, and universal brotherhood, which were meant all right originally, but we repeat them like parrots, and to us they mean nothing. Is there a universal philosophy for the world? Not yet. Each religion has its own creeds and dogmas and insists upon propagating them. You can't make one religion for the whole world. That must not be. The Armenians say it will be all right if you will all become Armenians. And the Pope of Rome says: "O yea, it is a very easy thing. If you will all become Roman Catholics, it will be all right." And so with the Greek church, and the Protestant church, and all the rest. There can never be one religion only, it would be death to all other religions. If every one thought alike there would be no more thought to think. If everybody looked alike, what monotony! Look alike and think alike — what could we do but sit down and die in despair? We can't live like a row of chipmunks; variation belongs to human life. One God, one religion is an old sing—song, but there's danger in it. But, thank God, it can never be. Start out with your long purse, and your guns and cannon, to push your propagandism. And suppose you succeed for a while? In ten years your so—called unity would be split into fragments. That is why there are so many sects. Take the largest religion, the Buddhist. They try to help the world to be better. Next come the Christians, with [a] good many things to teach. They have three Gods in one, and one in three, and one of the three took on the sins of the world and was killed. Whoever doesn't believe in him, goes to a very hot place. And Mohammed, whoever doesn't believe in him will have his skin burnt off, and then a fresh one will be furnished to be burnt, that he may know that Allah is the all-powerful. All religions came originally from the Orient. These great teachers or incarnations come in different forms. The Hindus have ten incarnations; the first was a fish, and so on, down to the fifth, and from there, they were all men. The Buddhists say: "We don't care to have so many incarnations; we want only one." The Christians say: "We will have only one, and this is Christ." And they say he is the only one. But the Buddhist says they have the start in time; their great teacher came five hundred years earlier. And the Mohammedans say theirs came last, and therefore is the best. Each one loves his own, just as a mother loves her own child. The Buddhist never sees any fault in Buddha; the Christian never sees any fault in Christ, and the Mohammedan never sees any fault in Mohammed. The Christian says their God took the form of a dove and came down, and that they say is not mythology, but history. The Hindu says his god is manifested in a cow and that he says is not superstition, but history. The Jew thinks his Holy of Holies can be contained in a box or chest, with an angel on guard on either side. But the Christian's God in the form of a beautiful man or woman, is a horrible idol. "Break it down!" they say. One man's prophet did such and such wonderful things, while others call it only superstition. So where's your unity? Then there are your rituals. The Roman Catholic puts on his robe, as I have mine. He has his bells and candles and holy water, and says these are good and necessary, but what you do, he says is only superstition. We can never upset all this and have but one religion for the very life of thought is the differentiation of thought. We must learn to love those who think exactly opposite to us. We have humanity for the background, but each must have his own individuality and his own thought. Push the sects forward and forward till each man and woman are sects unto themselves. We must learn to love the man who differs from us in opinion. We must learn that differentiation is the life of thought. We have one common goal, and that is the perfection of the human soul, the god within us. Religion is the great force to help unfold the god within man. But we have to unfold in our own way. We can't all assimilate the same kind of food. Let your aspirations be of the highest, and your inspirations will be in harmony with reason and all known laws, and the Lord will always be with you.

VIVEKANANDA'S PHILOSOPHY

(New Discoveries, Vol. 4, p. 20.)

[Tribune, March 5, 1896]

He Would Have Many Kinds of Religion

Vivekananda, the Hindoo missionary, lectured at the Hotel Richelieu last night.* The parlors of the private hotel were filled to overflowing with a crowd of ladies. When Vivekananda arrived at the hotel it was with difficulty he worked his way in. He went upstairs and very shortly came down again robed in a purple gown, caught about the waist with a purple cord.

Vivekananda in his talk said that there were various religions and each believer thought his religion the only true religion. It was a mistake, he said, to suppose that all should have the same religion.

"If all were of the same religious opinion," said he, there would be no religion. No sooner does a religion start than it breaks into pieces. The process is for the religion to go on dividing until each man has his own religion, until each man has thought out his own thoughts and carved out for himself his own religion.

Vivekananda will remain in Detroit about two weeks and will give classes every morning at 11 o'clock and every evening at 8 o'clock at the hotel. . . .

VIVEKANANDA LECTURED IN TEMPLE BETH EL

Spoke on the Ideal of a Universal Religion He Will Probably Leave Tuesday

Temple Beth El was crowded to the doors last night when Swami Vivekananda delivered his address upon "The Ideal of a universal religion." (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) The time announced for the service was 8 o'clock, but the congregation began to assemble at the temple early in the evening so that the doors had to be opened at 6:25 p.m. They were closed at 7 o'clock and the hundreds that arrived after that time had to be turned away.

We all hear about universal brotherhood, and how societies stand up and want to preach this. But to what does it amount? As soon as you make a sect you protest against equality, and thus it is no more, said Swami.

Unity in variety is the plan of the universe. Just as we are all men, yet we are all separate. We find then, that if by the idea of a universal religion is meant one set of doctrines should be believed by all mankind, it is impossible, it can never be, any more than there will be a time when all faces will be the same. We must not seek that all of us should think alike, like Egyptian mummies in a museum, looking at each other without thought to think. It is this difference of thought, this differentiation, losing of the balance of thought, which is the very soul of our progress, the soul of thought.

Swami will probably leave Tuesday [March 17]. At the close of his address last night he thanked the people of Detroit for the kind reception tendered him and his philosophy.

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA COMPARES TEACHINGS OF HINDU WISDOM AND WESTERN RELIGIONS

The Swami Vivekananda, who will be remembered as the Hindu delegate to the World's Parliament of Religions, is in the city as the March class lecturer at the Procopeia, 45 St. Botolph street. (There are no verbatim transcripts available of these classes.) The Swami has been doing some most valuable and successful work in systematic class lecturing in New York, with constantly increasing audiences, during the past two winters, and comes to Boston at a most opportune time.

The Swami gives the following description of his work. In explanation of the term sannyasin, he said, Vide "The Sannyasin", [Complete Works, V: 260].

In giving some idea of his work and its methods, the Swami says he left the world because he had a deep interest in religion and philosophy from his childhood, and Indian books teach renunciation as the highest ideal to which a man can aspire.

The Swami['s] teaching, as he expresses it, is my own interpretation of our ancient books in the light which my master (a celebrated Hindu sage) shed upon them. I claim no supernatural authority. Whatever in my teachings may appeal to the highest intelligence and be accepted by thinking men, the adoption of that will be my reward. All religions have for their object the teaching of devotion, or knowledge, or activity, in a concrete form. Now, the philosophy of Vedanta is the abstract science which embraces all these methods, and this is what I teach, leaving each one to apply it to his own concrete form. I refer each individual to his own experience, and where reference is made to books, the latter are procurable, and may be studied for each one by himself.

The Swami teaches no authority from hidden beings, through visible objects, any more than he claims learning from hidden books or MSS. He believes no good can come from secret societies.

Truth stands on its own authority, and truth can bear the light of day.

He teaches only the Self, hidden in the heart of every individual, and common to all. A handful of strong men, knowing that Self, and living in its light, would revolutionize the world, even today, as has been the case of single strong men before, each in his day.

His attitude towards Western religions is briefly this. He propounds a philosophy which can serve as a basis to every possible religious system in the world, and his attitude towards all of them is one of extreme sympathy. His teaching is antagonistic to none. He directs his attention to the individual, to make him strong, to teach him that he himself is divine, and he calls upon men to make themselves conscious of divinity within. His hope is to imbue individuals with the teachings to which he has referred, and to encourage them to express these to others in their own way; let them modify them as they will; he does not teach them as dogmas; truth, at length, must inevitably prevail. . . .

OUT OF THE EAST

(New Discoveries, Vol. 4, pp. 60-62.)

[Boston Daily Globe, March 24, 1896]

Message Brought by the Swami Vivekananda — in His Country the Gods Are "Bright Ones" That Help

The Swami Vivekananda is enjoying as great a degree of popularity on his present visit to Boston as he did when society, fashionable, intellectual and faddist, went wild over him on his former visit. . . .

. . . A New York paper published an interview with the Swami, in which he is reported to have expressed the opinion that in Boston "the women are all faddists, all fickle, merely bent on following something new and strange." (Cf. Complete Works, V: 413.) But Swami Vivekananda says that this is an exaggerated and distorted presentation of a criticism which he made upon all American women, that they were too superficial and too prone to follow the sensational and to change from one thing to another. This he says his observation has forced upon him. The American women are intellectual, but they are not steady, serious and sincere.

The first of the Swami's lectures was delivered before an audience of 400 people in the Allen gymnasium, Saturday evening on "The Science of Work," and the second one of the course on "Devotion"* was given in the same place, the hall being filled and a number turned away unable to gain admittance.

The lecture was exceedingly interesting and the speaker's manner was very magnetic. In his country, said the Swami, the gods were the "bright ones" who gave help to men and received help from them. The gods are only human beings who are somewhat elevated after death, but God, the highest, is never prayed to or asked for help. He is given only love and worship without anything being asked in return. There are two phases of this God, the one, the abstract God behind the substance of the universe, and the other the personal God who is seen through human intellect and given attributes by it.

The love which is given to God never takes, but always gives, and it does not depend on anything. The worshiper does not pray for health, money or any other thing, but is content with the lot apportioned to him.

People who ask about religion from mere motives of curiosity become faddists, they are always looking for something new and their brains degenerate until they become old rags. It is a religious dissipation with them.

It is not the place that makes heaven or hell, but the mind. Love knows no fear, there can be no love where it is. In love of any sort external objects are only suggested by something within — it is one's own ideal projected, and God is the highest ideal that can be conceived of.

Hatred of the world does not drive good men from it, but the world slips away from the great and saintly. The world, the family and social life, are all training grounds, that is all.

When one realizes that God is love, it does not matter what his other attributes are, that is the only essential.

The more a man throws himself away, the more God comes in, hence self-abnegation, which is the secret of all religion and morality.

Too many people bring down their ideals. They want a comfortable religion, but there is none such. It is all self-surrender and upward striving.

SAID A UNIVERSAL RELIGION IS IMPOSSIBLE

(New Discoveries, Vol. 4, pp.64-65.)

[Boston Evening Transcript, March 27, 1896]

Swami Vivekananda told the large audience that crowded the Allen Gymnasium to hear him speak on the "Ideal of a Universal Religion," last night, (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) that the recent Parliament of Religions at Chicago proved, to that date, that universal religion was impossible. "Nature," he said, is wiser than we have thought her to be. It is competition of ideas, the clash of thought, that keeps thought alive. Sects have always been antithetical, and always will be splitting into little varieties of themselves. And the way to get out of this fight of religions is to let the sects go on subdividing.

There is no unity in the three elements of religion — philosophy [theology?], mythology and ceremony. Each theologian wants unity, but his idea of unity is the adjustment of all other creeds to his own. I agree with the old prophets as long as they agree with me. But there is an element of religion that towers above all; that is, philosophy. The philosopher seeks truth, which is one and the same always. And it is acceptable to the four sides of every religious nature — the emotional, mystical, active and philosophical. And he who dares to seek the truth for truth's sake is greatest among men.

FOR UNIVERSAL RELIGION

(New Discoveries, Vol. 4, pp. 81-86.)

[Boston Evening Transcript, March 30, 1896]

THE HINDU SWAMI LECTURES BEFORE SEVERAL SOCIETIES.

The Swami Vivekananda has, during the past few days, conducted a most successful work in connection with the Procopeia. During this time he has given four class lectures for the club itself, with constant audiences of between four and five hundred people, at the Allen Gymnasium, 44, St. Botolph street, two at the house of Mrs. Ole Bull in Cambridge, and one before the professors and graduate students of the philosophical department of Harvard University.

The idea, which brought the Swami to America three years ago as Hindu delegate to the Parliament of Religions, and has been the guiding motive of all his subsequent work, both in America and England, is one which appeals strongly to the people whose creation the parliament was, but the methods which he proposes are peculiarly his own. One of his lectures during the week has been "The Ideal of a Universal Religion," (Though this was one of Swami Vivekananda's recurring subjects, there is no available verbatim transcript of this March 26, 1896 lecture. Cf. Complete Works, II: 375-96.) but a "harmonious religion" would, perhaps, equally meet the case, if, indeed, it would not more adequately express that for which he is striving. The Swami is not a preacher of theory. If there is any one feature of the Vedanta philosophy, which he propounds, which appears especially refreshing, it is its intense capability of practical demonstration. We have become almost wedded to the idea that religion is a sublime theory which can be brought into practice and made tangible for us only in another life, but the Swami shows us the folly of this. In preaching the Divinity of Man he inculcates a spirit of strength into us which will have none of those barriers between this life and actual realization of the sublime that, to the ordinary man, appear as insurmountable.

In discussing the general lines on which it appears to him universal religion can alone be established, he claims for his plan no super-authority. As he says:

I have also my little plan. I do not know whether it will work or not, and I want to present it to you for discussion. In the first place, I would ask mankind to recognize this maxim: "Do not destroy." Iconoclastic reformers do no good to the world. Help, if you can; if you cannot, fold your hands, stand by, and see things go on. Therefore say not a word against any man's convictions, so far as they are sincere. Secondly, take man where he stands, and from thence give him a lift. (Cf. Complete Works, II: 384.)

Unity in variety is the plan of the universe. Just as we are all men, yet we are all separate. As humanity, I am one with you; as Mr. So-and-so, I am different from you. As a man you are separate from woman, but as human beings you are all one; as a living being you are one with animals and all that lives, but as man you are separate. That existence is God, the ultimate unity in this universe. In Him we are all one. We find, then, that if by the idea of a universal religion is meant that one set of doctrines should be believed by all mankind, it is impossible, it can never be, any more than all faces will be the same. Again, if we expect that there will be one universal mythology, that is also impossible; it cannot be. Neither can there be a universal ritual. When this time comes the world will be destroyed, because variety is the first principle of life. What makes us formed beings? Differentiation. Perfect balance will be destruction. (Cf. Complete Works, II: 381-82.)

What then do I mean by the ideal of a universal religion? I do not mean a universal philosophy, or a universal mythology, or a universal ritual, but I mean that this world must go on, wheel within wheel. What can we do? We can make it run smoothly, we can lessen friction, we can grease the wheels, as it were. By what? By recognizing variation. Just as we have recognized unity, by our very nature so we must also recognize variation. We must learn that truth may be expressed in a thousand ways, and each one yet be true. We must learn that the same thing can be viewed from a hundred different standpoints, and yet be the same thing. (Cf. Complete Works, II: 382-83.)

In society we see so many various natures of mankind. A practical generalization will be impossible, but for my purpose I have simply characterized them into four. First, the active man; then the emotional man; then the mystical man, and lastly the philosopher.

To be universal, religion must provide possibility of realizing truth through means suitable to any one of these minds, and a religion which says that through one alone all men must struggle, whether these minds are capable of the struggle or not, must end in agnosticism.

In his lecture on Karma Yoga,* Swami dealt with the science of work. The lecture for the most part analyzed the motives men have in work, and particularly the motive of heaven as a reward for good work on earth. This, said the Swami, is shopkeeping religion. Work alone reaches its highest when it is done absolutely without hope of reward, work for work's sake, and without regard to the consequences.

In discussing Bhakti Yoga,* Devotion, the Swami explained the rationale of a Personal God. This idea of devotion and worship of some being who has to be loved, and who can reflect back the love to man, is universal. The lowest stage of the manifestation of this love and devotion is ritualism, when man wants things that are concrete, and abstract ideas are almost impossible. Throughout the history of the world we find man is trying to grasp the abstract through thought forms, or symbols, and the external manifestations of religion. Bells, music, rituals, books, images come under that head. Man can only think with form and word. Immediately thought comes, form and name flash into the mind with them, so that when we think of God, whether as the Personal God with human shape, or as the Divine Principle, or in any other aspect, we are always thinking of our own highest ideal with some or other form, generally human, because the form of man is the highest of which man can conceive. But, while recognizing this as a necessity of human weakness, and while making proportionate use of rituals, symbols, books and churches, we must always remember that it is very good to be born in a church, but it is very bad to die in a church. If a man dies within the bounds of these forms, it shows that he has not grown, that there has been no uncovering of the real, the Divinity, within him.

True love can be regarded as a triangle. The first angle is, love knows no bargain. So when a man is praying to God, "give me this, and give me that," it is not love. How can it be? "I give you my little prayer, and you give me something in return"; that is mere shopkeeping. The second angle is, love knows no fear. So long as God is regarded as a rewarder or a punisher there can be no love for him. The third angle, the apex, is, love is always the highest ideal. When we have reached the point where we can worship the ideal as the ideal, all arguments and doubts have vanished forever. The ideal can never escape, because it is part of our own nature.

In his lecture at Harvard University, (Cf. "The Vedanta Philosophy", Complete Works, I: 357-65, in which there may be some omissions.) the Swami traced the history, so far as is known, of the Vedanta philosophy, and showed to what extent the Vedas (the Hindu scriptures) are accepted as authoritative; merely as the foundation for the philosophy in so far as they appeal to the reason. He compared the three schools, the Dualists, who acknowledge a supreme being, and a lesser being manifesting in men, but eternally separate from men. Next he described the philosophy of the Qualified nondualists, whose particular idea is that there is a God and there is nature, but that the soul and nature is simply the expansion, or the body of God, just as the body of man is to man's soul. They claim, in support of this theory, that the effect is never different from the cause, but that it is the cause reproduced in another form, and as God, therefore, is the cause of this universe, he is also the effect. The Monists . . . declare that if there is a God, that God must be both the material and the efficient cause of the universe. Not only is he the Creator; but he is also the created. He himself is this universe, apparently; but, in reality, this universe does not exist — it is mere hypnotisation. Differentiation is in name and form only. There is but one soul in the universe, not two, because that which is immaterial cannot be bounded, must be infinite; and there cannot be two infinities, because one would limit the other. The soul is pure, and the appearance of evil is just as a piece of crystal, which is pure in itself, but appears to be variously colored when flowers are placed before it.

In discussing Raja Yoga,* the psychological way to union with God, the Swami expanded upon the power to which the mind can attain through concentration, both in reference to the physical and the spiritual world. It is the one method that we have in all knowledge. From the lowest to the highest, from the smallest worm to the highest sage, they have to use this one method. The astronomer uses it in order to discover the mysteries of the skies, the chemist in his laboratory, the professor in his chair. This is the one call, the one knock, which opens the gates of nature and lets out the floods of light. This is the one key, the only power — concentration. In the present state of our bodies we are so much distracted, the mind is frittering away its energies upon a hundred sorts of things. By scientific control of the forces which work the body this can be done, and its ultimate effect is realization. Religion cannot consist of talk. It only becomes religion when it becomes tangible, and until we strive to feel that of which we talk so much, we are no better than agnostics, for the latter are sincere and we are not.

The Twentieth Century Club had the Swami as their guest Saturday [March 28], and heard an address from him on the "Practical Side of the Vedanta Philosophy." (Vide Complete Works, I: 387-92 and V: 310-11, respectively, for the lecture and the discussion that followed.) He leaves Boston today, and will, within a few days, sail for England, en route for India.

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA
(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, pp. 184-86.)

Lectures on Hindoo Religion and Philosophy

[Los Angeles Times, December 9, 1899]

.....

... The well-known expositor of the Hindoo philosophy, dressed in the yellow robe of the Brahmin caste, spoke in part as follows:*

I come before you, ladies and gentlemen, to bring no new religion. I desire simply to tell you a few points that bind together all religions. I shall touch upon some things in the thought of eastern civilization that will appear strange to you and on others that I hope will appeal to you. All the religions of the world have a backbone of unity. This is the principle of philosophy and of toleration.

Very few people in this country understand what India is. It is a country half as large as the United States and containing 300,000,000 people, speaking a number of different tongues, but all bound together by the ideas of a common religion. By these ideas the Hindoos have made their influence felt through the ages, working gently, silently, patiently, while western civilization has been conquering by force of arms. The future will show which is the more powerful — physical force or the power of ideas. The arts and sciences of the Hindoos have found their way over all the earth — their numerals, their mathematical thought, their ethics. Was it not in India, there and there alone, that the doctrine of love was first preached, and not alone the doctrine of love of one's fellow-men, but of love of every living thing, yea, even of the meanest worm that crawls under our feet. When you begin to study the arts and institutions of India, you become magnetized, fascinated. You cannot get away.

In India, as elsewhere, we find the earliest condition one of division into little tribes. These different tribes had each its different god, its different ceremonial. But in coming in contact with one another, the tribes did not follow the course that western civilization has taken — they did not persecute each other because of these differences, but endeavored to find the germs of common ideas in all the religions. And from this endeavor arose the habit of toleration which is the keynote of the Indian religion. Truth is one, can be but one, though it may be expressed in different language.

Another great difference between eastern and western religion lies in the reception of a philosophical and scientific view of the universe. In the West, agnosticism has been growing in late years, and with the loss of a hope in individual immortality, which the westerner is always desiring and seeking, a note of despair has crept into western thought. Ages ago, the Hindoo realized that the universe was one of law, and that, under law, all change. Therefore, an imperishable individuality is an impossibility. But this thought is not one of despair to the Hindoo. On the contrary — and this is what the westerner can least understand of eastern thought — he longs for freedom, for release from the thralldom of the senses, from the thralldom of pain and the thralldom of pleasure.

Western civilization has sought a personal God and despaired at the loss of belief in such. The Hindoo, too, has sought. But God cannot be known to the external senses. The Infinite, the Absolute, cannot be grasped. Yet although it eludes us, we may not infer its non-existence. It exists. What is it that cannot be seen by the outward eye? The eye itself. It may behold all other things, but itself it cannot mirror. This, then, is the solution. If God may not be found by the outer senses, turn your eye inward and find, in yourself, the soul of all souls. Man himself is the All. I cannot know the fundamental reality, because I am that fundamental reality. There is no duality. This is the solution of all questions of metaphysics and ethics. Western civilization has in vain endeavored to find a reason for altruism. Here it is. I am my brother, and his pain is mine. I cannot injure him without injuring myself, or do ill to other beings without bringing that ill upon my own soul. When I have realized that I myself am the Absolute, for me there is no more death nor life nor pain nor pleasure, nor caste nor sex. How can that which is absolute die or be born? The pages of nature are turned before us like the pages of a book, and we think that we ourselves are turning, while in reality we remain ever the same.

HINDU PHILOSOPHY
(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, pp. 194-95.)

CONCEPTION OF THE UNIVERSE IN DISTANT INDIA

[Los Angeles Times, December 13, 1899]

Swami Vivekananda, the Hindu philosopher, addressed the regular monthly meeting of the Southern California Academy of Sciences at Unity Church last evening. (Cf. the following December 13, 1899 Los Angeles Herald newspaper report on the same lecture (pp. 502-4.) The audience was large and appreciative, and at the end of the lecture a number of questions were asked by members of the audience and answered by the lecturer. . . .

The speaker began with a reference to the mythological tales of the Hindus in which they attempted to explain the origin of the universe, and he told also of the endeavors of the ancients to explain the mysteries which surrounded them.

According to their belief, he said, man's first idea is of himself. His will moves all his members. A child's idea of power is in its will. All movement of the universe has a will behind it. The Hindus believe, said the speaker, that there is but one God, and he a person like the rest of them, but infinitely greater. Their mind is philosophical enough not to admit the existence of two gods, one bad and one good. With them nature is a unit, unity in all existence is the universe, and God is the same as nature.

"There is not a system of philosophy," said the speaker, from that of the ancient Egyptians down to that of the Roman Catholic Church, which does not show traces of the same thought. All forces that exist in the mental and physical world have been resolved, in India, into the one word "Father" ["Prâna"?]. Whatever is, has been projected by Him.

In closing, the philosopher said that the ancient voice of India had found an echo in the 19th century in the writings of Herbert Spencer.

CONCEPTION OF THE UNIVERSE

(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, pp. 192-94.)

[Los Angeles Herald, December 13, 1899]

Swami Vivekananda's lecture before the Academy of Sciences

Unity church was filled last evening with a large audience to hear the Swami Vivekananda, a native of India, lecture on the kosmos, or the Veda conception of the universe (This was Swami Vivekananda's second lecture in California, entitled "The Cosmos, or the Veda Conception of the Universe", of which there is no verbatim transcript available. Cf. the Swami's two New York lectures on the Cosmos delivered in 1896 in Complete Works, II ("The Cosmos: The Macrocosm" and "The Cosmos: The Microcosm").) under the auspices of the Southern California Academy of Sciences. . . .

In introducing his subject the speaker reviewed the mythology of the flood, which among the Babylonians, Egyptians, Assyrians and other races is similar to the story of the Hebrew scriptures, showing that all held a similar belief concerning the creation of the universe.

In the worship of the sun and the forces of nature, we see the attempts of ancient peoples to explain the mysteries surrounding them. Man's first idea of force was himself. When a stone fell he saw no force in it but the will behind it, and he conceived the idea that the whole universe was moved by force of wills. Gradually these wills became one, and science begins to rise. Gods begin to vanish, and in their place comes oneness, and now God is in danger of being dethroned by modern science. Science wants to explain things by their own nature and make the universe self-sufficient.

Wills gradually began to disappear, and in their place comes will. This was the process of development in all the nations of the world, and so it was in India. Their ideas and gods were pretty much the same as those of other lands, only in India they did not stop there. They learned that life alone can produce life, and that death can never produce life. In our speculations about God we have got to monotheism. Everywhere else speculation stops there; we make it the be all and end all of everything, but in India it does not stop there. A gigantic will can not explain all this phenomena we see around us. Even in man there is something back of the will. In so common sense a thing as the circulation of the blood, we find will is not the motive power.

We have conceived God as a person like ourselves, only infinitely greater, and because there is goodness and mercy and happiness in the world there must be a being possessing these attributes, but there is also evil. The Hindu mind is too philosophical to admit the existence of two gods, one good and one bad. India remained true to the idea of unity. What is evil to me may be good to someone else; what is good to me may be evil to others. We are all links in a chain. Hence comes the speculation of the Upanishads, the religion of 300,000,000 of the human race. Nature is a unit; unity is in all existence, and God is the same as nature. This is one of the Indian speculations known to all the world outside of India.

There is not a system of religion or philosophy in the world that does not show the influence of India's speculation, even to the Catholic church. The conservation of energy, considered a new discovery, has been known there by the name of father [Prâna?]. Whatever is comes from the father. Brahma [Prana?] must energize on something, and that they say is an invisible ether. Brahma [Prana?] vibrating on ether, the solid, the liquid, the luminous, it is all the same ether. The potentiality of everything is there. In the beginning of the next period Brahma [Prana?] will begin to vibrate more and more.

Thus this speculation of India's scriptures is very similar to modern science. The same idea is taken up by modern evolution. Even our bodies, different only in dignity, are links in the same chain. In one individual the possibilities of every other individual are there. The living entity contains the possibility of all life, but can only express that which environment demands. The most wonderful speculations are formed in modern science. The one that interests me as a preacher of religion is the oneness of all religions [life?]. When Herbert Spencer's voice says that the same life welling up in the plant is the life welling up in the individual, the Indian religion has found a voice in the nineteenth century.

TOLD ABOUT INDIA

(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, pp. 227-29.)

[Los Angeles Herald, January 3, 1900]

Lecture last night at Blanchard Hall by Swami Vivekananda

Swami Vivekananda, member of an ancient order of Hindu monks, who is giving a series of lessons and lectures in this city, addressed an audience last night at Blanchard hall upon the "History of India" ["The People of India"]. (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) The Swami appeared before his audience in American dress, losing to a great degree the peculiar and characteristic personality given him by the aesthetic silken robes and the turban worn by his order.

The speaker said India was not a country, but a continent containing a huge mass of races united by religion. India was of ancient date. It was inhabited, when through a desire to reach it by a shorter passage, Columbus discovered America, and its production of cotton, sugar, indigo and spices have enriched the world. This country inhabited by 200,000,000 of people, is full of little villages that extend through all the valleys and up the mountains thousands of feet above the sea level. The immense fertility of the soil owes much to the tremendous rainfall, which is often 1,800 inches [sic] in a season, averaging perhaps 600 inches. Many of the people, however, in spite of the abundant productions, live wholly on millet, a kind of cereal; no animal food is eaten; no meat, eggs or fish.

The country from most ancient times has kept its own customs, its own languages and its castes. It has by its religion saved itself while it has seen other sections [nations] rise and decay. The Babylonian civilization was not new, but India dates long before its rise and fall. The most ancient language, Sanskrit, is spoken by the priests, and was spoken once by all the different races. The speaker gave examples of many of our common English words coming from Sanskrit roots, and traced the old religious ideas and even mythology to the ancient Aryan races.

Many of the customs of the country were sketched, and further it was shown how this country was the seat of civilization, the center of arts, the sciences, the philosophical thought of the world.

The people of India have saved themselves by making a wall around themselves by making the castes absolute. An emperor in India is glad to trace his descent from a priest, who is the highest caste. The castes do not exist as they did once, but they are divided into many divisions and sub-divisions. There are hundreds of them. No people of different castes eat together, or cook together. Marriage is not legal if made outside of one's caste. The intricacy of the laws of caste is very great and branch out into the minutest detail. The poorest beggar or the viceroy of India may belong to the same caste.

Shoes are not allowed to be worn, as they are made from the skin of an animal. The women pay even more attention to these details than the men. All these customs have their philosophy. This is the true democracy, it is the socialistic idea, the development of the masses, not the individual.

The speaker closed with comparing the position of women in India with that of this country. In India the whole idea of womanhood is the mother. The mother is revered. She is the giver of life, the founder of the race.

THE RELIGIOUS LEGENDS OF INDIA *

(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, p. 269.)

[Los Angeles Times, January 17, 1900]

The Swami

Clad in his maroon robe, Swami Vivekananda addressed a small audience composed mostly of women, at the Shakespeare Club this evening [January 16]. (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) He gave an account of the religious legends of Brahmanism, which are embodied in the daily lives of the Hindus, of the origin of Shiva and his surrender to the pure spirit of his wife, today the mother of all India, whose worship is carried to such an extent that no female animal can be killed. Vivekananda quoted freely from the Sanskrit, translating as he went along. . . .

THE SCIENCE OF YOGA

[Los Angeles Herald, January 26, 1900]

Swami Vivekananda, the Oriental seer, lectured at the Shakespeare club this morning [Thursday, January 25] on "The Science of Yoga". (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) He said that there is no difference in kind between anything in nature, but that all differences are of degree merely. The mind is the supreme power, the motor of the world.

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA AT THE LOS ANGELES HOME

(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, pp. 218-20.)

[Unity, February (?) 1900]

.....

. . . We had eight lectures at the Home by the Swami (This newspaper report is an overview of eight class lectures delivered at the Home of Truth in December 1899 and January 1900, of which there is only one verbatim transcript, "Hints on Practical Spirituality", published in Complete Works, II: 24-37.) and all were intensely interesting, though a few malcontents complained because he did not give some short cuts into the Kingdom [of Heaven] and show an easy way to the attainment of mental powers; instead he would say,

Go home and promise yourself that you will not worry for a whole month even though the maid breaks all your best china.

There is combined in the Swami Vivekananda the learning of a university president, the dignity of an archbishop, with the grace and winsomeness of a free natural child. Getting on the platform without a moment's preparation he would soon be in the midst of his subject, sometimes becoming almost tragic as his mind would wander from deep metaphysics to the prevailing condition in Christian countries today who go and seek to reform Filipinos with the swords in one hand and the Bible in the other, or in South Africa allow children of the same father to cut each other to pieces. To contrast this condition of things he described what took place during the last famine in India where men would die of starvation beside their cattle rather than stretch forth a hand to kill. (Will Unity readers remember the fifty million Hindoos who are starving today and send them a blessing?)

Instead of trying to give much of what we heard from the Swami direct, I will append a few of the sayings of his master, Ramakrishna, that will better indicate the nature of his teaching. His chief aim seems to be to encourage people in living simple, quiet wholesome lives — that the life shall be the religion, not something separate and apart.

To the true mother he gives the highest place, counting her as more to be esteemed than those who simply run around teaching. "Anyone can talk," he said, but if I had to look after a baby, I could not endure existence for more than three days.

Frequently he would speak of the "mother" as we speak of the "father," and would say "the mother will take care of us," or "the mother will look after things."

We had a lecture on Christmas day from the Swami entitled, "Christ's Mission to the World," and a better one on this subject I never heard. No Christian minister could have presented Jesus as a character worthy (of) the greatest reverence more eloquently or more powerfully than did this learned Hindoo, who told us that in this country on account of his dark skin he has been refused admission to hotels, and even barbers have sometimes objected to shave him. Is it any wonder that our "heathen" brethren never fail to make mention of this fact that even "our" Master was an Oriental?

HINDOO MONK LECTURES

(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, pp. 315-16.)

[San Francisco Chronicle, February 24, 1900]

Swami Vivekananda's Topic Is "The Idea of Universal Religion"

At Golden Gate Hall last evening Swami Vivekananda, a Hindoo monk, entertained an audience for an hour and a half with his lecture on "The Idea of Universal Religion." (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.) . . .

Tracing religion from the commencement of history he spoke of the existence of creeds. Sects were known from the earliest time, he said. As time rolled on there began various contests for a supremacy between the various sects. History, he declared, was a mere repetition of slaughter under the guise of religion. Superstition, he thought, was fast becoming a thing of the past through the expansion of the minds of men. They had more liberality of thought now. They were deeper students of philosophy and through the principles of true philosophy only could religion in its deepest form be found. Until men could accord to others the right of free belief on all subjects, and be willing to believe truth under whatever form it might appear, no universal religion would be manifest to the world, he declared. It would never be promulgated by any society, but would grow instinctively as the intellect of man developed.

VEDANTISM, AND WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT IS NOT
(New Discoveries, Vol. 5, pp. 329-31.)
Lecture of Swami Vivekananda on the Religion of the Hindoos

[Oakland Tribune, February 26, 1900]

It is the Only Creed, He Says, that Can Be Taught Without Lies and Without Compromise

The claims of the Brahmin religion, or Vedantism, on the modern world were presented to-night at the Congress of Religions in the First Unitarian Church by Swami Vivekananda, (The lecture was entitled "The Claims of Vedanta on the Modern World", of which there is no verbatim transcript available. Cf. Complete Works, VIII: 231-34 for a somewhat different report, which does not include most of the Swami's direct quotes appearing in the Oakland Tribune.) a remarkably eloquent expounder of that faith. . . .

To his auditors to-night he explained Vedantism as the religion of the Vedas, or ancient Hindoo books, which, he asserted, is "the mother of religion."

"It may seem ridiculous how a book can be without beginning or end," he said, but by the Vedas no books are meant. They signify the accumulated treasury of spiritual laws discovered by different persons in different times. The Hindoo believes he is a spirit. Him the sword cannot pierce, him the fire cannot burn, him the water cannot melt, him the air cannot dry. He believes every soul is a circle whose circumference is nowhere, but whose center is located in a body. Death means the change of this center from body to body. We are the children of God. Matter is our servant.

Vedantism is a sort of rebellion against the mockery of the past. Some men are so practical that if they know that by chopping off their heads they could get salvation, there are many who would do so. That is all outward; you must turn your eyes inward to learn what is in your soul. Soul is spirit omnipresent. Where does the soul go after death? Where could the earth fall to? Where can the soul go? Where is it not already? The great cornerstone of Vedantism is the recognition of Self. Man, have faith in yourself. The soul is the same in every one. It is all purity and perfection and the more pure and perfect we [you] are the more purity and perfection you will see.

A man or preaching jack who cries, "Oh Lord, I'm only a crawling worm!" should be still and crawl into his hole. His cries only add more misery to the world. I was amused to read in one of your papers, "How would Christ edit a paper!" How foolish. How would Christ cook a meal? Yet you are the advanced people of the West. If Christ came here, you would shut up shop and go into the street with him to help the poor and downtrodden. Vedantism is the only religion that can be taught without lies, without stretching the texts, without compromise.

TRUE RELIGION

(New Discoveries, Vol. 6, pp. 405-6.)

[The Alameda Encinal, April 5, 1900]

Hindu Philosopher Gives His Ideas

Last evening the Swami Vivekananda gave the first of a series of three public lectures at Tucker Hall on "The Development of Religious Ideas." (Of which no verbatim transcript is available.)

The speaker dwelt briefly on the similarity of ideas in the minds of orthodox Christians, Mohammedans and Hindus with regard to the origin of their religions. Each believed his particular prophet or teacher to have been inspired in some mysterious way by a God or Gods, who as it were, regulated or influenced the affairs of this world from a distance. The modern scientific mind, on the contrary, instead of seeking for outside or supernatural causes for phenomena endeavored to find cause in the thing or condition itself.

While at first glance this method of investigation might seem to take from religion some of its vital elements, yet in reality it resulted in man finding that the spiritual attributes of deity and the states of mind producing heaven and hell were all within himself, and although the result of this rational modern inquiry might appear to contradict much that had been handed down in the old religious writings such as Bible, Koran and Vedas, yet the contradiction was more apparent than real, for the prophets and teachers of old had true perceptions, but were mistaken only in attributing their experiences to outside agencies, instead of realizing them to be the development and expression of elements in their own souls before unknown and unrecognized.

The lecturer traced some of the common beliefs regarding location of heavens and hells, of various burial rites and customs, and he spoke of the impressions made on the primitive mind that resulted in a personification of the active natural forces in the phenomena with which we are surrounded. . . .

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA ON LOVE

(New Discoveries, Vol. 3, pp. 237-40.)

[Maidenhead Adviser, October 23, 1895]

On Thursday the Swami Vivekananda delivered a lecture at the Town Hall, Maidenhead, taking as his subject "The Eastern Doctrine of Love."* Owing to other attractions in the town the attendance was not large. Many of the public also associated the lecturer with the Theosophical Society, with which, however, he has, we are informed, nothing whatever to do, nor with any other society, neither does he propose forming any society himself. He believes in expounding his views to whoever will listen to them and leaving those individuals to advocate them as a whole, or with whatever modifications they may deem fitting, or to reject them altogether, believing that out of the strife of all opinions truth at length prevails.

The chair was taken at 8 p.m. by Mr. E. Gardner, J.P., C.C., and he very briefly introduced the lecturer, who was clad in his native costume. The Swami then proceeded to express his view upon devotion to deity, or, as more commonly expressed in the East — love (Bhakti), to the following effect: — Religion may be divided into two forms, the first almost entirely superstitious and the second merely metaphysical, but if either of these is to have any force it must be accompanied by love. Work alone without this element did not satisfy. The land might be covered with hospitals, penetrated by good roads; there might be great social institutions well conducted, and good sanitation, but these were all external physical processes and by themselves brought man no nearer to Divinity. Both the realist and the idealist were necessary and complementary one of the other. The idealist brought the bold aspiration down to earth, the realist caused it to take form through work. Love cannot be defined in positive terms, only negatively. Its nature is of the form of renunciation. In its more general sense it might be divided threefold: (1) That love which is for one's own pleasure, irrespective of pleasure or pain to others — the purely selfish, the lowest. (2) That love which exchanges — "I will love you if you love me. We will make each other mutually happy" — the partially selfish, the middle path trodden by the great majority of mankind. (3) That love which gives all and asks for nothing, without premeditation and which never regrets, unconquerable by any evil thing done to him from whom it emanates. It is the highest, the divine. Only with this last kind are we concerned here. The first is the path of the sensualist and the animal, the second the path of struggling humanity on its way to better things, the third the real path of love, trodden by those who renounce the world and set out upon that road which leads to Eternal Peace. In that love there is no fear. Love kills fear. A lion might stand over a babe and threaten its life; the mother knows no fear, she does not fly, but she opposes. At that moment love destroys terror; at other times the same woman would run from a small dog. A fierce Mahomedan [sic] warrior went to a garden to pray. In the same garden a girl had appointed to meet her lover. The warrior lay prostrate on his face according to the prescribed form of his religion. At that moment the girl espied her lover, and with joy rushing to meet him, trod upon the prostrate form. He jumped up and laying hand upon his sword would have slain the girl. "How dare you?" cried he, "vile wench, disturb my worship, my devotion to God, with your base feet." "Worship! devotion!" cried the girl, "you do not know what they are. You had no devotion, lying there, no spirit of worship. If I, a timid girl, could so forget the presence of an object of dread like you, in my worship and devotion to my earthly lover as to tread upon you and not even know it, how much more should you, if your heart had been absorbed in love and devotion to God, have been ignorant that I touched you?" The warrior was humbled and appeased and went away. Our highest ideal of love is the image which we form for ourselves of deity. A barbarous people have a tyrannical and cruel god. A wise and noble people see God in ever and ever widening potencies. God is always God, but the views which men and nations may take of Him vary. No higher view is known than that of love. The man who bears in his heart an unrelaxing love to every creature, whether he recognise that that creature is a manifestation of God, in which he is actually present, or whether he look upon it merely as fashioned by Deity, that man is on the path to Deity, on the great path of devotion and renunciation. He cannot injure the creature of God, however repulsive to his narrower view of what should or should not be. He gives in love, not in pride; in loving Deity he loves its manifestations, works with them and abides by them.

The lecture was impressively delivered, and at the close a vote of thanks was accorded the Chairman (on the proposition of Mr. E. T. Sturdy, of Caversham).

The proceedings occupied only a little over half an hour.

AN INDIAN ASCETIC

(New Discoveries, Vol. 3, pp. 246-47.)

[Standard, October 23, 1895]

Since the days of Ramahoun [Ram Mohan] Roy, says the Standard, with the single exception of Keshub Chunder [Keshab Chandra] Sen, there has not appeared on an English platform a more interesting Indian figure than the Brahman who lectured in Princes' [Prince's] Hall last night. . . .

The lecture* was a most fearless and eloquent exposition of the pantheistic philosophy of the Vedanta school, and the Swami seems to have incorporated into his system a good deal also of the moral element of the Yoga school, as the closing passage of his lecture presented in a modified form not the advocacy of mortification, which is the leading feature of the latter school, but the renunciation of all so-called material comforts and blessings, as the only means of entering into perfect union with the supreme and absolute Self. The opening passages of the lecture were a review of the rise of the grosser form of Materialism in the beginning of the present century, and the later development of the various forms of metaphysical thought, which for a time swept materialism away. From this he passed on to discuss the origin and nature of knowledge. In some respects his views on this point were almost a statement of pure Fichteism, but they were expressed in language, and they embodied illustrations, and made admissions which no German transcendentalist would have used. He admitted there was a gross material world outside, but he confessed he did not know what matter was. He asserted that mind was a finer matter, and that behind was the soul of man, which was immovable, fixed, before which outward objects passed, as it were, in a procession, which was without beginning or end — in other words, which was eternal, and finally which was God. He worked out this pantheistic conception of the personal identity of man and God with great comprehensiveness and an ample wealth of illustration, and in passage after passage of great beauty, solemnity, and earnestness. "There is only one Soul in the Universe", he said:

There is no "you" or "me"; all variety is merged into the absolute unity, the one infinite existence — God.

From this, of course, followed the immortality of the soul, and something like the transmigration of souls towards higher manifestations of perfection. As already stated, his peroration of twenty minutes was a statement of the doctrine of renunciation. In the course of it he made some remorselessly disparaging criticism on the work that factories, engines and other inventions, and books were doing for man, compared with half a dozen words spoken by Buddha or Jesus. The lecture was evidently quite extemporaneous, and was delivered in a pleasing voice, free from any kind of hesitation.

NATIVE INDIAN LECTURER AT PRINCES' HALL

(New Discoveries, Vol. 3, p. 248.)

[London Morning Post, October 23, 1895]

— Last night at Princes' [Prince's] Hall, Piccadilly, Swami Vivekananda, an Indian Yogi, who is at present on a visit to this country, delivered what was described as an "oration" on the subject of "Self Knowledge." (Of which no verbatim transcript is available. Cf. the preceding newspaper report 'An Indian Ascetic', pp 515-16, for another report of the same lecture, delivered October 22, 1895.) A Yogi, it was explained, is one who formally renounces the world and gives himself up to study and devotion. Swami Vivekananda originally left his native land for the purpose of giving his interpretation of the Vedanta philosophy at the Parliament of Religions which was held two years ago at Chicago, and since that time he has been engaged in delivering lectures on the same subject in America. In the course of his address last night he declared that there were indications in these closing days of the 19th century that the pendulum of scientific thought was swinging back, for men all over the world were rummaging in the pages of ancient records, and ancient religious forms were again coming to the fore. To many this seemed to be a case of degeneration, while others regarded it as one of those outbursts of superstition which periodically visited society, but to the scientific student there was in the present state of things a prognostication of grand future benefit. The lecturer then proceeded at considerable length to describe the peculiar system of philosophy which he teaches, and traced the three different stages of the religion which has grown out of it. He spoke with a good deal of fluency, and his remarks were listened to with attention by the somewhat small audience.

THE CHRISTIAN COMMONWEALTH

[Christian Commonwealth, November 14, 1895]

South Place Chapel Lecture

"The Swami Vivekananda" enlightened the congregation at South-place Chapel last Sunday morning on "The Basis of Vedanta Morality." (A lecture delivered in London, England, on November 10, 1895, of which there is no verbatim transcript available.) . . .

The Swami explained that in the system of morality which he was expounding actions were not inspired by any hope of reward, here or hereafter, nor by any fear of punishment in this world or in the beyond: "We must work simply from the impetus within, work for work's sake, duty for duty's sake." This idea of morality is claimed to be superior to the religion of Jesus, and so has beguiled some so-called Christians into Buddhism or other Eastern philosophies. But the essence of true Christianity is that, if your actions are inspired by the heavenly kingdom within you, Paradise will be the result, whereas, if you act in harmony with the devil's kingdom without you will land in Perdition. The genuine Christian does not, as the Swami seemed to suggest, act for the purpose of evading punishments, but at the same time he sees the ultimate consequences of all actions. . . .

AN UNIVERSAL RELIGION
(New Discoveries, Vol. 3, pp. 276-77.)

[The Queen, The Lady's Newspaper, November 23, 1895]

Mrs. Haweis's first autumn At home took place last Saturday at Queen's House, when the Indian Yogi, or ascetic, Swami Vive Kananda (Buddhist [sic] delegate at the Parliament of Religions at Chicago in 1893) discussed in a liberal spirit, and not without humour, the chances and the charms of an universal religion.* He showed that the underlying principles of all the great religions of the world resembled one another, and amongst the great prophets he placed the Christian Redeemer very high, implying, however, that His teaching was little borne out sometimes by His professed followers. There was no radical impossibility of reconciliation between sects, now biting and devouring each other from the best motives, if charity and sympathy were carried into the kiosque, the temple, and the church. Canon Basil Wilberforce and the Rev. H. R. Haweis both made interesting speeches in reply to the Swami. . . . The guests numbered 150.

EDUCATION*

(New Discoveries, Vol. 4, p. 157.)

[Daily Chronicle, May 14, 1896]

The Sesame Club. — At a meeting of the Sesame Club on Tuesday night [May 12], the chairman, Mr. Ashton Jonson, said he regretted to announce that Mrs. Norman was too unwell to be present to open, as announced, a debate on "Should we return to the land." An address was accordingly given by Swami Vivekananda on the subject of education, (There is no verbatim transcript available. Cf. the Indian newspaper report "On Education", p. 535.) in which he urged that no one could obtain intellectual greatness until he was physically pure. Morality gave strength; the immoral were always weak, and could never raise themselves intellectually, much less spiritually. Directly [as] immorality began to enter the national life its foundations commenced to rot. As the life blood of every nation was to be found in the schools, where boys and girls were receiving their education, it was absolutely essential that the young students should be pure, and this purity must be taught them.

SPIRITUALISM AND THE VEDANTA PHILOSOPHY

(New Discoveries, Vol. 4, pp. 229-30.)

[Light, July 4, 1896]

When first we heard that the Swami Vivekananda was coming to London to expound the Vedanta Philosophy, we were hopeful that his teaching would not only confirm the faith of Spiritualists, but might also add to their number. We hoped this, because the very essence of the Hindu Philosophy is that man is a spirit, and has a body, and not that man is a body, and may have a spirit also; which is as far as many a Western mind can reach. . . .

It has been the glorious privilege of our modern Spiritualism to prove by actual demonstration the existence of spirit apart from flesh, and it would, therefore, seem reasonable to look for co-operation on the part of the exponents of the Vedanta Philosophy and the supporters of Spiritualism. We are not quite certain, however, that this desirable consummation can be attained, for observations made very recently by the Swami are calculated only to divide the two sects.* The Vedanta Philosophy sets before the student an ideal aim! Nothing less, in fact, than the unfolding of the God within him, and nothing could well be more impressive and inspiring than the presentation of this idea by a speaker of the force and eloquence of the Swami. We could only respect and admire, until modern Spiritualism was alluded to, and that in a manner which left upon us the impression that the Swami condemned without reservation all sitting for phenomena. He admitted having sat for observation with professional mediums, and held that one and all had practised fraud. "Spirit voices," according to the Swami, are never heard to clash! As the "sepulchral dies away the small child's voice rises up," intimating thus that ventriloquism was invariably responsible for the sounds. "Spirit messages," he remarked, were quite worthless, for they never rose above the level of "I am well and happy," or "Give John a piece of cake."

This assertion could, of course, only be made in ignorance of the contents of "Spirit Teachings," a book which, we think, can well stand comparison even with the exalted teaching of the Swami Vivekananda. The process of making up sham materialisations and working the figure on the end of a wire was also described in detail.

We were present again the following evening,* when a paper of questions bearing upon the adverse criticism of the Swami was read out to the meeting. Some thirty minutes were then passed in qualifying and explaining his remarks of the night before, and, to our deep satisfaction, the Swami not only confessed his belief in the possibility of spirits communicating with mortals, but even expressed his conviction that at times spirits of a high grade visited earth in order to assist mankind. It is, however, we conceive, no part of the Vedanta Philosophy to recommend the seeking of such intercourse, on account of its possible "dangers." It is commonly held that the undeveloped spirit can most easily communicate with man, consequently the Swami uttered his word of warning and withheld any word of encouragement. . . .

AN OCTOBER CLASS REVIEW

(New Discoveries, Vol. 4, pp. 370-71.)

[Light, October 28, 1896]

On the sixth floor of one of the dismal but convenient Victoria-street houses, we lately listened to a discourse by Swami Vivekananda — one of a long series on the Hindoo Religion and Philosophy.* . . . For an hour and a half he spoke, without a note. It is true that the discourse was rather a flow of remarks than a connected study, but it was all keenly interesting.

The subject, in the main, was the Vedas, but we got excursions upon Evolution, Modern Science, Idealism and Realism, the Supremacy of Spirit, &c. On the whole, we gathered that the speaker was a preacher of the universal religion of spiritual ascendancy and spiritual harmony. Certain passages from the Vedas — beautifully translated and read, by the way — were charming in their bearing upon the humanness and sharp reality of a life beyond the veil. One longed for more of this.

We were much impressed with the admission that in the Vedas there were many contradictions, and that devout Hindoos never thought of denying them nor reconciling them. Everyone was free to take what he liked. At different stages and on different planes, all were true. Hence the Hindoos never excommunicated and never persecuted. The contradictions in the Vedas are like the contradictions in life — they are very real, but they are all true. This seems impossible, but there is sound sense in it. At all events, as regards excommunication and persecution, we only wish the Christians could make the Hindoo's claim.

A BENGALI SADHU*

[Madura Mail, January 28, 1893]

A BENGALI SADHU ON HINDU RELIGION AND SOCIOLOGY

A young Bengalee Sanyashi [Sannyâsin] of about thirty-two years of age, and a Master of Arts of the Calcutta University was last week interviewed at the Triplicane Literary Society by about a hundred educated Indians among whom was Dewan Bahadur Raghunatha Rao. A summary of what was stated by the Sadhu is published by the Indian Social Reformer, from which we make the following extracts:*

The Vedic Religion

The perfect religion is the Vedic religion. The Vedas have two parts, mandatory and optional. The mandatory injunctions are eternally binding on us. They constitute the Hindu religion. The optional ones are not so. These have been changing and been changed by the Rishis to suit the times. The Brahmins at one time ate beef and married Sudras. [A] calf was killed to please a guest. Sudras cooked for Brahmins. The food cooked by a male Brahmin was regarded as polluted food. But we have changed our habits to suit the present yug[a]. Although our caste rules have so far changed from the time of Manu, still if he should come to us now, he would still call us Hindus. Caste is a social organization and not a religious one. It was the outcome of the natural evolution of our society. It was found necessary and convenient at one time. It has served its purpose. But for it, we would long ago have become Mahomedans [sic]. It is useless now. It may be dispensed with. Hindu religion no longer requires the prop of the caste system. A Brahmin may interdine with anybody, even a Pariah. He won't thereby lose his spirituality. A degree of spirituality that is destroyed by the touch of a Pariah, is a very poor quantity. It is almost at the zero point. Spirituality of a Brahmin must overflow, blaze and burn [so] as to warm into spiritual life not one Pariah but thousands of Pariahs who may touch him. The old Rishis observed no distinctions or restrictions as regards food. A man who feels that his own spirituality is so flimsy that the sight of a low caste man annihilates it need not approach a Pariah and must keep his precious little to himself.

The Hindu Ideal of Life

The Hindu Ideal of life is "Nivarti" [Nivritti]. (Nivritti and Parvritti are key concepts in Hindu philosophy, and Swami Vivekananda has frequently interpreted and elaborated on them (e.g., see Karma-Yoga, Ch. VI) in their traditional connotations. But the interpretation of the terms here ascribed to him by the Indian Social Reformer's reporter is not in accord with what the Swami has said elsewhere.) Nivarti means subjugation and conquest of evil passions, of Tamasa nature of lust, revenge and avarice. It does not mean conquest of all desire. It means only the annihilation of gross desires. Every man is bound to love and sympathize with his fellow-creatures. [A] Sanyasi is one who has vanquished all his selfish passions and vowed to devote his life for the good of others. He loves all. "Pravirti" [Pravritti] means love of God and all his creatures. Sanyasis ought to be fed. They are not like the Christian bishops and Archbishops who must be paid to do their work with thousands of pounds per annum; all whose earnings are spent upon their own luxury — their wife and children. [The] Sanyasi wants only a morsel of food, and then he places all his knowledge and services at the disposal of the public. He is a wandering missionary. Individuals and society have to work themselves up from "brute through man, into divine". Even the lowest of the Hindus, the Pariah, has less of the brute in him than a Briton in a similar social status. This is the result of an old and excellent religious civilization. This evolution to a higher spiritual state is possible only through discipline and education.

The Shradh [Shrâddha] Ceremony*

Every institution, caste, early marriage etc., that stands in the way of education, ought at once to be knocked on the head. Even "Shradh" may be given up, if the performance of it involves waste of time which might be better used for self-education. But "Shradh" should not be given up. The meaning of the Mantras is very edifying. The Mantras depict the suffering and care undergone by our parents on our behalf. The performance of it is an honour paid to the memory of the sum total of the spirit of our forefathers, whose virtues we inherit. Shradh has nothing to do with one's salvation. Yet no Hindu who loves his religion, his country and his past great men should give up Shradh. The outward formalities and the feeding of the Brahmins are not essential. We have no Brahmins in these days worthy of being fed on Shradh days. The Brahmins fed ought not to be professional eaters, but Brahmins who feed disciples gratis, and teach them true Vedic doctrines. In these days, Shradh may be performed mentally.

Education of Women

The jealous guardianship of our women shows that we Hindus have declined in our national virtues, that we reverted to the "brutal state". Every man must so discipline his mind as to bring himself to regard all women as his sisters or mothers. Women must have freedom to read, to receive as good an education as men. Individual development is impossible with ignorance and slavery.

Emancipation of the Hindus

Through the slavery of a thousand years, Hindus have at present degenerated. They have forgotten their own self-respect. Every English boy is taught to feel his importance, he thinks that he is a member of a great race, the conquerors of the Earth. The Hindu feels from his boyhood just the reverse that he is born to slave. We can't become a great nation unless we love our religion and try to respect ourselves, and respect our country men and society. The Hindus of modern times are generally hypocrites. They must rise, and combine the faith in the true Vedic religion, with a knowledge of the political and scientific truths of the Europeans. The evils of caste seem to be more prevalent in the South than in Bengal. In Bengal a Brahmin uses the water touched by the Sudras, but here the Sudra is kept at a great distance by the Brahmin. There are no Brahmins in [the] Kali Yug[a]. The Pariahs, our fellow beings, ought to be educated by the higher castes, must [. . .] truths of Hindu religion and be [. . .] Brahmins. The first duty of a Brahmin is to love all. There must first be an amalgamation of the Brahmins, then of all the Dwijas,* and then of the Dwijas and Sudras.

THE PARLIAMENT OF RELIGIONS
(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 4.)
BY H. R. HAWEIS

[The Indian Mirror (from The Daily Chronicle),
November 28, 1893]

. . . Vivekananda, the popular Hindu monk, whose physiognomy bore the most striking resemblance to the classic face of the Buddha, denounced our commercial prosperity, our bloody wars, and our religious intolerance, declaring that at such a price the "mild Hindu" would have none of our vaunted civilisation. . . . "You come," he cried, with the Bible in one hand and the conqueror's sword in the other — you, with your religion of yesterday, to us, who were taught thousands of years ago by our Rishis precepts as noble and lives as holy as your Christ's. You trample on us and treat us like the dust beneath your feet. You destroy precious life in animals. You are carnivores. You degrade our people with drink. You insult our women. You scorn our religion — in many points like yours, only better, because more humane. And then you wonder why Christianity makes such slow progress in India. I tell you it is because you are not like your Christ, whom we could honour and reverence. Do you think, if you came to our doors like him, meek and lowly, with a message of love, living and working and suffering for others, as he did, we should turn a deaf ear? Oh no! We should receive him and listen to him, and as we have done our own inspired Rishis (teachers). . . .

HINDU CRITICISES CHRISTIANITY

MR. VIVEKANUNDA SAYS RELIGION OF THE VEDAS IS RELIGION OF LOVE

VIVEKANUNDA SAYS CHRISTIANITY IS INTOLERANT

Dr. Noble presided at the afternoon session. The Hall of Columbus [Columbus] was badly crowded. . . . Dr. Noble then presented Swami Vivekananda, the Hindu monk, who was applauded loudly as he stepped forward to the centre of the platform. He wore an orange robe, bound with a scarlet sash, and a pale yellow turban. The customary smile was on his handsome face and his eyes shown with animation. Said he:

We who come from the East have sat here on the platform day after day, and have been told in a patronizing way that we ought to accept Christianity because Christian nations are the most prosperous. We look about us, and we see England, the most prosperous Christian nation in the world, with her foot on the neck of 250,000,000 of Asiatics. We look back into history, and see that the prosperity of Christian Europe began with Spain. Spain's prosperity began with the invasion of Mexico. Christianity wins its prosperity by cutting the throats of its fellowmen. At such a price the Hindu will not have prosperity. (Vide "Cantakerous Remarks", Complete Works, III: 474.)

I have sat here to-day, and I have heard the height of intolerance. I have heard the creed of the Moslem applauded, when to-day the Moslem sword is carrying destruction into India. Blood and the sword are not for the Hindu, whose religion is based on the law of love. (This last paragraph is a heretofore unpublished extract.)

When the applause had ceased, Mr. Vivekananda went [on] to read his paper, a summary of which follows: Vide "[Paper on Hinduism", Complete Works, I: 6-20]. . . .

ON CHRISTIAN CONVERSION
(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 25.)

[The Indian Mirror, June 14, 1894]

There has been some lively correspondence between Swami Vivekanand and a retired Christian Missionary on the work and prospects of Christianity in India. Among other things, the Swami is reported to have said that "the way of converting is absolutely absurd";

Missionary doctors do no good, because they are not in touch with the people. . . . They accomplish nothing in the way of converting, although they may have nice sociable times among themselves, &c.

The reverend gentleman took exception to the words, maintaining that speaking the vernaculars well, nobody of foreigners understands, and sympathises with Indians better than Missionaries. The Missionaries are undoubtedly good and well-meaning people; but we think, the statement of the Swami that they are seldom in touch with the people, is not without foundation. With the revival of Hinduism, manifested in every part of the country, it is doubtful whether Christianity will have any sway over the Hindus. The present is a critical time for Christian Missions in India. The Swami thanked the Missionary for calling him his fellow-countryman. "This is the first time," he wrote, any European foreigner, born in India though he be, has dared to call a detested Native by that name — Missionary or no Missionary. Would you dare call me the same in India?

THE CENTRAL IDEA OF THE VEDAS

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 30.)

[The Indian Mirror, July 20, 1894]

Swami Vivekananda explained in America the central idea of the Vedas as follows:

I humbly beg to differ from those who see in monotheism, in the recognition of a personal God, apart from Nature, the acme of intellectual development. I believe, it is only a kind of anthropomorphism which the human mind stumbles upon in its first efforts to understand the unknown. The ultimate satisfaction of human reason and custom lies in the realisation of that universal essence which is the All. And I hold an irrefragable evidence that this idea is present in the Vedas, the numerous gods and their invocations notwithstanding. This idea of formless All, the Sat, i.e., esse or being, called Atman and Brahman in the Upanishads, and further explained in the Darsans, is the central idea of the Vedas, nay, the root-idea of the Hindu religion in general.

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA ON THE SEA-VOYAGE MOVEMENT

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, pp. 260-62.)

[The Bengalee, May 18, 1895]

There is not a Hindoo who is not proud of Vivekananda Swami — who would not honor him and his teachings. He has done honor to himself, to his race and his religion. If we are right in this view, it follows that the opinions of Vivekananda are entitled to the highest consideration. This is what he says with regard to the sea-voyage movement: —

Expansion is life; contraction is death. Love is life, hatred is death. We began to die the day we began to contract — to hate other races — and nothing can prevent our death, until we come back to life, to expansion. We must mix, therefore, with all the races of the earth and every Hindoo that goes out to travel in foreign parts, does more benefit to his country than hundreds of those bundles of superstition and selfishness whose one aim in life is to be the dog in the manger. Those wonderful structures of national life which the Western nations have raised are supported by pillars of character — and until we can produce such by the hundred, it is useless to fret and fume against this power or that power. Does anyone deserve liberty who is not ready to give it to others? Let us calmly and in manly fashion go to work — instead of dissipating our energies in unnecessary frettings and fumings and I, for one, thoroughly believe that no power in the universe can withhold from anyone anything he really deserves. The past was great no doubt, but I sincerely believe that the future in store is glorious still. (Vide Complete Works, IV: 366.)

We must mix with other nations and take from them whatever good they have to give us. It is our exclusiveness, our unwillingness to learn from foreign nations which is mainly responsible for our present degradation. We considered ourselves to be the elect of heaven, and superior to the nations of the earth in all respects. We regarded them as barbarians, their touch as pollution, their knowledge as worse than ignorance. We lived in a world of our own creation. We would teach the foreigner nothing — we would learn nothing from the foreigner. At last the disillusion came. The foreigner became our master — the arbiter of our destinies. We eagerly took to his learning. We found that there was much in it that was novel, much that was highly useful. We found that so far as the material comforts of life were concerned the foreigner vastly out-distanced us — that his control over the powers of nature was far greater than any we had dreamt of. He had annihilated time and space, and had subordinated the powers of nature to the convenience of man. He had many wonderful things to teach us. We learnt them eagerly. But still we don't visit his country. If we do, we lose caste. We are under a foreign Government. We eagerly study a foreign language and literature and admire all that is good and beautiful in it. We use foreign articles for dress and consumption. But still we dare not visit the country of our rulers, for fear of excommunication. Against this unmeaning prejudice, the great Swami, who is a Hindoo of Hindoos, indignantly raises his voice of protest. The objectors, in his expressive language, are like the dog in the manger. They will not travel to foreign countries, — they will not allow others to travel. Yet the fact remains, says the Swami, that these travelled Hindoos do more benefit to their country than hundreds of those bundles of superstition and selfishness, whose one aim in life is to be like the dog in the manger. (Vide Complete Works, IV: 366.)

.....

If we had our Rishis in this age, as we had them in the ages that are gone by, we are sure they would have withdrawn the interdiction to sea-voyage, if indeed any such interdiction has been laid in the past. Society is an organism which obeys the immutable law of progress; and change, judicious and cautious change, is necessary for the well-being, and indeed the preservation of the social system. However that may be, it is something to know that so high an authority and so good a Hindoo as Swami Vivekananda supports travel to foreign countries. . . .

A SUMMARY OF "BUDDHISM, THE FULFILMENT OF HINDUISM"

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 73.)

[The Indian Mirror, June 29, 1895]

Swami Vivekananda's speech, delivered in Chicago at the presentation of the Buddhists on September 26, 1893, is published in MacNeely's edition of the "History of the Parliament of Religions". The following were his concluding words: —

We cannot live without you, nor you without us. Then believe that separation has shown to us, that you cannot stand without the brain and the philosophy of the Brahman [sic], nor we without your heart. This separation between the Buddhist and the Brahman [Brahmin] is the cause of the downfall of India. That is why India has been the slave of conquerors for the past 1000 years. Let us then join the wonderful intellect of the Brahman [Brahmin] with the heart, the noble soul, the wonderful humanising power of the Great Master. (Vide "Buddhism, the Fulfilment of Hinduism", Complete Works, I: 21-23, for a somewhat different summary paragraph.)

INDIAN PHILOSOPHY AND WESTERN SOCIETY

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, pp. 85-86.)

[The Indian Mirror, December 1, 1895]

At the weekly meeting of the Balloon Society, an address on "Man and Society in the Light of Vedanta"* was given by Swami Vivekananda. The Swami who wore the red robe of his sect, spoke with great fluency and in perfect English for more than an hour without the help of a single note. He said that religion was the most wonderful factor in the social organism. If knowledge was the highest gain that science could give, what could be greater than the knowledge of God, of the soul, of man's own nature which was given by the study of religion? It was not only impossible that there should be one religion for the whole world, but it would be dangerous. If the whole of religious thought was at the same level, it would be the death of religious thought; variety was its life. There were four types of religion — (1) the worker, (2) the emotional, (3) the mystical, and (4) the philosophical. Each man unfortunately became so wedded to his own type that he had no eyes to see what existed in the world. He struggled to make others of the same type. That religion would be perfect which gave scope to all the different characters. The Vedantic religion took in all, and each could choose in what his nature required. A discussion followed.

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA IN AMERICA

Many well-known persons are seeking to follow the teaching of Swami Vivekananda's Philosophy.

A Lecture by the Swami

Swami Vivekananda sat in the centre, clad in an ochre coloured robe. The Hindu had his audience divided on either side of him and there was between fifty and a hundred persons present. The class was in Karma-Yoga, which has been described as the realisation of one's self as God through works and duty.

Its theme was: —

"That which ye sow ye reap", whether of good or evil.

Following the lecture or instruction the Swami held an informal reception, and the magnetism of the man was shown by the eager manner in which those who had been listening to him hastened to shake hands or begged for the favour of an introduction. But concerning himself the Swami will not say more than is absolutely necessary. Contrary to the claim made by some of his pupils he declares that he has come to this country alone and not so officially representing any order of Hindu monks. He belongs to the Sanyasis he will say; and is hence free to travel without losing his caste. When it is pointed out to him that Hinduism is not a proselytising religion, he says he has a message to the West as Buddha had a message to the East. (Vide Complete Works, V: 314.) When questioned concerning the Hindu religion, and asked whether he intends to introduce its practices and ritual into [t]his country, he declares that he is preaching simply philosophy.

ON EDUCATION*

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 101.)

[The Indian Mirror, June 19, 1896]

Swami Saradananda in a letter from London written to the Editor of the Brahmavadin says: —

Swami Vivekananda has made a very good beginning here. A large number of the people attend his classes regularly, and the lectures are most interesting. Canon Haweis, one of the leaders of the Anglican Church, came the other day, and was much interested. He saw the Swami before, in the Chicago fairs, and loved him from that time. On Tuesday last, the Swami lectured on "Education" at the Sesame Club. It is a respectable club got up by women for diffusing female education. In this he dealt with the old educational system of India, pointed out clearly and impressively that, the sole aim of the system was "man-making" and not cramming and compared it with the present system. He held that, the mind of the man is an infinite reservoir of knowledge, and all knowledge, present, past or future, is within man, manifested or non-manifested, and the object of every system of education should be to help the mind to manifest it. For instance, the law of gravitation was within man, and the fall of the apple helped Newton to think upon it, and bring it out from within his mind. His class days have been arranged as follows: —

Tuesdays, morning and evening; Thursdays, morning and evening; Friday, evening question classes. So the Swami has to do four lectures, and one class on questions every week. In the class lecture, he has begun with Gnan [Jnâna-]Yoga. A short-hand report of these lectures is being taken down by Mr. Goodwin, who is a great admirer of the Swami, and these lectures will be published later on.

THE SWAMI VIVEKANANDA IN ENGLAND

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, pp. 493-95.)

[The Brahmavadin, July 18, 1896]

SIR,

I feel sure you will be glad to have an idea of the progress of the Swami's work in England, as a supplement to the letter which the Swami Saradananda sent you a few weeks ago. At that time a series of Sunday lectures was being arranged, and three of these have now been given. They are held in one of the galleries of the Royal Institute of Painters in water colours, 191 Piccadilly, and have been so far remarkably successful in attaining their object, that of reaching people who, from one reason or another, cannot attend the class talks. The first of the series was "The Necessity of Religion". (Cf. Mr. J. J. Goodwin's published transcript "The Necessity of Religion", Complete Works, II: 57-69.) The Swami claimed that religion is and has been the greatest force in moulding the destinies of the human race. Concerning its origin he said that either of the two theories, (1) Spirit origin, (2) Search after the infinite, will meet the case, and, to his mind, neither contradicts the other, because the search after the departed of the Egyptians and Babylonians, and the attempt to peep behind the veil of the dawn, the evening, the thunderstorm, or other natural phenomena, of the Aryans, can both be included as a search after the super-sensuous, and therefore the unlimited. This unlimited, in the course of time became abstracted, first as a person, then as a presence, and lastly as the essence of all existence. To his mind the dream state is the first suggestion of religious inquiry, and inasmuch as the awakened state has always been, and always will be accompanied by the dream state, a suggestion of existence finer than that of the awakened state yet vanishing during it, the human mind will always be predisposed in favour of spiritual existence and a future life. It is in our dream-state that we really find, in a sense, our immortality. Later on, as dreams are found to be only milder manifestations of the awakened state, the search for still deeper planes of the mind begin[s], the super-conscious state of the mind. All religions claim to be founded on facts discovered in this state. The two important points to consider in this connection are, that all facts discovered in this way are, in the highest sense, abstractions, and secondly, that there is a constant struggle in the race to come up to this ideal, and everything which thwarts our progress towards that we feel as a limitation. This struggle soon ends in the discovery that to find infinite happiness, or power, or knowledge, or any other infinity, through the senses, is impossible, and then the struggle for other channels of expansion begins, and we find the necessity of religion. The second lecture was upon the subject "A Universal Religion", (No verbatim transcript available.) when the Swami gave, in substance, the lecture which most of your readers have seen in print as it was delivered in New York. As this lecture may be termed the Swami's "plan of campaign" we always await its delivery with very great interest, and it is most encouraging to note that the impression made here in London was equally as good as was the case when the lecture was delivered in the Hardman Hall, New York. The third of the series brought us up to Sunday last, June 21st, when "The Real and the Apparent Man" (Cf. Mr. J. J. Goodwin's published transcript "The Real Nature of Man", Complete Works, II: 70-87.) was the subject under discussion. In this the Swami, link by link, glanced over the thread of thought which has gradually advanced from the consideration of men as separate entities from God and the rest of the universe, up to the point at which we concede the impossibility of more than one Infinity, and the necessary consequence that which we now regard as men, as animals, as the universe of matter, cannot be the real unity; that the real must be something which is indivisible, and unchangeable; and when reason forces us to the conclusion that this phenomenal world can only be an illusion, through which we, as entities in the illusion, have to pass to discover our real nature, "That which exists is one; sages call it variously". But the Swami did not stop with the theory; he showed what would be the practical effect of such a theory, the gradual elimination from society of class distinctions, and distinctions between man and man, by greater unselfishness in the matters of money and power. Answering the objection that such a religion means loss of individuality, he argued that that which is changeful cannot be the real individuality, and that the gradual discovery of the reality behind us would mean the assumption of individuality and not its destruction.

The three lectures thus given have been so favorably received, and there have been so many wishes expressed for their continuation that three further lectures are to be given. . . .

Sincerely yours

A DISCIPLE (Probably Mr. E. T. Sturdy.)

ON THE SWISS ALPS*

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 117.)

[The Indian Mirror, September 22, 1896]

Swami Vivekananda writes from Lake Luzern [Lucerne] Switzerland, under date the 23rd of August last. (Evidently an unpublished extract from one of the three (1, 2, 3) letters the Swami wrote from Lucerne (Vide "Epistles", Complete Works, V and VI).) He has been walking over several parts of the Cis-Alpine country, enjoying the pleasing views of nature there. He says that the scenery is in no respect less grand than that of the Himalayas. Still, he makes out two points of difference between the two mountainous regions. In the former the rapid and thick colonization has been marring the beauty of the place. In the latter, there has not yet been any such marked tendency. The former has become a resort mainly for the sanatorists and summer-residents; and the latter mainly for the pilgrims and devotees. The Swami is shortly going to visit Germany, where an interview will take place with Prof. Deussen, after which, by the 24th of September, he will go back to England. To India, most likely, as he says, he is returning by the next winter. He intends to reside in the Himalayas.

"THE IDEAL OF UNIVERSAL RELIGION"
(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, pp. 331-33.)

[The Journal of the Maha-Bodhi Society, November 1896]

We have been presented with a copy of a booklet entitled the "Ideal of Universal Religion", published by the Brahmavadin Publishing Company, Madras. It is a lecture by Swami Vivekananda, delivered in America. The lecture is highly interesting and instructive. It is an attempt at a reconciliation between the diversity of religions. We hail the booklet as the symptom of the times, for it is evident for obvious reasons that men are beginning to awaken to the importance of this problem of religious harmony. Recently, in these countries leaders of different religious sects have attempted in their own way to reconcile this religious diversity, and have failed; they have aspired to defend their dogmas on the ground of distorted views of sectarianism. Swami Vivekananda has propounded a philosophical and at the same time a most practical solution of this problem of religious harmony. According to him, Vedanta is the bond between the ever conflicting religious differences. In the internal world, like the external world, there is also the centripetal and centrifugal action. We repel something, we attract something. Today we are attracted by some, to-morrow we are repelled by some. The same law cannot be applied at all times and in all cases. "Religion is the highest place of human thought and life, and herein the workings of these two forces have been most marked." At the outset, it apparently appears that there cannot reign unbroken harmony in this plane of mighty struggle. In every religion there are three parts, namely, philosophy, mythology and rituals. Every recognised religion [has] all these three things. But there can be no universal philosophy, mythology and rituals for the whole world. Where then the universality? How is it possible then to have a universal form of religion? "We all hear," says Swami Vivekananda, about universal brotherhood, and how societies stand up practically to preach this, Universal brotherhood, that is, we shout like drunken men we are all equal, therefore, let us make a sect. As soon as you make a sect you protest against equality, and thus it is no more. (Cf. the American lecture, delivered January 12, 1896 (Complete Works, II: 379-80).)

Mahomedans talk of universal brotherhood, but what comes out of them in reality? Nobody who is not a Mahomedan will be admitted into the brotherhood, he will have his throat cut. We think we cannot do better than quote his own words, wherein he with his wonderful lucidity and depth of views and in a remarkably catholic mind propounds forcibly the philosophy of the universal religion Vide [Complete Works, II: 375-96]. . . .

In society there are various natures of men. Some are active working men, there is the emotional man, then there is the mystic man and lastly there is the philosopher. Vivekananda strikes the key note of his whole philosophy when he declares that the attempt to help mankind to become beautifully balanced in all these four directions, is his ideal of religion and this religion is called in India, Yoga. The worker is called the Karma-yogin; who seeks union through love is called Bhakti-yogin; he who seeks through mysticism is called Raja-yogin; and he who seeks it through philosophy is called Jnan[a]-yogin. The religion which has a place for men of all these natures and a religion which satisf[ies] the thirst of men of different inclination, may be the universal religion, and that religion is Vedanta. Most cordially we recommend this admirable little book to our readers. For it contains some clear and definite expressions of views on the most vital problem that is engaging the serious attention of theologians. The price of the book is As. 3, and may be had at the Brahmavadin Office, Triplicane, Madras.

THE BANQUET FOR RANJIT SINJHI

(New Discoveries, Vol. 4, pp. 479-80.)

[The Indian Mirror, December 16, 1896]

On the 21st of this month [November], the Cambridge "Indian Majlis" gave a complimentary dinner at the University Arms Hotel [in Cambridge] to Prince Ranjit-sinhji and Mr. Atul Chandra Chatterjee. Mr. Hafiz G. Sarwir of St. John's College, took the chair. There were about fifty Indians present and a few Englishmen. . . .

Swami Vivekananda rose next to respond [to the toast of India] amidst loud and deafening cheers. (There is no verbatim transcript available. Cf. the following January 8, 1897 Indian newspaper report, "The Majlis in Cambridge".) The Swami began by saying that he did not know exactly why he should be chosen to respond to the toast unless it be for the reason that he in physical bulk bore a striking resemblance to the national animal of India (laughter). He desired to congratulate the guest of the evening and he took the statement which the Chairman had made that Mr. Chatterjee was going to correct the mistake of past historians of India, to be literally true. For out of the past the future must come and he knew no greater and more permanent foundation for the future than a true knowledge of what had preceded before. The present is the effect of the infinity of causes which represent the past. They had many things to learn from the Europeans but their past, the glory of India which had passed away, should constitute even a still greater source of inspiration and instruction. Things rise and things decay, there is rise and fall everywhere in the world. . . . Vide the block quotation under "[The Majlis In Cambridge" for the remaining text of this report.]

THE MAJLIS IN CAMBRIDGE

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, pp. 310-11.)

[The Amrita Bazar Patrika, January 8, 1897]

. . . The gathering was a unique one, for the Indians met together to talk (in the Majlis they all talk), about the successes of Ranjit Sing[h] and Atul Chandra Chatterjee. It is a pity the name of Professor Bose was not associated with the above two; and we think, Swami Vivekananda, who was present on the occasion, also deserved a recognition. We shall, however, not commit the mistake of omitting the last two in noticing to show what the Indians have been able to achieve in the West.

What the Swamiji did was to remove the impression from the minds of the Americans that the Indians were barbarians, superstitious in their beliefs, and addicted to monstrous cruelties. The advent of the Swamiji in the West has done this service, that it has created an impression in many quarters that the Indians are not an inferior race as Sir Charles Elliot called them, and that they can, in such subjects as religion and philosophy say things which are not known even to the West. The advent of the Swamiji in the West has undoubtedly enhanced the character of the Indians in the West. . . .

Said Swami Vivekananda:—

And though India is fallen to-day she will assuredly rise again. There was a time when India produced great philosophers and still greater prophets and preachers. The memory of those days ought to fill them with hope and confidence. This was not the first time in the history of India that they were so low. Periods of depression and degradation had occurred before this but India had always triumphed in the long run and so would she once again in the future. (At this time, there is no complete verbatim transcript available. Cf. the preceding December 16, 1896 Indian newspaper report , "The Banquet to Ranjit Sinhji", p.541.)

VIVEKANANDA IN THE WEST
(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 312.)

[The Amrita Bazar Patrika, January 20, 1897]

Swami Vivekananda has received the ovation of a conquering hero, returning home. The last we heard of him in England was when he got a farewell address from his English disciples, who expressed their undying love for India. . . .

No one has any accurate knowledge of what Swami Vivekananda was doing in the West. We hear that he has made some impression in America and also in England. . . .

The Swami is, however, well aware of the nature of the mission before him. He says that Vedantism teaches the truth, which is that man is a divine being and that the highest and the lowest are the manifestations of the same Lord. He does not, however, admit that knowledge alone is sufficient for the salvation of man. Says he:—

But his knowledge ought not to be a theory, but life. Religion is a realization, not talk, not doctrines, nor theories, however beautiful all these may be. Religion is being and becoming, not hearing or acknowledging. It is not an intellectual assent; but one's whole nature becoming changed into it. Such is religion. By an intellectual assent we can come to a hundred sort of foolish things, and change the next day, but this being and becoming is what is religion.

In the above noble sentiments, the Swami shews [shows] that he understands the situation pretty well. That which produces the rebirth of a man is religion. Under the influence of religion a man becomes a quite different being from what he was before. Unless that is the result of his religion, his religion is a myth.

BHAKTI*

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, pp. 203-4.)

[The Indian Mirror, February 24, 1898]

Swami Vivekananda has been urging on the people of Lahore and Sialkote the need of practical work. (Cf. "Bhakti" (a report from The Tribune), Complete Works, III: 391, for a somewhat different paraphrased passage.) The starving millions, he urged, cannot live on metaphysical speculation; they require bread; and in a lecture he gave at Lahore on Bhakti, he suggested as the best religion for to-day that everyman should, according to his means, go out into the street and search for hungry Narayans, take them into their houses, feed them and clothe them. The giver should give to man, remembering that he is the highest temple of God. He had seen charity in many countries, and the reason of its failure was the spirit, in which it was carried out. "Here take this and go away". Charity belied its name so long as it was given to gain reputation or applause of the world.

OUR MISSION IN AMERICA
(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 208.)

[The Indian Mirror, April 24, 1898]

Swami Vivekananda, in introducing the lecturer Swami Saradananda, said:

Ladies and Gentlemen, — The speaker of tonight just comes from America. As you all know here that America is for your country, although our countrymen, specially Swami Dayananda Saraswati, used to call this country as Patal, inhabited by Laplands, Rakshas and Asurs, &c. (Laughter and loud cheers). Well, Gentlemen, whether it is Patal or not you ought to decide that by seeing those few ladies present here, who have come from the country of your so-called Patal, whether they are Naga Kanyas or not. (Cheers). Now, America is perfectly a new country. It was discovered by Columbus, the Italian, and before that a prior claim is put forward by the Norwegians who say, that they have discovered the northern part of it, and then before that there is another prior claim of the Chinese, who at one time preached the noble doctrine of Buddhism in all parts of the world, and it is said that Buddhist Missionaries were also sent from India to America, and specially in Washington, where some sort[s] of records are still to be traced by any traveller going there. Well, the table has now been turned at last for a century or more and instead of America being discovered, she discovers persons that go over to her. (Loud applause). It is a phenomenon that we observe every day there, multitudes of persons coming over from every part of the country [world?] and getting themselves discovered in the United States. It is a fact, well-known to you here all that several of our own countrymen have been discovered in that way. (Cheers). To-day, here I present before you one of your Calcutta boys, that has been similarly discovered by the Americans. (Cheers).

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA [ON EDUCATION] AT BELUR

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 215.)

[The Indian Mirror, February 15, 1901]

A correspondent writes: — "The following is an epitome of Swami Vivekananda's speech made in Belur M.E. School on the prize-distribution day held on the 22nd instant, Sunday, when the Swami was invited to preside. The audience was composed chiefly of the boys of the school and some elderly gentlemen of Belur."

The modern student is not practical. He is quite helpless. What our students want is not so much muscularity of body as hardihood. They are wanting in self-help. They are not accustomed to use their eyes and hands. No handicraft is taught. The present system of English education is entirely literary. The student must be made to think for himself and work for himself. Suppose there is a fire. He is the first to come forward and put on [out] the fire who is accustomed to use his eyes and hands. There is much truth in the criticism of Europeans touching the laziness of the Bengali, the slipshod way of his doing things. This can be soon remedied if the students be made to learn some handicraft apart from its utilitarian aspect, it is an education in itself.

Secondly, how many thousands of students I know who live upon the worst food possible, and live amidst the most horrible surroundings, what wonder that there are so many idiots, imbeciles and cowards among them. They die like flies. The education that is given is onesided, weakening, it is killing by inches. The children are made to cram too much of useless matter, and are incarcerated in school rooms fifty or seventy in each, five hours together. They are given bad food. It is forgotten that the future health of the man is in the child. It is forgotten that nature can never be cheated and things cannot be pushed too early. In giving education to a child the law of growth has to be obeyed. And we must learn to wait. Nothing is more important than that the child must have a strong and healthy body. The body is the first thing to attain to virtue. I know we are the poorest nation in the world, and we cannot afford to do much. We can only work on the lines of least resistance. We should see at least that our children are well fed. The machine of the child's body should never be exhausted. In Europe and America a man with crores of rupees sends his son if sickly, to the farmers, to till the ground. After three years he returns to the father healthy, rosy and strong. Then he is fit to be sent to school. We ought not for these reasons push the present system of education any further.

Thirdly, our character has disappeared. Our English education has destroyed everything and left nothing in its place. Our children have lost their politeness. To talk nicely is degrading. To be reverential to one's elders is degrading. Irreverence has been the sign of liberty. It is high time that we go back to our old politeness. The reformers have nothing to give in place of what they have taken away. Yet in spite of the most adverse surrounding of climate, etc., we have been able to do much, we have to do much more. I am proud of my race, I do not despair, I am seeing daily a glorious and wonderful future in my mental [mental] visions. Take greatest care of these young ones on whom our future depends.

HINDU WINDOWS*

(Vivekananda in Indian Newspapers, p. 458.)

[The Indian Social Reformer, June 16, 1901]

A question having arisen in America as to the Swami Vivekananda's attitude towards social questions, a lady writes to an American paper as follows: "In one of his lectures at the Pouch Mansion, (Probably "India's Gift to the World", delivered February 25, 1895, of which there is no verbatim transcript available. Cf. two American newspaper articles published in Complete Works, II: 510-14 for somewhat different reports of this issue.) he spoke of the Hindu widows, declaring it unjust to state that they were generally subjected to cruelty or oppression in the Indians [sic] homes. He admitted that the prejudice against remarriage, and the custom which makes the widow a member of the husband's family instead of that of her own parents inflicted some hardships upon widows in India, and favoured wise efforts for their education which would render them self-supporting and in this way alleviate their condition. He emphasised his desire for the education and elevation of the women of his country, including the widows, by volunteering to give the entire proceeds of one of his lectures in support of the school of Babu Sasipada Banerjee, at Baranagar, near Calcutta, the institution of which preceded that of the Pandita Ramabai, at Poona, and where, if I am not mistaken, the Pandita herself obtained the first inspiration of her work. This lecture was given, and the proceeds were forwarded to Babu Sasipada Banerjee, and duly acknowledged."

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUES

XXX

(Translated from Bengali)

[Shri Priya Nath Sinha]

We evince a sad lack of restraint in conversation or any conjoint action such as music and so on. Everyone tries to put himself foremost. The jostling at railway or steamer station is another illustration of his. A friend of Swamiji had a talk with him one day at the Math on this subject. Swamiji remarked, "You see, we have an old adage: 'If your son is not inclined to study, put him in the Durbars (Sâbha).' The word Sabha here does not mean social meetings, such as take place occasionally at people's houses — it means royal Durbars. In the days of the independent kings of Bengal, they used to hold their courts mornings and evenings. There all the affairs of the State were discussed in the morning — and as there were no newspapers at that time, the king used to converse with the leading gentry of the capital and gather from them all information regarding the people and the State. These gentlemen had to attend these meetings, for if they did not do so, the king would inquire into the reason of their non-attendance. Such Durbars were the centres of culture in every country and not merely in ours. In the present day, the western parts of India, especially Rajputana, are much better off in this respect than Bengal, as something similar to these old Durbars still obtains there."

Q. — Then, Maharaj, have our people lost their own good manners because we have no kings of our own?

Swamiji: It is all a degeneration which has its root in selfishness. That in boarding a steamer one follows the vulgar maxim, "Uncle, save thy own precious skin", and in music and moments of recreation everyone tries to make a display of himself, is a typical picture of our mental state. Only a little training in self-sacrifice would take it away. It is the fault of the parents who do not teach their children good manners. Self-sacrifice, indeed, is the basis of all civilisation.

On the other hand, owing to the undue domination exercised by the parents, our boys do not get free scope for growth. The parents consider singing as improper. But the son, when he hears a fine piece of music, at once sets his whole mind on how to learn it, and naturally he must look out for an Âddâ. (Something like a club. The word has got a bad odour about it in Bengali.) Then again, "It is a sin to smoke!" So what else can the young man do than mix with the servants of the house, to indulge in this habit in secret? In everyone there are infinite tendencies, which require proper scope for satisfaction. But in our country that is not allowed; and to bring about a different order of things would require a fresh training of the parents. Such is the condition! What a pity! We have not yet developed a high grade of civilisation; and in spite of this, our educated Babus want the British to hand over the government to them to manage! It makes me laugh and cry as well. Well, where is that martial spirit which, at the very outset, requires one to know how to serve and obey and to practise self-restraint! The martial spirit is not self-assertion but self-sacrifice. One must be ready to advance and lay down one's life at the word of command, before he can command the hearts and lives of others. One must sacrifice himself first.

A devotee of Shri Ramakrishna once passed some severe remarks, in a book written by him, against those who did not believe in Shri Ramakrishna as an Incarnation of God. Swamiji summoned the writer to his presence and addressed him thus in a spirited manner:

What right had you to write like that, abusing others? What matters it if they do not believe in your Lord? Have we created a sect? Are we Ramakrishnites, that we should look upon anyone who will not worship him, as our enemy? By your bigotry you have only lowered him, and made him small. If your Lord is God Himself, then you ought to know that in whatsoever name one is calling upon him, it is his worship only — and who are you to abuse others? Do you think they will hear you if you inveigh against them? How foolish! You can only win others' hearts when you have sacrificed yourself to them, otherwise why should they hear you?

Regaining his natural composure after a short while, Swamiji spoke in a sorrowful tone:

Can anyone, my dear friend, have faith or resignation in the Lord, unless he himself is a hero? Never can hatred and malice vanish from one's heart unless one becomes a hero, and unless one is free from these, how can one become truly civilised? Where in this country is that sturdy manliness, that spirit of heroism? Alas, nowhere. Often have I looked for that, and I found only one instance of it, and only one.

Q. — In whom have you found it, Swamiji?

Swamiji: In G. C. (Babu Girish Chandra Ghosh.) alone I have seen that true resignation — that true spirit of a servant of the Lord. And was it not because he was ever ready to sacrifice himself that Shri Ramakrishna took upon himself all his responsibility? What a unique spirit of resignation to the Lord! I have not met his parallel. From him have I learnt the lesson of self-surrender.

So saying, Swamiji raised his folded hands to his head out of respect to him.

CONVERSATIONS AND DIALOGUE

XXXII

VENGEANCE OF HISTORY

(Mrs. Wright)

[At the end of August 1893, Swami Vivekananda stayed at Annisquam at the house of Prof. J. H. Wright. So astonishing a sight did Swamiji present in this quiet little New England village that speculations set in at once as to who this majestic and colourful figure might be. From where had he come? At first they decided that he was a Brahmin from India, but his manners did not fully conform to their ideas.] It was something that needed explanation and they unanimously repaired to the cottage after supper, to hear this strange new discourse. . . .

"It was the other day," he said, in his musical voice, "only just the other day — not more than four hundred years ago." And then followed tales of cruelty and oppression, of a patient race and a suffering people, and of a judgment to come! "Ah, the English!" he said. "Only just a little while ago they were savages, the vermin crawled on the ladies' bodies, . . . and they scented themselves to disguise the abominable odour of their persons. . . . Most hor-r-ible! Even now they are barely emerging from barbarism."

"Nonsense," said one of his scandalised hearers, "that was at least five hundred years ago."

"And did I not say 'a little while ago'? What are a few hundred years when you look at the antiquity of the human soul?" Then with a turn of tone, quite reasonable and gentle, "They are quite savage", he said. "The frightful cold, the want and privation of their northern climate", going on more quickly and warmly, "has made them wild. They only think to kill. . . . Where is their religion? They take the name of that Holy One, they claim to love their fellowmen, they civilise — by Christianity! — No! It is their hunger that has civilised them, not their God. The love of man is on their lips, in their hearts there is nothing but evil and every violence. 'I love you my brother, I love you!' . . . and all the while they cut his throat! Their hands are red with blood." . . . Then, going on more slowly, his beautiful voice deepening till it sounded like a bell, "But the judgment of God will fall upon them. 'Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord', and destruction is coming. What are your Christians? Not one third of the world. Look at those Chinese, millions of them. They are the vengeance of God that will light upon you. There will be another invasion of the Huns", adding, with a little chuckle, "they will sweep over Europe, they will not leave one stone standing upon another. Men, women, children, all will go and the dark ages will come again." His voice was indescribably sad and pitiful; then suddenly and flippantly, dropping the seer, "Me — I don't care! The world will rise up better from it, but it is coming. The vengeance of God, it is coming soon."

"Soon?" they all asked.

"It will not be a thousand years before it is done."

They drew a breath of relief. It did not seem imminent.

"And God will have vengeance", he went on. "You may not see it in religion, you may not see it in politics, but you must see it in history, and as it has been; it will come to pass. If you grind down the people, you will suffer. We in India are suffering the vengeance of God. Look upon these things. They ground down those poor people for their own wealth, they heard not the voice of distress, they ate from gold and silver when the people cried for bread, and the Mohammedans came upon them slaughtering and killing: slaughtering and killing they overran them. India has been conquered again and again for years, and last and worst of all came the Englishman. You look about India, what has the Hindu left? Wonderful temples, everywhere. What has the Mohammedan left? Beautiful palaces. What has the Englishman left? Nothing but mounds of broken brandy bottles! And God has had no mercy upon my people because they had no mercy. By their cruelty they degraded the populace; and when they needed them, the common people had no strength to give for their aid. If man cannot believe in the Vengeance of God, he certainly cannot deny the Vengeance of History. And it will come upon the English; they have their heels on our necks, they have sucked the last drop of our blood for their own pleasures, they have carried away with them millions of our money, while our people have starved by villages and provinces. And now the Chinaman is the vengeance that will fall upon them; if the Chinese rose today and swept the English into the sea, as they well deserve, it would be no more than justice."

And then, having said his say, the Swami was silent. A babble of thin-voiced chatter rose about him, to which he listened, apparently unheeding. Occasionally he cast his eye up to the roof and repeated softly, "Shiva! Shiva!" and the little company, shaken and disturbed by the current of powerful feelings and vindictive passion which seemed to be flowing like molten lava beneath the silent surface of this strange being, broke up, perturbed.

He stayed days [actually it was only a long weekend]. . . . All through, his discourses abounded in picturesque illustrations and beautiful legends. . . .

One beautiful story he told was of a man whose wife reproached him with his troubles, reviled him because of the success of others, and recounted to him all his failures. "Is this what your God has done for you", she said to him, "after you have served Him so many years?" Then the man answered, "Am I a trader in religion? Look at the mountain. What does it do for me, or what have I done for it? And yet I love it because I am so made that I love the beautiful. Thus I love God." . . . There was another story he told of a king who offered a gift to a Rishi. The Rishi refused, but the king insisted and begged that he would come with him. When they came to the palace, he heard the king praying, and the king begged for wealth, for power, for length of days from God. The Rishi listened, wondering, until at last he picked up his mat and started away. Then the king opened his eyes from his prayers and saw him. "Why are you going?" he said. "You have not asked for your gift." "I", said the Rishi, "ask from a beggar?"

When someone suggested to him that Christianity was a saving power, he opened his great dark eyes upon him and said, "If Christianity is a saving power in itself, why has it not saved the Ethiopians, the Abyssinians?"

Often on Swamiji's lips was the phrase, "They would not dare to do this to a monk." . . . At times he even expressed a great longing that the English government would take him and shoot him. "It would be the first nail in their coffin", he would say, with a little gleam of his white teeth. "and my death would run through the land like wild fire."

His great heroine was the dreadful [?] Ranee of the Indian mutiny, who led her troops in person. Most of the old mutineers, he said, had become monks in order to hide themselves, and this accounted very well for the dangerous quality of the monks' opinions. There was one man of them who had lost four sons and could speak of them with composure, but whenever he mentioned the Ranee, he would weep, with tears streaming down his face. "That woman was a goddess", he said, "a devi. When overcome, she fell on her sword and died like a man." It was strange to hear the other side of the Indian mutiny, when you would never believe that there was another side to it, and to be assured that a Hindu could not possibly kill a woman. . . .

MERCINARIES IN RELIGION

(Delivered in Minneapolis on November 26, 1893: Reported in the Minneapolis Journal)

The Unitarian church was crowded yesterday morning by an audience anxious to learn something of eastern religious thought as outlined by Swami Vivekananda, a Brahmin priest, who was prominent in the Parliament of Religions at Chicago last summer. The distinguished representative of the Brahmin faith was brought to Minneapolis by the Peripatetic Club, and he addressed that body last Friday evening. He was induced to remain until this week, in order that he might deliver the address yesterday. . . .

Dr. H.M. Simmons, the pastor, . . . read from Paul's lesson of faith, hope and charity, and "the greatest of these is charity", supplementing that reading by a selection from the Brahmin scripture which teaches the same lesson, and also a selection from the Moslem faith, and poems from the Hindu literature, all of which are in harmony with Paul's utterances.

After a second hymn Swami Vivekandi [sic] was introduced. He stepped to the edge of the platform and at once had his audience interested by the recital of a Hindu story. He said in excellent English:

"I will tell you a story of five blind men. There was a procession in a village in India, and all the people turned out to see the procession, and specially the gaily caparisoned elephant. The people were delighted, and as the five blind men could not see, they determined to touch the elephant that they might acquaint themselves with its form. They were given the privilege, and after the procession had passed, they returned home together with the people, and they began to talk about the elephant. 'It was just like a wall,' said one. 'No it wasn't,' said another, 'it was like a piece of rope.' 'You are mistaken,' said a third, 'I felt him and it was just a serpent.' The discussion grew excited, and the fourth declared the elephant was like a pillow. The argument soon broke into more angry expressions, and the five blind men took to fighting. Along came a man with two eyes, and he said, 'My friends, what is the matter?' The disputation was explained, whereupon the new-comer said, 'Men, you are all right: the trouble is you touched the elephant at different points. The wall was the side, the rope was the tail, the serpent was the trunk, and the toes were the pillow. Stop your quarrelling; you are all right, only you have been viewing the elephant from different standpoints."

Religion, he said, had become involved in such a quarrel. The people of the West thought they had the only religion of God, and the people of the East held the same prejudice. Both were wrong; God was in every religion.

There were many bright criticisms on Western thought. The Christians were characterised as having a "shopkeeping religion". They were always begging of God — "O God, give me this and give me that; O God, do this and do that." The Hindu couldn't understand this. He thought it wrong to be begging of God. Instead of begging, the religious man should give. The Hindu believed in giving to God, to his fellows, instead of asking God to give to them. He had observed that the people of the West, very many of them, thought a great deal of God, so long as they got along all right, but when the reverse came, then God was forgotten: not so with the Hindu, who had come to look upon God as a being of love. The Hindu faith recognised the motherhood of God as well as the fatherhood, because the former was a better fulfilment of the idea of love. The Western Christian would work all the week for the dollar, and when he succeeded he would pray, "O God, we thank thee for giving us this benefit", and then he would put all the money into his pocket; the Hindu would make the money and then give it to God by helping the poor and the less fortunate. And so comparisons were made between the ideas of the West and the ideas of the East. In speaking of God, Vivekanandi said in substance: "You people of the West think you have God. What is it to have God? If you have Him, why is it that so much criminality exists, that nine out of ten people are hypocrites? Hypocrisy cannot exist where God is. You have your palaces for the worship of God, and you attend them in part for a time once a week, but how few go to worship God. It is the fashion in the West to attend church, and many of you attend for no other reason. Have you then, you people of the West, any right to lay exclusive claim to the possession of God?"

Here the speaker was interrupted by spontaneous applause. He proceeded: "We of the Hindu faith believe in worshipping God for love's sake, not for what He gives us, but because God is love, and no nation, no people, no religion has God until it is willing to worship Him for love's sake. You of the West are practical in business, practical in great inventions, but we of the East are practical in religion. You make commerce your business; we make religion our business. If you will come to India and talk with the workman in the field, you will find he has no opinion on politics. He knows nothing of politics. But you talk to him of religion, and the humblest knows about monotheism, deism, and all the isms of religion. You ask:

"'What government do you live under?' and he will reply: 'I don't know. I pay my taxes, and that's all I know about it.' I have talked with your labourers, your farmers, and I find that in politics they are all posted. They are either Democrat or Republican, and they know whether they prefer free silver or a gold standard. But you talk to them of religion; they are like the Indian farmer, they don't know, they attend such a church, but they don't know what it believes; they just pay their pew rent, and that's all they know about it — or God."

The superstitions of India were admitted, "but what nation doesn't have them?" he asked. In summing up, he held that the nations had been looking at God as a monopoly. All nations had God, and any impulse for good was God. The Western people, as well as the Eastern people, must learn to "want God", and this "want" was compared to the man under water, struggling for air; he wanted it, he couldn't live without it. When the people of the West "wanted" God in that manner, then they would be welcome in India, because the missionaries would then come to them with God, not with the idea that India knows not God, but with love in their hearts and not dogma.

WOMEN OF INDIA

(Delivered at the Shakespeare Club House, in Pasadena, California, on January 18, 1900)

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: "Some persons desire to ask questions about Hindu Philosophy before the lecture and to question in general about India after the lecture; but the chief difficulty is I do not know what I am to lecture on. I would be very glad to lecture on any subject, either on Hindu Philosophy or on anything concerning the race, its history, or its literature. If you, ladies and gentlemen, will suggest anything, I would be very glad."

QUESTIONER: "I would like to ask, Swami, what special principle in Hindu Philosophy you would have us Americans, who are a very practical people, adopt, and what that would do for us beyond what Christianity can do."

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: "That is very difficult for me to decide; it rests upon you. If you find anything which you think you ought to adopt, and which will be helpful, you should take that. You see I am not a missionary, and I am not going about converting people to my idea. My principle is that all such ideas are good and great, so that some of your ideas may suit some people in India, and some of our ideas may suit some people here; so ideas must be cast abroad, all over the world."

QUESTIONER: "We would like to know the result of your philosophy; has your philosophy and religion lifted your women above our women?"

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: "You see, that is a very invidious question: I like our women and your women too."

QUESTIONER: "Well, will you tell us about your women, their customs and education, and the position they hold in the family?"

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA: "Oh, yes, those things I would be very glad to tell you. So you want to know about Indian women tonight, and not philosophy and other things?"

THE LECTURE

I must begin by saying that you may have to bear with me a good deal, because I belong to an Order of people who never marry; so my knowledge of women in all their relations, as mother, as wife, as daughter and sister, must necessarily not be so complete as it may be with other men. And then, India, I must remember, is a vast continent, not merely a country, and is inhabited by many different races. The nations of Europe are nearer to each other, more similar to each other, than the races in India. You may get just a rough idea of it if I tell you that there are eight different languages in all India. Different languages — not dialects — each having a literature of its own. The Hindi language, alone, is spoken by 100,000,000 people; the Bengali by about 60,000,000, and so on. Then, again, the four northern Indian languages differ more from the southern Indian languages than any two European languages from each other. They are entirely different, as much different as your language differs from the Japanese, so that you will be astonished to know, when I go to southern India, unless I meet some people who can talk Sanskrit, I have to speak to them in English. Furthermore, these various races differ from each other in manners, customs, food, dress, and in their methods of thought.

Then, again, there is caste. Each caste has become, as it were, a separate racial element. If a man lives long enough in India, he will be able to tell from the features what caste a man belongs to. Then, between castes, the manners and customs are different. And all these castes are exclusive; that is to say, they would meet socially, but they would not eat or drink together, nor intermarry. In those things they remain separate. They would meet and be friends to each other, but there it would end.

Although I have more opportunity than many other men to know women in general, from my position and my occupation as a preacher, continuously travelling from one place to another and coming in contact with all grades of society — (and women, even in northern India, where they do not appear before men, in many places would break this law for religion and would come to hear us preach and talk to us) — still it would be hazardous on my part to assert that I know everything about the women of India.

So I will try to place before you the ideal. In each nation, man or woman represents an ideal consciously or unconsciously being worked out. The individual is the external expression of an ideal to be embodied. The collection of such individuals is the nation, which also represents a great ideal; towards that it is moving. And, therefore, it is rightly assumed that to understand a nation you must first understand its ideal, for each nation refuses to be judged by any other standard than its own.

All growth, progress, well-being, or degradation is but relative. It refers to a certain standard, and each man to be understood has to be referred to that standard of his perfection. You see this more markedly in nations: what one nation thinks good might not be so regarded by another nation. Cousin-marriage is quite permissible in this country. Now, in India, it is illegal; not only so, it would be classed with the most horrible incest. Widow-marriage is perfectly legitimate in this country. Among the higher castes in India it would be the greatest degradation for a woman to marry twice. So, you see, we work through such different ideas that to judge one people by the other's standard would be neither just nor practicable. Therefore we must know what the ideal is that a nation has raised before itself. When speaking of different nations, we start with a general idea that there is one code of ethics and the same kind of ideals for all races; practically, however, when we come to judge of others, we think what is good for us must be good for everybody; what we do is the right thing, what we do not do, of course in others would be outrageous. I do not mean to say this as a criticism, but just to bring the truth home. When I hear Western women denounce the confining of the feet of Chinese ladies, they never seem to think of the corsets which are doing far more injury to the race. This is just one example; for you must know that cramping the feet does not do one-millionth part of the injury to the human form that the corset has done and is doing — when every organ is displaced and the spine is curved like a serpent. When measurements are taken, you can note the curvatures. I do not mean that as a criticism but just to point out to you the situation, that as you stand aghast at women of other races, thinking that you are supreme, the very reason that they do not adopt your manners and customs shows that they also stand aghast at you.

Therefore there is some misunderstanding on both sides. There is a common platform, a common ground of understanding, a common humanity, which must be the basis of our work. We ought to find out that complete and perfect human nature which is working only in parts, here and there. It has not been given to one man to have everything in perfection. You have a part to play; I, in my humble way, another; here is one who plays a little part; there, another. The perfection is the combination of all these parts. Just as with individuals, so with races. Each race has a part to play; each race has one side of human nature to develop. And we have to take all these together; and, possibly in the distant future, some race will arise in which all these marvellous individual race perfections, attained by the different races, will come together and form a new race, the like of which the world has not yet dreamed. Beyond saying that, I have no criticism to offer about anybody. I have travelled not a little in my life; I have kept my eyes open; and the more I go about the more my mouth is closed. I have no criticism to offer.

Now, the ideal woman in India is the mother, the mother first, and the mother last. The word woman calls up to the mind of the Hindu, motherhood; and God is called Mother. As children, every day, when we are boys, we have to go early in the morning with a little cup of water and place it before the mother, and mother dips her toe into it and we drink it.

In the West, the woman is wife. The idea of womanhood is concentrated there — as the wife. To the ordinary man in India, the whole force of womanhood is concentrated in motherhood. In the Western home, the wife rules. In an Indian home, the mother rules. If a mother comes into a Western home, she has to be subordinate to the wife; to the wife belongs the home. A mother always lives in our homes: the wife must be subordinate to her. See all the difference of ideas.

Now, I only suggest comparisons; I would state facts so that we may compare the two sides. Make this comparison. If you ask, "What is an Indian woman as wife?", the Indian asks, "Where is the American woman as mother? What is she, the all-glorious, who gave me this body? What is she who kept me in her body for nine months? Where is she who would give me twenty times her life, if I had need? Where is she whose love never dies, however wicked, however vile I am? Where is she, in comparison with her, who goes to the divorce court the moment I treat her a little badly? O American woman! where is she? " I will not find her in your country. I have not found the son who thinks mother is first. When we die, even then, we do not want our wives and our children to take her place. Our mother! — we want to die with our head on her lap once more, if we die before her. Where is she? Is woman a name to be coupled with the physical body only? Ay! the Hindu mind fears all those ideals which say that the flesh must cling unto the flesh. No, no! Woman! thou shalt not be coupled with anything connected with the flesh. The name has been called holy once and for ever, for what name is there which no lust can ever approach, no carnality ever come near, than the one word mother? That is the ideal in India.

I belong to an Order very much like what you have in the Mendicant Friars of the Catholic Church; that is to say, we have to go about without very much in the way of dress and beg from door to door, live thereby, preach to people when they want it, sleep where we can get a place — that way we have to follow. And the rule is that the members of this Order have to call every woman "mother"; to every woman and little girl we have to say "mother"; that is the custom. Coming to the West, that old habit remained and I would say to ladies, "Yes, mother", and they are horrified. I could not understand why they should be horrified. Later on, I discovered the reason: because that would mean that they are old. The ideal of womanhood in India is motherhood — that marvellous, unselfish, all-suffering, ever-forgiving mother. The wife walks behind-the shadow. She must imitate the life of the mother; that is her duty. But the mother is the ideal of love; she rules the family, she possesses the family. It is the father in India who thrashes the child and spansks when there is something done by the child, and always the mother puts herself between the father and the child. You see it is just the opposite here. It has become the mother's business to spank the children in this country, and poor father comes in between. You see, ideals are different. I do not mean this as any criticism. It is all good — this what you do; but our way is what we have been taught for ages. You never hear of a mother cursing the child; she is forgiving, always forgiving. Instead of "Our Father in Heaven", we say "Mother" all the time; that idea and that word are ever associated in the Hindu mind with Infinite Love, the mother's love being the nearest approach to God's love in this mortal world of ours. "Mother, O Mother, be merciful; I am wicked! Many children have been wicked, but there never was a wicked mother" — so says the great saint Râmprasâd.

There she is — the Hindu mother. The son's wife comes in as her daughter; just as the mother's own daughter married and went out, so her son married and brought in another daughter, and she has to fall in line under the government of the queen of queens, of his mother. Even I, who never married, belonging to an Order that never marries, would be disgusted if my wife, supposing I had married, dared to displease my mother. I would be disgusted. Why? Do I not worship my mother? Why should not her daughter-in-law? Whom I worship, why not she? Who is she, then, that would try to ride over my head and govern my mother? She has to wait till her womanhood is fulfilled; and the one thing that fulfils womanhood, that is womanliness in woman, is motherhood. Wait till she becomes a mother; then she will have the same right. That, according to the Hindu mind, is the great mission of woman — to become a mother. But oh, how different! Oh, how different! My father and mother fasted and prayed, for years and years, so that I would be born. They pray for every child before it is born. Says our great law-giver, Manu, giving the definition of an Aryan, "He is the Aryan, who is born through prayer". Every child not born through prayer is illegitimate, according to the great law-giver. The child must be prayed for. Those children that come with curses, that slip into the world, just in a moment of inadvertence, because that could not be prevented — what can we expect of such progeny? Mothers of America, think of that! Think in the heart of your hearts, are you ready to be women? Not any question of race or country, or that false sentiment of national pride. Who dares to be proud in this mortal life of ours, in this world of woes and miseries? What are we before this infinite force of God? But I ask you the question tonight: Do you all pray for the children to come? Are you thankful to be mothers, or not? Do you think that you are sanctified by motherhood, or not? Ask that of your minds. If you do not, your marriage is a lie, your womanhood is false, your education is superstition, and your children, if they come without prayer, will prove a curse to humanity.

See the different ideals now coming before us. From motherhood comes tremendous responsibility. There is the basis, start from that. Well, why is mother to be worshipped so much? Because our books teach that it is the pre-natal influence that gives the impetus to the child for good or evil. Go to a hundred thousand colleges, read a million books, associate with all the learned men of the world — better off you are when born with the right stamp. You are born for good or evil. The child is a born god or a born demon; that is what the books say. Education and all these things come afterwards — are a mere bagatelle. You are what you are born. Born unhealthful, how many drug stores, swallowed wholesale, will keep you well all through your life? How many people of good, healthy lives were born of weak parents, were born of sickly, blood-poisoned parents? How many? None — none. We come with a tremendous impetus for good or evil: born demons or born gods. Education or other things are a bagatelle.

Thus say our books: direct the pre-natal influence. Why should mother be worshipped? Because she made herself pure. She underwent harsh penances sometimes to keep herself as pure as purity can be. For, mind you, no woman in India thinks of giving up her body to any man; it is her own. The English, as a reform, have introduced at present what they call "Restitution of conjugal rights", but no Indian would take advantage of it. When a man comes in physical contact with his wife, the circumstances she controls through what prayers and through what vows! For that which brings forth the child is the holiest symbol of God himself. It is the greatest prayer between man and wife, the prayer that is going to bring into the world another soul fraught with a tremendous power for good or for evil. Is it a joke? Is it a simple nervous satisfaction? Is it a brute enjoyment of the body? Says the Hindu: no, a thousand times, no!

But then, following that, there comes in another idea. The idea we started with was that the ideal is the love for the mother — herself all-suffering, all-forbearing. The worship that is accorded to the mother has its fountain-head there. She was a saint to bring me into the world; she kept her body pure, her mind pure, her food pure, her clothes pure, her imagination pure, for years, because I would be born. Because she did that, she deserves worship. And what follows? Linked with motherhood is wifehood.

You Western people are individualistic. I want to do this thing because I like it; I will elbow every one. Why? Because I like to. I want my own satisfaction, so I marry this woman. Why? Because I like her. This woman marries me. Why? Because she likes me. There it ends. She and I are the only two persons in the whole, infinite world; and I marry her and she marries me — nobody else is injured, nobody else responsible. Your Johns and your Janes may go into the forest and there they may live their lives; but when they have to live in society, their marriage means a tremendous amount of good or evil to us. Their children may be veritable demons-burning, murdering, robbing, stealing, drinking, hideous, vile.

So what is the basis of the Indian's social order? It is the caste law. I am born for the caste, I live for the caste. I do not mean myself, because, having joined an Order, we are outside. I mean those that live in civil society. Born in the caste, the whole life must be lived according to caste regulation. In other words, in the present-day language of your country, the Western man is born individualistic, while the Hindu is socialistic — entirely socialistic. Now, then, the books say: if I allow you freedom to go about and marry any woman you like, and the woman to marry any man she likes, what happens? You fall in love; the father of the woman was, perchance, a lunatic or a consumptive. The girl falls in love with the face of a man whose father was a roaring drunkard. What says the law then? The law lays down that all these marriages would be illegal. The children of drunkards, consumptives, lunatics, etc., shall not be married. The deformed, humpbacked, crazy, idiotic — no marriage for them, absolutely none, says the law.

But the Mohammedan comes from Arabia, and he has his own Arabian law; so the Arabian desert law has been forced upon us. The Englishman comes with his law; he forces it upon us, so far as he can. We are conquered. He says, "Tomorrow I will marry your sister". What can we do? Our law says, those that are born of the same family, though a hundred degrees distant, must not marry, that is illegitimate, it would deteriorate or make the race sterile. That must not be, and there it stops. So I have no voice in my marriage, nor my sister. It is the caste that determines all that. We are married sometimes when children. Why? Because the caste says: if they have to be married anyway without their consent, it is better that they are married very early, before they have developed this love: if they are allowed to grow up apart, the boy may like some other girl, and the girl some other boy, and then something evil will happen; and so, says the caste, stop it there. I do not care whether my sister is deformed, or good-looking, or bad-looking: she is my sister, and that is enough; he is my brother, and that is all I need to know. So they will love each other. You may say, "Oh! they lose a great deal of enjoyment — those exquisite emotions of a man falling in love with a woman and a woman falling in love with a man. This is a sort of tame thing, loving each other like brothers and sisters, as though they have to." So be it; but the Hindu says, "We are socialistic. For the sake of one man's or woman's exquisite pleasure we do not want to load misery on hundreds of others."

There they are — married. The wife comes home with her husband; that is called the second marriage. Marriage at an early age is considered the first marriage, and they grow up separately with women and with their parents. When they are grown, there is a second ceremony performed, called a second marriage. And then they live together, but under the same roof with his mother and father. When she becomes a mother, she takes her place in turn as queen of the family group.

Now comes another peculiar Indian institution. I have just told you that in the first two or three castes the widows are not allowed to marry. They cannot, even if they would. Of course, it is a hardship on many. There is no denying that not all the widows like it very much, because non-marrying entails upon them the life of a student. That is to say, a student must not eat meat or fish, nor drink wine, nor dress except in white clothes, and so on; there are many regulations. We are a nation of monks — always making penance, and we like it. Now, you see, a woman never drinks wine or eats meat. It was a hardship on us when we were students, but not on the girls. Our women would feel degraded at the idea of eating meat. Men eat meat sometimes in some castes; women never. Still, not being allowed to marry must be a hardship to many; I am sure of that.

But we must go back to the idea; they are intensely socialistic. In the higher castes of every country you will find the statistics show that the number of women is always much larger than the number of men. Why? Because in the higher castes, for generation after generation, the women lead an easy life. They "neither toil nor spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of them". And the poor boys, they die like flies. The girl has a cat's nine lives, they say in India. You will read in the statistics that they outnumber the boys in a very short time, except now when they are taking to work quite as hard as the boys. The number of girls in the higher castes is much larger than in the lower. Conditions are quite opposite in the lower castes. There they all work hard; women a little harder, sometimes, because they have to do the domestic work. But, mind you, I never would have thought of that, but one of your American travellers, Mark Twain, writes this about India: "In spite of all that Western critics have said of Hindu customs, I never saw a woman harnessed to a plough with a cow or to a cart with a dog, as is done in some European countries. I saw no woman or girl at work in the fields in India. On both sides and ahead (of the railway train) brown-bodied naked men and boys are ploughing in the fields. But not a woman. In these two hours I have not seen a woman or a girl working in the fields. In India, even the lowest caste never does any hard work. They generally have an easy lot compared to the same class in other nations; and as to ploughing, they never do it. "

Now, there you are. Among the lower classes the number of men is larger than the number of women; and what would you naturally expect? A woman gets more chances of marriage, the number of men being larger.

Relative to such questions as to widows not marrying: among the first two castes, the number of women is disproportionately large, and here is a dilemma. Either you have a non-marriageable widow problem and misery, or the non-husband-getting young lady problem. To face the widow problem, or the old maid problem? There you are; either of the two. Now, go back again to the idea that the Indian mind is socialistic. It says, "Now look here! we take the widow problem as the lesser one." Why? "Because they have had their chance; they have been married. If they have lost their chance, at any rate they have had one. Sit down, be quiet, and consider these poor girls—they have not had one chance of marriage." Lord bless you! I remember once in Oxford Street, it was after ten o'clock, and all those ladies coming there, hundreds and thousands of them shopping; and some man, an American, looks around, and he says, "My Lord! how many of them will ever get husbands, I wonder!" So the Indian mind said to the widows, "Well, you have had your chance, and now we are very, very sorry that such mishaps have come to you, but we cannot help it; others are waiting."

Then religion comes into the question; the Hindu religion comes in as a comfort. For, mind you, our religion teaches that marriage is something bad, it is only for the weak. The very spiritual man or woman would not marry at all. So the religious woman says, "Well, the Lord has given me a better chance. What is the use of marrying? Thank God, worship God, what is the use of my loving man?" Of course, all of them cannot put their mind on God. Some find it simply impossible. They have to suffer; but the other poor people, they should not suffer for them. Now I leave this to your judgment; but that is their idea in India.

Next we come to woman as daughter. The great difficulty in the Indian household is the daughter. The daughter and caste combined ruin the poor Hindu, because, you see, she must marry in the same caste, and even inside the caste exactly in the same order; and so the poor man sometimes has to make himself a beggar to get his daughter married. The father of the boy demands a very high price for his son, and this poor man sometimes has to sell everything just to get a husband for his daughter. The great difficulty of the Hindu's life is the daughter. And, curiously enough, the word daughter in Sanskrit is "duhitâ". The real derivation is that, in ancient times, the daughter of the family was accustomed to milk the cows, and so the word "duhita" comes from "duh", to milk; and the word "daughter" really means a milkmaid. Later on, they found a new meaning to that word "duhita", the milkmaid — she who milks away all the milk of the family. That is the second meaning.

These are the different relations held by our Indian women. As I have told you, the mother is the greatest in position, the wife is next, and the daughter comes after them. It is a most intricate and complicated series of gradation. No foreigner can understand it, even if he lives there for years. For instance, we have three forms of the personal pronoun; they are a sort of verbs in our language. One is very respectful, one is middling, and the lowest is just like thou and thee. To children and servants the last is addressed. The middling one is used with equals. You see, these are to be applied in all the intricate relations of life. For example, to my elder sister I always throughout my life use the pronoun âpani, but she never does in speaking to me; she says tumi to me. She should not, even by mistake, say apani to me, because that would mean a curse. Love, the love toward those that are superior, should always be expressed in that form of language. That is the custom. Similarly I would never dare address my elder sister or elder brother, much less my mother or father, as tu or tum or tumi. As to calling our mother and father by name, why, we would never do that. Before I knew the customs of this country, I received such a shock when the son, in a very refined family, got up and called the mother by name! However, I got used to that. That is the custom of the country. But with us, we never pronounce the name of our parents when they are present. It is always in the third person plural, even before them.

Thus we see the most complicated mesh-work in the social life of our men and our women and in our degree of relationship. We do not speak to our wives before our elders; it is only when we are alone or when inferiors are present. If I were married, I would speak to my wife before my younger sister, my nephews or nieces; but not before my elder sister or parents. I cannot talk to my sisters about their husbands at all. The idea is, we are a monastic race. The whole social organisation has that one idea before it. Marriage is thought of as something impure, something lower. Therefore the subject of love would never be talked of. I cannot read a novel before my sister, or my brothers, or my mother, or even before others. I close the book.

Then again, eating and drinking is all in the same category. We do not eat before superiors. Our women never eat before men, except they be the children or inferiors. The wife would die rather than, as she says, "munch" before her husband. Sometimes, for instance, brothers and sisters may eat together; and if I and my sister are eating, and the husband comes to the door, my sister stops, and the poor husband flies out.

These are the customs peculiar to the country. A few of these I note in different countries also. As I never married myself, I am not perfect in all my knowledge about the wife. Mother, sisters — I know what they are; and other people's wives I saw; from that I gather what I have told you.

As to education and culture, it all depends upon the man. That is to say, where the men are highly cultured, there the women are; where the men are not, women are not. Now, from the oldest times, you know, the primary education, according to the old Hindu customs, belongs to the village system. All the land from time immemorial was nationalised, as you say — belonged to the Government. There never is any private right in land. The revenue in India comes from the land, because every man holds so much land from the Government. This land is held in common by a community, it may be five, ten, twenty, or a hundred families. They govern the whole of the land, pay a certain amount of revenue to the Government, maintain a physician, a village schoolmaster, and so on.

Those of you who have read Herbert Spencer remember what he calls the "monastery system" of education that was tried in Europe and which in some parts proved a success; that is, there is one schoolmaster, whom the village keeps. These primary schools are very rudimentary, because our methods are so simple. Each boy brings a little mat; and his paper, to begin with, is palm leaves. Palm leaves first, paper is too costly. Each boy spreads his little mat and sits upon it, brings out his inkstand and his books and begins to write. A little arithmetic, some Sanskrit grammar, a little of language and accounts — these are taught in the primary school.

A little book on ethics, taught by an old man, we learnt by heart, and I remember one of the lessons:

"For the good of a village, a man ought to give up his family;
For the good of a country, he ought to give up his village;
For the good of humanity, he may give up his country;

For the good of the world, everything."

Such verses are there in the books. We get them by heart, and they are explained by teacher and pupil. These things we learn, both boys and girls together. Later on, the education differs. The old Sanskrit universities are mainly composed of boys. The girls very rarely go up to those universities; but there are a few exceptions.

In these modern days there is a greater impetus towards higher education on the European lines, and the trend of opinion is strong towards women getting this higher education. Of course, there are some people in India who do not want it, but those who do want it carried the day. It is a strange fact that Oxford and Cambridge are closed to women today, so are Harvard and Yale; but Calcutta University opened its doors to women more than twenty years ago. I remember that the year I graduated, several girls came out and graduated — the same standard, the same course, the same in everything as the boys; and they did very well indeed. And our religion does not prevent a woman being educated at all. In this way the girl should be educated; even thus she should be trained; and in the old books we find that the universities were equally resorted to by both girls and boys, but later the education of the whole nation was neglected. What can you expect under foreign rule? The foreign conqueror is not there to do good to us; he wants his money. I studied hard for twelve years and became a graduate of Calcutta University; now I can scarcely make $5.00 a month in my country. Would you believe it? It is actually a fact. So these educational institutions of foreigners are simply to get a lot of useful, practical slaves for a little money — to turn out a host of clerks, postmasters, telegraph operators, and so on. There it is.

As a result, education for both boys and girls is neglected, entirely neglected. There are a great many things that should be done in that land; but you must always remember, if you will kindly excuse me and permit me to use one of your own proverbs, "What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." Your foreign born ladies are always crying over the hardships of the Hindu woman, and never care for the hardships of the Hindu man. They are all weeping salt tears. But who are the little girls married to? Some one, when told that they are all married to old men, asked, "And what do the young men do? What! are all the girls married to old men, only to old men?" We are born old — perhaps all the men there.

The ideal of the Indian race is freedom of the soul. This world is nothing. It is a vision, a dream. This life is one of many millions like it. The whole of this nature is Maya, is phantasm, a pest house of phantasms. That is the philosophy. Babies smile at life and think it so beautiful and good, but in a few years they will have to revert to where they began. They began life crying, and they will leave it crying. Nations in the vigour of their youth think that they can do anything and everything: "We are the gods of the earth. We are the chosen people." They think that God Almighty has given them a charter to rule over all the world, to advance His plans, to do anything they like, to turn the world upside down. They have a charter to rob, murder, kill; God has given them this, and they do that because they are only babes. So empire after empire has arisen — glorious, resplendent — now vanished away — gone, nobody knows where; it may have been stupendous in its ruin.

As a drop of water upon a lotus leaf tumbles about and falls in a moment, even so is this mortal life. Everywhere we turn are ruins. Where the forest stands today was once the mighty empire with huge cities. That is the dominant idea, the tone, the colour of the Indian mind. We know, you Western people have the youthful blood coursing through your veins. We know that nations, like men, have their day. Where is Greece? Where is Rome? Where that mighty Spaniard of the other day? Who knows through it all what becomes of India? Thus they are born, and thus they die; they rise and fall. The Hindu as a child knows of the Mogul invader whose cohorts no power on earth could stop, who has left in your language the terrible word "Tartar". The Hindu has learnt his lesson. He does not want to prattle, like the babes of today. Western people, say what you have to say. This is your day. Onward, go on, babes; have your prattle out. This is the day of the babies, to prattle. We have learnt our lesson and are quiet. You have a little wealth today, and you look down upon us. Well, this is your day. Prattle, babes, prattle — this is the Hindu's attitude.

The Lord of Lords is not to be attained by much frothy speech. The Lord of Lords is not to be attained even by the powers of the intellect. He is not gained by much power of conquest. That man who knows the secret source of things and that everything else is evanescent, unto him He, the Lord, comes; unto none else. India has learnt her lesson through ages and ages of experience. She has turned her face towards Him. She has made many mistakes; loads and loads of rubbish are heaped upon the race. Never mind; what of that? What is the clearing of rubbish, the cleaning of cities, and all that? Does that give life? Those that have fine institutions, they die. And what of institutions, those tinplate Western institutions, made in five days and broken on the sixth? One of these little handful nations cannot keep alive for two centuries together. And our institutions have stood the test of ages. Says the Hindu, "Yes, we have buried all the old nations of the earth and stand here to bury all the new races also, because our ideal is not this world, but the other. Just as your ideal is, so shall you be. If your ideal is mortal, if your ideal is of this earth, so shalt thou be. If your ideal is matter, matter shalt thou be. Behold! Our ideal is the Spirit. That alone exists, nothing else exists; and like Him, we live for ever."

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA ON LOVE

(New Discoveries, Vol. 3, pp. 237-40.)

[Maidenhead Adviser, October 23, 1895]

On Thursday the Swami Vivekananda delivered a lecture at the Town Hall, Maidenhead, taking as his subject "The Eastern Doctrine of Love."* Owing to other attractions in the town the attendance was not large. Many of the public also associated the lecturer with the Theosophical Society, with which, however, he has, we are informed, nothing whatever to do, nor with any other society, neither does he propose forming any society himself. He believes in expounding his views to whoever will listen to them and leaving those individuals to advocate them as a whole, or with whatever modifications they may deem fitting, or to reject them altogether, believing that out of the strife of all opinions truth at length prevails.

The chair was taken at 8 p.m. by Mr. E. Gardner, J.P., C.C., and he very briefly introduced the lecturer, who was clad in his native costume. The Swami then proceeded to express his view upon devotion to deity, or, as more commonly expressed in the East — love (Bhakti), to the following effect: — Religion may be divided into two forms, the first almost entirely superstitious and the second merely metaphysical, but if either of these is to have any force it must be accompanied by love. Work alone without this element did not satisfy. The land might be covered with hospitals, penetrated by good roads; there might be great social institutions well conducted, and good sanitation, but these were all external physical processes and by themselves brought man no nearer to Divinity. Both the realist and the idealist were necessary and complementary one of the other. The idealist brought the bold aspiration down to earth, the realist caused it to take form through work. Love cannot be defined in positive terms, only negatively. Its nature is of the form of renunciation. In its more general sense it might be divided threefold: (1) That love which is for one's own pleasure, irrespective of pleasure or pain to others — the purely selfish, the lowest. (2) That love which exchanges — "I will love you if you love me. We will make each other mutually happy" — the partially selfish, the middle path trodden by the great majority of mankind. (3) That love which gives all and asks for nothing, without premeditation and which never regrets, unconquerable by any evil thing done to him from whom it emanates. It is the highest, the divine. Only with this last kind are we concerned here. The first is the path of the sensualist and the animal, the second the path of struggling humanity on its way to better things, the third the real path of love, trodden by those who renounce the world and set out upon that road which leads to Eternal Peace. In that love there is no fear. Love kills fear. A lion might stand over a babe and threaten its life; the mother knows no fear, she does not fly, but she opposes. At that moment love destroys terror; at other times the same woman would run from a small dog. A fierce Mahomedan [sic] warrior went to a garden to pray. In the same garden a girl had appointed to meet her lover. The warrior lay prostrate on his face according to the prescribed form of his religion. At that moment the girl espied her lover, and with joy rushing to meet him, trod upon the prostrate form. He jumped up and laying hand upon his sword would have slain the girl. "How dare you?" cried he, "vile wench, disturb my worship, my devotion to God, with your base feet." "Worship! devotion!" cried the girl, "you do not know what they are. You had no devotion, lying there, no spirit of worship. If I, a timid girl, could so forget the presence of an object of dread like you, in my worship and devotion to my earthly lover as to tread upon you and not even know it, how much more should you, if your heart had been absorbed in love and devotion to God, have been ignorant that I touched you?" The warrior was humbled and appeased and went away. Our highest ideal of love is the image which we form for ourselves of deity. A barbarous people have a tyrannical and cruel god. A wise and noble people see God in ever and ever widening potencies. God is always God, but the views which men and nations may take of Him vary. No higher view is known than that of love. The man who bears in his heart an unrelaxing love to every creature, whether he recognise that that creature is a manifestation of God, in which he is actually present, or whether he look upon it merely as fashioned by Deity, that man is on the path to Deity, on the great path of devotion and renunciation. He cannot injure the creature of God, however repulsive to his narrower view of what should or should not be. He gives in love, not in pride; in loving Deity he loves its manifestations, works with them and abides by them.

The lecture was impressively delivered, and at the close a vote of thanks was accorded the Chairman (on the proposition of Mr. E. T. Sturdy, of Caversham).

The proceedings occupied only a little over half an hour.

A BENGALI SADHU*

[Madura Mail, January 28, 1893]

A BENGALI SADHU ON HINDU RELIGION AND SOCIOLOGY

A young Bengalee Sanyashi [Sannyâsin] of about thirty-two years of age, and a Master of Arts of the Calcutta University was last week interviewed at the Triplicane Literary Society by about a hundred educated Indians among whom was Dewan Bahadur Raghunatha Rao. A summary of what was stated by the Sadhu is published by the Indian Social Reformer, from which we make the following extracts:*

The Vedic Religion

The perfect religion is the Vedic religion. The Vedas have two parts, mandatory and optional. The mandatory injunctions are eternally binding on us. They constitute the Hindu religion. The optional ones are not so. These have been changing and been changed by the Rishis to suit the times. The Brahmins at one time ate beef and married Sudras. [A] calf was killed to please a guest. Sudras cooked for Brahmins. The food cooked by a male Brahmin was regarded as polluted food. But we have changed our habits to suit the present yug[a]. Although our caste rules have so far changed from the time of Manu, still if he should come to us now, he would still call us Hindus. Caste is a social organization and not a religious one. It was the outcome of the natural evolution of our society. It was found necessary and convenient at one time. It has served its purpose. But for it, we would long ago have become Mahomedans [sic]. It is useless now. It may be dispensed with. Hindu religion no longer requires the prop of the caste system. A Brahmin may interdine with anybody, even a Pariah. He won't thereby lose his spirituality. A degree of spirituality that is destroyed by the touch of a Pariah, is a very poor quantity. It is almost at the zero point. Spirituality of a Brahmin must overflow, blaze and burn [so] as to warm into spiritual life not one Pariah but thousands of Pariahs who may touch him. The old Rishis observed no distinctions or restrictions as regards food. A man who feels that his own spirituality is so flimsy that the sight of a low caste man annihilates it need not approach a Pariah and must keep his precious little to himself.

The Hindu Ideal of Life

The Hindu Ideal of life is "Nivarti" [Nivritti]. (Nivritti and Parvritti are key concepts in Hindu philosophy, and Swami Vivekananda has frequently interpreted and elaborated on them (e.g., see Karma-Yoga, Ch. VI) in their traditional connotations. But the interpretation of the terms here ascribed to him by the Indian Social Reformer's reporter is not in accord with what the Swami has said elsewhere.) Nivarti means subjugation and conquest of evil passions, of Tamasa nature of lust, revenge and avarice. It does not mean conquest of all desire. It means only the annihilation of gross desires. Every man is bound to love and sympathize with his fellow-creatures. [A] Sanyasi is one who has vanquished all his selfish passions and vowed to devote his life for the good of others. He loves all. "Pravirti" [Pravritti] means love of God and all his creatures. Sanyasis ought to be fed. They are not like the Christian bishops and Archbishops who must be paid to do their work with thousands of pounds per annum; all whose earnings are spent upon their own luxury — their wife and children. [The] Sanyasi wants only a morsel of food, and then he places all his knowledge and services at the disposal of the public. He is a wandering missionary. Individuals and society have to work themselves up from "brute through man, into divine". Even the lowest of the Hindus, the Pariah, has less of the brute in him than a Briton in a similar social status. This is the result of an old and excellent religious civilization. This evolution to a higher spiritual state is possible only through discipline and education.

The Shradh [Shrâddha] Ceremony*

Every institution, caste, early marriage etc., that stands in the way of education, ought at once to be knocked on the head. Even "Shradh" may be given up, if the performance of it involves waste of time which might be better used for self-education. But "Shradh" should not be given up. The meaning of the Mantras is very edifying. The Mantras depict the suffering and care undergone by our parents on our behalf. The performance of it is an honour paid to the memory of the sum total of the spirit of our forefathers, whose virtues we inherit. Shradh has nothing to do with one's salvation. Yet no Hindu who loves his religion, his country and his past great men should give up Shradh. The outward formalities and the feeding of the Brahmins are not essential. We have no Brahmins in these days worthy of being fed on Shradh days. The Brahmins fed ought not to be professional eaters, but Brahmins who feed disciples gratis, and teach them true Vedic doctrines. In these days, Shradh may be performed mentally.

Education of Women

The jealous guardianship of our women shows that we Hindus have declined in our national virtues, that we reverted to the "brutal state". Every man must so discipline his mind as to bring himself to regard all women as his sisters or mothers. Women must have freedom to read, to receive as good an education as men. Individual development is impossible with ignorance and slavery.

Emancipation of the Hindus

Through the slavery of a thousand years, Hindus have at present degenerated. They have forgotten their own self-respect. Every English boy is taught to feel his importance, he thinks that he is a member of a great race, the conquerors of the Earth. The Hindu feels from his boyhood just the reverse that he is born to slave. We can't become a great nation unless we love our religion and try to respect ourselves, and respect our country men and society. The Hindus of modern times are generally hypocrites. They must rise, and combine the faith in the true Vedic religion, with a knowledge of the political and scientific truths of the Europeans. The evils of caste seem to be more prevalent in the South than in Bengal. In Bengal a Brahmin uses the water touched by the Sudras, but here the Sudra is kept at a great distance by the Brahmin. There are no Brahmins in [the] Kali Yug[a]. The Pariahs, our fellow beings, ought to be educated by the higher castes, must [. . .] truths of Hindu religion and be [. . .] Brahmins. The first duty of a Brahmin is to love all. There must first be an amalgamation of the Brahmins, then of all the Dwijas,* and then of the Dwijas and Sudras.
